Thus, loaning is a lot more difficult than almsgiving. The loaner always calculates the remaining time when the loan repayment becomes due. He can also commit numerous sins because of this loan. For example, he may embarrassingly or insultingly demand repayment of the borrower whenever they meet together. Also, the loaner may offensively remind the borrower of his favour and blame him vehemently. This in turn leaves no room for speaking together normally and comfortably. So, loaning is harder for both the loaner and the borrower.

Allah the Almighty gives a reward for the act of loaning more than He does for charity. Here, I can remember that when I was in America, an orientalist asked me, ‘There is a contradiction between the Quranic verse reading: “Whoever comes [on the Day of Judgement] with a good deed will have ten times the like thereof [to his credit]…” (al-An‘am: 160) and the Hadith of Messenger Muhammad which reads: “The following words are written on the gate of paradise: the reward for one act of charity is ten times as much as the like thereof and the reward for a loan is eighteen times as much as the like thereof.”’(1) Allah the Almighty inspired me to give the answer to the orientalist. So I said to the interpreter, ‘Yes, the reward for a good deed is tenfold as much as the like thereof in case you give charity. As regards the loan, if you, for example, donate one dollar to charity, it equals ten dollars in the sight of Allah the Almighty. But you take back your dollar, and thus it seems as if you have nine dollars; if they multiply, they make eighteen dollars.’

If someone asks, ‘Why is the reward for a loan multiplied?’ We say, The almsgiver has no desire to take back his alms. As regards the loaner, he expects that his loan will be paid off. The longer he keeps patient, the greater his reward will be. Moreover, the borrower takes out a loan in case of dire need, while the recipient of the alms may accept the charity even if he does not need it. Allah the Almighty wants to encourage Muslims to give loans because He the Almighty wills life to continue and its aspects to integrate. One takes care of his money and tries hard to make it grow; this can be realised by giving charity as a loan to Allah the Almighty. This is the way through which Allah the Almighty increases and multiplies your reward. Therefore, He says: ‘If you make a generous loan to Allah He will multiply it for you…’ (at-Taghabun: 17). He Glorified is He lays down a condition for the loan to be multiplied, namely; it must be goodly. But what is the goodly loan? Describing the loan as goodly indicates that the source of the money from which you give someone else a loan must be lawful. In this regard, Messenger Muhammad Allah’s peace and blessings be upon him says, ‘Allah is good and accepts nothing but that which is good.’ (2)

(1) Anas ibn Malik narrated that Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, ‘On the Night of Al-Israa’, I saw these words written on the gate of paradise: “The reward for one act of charity is ten times as much as the like thereof and the reward for a loan is eighteen times as much as the like thereof.” I asked Jibril (Gabriel), “Why is loaning better than charity?” He replied, “Because the beggar asks for help and can manage while the borrower takes out a loan when s/he is in dire need of it.”’ See Ibn Maja, Sunnan, Hadith no. 2431; see also At-Tabarani, Al-Mu‘jam Al-Awsat, Hadith no. 6719; and Al-Bayhaqi, Shu‘ab Al-Iman, Hadith no. 3288.

(2) Abu Hurayra narrated that Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said ‘Allah is good and accepts nothing but that which is good. And Allah orders believers to do what He commands Prophets to do; He says, “O Messengers, eat from the good=

When you give someone else a loan, you give it to Allah the Almighty. So, you deal with Allah the Almighty and your dealing must be based on lawful gains. How can one deal with Allah the Almighty with ill-gotten gains he makes out of theft, embezzlement, usury or any kind of sins? Your money must be lawful and good so that your loan will be goodly and acceptable.

Allah the Almighty describes the loan as goodly and generous in order for it to be devoid of taunts and harm or any benefits whatsoever for the lender; otherwise, the loan will be an interest-based loan, which is forbidden in Islam. Imam Abu Hanifah(1) sets a great example to us in this regard. He used to sit in the shade of one of his friends' houses. One day the owner of the house borrowed some money from Abu Hanifah. The next day Abu Hanifah sat away from the shade of the house. On seeing him, the owner of the house asked him why he did so, whereupon he explained that he feared that his sitting in the shade of the house might be a type of usury.

As for reproaching and harming the recipient of charity, Allah the Almighty says: '(As for) those who spend their property in the way of Allah, then do not follow up what they have spent with reproach or injury, they shall have their reward from their Lord, and they shall have no fear nor shall they grieve. [262] Kind speech and forgiveness is better than charity followed by injury; and Allah is Self-sufficient, Forbearing' [263] (al-Baqara: 262-263). As He the Almighty talks about charity in the two above-mentioned verses, we should stress here that the interest-free loan is also a kind of charitable spending. As previously stated, loaning is harder on one's self than almsgiving. So, you should not taunt the person who receives your charity or borrows from you or hurt his feelings in one way or another.

= foods and do good deeds…" (al-Mu'minun:51). He also says, "O you who have believed, eat from the good [that is, lawful] things which We have provided for you..." (al-Baqara: 172). Then he (the Messenger) mentioned the example of a dishevelled dust-covered man who makes a long journey, raising his hands towards the sky (saying), "O my Lord! O my Lord!" But his food is unlawful; his drink is unlawful; he was nourished from illicit gains. So how are his supplications answered?'

(1) Abu Hanifa An-Nu'aman ibn Thabit At-Taymi was born in Kufah in 80 A. H. and grew up there; he traded in silk and pursued knowledge since his boyhood. Afterwards, he devoted himself to teaching and giving fatwas.

It is among the norms of faith that a person should forget about the fact that he gave charity. He should not tell anyone of his relatives about his kindness towards the poor, notably little children who do not understand such matters. If my son knows that I give some help to my neighbour, he may taunt the son of my neighbour about this. So beware of following your charitable expenditures by taunting or insulting their recipients. If you do so, the one who receives your charity or borrows from you will have a grudge and hatred against you.

We find a lot of people say boastfully, ‘We did too many favours to so-and-so. We helped so-and-so in such-and-such a way. But they were ungrateful to us.’ As you remember the kindness you do to others but tauntingly, it is fair that they receive it with ingratitude. As you did not seek Allah’s Cause by your favours, people will not be grateful for them.

Your charitable expenditures should not be accompanied by taunting or boasting, not only at the time when you give it but also after you do that. More appropriately, you must continue doing the same, no matter how much time passes.

The moment you give charity or give a goodly loan, you deal with Allah the Almighty. Consider what Lady Fatima (1) used to do. She would burnish and perfume the dirhams whenever she donated them to charity. When she was asked about this, she said, ‘I polish and perfume dirhams because I have intended to donate them to charity.’ She was asked, ‘Why do you want to donate them burnished and perfumed?’ She replied, ‘Because I know that they fall into Allah’s Hands before they do into the hands of the poor.’(2)

In order for a loan to be goodly, it must be interest-free. Interest makes the loan bad and causes the borrower to suffer from straitened circumstances even if he is actually in dire need of the loan. Also, the one who gives interest-based loans and exploits others' difficulties suffers from loss and damage. The Messenger of Allah the Almighty says, 'Any loan that generates a benefit [on the part of the loaner] is based on usury.'(1)

Allah the Almighty says: 'And whatever you lay out as usury so that it may increase in the property of men, it shall not increase with Allah; and whatever you give in charity, desiring Allah's pleasure – it is these (persons) that shall get manifold' (ar-Rum: 39). He Glorified is He prohibits practising usury even if it is for the purpose of achieving an increase, be it in the form of a material advantage, or money or valuable items, be it conditional or unconditional. Under these circumstances, interest-based money turns into a commodity. For example, one hundred pounds taken as a loan may be repaid as one hundred and fifty pounds.

This does serious damage to the society because wealth should grow through business. If the growth of wealth is not based on business, life will be corrupted; the poor will grow poorer and the rich will become richer. Regretfully, this is what we see in the world these days.

At the country level, we notice that poor countries become poorer because they borrow money and the resultant interest will mount and accumulate until it is more than the original debts. With the passage of time, interest increases, thus debts multiply and the settlement becomes nearly impossible. Rich countries become richer because they give loans and recover them many times.

The contract of usury protects the creditor only. There is another moral question: a person gives an interest-based loan when he has money in excess of his basic needs. One takes out the loan from a usurer only when one is in dire need of it. Look at the ethical setback in the universe; the destitute have no choice but to borrow money and later they are bound to repay it at high rates of interest to the wealthy who are not in need. How can such a loan be lawful if it is not a goodly loan which the borrowers take out to meet their daily needs or handle an emergency? The goodly loans should not harm the debtor, but rather relieve him from concern about paying it back along with its interest.

In order for a loan to be goodly, it must be based on the rules and regulations of Islamic Law. Therefore, the debt should be documented and be attested to so that neither the creditor nor the debtor will be wronged in any way. In this connection, Allah the Almighty says: 'O you who believe! When you deal with each other in contracting a debt for a fixed time, then write it down; and let a scribe write it down between you with fairness; and the scribe should not refuse to write as Allah has taught him, so he should write; and let him who owes the debt dictate, and he should be careful of (his duty to) Allah, his Lord, and not diminish anything from it; but if he who owes the debt is unsound in understanding, or weak, or (if) he is not able to dictate himself, let his guardian dictate with fairness; and call in to witness from among your men two witnesses; but if there are not two men, then one man and two women from among those whom you choose to be witnesses so that if one of the two errs, the second of the two may remind the other; and the witnesses should not refuse when they are summoned; and be not averse to writing it (whether it is) small or large, with the time of its falling due; this is more equitable in the sight of Allah and assures greater accuracy in testimony, and the nearest (way) that you may not entertain doubts (afterwards), except when it is ready merchandise which you give and take among yourselves from hand to hand, then there is no blame on you in not writing it down; and have witnesses when you barter with one another, and let no harm be done to the scribe or to the witness; and if you do (it) then surely it will be a transgression in you, and be careful of (your duty) to Allah, Allah teaches you, and Allah knows all things' (al-Baqara: 282). In this verse of al-Baqara, He the Almighty lays down rules for borrowing and loaning. The loan must be documented so that rights will be preserved and the proprietors of wealth will be reassured that their wealth is safe. In this way, lending continues and the needy will be aided without harming the owners of capital.

As Allah the Almighty closes the door of interest-based loans, He opens the door of interest-free lending that is based on documentation and testifying.

Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him says, ‘The usury that was practised during the Pre-Islamic period is illegal, and I begin by declaring forbidden the amount of interest which ‘Abbas ibn ‘Abd Al-Muttalib used to receive. Surely, it is entirely unbinding.’(1)

Allah the Almighty says: ‘O you who believe! Be careful of (your duty to) Allah and relinquish what remains (due) from usury, if you are believers. [278] But if you do (it) not, then be apprised of war from Allah and His Messenger; and if you repent, then you shall have your capital; neither shall you make (the debtor) suffer loss, nor shall you be made to suffer loss [279]’ (al-Baqara: 278-279).

He the Almighty forbids giving interest-based loans but allows and encourages interest-free lending according to the set rules, to maintain the solidarity of society.

The fact that He the Almighty ordains the documentation of debts helps in preventing any possible differences, especially among close relatives and friends. A lot of people mistakenly think that He the Almighty means by the documentation of debts the protection of the creditor. Actually, the purpose of this, first and foremost, is to protect the debtor. When the debtor knows that his debt is registered, he does his utmost to pay it off. But if the debt is unregistered, the debtor may stop working and desist from settling his debt. As a result, he manages to meet his family’s needs only once, and the rich would refrain from lending money to the poor. The rich also would take the lack of settlement of debts by some needy people as a pretext for not giving them any loans anymore. The person who defaults on his debts may involve himself in committing more sins because he narrows the chances of interest-free lending.

Allah the Almighty wants the badly-off to take part in economic life. As for the wealthy people, they can manage their lives as they like. The have-nots, on the contrary, are always in need of help. Therefore, there is a proverb in the Egyptian countryside, reading, 'Whoever takes and gives can have the whole money.'

(1) Ibn Khuzayma narrated on the authority of Jabir ibn ‘Abdullah and ‘Amr ibn Al-Ahwas that Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, ‘Surely, the usurious practices that were made during the Pre-Islamic period are illegal; you are entitled to your capitals without doing injustice to one another. Also the amount of interest which ‘Abbas ibn ‘Abd Al-Muttalib has to receive is unlawful. Surely, it is entirely unbinding.’ See Ibn Khuzayma, Sahih, Hadith no. 3087; see also At-Tirmidhi, Sunnan, Hadith no. 3087.

When a person borrows and repays his debt, all people trust him and think of him as sincere and true to his word. It, then, seems that he owns the entire money. So Allah the Almighty wants the badly-off to manage his life through the documentation of the debt as the better-off are not in need of loans.

To put more emphasis on the protection of the debtor, Allah the Almighty says: '…and let him who owes the debt dictate, and he should be careful of (his duty to) Allah, his Lord, and not diminish anything from it…' (al-Baqara: 282). The debtor must dictate the debt he owes as Allah the Almighty says: '…and not diminish anything from it…' (al-Baqara: 282). Here arises a question, which is, 'Why does the creditor not dictate the debt himself?' This is because the debtor is usually in a position of weakness and feels embarrassed to talk. Further, the creditor may reduce the repayment deadline the moment this deadline is written. Thus, the documentation of debts is also useful for the creditor as this encourages him to lend to others and promote interest-free loans.

One may ask, 'Why does Allah the Almighty say: "If you make a generous loan to Allah…" (at-Taghabun: 17) using the conditional particle "if" which connotes doubt or uncertainty? On the other hand, He says: "Who is it that would loan Allah a goodly loan so He may multiply it for him many times over?" (al-Baqara: 245); and He also says: "Who is it that would loan Allah a goodly loan so He will multiply it for him and he will have a noble reward?" (al-Hadid: 11)

The answer to this argument is that the verse of the chapter of at-Taghabun: '…if you make a generous loan…' (at-Taghabun: 17) comes after talking about those who stint on their wealth and are niggardly. So, He the Almighty says: '…be charitable – it is for your own good. Those who are saved from their own meanness will be the prosperous ones' (at-Taghabun: 16). The compulsive miser finds spending money very hard, especially with regard to charity and lending others. There is a colloquial saying that reads, 'A leopard cannot change its spots; old habits die hard.' So Allah the Almighty says: 'If you make a generous loan to Allah…' (at-Taghabun: 17). He Glorified is He gives a multiplied reward for those who lend interest-free loans, saying:

‘If you make a generous loan to Allah, He will multiply it for you…’ (at-Taghabun: 17). That is to say that He the Almighty multiplies your reward for this loan many times over.

Loans, apparently, decrease your wealth, as you can invest them to make profits and maximise your wealth. However, you opt to lend your money to people in need, to gain the Reward of Allah the Almighty. Therefore, He the Almighty increases your wealth many times double its amount. In the Hereafter, He the Almighty gives you a great reward. You give your loan for the sake of Allah the Almighty and He returns your loan many times double its amount and its reward.

He the Almighty continues, saying: ‘…and forgive you…’ (at-Taghabun: 17). But what does the word ‘forgiveness’ in this verse signify? It means that He the Almighty will forgive the misgivings that boil up inside the lender about his money and any inadvisable behaviour towards the borrower.

In another verse, He the Almighty says: ‘…if you keep up prayer and pay the obligatory alms and believe in My Messengers and assist them and offer to Allah a goodly gift, I will most certainly cover your evil deeds…’ (al-Ma‘ida: 12). Forgiving sins and wiping out misdeeds in addition to increasing his wealth many times double its amount are a reward that Allah the Almighty gives to the lender. He Glorified is He concludes the verse in question with His saying: ‘Allah is Ever-Thankful and Forbearing’ (at-Taghabun: 17).

He the Almighty appreciates the assistance that the beneficent, the almsgiver, and the lender give to the needy. Ibn ‘Umar Allah be pleased with him said, ‘A man came to Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and said, “Messenger of Allah, which people are dearer to Allah? Which [good] deeds are most liked by Allah?” Messenger Muhammad said, “The dearest people to Allah are those who are more helpful towards others. The deeds that Allah likes best are to give pleasure to a Muslim, eliminate his suffering, settle a debt for him or help him satisfy his hunger.” ’(1)

(1) This Hadith is narrated on the authority of Ibn ‘Umar Allah be pleased with him. See At-Tabarani, Al-Mu‘jam Al-Kabir, Hadith no. 13468; see also At-Tabarani, Al-Mu‘jam Al-Awsat, Hadith no. 6026; and Al-Mu‘jam As-Saghir, Hadith no. 861.

Allah the Almighty is the Ever-Thankful Who gives a great reward for few deeds. He appreciates the one who thanks Him for His Blessings. If you praise Him, He the Almighty will thank you and give you more reward. So, 'The Ever-Thankful' is one of the Lofty Names of Allah the Almighty.

It is thus clear that He the Almighty appreciates the aid that a servant gives to others. If people thank and appreciate one another, what do you think of Allah's Appreciation and Thankfulness! Whenever you thank Allah the Almighty He grants you more reward for this good deed.

But why does Allah the Almighty say: 'Allah is Ever-Thankful and Forbearing…' (at-Taghabun: 17)? What is the relationship between thankfulness and forbearance? Allah the Almighty mentions forgiveness and forbearance together in other Quranic verses, such as: 'Allah does not impose blame upon you for what is unintentional in your oaths, but He imposes blame upon you for what your hearts have earned. And Allah is Forgiving and Forbearing' (al-Baqara: 225).

The fact that Allah the Almighty combines thankfulness and forbearance raises some questions and calls for consideration. Forbearance is a good quality which means enduring others' offence and pardoning them. On the part of Allah the Almighty forbearance means that He does not hasten to punish the sinners.

He the Almighty is All Forbearing towards a servant who commits misdeeds and also pardons the minor sins of the righteous. If your good deeds are tarnished with something bad or you contravene Allah's Way forgetfully or by mistake, do not let this trouble you or damage your relationship with Him. He the Almighty is All Forbearing and pardons you for such a misdeed. This applies to the popular proverb saying, 'Your mistakes are always overlooked by your lovers.'

By saying: 'Allah is Ever-Thankful and Forbearing' (at-Taghabun: 17), Allah the Almighty wants to say to His servants: 'I appreciate your lending money to My servants who are in need. I am also All Forbearing towards you; I will not hasten to punish you when you speak tauntingly or insultingly the moment you lend money to others. This gives you a chance to repent so that you will get your reward many times over. What matters most is that the interests of those in need must be served.'

The books of Hadith give us the following account: ‘Abdullah ibn Mas‘ud Allah be pleased with him said, ‘When the verse: “Who is it that would loan Allah a goodly loan…?” (al-Baqara: 245) was revealed, Abu Ad-Dahdah said, “Messenger of Allah, does Allah want us to give a loan?” Whereupon he peace and blessings be upon him said, “Yes, Abu Ad-Dahdah.”(1) Abu Ad-Dahdah said, “So extend your hand.” Messenger Muhammad extended his hand to him, whereupon Abu Ad-Dahdah said, “I have decided to give my orchard as a loan to my Lord.” The orchard consisted of six hundred palm trees. Abu Ad-Dahdah walked away till he reached the orchard where his wife and children lived and called out, “Umm Ad-Dahdah.” She replied, “Here I am at your disposal!” He said, “Go out. I have lent the orchard to my Lord.” ’(2)

Abu Ad-Dahdah Allah be pleased with him knows well that Allah the Almighty is Ever-Thankful and Forbearing. He Allah be pleased with him extended his hand to Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and donated the orchard to charity. His wife did not object or disagree with him. He gave the orchard as a loan to Allah the Almighty so that its yield would go to the poor and needy.

Allah the Almighty subsequently, says:

عَـٰلِمُ ٱلْغَيْبِ وَٱلشَّهَـٰدَةِ ٱلْعَزِيزُ ٱلْحَكِيمُ ﴿١٨﴾

He knows the unseen, as well as the seen; He is the Almighty, the Wise [18] (The Quran, at-Taghabun: 18)

The above-mentioned verse includes three of the Lofty Names of Allah the Almighty. In fact, the chapter of at-Taghabun includes a number of Allah’s Lofty Names, including: the Omnipotent, the All Seeing, the Omniscient, the Self-Sufficient, the Praiseworthy, the All-Acquainted, the Forgiving, the

It is said that Abu Ad-Dahdah died at home after Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him returned from Al-Hudaybyya.*

(2) This Hadith is narrated on the authority of Anas ibn Malik Allah be pleased with him. See Ahmad, Musnad, Hadith no. 12504; see also Ibn Hibban, Sahih, Hadith no. 7259; Al-Bazzar, Musnad, Hadith no. 2032; and Al-Hakim, Mustadrak, Hadith no. 2194.

All-Merciful, the Ever-Thankful and the All-Forbearing. He the Almighty concludes this list of these Lofty Names with His saying: ‘He knows the Unseen, as well as the Seen; He is the Almighty the All-Wise’ (at-Taghabun: 18). With regard to His saying: ‘He knows the Unseen, as well as the Seen…’ (at-Taghabun: 18), the unseen is that which is known only by Allah, the Knower of the unseen. He does not acquaint any of His creatures with the Unseen except those whom He selects from among the humans, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: ‘The Knower of the unseen! So He does not reveal His secrets to any [26] Except to him whom He chooses as a Messenger; for surely He makes a guard to march before him and after him [27]’ (al-Jinn: 26-27). The unseen is what is unknown for you and others. As for things that are unknown for you but known to others, they are not called unseen. For example, if your money is stolen, you do not know who has stolen it. The thief, in this case, is unknown for you, not for others. The thief knows himself; the person who is complicit in the crime knows him too; and the person who sees and connives knows him as well. You do not know the place where the stolen objects are hidden while the thief does. So, it is unknown for you but actually known to others. There are things which are unseen and unknown for you and others too. Such matters are known only by Allah the Almighty Who says: ‘The Knower of the Unseen! So He does not reveal His secrets to any’ (al-Jinn: 26). The Unseen meant by Allah the Almighty in His saying: ‘The Knower of the Unseen’ (al-Jinn: 26) is the absolute Unseen which is exclusive to Him Glorified is He.

Allah the Almighty may bestow some indications of the Unseen on some mystics, but when he tells the people about it, He the Almighty may bring the events contrary to what he said in order to prove that He the Almighty is the only Knower of the Unseen.

Allah the Almighty knows the absolute Unseen which has no premises or clues that may help us come to it. Thus, we cannot discover it, for it is known only by Him the Almighty.

Thus, the absolute Unseen is what is known to Allah the Almighty alone, and has no clues. He the Almighty may disclose it to the one whom He wishes. This is supported by His saying: ‘The Knower of the Unseen! So He does not reveal His secrets to any [26] Except to him whom He chooses as a Messenger; for surely He makes a guard to march before him and after him [27]' (al-Jinn: 26-27). The absolute Unseen differs from the clue-based Unseen. The human being can use these clues to discover one of the mysteries of the universe.

An example of the absolute Unseen is the Day of Judgement about which Allah the Almighty says: 'Say, "None in the heavens and earth knows the Unseen except Allah"…' (an-Naml: 65). So He the Almighty alone knows the time when the Day of Judgement will take place. At the same time, He creates the preliminary events and signs that indicate the imminence of this Day.

Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him boasts about not knowing the appointed time of the Day of Judgement. When he was asked about it, he said, 'The one who is asked about it does not know more than the one who is asking.'(1)

To hide the Unseen from people is of a great advantage. Allah the Almighty is the Lord of all mankind and He wants people to help and benefit from one another. For example, if you detect one fault in someone else's character, you may ignore all of his good qualities and dislike him. So, He the Almighty hides from you the flaws of others in order that you can take advantage of their good qualities.

He the Almighty hides from us the Unseen through three barriers: the past, the future, and the place. Before your birth, you have no idea about the past events, but someone reliable comes to you and informs you of these past events. Also, you do not know what will happen in the future. As for the barrier of place, you have no idea about things existing at a place other than the place at which you are present. Besides, an object can exist at the same place where you stay, but you are unaware of it.

Here, Allah the Almighty says: 'He knows the Unseen, as well as the Seen…' (at-Taghabun: 18). This informs us that He the Almighty knows the Unseen and the Seen alike. Someone may mistakenly think that if he stays at an isolated, hidden place and does what he likes, Allah the Almighty will not witness him. This is untrue, for He the Almighty knows and observes the Seen as well as the Unseen. Nothing is hidden from Him in this vast universe.

(1) This Hadith is narrated by Abu Hurayra Allah be pleased with him. The Hadith reads as follows: 'O Messenger of Allah, when will the Hour be?' He said: 'The one who is asked about it does not know more than the one who is asking.' See Al-Bukhari, Sahih, Hadith no. 50 and 4777; Muslim, Sahih, Hadith no. 102, 108 and 106; Abu Dawud, Sunnan, Hadith no. 4697; and At-Tirmidhi, Sunnan, Hadith no. 2610.

Any secret or mystery is known by Allah the Almighty a fact which is clearly manifested in His saying: 'The Beneficent Allah is firm in power. [5] His is what is in the heavens and what is in the earth and what is between them two and what is beneath the ground. [6] And if you utter the saying aloud, then surely He knows the secret, and what is yet more hidden [7]' (Ta Ha: 5-7). Allah the Almighty knows the unseen which is hidden and the seen as well. Some may assume that He, Who is Unseen to us, knows only the unseen. But He the Almighty stresses the fact that He knows both the Unseen and the seen.

The fact that Allah the Almighty knows the seen protects people against wronging and attacking one another, as they know well that He the Almighty is fully Aware of the seen and the unseen. Thus He Glorified is He is the best of all witnesses. Witnesses can be really reliable and even-handed or even pretend to be so to conceal their dishonesty. But Allah the Almighty is the best of all other witnesses.

He Glorified is He says: 'Indeed Allah is over all things, Witness' (al-Hajj: 17). The witness is the one who sees or observes something without affecting or changing the thing witnessed in any way. As regards Allah the Almighty He is the Judge who arbitrates between His servants. The judge needs evidence or witnesses who must also be reliable and honest. Reliable testimony comes true through adhering to a Divine Religion that prevents humans from deviating from the truth. As the Judge is Allah the Almighty there is no need for evidence or witnesses. His Knowledge encompasses everything, nor is there absent from Him an atom's weight within the heavens or within the earth.

Witnessing connotes the recording of the deeds of people; it also means that they have been notified of Allah's Way of Guidance, but they opposed and deviated from it and committed sins that incurred their punishment. Punishment is based on the crime; incrimination is based on religious texts which must be conveyed and spread.

In the same vein, Allah the Almighty says: 'Say, "Sufficient is Allah as Witness between me and you. Indeed he is ever, concerning His servants, acquainted and seeing"' (al-Isra': 96). Allah being a Witness, means that He is the Witness Who observes, the Arbitrator Who judges and the executive authority that executes.

After that He the Almighty describes Himself, saying: ‘He is the Almighty’ (at-Taghabun: 18). The Almighty is the One Who is never surmounted due to His Omnipotence and Who cannot be questioned by anyone. He is the Dominant Who cannot be conquered by any other power. He is the All-Powerful and Exalted in Might.

The phrase ‘the Exalted in Might’ connotes dominance and subdual. Nothing can subdue or defeat Him. The Arabic word Al-‘Aziz (The Almighty) means also something which is rare. It comes in the sense of invincibility or rarity and scarcity. It also means something which is difficult for people to achieve or do. For example, you can say, ‘It was hard for me to reach the summit of the mountain.’

Allah is the Almighty One since there is no god but Him, and He is the Invincible and All-Powerful God. He says: ‘Indeed, it is your Lord Who is the Powerful, the Exalted in Might’ (Hud: 66).

The Almightiness as an absolute Attribute belongs to Allah alone. In a restricted sense, we say, ‘the one who is the most honourable and influential of his people’. It is an attribute that is treated here as a Name. Allah’s Names are divided into two categories: proper nouns and nominalised adjectives. If the Name has no antonym, it is a proper noun like the ‘Almighty’. If the Name is derived from the adjective and verb roots like the Bestower of Honour, it must have an antonym such as the Humiliator. If Allah the Almighty only bestowed honour or if He only inflicted dishonour, He would not be the True God.

In a general sense, the Name ‘the Almighty’ applies to Allah alone. But it is allowed to say, ‘So-and-so is most influential among his people; so-and-so is merciful towards others; so-and-so is beneficent towards others.’ But if you say ‘the All-Beneficent’ as a general word, it refers to Allah the Almighty alone.

Allah the Almighty is not only the Exalted in Might, but He is also the Lord of Might, a fact which is stated in the Quran: ‘Exalted is your Lord, the Lord of Might, above what they describe’ (as-Saffat: 180). He Glorified is He also says: ‘Those who take disbelievers as allies instead of the believers. Do they seek with them honour [through power]? But indeed, honour belongs to Allah entirely’ (an-Nisa’: 139).

If you really aspire to dignity and power, ask Allah, the Owner of the Eternal Might, for them. If you desire honour that makes you dispense with other humans, turn to the Source of Honour and Might, namely; Allah the Almighty.

If you desire true honour, derive it from Allah Whose Might never changes. In this regard, He the Almighty says: ‘But indeed, honour belongs to Allah entirely’ (an-Nisa’: 139). This means that the proper way to obtain honour and might is to ask Allah the Almighty for them.

The adverb ‘entirely’ in the above-mentioned verse indicates that honour is of different forms: wealth, authority, and glory. When one tries to meditate on these forms, he concludes that all of them apply to Allah the Almighty.

If a person desires a permanent and outstanding honour, he must turn to Allah the Almighty and regard Him as his first and last Refuge. As Allah is the Exalted in Might, those who believe in Him are honourable and mighty, a fact which is clear in His saying: ‘and to Allah belongs [all] honour, and to His Messenger, and to the believers…’ (al-Munafiqun: 8).

All might and honour originate from Allah the Almighty alone. Also, the honour of Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and the believers is derived from Allah the Almighty. Thus, Mightiness, together with is its various forms, belongs to Allah the Almighty such as the Mightiness of forbearance and avengement.

No one can ask Allah the Almighty why He does such-and-such and leaves such-and-such. Thus He is described as the Exalted in Might Who possesses all forms of Almightiness.

To be honourable you should derive your honour from Allah the Almighty from Messenger Muhammad and from faith. Concerning some people, Allah the Almighty says: ‘and they have taken besides Allah [false] deities that they would be for them [a source of] honour’ (Maryam: 81). Idolaters seek honour from their worship of idols. But what is the point of idolatry? Allah the Almighty responds to them, saying: ‘No! “Those gods” will deny their worship of them…’ (Maryam: 82). The adverb ‘no’ negates the fact that these idolaters can derive honour from idols. Quite the opposite, those false deities will be against them on the Day of Judgement.

Then, Allah the Almighty describes Himself as: ‘The All-Wise’ (at-Taghabun: 18). He is the One Whose Actions are extremely wise. Although Allah is the Exalted in Might, His Actions are wise and He subdues and dominates everything wisely.

Prophet Ibrahim (Abraham) peace be upon him calls Allah ‘Exalted in Might and Wise’ in his saying: ‘Indeed, I will emigrate to [the service of] my Lord. Indeed, He is the Exalted in Might, the Wise’ (ar-Rum: 26). So, he peace be upon him chooses ‘the Exalted in Might’ from among other Attributes of Allah because this Attribute suits his situation when his people attempted to burn him to death. It is as if he says to his people, ‘I will turn to the refuge of the invincible one.’ He also describes Allah the Almighty as ‘the All-Wise’ with regard to His Actions. Therefore, Allah is Exalted in Might, yet He is All-Wise and He never does injustice to anyone. He is the Owner of insurmountable Might and impeccable Wisdom.

The Arabic word hikma (wisdom) is derived from al-hakama, meaning ‘the metal bar attached to a horse’s bridle and put into its mouth so that its owner can control it’. This is because the horse is a pampered, unruly animal which needs taming. So the metal bar put into a horse’s mouth makes it more controllable.

To describe Allah the Almighty as ‘the All-Wise’ means that He controls and dominates His creatures so that they do not proceed without spiritual guidance and knowledge. Wisdom entails setting a goal for every movement so that all movements will be in harmony with one another and the whole universe will be controlled by the absolute truth. Allah is the All-Wise because He sets the framework and limits of each being. Wisdom also means that everything performs its function proficiently and masterfully. Wisdom with regard to Islamic jurisprudence is to deduce the sound rulings; regarding poetry, it is to compose well-rhymed and well-metered poetical verses; with regard to medicine, it is to diagnose diseases and find suitable cures for them; regarding engineering, it is to design a hospital according to the needs of patients, physicians, medical equipment, drug stores, and the like. Wisdom required for building a house differs from that needed for constructing a hospital or bridge.

Finally, we must consider the verses of the chapter of at-Taghabun in the light of Allah’s Wisdom with which He concludes the same chapter. In this case, we will discover that He the Almighty is All-Wise with regard to creating humans as believers and disbelievers, the creation of the heavens and earth, the misfortunes that befall people, making some of our wives and children enemies to us, dividing people into rich and poor, ordering the rich to give charity, paying zakat (obligatory alms) and giving interest-free loans to the poor and the needy and multiplying the reward for aiding and lending money to the poor.

The Greatness of Allah Glorified is He is clearly manifested in the fact that He is the Almighty Who cannot be defeated and the All-Wise Who puts everything in its proper place. Therefore, when people get to know the wisdom behind Allah's Ordinances, they will admire the Greatness of His Power.

As He Glorified is He says: 'So believe in Allah, in His Messenger, and in the light We have sent down: Allah is fully Aware of what you do' (at-Taghabun: 8). We must submit and surrender to His Unchallengeable Will by obeying His Commands which are decreed on the basis of His Wisdom and Comprehensive Knowledge. At this point, a human being's choice must submit to Allah's Will because it, that is, the Divine Will cannot be changed by any means.

In our daily life, we may find that a person is experienced and has deep knowledge about a certain issue more than all other people. Therefore, we say to him, 'We delegate this matter to you; whatever you decide we shall follow!' This means that we abandon our right to choose and submit ourselves to the wisdom of that person. However, we do not grant this privilege to anyone unless we are very sure that he is well versed in the matter in hand and that he is a very wise person. In such a case, when one asks you, 'Why do you follow the opinion of so and so?' You say to him, 'He is experienced in such matters.' This response proves that you trust his knowledge, truthfulness, and wisdom.

The Wisdom of Allah the Almighty entails that He Glorified is He does not consider the superficial aspects of something without taking its bad consequences into account. But you, O man, may take a decision thinking that it will end your troubles, while this very decision may lead to greater harm.

Likewise, with regard to the medications and their different effects, the clever doctor is the one who tries hard to avoid the side effects of the medications he prescribes. Therefore, a doctor may prescribe a medication with a side effect but yet prescribes another one to alleviate this side effect.

This falls under the concept of wisdom as he takes into account the side effect which may arise in the future. In the Egyptian countryside, they call the doctor Al-Hakim (the wise man) as he wisely treats human beings by prescribing the medications which cure the disease and do not cause them grave harm.

Allah the Almighty describes Himself as the All-Wise because He does not leave anything to coincidence. Instead, He decrees all matters according to what is right. Similarly, the Glorious Quran is described as 'a Book of Wisdom', a meaning which is clear in His saying: 'Alif Lam Mim. [1] These are verses of the Book of Wisdom [2]' (Luqman: 2). This means that the One Who revealed it is the All-Wise.

In the Glorious Quran, Allah the Almighty clarifies the Way of Guidance which leads people to goodness. So, when we follow it, it will bring about all that is in our interest and will not cause any harm. This is the essence of wisdom. Therefore, the Quran is full of wisdom as it is revealed by Allah, the All-Wise. Besides, it decides on all matters of faith.

Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him urged Muslims to praise Allah as the Knower of the Seen and the Unseen, in the mornings and evenings. In this regard, Abu Hurayra Allah be pleased with him narrated that Abu Bakr Allah be pleased with him asked Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him 'O Messenger of Allah, command me with something that I may say when I reach morning and evening,' whereupon he said: 'Say: O Allah Knower of the Unseen and the seen, Originator of the heavens and the earth, Lord of everything and its Possessor, I bear witness that there is none worthy of worship except You, I seek refuge in You from the evil of my soul and from the evil of Satan and his shirk.'(1)

As a matter of fact, the early Muslims used to practice their religion in the mornings and evenings. It is narrated that Al-Harith ibn Malik Al-Ansari Allah be pleased with him once passed by Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him who asked him, 'O Harith! What state are you in?' 'I find myself as a true believer,' replied Al-Harith. Prophet Muhammad then asked him, 'Everything possesses a truth; what is the truth behind what you claim?' 'O Prophet of Allah! I have become disenchanted with this world,' he answered. 'I stay awake (in worship) in the night, and endure thirst (by observing fasting) in the day. It is as if I am witnessing the Throne of Allah, observing the inmates of Paradise meeting each other and hearing the shrieks of the inmates of Hell.'

(1) This Hadith is narrated by At-Tirmidhi who said, 'It is a good, authentic Hadith'. It is also narrated by Ahmad ibn Hanbal, At-Tayalisi, An-Nasa'i and by Al-Bukhari on the authority of Abu Hurayra Allah be pleased with him. See At-Tirmidhi, Sunnan, Hadith no. 3392; Ahmad, Musnad, Hadith no. 63; At-Tayalisi, Musnad, Hadith no. 9; An-Nasa'i, As-Sunnan Al-Kubra, Hadith no. 7652 and 10563; and Al-Bukhari, Al-Adab Al-Mufrad, Hadith no. 1202.

That is why in the aforementioned Hadith of Abu Bakr Allah be pleased with him did not ask for mere words to be just uttered with the tongue. Instead, he asked about a supplication to be felt by his entirety; by his tongue, hands, legs, heart, and intellect. Therefore, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him taught him the following supplication to praise Allah the Almighty with in the mornings and evenings and when he goes to his bed as well. He taught him to say: 'O Allah Knower of the Unseen and the Seen, Originator of the heavens and the earth, Lord of everything and its Possessor, I bear witness that there is none worthy of worship except You, I seek refuge in You from the evil of my soul and from the evil of Satan and his shirk.'

This supplication affirms that Allah Glorified is He is the Knower of the Unseen and the Seen. He knows what is hidden from the people exactly as He knows what is known to them, for He is the Creator of the Heavens and the Earth, that is, the One Who originated them without any previous model. He Glorified is He is the Lord and the King of all things; He is the Owner of all that exists in the Heavens and the Earth. In addition, He possesses all what you own, even the most precious thing within you, O man, your spirit.

He is the Only God; there is no god but Him. He created us and endowed us with spirits so that our bodies could move in this life according to His Divine Way of Guidance, not according to any other paths which drive us away from the Only One Who knows the seen and the unseen.

As we praise, remember, supplicate and return to Allah the Almighty alone in all our affairs, we also seek refuge in Him from the evil of our own tempting souls which, if we succumbed to their whims, cause us to suffer more grave effects resulting from the evil of Satan and his vicious schemes.

Here, we should not forget that Satan had sworn by Allah Glorified is He that he would exert all his effort to misguide the children of Adam.

Muslims believe that Allah the Almighty is the Creator of the Heavens and the Earth, that He is the Lord and the King of all things, and that there is no god but Him Glorified is He. This belief, which is underscored each morning and evening and also when one goes to bed, is further confirmed when you believe that He Glorified is He is the All Knowing, the All-Seeing, the All-Hearing, the All-Wise the Almighty the Knower of the Seen and Unseen and the One from Whom nothing can be hidden.

Accordingly, we realise why the chapter of at-Taghabun begins and concludes with glorifying Allah Glorified is He. It begins with His saying: ‘Everything that is in the heavens and earth glorifies Allah; all control and all praise belong to Him; He has power over everything’ (at-Taghabun: 1) and ends with His saying: ‘Allah is ever thankful and forbearing; [17] He knows the unseen, as well as the seen; He is the Almighty the All-Wise’ (at-Taghabun: 17-18).

at-Talaq

In the Name of God, the Most Merciful, the Dispenser of Mercy

The chapter of at-Talaq[1] (Divorce):

وَٱتَّقُواْ ٱللَّهَ رَبَّكُمۡۖ لَا تُخۡرِجُوهُنَّ مِنۢ بُيُوتِهِنَّ وَلَا يَخۡرُجۡنَ
إِلَّآ أَن يَأۡتِينَ بِفَٰحِشَةٖ مُّبَيِّنَةٖۚ وَتِلۡكَ حُدُودُ ٱللَّهِۚ وَمَن يَتَعَدَّ حُدُودَ ٱللَّهِ
فَقَدۡ ظَلَمَ نَفۡسَهُۥۚ لَا تَدۡرِي لَعَلَّ ٱللَّهَ يُحۡدِثُ بَعۡدَ ذَٰلِكَ أَمۡرٗا ﴿١﴾

Prophet, when any of you intend to divorce women, do so at a time when their prescribed waiting period can properly start, and calculate the period carefully: be mindful of God, your Lord. Do not drive them out of their homes — nor should they themselves leave — unless they commit a flagrant indecency. These are the limits set by God — whoever oversteps God's limits wrongs his own soul — for you cannot know what new situation God may perhaps bring about [1] (The Quran, at-Talaq: 1)

Here, Allah the Almighty addresses Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him saying: 'Prophet…' (at-Talaq: 1). This shows his greatness and high status in the sight of the One Who selected him to be the last Prophet, a point which is further illustrated by the fact that He the Almighty has addressed and called other Prophets and Messengers with their given names, saying: 'He said: O Adam! Inform them of their names' (al-Baqara: 33); 'O Musa (Moses)! Surely I am Allah, the Lord of the worlds' (al-Qasas: 30); 'O Isa (Jesus), son of Maryam (Mary), did you say to people…' (al-Ma'ida: 116)

(1) The chapter of at-Talaq was revealed in Medina. It consists of 12 verses. Ibn Mas'ud called it the smaller chapter of an-Nisa'. It was revealed after the chapter of al-Baqara and before the chapter of al-Bayyina. According to the order of revelation, it is the chapter number 96, but according to its current order in the Quran, it is the chapter number 65.

and: ‘O Nuh (Noah)! Descend with peace from Us…’ (Hud: 48). It is thus clear that He Glorified is He addresses each of His Messengers with his name, without any adjective of glorification, whereas He always addresses Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him with an adjective such as: ‘O Messenger…’ (al-Ma‘ida: 41) or ‘O Prophet…’ (al-Anfal: 65).

As He Glorified is He does not address him peace and blessings be upon him with his name, then it is not permissible for us to call him peace and blessings be upon him with his given name without any adjective of esteem and honour. This point is clearly indicated in His saying: ‘Do not hold the Messenger’s calling (you) among you to be like your calling one to the other…’ (an-Nur: 63). Therefore, it is not fitting to address him with his name only, saying, ‘O Muhammad, ’ as the relationship between him and the Muslims is not based on his own character, but rather, on the fact that he is Allah’s Messenger and, therefore, we should address him, saying: ‘O Prophet,’ or ‘O Messenger’. This is the proper and honorary way we should follow when we address him peace and blessings be upon him.

In our daily life, when we want to address a high profile person, we address him saying: ‘His Majesty!’, ‘His Eminence Sheikh!’ or ‘Dear Sir!’ Accordingly, it is more worthy to follow Allah’s Way of addressing him peace and blessings be upon him by saying ‘O Prophet’ or ‘O Messenger’.

As a matter of fact, the Messenger is an intermediary between Allah the Almighty and the people in terms of delivering the revelation. He is the person who informs people of Allah’s Revelation which people should follow. On the other hand, a Prophet sent by Allah brings about no new legislation. Instead, he preaches the same legislation of the preceding Messenger or Messengers. He acts as a role model for his people.

One may ask here, ‘Why does Allah Glorified is He address Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him in this context as a Prophet and not as a Messenger although the issues discussed here are concerned with legislations?’ The answer is that the purpose here is to make him a role model for the Muslims in such matters, a mission which properly suits the Prophets.

In Arabic, the word nabi (prophet) is derived from naba’ (announcement) which means great news that should be cared for. It here refers to the issue of divorce that is pertinent to the marital relationship which tackles the core of the social life of any community, as it, that is, divorce organises the relationship between men and women and what is pertinent to their children. Leaving these matters unorganised makes the communities suffer complete disorder.

In fact, divorce is one of Allah's Legislations, thus violating it is an act of wrongdoing. When He Glorified is He addresses the communal issues, He treats them in a way that totally prevents defects and disorder. On the contrary, when people make legislations, they, even if their intentions are good, draft such legislations according to their limited knowledge and, therefore, they may be ignorant of something that may occur in the future. If we assume that they made a particular piece of legislation, and then come to know that there is an aspect that they had not considered, what will be the case?

If they are sincere, they will not act arrogantly and will reconsider what they have legislated. However, if they insist on applying what they have legislated, then it is the community that will suffer until another legislator considers the needs of the community and reconsiders the legislation.

Allah Glorified is He has enacted Legislations which prevent people from suffering and the divergence of opinion. By so doing, He guarantees that the community shall not suffer from the mistakes that may be committed by human legislators for a while until other legislators amend what has been mistakenly done. The one who enacted the first legislation has not got enough knowledge of the new incidents which may arise. Accordingly, when such new incidents come about, people become in need of an amendment to the legislation.

If we investigate any man-made law concerning any worldly issue and consider its development, we come to know that people continuously develop it until it becomes identical, or at least closer, to the Islamic Legislation in that regard. For example, the Europeans objected to the rulings of divorce in Islam, but they, later on, came to enact divorce in Italy in the very heartland of the Vatican. Here is the question, 'Have they legislated it under the influence of Islam?' The answer is 'No'. They have legislated it due to the necessities of life which have compelled them to do so and which conclusively prove the correctness of the rulings of the Islamic Shari'a, even before they are put into practice, a point which is crystal clear by the fact that the Europeans were compelled to enact this piece of legislation on divorce in order to address the social problems of their community.

Divorce is a very difficult process as it happens at a time when both the husband and the wife are angry with each other. In fact, marriage is a relationship which is based on living in tranquillity, love, and kindness. When these feelings are absent, how can a husband or a wife be compelled to live with a spouse she/he hates? Separation in such a case is a means ordained by Allah the Almighty in order to open an avenue for both man and woman to seek a more suitable spouse. There are many real incidents where we find that a husband or a wife finds his happiness with a new spouse. Taking into account all these considerations, such separation is legislated and approved, despite the fact that severing the marital relationship is difficult for the family.

Allah Glorified is He determines three constituents for the preservation of the marital relationship, saying: ‘And one of His signs is that He created mates for you from yourselves that you may find rest in them, and He put between you love and compassion; most surely there are signs in this for a people who reflect’ (ar-Rum: 21). Investigating these three phases, we find that the marital life of the two spouses starts with tranquillity. At this level, they enjoy mutual happiness, reassurance, and satisfaction of their needs. When this level of dealing with each other is jeopardised, then love comes to be the basis for their life that guarantees a level of mutual acceptance. When love is lost between them, then they move to the third level of compassion in which each party shows kindness towards the other in the state of weakness or sickness. As such, the marital relationship endures and survives the hardships of life.

If these three constituents are absent from the relationship between the two spouses, then their life together becomes impossible and separation is then better for them. Therefore, Allah Glorified is He makes divorce legal as a solution in such cases. However, He Glorified is He considers it one of the most detestable things, that is, it should be the last resort. Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him underlines this, saying, ‘Of all the lawful acts the most detestable to Allah is divorce.’(1)

This is why He Glorified is He says here: ‘When any of you intend to divorce women…’ (at-Talaq: 1) the Arabic particle idha (when) is used here to bear the meaning of conditionality and to indicate that this divorce is not the general rule to be followed. This is also asserted by the usage of the Arabic particle in (if) in His saying: ‘There is no blame on you if you divorce women when you have not touched them or appointed for them a portion, and make provision for them, the wealthy according to his means and the straitened in circumstances according to his means, a provision according to usage; (this is) a duty on the doers of good (to others)’ (al-Baqara: 236), to communicate the same meaning, that is, He Glorified is He does not intend divorce to be the standard practice.

Although Allah Glorified is He addresses Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him in this verse in question, this is also viewed as an address to all Muslims as he peace and blessings be upon him is the one who receives the commands and then conveys them to the people. Similarly, He the Almighty says: ‘Then set your face upright for religion in the right state…’ (ar-Rum: 30).

One may ask, ‘Why does not Allah say: ‘O you who believe! When you intend to divorce women,’ instead of: ‘Prophet, When any of you intend to divorce women’ (at-Talaq: 1), although the verb used afterwards is in the plural form?’ We underline it again, ‘When He the Almighty addresses Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him it is in fact an address to all Muslims. It is also some kind of veneration for him.’

This Quranic chapter discusses the matter of divorce which touches upon the lives of the people and organises their marital relationship and how, in some cases, it ends. It also addresses some issues that could destroy families and communities if they were not properly regulated. In fact, it is necessary that Shari’a regulates the issue of divorce in order not to let any party wrong the other and to prevent confusion of lineage. Therefore, regulating such a matter cannot be left to laymen. Instead, it is the responsibility of the governor or the judge.

So, being the ruler and the judge of the Muslim Ummah during his lifetime, Allah the Almighty addresses His Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and instructs him how to settle disputes among the spouses. In other words, as the affairs of divorce rest in the hand of the State which shall apply the rulings of the Shari'a upon Muslims, then it is suitable here that the Divine Address shall be for the ruler of the Muslim Ummah during that time (that is, Prophet Muhammad), not the believers.

No one is entitled to marry a woman without the consent of her guardian and without a marriage contract, witnesses, and a bride-gift. Likewise, no one is entitled to divorce his wife without registering the divorce or bringing just witnesses to attest to it. The same applies when one wants to take back his wife during her waiting period after having divorced her once or twice. All this is prescribed for safeguarding woman's rights and avoiding wrongdoing.

In this regard, 'Umran ibn Husayn narrated that Messenger Muhammad was asked about a person who divorced his wife, and then had intercourse with her, but he did not call any witness to attest to her divorce or to her restoration, whereupon he peace and blessings be upon him said, 'Your act of divorce is against the Sunnah and your taking her back is against the Sunnah. Call two witnesses to attest to her divorce and to her return in marriage, and do not repeat it.'(1)

In this chapter, Allah Glorified is He says: 'When any of you intend to divorce women, do so at a time when their prescribed waiting period can properly start…' (at-Talaq: 1). This verse indicates that there are certain kinds of waiting periods for the divorcee. They are as follows:

- When the divorced woman is not pregnant, then the waiting period is three menstrual periods;
- If she is pregnant, then the waiting period lasts until she delivers her baby; and
- For those women who have ceased menstruating and those who have not yet menstruated, the waiting period is three months.

(1) This Hadith is narrated on the authority of Abu Dawud, Ibn Maja and At-Tabarani on the authority of 'Umran ibn Husayn. In his commentary on the Sunnan of Ibn Maja, As-Sindi says, 'This signifies that it is more appropriate for one to bring witnesses in both cases in order to avoid dispute and mistrust.' See Abu Dawud, Sunnan, Hadith no. 2188, Ibn Maja, Sunnan, Hadith no. 2025; and At-Tabarani, Al-Mu'jam Al-Kabir Hadith no. 14690.

The first type of waiting period is clearly defined in the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘Divorced women must wait for three monthly periods before remarrying…’ (al-Baqara: 228). This verse explains that in the case where the woman is divorced once or twice, her husband has the right to take her back in marriage so long as she is still in her waiting period. As soon as the waiting period ends, he has no right to take her back unless he concludes a new marriage contract and gives her a new bride-gift. This applies only to the first two occurrences of divorce, for after divorcing her for the third time, he has no right to remarry her.

The waiting period is the time which follows the divorce or the death of the husband and during which a woman has no right to marry. In the case of divorce, the waiting period is three menstrual periods or three periods of purity. With regard to the woman who reached menopause or has not menstruated yet, her waiting period is three months. As for the woman whose husband died, her waiting period is four months and ten days. Further, the waiting period of the woman whose marriage is consummated differs from that of one whose marriage is not.

With regard to the divorcee who is pregnant, her waiting period lasts until she delivers her baby as indicated in the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘If they really believe in Allah and the last Day, it is not lawful for them to conceal what God has created in their wombs…’ (al-Baqara: 228). This verse indicates also that it is prohibited for a divorcee to conceal her pregnancy for fear that she will be obliged to wait without marriage until she delivers her baby. A woman may marry, while she is still pregnant and thus the newborn baby is falsely attributed to someone who is not his real father. The word ‘women’ in His saying: ‘…when any of you intend to divorce women, do so at a time when their prescribed waiting period can properly start…’ (at-Talaq: 1) includes all these kinds of divorcees. The verse orders Muslims to consider each divorcee’s state and to apply the legislation of divorce as clearly stated in the Sharia.

The address here is for all the members of the Muslim Ummah. In Arabic, when a command is directed to a group, then it is directed to each member of the group. For example, when a teacher orders the students to bring out their pens, this means that each student should bring out his own pen. Likewise, when a group head orders a group of drivers to get into their cars, then each driver should get into his own car. Thus, the Arabic rule states that when a command is given in the plural form to a group of people, it is also directed to each member of that group. Another example for this point is found in the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘And if you fear that you cannot act equitably towards orphans, then marry such women as seem good to you, two and three and four; but if you fear that you will not do justice (between them), then (marry) only one…’ (an-Nisa’: 3). In this verse, He the Almighty generally addresses the entire Muslim Ummah. Yet, this is not an individual command which means that each one must be polygamous.

We should take into account that His saying: ‘…do so at a time when their prescribed waiting period can properly start…’ (at-Talaq: 1) means that the husband shall not divorce his wife during menstruation or in the state of purity in which they had sexual intercourse. Instead, he should wait until her menstrual period ends. In this case, if she is a menstruating woman, then her waiting period is three menstrual periods. If she reaches menopause, then her waiting period is three months. As for the waiting period of a pregnant woman, it lasts until she delivers her baby.

In the case of a menstruating woman, what is considered is the state of purity between two menstruations. It is narrated that ‘Abdullah ibn ‘Umar divorced his wife during the lifetime of Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him while she was menstruating. ‘Umar ibn Al-Khattab mentioned that to him peace and blessings be upon him. So, he ordered him to order his son, ‘Abdullah, to take her back and to keep her until she is clean from her menses, and then to wait until she gets her next period and becomes clean again. Then, if he wishes to divorce her, he can divorce her when she is clean from her menses, before he has sexual intercourse with her. Then, Messenger Muhammad said to him, ‘This is the waiting period which Allah has fixed.’(1)

Allah the Almighty decrees that the husband should not divorce his wife during her menstruation as he may not have a desire for her during this period.

Therefore, He the Almighty commands him, if he wills, to divorce her in a period of purity when he has not had sexual intercourse with her. By so doing, we will be sure that he had done so out of an absolute and total conviction that their life will no longer be possible and that he no longer has any desire for her.

In the aforementioned Hadith, Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him ordered ‘Abdullah to take his wife back and keep her until she is clean from her menses, and then to wait until she has her next period and becomes clean again. This period is more than one month. Then, if he wishes to divorce her, he can divorce her when she is clean from her menses, before he has sexual intercourse with her. He peace and blessings be upon him then said, ‘This is the waiting period which Allah has fixed.’

There is no doubt that this gives the husband a great opportunity to reconsider the matter many times before he divorces his wife and destroys his family.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says: ‘And calculate the period carefully…’ (at-Talaq: 1). This means that they should remember the time when divorce occurs in order to be able to calculate the waiting period after which the woman is permitted to marry another husband. Al-Ihsaa’ (the calculation) intended here means to know the beginning and the ending of the waiting period of the woman so as to remove harm from her by not allowing the period of her ‘idda (waiting period) to be extended.

But who is ordered here to calculate the waiting period? Is it an order to the husbands, wives or all Muslims? Some scholars contend that the order here is directed to the husbands as they are obliged to fulfil some rights such as maintenance payments. In addition, they are entitled to take their wives back during the waiting period, if they so want. If they do not calculate the waiting period until it is over, then it will be too late to take them back, a case under which they will be obliged to conclude a new marriage contract and pay a new bride-gift if they want to take their wives back in marriage.

Accordingly, we find that calculation has many benefits, such as knowing the time during which a husband may take his wife back and knowing the time when maintenance payments and housing become an obligation on him. It is noteworthy here that commanding Muslims to ‘calculate’ signifies that they should be very accurate in this regard. This is because inaccuracy in this process may lead to two problems, as follows: first: the divorcee may get married before the completion of her waiting period and this, consequently, may lead to confusion of lineage; second: the waiting period of the woman may be lengthened, a matter that may put her into difficulty because she becomes in need of someone to support and take care of her.

Thus, calculation in this context signifies exactness and precision with regard to the waiting period so that no mistake should occur in this process. It is as if Allah the Almighty says, 'O Prophet Muhammad, order the believers who want to divorce their wives not to divorce them during the menstrual period, but at the time when the prescribed waiting period can start properly. In other words, the husbands should not leave them until they are clean from their menses, and then wait until they get their next period and become clean again.' This is the order that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him gave to 'Abdullah ibn 'Umar Allah be pleased with him in this regard. This address applies only to the divorcee whose marriage is consummated. In case the marriage is not consummated, there shall be no waiting period.

Moreover, Allah Glorified is He prescribes the waiting period as a preservation of the husband's right, the right of the widow and the woman's dignity, as no one is allowed to propose to her until she completes her waiting period.

A divorcee may, out of desire to avenge herself against the man who divorced her, rush to marry another man. She may be insinuated to by another man to seek divorce and, therefore, becomes in a hurry to marry him. Further, as soon as the woman gets divorced and goes through the waiting period, people may propose to her or she may aspire to marry someone. So, He Glorified is He prohibits her from marriage for a certain period as a means of protecting her.

Then He Glorified is He says: 'Be mindful of Allah, your Lord. Do not drive them out of their homes – nor should they themselves leave – unless they commit a flagrant indecency…' (at-Talaq: 1). He Glorified is He draws our attention to the matter of piety which controls the relations between the spouses in the affairs of marriage, divorce, the waiting period and maintenance allowance. He says: 'Allah will find a way out for those who are mindful of Him' (at-Talaq: 2); 'Allah makes things easy for those who are mindful of Him' (at-Talaq: 4); 'Allah will wipe out the sinful deeds and increase the rewards of anyone who is mindful of Him' (at-Talaq: 5) and: 'So, you who have understanding, you who believe, beware of Allah' (at-Talaq: 10). The Arabic word taqwa (piety/fearing Allah) means to act upon the Orders of Allah the Almighty and to refrain from what He forbids, so as to regulate our choices according to His Way of Guidance. By so doing, we will be acting in such a way that serves the benefit and general good of humanity, exactly as the entire universe around us does.

Piety, in general terms, refers to obedience to Allah by following His Orders and refraining from His Prohibitions. It suggests abstinence from the dilemmas and troubles of life by adhering to the Divine Way of Guidance. Only then could anyone shun such troubles. By contrast, anyone who turns away from piety will live miserably, a fact which is clear in His saying: '…his shall be a straitened life…' (Ta Ha: 124). One should not think that piety is confined to protecting oneself from the hellfire, it is rather, more comprehensive. It signifies desistance from troubles and misery arising from transgressing Allah's Way of Guidance. It should be noted that as a person may violate the rights of others, he will similarly have his rights violated.

Further, piety indicates shunning the troubles of life, which are caused by approving and complying with man-made laws which are contrary to the Divinely enacted Law by virtue of which we can avoid such troubles. Therefore, Allah Glorified is He says: 'And whoever turns away from My Reminder, his shall be a straitened life…' (Ta Ha: 124). This verse indicates that the life of such a person will be full of troubles and worries because he violates the Way of Allah. Should there be no problems as a consequence of such violations, people would say, 'We violated Allah's Law and yet we prospered.' Thus, problems have to exist in order to remind us that the Divine Way of Guidance must prevail and that adhering to it will entirely solve our problems.

The Arabic word danka (straitened) denotes extreme distress and misery from which one cannot escape. It is not limited to poverty and need; rather, it incorporates many other forms, which is why we stress that the level of civilisation should not be evaluated only on the basis of the material aspect, regardless of the other specifications. Undoubtedly, perfecting the material aspects of life results in success and prosperity in the worldly life. However, upholding the religious, spiritual, and moral values leads to luxury in the worldly life and delight in the Hereafter. The issue does not concern the economic aspect of life as much as it has to do with neglecting and cancelling the Divine Laws that guarantee our happiness in this life even in the state of poverty.

In fact, life becomes miserable in the absence of the Light of Faith and its Guidance. When one preserves the purity of one's spirit and testifies that Allah the Almighty is the Only God, all the Divine Teachings will be clear to him. By following them, he will be protected from falling prey to forgetfulness of the Remembrance of Allah the Almighty. Here, we should strongly stress that if one forgets the Remembrance of Allah, he will be directly put into a state of difficulty and hardship.

When you hear someone saying, 'Life is miserable,' this only conjures up the problem of poverty even though 'misery' has a broader meaning. People can be extremely miserable in spite of wealth, prosperity, and welfare. For example, Sweden, one of the richest countries, is the abode of insanity, perversity, psychological problems, and suicide despite the high level of income provided to individuals.

The relation between divorce and piety is explained in the saying of Allah Glorified is He: 'And when you divorce women and they reach their prescribed time, then either retain them in good fellowship or set them free with liberality, and do not retain them for injury so that you exceed the limits, and whoever does this, he indeed is unjust to his own soul; and do not take Allah's communications for a mockery, and remember the favour of Allah upon you, and that which He has revealed to you of the Book and the Wisdom, admonishing you thereby; and be careful (of your duty to) Allah…' (al-Baqara: 231).

To 'be careful of your duty to Allah' means to adhere to the Path of Truth. The pious believer is the one who fears Allah the Almighty as Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him admonished men, saying, 'Fear Allah regarding women for they are powerless. Indeed, you have got them under Allah's Trust and have the right to intercourse with them by Allah's Word.'(1)

(1) This Hadith is narrated on the authority of Jabir ibn 'Abdullah who narrated that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him told this Hadith in his farewell sermon on Mount Arafat. See Al-Bayhaqi, Shu'ab A-Iman, Hadith no. 4881.

In the verse in question, He Glorified is He says: '…be mindful to Allah…' (at-Talaq: 1). Then He immediately follows the word 'Allah' with His saying: '…your Lord…' (ar-Rahman: 1) to indicate that He Glorified is He combines the Attributes of Divinity and Lordship.

Moreover, His Provision is guaranteed to His creation, believers, and disbelievers alike, since He Glorified is He brought them into existence and created them; thereby securing their sustenance and life and depriving none of them of His Conferment of Lordship in the worldly life.

As a matter of fact, Divinity has to do with legal obligations, whereas Lordship signifies provision and nourishment, both are basic requirements for everyone's life on earth. No one has brought himself into existence; rather, it is only Allah, the Creator, Who brought all the people, believers, and disbelievers, into existence; hence He the Almighty is the only One Who is Fully Able to secure their sustenance.

In other words, the Conferment of Lordship encompasses all the creatures of Allah the Almighty. By contrast, the Conferment of Divinity is concerned with the Divine Commands ('dos' and 'don'ts').

The Arabic word Rabb (Lord) refers to the one who raises someone under his guardianship until he reaches the expected level of perfection. With regard to Allah the Almighty Lordship implies that He rears the creation for a specific end and a specific mission. Considering that such rearing requires material, spiritual and methodological fundamentals, which He Glorified is He provides to all people, as He says in the chapter of al-Fatiha: 'All praise is due to Allah, the Lord of the Worlds' (al-Fatiha: 2).

He Glorified is He is the Master, the King and the Provider of all the Worlds. He nourishes all the creation in a way that makes them fit for their mission in life by giving them physical strength, by ensuring the survival of the species by reproduction and by promoting ethical values.

Allah Glorified is He says in another verse: 'but I am a Messenger from the Lord of the worlds…' (al-A'raf: 61). Here, that particular Prophet tells his people that he was sent by the Master and the Provider of the Worlds. It is not befitting for the Provider to send down a revelation to mislead those whom He nourishes, but rather to send down a reforming and guiding one.

In the context of divorce, Allah's saying: 'be mindful of Allah, your Lord…' (at-Talaq: 1) signifies that Muslims should not disobey His Orders, and that He forbids them from divorcing their wives during the period of menstruation or after having intimacy with them. It is permitted, though, to divorce them during a period of purity in which they did not have intercourse.

It is also a warning against leniency with regard to the rulings of divorce and the calculation of the waiting period. In this context, the people of the pre-Islamic era used to neglect women and the relatives of a divorcee hardly defended her rights and consequently such rights were gradually forgotten and denied.

Therefore, these verses are so strongly worded that such rights are referred to as 'the Limits of Allah'. To urge Muslims to be more pious, the Most Honourable Name 'Allah' is immediately followed by His saying 'your Lord' to remind people that His Wrath must be seriously feared and taken into account. Consequently, it is as if He the Almighty said to them, 'Fear Allah, your Lord, and do not prolong their waiting periods to harm them and do not disobey His Commands.' This is a call for men, in particular, to fear Him the Almighty in respect of divorce that it should not arise from the desire to transgress or revenge, or following a sudden whim or impulse because Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said: 'Of all the lawful acts the most detestable to Allah is divorce.'(1)

Thus, Muslims should be careful of their duty to Allah by guarding themselves against committing any act of disobedience including that of harming their wives by divorcing them during their menstrual period or at the other times when divorce is prohibited.

Not only does Allah Glorified is He direct orders regarding one's spouse or household by virtue of His Divinity and His Right to be obeyed, but also because His Lordship guides one to what improves life with his spouse and within his household. So, when divorce takes place, it has to be in accordance with the Shari'a and to emanate from piety and fear of Allah.

(1) This Hadith is narrated on the authority of 'Abdullah ibn 'Umar Allah be pleased with him. See Abu Dawud, Sunnan, Hadith no. 2180; Ibn Maja, Sunnan, Hadith no. 2018; Al-Bayhaqi, As-Sunnan Al-Kubra, Hadith no. 15292; and At-Tartusi, Musnad Hadith no. 14

Further, He the Almighty provides the believers with His Guidance and guards them with His care so that their life may be on the Right Path. Yet, piety here is concerned with counting the days of the divorcee's waiting period; it also has to do with not allowing the revocably divorced women to leave their husbands' houses. Allah, our Lord, knows what is in the minds of His creation, men, and women, and knows what may reconcile between a husband and his divorcee whom he divorced at a moment of anger. Thus, He Glorified is He prescribed that the divorcee should not leave her house so that they may come together and get their life back on track.

In this regard, Jabir ibn 'Abdullah Allah be pleased with him said, 'My maternal aunt was divorced and she went out to cut down fruit from her palm trees. A man met her and forbade her (to go out). So, she went to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and mentioned that to him. He said, "Go out, and cut down fruit from your palm trees for perhaps you may give alms or do an act of kindness."'(1) Some people may mistakenly think that this Hadith is contradictory to the verse under discussion in which Allah Glorified is He says: 'Do not drive them out of their homes…' (at-Talaq: 1).

In Islam, a woman is entitled to possess her own money and to manage her property either personally or by authorising a trustworthy person to do so. Yet, she has to abide by Allah's Law, that is, she does not have the right to go out during her waiting period. However, this is not entirely prohibited, for she is allowed to go out for necessary needs and to look after her property. The preceding Hadith gives us a practical example; the maternal aunt of Jabir ibn 'Abdullah was divorced and went out to cut down fruit from her palm trees and a man met her and forbade her to go out. Yet, when she went to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him he allowed her to go out to look after her property. With greater foresight, he said to her, 'Perhaps you may give alms or do an act of kindness.' He peace and blessings be upon him directed her to do good deeds such as giving charity or doing favours like rendering relief to the grief-stricken, repaying the debts of the heavily indebted, helping someone who wants to get married or giving some dates to the poor and the needy.

(1) See Muslim, Sahih, Hadith no. 3794; Abu Dawud, Sunnan, Hadith no. 2299; An-Nasa'i, Sunnan, Hadith no. 3550, Ibn Maja, Sunnan, Hadith no. 2034; and Ahmad, Musnad, Hadith no. 14484.

Then, Allah Glorified is He says: ‘Do not drive them out of their homes…’ (at-Talaq: 1). Here, He the Almighty forbids husbands from driving their divorced wives out of their houses until their waiting periods are over. In addition, the divorcee is not allowed to leave the house without the husband’s permission and he should not give her leave as long as she is still in the waiting period. If she leaves the house, she is not entitled to housing or maintenance allowance.

The possessive pronoun in the word ‘homes’ mentioned in the verse refers to the divorced women, to indicate that they have the same right to stay at such houses as their owners. In Islamic Jurisprudence, this is called ‘beneficial ownership’ and the divorcee, during her waiting period, has the same ruling as the wife except for intercourse with her husband.

Given that they are still in their waiting period, the divorced wives should not be driven out of the houses which they used to inhabit before divorce, that is, the houses of their husbands. So, the ‘homes’ were attributed to the wives because they are more engaged with them with regard to lodging. Thus, men are forbidden to let their wives leave their houses before the waiting period is over. Instead, they should keep them in their houses for they, during the waiting period, are still their wives. Further, attributing the houses to the divorced wives gives rise to a feeling in the spouses that their marital life is still present during the waiting period because the wife is still at her marital home.

This, undoubtedly, shortens the psychological distance between the spouses, thus paving the way for reconciliation and eliminating the causes of parting. During her waiting period, a woman should reside in her marital house, and thereby she will not feel that she is a stranger. This feeling stimulates her to act in the same way as she used to do before divorce, providing a great chance for reconciliation and amicable reunion.

Husbands should not drive their divorced women (during their waiting periods) out of the houses they shared with them before divorce because of anger or hatred for them or being in need of such houses. This is so because housing is a right prescribed by Allah the Almighty for wives, and therefore not to be transgressed except in the case of necessity, such as the collapse, the burning or the damage of the house or out of fear of falling into a religious trial.

The saying of Allah Glorified is He ‘Do not drive them out of their homes…’ (at-Talaq: 1) provides evidence for the divorcees’ right of housing during the waiting period, for the houses out of which their husbands are forbidden from driving them are the ones they used to inhabit before divorce.

Allah Glorified is He then says: ‘…nor should they themselves leave – unless they commit a flagrant indecency.…’ (at-Talaq: 1). Throughout her waiting period, a revocably divorced woman should not leave the house of her husband, yet she can go out if a necessity arises during the daytime provided that she stays at home over night. The husband is also not permitted to drive her out of the marital house during her waiting period and she is not allowed to go out except in the case of an urgent necessity. Should it happen, she will be a sinner but meanwhile should continue to count the waiting period, whether revocably or irrevocably divorced, to prevent the confusion of lineage.

As for the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘...unless they commit a flagrant indecency.…’ (at-Talaq: 1), it is also mentioned in His saying: ‘O you who believe! It is not lawful for you that you should take women as heritage against (their) will, and do not straiten them in order that you may take part of what you have given them, unless they are guilty of manifest indecency…’ (an-Nisa’: 19) and in His saying: ‘O wives of the Prophet! Whoever of you commits an open indecency, the punishment shall be increased to her doubly; and this is easy to Allah’ (al-Ahzab: 30). In spite of the fact that Muslim scholars differ concerning the definition of ‘indecency’, it signifies a terrible sin. The Arabic root of the word implies excessive ugliness, thereby deemed by some scholars to refer to specific kinds of sin, namely; adultery and fornication which are utterly obscene; this point of view is supported by the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘And go not nigh to fornication; surely it is an indecency and an evil way’ (al-Isra’: 32). Other groups of scholars believe that it denotes sins for which there is a prescribed punishment or that it may refer to the major sins.

I opine that this word in question is used to refer to any form of extreme obscenity. The word ‘indecency’ does not only connote normal ugliness, but rather an intense and excessive one. Examining the verses of the Quran, one can find that adultery is the only sin referred to as an act of indecency, and therefore this word has to mean adultery or anything opposing Allah’s Laws. But why does the word ‘indecency’ refer to adultery in particular?

It is because all sins other than adultery have to do with the circumstances surrounding the human soul, while adultery is the only sin which is concerned with the human soul itself because it results in confusion of lineage, disgrace, suspicions about one’s wife and children, depravity and corruption. Consequently, Allah the Almighty clearly commands the Muslim Ummah, saying: ‘And go not nigh to fornication; surely it is an indecency and an evil way’ (al-Isra’: 32).

Scholars defined indecency as the great sin for which the sinner feels embarrassed. S/he keeps it in secrecy and cannot expose it openly, recognising how obscene and abhorrent it is. Acknowledging the indecency of such a sin, the one perpetrating it tries not to become exposed and to conceal his crime from others. Further, he detests seeing it happen to his family and relatives. It suffices that Allah the Almighty describes such a sin as being ‘indecent’ and prescribed a punishment to be inflicted publicly on anyone committing it.

However, the question to be asked here is: ‘What is meant by “indecency” in the saying of Allah: “…be mindful of Allah, your Lord. Do not drive them out of their homes – nor should they themselves leave – unless they commit a flagrant indecency...” (at-Talaq: 1)? Some scholars maintain that it implies hatred and disobedience of her husband’s commands. If this is the case of the woman, then her husband becomes entitled to fidyah (ransom). In this regard, Ibn Mas‘ud Allah be pleased with him stated, ‘If she harms you, you will have the right to get back what she took from you, that is, the bride-gift.’(1) Other scholars suggest that a divorcee, who leaves her house before the waiting period is over, is committing an open indecency. Furthermore, other scholars said that a woman committing an open indecency is the one who insults and abuses the family of her husband; hence, they are allowed to drive her out. In this verse, ‘indecency’ denotes outright disobedience, such as insulting and abusing the family of her husband and, thus, she is rendered an ill-mannered woman. Such a sharp-tongued, insolent woman does not deserve to stay at the marital house with her husband until her waiting period is complete. In this regard, Imam Ash-Shafi‘i permitted driving out the woman who insults her in-laws. The open indecency is the evident reason for driving such a woman out of the house during her waiting period, as her staying in this house inflicts harm on the household owing to her abusive language and disgraceful deeds. That being the case, it is permissible to expel her because she inflicted harm upon herself through ill-treatment, even though housing could have been a source of compassion and care for her. This ruling is only related to the revocably divorced woman, while the irrevocably divorced one has no right to housing, since this right to housing follows that right of maintenance allowance which is confined to the revocably divorced women. Further, it is out of Allah’s Wisdom that He obligates housing for the divorcee in order to preserve her ‘ird (honour) and to protect her from the piercing gazes of men.

(1) In his Tafsir, As-Suyuti attributes this Hadith to Ibn Jarir At-Tabari’s Tafsir Jame‘ Al-Bayan; the interpretation of the verse (4:19). See As-Suyuti, Ad-Durr Al-Manthur, 290/4.

It is worth noting that Allah Glorified is He describes the act of indecency as flagrant to emphasise that it is conspicuously manifest and self-evident, with no room for ambiguity. This is also an expression of how this woman exposes her indecency or insolence openly in an intolerable way and how she insults and rebels against her husband and his family.

Allah the Almighty then says: ‘These are the Limits set by Allah – whoever oversteps Allah’s Limits wrongs his own soul – for you cannot know what new situation Allah may perhaps bring about’ (at-Talaq: 1). Here, these demonstrative pronouns ‘these’ refer to the Limits of Allah presented here in the rulings of divorce in the case where there is no chance to go on with the marital life. When divorce is imperative, it has to follow the legal way to preserve the rights of the woman, the right of the man to take his wife back and the right of the society to protect offspring and prevent the confusion of lineage.

These are included in the Limits of Allah, for it is not right to confine His Limits to the penalties for theft, adultery, highway robbery(1) and murder. Thus, Allah’s Limits are His Rulings which may be in the form of orders or prohibitions.

(1) The punishment for highway robbery is mentioned in Allah’s saying: ‘The punishment of those who wage war against Allah and His Messenger and strive to make mischief in the land is only this, that they should be murdered or crucified or their hands and their feet should be cut off on opposite sides or they should be imprisoned…’ (al-Ma’ida: 33). It is the most vicious crime since it incorporates other crimes, such as robbery, violence, murder, intimidation, threatening innocents and causing random destruction. Any offence including these multiple crimes is subject to the punishment for highway robbery.

The Arabic word hadd (limit) denotes the barrier preventing things being mingled, and hudud (limits) of Allah are His Prohibitions for which He set certain limits in order not to be transgressed. As a matter of fact, in order to prevent yourself from indulging in such prohibitions, you should observe Allah’s Commands and keep a distance from His Prohibitions. Thus, Allah’s Limits are His Rulings which stand as a barrier between the permissible and the impermissible.

Allah’s Limits are mentioned either after the prohibitions or after the commands. For example, with regard to Allah’s saying: ‘…these are the Limits of Allah, so do not exceed them…’ (al-Baqara: 229), it comes after a command, meaning that we must not go beyond them. But, when it comes after the prohibitions as in His saying: ‘…these are the Limits of Allah, so do not go near them…’ (al-Baqara: 178), it indicates that He Glorified is He wants to protect one’s soul from the bad effects of committing prohibited acts. So, it would be better that he keeps himself away from them.

It is important to pay attention to the Hadith in which Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, ‘The lawful is clear and the unlawful is clear, and between that are matters that are doubtful (not clear). So whoever leaves it to protect his religion and his honour, then he will be safe, and whoever falls into something from them, then he soon will have fallen into the unlawful. Just like if someone grazes (his animals) around a sanctuary, he would soon wind up in it. Indeed for every king is a sanctuary (pasture), and indeed Allah's Sanctuary is what He made unlawful.’(1)

Due to the fact that Allah’s Limits include orders and prohibitions, we can say that they all fall under ‘dos’ and ‘don’ts’. Were we to convert the obligations into prohibitions and vice versa, the world would be thrown off balance, thereby allowing injustice to take place.

(1) This Hadith is narrated on the authority of An-Nu‘man Ibn Bashir Allah be pleased with him. See Al-Bukhari, Sahih, Hadith no. 52 and 2051; see also Muslim, Sahih, Hadith no. 4178 and 4181; Abu Dawud, Sunnan, Hadith no. 3331; At-Tirmidhi, Sunnan, Hadith no. 1205; An-Nasa’i, Sunnan, Hadith no. 4453; and Ibn Maja, Sunnan Hadith no. 3984.

Injustice suggests giving the right of someone illegally to another. In fact, the rulings of divorce are part of the Limits of Allah. If you transgressed them by substituting them with man-made laws, this constitutes an act of injustice. It is He the Almighty Who is entitled to set the Limits that prevent the confusion of the right with the wrong. He also gives some rights precedence over others. In our daily lives, when we divide houses and lands, we set clear boundaries. As such, the boundary/limit is a barrier between two rights so that no one oversteps his boundaries.

So, regarding His Limits relating to His Commands, Allah the Almighty says: '…these are the Limits of Allah, so do not exceed them…' (al-Baqara: 229); regarding His Prohibitions, He says: '…these are the Limits of Allah, so do not go near them…' (al-Baqara: 187). This means that when you follow His Orders, you must not go beyond them, and when you are forbidden from doing something, you must not approach it. For instance, when He the Almighty prohibits wine, He does not say 'do not drink wine,' He says instead: 'O you who believe! Intoxicants and games of chance and (sacrificing to) stones set up and (dividing by) arrows are only an uncleanness, the devil's work; shun it therefore that you may be successful' (al-Ma'ida: 90). It implies that one should not even go to the place where such things could be found, he should rather keep himself at a distance. He Glorified is He loves those who abide by His Limits; they do not approach His Prohibitions nor do they transgress what He made permissible.

These topics of divorce, the waiting period, the counting of the waiting period, the obligation of piety and not to drive the divorcee out of her house unless she commits an open indecency are the Limits of Allah that He set for the people. Obedience to Allah entails that one should not overstep these Limits. As a matter of fact, one's obedience, piety, and preservation of Allah's Limits will not benefit Him the Almighty nor do they negatively affect Him Glorified is He in any way. Nonetheless, whoever observes these Limits, He the Almighty will fulfil His Promise to him.

In the verse in question, Allah the Almighty says: '…whoever oversteps Allah's Limits wrongs his own soul…' (at-Talaq: 1). Likewise, He says in another verse: '…and whoever exceeds the Limits of Allah these it is that are the unjust' (al-Baqara: 229). He Glorified is He warns us against transgressing these limits because the transgressor commits injustice against himself, his dependants and the entire society. Thus, the transgressors are those who violate and transcend the Divine Legislation. In His warning to us, He the Almighty distinguishes between transgressing the Orders and transgressing the Prohibitions.

So, He the Almighty says: '…whoever oversteps Allah's Limits wrongs his own soul…' (at-Talaq: 1). Likewise, He says: 'And when you divorce women and they reach their prescribed time, then either retain them in good fellowship or set them free with liberality, and do not retain them for injury so that you exceed the limits, and whoever does this, he indeed is unjust to his own soul…' (al-Baqara: 231). So, He the Almighty warns against transgression; for example, one who physically abuses his wife after taking her back should not think that he does injustice to her, for, in fact, he does injustice to his own self. When you inflict harm on a person, Allah the Almighty stands by his side, and if he invokes Him against you, the supplication will be accepted; thereby depriving you of gaining Allah's Pleasure. Is there, then, any type of injustice worse than what incurs Allah's Wrath?

One of the types of injustice committed by one against himself is pursuing a temporary whim or a false joy that brings about regret, grief and pain. In doing so, he imposes upon himself an intolerable burden. This is apart from doing injustice to other people. However, committing injustice against oneself is the pinnacle of absurdity. Were he to do injustice to others, we would assume that it may be beneficial for him, but what is the benefit of doing injustice to oneself? Injustice to oneself is the misdeed which affects its wrongdoer badly, or it is that which invokes great punishment in the Hereafter. As Allah Glorious is He forbids you to do injustice to yourself, the same is true for others.

Anyone who violates the Divine Legislations and Laws concerning himself and his wife deprives himself of the delight of this worldly life and the Hereafter. Further, anyone who transgresses the Limits of Allah with regard to divorce, taking back his wife after divorce, the calculation of the waiting period, and not driving the divorcee out of the marital house actually commits injustice against himself. That is because he, by so doing, destroys his life, in the first place, by a divorce that might have been issued because he could not deal properly with his wife, which in turn resulted in dissension, parting and child displacement.

In other words, the one who oversteps Allah's Limits and Orders by divorcing his wife during her menstrual period in fact does injustice to himself. Some people intend to divorce their wives to harm them. With regard to those people, Allah the Almighty says: 'And when you divorce women and they reach their prescribed time, then either retain them in good fellowship or set them free with liberality, and do not retain them for injury so that you exceed the limits, and whoever does this, he indeed is unjust to his own soul…'(1) (al-Baqara: 231). In the pre-Islamic era, some people used to divorce their wives once and leave them until shortly before their waiting periods are over at which they would take them back; then they would then divorce them again. In fact, they did so to harm their wives by prolonging their waiting periods, which is why Allah the Almighty prohibits this practice.

So, a husband should not keep the marital life going with the aim of harming and humiliating his wife, yet pretending that he is doing good for her. In other words, he should not maintain that he does not want to divorce her and that he will take her back while intending within himself to humiliate and retaliate against her. This is utterly rejected in Islam. In fact, doing injustice to one's wife or divorcee leads to the marital life being thrown off balance and losing its benefits by virtue of dissension, dispute, conflict, stubborn wills and verbal abuse.

Such a husband took Allah's Verses in jest and manipulated the concession granted to him by Allah to take his divorced wife back in marriage to inflict more harm and suffering on her. We know that Allah Glorified is He offers the husband the chance to take his revocably divorced wife back and to keep her in their marital house after divorce until her waiting period is complete. Her staying could provide an incentive for the husband to consider the matter of taking her back during her waiting period which is a common practice, as Allah the Almighty says: '…for you cannot know what new situation Allah may perhaps bring about' (at-Talaq: 1). If she leaves her house, with much gossip going on and people causing calumny between them, the relationship between them, which is cautiously guarded by the Legislation, will be severed. Here, He Glorified is He commands the divorcing husband to abide by the Rulings of Allah the Almighty regarding the matters of divorce as he does not know what will happen later on. After all, He the Almighty knows best the interest of people and can cause things to go well between the two spouses.

(1) In his Tafsir, Ibn Kathir relates that Ad-Dahhak stated: 'Those husbands referred to in this verse used to inflict harm on their wives to pay ransom. Other scholars maintain that a husband used to divorce his wife once and leave her until shortly before her waiting period is over at which he takes her back, intending to harm her so as not to get married to another one, then divorces her again and frequently does the same thing, only to harm her by prolonging her period, which is why Allah prohibits this practice and warns against committing it.' See Ibn Kathir, Tafsir Al-Quran Al-'Azhim, 1/629.

In Arabic, the word la'ala (perhaps) signifies one's wish for and expectation of the occurrence of a certain thing. When this word is said, this means that the thing said after it will most probably happen. As a matter of fact, the levels of expectation differ from one person to another and to Allah the Almighty. You may say, 'Ask so and so that he may give you what you want.' This is a level of expectation. But it is more expected to happen when one says, 'I may give you,' as this expression in this case is relating to yourself. The third, and the highest, level of expectation is relating to Allah Glorified is He. When He the Almighty says, 'Allah may perhaps do such and such', then He will do that thing as He is the Most Generous One Who loves to show Mercy to people and nothing can prevent Him from doing what He wills.

'Ubayd Allah ibn 'Abdullah ibn 'Utba narrated that 'Amr ibn Hafs ibn Al-Mughira set out along with 'Ali ibn Abu Taleb Allah be pleased with him to the Yemen and sent to his wife, Fatima Bint Qays,(1) the one pronouncement of divorce which was still left from the (irrevocable) divorce; and he commanded Al-Harith ibn Hisham and 'Ayyash ibn Abu Rabi'a to give her maintenance allowance. They said to her, 'By Allah, there is no maintenance allowance for you, except in case you are pregnant.' She then came to Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and mentioned their opinion to him, whereupon he said: 'There is no maintenance allowance for you.' Then she sought permission to move (to another place), and he (Prophet Muhammad) permitted her. She said: 'Allah's Messenger, where (should I go)?' He said: 'To the house of Ibn Umm Maktum' and, as he is blind, you could put off your garments in his presence and he would not see you. When her waiting period was over He peace and blessings be upon him married her to Usama ibn Zayd.(1) Marwan ibn Al-Hakam (the governor of Medina) sent Qubisa ibn Dhu'ayb in order to ask Fatima about this Hadith, and she narrated it to him, whereupon Marwan said, 'We have not heard this Hadith but from a woman. We would adopt a safe (path) which is followed by the people.' When these words of Marwan were conveyed to Fatima, she said, 'Allah's saying judges between us and proves who of us is of correct opinion; He the Almighty says: "Do not drive them out of their homes – nor should they themselves leave – unless they commit a flagrant indecency"' (at-Talaq: 1). After she recited the entire verse, she asserted, 'This is in regard to the revocable divorce, so what new turn can the event take after three pronouncements of separation of divorce? Why do you say there is no maintenance allowance for her if she is not pregnant? Then, on what grounds do you restrain her!'

(1) She is Fatima Bint Qays ibn Khalid, a woman from the clan of Fihr which belongs to the tribe of Quraysh. She is the sister of prince Ad-Dahhak ibn Qays. She is one of the early female Companions of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. She narrated some Hadiths from him. She was intelligent and beautiful. When the Caliph 'Umar ibn Al-Khattab was killed, the group of consultation gathered in her house to deliberate on the next Caliph. She died during the reign of Mu'awiya in 50 A.H. See Az-Zirikli, Al-A'lam.

This Hadith gives us an overview of the life of one of the great female Companions of Prophet Muhammad, Fatima Bint Qays, who had profound knowledge of the Quran to the extent that she corrected the understanding inferred by the other Companions.

Fatima Allah be pleased with her got divorced from her husband, 'Amr ibn Abu Hafs ibn Al-Mughirah three times, and 'Ali ibn Abu Taleb Allah be pleased with him ordered Al-Harith ibn Hisham and 'Ayyash ibn Abu Rabi'a to give her maintenance allowance. But they refused because she was not pregnant and it was her third time of divorce and therefore her divorce was irrevocable.

She referred the matter to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him who told her, ‘There is no maintenance allowance for you.’ As long as she is not entitled to have maintenance allowance, then she is not entitled to housing also. Therefore, she sought permission from him peace and blessings be upon him to leave the house of her ex-husband, whereupon he peace and blessings be upon him permitted her to move to the house of ‘Abdullah ibn Umm Maktum, a blind man, until she fulfilled her waiting period.

When her waiting period was over,(1) he peace and blessings be upon him married her to Usama ibn Zayd. During the reign of Marwan ibn Al-Hakam(2), the governor of Medina during that time, he asked her about this story. When she related it to him, he denied her moving from the house of her ex-husband to another place, which is why he totally denied the story. Fatima then said, ‘What judges between me and you is the saying of Allah: “Do not turn them out of their houses”’ (at-Talaq: 1). She then asserted, ‘This is in regard to the revocable divorce only.’

Allah the All-Wise and the Most Merciful does not want to put people into difficulty or hardship. His Sharia is all based on justice and mercy. Therefore, as He permits man to divorce his wife, He sets out regulations and limits to be observed. In this regard, He the Almighty says: ‘When any of you intend to divorce women, do so at a time when their prescribed waiting period can properly start, and calculate the period carefully: be mindful of Allah, your Lord’ (at-Talaq: 1). He Glorified is He gives the husband and the wife, who go through revocable divorce, an opportunity to reunite again and continue their marital life. Therefore, He orders the revocably divorced woman to calculate her waiting period so that her husband may take her back during this period.

(1) When the waiting period was over, Mu’awiya ibn Abu Sufyan and Abu Al-Jahm proposed to her. Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him advised her, ‘As for Abu Jahm, he does not put down his staff from his shoulder, and as for Mu‘awiya, he is a poor man having no property; marry Usama ibn Zayd.’ She objected to him, but he again said: marry Usama; so she married him. Allah honoured and raised her rank by him. Usama ibn Zayd was young as he was twenty years old at the death of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. However, he was previously married to Hind Bint Al-Fakih and Durra Bint ‘Uday and had a son, Mohamad, and a daughter, Hind. When he married Fatima, they had Jubayr, Zayd and ‘Aisha. He married other women also and died in 50 A. H. See Muslim, Sahih, Hadith no. 1480; and Ibn Sa‘d, At-Tabaqat Al-Kubra, 4/66.

(2) He is Abu ‘Abd Al-Malik, Marwan ibn Al-Hakam ibn Abu Al-‘Aas, an Ummayad Ruler. He was born in Mecca in 2 A.H. and died in 65 A.H. at the age of sixty three. See Az-Zirikli, Al-‘Alam, 7/207,

It is as if He Glorified is He is saying that He decreed that the divorced woman should remain her husband's wife during the waiting period so that the husband may regret his decision or the reason for which he divorced her ends, and thus decides to take her back in marriage. Thus, it will be easy for him to do so because she is still in his house.

Some scholars drew our attention to the fact that this verse encourages people to issue, if they willed, revocable divorce, and not to issue three pronouncements of divorce at one time in order not to miss the chance to take their wives back in marriage during the waiting period should they regret their decision.

One may ask, 'Does this verse: "for you cannot know what new situation Allah may perhaps bring about…" (at-Talaq: 1) address Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him?' The answer is that it addresses the one who transgresses the limits laid down by Allah Glorified is He that is, it is not directed to him peace and blessings be upon him. Accordingly, this verse means that whoever transgresses the limits laid down by Him the Almighty actually puts himself into hardship, as one does not know what may happen regarding his marital issues later on. He the Almighty may cause the husband to change his mind, thus replaces his enmity towards his wife with love and affection and, in such a case, he will still have the opportunity to correct his mistake and to take his wife back in marriage during her waiting period.

This is similar to Allah's saying: 'And as for those who are guilty of an indecency from among your women, call to witnesses against them four (witnesses) from among you; then if they bear witness confine them to the houses until death takes them away or Allah opens some way for them' (an-Nisa': 15). The Arabic word sabil (way) here refers to lashing or stoning to death – two punishments which completely purify the sinful women. This is because Allah Glorified is He wants to relieve people of all hardships and difficulties, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: '…and has not laid upon you any hardship in religion…' (al-Hajj: 78) and in His saying: 'Allah does not desire to put on you any difficulty…' (al-Ma'ida: 6).

Thus, He the Almighty does not choose you to be Muslims in order to put you into difficulty and hardship. Instead, the Shari'a is all about easiness and facilitation. In case of difficulty, He the Almighty makes concessions to people and introduces measures so that the people can live peacefully in their communities.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says:

ذَوَىْ عَدْلٍ مِّنكُمْ وَأَقِيمُوا۟ ٱلشَّهَٰدَةَ لِلَّهِ ۚ ذَٰلِكُمْ يُوعَظُ بِهِۦ مَن كَانَ
يُؤْمِنُ بِٱللَّهِ وَٱلْيَوْمِ ٱلْءَاخِرِ ۚ وَمَن يَتَّقِ ٱللَّهَ يَجْعَل لَّهُۥ مَخْرَجًا ﴿٢﴾

When they have completed their appointed term, either keep them honourably, or part with them honourably. Call two just witnesses from your people and establish witness for the sake of God. Anyone who believes in God and the Last Day should heed this: God will find a way out for those who are mindful of Him [2] (The Quran, at-Talaq: 2)

The Arabic verb balagha (to complete) has two meanings: sometimes it refers to being close to completing something, while other times it is used to signify the real completion of the thing. The first meaning is clear in Allah's saying: 'O you who believe! When you rise up to prayer, wash your faces…' (al-Ma'ida: 6) which orders Muslims, when they are about to perform prayer, to prepare themselves and perform ablution. An example of the real completion of something is the case in which an aeroplane arrives at its destination and then its pilot announces that they have balagha (reached) a certain country. So, when the husband divorces his wife and her waiting period is about to end, he can either complete the divorce or take her back again in marriage, an act which is recommended by Allah the Almighty till the very last moment.

However, with regard to the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'And when you have divorced women and they have ended – their term (of waiting), then do not prevent them from marrying their husbands when they agree among themselves in a lawful manner…' (al-Baqara: 232), it refers to the time when the waiting period is over and a husband is no longer entitled to take back his wife except with a new contract and bride-gift. If a husband wants to take her back in marriage, some relatives may oppose this remarriage. We say to those people, ‘As long as both husband and wife agree to resume their marriage, no one shall hinder this reconciliation and reunion.’

Thus, the verse in question refers to the time when the waiting period has not come to an end, and that is why the husband is commanded to: ‘…either keep them honourably, or part with them honourably…’ (at-Talaq: 2). As for the aforementioned verse of the chapter of al-Baqara, it refers to the actual termination of the waiting period. This is also the case in His saying: ‘And (as for) those of you who die and leave wives behind, they should keep themselves in waiting for four months and ten days; then when they have fully attained their term, there is no blame on you for what they do for themselves in a lawful manner; and Allah is All Aware of what you do’ (al-Baqara: 234). This verse refers to the waiting period of the widow which lasts up to four months and ten days. The meaning here is that she may marry another one when her waiting period is over.

As for the waiting period of the menstruating woman, it is defined in Allah’s saying: ‘Divorced women must wait for three monthly periods’ (al-Baqara: 228). Here, the waiting period is not defined according to time, but according to the periods of purity. As for the waiting period of the woman who reached menopause or those who have not menstruated yet, it is defined by a period of time which is nearly equal to the periods of menstruation, namely; three months; Allah the Almighty says: ‘The period of waiting will be three months for those women who have ceased menstruating and for those who have not [yet] menstruated…’ (at-Talaq: 2).

With regard to the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘…either keep them honourably…’ (at-Talaq: 2), it means that the husbands, if they will, can take their wives back in marriage honourably. This is one of two options available for a husband in this case. However, taking her back in this case shall be done according to ma‘ruf, which is an Arabic term signifying all acts of obedience to Allah, drawing nearer to Him, being kind to people and observing the obligations of Shari’a and refraining from what is prohibited. It also signifies good deeds. With regard to taking back one’s wife, it means being just to her, treating her well and giving her all her due rights.

In Arabic, al-ma'ruf (good) is the opposite of al-munkar (evil). The good thing is known to all people by their natural disposition. Al-Ma'ruf also refers to the thing that is widely known to people. Allah the Almighty commands Muslims to live with their wives in accordance with what is fair and kind, saying: '…and treat them kindly…' (an-Nisa': 19).

There is a difference between love and kindness. Marital life can survive as long as both parties consider the latter, that is, kindness, even if there is no love. Here arises the question, 'Does the absence of love ruin the marital life?' The answer is 'No'. The husband may take back his revocable divorcee and continue his life with her, even if he hates some of her bad behaviours in order to preserve the interest of their children and to give her the chance to change her behaviour.

Accordingly, we find that Allah's saying, '…either keep them honourably…' (at-Talaq: 2) alleviates the psychological pressure of the husband which may prevent him from seeking to take his wife back in marriage out of his hatred for her. It is noteworthy that one should always remember that he is required to treat his wife kindly and fairly, and not necessarily with love. As a matter of fact, marriage may start with kind and fair treatment between the two spouses and then they both may develop this relationship into love.

Kind and fair treatment means that a husband should fulfil his duties with regard to his wife. This is why some scholars say, 'Kind treatment means that in case a husband fails to maintain his wife, he should divorce her in order not to cause her any harm.'

Thus, Allah's saying: '…either keep them honourably…' (at-Talaq: 2) means that when one takes his revocable divorcee back, he should give her all her due rights which include spending on her, clothing, housing and good treatment. It is as if Allah Glorified is He says to the divorcing husband, 'Do not be in hurry to lose your wife as Allah will make a way out for you and your affairs will become better.'

This meaning is also underscored in Allah's saying: '…Keep your wife and be mindful of Allah' (al-Ahzab: 37). This is what Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said to Zayd (1) Allah be pleased with him.

Fair and kind treatment necessitates that a husband should not take his wife back with intent to harm her, a fact which is crystal clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘And when you divorce women and they reach their prescribed time, then either retain them in good fellowship or set them free with liberality, and do not retain them for injury so that you exceed the limits…’ (al-Baqara: 231). Harm with regard to marriage occurs when a husband pretends that he wants to take his revocable divorcee back while he intends to humiliate her. This is utterly prohibited in Islam.

Yet, how can taking one’s wife back occur? Imam Ash-Shafi‘i(1) says, ‘As long as marriage and divorce cannot be concluded except by talking, taking one’s wife back is concluded by talking also.’ As for Imam Abu Hanifa, he says, ‘Taking one’s wife back can occur by having sexual intercourse.’ Imam Malik yet says, ‘If a husband has sexual intercourse with his revocable divorcee with the intention of taking her back, then it occurs’.

Taking one’s revocable divorcee back in marriage occurs when one says, for example, ‘I took back my wife in marriage.’ The basic ruling is that ‘this act is concluded by uttering words to that effect.’ This is because the husband has the right to take his revocable divorcee back in marriage before the end of her third menstruation, even though he is not allowed to have sexual intercourse with her during her menses. If the third menses ends before he takes her back in marriage, then he cannot take her back in marriage except with a new contract and bride-gift.

Allah the Almighty says here: ‘…or part with them honourably…’ (at-Talaq: 2) and similarly He says: ‘…set them free with liberality…’ (al-Baqara: 231).

the tribe of Banu Al-Qayn and was sold at Mecca. Khadija Bint Khuwaylid bought him and gave him as a present to Prophet Muhammad who adopted him as his son. Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He prohibited the act of adoption. Concerning his divorce of Zaynab Bint Jahsh, Allah’s saying: ‘But when Zayd had accomplished his want of her, We gave her to you as a wife…’ (al-Ahzab: 37) was revealed. He died in 8 A.H.

(1) In his book, Al-Mawardi mentions these opinions. He further states, ‘Taking back one’s revocable divorcee in marriage does not take place except with an utterance on the part of the one who can speak, a signal on the part of a dumb and a sexual intercourse on the part of the capable one.’ Abu Hanifa said, ‘This takes effect by utterance or action such as sexual intercourse, kiss or even lustful gaze.’ But Imam Malik stated, ‘In order for taking the wife back in marriage to be valid, a husband should have an intention to do so.’ See Al-Mawardi, Al-Hawi Al-Kabir, 10/759-60.

This indicates that separation should be fulfilled in the best possible manner, without violence or repulsiveness, as it, that is, separation in itself is an awful thing that should not be compounded with severity and violence.

Divorce and separation shall be effectuated without hatred, enmity, or aggression. Instead, it shall be done in a good way. In fact, divorce is usually associated with anger and rage, so it should be done without violence. In order to alleviate her pain, a husband may say to his divorcee, ‘This is our destiny and I hope that Allah may compensate you with a better husband.’ It is sufficient for a woman to bear the pains of separation and divorce. What an awful state is it when one separates from his wife while cursing her, speaking harshly to her and preventing her due rights!

Fair and kind treatment to the divorcee requires that she should be given all her due rights. With regard to this point, Allah the Almighty says: ‘And for the divorced women (too) provision (must be made) according to usage; (this is) a duty on those who guard (against evil)’ (al-Baqara: 241). Thus, each divorcee shall receive a maintenance allowance prescribed by Him Glorified is He. If the bride-gift is not specified for a wife and the marriage is not consummated, she is given a bride-gift according to the state of the husband, whether wealthy or destitute, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: ‘…and make provision for them, the wealthy according to his means and the straitened in circumstances according to his means…’ (al-Baqara: 236). If the bride-gift is specified for a woman, and the husband divorces her before consummation of the marriage, she is to be given one-half of it. This indicates that Allah Glorified is He did not only specify a suitable ruling for each state, but also distinguished each state with a special expression.

When a woman gets divorced before the consummation of marriage, then this process is called tasrih (sending forth), an expression which signifies separation without any pain felt on the part of both spouses. There is no doubt that a husband who divorces his wife before having sexual intercourse with her does not grieve or incline to her. Therefore, he should separate from her in the best manner as a way of alleviating the great deal of pain she would endure in this case.

Moreover, in this case, there is no waiting period for the divorcee. This means that she has the right to marry again if anyone proposes in marriage to her.

Furthermore, she should be given maintenance allowance as a compensation for the psychological pain she would endure.

On the other hand, as for a woman who gets divorced after the consummation of marriage, Allah the Almighty says: '…or part with them honourably…' (at-Talaq: 2). He reminds both of them that He gathered between them by way of a marital relationship saying: '…They are an apparel for you and you are an apparel for them…' (al-Baqara: 187) and by saying: '…you have lain with each other…' (an-Nisa': 21). Therefore, they should consider this matter if they decide to end this relationship, that is, they should end it with kind and fair treatment.

The last verse signifies the best level of interaction between both the husband and his wife. In this case, a woman is exposed to her husband in a way that never happened, and shall not happen, even before her father, brother, mother or sister. This is the highest level of exposition and involvement that may happen between a man and a woman. A husband and wife directly interact with each other at all levels and in all daily activities, a matter which clearly indicates that they become closely connected to each other, as Allah the Almighty says: '…They are an apparel for you and you are an apparel for them…' (al-Baqara: 187). Therefore, He Glorified is He reminds the husband that he is going to separate from someone who he used to love very much. This is an encouragement for him to take her back in marriage.

Furthermore, if the separation becomes inevitable, then it should happen in a good manner, that is, without cursing, wrongdoing, or depriving the wife of any of her due rights. It is noteworthy here that Allah the Almighty gives precedence to taking one's revocable divorcee back over the completion of divorce. This proves that taking the revocable divorcee back is more pleasing to Him the Almighty and more consistent with the ultimate objectives of the Shari'a. After all, of all the lawful acts, divorce is the most detested by Him the Almighty.

Moreover, in order that the process of taking one's wife back in marriage is done in the best manner, one should bring two just people to witness it. If a husband does not take his revocable divorcee back before the completion of her waiting period, then he cannot marry her except with her consent. In this case, she has the right either to marry him or any other one.

If a husband takes his wife back in marriage during the waiting period, then he is not required to fulfil the requirements of marriage except for bringing just witnesses to prevent the possibility of subsequent denial and to confirm the legal rights such as inheritance, if any of the spouses dies.

One may ask, ‘How can we bring forth just witnesses?’ We say that we should consider their truthfulness and their behaviour, whether or not they are upright and moderate with regard to all their states and ethics. If we find that a certain person is upright and just with regards to his own affairs, then we can trust him with regards to others’ affairs. A witness shall also be experienced in the field about which he is brought to give witness.

As Allah the Almighty orders us to choose the just ones among us to make a judgement about a sheep,(1) then what about people’s lives and benefits? Therefore, we are required to distinguish the just people among us through observing their attitude towards themselves and their family. On discovering their competence and ability, we should charge them with this public service; otherwise, the ummah will be harmed. In fact, it is always the rash decision on the part of those who should be holding the leading positions in a nation that leads to its destruction.

So, ‘just witnesses’ in the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘Call two just witnesses from your people…’ (at-Talaq: 2) means those whose religion, honesty and integrity are approved. They avoid the major and minor sins; abide by chivalry, honesty, pure-heartedness, and uprightness.

The Quranic verses as regards testimony can be either general or restricted. It is restricted in Allah’s saying: ‘And as for those who are guilty of an indecency from among your women, call to witnesses against them four (witnesses) from among you...’ (an-Nisa’: 15). This is also the case of the divorced women in their waiting periods as clarified in His saying: ‘When they have completed their appointed term, either keep them honourably, or part with them honourably. Call two just witnesses from your people and establish witness for the sake of

(1) This is a reference to the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘O you who believe! do not kill game while you are on pilgrimage, and whoever among you shall kill it intentionally, the compensation (of it) is the like of what he killed, from the cattle, as two just persons among you shall judge…’ (al-Ma’ida: 95).

Allah…' (at-Talaq: 2). On the other hand, as for His saying: '…and have witnesses when you barter with one another…' (al-Baqara: 282), testimony or calling up witnesses in this situation is not limited; it rather extends to all Muslims, irrespective of any qualifications.

Allah Glorified is He stipulates that witnesses in such incidents relating to the personal affairs of the Muslim women should be Muslims, whereas this stipulation is not mentioned in the case of testimony to giving over the property of the orphans to them or buying and selling. The difference between the purely financial rulings and the Muslim women's rulings is conspicuously obvious in this regard.

The verses in their totality, however, maintain that the basic ruling of testimony is that witnesses have to be just and trustworthy. They warn us against false statements and deception, which are the characteristics of unfaithful and dishonest people. We should not bring such witnesses especially in the matters relating to the Muslim women. On the other hand, in other matters there is some leniency with regard to the qualifications of the witness as in the case of the financial contracts and the incidents that take place in public before many people. In this case, testimony of the truthful and honest people who adhere to their religion is to be accepted.

Thus, not everyone is qualified for giving testimony. In actuality, for one's testimony to be accepted, ten conditions must be met in the witness: he must be free, mature, Muslim, just and fully aware of his testimony; getting no benefit from his testimony, nor defending harm from himself; not known for frequent mistakes, nor lacking chivalry and having no hostility towards the one against whom he testifies.

Then Allah Glorified is He directs us to give upright testimony whenever we are called to witness, saying: '…and establish witness for the sake of Allah…' (at-Talaq: 2). Establishing testimony entails not testifying to something unless it is totally clear to you.(1) The matter of testimony should then be clearer to you than sunlight. To establish testimony is to give it whenever needed, without change or alteration, or concealing any part of it. If a person properly gives testimony, Allah the Almighty will be pleased with him, and thus the person draws near to Him. He Glorified is He promises those who are upright in their testimonies will be admitted into paradise, saying: ‘Those shall be in gardens, honoured’ (al-Ma’arij: 35). Those upright witnesses testify only to what they know, favour neither relative nor friend nor even themselves, with no regard to the status of the one they attest for or against. Further, they do not conceal or change their testimony. Allah Glorified is He commands us to accept the calling to witness, saying: ‘…and the witnesses should not refuse when they are summoned…’ (al-Baqara: 282). Once you are called as a witness, you have to hasten to give your testimony. If you are called, then giving testimony will fall under one of three types:

(1) Ibn 'Abbas Allah be pleased with him narrated that when Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him was asked about giving witness, he said, 'Do you see the sun?' He replied, 'Yes'. He said, 'Give witness in a similar case [which is as clear as the sun], or leave it.' Ibn Hajar said, 'Ibn 'Adi narrated it with a weak chain of narrators; Al-Hakim =

- People’s rights; in this case, giving testimony is not permissible unless one is called for giving it.
- Allah’s Rights: this has to do with laws such as divorce or setting slaves free. In these cases, testimonies shall be given, whether one is asked to give it or not.
- Allah’s Rights such as legal corporal punishments. In such case, one shall not give testimony unless one is asked to do so.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He addresses all of us, saying: ‘anyone who believes in Allah and the Last Day should heed this: Allah will find a way out for those who are mindful of Him, and will provide for them from an unexpected source’ (at-Talaq: 2). This verse refers to all previously stated legal rulings which include divorce, the waiting period and its calculation and the prohibition of driving the revocable divorcee out of the marital house unless the waiting period is over. He the Almighty also commands that we should not transgress the Limits He specified unless women are proven to have committed adultery. Moreover, He the Almighty orders the one who takes his revocable divorcee back in marriage before the termination of her waiting period to be kind and fair in his dealing with her and to refrain from harming or subjugating her. Even in the case of separation, it shall be performed without cursing or depriving the woman of her due rights.

Among these legal rulings is that two just Muslims should be brought to witness in the case of divorce or taking a divorcee back in marriage, in order to prevent any circumvention, manipulation or twisting of the truth. These witnesses are commanded to give testimony in the best manner, as He the Almighty says: '…and establish witness for the sake of Allah…' (at-Talaq: 2).

Establishing the testimony means that one should consider Allah the Almighty alone and not fear any anyone else, as indicated in His saying: 'O you who believe! Be maintainers of justice, bearers of witness of Allah's sake, though it may be against your own selves or (your) parents or near relatives; if he be rich or poor, Allah is nearer to them both in compassion; therefore do not follow (your) low desires, lest you deviate; and if you swerve or turn aside, then surely Allah is aware of what you do' (an-Nisa': 135). Here, the people are forbidden from distorting or changing the truth or refraining from giving their testimonies in fear of the one they are witnessing against because Allah is Fully Aware of all that they do.

Sometimes people give testimony, but they twist the truth. This is why it is said that one's own whims jeopardise justice. Therefore, all people are in dire need of the Help of Allah the Almighty in this regard. This meaning is also asserted in His saying: 'O you who believe! Be upright for Allah, bearers of witness with justice, and let not hatred of a people incite you not to act equitably; act equitably, that is nearer to piety, and be careful of (your duty to) Allah; surely Allah is Aware of what you do' (al-Ma'ida: 8).

As a matter of fact, falsifying the testimony leads to the destruction of the societies. If the members of the society bear witness fairly and justly, every one of them will be deterred from doing injustice when he is about to do it. The believer is commanded to establish justice to Allah Glorified is He by rectifying himself. Then, he is commanded to bear witness fairly and justly in order to reform others.

The Arabic word shahada (testimony) indicates numerous correlated meanings which are all gathered under the meaning of the word 'presence', a point which is clear in Allah's saying: 'And proclaim among men the Pilgrimage: they will come to you on foot and on every lean camel, coming from every remote path, [27] That they may witness advantages for them… [28]' (al-Hajj: 27, 28).

If the one bearing witness is truthful, he will not be afraid to have a conversation with any party or to answer any question he is asked. As long as the incident has actually happened, it remains in that state, no matter how numerous are the questions and no matter what changes may happen in the way of expressing it. The truthful witness states a real incident that never changes. The untruthful witness, on the contrary, tries to twist the truth, to beat about the bush and to change his testimony.

As a matter of fact, a witness serves as the decisive factor in the case of settling disputes, and that is why Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him commanded the witness not to testify about anything except if he actually saw it with his naked eyes, that is, as clear as he sees the sun. If he meets this condition, he can attest to a certain incident, otherwise he should not do that. Testimony requires two conditions: the presence of the witness at the moment when what he attests to happened and honesty in reporting the incident. In this regard, Allah Glorified is He says: '…This is more proper in order that they should give testimony truly' (al-Ma'ida: 108).

The witness is the one who, by his witnessing, enables the judge to give a just judgement. When there is a conflict or a dispute that cannot be settled except by the judge, we refer the case to him, and thus he will ask to summon the witnesses. He will question them, that is, the witnesses to give their testimony, to enable him to give a sound and a just verdict in the light of what the witnesses said. Establishing the testimony also means to consider the Pleasure of Allah Glorified is He which is the ultimate goal of the testimony and also of every good deed. Thus, you should seek Allah's Pleasure in every testimony you give.

Allah's Legislation is an admonition for everyone believing in Him as his Lord Who is the All-Wise, the Lawgiver and the All Knowing about the instincts of the goodness and the evil of the human soul.

The Arabic word maw'izha (exhortation) means to advise someone to do the right thing concerning a certain matter. Actually, the advised one knows what he should do but needs someone to admonish him. So, the adviser does not issue new orders; rather, he admonishes the listener regarding the teachings of Islam which the latter already knows but neglects.

In the verse in question, it is Allah Glorified is He Who admonishes us, and that is why we should heed and pay attention to His Admonition. He the Almighty cares for us and wants our spiritual education to be perfect. Indeed, He is Far Exalted over seeking anything in return for His Admonition, for nothing reaches Him from us, given the fact that we are powerless in comparison to Him.

In fact, only the reasonable and wise people accept the Divine Admonition and thereby follow Allah's Way of Guidance, because they employ their minds in the matter first and thereupon choose from among the alternatives. On the contrary, the insane people's thoughts are unorganised and inconsistent because they lack the intellectual ability to choose from among the alternatives. On the other hand, the reasonable person accepts the exhortation and exhorts others; he neither rejects it nor deviates from the Divine Way of Guidance which He Glorified is He has prescribed on us concerning the social relationships with one's wife or divorcee.

So, with regard to His saying: 'Anyone who believes in Allah and the Last Day should heed this…' (at-Talaq: 2), the believer recognises that his belief entails some requirements and thus constitutes a practical responsibility for him. It entails acting according to Allah's Will and following His Way of Guidance. When someone embraces Islam of his own accord, he should adhere to the covenant of belief which is the first thing with which He the Almighty entrusts him. Thus, as long as the person believes in Him Glorified is He he should obey His commands.

Here, He Glorified is He mentions the quality of believing in Him first, which is the first pillar of belief. Afterward, He mentions the necessity of believing in the Last Day, which is the last pillar of belief. So, attaining to faith starts with believing in Him Glorified is He and ends with believing in the Last Day.

Thus, the true believer obeys Allah's Command with regard to calling witnesses and establishing the witness for His sake because he submits to His Legislations and fears His punishment in the Hereafter. He, therefore, is heedful of His Teachings and does good deeds to the best of his ability to be prepared for the Hereafter. By contrast, the disbeliever is heedless of the consequences of his misdeeds.

Allah the Almighty exclusively mentions the believers because they are the only ones who benefit from His Teachings that warn them against what is harmful and that remind them about what softens their hearts. In this connection, He Glorified is He says in the chapter of al-Baqara: '…with this is admonished he among you who believes in Allah and the Last Day, this is more profitable and purer for you; and Allah knows while you do not know' (al-Baqara: 232). In the chapter of at-Talaq, He Glorified is He unlike it in the chapter of al-Baqara, does not use the singular form. This is because in the chapter of al-Baqara, He Glorified is He addresses only the guardian who prevents the irrevocably divorced woman that ended her waiting period from returning to her husband with a new contract and a new bride-gift. By contrast, in the chapter of at-Talaq, He Glorified is He addresses numerous people with different commands and prohibitions; He commands the husband to divorce his wife at a time when her prescribed waiting period can properly start and to calculate the period carefully, and meanwhile He prohibits him from driving her out of her home. Besides, He Glorified is He commands the divorcee to calculate her waiting period properly and accurately and not to leave her home. Further, He the Almighty addresses the one who wants to take his divorced wife back in marriage during her waiting period either to keep her honourably or to part with her honourably. Moreover, He the Almighty commands the husband to call two just witnesses to establish the witness for Allah's sake. Thus, He says: 'Anyone who believes in Allah and the Last Day should heed this…' (at-Talaq: 2).

Subsequently, He Glorified is He says: 'Allah will find a way out for those who are mindful of Him…' (at-Talaq: 2). Every verse in the Quran has a high position, status and rank including this verse that talks about the rulings of divorce, waiting period, housing of the divorced wife and the prohibition of driving her out of her husband's house. It is, nevertheless, a general verse that applies to anyone undergoing a hardship, a worry, or a calamity. For this reason, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said about this verse, 'I know a verse if all the people followed it, it would suffice them.'(1) Thus, this verse is sufficient for Allah's servants so as not to seek refuge with or humiliate themselves before anyone other than Him the Almighty. It opens the door of hope for anyone who has a concern, who feels sad or undergoes a hardship in his life.

In this vein, Allah Glorified is He addresses the believers, saying: 'O you who believe! If you remain mindful of Allah, He will give you a criterion…' (al-Anfal: 29). This furqan (criterion) is the way out that He the Almighty provides for those who are mindful of Him. It also represents the way to salvation, victory, and casting the light of guidance into the hearts of the pious people. Therefore, being mindful of Him Glorified is He saves the believer and enables him to overcome his anxiety about his current situation in life. The verse in question clearly tells us that He Glorified is He will find a way out for the pious people and will provide for him from an unexpected source. So, the believer should abandon every sinful act and reflect on Allah's Bounties that He bestows on him.

He Glorified is He will make the matters easy for the pious person as long as he remains mindful of Him and pursues the earthly causes. Afterwards, he will find that the alleviation of his calamity has come from an unexpected source because He Glorified is He is the Ultimate Refuge for the believer. If you could not find any solution for your problems, all what you should do is to take refuge with Allah Glorified is He Who is the Supreme Causer. The 'way out' for the believer is to accept Allah's Predestination and to know that He is the One Who gives, deprives, tests, relieves and protects.

In the same vein, 'Ubada ibn As-Samit Allah be pleased with him narrated that a husband divorced his wife by a thousand pronouncements of divorce. So, his sons went to Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and said, 'O Messenger of Allah, our father has divorced our mother by a thousand pronouncements of divorce; is there any way out of this?' He replied, 'Your father did not fear Allah, so He will not find a way out for him. She has been irrevocably divorced three times even though this divorce is not according to the Sunnah, and the remaining number of pronouncements of divorce are sins that burden him.'(1) In the same connection, when a man asked Ibn 'Abbas Allah be pleased with him about divorcing his wife by one hundred pronouncements of divorce, he told him that he had disobeyed his Lord, that his wife had become irrevocably divorced, and that he did not fear Allah, so He would not find a way out for him.(2) Then, Ibn 'Abbas recited the saying of Allah: 'Allah will find a way out for those who are mindful of Him…' (at-Talaq: 2).

Thus, Allah the Almighty will find a way out for the one who is mindful of Him by virtue of doing what He Commands and refraining from what He prohibited. If the husband divorces his wife, He the Almighty makes the waiting period of the woman a means to take her back in marriage. Even if her waiting period elapses before taking her back and then he desired her, he can propose to her and remarry her. But if the husband divorces her three times, he will find no way to get his wife back.

Therefore, He the Almighty makes the matters easy for the pious husband who divorces his wife one time by enabling him to take her back with the witness of two just people. Even if her waiting period elapsed without taking her back, he can propose to her like anyone else.

Here, having piety along with believing in Allah and the Last Day makes the husband fear to play with the matter of divorce; he refrains from issuing it one time during every menstrual period of his wife; otherwise, he will be violating the Sunnah, disobeying Allah and making the matter hard for himself, to the extent that there will be no way out for him.

Thus, Allah the Almighty makes the matters easy for the one who fears Him by obeying His commands and refraining from His Prohibition. He takes him from disobedience to obedience and from the unlawful and the doubtful matters to what is lawful and certain. Further, He will save him from the doubtful matters, the tribulations of this worldly life and the hardships of the Day of Judgement.

(2) See Al-Bayhaqi, As-Sunnan Al-Kubra, Hadith no. 15373; see also Sa'id ibn Mansur, Sunnan, Hadith no. 1064; and At-Tabarani, Al-Mu'jam Al-Kabir, Hadith no. 10994.

One should beware of deviating from Allah’s Way because this runs counter to piety which rids the believer of the ordeals of the worldly life through adhering to the Divine Way of Guidance. By contrast, the one who turns his back to piety, he will live miserably, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: ‘And whoever turns away from My reminder, his shall be a straitened life’ (Ta Ha: 124). No one should think that piety only means to protect oneself from the hellfire, for it also signifies the protection from the worldly problems and risks that result from violating Allah’s Way of Guidance. As a matter of fact, life is full of problems caused by setting and applying man-made laws, but if we apply the Divine Laws, we will ward off such problems and ordeals. That is why He the Almighty says: ‘And whoever turns away from My Reminder, his shall be a straitened life’ (Ta Ha: 124). Thus, the life of such a person will be full of problems and anxieties due to his violating the Divine Way of Guidance. By contrast, the one who follows that Way will derive a great benefit.

Living miserably means that the person undergoes many distresses and hardships from which he cannot escape. In fact, the one who turns his back on Allah Glorified is He is inflicted with such a miserable life. On the contrary, the life of the one who believes in Him will never be distressful even if he lacks the means of sustenance, as he knows that his Lord can find a way out for him. When the disbeliever, on the other hand, faces straitened circumstances and lacks the means of sustenance, he finds no one to take refuge in and that is why he may commit suicide. The miserable life does not only mean to be needy or poor as it comprises many other forms and aspects. For example, some developed countries, like Sweden, enjoy materially luxurious lives, but they suffer the highest rates of suicide and sexual perversion, even though they have the highest income rates in the world. So, you should not measure the level of civilisation according to the material side only, but you should also take into consideration all other aspects. The one who is successful in the material sides avails himself thereof in this worldly life only, but upholding religious, moral and ethical values is the way to prosperity in this worldly life and the Hereafter.

Some scholars opined that the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘Allah will find a way out for those who are mindful of Him, [2] and will provide for them from an unexpected source [3]’ (at-Talaq: 2-3) is applicable to everything that inflicts the person and needs alleviation. So, they did not make it specific to the matters of divorce. In this connection, Ibn ‘Abbas narrated that ‘Awf ibn Malik Al-Ashga‘i came to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and said, ‘O Messenger of Allah, my son was captured by the enemy and his mother grieves for him. What should I do?’ He peace and blessings be upon him said to him, ‘Fear Allah, be patient and ask her to say, “No power or might except with Allah,” many times.’ He returned to her and upon asking him, ‘What did the Messenger of Allah tell you?’ he said to her, ‘He ordered you and me to say, “No power or might except with Allah,” many times.’ She said, ‘He has ordered you with something good.’ So they kept saying it until the enemy became oblivious about their son and he managed to escape and brought four thousand sheep to his father. Thereupon, the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘Allah will find a way out for those who are mindful of Him, [2] and will provide for them from an unexpected source [3]’ (at-Talaq: 2-3) was revealed. With regard to the previous Hadith, the unexpected source of provision refers to the spoils that the captured son seized from the enemies.(1)

In the same connection, it is related that a man came to ‘Umar ibn Al-Khattab Allah be pleased with him and asked him to appoint him as a governor. ‘Umar asked him, ‘Do you recite the Quran?’ ‘No,’ replied the man. So, he told him that those who do not recite the Quran are not qualified for governorship. Afterwards, the man went and exerted his effort to learn the Quran, hoping that ‘Umar would appoint him. However, after he learned the Quran, he abandoned ‘Umar who later asked him, ‘Why have you abandoned us, man?’ He replied, ‘O Commander of the Faithful, I did not abandon you, but I had learned the Quran, so Allah made me dispense with ‘Umar.’(1) He asked him, ‘Which verse had made you dispense with me?’ He said, ‘The saying of Allah: “Allah will find a way out for those who are mindful of Him, [2] and will provide for them from an unexpected source [3]”’ (at-Talaq: 2-3).

(1) In his Tafsir, Ath-Tha‘alibi narrates this Hadith on the authority of Ibn ‘Abbas. It is also narrated by Az-Zay‘li in his book. See Az-Zay‘li, Takhrij Ahadith Al-Kash-shaf, 4/53

Allah the Almighty makes a way out from the straitened circumstances for the pious people, whereas the impious ones will be inflicted with all forms of hardship. Thus, the one who adheres to the Limits that He the Almighty sets and is mindful and fearful of His Power will be alleviated from all his suffering and hardship and will be guided to the Straight Path. This applies to the case of divorce or any hardship that the person may confront in this worldly life.

Piety, which leads to the way out of all hardship, has two forms: outward and inward. The outward piety has to do with the actions of the body; it includes preserving the Limits of Allah Glorified is He by not transcending them to the best of one’s ability. If he were forced to do so, he should hastily repent and seek Allah’s Forgiveness.

As for the inward piety, it is the source of sincerity in the actions and the good intention. The ummah unanimously agreed on the virtue of having piety and that one should only seek the accompaniment of the pious people so that he can have a living heart which is always heedful of Allah the Almighty. Piety results in fearing Him the Almighty which in turn protects the person from all evils.

He the Almighty has guaranteed to find a way out for the pious people from what makes people’s lives miserable. If this does not happen, this indicates that there is a defect in the person’s piety and therefore he should seek Allah’s Forgiveness and repent to Him.

Undergoing straitened circumstances means that what was spacious diminishes and that the life becomes miserable. These straitened circumstances have many levels. One may find that his country closes in around him, so he travels to another one to lead a good life. The whole world may become unbearable to him, but in that case, he may find his soul spacious for him. If one’s soul closed in around him, he would reach the maximum level of misery. When a matter closes in around someone, this means that he cannot think about an alternative to get him out of his straitened circumstance. His situation is contrary to the believer who is certain that Allah the Almighty will save him from the hardship he is undergoing. For this reason, you will bear any hardship because Allah Glorified is He is your Lord. Thus, when the worldly life, your relatives, beloved ones or even your soul close in around you, your Lord will be enough for you and you will be under His Care. That is why He the Almighty has described those who will be saved, saying: ‘Surely Allah is with those who guard (against evil) and those who do good (to others)’ (an-Nahl: 128). Therefore, He the Almighty puts the one who fears Him under His Protection and Care. In this case, no hardship will afflict him.

(1) See Ath-Tha‘labi, Al-Kashf Wa Al-Bayan Fi Tafsir Al-Quran, 9/338; see also Ash-Shirbini, As-Siraj Al-Munir, 4/227; and Al-Biqa‘i, Nazhm Ad-Durar Fi Tanasub Al-Ayat Wa As-Suwar, 8/31.

Piety, in a general sense, means obeying Him the Almighty by following His Commands and avoiding His Proscriptions. Likewise, He Glorified is He finds a way out for the one who is undergoing a hardship due to his problems with his wife to the point that he is about to divorce her. He Glorified is He preserves his house, wife and children for him. Thus, if the husband fears Him the Almighty in dealing with his wife and children, He Glorified is He guides him to a way by which he can reform them without destroying the family.

In fact, having piety and fearing Allah the Almighty are the foundations of all the marital issues. In addition, they prevent many evil things. So, the one whose marital situation is so difficult that he resorts to divorcing his wife should do that in conformity with Allah's Commandment, that is, he should not divorce his wife during her period of menstruation; rather, the wife should be in a state of purity. This may give a chance for employing reason, deliberating, and reforming this matter.

Even if the husband divorced his wife during the period of purity, he can take her back during her waiting period. Allah Glorified is He has made the chance of taking the divorced woman back in marriage more likely by prohibiting the revocably divorced wife from leaving the house. This could make the chance of reconciliation, closeness, and tranquillity between the husband and his wife more possible so that he takes her back in marriage and ends their discord.

If the ignorant person, who does not know about the prohibition of bid'i (innovative) divorce, divorces his wife during her menses or by triple divorce, he should repent to Allah the Almighty to be alleviated from this problem.

This verse under discussion may also apply to the one who may have resorted to divorcing his wife because of some reasons relating to her. Allah the Almighty relieves him and his children from this situation by providing him with another wife that preserves him and his children. He the Almighty says that He will also: '…provide for him from an unexpected source' (at-Talaq: 3). He provides him with sexual gratification, a wife, money (if he had divorced his first wife for his poverty) and good health (if he had divorced her for his deteriorating health).

Every verse in the Quran has a high position, status, and rank including this verse that talks about the rulings of divorce, waiting period, the housing of the divorced wife and the prohibition of driving her out from her husband's house. It is, nevertheless, a general verse that includes everyone undergoing a hardship, a worry, or a calamity. For this reason, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said about this verse, 'I know a verse if all the people followed it, it would suffice them.'(1) Thus, it is sufficient for Allah's servants to not seek refuge in or humiliate themselves to anyone other than Him. This verse opens the door of hope for anyone who has a concern, feels sad, or undergoes a hardship in his life.

Allah Glorified is He addresses the believers, saying: 'O you who believe! If you remain mindful of Allah, He will give you a criterion…' (al-Anfal: 29). This 'criterion' is the way He the Almighty provides for those who are mindful of Him. It also represents the way to salvation, victory, and casting the light of guidance into the hearts of the pious people. Therefore, He the Almighty saves the pious believer and enables him to overcome his anxiety about his current situation in life. If he adheres to His Limits, He the Almighty finds a way out for him and provides for him from an unexpected source.

Allah the Almighty then says:

وَيَرۡزُقۡهُ مِنۡ حَيۡثُ لَا يَحۡتَسِبُۚ وَمَن يَتَوَكَّلۡ عَلَى ٱللَّهِ فَهُوَ حَسۡبُهُۥٓۚ

And will provide for them from an unexpected source;
God will be enough for those who put their trust in Him.
God achieves His purpose; God has set a due measure for everything [3] (The Quran, at-Talaq: 3)

Allah Glorified is He finds a way out for the pious people if they try to the best of their ability to avoid the sinful acts. The person should ponder over Allah’s Bounties and feed himself and his dependants only from rightful property earned through a legal activity.

The believer should always find support in the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘Allah will find a way out for those who are mindful of Him. [2] And will provide for them from an unexpected source [3]’ (at-Talaq: 2-3). The last verse means that we should not measure our provision according to our activities because it, that is our measure, may be incorrect. The person should exert his efforts in the means of getting provision, but he should not measure his provision according to these means because one’s provision may come from an unexpected source. That is why He Glorified is He says here: ‘Allah will find a way out for those who are mindful of Him. [2] And will provide for them from an unexpected source [3]’ (at-Talaq: 2-3). Inasmuch as the believer exerts his effort in pursuing the means of provision, He Glorified is He bestows on him what is more than his effort. This also applies to the pious people, for every believer receives a provision beyond his effort, provided that he is pious and exerts his (utmost) effort. At a point of time during his calamity, he will find that the relief has come from an unexpected source, as Allah the Almighty is the Ultimate Refuge for the believer.

Assume that you are walking in a street with only one pound in your pocket and then you lost it; will you feel sad? Yes, you will. But if you have ten pounds in your house, your sadness will be less. Further, if your balance in your bank account is one thousand, you will not be sad at all.

The one who believes in one Lord and exerts his effort in seeking the means of provision will be relieved from his calamity and provided with more than the effort which he exerted. In fact, you do not seek your provision inasmuch as it seeks you. The mystic scholars say that one's provision knows his place better than one's knowledge about where his provision is. The evidence of this fact is that you may seek your provision in a place, but Allah provides you in another place. Similarly, you may see the plants growing well in the fields, and thus hope for an abundant harvest, but the crop may be spoiled for one reason or another. Therefore, you would not be provided with that abundant harvest.

Allah Glorified is He provides immeasurably for whomever He pleases. So, no one should think that he is provided in return for his work; rather, He the Almighty makes work a means for providing people. He Glorified is He does not deprive anyone of lawful work and provision for maintaining himself if he abandons the illegal work.

Now, what is provision? It is all that is useful, even though some people mistakenly think it is confined to money. We say to them that provision is all that is useful and beneficial; your knowledge, creation, and status are all forms of provision because they are useful.

Back to the verse in question, Allah Glorified is He commands the divorcing husband and the divorcee to try all the means to prevent their separation, but with regard to those who failed to find a solution, He the Almighty says: ‘And if they separate, Allah will render them both free from want out of His Ampleness, and Allah is Ample-Giving, Wise’ (Al-‘Imran: 130). In fact, Allah’s Bounty is infinite and He is fully Able to provide the husband with a good wife that satisfies his desires, and to provide the divorcee with another good husband who satisfies all her needs and accept her ugliness, if she were so. He the Almighty will cause a man of insight to see the good and the beautiful aspects she has.

You should beware of thinking that He the Almighty cannot provide alleviation for the human being. Out of His Wisdom, He the Almighty does not force the two spouses to live together, while they hate each other due to the lack of mutual love and mercy between them.

Allah the Almighty is Limitless and Omniscient. His Knowledge encompasses His Dominion and no one thing distracts Him from another thing. That is why when Imam 'Ali Allah pleased with him was asked, 'How does Allah hold all people accountable at the same time?' He answered, 'He does so as He provides all of them at the same time'. Thus, Allah's Bounty is Limitless, for He is fully Able to bestow His Favours on all people. By so doing, His Favours, nevertheless, do not decrease nor come to an end.

The provision, as we have said, is all that is useful; thus, strength, knowledge, wisdom, humbleness, the husband, and the wife are all different forms of provision. That is to say that all that serves the movement of life is a provision. For example, you may have little money, but you have good health by which you can work, earn money, and even give some of your money as a charity to the disabled and the sick people. Likewise, if you are wise, you can prevent the foolish person from committing what harms you and your society. Similarly, if you have knowledge, you can make use of it to teach the ignorant people and more importantly to act upon it.

Thus, some people's provision may be knowledge and wisdom by which they can address some problems in their houses and with their wives. Handling the marital problems needs Allah's Help to prevent the severing of the bond between the husband and the wife. This can only be achieved by following Allah's Way and Laws in our dealings with the wives, a matter that is fulfilled by either keeping them honourably or parting with them honourably. No one should think that leaving one's husband or wife is the end of the world; rather, it could be the beginning of a new good life.

Allah the Almighty says: '…And will provide for them from an unexpected source...' (at-Taghabun: 3). This means that He the Almighty provides the pious people from a source they do not know or expect. Some scholars even said that if the person fears Allah, opts for the lawful provision, and has patience towards his family, He the Almighty will relieve him from any financial difficulties and provide for him from an unexpected source. In this context, Abu Dharr narrated that Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him kept reciting the saying of Allah: 'Allah will find a way out for those who are mindful of Him. [2] And will provide for them from an unexpected source [3]' (at-Talaq: 2-3). When he finished reciting them, he said, ‘O Abu Dharr, if the people adhere to these two verses, it will suffice them.’ Abu Dharr then said, ‘He kept reciting them to me until I slept. He then asked me, “What would you do if you were driven out of Medina?”’ I replied, ‘I will go to the vastness and comfort of Mecca.’ He then asked me, ‘What would you do if you were driven out of Mecca?’ I replied, ‘I will go to the vastness and comfort of Ash-Sham and the sacred land.’ He then asked me, ‘What would you do if you were driven out of Ash-Sham?’ I said, ‘By the One Who sent you with the true Message I will use my sword.’ He said, ‘There is something better than that.’ I asked, ‘What is better than that?’ He replied, ‘To listen and obey even if the leader was an Abyssinian slave.’(1)

Thus, whoever puts his trust in Allah, his soul will never close in on him because he is certain that He Glorified is He will find a way out for him; He will bestow relief on him from an expected source. Thus, He Glorified is He delivers him from all the calamities in both this worldly life and the Hereafter.

Such certainty was affirmed by Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him in his advice to Ibn ‘Abbas Allah be pleased with him. ‘Ibn Abbas was a fourteen-year-old boy when Prophet Muhammad died. He said, ‘The Messenger of Allah said, “O young man, I shall teach you some words [of advice]: Be mindful of Allah and Allah will protect you. Be mindful of Allah and you will find Him in front of you. If you ask, then ask Allah [alone]; and if you seek help, then seek help from Allah [alone]. And know that if the nation were to gather together to benefit you with anything, they would not benefit you except with what Allah had already prescribed for you. And if they were to gather together to harm you with anything, they would not harm you except with what Allah had already prescribed against you. The pens have been lifted and the pages have dried.”’(2)

When Allah preordains something according to His Knowledge, it will inevitably come to pass, be it in your interest or not. That is why you should only rely on Him because He is the Almighty God Who always achieves His Purpose.

If you do good deeds for the sake of Allah the Almighty alone, He will satisfy all your needs. Thus, you should seek Help from Him the Almighty alone, for this excludes you from any form of humiliation in this worldly life. When you seek the help of anyone other than Him, you seek the help of a human being whose power and authority, however great they are, are limited. Hence, you should seek the Help of the Ever-Living Who never dies. If the human being does his best in seeking the means of provision, he must recall that his Lord, the only true God, supports him.

Allah Glorified is He then says: ‘Allah will be enough for those who put their trust in Him’ (at-Talaq: 3). In the same connection, He the Almighty says: ‘Believers should put their trust in Allah’ (al-Baqara: 160) and: ‘Allah loves those who put their trust in Him’ (al-Baqara: 159). As a matter of fact, the one who does not put his trust in Him Glorified is He should check his faith.

Every part of the body has a distinct action to perform. Having certainty and putting trust in Allah the Almighty are the actions of the heart. Evidently, walking is the action of the foot; working is the action of the hand, and so on. Thus, you should not assign the action of the heart to the foot or the hand, as the true meaning of putting trust in Him the Almighty is to work (that is, perform the religious obligations) with the limbs and to rely on Him the Almighty with the heart. In fact, the outcome of many actions and efforts were disappointing because they lacked the element of depending on Him the Almighty. For instance, you may find a farmer who grows his crops well. As he does not rely on Him the Almighty a storm may blow or a climatic change may take place, thus the crops may be spoiled and he will be disappointed.

You should beware of neglecting the means and the causes, or letting them seduce you. After all, if you neglected the means of provision, you would not truly put your trust in Allah Glorified is He which entails that the limbs should perform their due work, while the heart shall rely on Him. So, beware of thinking that depending on Him the Almighty implies neglecting the actions of the limbs, for this is a kind of fatalism and laziness. The evidence of this fact is that such a person likes to put his trust in Him the Almighty in the difficult situations, not in the easy ones.

We say to the one who falsely claims that he puts his trust in Allah the Almighty yet does not perform the due work, ‘You are not truly putting your trust in Allah. If you are truthful in your claim, do not stretch your hand out to a piece of bread to put it in your mouth. Confirm your claim by letting your trust in Him put that morsel in your mouth and chew it for you. Thus, your claim that you are relying on Him without pursuing the means is lethargy in your faith, not true dependence on Him the Almighty.’

Putting one's trust in Allah Glorified is He generally means that he has pursued all the possible means and takes refuge with Allah, the Omnipotent God. Relying on Him the Almighty faithfully means to render all your affairs to Him because you trust His Precise Measurement. If He provides you with the means of provision, you should not desist seeking them, claiming that you are putting your trust in Him the Almighty.

As a matter of fact, He the Almighty does not abandon the one who puts his trust in Him. Let us offer an example to further illustrate this point; Hajar the wife of Ibrahim (Abraham) peace be upon him was left in the area of Allah's Sacred Mosque with her baby, Ismail (Ishmael) in a place bereft of food and water.

When she asked him, ‘To whom are you leaving us? Has Allah commanded you to do so?’ He answered in the affirmative. Then she said, ‘Then He will not abandon us.’ By her dependence on the Creator, she had no need for the creation.

When her son became very thirsty, she looked for any passing caravan to get water from them. In her search for water, she went to the high places and left the valley; she climbed the top of the mountains of As-Safa and Al-Marwa, but she could not find anything. She kept going back and forth between these two mountains seven times. We can imagine how difficult her condition was. Further, she must have been thirsty like her baby.

When she became exhausted, she quit and returned to her baby. If her walking between the two mountains of As-Safa and Al-Marwa had been useful and she had seen a source of water, we would have said that her effort brought water to her. But she said previously, ‘He will not abandon us.’ Her statement has actually to do with the Creator of the means and not with the means themselves. Had Allah the Almighty given her the means directly in her pursuit for water, she would not have provided a tangible proof for the truthfulness of her statement that He the Almighty would not abandon them.

Thus, He the Almighty wanted her walking between the two mountains to prove useless. When she returned to her baby, she found the water beside his foot. In this way, she was truthful in her reliance on Him the Almighty and in her certainty that He would not abandon her. It is as if He the Almighty wanted to tell her that He would not abandon her, for the water would not be brought to her through her walking; rather, by the foot of her child with which he hit the ground and thereupon water gushed forth. The baby’s hitting of the ground with his foot is not normally an effective cause, but He the Almighty wanted to retain the causation even if the cause is inadequate to bring about the effect.

So, you should put your trust in Allah, the Ever-Lasting Who never ceases to exist; the Almighty Who is Invincible, and the Omnipotent Who cannot be overpowered.

As for His saying: ‘Allah will be enough for those who put their trust in Him’ (at-Talaq: 3), it means that He supports and provides for them sufficiently. Likewise, He the Almighty says: ‘O Prophet! Allah is sufficient for you and (for) such of the believers as follow you’ (al-Anfal: 64). This means that He the Almighty is enough for Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and also for the believers who followed him.

The verse could possibly mean that He Glorified is He is enough for him peace and blessings be upon him in what is beyond the human capacity, and that He the Almighty is sufficient to the believers with regard to such matters which are within the human capacity. He the Almighty says: ‘Certainly a Messenger has come to you from among yourselves; grievous to him is your falling into distress, excessively solicitous respecting you; to the believers (he is) compassionate, [128] But if they turn back, say: Allah is sufficient for me, there is no god but He; on Him do I rely, and He is the Lord of Mighty Power [129]’ (at-Tawba: 128-129).

If you carefully examine the matter, you will find that no one is enough for you except Allah the Almighty Who can bestow His Protection and support on you. Thus, it is better for you to rely on Him the Almighty and to obey Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him who completely conveyed the Message of Allah. As long as He Glorified is He is enough for you and there is no god but Him, you should remain under His Care. Thus, you will need no one else because He gives you all what you want and protects you from what is evil which you mistakenly may think is good. Further, if you put your trust in the Ever-Living Who never dies, He will protect you from His servants' sins and evils. This is due to the fact that He Alone knows the sins of His servants and about which they are thinking.

In this vein, 'Abdullah ibn Mas'ud(1) Allah be pleased with him says that the greatest verse concerning entrusting one's affairs to Allah the Almighty is His saying: 'Allah will be enough for those who put their trust in Him' (at-Talaq: 3). He the Almighty will relieve the concern of the one who entrusts his affairs to Him. That is why Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'Whoever likes to be the strongest among people should put his trust in Allah.'(2) Thus, Allah's saying: 'Allah will be enough for those who put their trust in Him' (at-Talaq: 3) entails that the person should entrust Allah the Almighty with all his affairs and accept His Predestination. Wahb ibn Munabih narrated that He the Almighty says: 'If My servant put his trust in Me, I will find a way out for him even if the heavens and the earth schemed against him.'(3)

It should be noted here that Allah's saying: 'Allah will be enough for those who put their trust in Him' (at-Talaq: 3) does not only apply to the marital issues, but also to all the affairs of the people. Therefore, whoever relies on Allah and entrusts his affairs to Him, He the Almighty will be enough for him, and He will manage his affairs for him. Relying on Him the Almighty in the religious and mundane matters implies depending on Him to bring about the benefits and ward off the harm.

As for His saying: ‘Allah achieves His Purpose…’ (at-Talaq: 3), it means that His Decree and Predestination will inevitably take place. His Purpose will be achieved regarding those who put their trust in Him and also those who do not, for He Glorified is He executes His Decrees regarding His creation according to His Unchallengeable Will. ‘Abdullah ibn Rafa‘ Allah be pleased with him said that when Allah’s saying: ‘Allah will be enough for those who put their trust in Him...’ (at-Talaq: 3) was revealed, the Companions of Prophet Muhammad said that if they put their trust in Allah, they would not care about preserving their possessions. Thereupon, His saying: ‘Allah achieves His Purpose…’ (at-Talaq: 3) was revealed.

Allah's Decree will inevitably come to pass, whether the person relies on Him the Almighty or not. If you put your trust in Him, He grants you comfort and blessings. Otherwise, He will leave you to your incapability and indignation. In either case, His Purpose will certainly be achieved.

The believers should not consider what Allah the Almighty has promised to be unlikely to happen due to the absence of the means of achieving it, for if He has made a Promise about something He wanted, He provides the means of achieving it. After all, He is the Master and the Controller of this universe; everything is subjected to His Power and complies with His Will. Thus, what He the Almighty wants will inevitably happen; nothing can stop or change it.

Then, He the Almighty concludes the verse in question with His saying: ‘Allah has set a due measure for everything’ (at-Talaq: 3). This means that He has set a specified time and end for everything. In this context, He the Almighty has set a specific time and due measure for divorce, the waiting period and other relevant issues. That is why He the Almighty says: ‘Allah will find a way out for those who are mindful of Him, [2] and will provide for them from an unexpected source; Allah will be enough for those who put their trust in Him. Allah achieves His Purpose; Allah has set a due measure for everything [3]’ (at-Talaq: 2-3). Thus, the true believer should not be anxious about anything in this worldly life as long as he is under Allah’s care, for He has the way out of your situation. Further, He is the Provider in Whom you should put your trust and be certain that His Decree and Predestination will take place. He the Almighty achieves His Purpose and has set a due measure for everything. When He decrees something, no one can stop it.

He the Almighty subsequently says:

وَأُوْلَٰتُ ٱلۡأَحۡمَالِ أَجَلُهُنَّ أَن يَضَعۡنَ حَمۡلَهُنَّۚ وَمَن يَتَّقِ ٱللَّهَ يَجۡعَل لَّهُۥ مِنۡ أَمۡرِهِۦ يُسۡرٗا ٤

If you are in doubt, the period of waiting will be three months for those women who have ceased menstruating and for those who have not [yet] menstruated; the waiting period of those who are pregnant will be until they deliver their burden: God makes things easy for those who are mindful of Him [4] (The Quran, at-Talaq: 4)

Menstruation is a necessary chemical process for women and for having children. In this verse, Allah the Almighty does not talk about menstruation, but rather about the waiting period of the woman who was divorced during the time of her purity. He the Almighty has specified the waiting period of the revocably divorced woman, stating that it is three times of purity, that is, she menstruates and becomes pure three times.

However, what about the divorced woman who reached menopause? How can she fulfil Allah’s Command to calculate her waiting period? If the woman ceases menstruating, her waiting period is not calculated by menstrual periods or periods of purity; rather, it has a fixed period, namely; three months. Normally, women reach menopause at the age of fifty-five or sixty. Their waiting period in such a case is three months instead of three menstrual periods.

In the chapter of al-Baqara, Allah the Almighty says: ‘Divorced women must wait for three monthly periods’ (al-Baqara: 228). Thus, menstruation is the basis for determining the time of the waiting period, but after the cessation of menstruation, months are used to determine it. Hence, the waiting period of a woman who has reached menopause is three months. The age of ceasing menstruation, like the age of its beginning, differs according to the woman and the country she lives in.

The Arabic word mahid (menstruation) is an infinitive which refers to the menstrual blood or to the menstrual period during which Allah the Almighty has commanded the husband to keep away from women, saying: ‘…so keep away from women during it…’ (al-Baqara: 222).

The ‘menstruating woman’ refers to the one who menstruates even if she is not during her monthly period. This meaning is clear in the Hadith in which Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, ‘Allah does not accept the prayer of a woman who has reached puberty unless she wears a veil.’(1) Here, he is not referring to days of the menstrual period because the menstruating woman is not commanded to pray. The Hadith, therefore, refers to the woman who menstruates. When she ceases menstruating, the woman is no longer called a menstruating woman. She becomes from the elderly women who have ceased menstruating, but she must keep praying while wearing a veil, even if she reached menopause.

Then, Allah the Almighty says: ‘If you are in doubt…’ (at-Talaq: 4). Therefore, if you have a doubt and you are not certain about the state of the woman, whether she is a menstruating one or still young, or whether she ceased her monthly period or not, then the waiting period of the women who ceased menstruating or those who have not started menstruating yet is three months.

If a young woman stopped menstruating, we have to check whether or not she is pregnant. If her pregnancy is confirmed, her waiting period lasts until she delivers her baby. If her pregnancy is not confirmed, she should wait for one year’s period of time maximally. Thus, His saying: ‘If you are doubtful…’ (at-Talaq: 4) refers to the state of being doubtful and ignorant about the divorcee’s waiting period.

Among the women about whom we may be doubtful are those who have not menstruated yet. They are the young women who were divorced after the consummation of marriage. Their waiting period is three months because they have not menstruated yet and their husband had already had sexual intercourse with them.

Thus, the young women who have not menstruated yet are treated like those who ceased menstruating because they are linked in the verse in question with the conjunction ‘and’, so they share the same ruling, namely; that their waiting period is three months. The waiting period of women in both these circumstances is not calculated according to the menstrual periods, as they either have not menstruated yet, or have reached menopause.

(1) This Hadith is narrated on the authority of ‘Aisha Allah be pleased with her. See Abu Dawud, Sunnan, Hadith no. 641; see also Ibn Maja, Sunnan, Hadith no. 655; Ahmad, Musnad, Hadith no. 25208, 25875 and 26269; Ibn Hibban, Sahih, Hadith no. 1711; and Al-Bayhaqi, As-Sunnan Al-Kubra, Hadith no. 3379

Marriage to the young woman who has not attained puberty is permissible according to this verse. Furthermore, Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him got married to 'Aisha Allah be pleased with her when she was six years old.(1) As Islam is embraced by different societies, jurists allowed the marriage to young women stipulating that no harm inflicts her and that she can endure the consummation of marriage.

Allah says: '…the waiting period of those who are pregnant will be until they deliver their burden' (at-Talaq: 4). Thus, the waiting period of the pregnant woman ends when she delivers her baby. The woman should not conceal her pregnancy as He the Almighty says: 'Divorced women must wait for three monthly periods before remarrying, and, if they really believe in Allah and the Last Day, it is not lawful for them to conceal what Allah has created in their wombs' (al-Baqara: 228). This verse is proof that the woman is entitled to bear witness regarding her private matters that no one knows except her. She has to confirm whether she is pregnant or not, and she should not conceal that because she may be pregnant and conceal this matter to avoid waiting for the long period of pregnancy that hinders her marriage to someone else. If this happened, the baby would be attributed to someone other than his real father. The period of pregnancy normally remains for nine months. Concealing pregnancy may lead to many problems including that the child will not inherit from his real father and that the women who are presumptively unmarriageable to him are not really unlawful. For example, the daughter of the one who is not his real father is not really his sister and thus he is allowed to marry her. This also applies to the unreal paternal and maternal aunts. Thus, the scale will be upside down.

As for the unreal father, the baby gains illegal rights by inheriting from someone who is not his/her biological father. Further, the marriageable women who are the relatives of that unreal father would be unmarriageable to him. He would unrightfully enter and see from them what is forbidden. Besides, other illegal matters will happen.

(1) In this regard, Al-Bayhaqi narrated a Hadith that reads: 'After the death of Khadija, the Messenger of Allah got married to 'Aisha in Mecca when she was six years old. He consummated the marriage in Medina when she was nine years old.' See Al-Bayhaqi, As-Sunnan Al-Kubra, Hadith no. 13805; see also Dala'il An-Nubuwwa, 7/384

Accordingly, the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘It is not lawful for them to conceal what Allah has created in their wombs’ (al-Baqara: 228) indicates that life should be based on purity, honour, decency and safeguarding the rights of each other.

So, the waiting period of the pregnant women ends with the delivery of the baby. In this regard, it is narrated that during the lifetime of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him a woman called Subay‘a Bint Al-Harith Al-Aslamiyya(1) delivered her baby fifteen days after the death of her husband and he peace and blessings be upon him allowed her to marry again immediately. Furthermore, ‘Umar ibn Al-Khattab said, ‘If a widow gives birth to a child, she can marry again even if the late husband has not been buried yet.’

Thus, the waiting period of a pregnant woman, whether a divorcee or a widow, ends with the delivery of the baby, even in the case of a miscarried foetus. Menstruation has nothing to do with this case.

However, it is not permissible for the divorcee to lie about her true state in terms of her menstruation or pregnancy by claiming, when she is pregnant, that her waiting period is over in order to marry another one soon with the intention of attributing her baby to him. Likewise, it is unlawful for her to claim that she is still in her waiting period in order to inherit from her deceased husband, given the fact that the divorcee is not entitled to inherit from him after the end of her waiting period.

Here arises a question, which is, ‘How can the waiting period of a pregnant widow be calculated? Should she wait for four months and ten days, which is the waiting period specified for a widow, or should she wait until the delivery of her child?'

(1) Subay‘a Bint Al-Harith Al-Aslamiyya was the wife of Sa‘d ibn Khawla. He died in the Farewell Pilgrimage while she was pregnant. She gave birth to her baby twenty days after his death. She was one of the female Companions of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and narrated Hadiths from him. Her Hadiths were narrated by ‘Abdullah ibn ‘Umar, Zhufar ibn Aws and Masruq. She was one of the Companions regarding whom the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘O you who believe! When believing women come to you flying, then examine them…’ (al-Mumtahana: 10) was revealed.

The answer is that Allah Glorified is He specified the waiting period of a widow, saying: 'And (as for) those of you who die and leave wives behind, they should keep themselves in waiting for four months and ten days; then when they have fully attained their term, there is no blame on you for what they do for themselves in a lawful manner; and Allah is Aware of what you do' (al-Baqara: 234). However, this ruling only applies to a widow who is not pregnant. In the case of pregnancy, her waiting period shall be the longer of the two periods. If the period of four months and ten days is the longest, then it will be her prescribed waiting period. Conversely, if the period prior to her delivery is longer than four months and ten days, then her waiting period lasts until the delivery of her baby. So, if the wife of a deceased husband gives birth to a baby before his burial, for example, her waiting period is four months and ten days. However, some jurists opine that her waiting period in this case ends upon the delivery of her baby. If she is not a widow, that is, a divorcee, then her waiting period ends when she gives birth to her baby and afterwards she is legally permitted to marry again immediately.

Some people try to rationalise the ruling of the widow's waiting period, saying that if the foetus is a male, her pregnancy can be confirmed after three months; and if it is a female, her pregnancy can be confirmed after four months. That is to say that the waiting period in the case of the widow is intended to ascertain whether or not she is pregnant. I say to them, 'May Allah reward you for your interpretation, but the widow's waiting period is not prescribed to ascertain whether or not she is pregnant, for if this were the case, her waiting period would be over after three menstrual periods, if she is a menstruating woman, or after three months if her menstruation ceased or she has not menstruated yet. However, Allah the Almighty specified the waiting period of the widow as four months and ten days as a token of gratitude and honour for her late husband and their marital life.'

When a pregnant widow waits for the longer of the two terms, then she applies the two verses regarding the waiting period of the widow and the pregnant woman. However, if she only waits until she delivers her baby, when its date comes in less than four months and ten days, then she does not apply one of the two verses. In fact, it is agreed upon by the scholars of the principles of jurisprudence that applying the two verses is more preponderant.

Accordingly, when a husband dies, while his wife is still pregnant in her first month, then her waiting period is not four months and ten days; rather, she must wait until she gives birth to her baby. It is wrong to say that she waits for the shorter of the two periods as this entails that, if she is in her first month of pregnancy, her waiting period ends after four months and ten days, that is, she can marry, while she is still in the sixth month of her pregnancy. This is not lawful according to the scholars' consensus. In fact, it is one of the major sins. In this vein, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'A pregnant woman shall not get married unless she gives birth to her baby.'(1) He also said, 'It is not lawful for a man who believes in Allah and the Last Day to marry a pregnant woman (until she delivers her baby).'

Afterwards Allah Glorified is He says: 'Allah makes things easy for those who are mindful of Him' (at-Talaq: 4). This is the third time in this chapter where He Glorified is He reminds the people about piety or being mindful of Him in the space of only four verses. He the Almighty says: 'Prophet, when any of you intend to divorce women, do so at a time when their prescribed waiting period can properly start and calculate the period carefully: be mindful of Allah, your Lord…' (at-Talaq: 1); 'Allah will find a way out for those who are mindful of Him…' (at-Talaq: 2); and: 'Allah makes things easy for those who are mindful of Him' (at-Talaq: 4). So, piety is mentioned in the first, the second and the fourth verse. This indicates the greatness of being mindful of Allah the Almighty adhering to His limits and fearing His punishment.

In the context of divorce, He the Almighty underlines the importance of piety which entails avoiding sins, obeying His commands and abiding by His Rulings concerning the issues of divorce. If the husband is pious, He the Almighty guides him to obedience, facilitates the matter for him, and finds a way out for him. Moreover, He the Almighty makes it easier for him to take his revocable divorcee back as long as she is still in her waiting period, and even if her waiting period is over, he can propose to her and remarry her.

(1) Abu Sa'id Al Khudri Allah be pleased with him narrated that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said the following statement regarding the captives taken at Awtas, 'There must be no intercourse with a pregnant woman till she gives birth to her child or with the one who is not pregnant till she has had one menstrual period.'

Allah Glorified is He commands the husbands and wives to apply these rulings and to endure the hardships they may entail for His sake because this helps the pious people and relieves them from such hardships.

As for Allah's saying: '…makes things easy…' (at-Talaq: 4), it means that He the Almighty makes the matters that seem difficult for someone very easy by delivering him out of his current difficult situation. This Promise is intended to encourage the husbands to obey His Commands with regard to spending on revocable divorcees during their waiting periods, taking them back, and leaving the marital house for her if it is not spacious enough for both of them. It is also intended to encourage revocable divorcees to wait for a specified waiting period and to stay in their marital houses. Thus, whoever fears Allah the Almighty is mindful of Him with regard to his actions and deeds and abstains from all that He prohibits, He makes all his affairs much easier and grants him success.

He the Almighty intends for us ease and does not intend for us hardship, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: 'Allah desires ease for you, and He does not desire for you difficulty…' (al-Baqara: 185). What puts us in hardship and difficulty is our negligence in following His Way of Guidance and our failure to be mindful of Him.

In fact, a hardship that you may think unbearable is indeed accompanied with ease. In this regard, He the Almighty says: 'He has not laid upon you any hardship in religion' (al-Hajj: 78). Instead, He Glorified is He wants to make all your affairs easy for you and, therefore, He legislates concessions for you in order to relieve you of harm and hardship.

It is noteworthy that Allah Glorified is He asserts that He decrees this for the interest and benefit of people, saying: 'Allah makes things easy for those who are mindful of Him' (at-Talaq: 4). He the Almighty has no interest nor does He benefit from all of this. Instead, it is all about the interest and safety of people. Among the benefits the pious person acquires are that his affairs are made easy; he is guided to goodness and is also led to the means of welfare in this worldly life and in the Hereafter alike. Thus, Allah the Almighty makes things easier for the pious person, protects him from hardships and difficulties, makes for him a way out of distress and provides him with an unexpected provision. That is why He the Almighty says: ‘O you who believe! If you are careful of (your duty to) Allah, He will grant you a distinction and do away with your evils and forgive you…’ (al-Anfal: 29); He also says: ‘O you who believe! Be careful of (your duty to) Allah and believe in His Apostle: He will give you two portions of His mercy, and make for you a light with which you will walk, and forgive you…’ (al-Hadid: 28). Thus, by virtue of piety, one’s mind develops an enlightened insight which lightens one’s dark way and with which one can distinguish between the truth and falsehood and between what is beneficial and what is harmful. In the first verse, Allah the Almighty promises the pious people that He will grant them Furqan(1) (that is, a criterion that distinguishes between right and wrong).

Further, piety helps one feel secure when people are fearful, be at ease when they are saddened and become optimistic when they feel despair, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: ‘Now surely the friends of Allah – they shall have no fear, nor shall they grieve. [62] Those who believe and guarded (against evil): [63] They shall have good news in this world’s life and in the Hereafter; there is no changing the words of Allah; that is the mighty achievement [64]’ (Yunus: 62-64). It also helps in strengthening one’s devotion to Allah the Almighty and helps the person to guarantee success and welfare in the worldly life and in the Hereafter.

In addition, piety makes one feel assured that one’s offspring, especially the vulnerable among them, will be secured and protected after one’s death, a point which is clearly manifested in His saying: ‘And let those fear who, should they leave behind them weakly offspring, would fear on their account, so let them be careful of (their duty to) Allah, and let them speak right words' (an-Nisa': 9).

(1) In his Tafsir, Ibn Al-Jawzi relates that Ibn ‘Abbas stated that Furqan means a way out and accordingly the verse means that Allah makes for you a way out from deviation. Qatada and As-Suddi said that it means salvation. Al-Farra’ said that it means victory. Ibn Zayd and Ibn Ishaq said that it means guidance in their heart with which they distinguish between the truth and untruth. See Ibn Al-Jawzi, Zad Al-Masir.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says:

ذَٰلِكَ أَمۡرُ ٱللَّهِ أَنزَلَهُۥٓ إِلَيۡكُمۡۚ وَمَن يَتَّقِ ٱللَّهَ يُكَفِّرۡ عَنۡهُ سَيِّـَٔاتِهِۦ وَيُعۡظِمۡ لَهُۥٓ أَجۡرًا (٥)

This is God's command, which He has sent down to you.
God will wipe out the sinful deeds and increase the rewards of anyone who is mindful of Him [5] (The Quran, at-Talaq: 5)

Here, the demonstrative pronoun 'this' refers to all the legal rulings which have been explained in the preceding verses, such as the rulings of divorce, taking one's revocable divorcee back in marriage, the waiting period, the prohibition of driving the revocable divorcees out of their marital houses as well as the rulings of the waiting periods of the women who go through menopause and those who have not yet menstruated.

It is noteworthy here that Allah Glorified is He uses the demonstrative pronoun 'this' to underline the great interest shown by the Legislator regarding these rulings. In addition, this demonstrative pronoun is stated in the singular form although the address here is directed to all the Muslims, as it is only intended to underline the great significance and importance of this issue, and not to specify the addressees. However, this demonstrative pronoun is mentioned in its plural form in many other Quranic verses as in His saying: '…so kill yourselves, that is best for you with your Creator: so He turned to you (mercifully), for surely He is the Oft-returning (to mercy), the Merciful' (al-Baqara: 54); 'O you who believe! Do not enter houses other than your own houses until you have asked permission and saluted their inmates; this is better for you, that you may be mindful' (an-Nur: 27); and: 'O you who believe! When the call is made for prayer on Friday, then hasten to the remembrance of Allah and leave off trading; that is better for you, if you know' (al-Jumu'a: 9).

Allah's saying: 'This is Allah's Command…' (at-Talaq: 5) is mentioned in many places in the Quran to signify different meanings, including Allah's Decree, a meaning which is clear in the following verse: 'O you who have been given the Book! Believe that which We have revealed, verifying what you have, before We alter faces then turn them on their backs, or curse them as We cursed the violators of the Sabbath, and the command of Allah shall be executed' (an-Nisa': 47). This verse relates the story of the children of Israel.

As a matter of fact, nothing in this universe can violate Allah's Decrees as He Glorified is He is the Omnipotent and the Only One entitled to all the Attributes of Perfection. Therefore, when He the Almighty promises us something, then His Promise will be fulfilled. This certainly differs from the human beings' promises which sometimes may be broken.

You, as a human being, may promise another person something good, but when the time is due to fulfil your promise, you may become unable to fulfil it. Likewise, you may threaten somebody that you will harm him in a certain way, but you may become ill and unable to carry out your threat. This is because your ability to do so is prone to change, and therefore it may exist or not exist.

On the contrary, when Allah the Almighty makes a promise or issues a threat, no one can change that. So, His Promise to reward someone will inevitably be fulfilled. As for His threatening, He may, out of His Generosity and Bounty, lift it except in the case of associating others with Him in worship.

'Allah's Command' may also refer to what will happen before and on the Day of Judgement as indicated in His saying: 'Allah's Commandment has come, therefore do not desire to hasten it…' (an-Nahl: 1). Besides, it refers to Allah's Decree that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and the believers will undoubtedly be victorious and that the disbelievers will certainly be defeated if they insist on their disbelief.

When the Quranic verse: 'Allah's Commandment has come…' (an-Nahl: 1) was revealed, all the people became frightened as they knew that Allah's Command shall come true. In the same verse, He the Almighty says: '…therefore do not desire to hasten it…' (an-Nahl: 1). Here, He the Almighty orders them not to ask Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him to bring it on sooner as its time is only known to Him the Almighty. The verb 'to come' is used in the past tense to express the inevitability and the nearness of its occurrence in the future. This indicates that time is absolute for Allah the Almighty; what is considered future for us is something real for Him Glorified is He as no one can prevent something decreed by Him regarding the future. Accordingly, the disbelievers will be tormented and no one will be able to alleviate their pains.

Furthermore, Allah's Commands may also refer to something good decreed for a human being as was the case with the wife of Prophet Ibrahim (Abraham) peace be upon him. In this connection, He the Almighty says: 'And his wife was standing (by), so she laughed, then We gave her the good news of Ishaq (Isaac) and after Ishaq (Isaac) of (a son's son) Ya'qub (Jacob). [71] She said: O wonder! Shall I bear a son when I am an extremely old woman and this my husband an extremely old man? Most surely this is a wonderful thing. [72] They said: Do you wonder at Allah's Command? The Mercy of Allah and His blessings are on you, O people of the house, surely He is Praised, Glorious. [73]' (Hud: 71-73) Here, Allah's Command signifies good news for Prophet Ibrahim's (Abraham) wife, who was an old, infertile woman married to an aged man. He the Almighty reminds her that He is the Creator of causes and He Alone can give without causes.

Having elaborated on the different meanings of the expression 'Allah's Command' throughout the Quran, what is its meaning in His saying: 'This is Allah's Command, which He has sent down to you' (at-Talaq: 5)? It refers here to the rulings and legislations ordained by Allah Glorified is He to judge among people. It is He the Almighty alone Who judges between them, and, therefore, the Command here is attributed to Him.

He the Almighty legislated these rulings for the believers to be followed and applied without circumvention. Thus, they must not be like the children of Israel who used to circumvent His Commands in order to evade their application to their lives. In this vein, He the Almighty says: 'And ask them about the town which stood by the sea; when they exceeded the limits of the Sabbath, when their fish came to them on the day of their Sabbath, appearing on the surface of the water, and on the day on which they did not keep the Sabbath they did not come to them; thus did We try them because they transgressed' (al-A'raf: 163). This is the story of the inhabitants of a city(1) nearby the sea. They were Jews for whom working on the *Sabba*th was forbidden. Allah the Almighty put them into a difficult test by prohibiting them from what was lawful for others. This was due to their extravagance and rebellion against His Rulings. Forbidding them from fishing the huge fish they used to see on the Sabbath was a test and a punishment for them, for on the other days of the week, they could not see even one fish.

(1) In his Tafsir, Ibn Al-Jawzi mentions five different opinions regarding the specification of this city as follows: =

They said, ‘As Allah prohibited us from fishing on the Sabbath, then we should contrive to detain fish for the other days by putting fishnets which fish get into and cannot get out. Therefore, we can take it out of the sea on the next day.’

They used also to build basins with an inlet and without an outlet. Thus, Allah the Almighty put them to this difficult test because they transgressed His Command, disobeyed Him and made lawful what was prohibited for them. Consequently, He the Almighty prohibited them from what was lawful for others. However, they circumvented His commands by making fishnets to hold fish.

In fact, nothing can be hidden from Allah the Almighty; He knows the inner secrets of the people as well as their intentions. The similitude of the above-mentioned story is the circumvention of Allah’s and Prophet Muhammad’s command that, during congregational prayer, men shall stand in the front rows, followed by children and then women. Pious men are keen on standing in the front rows in order to avoid seeing women. By contrast, some other men may manage to stand in the rear rows in order to keep looking at women, as far as possible. All such misdeeds are not hidden from Him as He is fully Aware of all the secrets and what is even more hidden than the secrets.

= - Ibn Mas‘ud, Ibn ‘Abbas, Sa‘id ibn Jubayr say that it is Ayla, currently known as Eilat;
- Ibn ‘Abbas says also that it is Midyan;
- Qatada says that it is the Coast of Midyan;
- Az-Zuhri says that it is Tiberias; and
- Abu Zayd says that it is a village called Miqna located between Midyan and Ainouna. See Ibn Al-Jawzi, Zad Al-Masir.

As many people may try to circumvent the rulings of marriage, divorce, the waiting period and taking a revocable divorcee back in marriage, Allah Glorified is He asserts in this verse that all these rulings are from Him, saying: 'This is Allah's Command…' (at-Talaq: 5). Accordingly, it is not allowable for anyone to circumvent or refrain from applying them. In fact, obeying His Commands with regard to the relationships between men and women helps people avoid many difficult problems which bring about hatred.

Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'O Allah, I declare inviolable the rights of two weak ones: the orphans and women.'(1) In this Hadith, he states that no one is allowed to infringe the rights of these two vulnerable kinds of people. As a matter of fact, the woman becomes more vulnerable when she is a widow or divorcee. In both cases, she loses her husband's support. Therefore, the people should fear Allah the Almighty and refrain from harming her by infringing her rights. How can we stand before Him the Almighty, while we have harmed the women! I sternly warn against this wrongdoing. He the Almighty does not command the people to wrong others. Instead, He prescribes justice and good conduct. His Rulings and Legislations with regard to the marital relationship are not confined to marriage, but rather, they address the issues of divorce, the waiting period and how it is calculated. These are His commands that should not be transgressed.

Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'The most despicable amongst persons in the eye of Allah is one who tries to fall into dispute with others (for nothing but only to display his knowledge and power of argumentation).'(2) This is because the one who confronts you with his enmity incites you to be cautious, whilst the one who shows you something other than what he really conceals is a hypocrite who wants to cheat you. His enmity for you is fierce because the outspoken opponent hides nothing from you, but when you have an enemy who shows you love while concealing enmity, this will be hard for you because he wants to cheat and trick you.

(1) This Hadith is narrated on the authority of Abu Hurayra Allah be pleased with him. Al-Hakim said, 'It is authentic according to the conditions of Muslim.' See Ibn Maja, Sunnan, Hadith no. 3678; see also Ahmad, Musnad, Hadith no. 9664; An-Nasa'i, As-Sunnan Al-Kubra, Hadith no. 9104 and 9105; Al-Hakim, Al-Mustadrak, Hadith no. 2011; and Al-Bazzar, Musnad, Hadith no. 8483 and 8488

(2) See Al-Bukhari, Sahih, Hadith no. 2457 and 7188; Muslim, Sahih, Hadith no. 6951; At-Tirmidhi, Sunnan, Hadith no. 2976; and An-Nasa'i, Sunnan, Hadith no. 5423

Afterwards, Allah the Almighty says: '…Allah's Command which He has sent down to you...' (at-Talaq: 5). Although the command is revealed to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him He the Almighty asserts that He sent it down to the Muslims. This proves that He the Almighty addresses these legislations to all the Muslims as if they are revealed to each member of the ummah.

The Command here comes from Allah, the Creator and the Lord. The Arabic word Rabb (Lord) signifies the one who takes care of someone until he reaches a certain level of perfection so that he becomes able to fulfil his role in this worldly life. This can be clarified by the example of a father who educates and takes care of his son in order to qualify him for achieving a certain goal in his life. As Allah Glorified is He is my Lord, then He only orders me to do what serves me personally and the ummah in general. As a matter of fact, our obedience to Him the Almighty does not benefit Him, nor does our disobedience harm Him, as He is the Most Perfect and the Creator of the whole universe.

In fact, our natural disposition requires that we should fully surrender to and obey Allah's Commands. Investigating this chapter from the beginning, we find that Allah the Almighty mentions the term 'His Command' in the first, the third, the fourth and the fifth verse. This signifies that His Legislations concerning the waiting period and taking the revocable divorcee back are intended to facilitate the matter for the people, and to ward off any difficulty. This is why He Glorified is He says: 'Allah makes things easy for those who are mindful of Him' (at-Talaq: 4). This chapter also mentions Allah's Command afterwards in His saying: 'Many a town that insolently opposed the command of its Lord and His messengers We have brought sternly to account: We punished them severely' (at-Talaq: 8).

As He Glorified is He gives a warning to those who rebel against His Legislation and Command, it is suitable here that He Glorified is He for the fourth time, reminds the people to be pious and to fear Him, saying: 'Allah will wipe out the sinful deeds and increase the rewards of anyone who is mindful of Him' (at-Talaq: 5). For the third time, He the Almighty reminds us about the reward of having piety; firstly, He says: ‘Allah will find a way out for those who are mindful of Him, [2] and will provide for them from an unexpected source…[3]’ (at-Talaq: 2-3); secondly, He says: ‘Allah makes things easy for those who are mindful of Him’ (at-Talaq: 4). He the Almighty promises the pious one that He will provide for him from where he does not expect and will make easy for him his affairs. This goodness is the worldly reward for the pious people.

As for Allah’s Reward for them in the Hereafter, He Glorified is He says: ‘Allah will wipe out the sinful deeds and increase the rewards of anyone who is mindful of Him’ (at-Talaq: 5). Thus, He the Almighty promises the pious people a great reward and also that he will remove their sins.

However, removing or wiping out the sinful deeds is conditional on one’s avoidance of the major sins like adultery and murder, a fact which is crystal clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘If you shun the great sins which you are forbidden, We will do away with your small sins and cause you to enter an honourable place of entering’ (an-Nisa’: 31).

Avoidance of the major sins does not mean that one abstains from doing them, but rather that he should not draw nearer to the means which may lead him to commit these grave sins. Removing or wiping out the sinful deeds here means that even if one commits a punishable sin, Allah the Almighty protects him and shields him against His Punishment as long as he avoids the major sins. Accordingly, there are three types of sins: major sins, minor sins and slight sins. (1)

Allah the Almighty states here that He wipes out the minor sins, not the major ones, because wiping out our sins is conditional on our avoidance of major sins. He Glorified is He will not only wipe out the punishment, but He will also give them huge rewards, as He the Almighty says: '…and cause you to enter an honourable place of entering' (an-Nisa': 31); and He also says: 'For those who do good is good (reward) and more (than this)…' (Yunus: 26).

(1) Linguistically, Al-lamam (slight sins) means approaching something. There are six opinions concerning its meaning:
- The sins and misdeeds committed by the early Muslims in the pre-Islamic period are forgiven after Islam;
- That one commits a sin and repents and never returns to it again;
- Refers to the minor sins such as gazing at women and having kisses;
- When one becomes on the verge of committing a sin and abstains from it;
- The passing thoughts;
- Unintentional gazing at women.

See Ibn Al-Jawzi, Zad Al-Masir.

It would have been sufficient if He the Almighty only removes their sins and protects them from His punishment. However, when the Muslim abstains from the major sins, He the Almighty admits him to a noble entrance which suits His Power and Benevolence. So, how can one imagine Allah's Promise in this regard?

Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him states that Allah Glorified is He said, 'I have prepared for My pious slaves things which have never been seen by an eye, or heard by an ear, or imagined by a human being.' He peace and blessings be upon him said, 'If you wish, you can recite this verse from the Holy Quran: "No soul knows what is kept hidden for them, of joy as a reward for what they used to do" (as-Sajda: 17).'(1)

In this vein, we should take into account that Allah Glorified is He prescribed other rulings for wiping out people's sins in order to purify them of their sins and to make matters easy for them on the Day of Judgement. These rulings include the illness and the death of the relatives. Therefore, when any one experiences any of these afflictions, one should think that He the Almighty wants the best for him. Such afflictions may be a reminder from Him or a way with which He the Almighty grants him huge rewards.

There are also many means for removing sins. Abu Hurayra Allah be pleased with him narrates that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'The five (daily) prayers and the Friday Prayer to the Friday Prayer expiate whatever (minor sins) may be committed in between, so long as major sins are avoided.'(2) Thus, Allah opens many doors to Forgiveness and Mercy such as fasting on the day of 'Arafa (the ninth day of the month of Dhul-Hijja). In this regard, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'Fasting the day of 'Arafa wipes away the sins.'(1) Allah Glorified is He also says: 'And keep up prayer in the two parts of the day and in the first hours of the night; surely good deeds take away evil deeds this is a reminder to the mindful' (Hud: 114).

(2) This Hadith is narrated on the authority of Abu Hurayra Allah be pleased with him. See Muslim, Sahih, Hadith no. 572; At-Tirmidhi, Sunnan, Hadith no. 214; Ibn Maja, Sunnan, Hadith no. 1086, Ahmad, Musnad, Hadith no. 10290; and Ibn Khuzayma, Sahih, Hadith no. 413.

The first and foremost good deed is believing in Allah and testifying that there is no god worthy of worship except Him as this testimony negates disbelief. Wiping out sins is done through removing it from one's record of sins or by being pardoned by Allah the Almighty or by diverting one away from doing the sin. All what one does is preserved and written down by the angels assigned by Him Glorified is He a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: 'He utters not a word but there is by him a watcher at hand (Qaf: 18); and His saying: 'And most surely there are keepers over you [10] Honourable recorders [11]' (al-Infitar: 10-11).

This is how a misdeed could be forgiven and removed; either by erasing it from the record of deeds or by keeping it while waiving its punishment through Forgiveness. In fact, piety encompasses the good deeds which do away with evil ones, and that is why Allah the Almighty says: 'Allah will wipe out the sinful deeds and increase the rewards of anyone who is mindful of Him' (at-Talaq: 5). In addition, piety to Allah as regards your wife, children and household as well as treating them in a way that pleases Him, and sparing them difficulties and privation lead to the forgiveness and removal of your bad deeds.

The command to observe piety is addressed to the divorcing husband and the divorcee; the spouses should fear Allah the Almighty regarding the rulings of taking the revocable divorcee back in marriage and counting the days of the waiting period. Further, the wife should not lie about her menstrual period or pregnancy to take advantage of inheritance, for example. They are all addressed by His saying: 'Allah will wipe out the sinful deeds and increase the rewards of anyone who is mindful of Him' (at-Talaq: 5), to be encouraged to observe piety in order to receive a big reward in return.

(1) Another Hadith was related by Al-Bayhaqi on the authority of Al-Fadl Ibn 'Abbas that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said 'Whosoever preserves his tongue, his hearing and his sight on the day of 'Arafa, Allah forgives his sins from that day of 'Arafa to the next year's 'Arafa day.' See Al-Bayhaqi, Shu'ab Al-Iman, Hadith no. 3490.

Thus, after the removal of the evil deeds and punishment, there comes the big reward, as Allah the Almighty says: 'For those who do good is good (reward) and more (than this)…' (Yunus: 26). The reward is made greater by multiplying one's good deeds ten to seven hundred times over, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: 'Whoever brings a good deed, he shall have ten like it, and whoever brings an evil deed, he shall be recompensed only with the like of it, and they shall not be dealt with unjustly' (al-An'am: 160). This represents the absolute Mercy and Bounty of Allah the Almighty; hence the Hadith states: 'Indeed, your Lord is the Most Merciful; if someone intends to do a good deed, but does not do it, the reward of one good deed is recorded for him, and if someone intends to do a good deed and also does it, ten to seven hundred good deeds are recorded for him. If someone intends to do a misdeed, but does not commit it, one good deed is recorded for him, but if he committed that, it is recorded or removed. Allah does not put to destruction anyone except he who is doomed to destruction.'(1)

But why is it that Allah the Almighty gives us rewards in return for doing good and observing piety? Is it not better to do good deeds and have piety without seeking any reward? By giving us rewards, He Glorified is He stimulates us to do good deeds, and such deeds will be a source of benefit to others. In pursuit of a greater reward, the one doing the good deed will be careful to have a sincere intention. In fact, most of the people like to get rewards for their deeds, and the greater the reward is, the harder they work. Such is the human nature.

Only few people do the good for the good itself out of love, and that because Allah the Almighty is worthy of love and obedience. Thus, he who obeys Him Glorified is He desiring to enjoy the delights of paradise will be admitted to it, and he who obeys Him because He is worthy of obedience will be granted the delight of looking upon His Glorious Countenance. To the same meaning, Rabi‘a Al-‘Adawiyya (1) puts it lyrically: ‘All of them worship Allah for fear of hell, and see that salvation is a great reward. I am not one of them; I seek nothing at the expense of my love for Allah.’ She also said, ‘O Allah! If I worship You for fear of hell, burn me in hell and if I worship You in hope of paradise, exclude me from paradise. I only worship You because You are worthy of worship.’

(1) This Hadith is narrated on the authority of 'Abdullah ibn 'Abbas Allah be pleased with him. See Ahmad, Musnad, Hadith no. 2519; An-Nasa'i, As-Sunnan Al-Kubra, Hadith no. 7623 and 11801; Abu 'Uwana, Mustakhraj, Hadith no. 187; At-Tabarani, Al-Mu'jam Al-Kabir; and Ibn Manda, Tawhid, Hadith no. 190.

Hence, it is but your love, obedience, and piety to Allah the Almighty which elevate you in the ranks of faith, not your love for rewards and recompense. Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said: ‘Whoever possesses the following three qualities will have the sweetness (delight) of faith (1): The one to whom Allah and His Messenger become dearer than anything else; (2) Who loves a person and he loves him only for Allah’s sake; (3) Who hates to revert to disbelief as he hates to be thrown into the Fire.’(2) Further, in a Qudsi Hadith, Allah Glorified is He said: ‘Even if I did not create Paradise and Hell, would I not be worthy of worship?’

Allah Glorified is He is Greater than anything is and meeting with Him is the greatest of all the rewards, as He the Almighty says: ‘…therefore whoever hopes to meet his Lord, he should do good deeds, and not join anyone in the service of his Lord’ (al-Kahf: 110). Here, He does not say: ‘Whoever hopes to get the Reward of His Lord, or the Delight of His Lord or to be admitted to Paradise,’ for the true believer does not aim at delight but hopes to meet His Lord, the rovider of Blessings.

The reward could also be multiplied by changing evil deeds into good ones, a fact which is clear in His saying: ‘Except him who repents and believes and does a good deed; so these are they of whom Allah changes the evil deeds to good ones; and Allah is Forgiving, Merciful’ (al-Furqan: 70). Thus, the good deed could be multiplied ten times up to seven hundred times, whereas the evil deed is recorded as one only. Good deeds then ought to be manifold unlike the evil ones, and yet Allah the Almighty will change these few evil deeds into good ones. This is also a manifestation of His Exceeding Favour and Bounty and that He does not want to punish His servants as they are His creation. In this connection, He the Almighty says: ‘Why should Allah chastise you if you are grateful and believe? And Allah is the Multiplier of rewards, All Knowing’ (an-Nisa’: 147).

Then, Allah the Almighty says:

House the wives you are divorcing according to your means, wherever you house yourselves, and do not harass them so as to make their lives difficult. If they are pregnant, maintain them until they are delivered of their burdens; if they suckle your infants, pay them for it. Consult together in a good way – if you make difficulties for one another, another woman may suckle the child for the father [6] (The Quran, at-Talaq: 6)

Allah Glorified is He regulates the rights of the divorcee in respect of housing and maintenance allowance in a way that is never done in any other religion or legislation. His Legislation considers the conditions of the woman with regard to revocable and irrevocable divorce, whether minor or major. He also regulates the rights of the pregnant divorcee because she has a prior right to be cared for and her child is entitled to be breastfed at his father’s expense. He also enjoins both spouses, seeking Allah’s Pleasure, to consult and confer with one another for the benefit of their baby.

In fact, Islam guards the rights of a divorcee on her husband, irrespective of the case of divorce. If she is divorced revocably, she becomes entitled to stay in the marital house and to receive maintenance allowance, hoping that this would bring them together and spur the husband to take his wife back.

In doing so, they will get their life back on track and provide a loving atmosphere for their children.

Moreover, Allah the Almighty forbids the husband to expel his revocably divorced wife, leaving her homeless or sending her to her family's house, except in case of open indecency which leaves no room for doubt or ambiguity. In this regard, He the Almighty says: '…be mindful of Allah, your Lord. Do not drive them out of their homes – nor should they themselves leave – unless they commit a flagrant indecency. These are the limits set by Allah – whoever oversteps Allah's limits wrongs his own soul…' (at-Talaq: 1). But what about the divorcee's right when her waiting period is over or when she is irrevocably divorced? In both cases, her husband can only take her back with a new contract and a new bride-gift. Until it happens, she has the right to housing, as Allah Glorified is He enjoins the husbands to 'house' the irrevocably divorced women who are neither pregnant nor in the waiting period. Were housing to be at the same place with the husband, the expression: 'House the wives…' (at-Talaq: 6) would not be used.

Besides, the Arabic word as-sakan (housing) connotes serenity and peace of mind, that is, to provide a safe house where one can rest and feel comfortable. This word is also used elsewhere in His saying: 'And We said: O Adam! Dwell you and your wife in the garden…' (al-Baqara: 35). Thus, the word 'house' denotes two elements: peace and serenity. In the absence of either element, the place where one resides cannot be called 'a house'. It provides stability and allows one to eat freely and comfortably. Thus, your true house is the place where you find serenity, comfort, privacy, and self-stability not shared by anyone.

As for Allah's saying: 'Wherever you house yourselves…' (at-Talaq: 6), the Arabic preposition min (of) is used to mean that the husbands should lodge their divorcees in any of their houses. Accordingly, Qatada said, 'If the husband has but one house, he should let her inhabit one of its parts.'(1) Such is the case with the verse in which Allah the Almighty orders the Muslims to lower their gaze, saying: 'Say to the believing men that they cast down their looks…' (al-Furqan: 30). Here, the same preposition is used to imply that in some cases one is not to lower his gaze, as in the case of a judge deciding on a lawsuit and one of its parties is a woman.

(1) In his Tafsir, At-Tabari mentions this opinion as adopted by Sa'id ibn Jubayr, who said, 'If you cannot find but a corner of your house, let her dwell in it.' In their Tafsirs, Ibn Kathir and Ash-Shawkani ascribe this opinion to Qatada. See Ash-Shawkani, Fath Al-Qadir, 7/246.

If it is the right of the divorcee to have a serene and comfortable house for herself and her children, one's wife also has such right, for Allah the Almighty orders the husbands to treat their wives kindly, saying: '…and treat them kindly…' (an-Nisa': 19). This entails offering them dwellings, without which they cannot protect themselves from people's gazes and manage their affairs freely.

The house should be equipped with the requirements of the age and have the basic necessities. However, this does not mean that a wife should burden her husband with unbearable demands that he cannot afford. For this reason, He the Almighty says: '…according to your means, wherever you house yourselves…' (at-Talaq: 6). This points out that the house is to be in proportion to his financial status so that she accepts to inhabit it and not find it repulsive.

In addition, Allah Glorified is He directs us to offer the housing according to one's financial abilities, saying: '…according to your means…' (at-Talaq: 6). A poor man builds a humble dwelling, whereas a wealthy man builds a large mansion. So, He the Almighty made housing obligatory for the divorcee according to the husband's means and to the extent of his ability. In the case of a rich husband, it is not proper that he houses his wife in a humble house that does not suit his financial abilities.

The Quranic restrictive phrase: '…according to your means…' (at-Talaq: 6) suggests a miraculous solution to many social problems between the spouses. It means that if the husband is rich, he should give housing and maintenance allowance in abundance and if he is poor, then he should provide her to the extent he can afford. So, the house should be in good condition according to what is recognised to be fair and according to the husband's financial status; if he is rich, he should give housing and maintenance allowance in abundance and if he is poor, then to the extent he can afford.

The same is the case with maintenance allowance; the rich husband should spend according to his means and so should the poor one, as Allah the Almighty says: '…and make provision for them, the wealthy according to his means and the straitened in circumstances according to his means, a provision according to usage; (this is) a duty on the doers of good (to others)' (al-Baqara: 236). The rich person has abundant means of provision unlike the poor one and according to the capability of each one, the compensation, housing, and maintenance will be evaluated.

Allah the Almighty says: 'Allah does not burden a soul with something that it cannot afford' (al-Baqara: 286). Therefore, it should be noted that Allah's Obligations are within one's ability and he can bear them. Then, He the Almighty commands the husbands, saying: '…and do not harass them so as to make their lives difficult' (at-Talaq: 6). Here, the Arabic word daarra (to harass) connotes intending to inflict harm on the woman. Whereas another word of the same root could have been used, but it would not convey the meaning of deliberation since the husband may do something with good intention, but it turns out to be harmful to his wife. The word in the verse, however, implies intentional harm done to the woman after exerting effort and spending money to achieve this purpose. This intentional harm has many forms which are intended, for example, to get a ransom from the woman or to waive her right to stay in his house. Such harms are perpetrated by those who lack the proper Islamic manners.

Intentional harm can have another form where the husband divorces his wife and takes her back in marriage when there are only two days left before her waiting period is over. He intends to go beyond Allah's Limits by exerting every possible effort to deprive the woman of her rights, being negligent of the fact that He the Almighty watches over him.

Thus, it is as if Allah the Almighty is saying, 'Do not harm your wives verbally or physically during their stay in the marital house after divorce in order to drive them out before the end of the waiting period as this is forbidden.' That is why, He the Almighty says: 'Do not drive them out of their homes – nor should they themselves leave' (at-Talaq: 1). Thus, He the Almighty forbids the husbands from expelling their wives and likewise forbids the wives from leaving the house. In addition, He commands the husband to house the divorcee in a way that does not cause difficulty or pain for her.

So, with regard to the saying of Allah the Almighty: '…and do not harass them so as to make their lives difficult' (at-Talaq: 6), the husbands are ordered to observe Allah's Limits as regards their divorcees who stay with them in their houses and not to force them to waive any of their rights by guile and skill.

The rights of the revocably divorced include housing and maintenance allowance. The dwelling provided for the divorcee should be, according to the husband's means, akin to the one which he inhabits, even if he let her reside in one of the rooms of the house. Yet, it is forbidden to harm the divorcee, even verbally, to make her leave the house or discharge their right to maintenance allowance. Instead, the husbands should treat them kindly even during their waiting period and remember Allah's Commandments in this regard. This requires nobility, mercy, kind treatment, and commitment to Allah's Orders and Limits. Having these qualities prevents the intentional harm done to the divorcee which can take the form of either restraining them in the house or harsh treatment.

In fact, divorce cases are always surrounded by quarrels, rage, guile and plotting. To cure this with something above the authority of man-made laws, Allah Glorified is He kindly and mercifully takes the people to the springs of affection and kindness which gush forth in their hearts through the touches of piety and hope that He the Almighty facilitates their matter and grants them a way out of their difficulty. That is why He the Almighty says: 'Allah will find a way out for those who are mindful of Him, [2] and will provide for them from an unexpected source…[3]' (at-Talaq: 2-3); and also says: 'Allah will wipe out the sinful deeds and increase the rewards of anyone who is mindful of Him' (at-Talaq: 5). In this regard, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'Whoever causes harm, Allah harms him, and whoever causes hardship to others, Allah will punish him in the same way.'(1) Further, Abu Bakr As-Siddiq Allah be pleased with him said: 'I heard Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him saying, "Cursed are those who harm a believer, or plot to do so"; and he also said, "Cursed are those who harm a believer or deceive him."'(1)

Then Allah the Almighty says: 'If they are pregnant, maintain them until they are delivered of their burdens' (at-Talaq: 6). The divorced woman could be pregnant, and to assert her right here a special part of the verse is assigned to address this issue. Allah, the Creator of mankind and the All Knowing of their intentions, knows that some men will withhold maintenance allowance from their divorced pregnant women in spite of their conceiving of their children. The waiting period of the pregnant divorcee extends to birth giving as He the Almighty says: 'The waiting period of those who are pregnant will be until they deliver their burden…' (at-Talaq: 4). If she is divorced in the first month of pregnancy, her husband will be obliged to maintain her until she delivers her baby by which her waiting period ends.

On talking about the housing rights, Allah Glorified is He mentions the divorced women in general but specifies maintenance allowance as a right for the pregnant ones. Thus, some scholars maintain that He Glorified is He mentioned the right to housing absolutely but restricted maintenance to the pregnant, implying that an irrevocably divorced woman has no right to maintenance allowance. This is evidenced by the Prophetic Hadith narrated by Fatima Bint Qays(2) who said: 'My husband, Abu 'Amr ibn Hafs, sent 'Ayyish ibn Abu Rabi'a to convey to me the news of my divorce, and he also sent with him five Sa's(3) of dates and five Sa‘s of barley. I said, ‘Is there no maintenance allowance for me but only this, and I cannot even spend my waiting period in your house?’ He said, ‘No.’ She said, ‘I dressed myself and came to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him who asked, “How many pronouncements of divorce have been made for you?” I said, Three. He said, “What he (‘Ayyish ibn Abu Rabi‘a) had stated was true. There is no maintenance allowance for you. Spend the waiting period in the house of your cousin, Ibn Umm Maktum. He is blind and you can put off your garment in his presence. When you have spent your waiting period, you inform me.”’(1) This woman was irrevocably divorced and accordingly she has no housing nor maintenance rights. Imam Abu Hanifa, though, opined that she has the right to housing and maintenance because depriving her of such rights will cause her harm, which is prohibited by Allah’s saying: ‘…and do not harass them so as to make their lives difficult’ (at-Talaq: 6).

Then, Allah Glorified is He speaks of the right of the infant, after the woman gives birth to him and her maintenance ceases, obliging the husband to pay for his breastfeeding: ‘If they suckle your infants, pay them for it’ (at-Talaq: 6). It is as if He Glorified is He gives the woman that right by virtue of the infant, even though she is his mother and she is going to breastfeed him anyway. However, He prescribes a payment to her for breastfeeding him. Moreover, He the Almighty creates milk in his mother’s breast to feed him whenever he is hungry until he feels satisfied. Though the infant is her own child and milk is Divinely created in her breasts, her ex-husband is required to pay for the breastfeeding of his infant. These verses point out the responsibilities of the husband towards his child’s breastfeeding and maintenance after the period of breastfeeding which may extend to two whole years, a fact which is clear in His saying: ‘And the mothers should suckle their children for two whole years for him who desires to make complete the time of suckling; and their maintenance and their clothing must be – borne by the father according to usage; no soul shall have imposed upon it a duty but to the extent of its capacity; neither shall a mother be made to suffer harm on account of her child, nor a father on account of his child…' (al-Baqara: 233). Out of His Favour on the people, He the Almighty addresses the matter of suckling the infants after their mothers give birth to them. Considering the fact that divorce results in contention between the man and the woman, Allah, the Most Merciful, and the All Knowing of His creation, wants to protect the fruit of marriage, that is, the children. He orders us not to let the dispute between the spouses harm the infant. Had there been no divorce, a husband would have been only responsible for providing for the newborn baby according to what is commonly accepted. But in the case of the divorced wife, Allah the Almighty obliges the husband to pay for the baby's breastfeeding. If there is no baby, such a divorcee will not be entitled to receive such payment.

Some people mistakenly inferred that maintenance and clothing are obligatory for the divorced women in general, but only the divorced women who breastfeed their children are intended. A divorcee may or may not breastfeed her baby. In case she suckles her baby, its father must pay her in return for suckling, by mutual agreement. If she agrees to breastfeed her baby for an appropriate payment, then the father should not bring a wet nurse. He is rather required to fully pay for her suckling and other forms of maintenance, for she has a prior right to her baby and feels more empathy for it than any wet nurse. Thus, an irrevocably divorced woman has the choice to breastfeed her baby or not after giving birth to it. It should be noted that suckling it with colostrum, the first milk produced in the early days of breastfeeding, is very important for the babies. On suckling it, she becomes entitled to a proper payment by an agreement with its father.

Further, Allah Glorified is He says: 'If they suckle your infants, pay them for it' (at-Talaq: 6). This means that the payment for breastfeeding, clothing and maintenance is to be incurred by the divorcing husband because unpaid breastfeeding is only obligatory on a woman joined in marriage to her husband. However, because her waiting period ends after childbirth, the father is responsible for paying her for suckling his infant. Then, Allah Glorified is He calls upon the man and the woman to confer among themselves concerning the issue of breastfeeding their baby and other affairs relating to their children and what suits them best, saying: ‘Consult together in a good way’ (at-Talaq: 6).

Allah Glorified is He spurs both spouses to confer and deliberate the matter among themselves with kindness, decency, understanding, and forbearance. The husband should not deny his responsibility and the wife should not try to put the husband into difficulty and hardship. They should consult with each other to reach an agreement on a reasonable payment, without excessiveness nor negligence, neither harming nor reciprocating harm, as stated in Allah’s saying: ‘…neither shall a mother be made to suffer harm on account of her child, nor a father on account of his child…’ (al-Baqara: 233). Both spouses are ordered to enjoin one another to have tolerance, forbearance, and kindness. The husband is to be kind to his wife and she is to be obedient to him. Every one of them should do good as much as he can to the other; the favour of the woman is to breastfeed her child and that of the man is to offer her maintenance in return, with the overriding concern being the benefit of the child and protecting him from harm.

Justice alone is hard and may leave hard feelings, but graciousness eliminates rancour, contention, and hatred. Therefore, Allah the Almighty commands the spouses, saying: ‘So do not forget to be generous towards one another: Allah sees what you do’ (al-Baqara: 237).

Disputes happen when everyone deems himself the rightful owner, and circumstances may also tempt both parties. Upholding justice will lead humanity to the ultimate consent, but with graciousness there will be satisfaction and the matter will be settled.

Graciousness implies that everyone should waive his right to settle the issue. Allah the Almighty prescribes rights and legislates what guarantees will be fulfilled, but this is not to forbid graciousness between people. In most cases, the problem lies in the fact that excuses, obstinacy, dissention, and contention are what prevail among people, except those whom Allah the Almighty has excluded. Disagreement on the payment for breastfeeding and maintenance is possible if the husband does not intend to pay or if the payment is too little to suffice the baby and its mother. It may also be on the part of the divorcee by exceeding in her recompense for breastfeeding, burdening the husband with what he cannot afford, and causing him difficulty. It could be the husband who exceeds the limit by refusing to pay for his wife. Regarding this case, Allah the Almighty says: '…if you make difficulties for one another…' (at-Talaq: 6). Difficulty here is the opposite of ease and tolerance.

So, how could the husband deal with the excessiveness of the divorcee in her demands? He is allowed to hire a wet nurse to suckle his infant. In fact, Allah's saying: '…if you make difficulties for one another, another woman may suckle the child for the father' (at-Talaq: 6) is miraculous; it is as though He Glorified is He draws the woman's attention to the fact that breastfeeding is not limited to her. Therefore, if she does not suckle her baby with kindness and goodness, its father can hire another woman to take up the job.

Allah's saying: '…another woman may suckle the child for the father' (at-Talaq: 6) notifies the woman that there is another solution in which she is not involved and which will result in her baby being taken away from her to be breastfed and embraced by another woman. The divorcee here is the one to be blamed because she is required to be lenient with her ex-husband and not to burden or restrain him. In any case, he is to bear the payment and, thus, the divorcee should not be obstinate with him. Instead, she should be content whether he pays little or much; otherwise another woman will suckle for him.

She is also required to breastfeed her child which costs her nothing, as Allah creates milk in her breasts without her having a hand in that except for consuming food to have enough of it for her baby. But what if the baby rejects breastfeeding from another woman? In this case, his mother is to be forced to nurse him in order that he not is harmed and she becomes entitled to an appropriate payment.

Further, the etiquettes of breastfeeding are stated in Allah's saying: '…and if you wish to engage a wet nurse for your children, there is no blame on you so long as you pay what you promised for according to usage…' (al-Baqara: 233). Hence, if they wish to suckle their children by a wet nurse, there shall be no blame on them. This wet nurse needs to feel the generosity of the father so as to suckle the child honestly and take care of it earnestly.

The husband should not deceive the community by pretending to implement Allah's Laws with regard to breastfeeding, since He Glorified is He is Well Aware of his intentions, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: '…and be careful of (your duty to) Allah and know that Allah sees what you do' (al-Baqara: 233). You find that whenever this father sees his baby's nurse, he welcomes her warmly and claims to be spending and paying her dues in full, while this is not the case in reality. He should pay attention to the fact that it is Allah Glorified is He Whom he deals with and not the society.

Allah the Almighty then says:

لِيُنفِقْ ذُو سَعَةٍ مِّن سَعَتِهِۦ ۖ وَمَن قُدِرَ عَلَيْهِ رِزْقُهُۥ فَلْيُنفِقْ مِمَّآ ءَاتَىٰهُ
ٱللَّهُ ۚ لَا يُكَلِّفُ ٱللَّهُ نَفْسًا إِلَّا مَآ ءَاتَىٰهَا ۚ سَيَجْعَلُ ٱللَّهُ بَعْدَ عُسْرٍ يُسْرًا ٧

And let the wealthy man spend according to his wealth.
But let him whose provision is restricted spend according to what God has given him: God does not burden any soul with more than He has given it – after hardship,
God will bring ease [7] (The Quran, at-Talaq: 7)

The human being should improve his means of provision and make a good income to suffice him and those under his care, and to give in charity. The difference between the believer and the disbeliever as regards seeking provision is that the disbeliever works to earn sufficient money for him and his dependents only, whereas the believer, in addition to this, gives of what he has to those who are unable to work for the sake of Allah the Almighty.

He Glorified is He does not stimulate the human being to earn money for himself alone; rather; He spurs him to multiply his sources of income to suffice himself and those under his care, extending his benefit to all circles around him. Such circles are mentioned in Prophet Muhammad's order to maintain yourself, your child, your household, your wife and your servant.

So long as Allah Glorified is He specifies for us the reasons for the continuity of life and thus established the way of going about in the spacious sides of the earth to seek the provision, He Glorified is He also established the honorary means to preserve the species. Furthermore, He the Almighty made the endeavour of someone return to his offspring.

As one of His signs, Allah Glorified is He instils within everyone the instinct of love and affection, and we see such instinct firmly established in the hearts of parents. Therefore, we see the father striving in this worldly life to sustain himself and his children. When someone spares no effort to gain wealth, there may come the time when his gains suffice him for the rest of his life because he worked earnestly and honestly, and accordingly Allah Glorified is He bestowed upon him abundant provision. Other people strive and exert themselves to obtain money for their children and grandchildren, and thus we find that those who try their best to get their provision not only get benefit for themselves, but for the society in its entirety as well.

Allah Glorified is He orders every Muslim to take the responsibility of spending on the nearest circle to him so that everyone in life bears the responsibility for a part of the society, such as his parents and relatives. He Glorified is He even orders us to deem the helpless orphans a common responsibility upon the society as a whole, whether there is a blood relationship or not, since we are ordered to take care of them as our own relatives.

It should be noted that their provision could be directed to them through you. One may make a large sum of money, but he neither spends it nor benefits from it. Thereby, it is not really his provision, for he only keeps it well guarded without spending a penny of it. If a servant considers that he does you a favour, you would say, 'You only serve yourself and your children as you serve me to provide for yourself and for them, whereas I am the one who works hard to give you money to spend on your family.' So, everyone strives and exerts himself to make money and spend on his children. In this vein, Allah the Almighty says: 'Allah amplifies and straitens the means of subsistence for whom He pleases' (ar-Ra'd: 26). So, He is the One Who restricts one's provision or gives him in proportion to his needs.

With regard to the saying of Allah Glorified is He: 'But let him whose provision is restricted spend according to what Allah has given him…' (at-Talaq: 7), it means that He the Almighty may provide but with restriction. This verse obliges the person, whether rich or poor, to spend according to his means. The letter 'Lam' at the beginning of the Arabic word liunfiq (let him spend) is an imperative prefix marked by a kasra.(1) Its original diacritical marker is sukun (a marker of the jussive case), but it is marked by kasra for being at the beginning of a sentence which in Arabic cannot begin with sukun. In other positions of the sentence, however, it is to be marked by sukun as in His saying: ‘But let him whose provision is restricted spend according to what Allah has given him’ (at-Talaq: 7). He Glorified is He enjoins people to spend out of their wealth in order to promote social solidarity and improve the economic climate, for parsimonious attitudes lead to the opposite consequences.

(1) Kasra: is a mark for words in the genitive case, which goes below the end of a word and is pronounced as a short 'i'.

So long as He Glorified is He orders us to spend out of our wealth, we need to know what to spend and who is worthy of charity. In this connection, Abu Hurayra Allah be pleased with him narrated: ‘A man said, “Messenger of Allah, I have a dinar.” He said, “Spend it on yourself.” The man said, “I have another.” He said, “Spend it on your child.” The man said, “I have another.” He said, “Spend it on your wife.” He said, “I have another.” He said, “Spend it on your servant.” The man said, “I have another.” He said, “On whomever you see fit.”’(1) Whenever Abu Hurayra narrated this Hadith, he used to say, ‘Your child asks, “Spend on me, on whom can I rely?” Your wife says, “Spend on me or divorce me.” Your slave says, “Spend on me or sell me.”’(2) Allah Glorified is He says: ‘They ask you as to what they should spend. Say: Whatever wealth you spend, it is for the parents and the near of kin and the orphans and the needy and the wayfarer, and whatever good you do, Allah surely knows it’ (al-Baqara: 215).

We should spend out of the good things Allah the Almighty has given us, and those meant for spending on are one’s closest relatives. This is so because He the Almighty wants to make the believer responsible for his own relatives so that such circles stick together. Accordingly, the responsibility of maintaining the welfare of the society is shared by all its members. Besides, spending constitutes a kind of protection for one’s household. For example, my circle includes my parents and relatives and so does everyone’s circle, therefore, the circles get wider to encompass even the orphans and the destitute. Thus, if we take into consideration the circles of parents and relatives and what they have of the orphans and the needy, we will find that the joined circles encompass all the poor and that the needs of the society are borne by all of its members, leaving no one unable to work or deprived of his needs.

(2) This Hadith is narrated on the authority of Abu Hurayra Allah be pleased with him. They asked him, ‘Is it of the sayings of Prophet Muhammad or is it your own saying?’ He said: ‘It is my own saying.’ See Ahmad, Musnad, Hadith no. 7423.

Spending denotes giving out of your possessions by means of selling, or giving a gift or grant. If one would like to open the door of righteousness with Allah the Almighty he should broaden the circle of spending and he will find that righteousness has occupied a great deal of his spending, given that the giver spends on behalf of Allah the Almighty. He Glorified is He brought the human being into existence and guaranteed his sustenance. With you spending out on those under your care and by helping those whom you are not obliged to spend on, you draw near to Allah the Almighty. You need to strive in this worldly life so as to make money which suffices you and your dependents; otherwise you will find no money to cover your expenses. Every Muslim should take upon himself the responsibility of spending on his closest circle in order that everyone in this life assumes the responsibility of a part of the society to whom he is related by blood, such as parents and relatives.

The man is required to work hard and to do his best to earn a living from lawful and good sources, given the fact that it is prohibited to get money from unlawful sources. The person who spends out is either a rich one to whom Allah Glorified is He granted an abundance of wealth, or one whose provision is straitened. Spending according to one's means suits the previous verse in which He the Almighty says: 'House the wives you are divorcing according to your means, wherever you house yourselves, and do not harass them so as to make their lives difficult. If they are pregnant, maintain them until they are delivered of their burdens…' (at-Talaq: 6).

Allah Glorified is He does not want the woman to exceed the limit in her demand for maintenance, imposing on the husband that which he cannot afford and what is beyond his capacity and provision. Therefore, He Glorified is He makes clear that His Command to the man to provide maintenance is to be related to what he has of wealth and whether he is rich or poor. Maintenance, then, should be in accordance with the financial status of the husband; if he is rich, he should give in a way befitting to what Allah the Almighty has given him; and if he is poor, then he should give according to his means, as He the Almighty says: '…and make provision for them, the wealthy according to his means and the straitened in circumstances according to his means' (al-Baqara: 236).

You should consider that provision is broadened by Allah the Almighty. However, He the Almighty requires you to broaden your means of obtaining provision and He will increase your provision in proportion to how expansive your sources are. 'The rich' refers to the one who has multiplied his sources of provision, whereas the 'straitened' refers to someone with a limited provision. Thus, spending out should be in accordance with one's financial state, whether he is rich or poor.

Allah Glorified is He is Limitless and All Knowing and His Dominion is boundless and His Provision is endless. Hence, one should never think that His Dominion will fall short of providing for the man who divorced his wife or for the divorced woman. Given that Allah Glorified is He allows divorce as a way out when dissention between spouses is at its utmost. At that point, He will give both spouses in abundance so that the husband spends on his divorcee and his infant of what He the Almighty has given him. Further, the wife should be sure that He Glorified is He will provide for her amply if she fears Him and is not excessive in the material demands she asks for herself and her infant. He Glorified is He says: 'Allah amplifies and straitens the means of subsistence for whom He pleases' (ar-Ra'd: 26) and He also says: 'Surely your Lord makes plentiful the means of subsistence for whom He pleases and He straitens (them); surely He is ever Aware of, Seeing His servants' (al-Isra': 30).

He Glorified is He Whose Depositories never run out, provides for His creation in a measured amount; neither does He extend it completely nor restrict it completely. Instead, He extends provision to some people and restricts it to others so that the universe works in harmony. Were He Glorified is He to amplify it to all people abundantly, they would dispense with and abandon each other, leading to the corruption of their lives. There is a profound Divine wisdom behind this. Thereby, one has but to be content with whatever is destined for him and to lead a lifestyle in proportion to what is provided for him, as He the Almighty says: 'But let him whose provision is restricted spend according to what Allah has given him' (at-Talaq: 7).

Here, we find that Allah Glorified is He attributed the abundant provision to the wealthy person, whereas in the case of the restricted one, He Glorified is He states that this is what He has given him. It is as though He Glorified is He represents and views wealth as a result of the human being's effort in spite of the fact that what he gains through his own effort is conferred to him by Allah the Almighty.

Furthermore, His saying: 'But let him whose provision is restricted' (at-Talaq: 7) draws the attention of the divorcee to the fact that if her divorcing husband cannot afford her demands, then it is not his fault; it is only what Allah the Almighty destined for him of provision. Using the passive form 'is restricted' here signifies that the husband has no hand in the matter of extending or restricting provision. Rather, this is purely a gift from Allah, and restraining one's provision is something predestined by Him Glorified is He.

In fact, the man only spends of what Allah Glorified is He has given him and provided for him; He Glorified is He decides whether he should be rich or poor, and thereby a father is required to spend out on the nursing mother, whom he divorced, according to his capability. However, one whose provision is restricted should only spend according to his means, since Allah the Almighty does not burden a person to maintain those under his care except in accordance with what He has given him. This depends on whether the person is rich or poor because He Glorified is He does not charge a soul except according to what He has given it of ability and finances. In the case of disagreement, the judge evaluates the maintenance according to the husband's income and wealth.

This ruling considers the condition of the poverty-stricken, if he is truthful, and spurs himself to exert himself to spend out in proportion to his means. 'Umar Allah be pleased with him once asked about the condition of Abu 'Ubayda. He was told that he wore the coarsest of attire and ate the most frugal food. Thereby, 'Umar sent him one thousand dinars. On asking his messenger what Abu 'Ubayda did with them, he told him that he dressed himself in fine clothes and ate good food. Then, 'Umar Allah be pleased with him said, 'May Allah have mercy upon him! He interpreted this verse: "And let the wealthy man spend according to his wealth. But let him whose provision is restricted spend according to what Allah has given him…" (at-Talaq: 7).'(1)

Abu Malik Al-Ash‘ari narrated that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, ‘There were three people; one of them had ten dinars, so he gave a dinar in charity; the second one had ten Uqiyyas (One Uqiyya is equal to 40 Dirhams) so he gave an Uqiyya in charity, and the third one had one hundred Uqiyyas, so he gave ten Uqiyyas in charity.’(1) He peace and blessings be upon him said, ‘They will be equal in reward, for each gave the tenth of his money in charity.’ Hence, the poor person is not to be charged the same as the rich, and that is why He the Almighty says: ‘Allah does not burden any soul with more than He has given it…’ (at-Talaq: 7). Thus, the one to whom Allah the Almighty extends the provision should spend out bountifully on housing, maintenance and breastfeeding payment, but the poverty-stricken should spend to the extent he can afford and is not to be blamed.

As a matter of fact, Allah the Almighty charges people only with what is within their capacity and ability. He Glorified is He does not impose upon a soul a duty but to the extent of its ability. This is presented in the fact that He Glorified is He gives a concession when the duty is beyond one’s capacity. For example, He gives the order to the husbands to spend, saying: ‘And let the wealthy man spend…’ (at-Talaq: 7) and there comes the concession in the same verse: ‘…according to his ability…’ (at-Talaq: 7). Duties are always related to capacity and ability; so He the Almighty guides the one who is straitened to a way out of dissentions and disputes, laying down the principle: ‘Allah does not burden any soul with more than He has given it…’ (at-Talaq: 7).

Thus, no one should think that He the Almighty imposes duties upon the human being to burden him; for it is the human being who burdens himself. Man should spend according to his income; he should not borrow except at times of dire need, not in order to lead a luxurious life. Consider your income and live according to it, without embezzling or bribing, assuming that this is what Allah the Almighty has given you. For example, if you earn 100 L.E, then live in proportion to it so that your expenses equal your income because He the Almighty does not charge you except with what He has given you. Accordingly, we should suffice ourselves to what is given to us and to seek only what He made lawful to us, avoiding stealing or plunder. So, we should take and benefit from that which He made lawful in order that He will help us satisfy our needs and manage our affairs. Living according to Allah's Way will rid you of the unforeseen misfortunes of life which require you to spend more than what He has given to you. For example, if you enter the market with a limited amount of money and see many good things, but you can only buy a few things, He the Almighty beautifies for you what is within your means and keeps you away from what you cannot afford because He does not charge a soul except with what He has given it and does not arouse one's desire for something beyond his limits.

Allah Glorified is He assures us, saying: '…after hardship, Allah will bring ease' (at-Talaq: 7). Therefore, as for the one whose provision is restricted, He the Almighty will make things easy for him and will change his misery into ease and comfort. Ibn Mas'ud Allah be pleased with him used to say, 'I do not care on which condition I will find my household; for if they are in difficulty, I will expect ease.'(1)

After hardship comes ease; and after straitened circumstances comes comfort; and after poverty comes wealth. This is a promise to the poverty-stricken to wait for Allah's Provision and to make sure that ease will take the place of difficulty and it will improve his living conditions. Whenever it happens, he should not be parsimonious or niggardly.

This is good news for those in hardship, since Allah the Almighty will relieve their hardship and eliminate their difficulty. Even if they live in straitened circumstances, He will grant them ease and comfort. He Glorified is He mentions ease after hardship to indicate that anyone who is satisfied and content with the provision he has been destined with will be granted ease after hardship. In another verse, He the Almighty says: 'Surely with difficulty is ease. [5] With difficulty is surely ease [6]' (ash-Sharh: 5-6). Here, He Glorified is He makes ease accompany, not only follow, the difficulty. Furthermore, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him went out once while he was happy and said laughingly: ‘A hardship will not overcome two eases.’(1)

(1) Ibn Mas'ud said, 'I have never been in a condition and wished that this condition is different.' 'Umar said, 'I do not care if I become in difficulty or ease because I do not know which one is better for me.' See Al-Ghazali, Ihya' 'Ulum Ad-Din, 3/319.

Using the Arabic letter ‘Sin’ (will), as a prefix to the Arabic verb yaj‘al (bring), implies occurrence in the future. Allah the Almighty guides us not to be too hasty for ease, but rather to be sure that He the Almighty will fulfil His Promise to us. It is worth noting that He Glorified is He did not use the Arabic word sawfa, instead of the prefix Sin, because sawfa means that the action will happen in the distant future, whereas the prefix Sin indicates that it will happen soon in the near future if one fears Allah the Almighty and has patience.

Then, Allah Glorified is He says:

وَكَأَيِّن مِّن قَرْيَةٍ عَتَتْ عَنْ أَمْرِ رَبِّهَا وَرُسُلِهِۦ
فَحَاسَبْنَٰهَا حِسَابًا شَدِيدًا وَعَذَّبْنَٰهَا عَذَابًا نُّكْرًا ﴿٨﴾

Many a town that insolently opposed the command of its Lord and His messengers We have brought sternly to account: We punished them severely [8]

Here, He the Almighty states the consequence of rebellion against His commands. The Arabic word ‘ka’ayyin’ (many) indicates multiplicity. For instance, when someone asks you, ‘Why do you abandon me?’ you reply, ‘How many times did I visit you?’ Here you do not intend to pose a question or to inquire about the number of visits; rather, this expression signifies the myriad visits you paid him. Moreover, you do not ask him such a question unless you are sure of the answer being, ‘You visited me many times.’ Therefore, when you use ‘many’ in similar question forms, it conveys the meaning of multiplicity. The same is the case in Allah’s saying: ‘And how many a Prophet has fought with whom were many worshippers of the Lord…’ (Al-‘Imran: 146). This verse means that there were many Prophets with whom faithful believers fought, exactly as what happened with Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and his Companions. Similarly, He the Almighty says: ‘And how many a sign in the heavens and the earth which they pass by, yet they turn aside from it’ (Yusuf: 105). So, once you hear this word ‘ka’ayyin,’ you should know that it denotes something innumerable; too many to be counted, and we do not count things which cannot be enumerated such as sand in the desert. Not counting something means that it is infinite such as the stars in the sky. Hence, this word is used in His saying: ‘And how many a sign...’ (Yusuf: 105) to indicate that His signs in the heavens and the earth are too many to be counted. Accordingly, when Allah Glorified is He mentions this word, it indicates that what follows is too many that one is not to be blamed if he cannot enumerate it. Allah’s signs, which are too many to be counted, signify something miraculous. Thus, the Arabic word ‘ka’ayyin,’ (many) denotes multiplicity as when you say, ‘How many times did I treat you kindly’ to suggest that it happened so many times that it cannot be counted. It denotes exaggeration in number and quantity. This word recurs in His saying: ‘And how many a living creature that does not carry its sustenance: Allah sustains it and yourselves…’ (al-’Ankabut: 60). Here, it refers to the countless number of creatures that do not carry their own provision, and yet they are sustained and alive. Although flies and mosquitoes are weak, they feed on the blood of the powerful human being. So is the case with the microorganisms which destroy the human being, while they do not carry their provision. It is surprising that horses, donkeys, and cattle do not carry their provision despite their ability to carry different items. Therefore, when they satiate their hunger, they save nothing to eat later. Instead, they may step on the leftovers or urinate on them. This is common in all animals that it is said, ‘Of all creatures, only the human being, the rats and the ants save their food.’

(1) Abu Hurayra Allah be pleased with him narrated that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, ‘Whoever takes the money of the people with the intention of repaying it, Allah will repay it on his behalf, and whoever takes it in order to spoil it, then Allah will spoil him.’ See Al-Bukhari, Sahih, Hadith no. 2387; Ibn Maja, Sunnan, Hadith no. 2411; Ahmad, Musnad, Hadith no. 8718, Al-Bazzar, Musnad, Hadith no. 8158; and Al-Bayhaqi, As-Sunnan Al-Kubra, Hadith no. 11274.

The word ‘town’ in the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘How many a town…’ (at-Talaq: 8) refers to a group of people living together in a limited place. It does not refer to the village as we know it nowadays. This is because the Arabs used to refer to the place which is synonymous with the city nowadays as ‘town’. In the past, they used to inhabit the desert and to keep moving from one place to another without settling in a specific area. Thus, the capital of the Bedouins was the ‘town’ which consisted of a small number of houses.

Accordingly, the Quran calls Mecca ‘the Mother of Cities’ in Allah’s saying: ‘This is a blessed Scripture that We have sent down to confirm what came before it and for you to warn the Mother of Cities…’ (al-An‘am: 92) and in His saying: ‘And thus have We revealed to you an Arabic Quran, that you may warn the mother of cities and those around it…’ (ash-Shura: 7). So, the Mother of Cities is Mecca which is the greatest of all places and the spotlight of those around it. It has all the requirements for life and anyone residing in it or staying in it to perform Pilgrimage can engage in commerce or other activities and thus can fully satisfy his needs.

Furthermore, Allah Glorified is He tells us about many towns such as the village of Ayla or Tiberias about which He says: ‘And ask them about the town which stood by the sea; when they exceeded the limits of the Sabbath, when their fish came to them on the day of their Sabbath, appearing on the surface of the water, and on the day on which they did not keep the Sabbath they did not come to them…’ (al-A‘raf: 163). There is also the town of Jerusalem or Jericho which is mentioned in His saying: ‘And when We said: Enter this city, then eat from it a plenteous (food) wherever you wish, and enter the gate making obeisance, and say, forgiveness’ (al-Baqara: 58). While narrating what the brothers of Yusuf (Joseph) said after they left Egypt and went back to their father without their brother Binyamin (Benjamin), Allah Glorified is He says: ‘And inquire in the town in which we were…’ (Yusuf: 82). With the ‘town’, they meant the capital of Egypt at that time, which was the city of Memphis (1) or what is known now as Al-Badrashein.

As the ‘town’ is mentioned in the Quran to refer to the civil societies at that time, the ‘city’ is used as well. In this regard, Allah the Almighty says: ‘Pharaoh said: Do you believe in Him before I have given you permission? Surely this is a plot which you have secretly devised in this city…’ (al-A‘raf: 123);

(1) Memphis was an ancient city founded in 3200 BC by Narmer. It was the capital of Egypt during the old kingdom (dynasties 3-6) where they used to worship the god Ptah and is now located near to Saqqara in the town of Mit Rahina. It was the first capital of Egypt after unification and Manf is its Arabic name which means the white wall.

'And he went into the city at a time of unvigilance on the part of its people…' (al-Qasas: 15); 'And he was in the city, fearing, awaiting…' (al-Qasas: 18); and: 'And from the remote part of the city there came a man running, he said: O my people! Follow the Messengers' (Ya Sin: 20). In the last verse, the word 'city,' according to all the exegetes, is Antioch.

Even in its traditional usage, the city is distinguished from the village in that 'cities' are regulated by laws; have a king, ministers, officials, constitutional ruling and an army to defend it. Therefore, the word 'city' is used to refer to the city of Pharaoh, Antioch, and above all Prophet Muhammad's City, which was named 'Yathrib' at the outset, then became 'Medina, ' – being the capital of the new-born state. Medina is mentioned in many verses, as in Allah's saying: 'And from among those who are round about you of the dwellers of the desert there are hypocrites, and from among the people of Medina (also); they are stubborn in hypocrisy…' (at-Tawba: 101) and in His saying: 'It did not beseem the people of Medina and those round about them of the dwellers of the desert to remain behind the Messenger of Allah…' (at-Tawba: 120).

So, with regard to the saying of Allah the Almighty in the verse in question: 'Many a town that insolently opposed the command of its Lord and His Messengers…' (at-Talaq: 8), it means that many towns rebelled against Allah's Commandment; some of which are told to us, and the town most mentioned in the Quran is that of the people of Lut (Lot).(1) For example, He the Almighty says: 'And (as for) Lut (Lot), We gave him wisdom and knowledge, and We delivered him from the town which wrought abominations; surely they were an evil people, transgressors…' (al-Anbiya': 74); and He says: 'Surely We will cause to come down upon the people of this town a punishment from heaven because they transgressed' (al-'Ankabut: 34). The town of Lut (Lot) was the most rebellious one against the Commands of Allah the Almighty thereby deserving His punishment: a rain of hard stones and the city was turned upside down because they committed a flagrant indecency which none of the nations has ever done before.

(1) Sodom and Gomorrah are the cities of the people of Prophet Lut (Lot) which were swallowed by the earth owing to their practice of homosexuality. Many researchers and religious scholars believe that the swallowed villages are situated in the Dead Sea and Jordan Valley. According to Hebrew sources, the cities that were destroyed are: Sodom and Gomorrah, (Odomh and Sabim). They used to approach men with desire, instead of women.

As for Allah's saying: 'How many a town…' (at-Talaq: 8), He the Almighty does not intend the place with its buildings, streets and suburbs, but rather, He intends the people of the town and its inhabitants. This is because 'the town' is a name for the place well prepared for people to reside in. It is axiomatic that when Allah Glorified is He says: 'And inquire in the town in which we were…' (Yusuf: 82), He means to ask the people of the town, not the buildings or the place itself. Thus, in the verse under discussion, Allah's saying: 'Many a town that insolently opposed the command of its Lord and His Messengers…' (at-Talaq: 8) means that the town itself did not rebel against His command, but it is its people who rebelled and transgressed. The Arabic word 'ata (to oppose) connotes haughtiness and disobedience. In the context of this verse, it means to rebel against Allah's Commands and make corruption rampant. This was because they did not hope or wait for meeting Allah Glorified is He and therefore He describes them as haughty and rebellious in His saying: 'They are too proud of themselves and too insolent' (al-Furqan: 21). This verse means that they have exaggerated in their injustice and opposition and transgressed the limits. The people of these towns rebelled against the Commands of Allah the Almighty. Such a rebel is the one who goes to extremes in his injustice, such as a despot who inflicts much oppression and tyranny and gains more power when people are afraid of him.

To 'rebel,' then, is to reject, disobey and be haughty; thereby deserving Allah's Punishment. This verse, in question, is mentioned in two other positions in the Quran, which are His saying: 'And how many a town to which I gave respite, while it was unjust, then I overtook it, and to Me is the return' (al-Hajj: 48) and His saying: 'And how many a town which was far more powerful than the town of yours which has driven you out: We destroyed them so there was no helper for them' (Muhammad: 13). Thus, they deserved the punishment and destruction because they rebelled against the Commands of Allah and His Prophets.

With regard to His saying: 'The command of its Lord and His Messengers' (at-Talaq: 8), it presents a threat to those who go beyond Allah's Law as regards divorce, the waiting period, driving the revocably divorced woman out of the marital house during her waiting period and non-compliance with the rulings of breastfeeding. In fact, disobeying Allah's Commands will result in manifold injustices, homelessness of children, depravation of women, obstinacy of men and rebellion of women. In such a case, the society would live in the darkness of misguidance that may end up with killing and shedding blood; it would certainly cause the society to lag behind, for being full of problems, disputes, discords, conflicts, plotting, and guile. The scholars state that His saying: 'Many a town that insolently opposed the command of its Lord and His Messengers...' (at-Talaq: 8) suggests that those people did not abide by the commands of Allah the Almighty and His Messengers, nor did they refrain from what they prohibited. In doing so, they rejected and rebelled against His commands.

Allah Glorified is He poses a grave threat to those who do not abide by His Shari'a and seek their laws from other systems and cultures which rebelled and transgressed against His commands. Further, He Glorified is He did not inflict His punishment on the people of these towns without previous warning, guidance and sending Prophets to guide them. Rather, He Glorified is He sent Prophets and revealed Scriptures to guide those people and gave them respite in order to be deterred from their transgression and be admonished. However, they insisted on doing injustice; hence He Glorified is He says: 'And how many a town to which I gave respite while it was unjust...' (al-Hajj: 48). Thus, Allah Glorified is He grants respite to the oppressor, but when He seizes him, He does not then let him off, as Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him clearly stated.

So, after respite and deferment, there comes the severe Account, as Allah the Almighty says: 'We have brought sternly to account…' (at-Talaq: 8). He the Almighty will take them to account sternly for all what they did, and their sins will be investigated. They will be held accountable for everything, be it small or great, without pardoning or overlooking their misdeeds. Calling to account entails discussion and investigation and He the Almighty has given the disbelievers the choice so as to decree a fair judgement regarding them. So, if someone chooses disbelief, he is not forced to be obedient. Thus, they were given the freedom of choice according to which they will be held accountable on the Day of Judgement. The Arabic word hisab (account) signifies precision, and implies counting and numbers and sometimes refers to doubts and thoughts.

Furthermore, Allah Glorified is He gathers account and punishment together, saying: ‘We have brought sternly to account: We punished them severely’ (at-Talaq: 8). In this regard, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, ‘He who is thoroughly examined in reckoning is put to torment.’(1) Thus, there is a relationship between reckoning one’s deeds which he had done in the worldly life and asking him about his money and youth and between inflicting punishment on him, since no one is free from sin. ‘Aisha narrated that ‘he peace and blessings be upon him said, “Anybody whose account (record) is questioned will surely be punished.” I said, Does Allah not say: “He surely will receive an easy reckoning?” (al-Inshiqaq: 8) He peace and blessings be upon him replied, “This is not the actual reckoning but only the presentation of one’s deeds to Him, whereas he who is thoroughly examined in reckoning is put to torment.” ’(2)

With regard to Allah’s saying: ‘He surely will receive an easy reckoning?’ (al-Inshiqaq: 8), it refers to the people of paradise who will be given their record of deeds in their right hand, and that is why He the Almighty then says: ‘And he shall go back to his people joyful’ (al-Inshiqaq: 9). Thus, they will return to their people in happiness with Allah’s Favour and Bounty. In the same connection, He the Almighty says: ‘Then as for him who is given his book in his right hand, he will say: Lo! Read my book: [19] Surely I knew that I shall meet my account. [20] So he shall be in a life of pleasure, [21] In a lofty garden, [22] The fruits of which are near at hand [23]' (al-Haqqa: 19-23). Thus, he who is given his record in his right hand will call upon people to read his record, as it will be full of good deeds and a cause for being rescued from the fire. For this reason, his Account is easy, only to present his deeds to him and to let him read his record. It is as though this is an Account or torment for him; the torment of waiting for the Divine Decree. These decisive moments are what make it an Account for the believer. Yet, this is only the Account of presentation of one's deeds, not that of thorough examination. During such presentation, it is said to him, 'You made so and so,' then it is said, 'I covered it up for you in the worldly life, and I forgive you for it Today.' Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He grants him Forgiveness.

(1) This Hadith is narrated on the authority of ‘Aisha Allah be pleased with her who said, ‘Has Allah Glorified is He not said this, “He will be made subject to an easy reckoning” (al-Inshiqaq: 8)?’ Thereupon he peace and blessings be upon him said: “It is only the presentation of one's deeds to Him.” ’ This Hadith is also narrated by Al-Hakim; his narration reads, ‘She said, I heard Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him saying in his prayer: “O Allah, judge me with an easy account!” When he finished his prayer, I said, O Messenger of Allah, what is reckoning? He said, “Allah looks in one’s record and pardons him, but he who is thoroughly examined in reckoning is doomed, and never a believer is stricken by anything even the prickling of a thorn but Allah expiates of his sins.” ’ See Al-Bukhari, Sahih, Hadith no. 6536; Al-Bazzar, Musnad, Hadith no. 199; Ahmad, Musnad Hadith no. 24958; and Al-Hakim, Mustadrak. Hadith no. 190

By contrast, the one who defied and rebelled against the commands of Allah the Almighty will be taken to a severe Account and will have his deeds, small and great, thoroughly examined and investigated, a fact which is clear in His saying: '…what a book is this! It does not omit a small one or a great one, but numbers them (all); and what they had done they shall find present (there)...' (al-Kahf: 49). A part of their reckoning may take place in this worldly life, so they are held accountable for their deeds and will be inflicted with a severe torment. In this regard, He the Almighty says: 'And how many a town to which I gave respite, while it was unjust, then I overtook it...' (al-Hajj: 48). In this worldly life, those rebels will be punished and destroyed, no matter how powerful they are, as He the Almighty says: 'And how many a town which was far more powerful than the town of yours which has driven you out: We destroyed them so there was no helper for them' (Muhammad: 13); and He also says: 'So each We punished for his sin; of them was he on whom We sent down a violent storm, and of them was he whom the rumbling overtook, and of them was he whom We made to be swallowed up by the earth, and of them was he whom We drowned…' (al-'Ankabut: 40). The first type of punishment is sending a storm of burning stones that injure them and burn their skin. Allah Glorified is He did not say that He sent upon them a fire, for instance because fire may burn them to death and thus pain ceases, while heated stones will cause them everlasting pain.

The second type of punishment is the high blast that seizes the ears, which was inflicted on the tribes of Thamud, as He the Almighty says: ‘Then as to Thamud, they were destroyed by an excessively severe punishment’ (al-Haqqa: 5). Allah Glorified is He gives respite to the rebels and transgressors and extends their period until He suddenly seizes them. The punishment may come from above them, such was the case with the people of Abraha who came to destroy the Ka‘ba, thus He the Almighty sent against them birds in flocks, striking them with stones of hard clay, and rendered them like straw eaten up.

Besides, other people were seized by the high blast, and yet others were destroyed by a screaming, violent wind. Further, other people were destroyed by causing the earth to swallow them such as in the case of Qarun (Korah) who was swallowed along with his palace and his possessions. Moreover, others were drowned such as Pharaoh. All of these punishments were that of eradication.

Allah Glorified is He gives us another example in the story of the Kingdom of Bilqis (Sheba) in Yemen and how they were destroyed when they turned away from His Guidance, saying: ‘Certainly there was a sign for Bilqis (Sheba) in their abode; two gardens on the right and the left; eat of the sustenance of your Lord and give thanks to Him: a good land and a Forgiving Lord! [15] But they turned aside, so We sent upon them a torrent of which the rush could not be withstood, and in place of their two gardens We gave to them two gardens yielding bitter fruit and (growing) tamarisk and a few lote trees [16]’ (Saba’: 15-16).

Allah blessed the people of Bilqis (Sheba), but they turned with ingratitude and turned away from His commands. They used to take pride in the dam which preserved the rainwater and provided them with water throughout the year forgetting that He the Almighty is the real Provider. This very dam was the means of their destruction; it destroyed all their crops and fruits.

As they are taken to a severe Account, they are also punished with a painful torment that we do not know how terrible it is. Some scholars state that the verse: ‘We have brought sternly to account: We punished them severely’ (at-Talaq: 8) involves reversing the word order*,* which is an Arabic rhetorical style. Accordingly, the meaning is that Allah the Almighty punishes them in this worldly life, through hunger, drought, humiliation, and destruction, and will take them to severe Account in the Hereafter.

It is narrated that ‘Aisha Allah be pleased with her asked Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him ‘Have you encountered a day harder than the day of Uhud?’ He replied, ‘Your tribes have troubled me a lot, and the worst trouble was the trouble on the day of ‘Aqaba when I presented myself to Ibn ‘Abd Yalayl ibn ‘Abd Kulal and he did not respond to my demand. So I departed, overwhelmed with excessive sorrow, and proceeded on, and could not relax till I found myself at Qarn Ath-Tha‘alib where I lifted my head towards the sky to see a cloud shading me unexpectedly. I looked up and saw Jibril (Gabriel) in it. He called me saying, “Allah has heard your people's saying to you, and what they have replied back to you, Allah has sent the Angel of the Mountains to you so that you may order him to do whatever you wish to these people.” The Angel of the Mountains called and greeted me, and then said, “O Muhammad! Order what you wish. If you like, I will let Al-Akhshabauyn (that is, two mountains) fall on them.”’ Prophet Muhammad said, ‘No, but I hope that Allah will let them beget children who will worship Allah alone, and will worship none besides Him.’(1)

Allah Glorified is He decreed certain rules which govern the creation. We discussed the recompense of those who followed Allah’s Messengers and those who disobeyed them. The people of Mecca should have taken an example by the preceding nations and their responses to Allah’s Prophets as well as the torment which struck those who denied the Message and persecuted the Prophets.

Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him went through hard days. His own people were hostile to him and fought him. One of his hardest days was the battle of Uhud where his teeth were broken, and the battle of Hunayn in which the Muslims were startled by the disbelievers and therefore they fled, while he peace and blessings be upon him encouraged them to hold fast and not to turn away saying, ‘I am truly Allah’s Prophet I am the [grand] son of ‘Abd Al-Mutalib.’(1)

What was harder than this was that he peace and blessings be upon him called people to Islam and to respond positively to Allah’s Call, but they refused and turned away. Further, they incited the wicked people among them to hurt him. This was very hard on him as he knew the recompense which is destined for those who belie Allah’s Prophets. Therefore, out of his mercy and fear for his people, he did not invoke Allah the Almighty to punish them. Instead, he supplicated, ‘O Allah, guide my people for they do not know.’(2)

The Angel of the Mountains said to him, ‘O Muhammad! If you like, I will let Al-Akhshabauyn (that is, two mountains) fall on them.’ But he peace and blessings be upon him was a mercy to mankind and, therefore, he refused. In this situation, he did not only show mercy to the people of Mecca, but he also considered the interest of the coming generations, saying, ‘No, but I hope that Allah will let them beget children who will worship Allah alone, and will worship none besides Him.’ This came to happen afterwards as the sons of those disbelieving chiefs of Mecca embraced Islam and showed extraordinary courage in spreading its Message.

Allah the Almighty states clearly: ‘And how many a town to which I gave respite while it was unjust, then I overtook it, and to Me is the return’ (al-Hajj: 48). So, He gives respite to the unjust people in order that they may show repentance to Him. However, if they insist on their disbelief and injustice, He puts them into a severe torment. This is exactly what happened with the previous nations which showed disobedience and rebellion against Him the Almighty.

(1) This is part of a long Hadith in which somebody asked Al-Bara’ ibn ‘Azib, ‘Did you flee deserting Allah’s Messenger peace and blessings be upon him during the battle of Hunayn?’ Al-Bara’ replied, ‘But Allah's Messenger did not flee. The people of the Tribe of Hawazin were good archers. When we met them, we attacked them, and they fled. When the Muslims started collecting the war booty, the pagans faced us with arrows, but Allah’s Messenger did not flee. No doubt, I saw him on his white mule and Abu Sufyan was holding its reins and the Prophet was saying, ‘I am the Prophet in truth, I am the son of ‘Abd Al-Muttalib.’ According to the narration of Muslim, Prophet Muhammad added, ‘O Allah, descend Your Help.’ Al-Bara’ continued, ‘When the battle grew fierce, we, by Allah, would seek protection by his side, and the bravest among us was he who confronted the onslaught and it was the Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him.’ See, Al-Bukhari, Sahih, Hadith no. 2864; and Muslim, Sahih, Hadith no. 4716.

(2) This Hadith is narrated on the authority of ‘Abdullah ibn ‘Ubayd Allah be pleased with him. See Al-Bayhaqi, Shu‘ab Al-Iman, Hadith no. 1375.

This is why Allah the Almighty then says:

To make them taste the ill effect of their conduct the result of their conduct was ruin [9]
(The Quran, at-Talaq: 9)

In fact, tasting is the strongest perception. Its linguistic meaning signifies the perception of the flavour of a foodstuff or a drink. Metaphorically, however, it signifies tasting anything, even if it is not food or drink. In another verse, He the Almighty says: ‘Taste; you forsooth are the mighty, the honourable’ (ad-Dukhan: 49). Here, it does not refer to perceiving the flavour of food or drink, which is the literal meaning of the word. One tastes food or drink in order to decide whether it is, for example sweet or sour. However, the taste intended in the last verse includes all the body; the hands, the legs, the chest, the neck and so on.

In this context, we understand the saying of Allah: ‘And Allah sets forth a parable: (consider) a town safe and secure to which its means of subsistence come in abundance from every quarter; but it became ungrateful to Allah’s favours, therefore Allah made it to taste the utmost degree of hunger and fear because of what they wrought’ (an-Nahl: 112). We know that hunger is the absence of food, but what would tasting the hunger be like? Neither the hunger nor the garment can be really tasted. The intended meaning is to show how strongly they feel that hunger.

Tasting is to perceive the flavour of something, not to eat or drink it. When you buy some fruits, the seller says to you, ‘Taste this one and you will find how tasty it is.’ Therefore, tasting, which is a sense shared by the whole body, means to perceive the flavour of something. You see with your eyes, hear with your ears, and smell with your nose, but tasting is shared by all these senses and is the strongest kind of perception.

Allah Glorified is He tells us here about the town that insolently opposed the Command of its Lord, saying: 'To make them taste the ill effect…' (at-Talaq: 9). He Glorified is He chose the sense of taste because every other means of perception may only be related to one kind of luxury in the worldly life, whereas tasting is related to food and drink which keep and sustain the human being's life. After all, they are part and parcel of one's life, not only a means of luxury. It is not only the tongue that tastes the food but also the whole body. In this connection, He Glorified is He says to the disbelievers: 'Taste the chastisement of burning' (Al-'Imran: 181) and: 'And among men there is he who disputes about Allah without knowledge and without guidance and without an illuminating book, turning away haughtily that he may lead (others) astray from the way of Allah; for him is disgrace in this world, and on the Day of Resurrection We will make him taste the punishment of burning' (al-Hajj: 8-9). Burning is not a kind of food to be tasted, but rather, it causes pains to the skin and the soul. The human being may lose one of his senses like sight, touch or smell, but he never loses the sense of taste.(1) In this sense, taste supersedes the tongue and overwhelms all the organs of the body.

The expression 'tasting' is also used with regard to the punishment of the fire, as Allah the Almighty says to the disbelievers: 'Taste the chastisement of the Fire which you called a lie' (Luqman: 20). Tasting transcends the tongue and dominates all the organs so that every tiny part of the disbeliever's body tastes the chastisement of the fire.

When Allah (Glorified is He) uses the word 'taste' with regard to the punishment of the people of the town, He means that they felt this punishment with all their senses, even that of taste which is hidden in the soul. Thus, the punishment covers all the parts of their bodies.

In passing, it is good to know that tasting is something other than swallowing or feeling satisfied from the food. We see that in the commercial transaction in our daily life. When you buy some fruits, the seller says to you, 'This is a sweet fruit, taste it.' He does not order you to eat it completely or to satisfy yourself. He rather asks you to only try its taste and then you can buy and eat according to your desire and ability.

(1) From Proofreader: This information is according to the knowledge and belief of Sheikh Ash-Sha'rawi may Allah rest his soul, and it was stated by him to further clarify certain points, but it does not necessarily conform to the scientific facts and information proven true.

If Allah Glorified is He has ordered them to taste the chastisement, can you imagine how painful that chastisement itself is? Concerning this punishment, He the Almighty says: 'Surely the guilty are in error and distress. [47] On the day when they shall be dragged upon their faces into the Fire; taste the touch of Hell [48]' (al-Qamar: 47-48). In another verse, He says: 'I will cast him into Hell. [26] And what will make you realise what Hell is? [27] It leaves naught; nor does it spare aught [28]' (al-Muddaththir: 26-28). The hellfire does not leave a piece of flesh or a nerve except that it destroys it and then it returns to its original state in order to taste the punishment again. If mere tasting or touching the hellfire is so terrible, ferocious and painful, what do you think of those inside the hellfire itself?

The tasting of the chastisement is the conclusion of the previous verse, in which He the Almighty says: 'Many a town that insolently opposed the command of its Lord and His messengers We have brought sternly to account: We punished them severely' (at-Tahrim: 8). Due to their opposition to and rebellion against the Command of Allah the Almighty they tasted the consequences of their misdeeds. Similarly, He the Almighty says: 'Then it shall be said to those who were unjust: Taste abiding chastisement; you are not requited except for what you earned' (Yunus: 52), and says: 'On the day when the chastisement shall cover them from above them, and from beneath their feet; and He shall say: Taste what you did' (az-Zumar: 55).

Allah Glorified is He has not been unjust to them as they taste the punishment for what they used to do, as if their misdeeds will be the hell that burns them. He Glorified is He does not charge them with what they did not do, and He does not compel them with His Dominating Power to disbelieve and thus deserve the punishment; rather, according to Allah's Absolute Justice, they deserved that punishment for their actions. We notice that He the Almighty does not use the verb taktasibun with regard to their undertaking of misdeeds because they no longer exert any effort to do the misdeeds; rather, they became part of their nature, so He uses the verb taksibun (to do). Thus, their pure nature has been corrupted out of their excessive sinning and opposition to the commands of Allah Glorified is He.

When you see a sentence starting with the Arabic particle fa' (then), you should know that the sentence is the outcome of what is before it. For example, the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'Then He causes him to die, then assigns to him a grave' ('Abasa: 21) means that the putting of him in the grave came after death. Thus, what is before the particle fa' (then) is the cause of what is after it.

So, what did the people of the towns that opposed the command of its Lord taste? Allah Glorified is He provides the answer, saying: '…taste the ill effect of their conduct' (at-Talaq: 9). The 'ill effect' here is the bad consequences that happen to the one who opposes and rebels against the command of Allah Glorified is He. Such a person mistakenly thinks that this will be useful to him, but he does not realise the bad consequences of his action, even if he temporarily benefitted from his misdeeds. In this regard, He Glorified is He says: 'But when they neglected that with which they had been admonished, We opened for them the doors of all things, until when they rejoiced in what they were given We seized them suddenly; then lo! They were in utter despair' (al-An'am: 44). He Glorified is He has opened for those people the doors of everything: wealth, position and power, but this was not beneficial to them. They felt happy for these bounties and caused mischief on earth.

Therefore, He, says: '…until when they rejoiced in what they were given We seized them suddenly; then lo! They were in utter despair' (al-An'am: 44).

The 'ill effect' of their misdeeds is that Allah the Almighty has seized them suddenly. What He has bestowed on them at the beginning was not in their interest. So we should not be deceived by such bounties given by Allah Glorified is He to some people who exulted in them. Hereby, this was the cause of their punishment. The one who goes astray from the Truth and deviates from the Righteous Path only harms himself, and he will suffer the ill effect of his misdeeds, as he will abide in the hellfire eternally.

The Arabic word al-wabal (ill effect) linguistically is the infinitive of wabeel, which is the fatty food that causes harm to the one who eats it. This word, therefore, suits Allah's saying: '…to make them taste the ill effect of their conduct' (at-Talaq: 9). The people of that town tasted the ill effect of their opposition to Allah's Command. Their conduct linguistically refers to one's condition, and it may refer to their misdeed of opposing Allah's Command and Ruling. They tasted the ill effect of their conduct like the one in this worldly life who eats a kind of food that would have bad effects on him.

Allah the Almighty then says: '…the result of their conduct was ruin' (at-Talaq: 9). They should have considered the consequences of their misdeeds, but their recklessness and foolishness diverted them from thinking about these consequences and made them have superficial views about these matters.

They looked at the temporal pleasure and forgot the ill effect that they will not be able to endure. If they had been rightly directed by Allah's Guidance or that of His Messenger and considered the veracity of the chastisement against which they had been warned, they would not have been inflicted with these serious consequences.

As a matter of fact, the returning of all the creatures will be to Allah Glorified is He. The problem with these people is that they neither considered the consequences of their actions nor reflected on Allah the Almighty Who manages all the affairs. That is why they were not deterred from committing misdeeds. By contrast, the one who considers the consequences and does good deeds in this worldly life will have the great reward and will be admitted to paradise. On the other hand, the one who does not consider the consequences and opposes, disobeys and rebels against Allah's Commands will be punished, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: 'Then to Us shall be their return; then We shall make them taste severe punishment because they disbelieved' (Yunus: 70). If they had insight and reflected on these serious consequences, they would not have dared to disobey Allah Glorified is He.

Further, He the Almighty says: 'Whoever goes astray, to its detriment only does he go astray' (al-Isra': 15). This means that the person who deviates from His Divine Way will suffer the consequences of his action. The evil of the human being stems from not adhering to Allah's Way of Guidance, which causes harm for him and for the people around him; so he as well as the society will suffer.

Allah Glorified is He says: ‘To Allah is the end of the affairs’ (al-Hajj: 41). This means that the ultimate end will be to Him Glorified is He. In the verse in question, He says: ‘…the result of their conduct was ruin’ (at-Talaq: 9). So, the ill effect of opposing Him and committing misdeeds is perdition. They mistakenly thought that their actions were beneficial for them, but they did not achieve anything for themselves except loss and perdition. This is not a temporal loss and it cannot be recompensed in a further bargain; rather, it is an eternal loss that incurs a great, eternal regret once the Day of Judgement comes. Their punishment starts when the Day of Judgement suddenly seizes them. They will be astonished for its coming which they used to deny, mistakenly believing that what they had done in the worldly life does not incur a punishment. It is the great loss that accompanies the person and never leaves him. It is not confined to this worldly life so that one can compensate or endure it patiently; rather, it will extend to the Hereafter where there is no compensation for the loss or any ability to endure the punishment.

Allah Glorified is He also says: ‘In the Hereafter they shall be the greatest losers’ (an-Naml: 5). Here, ‘the greatest loser’ is the superlative form of the ‘loser’ who loses the bliss of the paradise because he has not done good deeds in the worldly life. Not only will he be deprived of the bliss of the paradise, but he will also be punished in the hellfire. That is why He Glorified is He says: ‘…they shall be the greatest losers’ (an-Naml: 5). This is because they do not enter the paradise, as they do not deserve it, which is a great loss. Moreover, they will be the companions of the hellfire which is another loss. Thus, they have lost their worldly life, the Hereafter and themselves; about those people Allah the Almighty says: ‘Say [Prophet], “Shall we tell you who has the most to lose by their actions, [103] whose efforts in this world are misguided, even when they think they are doing good work? [104] These are they who disbelieve in the communications of their Lord and His meeting, so their deeds become null, and therefore We will not set up a balance for them on the Day of Resurrection[105]”’ (al-Kahf: 103-105).

He Glorified is He has excluded the believers from the great loss, saying: ‘Except those who believe and do good, and enjoin on each other truth, and enjoin on each other patience’ (al-’Asr: 3). Thus, belief in Allah, His Messenger and the Quran; doing righteous deeds; and enjoining the truth and patience on each other save the Muslim from the great loss about which He Glorified is He says: ‘I swear by the time, [1] Most surely man is in loss [2]’ (al-’Asr: 1-2). Thus, the human beings in general are in loss; so, what should the one who wants to be saved do? He the Almighty answers this question, saying: ‘I swear by the time, [1] most surely man is in loss, [2] except those who believe and do good, and enjoin on each other truth, and enjoin on each other patience [3]’ (al-’Asr: 1-3). Therefore, the one who deviates from the Way of Allah suffers a great loss, but he who adheres to it is protected from loss and humiliation.

Allah Glorified is He addresses the people in the way they understand, that is, gaining and losing; the believers gain in all their affairs, whereas the disbelievers and the disobedient ones who rebel against His Way are the losers, a fact which is clear in His saying: ‘They bought error with the right direction, so their bargain brought no gain, nor were they the followers of the right direction’ (al-Baqara: 16). Trade is to buy and sell, thus it implies gaining or losing. The seller’s interest is to gain from the commercial transaction. If he gains from his trade, he is successful. But if he does not gain anything, he is unsuccessful. Thus, Allah’s saying ‘…so their bargain brought no gain, nor were they the followers of the right direction’ (al-Baqara: 16) indicates that they have lost everything because they did not achieve a profit and they lost the right direction. Thus, they lost both the profit and the capital. If they had not gained anything, they, at least, should not have exchanged the right direction with error and therefore lost their capital. They suffered the consequences of the misdeeds that they had done, so their end was loss due to their opposing Allah’s Way and their haughtiness. So, they suffered unmatchable loss and destruction.

With regard to what is prepared for such miserable losers, Allah Glorified is He says:

أَعَدَّ ٱللَّهُ لَهُمۡ عَذَابٗا شَدِيدٗاۖ فَٱتَّقُواْ ٱللَّهَ يَٰٓأُوْلِي ٱلۡأَلۡبَٰبِ
ٱلَّذِينَ ءَامَنُواْۚ قَدۡ أَنزَلَ ٱللَّهُ إِلَيۡكُمۡ ذِكۡرٗا ﴿١٠﴾

God has prepared a severe torment for them.
So, you who have understanding, you who believe,
beware of God. He has sent you the Quran [10]
(The Quran, at-Talaq: 10)

Allah, the All-Powerful and the Omnipotent, has prepared a severe torment for them according to His Power. He has prepared a very painful torment for them, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: ‘We have prepared for the unbelievers a disgraceful chastisement’ (an-Nisa’: 37). The matter has already been settled, for He the Almighty had previously prepared this punishment for them. With His Power and Wisdom, the Paradise and the Hellfire have already been created and prepared; they will not be prepared in the future.

To chastise someone means to hurt a living being in order to make him feel the pain; it does not mean to kill him, for death prevents feeling the pain of the chastisement. Every tyrannical town must suffer a certain kind of chastisement. In fact, the severity and the strength of that chastisement are proportional to the power of the one who undertakes it. By analogy, if the One Who punishes the people is Allah the Almighty can anyone bear that punishment?

The chastisement is described at one time as painful and another time as disgraceful and yet a third time as severe. Each of these kinds of punishment has its ill effect on the punished one. The disgraceful punishment is what humiliates the soul and the painful one is intended for the body itself. In fact, the human being has both a physical and a spiritual side. The painful punishment befalls the physical side and the disgraceful one befalls the spiritual side. As for the severe punishment, it is the unbearable torment. Evidently, the severity and the strength of the punishment differ according to the punisher; if he is weak, then his punishment is also weak, and if he has an average strength, then his punishment will be the same. But if the punisher is strong, then his punishment must also be strong and severe. In this regard, Allah the Almighty says: ‘If only the idolaters could see – as they will see when they face the torment – that all power belongs to Allah, and that Allah punishes severely’ (al-Baqara: 165). Hence, as soon as they see the punishment, they will know for sure that all the Power belongs to Allah and that He punishes severely. In this connection, He the Almighty says: '…and be careful (of your duty) to Allah, and know that Allah is severe in requiting (evil)' (al-Baqara: 196).

The punishment will befall them on a Day when no one will have the power of money, rank, or lineage to protect himself from Allah's punishment. So, if the corruption of the society stimulates you to disobey Him, you should fear His severe punishment in the Hereafter. Those who oppose Allah the Almighty and Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him deserve His unbearable punishment and chastisement. He says: 'Allah destroyed them on account of their faults; surely Allah is strong, severe in requiting (evil)' (al-Anfal: 52). Thus, Allah is Omnipotent over all what they are doing and His punishment is severe and painful.

As a matter of fact, the punishment befalls people inasmuch as they commit sins. So, Allah's severe punishment does not befall the one who has committed a minor sin; rather, the repayment of everyone is proportional to his sin. Despite the fact that His Punishment for some people is easier than His punishing of others, it will also be painful.

One of His severe Punishments prepared for those who rebelled against Allah's Way is Az-Zaqqum concerning which He the Almighty says: 'It is a tree that grows in the bottom of the Hell; [64] its produce is as it were the heads of the serpents. [65] Then most surely they shall eat of it and fill their bellies with it [66]' (as-Saffat: 64-66); and 'Surely the tree of the Zaqqum, [43] is the food of the sinful [44] like dregs of oil; it shall boil in their bellies [45]' (az-Zukhruf: 43-45).

Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him gave us a hint about the severe punishment of eating Az-Zaqqum, saying: 'If one drop of it fell on all the oceans of this worldly life, it would corrupt the livelihood of the people.'(1) Thus, one drop of Az-Zaqqum is enough to corrupt the sustenance of the people because they would not benefit from the great, vast oceans, including their water and animals. So, what about the one whose food is Az-Zaqqum?

If Allah the Almighty has prepared a painful punishment, then it is fitting here that He commands them to fear Him, saying: 'Beware of Allah' (at-Talaq: 10). There is something wonderful about the issue of piety. You sometimes find Allah the Almighty commands the people to fear Him and sometimes to fear the fire. So, how can we have the same attitude towards Him and the fire in which He will punish the disbelievers, even though the fire is one of His creations? In fact, His command to fear the fire means that we should not do what provokes His Anger so that we avoid the punishment of the fire. It is as if you have placed a barrier between you and the fire by abandoning sins and doing good deeds. Fire is one of the soldiers of Allah Who wants us to guard ourselves against its punishment by placing a barrier between us and His Attributes of Majesty. As the fire is one of the soldiers of punishment and is relating to His Attributes of Majesty, His command to fear Him equals His commands to fear the fire. We should take into account that the fire does not intrinsically chastise the disobedient people; rather, it chastises them according to His command.

Allah the Almighty says: 'And be mindful to Allah, and know that you will meet Him, and give good news to the believers' (al-Baqara: 223). This means that we should beware of provoking His Anger by avoiding the misdeeds. The pious Muslim should be certain that he will meet His Lord and should have no doubt about that. By so doing, he is given the glad tidings of the paradise. Thus, you should place a barrier between you and the Majestic Attributes of Allah the Almighty. His Attributes of Majesty includes His Mightiness, Compelling, and Revenge; and His Attributes of Beauty includes His Forgiveness, Mercy, Enriching, and Wisdom. Thus, we should protect ourselves against His Majestic Attributes in order to guard ourselves against the soldiers of these Attributes, including the hellfire.

Only the people of understanding comprehend that and thus maintain righteous conduct and fear Allah the Almighty. They know for sure that believing in Allah and being mindful of Him saves them from the severe punishment prepared for the insolently rebellious people. So, the saying of Allah the Almighty:

'So, you who have understanding…' (at-Talaq: 10) refers to the people with sound minds. The Arabic word lub (mind) linguistically refers to the core of a thing. The mind is called so because it gives us the essence and benefits of the matters. The outer cover of something preserves its core and what is preserved is more valuable than what covers and preserves it. Thus, the people of understanding are those who perceive the issues of faith with their reason and employ their minds in order to always remember these issues, as the preoccupations, pleasures and desires of the worldly life may divert the human being from Allah's Way of Guidance. That is why Allah the Almighty says: 'That those who have minds may take heed' (Ibrahim: 52). This means that the people of understanding remember that Allah is One God and there is no god except Him. The minds of such people guard them against following the whims, as the defect of the reason is following the whims and inclining towards what the soul desires. Thus, the mind judges the essence of the matter, not its exterior or inessential part. Thus, the people who employ their minds are those who can understand, think, and discern.

Further, Allah the Almighty addresses them in another verse, saying: 'Most surely there are signs in this for those endowed with understanding' (Ta Ha: 54). The mind is the faculty by which the process of sound selection is carried out. In Arabic, the word 'aql (mind) is derived from the rope by which you tie a beast so that it does not go astray and, similarly, the mind protects the one from going astray and following his whims. It bridles one's desires and disciplines them according to their mission in the worldly life. The mind forbids you from doing the evil actions and thus the person must have a sound mind that bridles his desires and stops them from transcending their assigned mission; otherwise, following these desires will cause mischief in the universe. Thus, the mind commands the person not to follow his desires because he is not alone in this worldly life; so, what would happen if all the people did the same?

Therefore, the mind tells you the realities of the mattes so that you may have a deeper and a broader understanding. It is the scale that strikes the balance between all the matters and prevents the person from being superficial in his thinking.

Allah, Gloried is He, draws people's attention to the importance of the minds so that they employ them in the matter of faith, for they support the issue of believing in Him the Almighty and guide the human being to what is good for him. Employing the mind means to try to understand the laws of the universe in order to arrive at the Causer of these effects, that is, the Creator of this creation. That is why He Glorified is He says: ‘Will they not understand?’ (al-Mu’minun: 80) and says: ‘Will they not come to know?’ (as-Sajda: 4) Allah Glorified is He urges the human being to reflect, think and ponder. Had the Quran attempted to deceive the human being, it would not have attracted his attention to the necessity of reflection, thinking and pondering. Commanding them to use their intellectual capabilities affirms the fact that if they use their minds and follow the premises that they take for granted, they will attain to belief in Allah the Almighty.

The Arabic word ‘aql (mind) is derived from the word ‘uqaal which is the rope by which the legs of the camel are tied so that it does not stand up. Likewise, the mind's mission is to control the faculties of the body because every faculty has its inclinations. The eye, for instance, has the ability to see everything, so the mind prevents it from seeing certain harmful scenes. Likewise, the ear likes to hear everything, so the mind forbids it from listening to harmful things. Thus, the mind regulates the functions of the rest of the organs. Further, Allah the Almighty describes the mind as lub (core) because it is concerned with the important matters and judges the matters wisely to discover their essence.

So, who are the people of understanding? Allah the Almighty provides the answer, saying: ‘You who have understanding, you who believe…’ (at-Talaq: 10). Thus, they are the believers who have believed in Allah the Almighty and pledged the covenant of faith by believing in Him and in His Messengers without any doubt in their belief. They also believed that the Quran is a revelation from Allah the Almighty and that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him is the Messenger who conveys Allah’s revelation.

They believed in Allah as a Lord, God and a Creator and therefore they deserved to be described as the people of understanding. So, following their belief in Him, they obeyed His commands and adhered to His Way, avoiding any unlawful activity. It is as if Allah the Almighty is saying, ‘You who believed in Me, out of your own accord, as your God Who possesses the Attribute of Knowledge, Power, Wisdom and Lordship; as long as you believed in Me, then obey My Commands.' With regard to His saying: '…you who believe…' (at-Talaq: 10), He does not specify the matters that they believe in because the person is a believer in Allah, and thus he is required to look for what He wants from him, which is conveyed by a Messenger from Him. Thus, believing in Allah entails believing in His Messenger because the ultimate of what the mind arrives at is that there is a God Who has created the universe and is managing it. Further, your belief in a Messenger entails believing in the Book that he brought as well as believing in the angels.

The believers are the people of understanding because they soundly used their minds to attain to their belief in Allah, His Messenger, and His Book. They did not allow their whims to divert them from the Truth. Allah the Almighty wants us to be restricted by our minds from the chaos in our pursuit to satisfy the desires of the soul. Thus, He stops you from following your desires by endowing you with intellectual capabilities.

Then, Allah the Almighty says: 'He has sent you the Quran' (at-Talaq: 10). The Arabic particle qad is used for affirming an action if it is followed by a verb in the past tense. If it is followed by a verb in the present tense, then it means that the action is likely to happen if there are logical reasons to support that; otherwise, the action is deemed unlikely to happen.

Sending down the Quran means that it descended from on high. Everything has come into existence according to the Will of Allah the Almighty to directly or indirectly serve the interests of the human being.

You should not consider the term 'sending down' of the Quran in a physical sense, but consider its abstract meaning of supremacy. In truth, it is unlike sending down the rain from the sky. The latter is sensual as the water falls from the sky and mixes with the earth so that the plants grow. Sustaining the people by the rain and the earth is decreed by the Supreme Creator. In this vein, Allah the Almighty says: 'We sent Our Messengers with clear signs, the Scripture and the Balance so that people could uphold justice: We also sent iron, with its mighty strength and many uses for mankind' (al-Furqan: 75). He the Almighty has sent His Messages to the Prophets in order to reform the life of the people. Further, He has sent iron that we extract from the mountains and the earth, but sending here means to bring something into existence for the interest of the people.

Allah the Almighty has sent His Way of Guidance to straighten the life of the human being as well as the life of his offspring if they follow it. It shows us the good way and takes us away from the evil one. Besides, this Way of Guidance, conveyed by Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him informs us that Allah Glorified is He has created the universe for us and tells us about what He wants from us and how we should worship Him. It guides us to the right direction and draws up our lifestyle in order to ensure the good life of the human being on earth.

So, when you hear the word (sent down), you will find it always attributed to Allah, as in His saying: 'We sent it down on the Night of Glory' (al-Qadr: 1). The Arabic verb anzal (to reveal) is only attributed to Allah the Almighty but the verb nazzal (to descend) can be attributed to the angels, while the verb nazzal (to bring down) is attributed to the one trusted with revelation, that is, Jibril (Gabriel) peace be upon him.

In Arabic, the verbs anzal, nazal and nazzal all mean to send down. However, each verb has an extra indication. The verb nazal refers to the revelation of the Scripture and to the One Who brought it down. In this regard, Allah the Almighty says: 'The Faithful Spirit has descended with it' (ash-Shu'ara': 193), and He also says: 'And with truth have We revealed it, and with truth did it come…' (ash-Shu'ara': 193). The two verbs 'to reveal' and 'come down' show that the Quran was revealed from a high supreme position.

He the Almighty also says: 'And who believe in that which has been revealed to you and that which was revealed before you and they are sure of the Hereafter' (al-Baqara: 4); and He says in another verse: 'And We have not revealed upon you the Book except that you may make clear to them that about which they differ, and (as) a guidance and a mercy for a people who believe' (an-Nahl: 64). Sometimes, we find that the verb anzal (to reveal) is followed by the preposition 'ala (upon) or ila (to). Some scholars say that when Allah the Almighty addresses Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him the verb is followed by the preposition 'upon', as in His saying: 'And We have not revealed upon you the Book except that you may make clear to them that about which they differ, and (as) a guidance and a mercy for a people who believe' (an-Nahl: 64). Those scholars, unintentionally, differentiate between Allah's Address to Prophet Muhammad and His Address to the ummah. They do not realise that the purpose of revealing it to him peace and blessings be upon him is only to guide the people. Therefore, we should consider that the purpose of the address – whether the verb is followed by the preposition 'upon' or 'to' – is that the Quran is revealed for both Prophet Muhammad and his ummah, as is the case in His saying: 'And We have not revealed upon you the Book except that you may make clear to them that about which they differ, and (as) a guidance and a mercy for a people who believe' (an-Nahl: 64).

In another verse, Allah the Almighty states: 'And indeed He has revealed to you in the Book that when you hear Allah's communications disbelieved in and mocked at do not sit with them until they enter into some other discourse…' (an-Nisa': 140). In this sense, the verse means that this Glorified Book was revealed from the heaven in order to serve the higher interests of people so that they show great reverence to it as it was only revealed for their best interest.

Accordingly, when the verb 'to reveal' is followed by the preposition 'upon', it signifies that the Book is revealed from a supreme position, the heaven; and when it is followed by the preposition 'to', it means that it is revealed by Allah the Almighty to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him so that he conveys it to the believers in order to serve their interests.

In the verse in question, Allah the Almighty says: 'He has sent you the Quran' (at-Talaq: 10). The Arabic word Adh-Dhikr (The Reminder or the Quran) linguistically means to recall or memorise something. It may also mean to say something as one cannot say anything unless he recalls it. Further, it may refer to the Glorious Quran, a fact which is clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty: '…and We have revealed to you the Reminder that you may make clear to men what has been revealed to them, and that haply they may reflect' (an-Nahl: 44). Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him was the first one who put the Quran into practice and his Sunnah is also considered a part of the Reminder. When the word 'Reminder' is stated without any other description, it then refers only to the Quran, as in Allah's saying: 'This We recite to you of the communications and the wise reminder' (ar-Ra'd: 9).

The Arabic word adh-dhikr may also mean reputation and fame. In this connection, Allah the Almighty addresses Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him saying: ‘And most surely it is a reminder for you and your people, and you shall soon be questioned’ (az-Zukhruf: 44). This means that the Quran is a great honour which shall give him and his people established reputation till the Day of Judgement. Further, He the Almighty addresses the believers, saying: ‘We have certainly sent down to you a Book in which is your mention’ (al-Anbiya’: 10). The honour of the Quran is everlasting as it is continuously recited with different modes of recitation, a fact which is clear in His saying: ‘By the Quran with its reminding…’ (Sad: 1).

It may also refer to all the Scriptures revealed to all Messengers of Allah, as He the Almighty says: ‘Their reckoning has drawn near to men, and in heedlessness are they turning aside. [1] There comes not to them a new reminder from their Lord but they hear it while they sport [2]’ (al-Anbiya’: 1-2); and He also says: ‘And certainly We gave to Musa (Moses) and Harun (Aaron) the Furqan and a light and a reminder for those who would guard (against evil)’ (al-Anbiya’: 48).

Adh-Dhikr also means to remind. In this sense, Allah the Almighty has sent the Quran to remind the people about their Lord and Creator and to do what pleases Him. It attracts their attention towards believing in Him and obeying Him. Indeed, the Quran is an honour for them. Further, He the Almighty addresses Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him saying: ‘Alif Lam Mim Sad. [1] A Book revealed to you – so let there be no straitness in your breast on account of it – that you may warn thereby, and a reminder close to the believers. [2] Follow what has been revealed to you from your Lord… [3]’ (al-A‘raf: 1-3). This Book was revealed to him because he was sent to the people to warn them if they deviated, and to remind, guide, help and give glad tiding for the believers.

Allah the Almighty says that He has sent the Quran to be followed because it is the Divine Way of Guidance that was prescribed for reforming the worldly life. So, the people should follow what was sent to them from their Lord. You should not follow any other path like what most people do through setting man-made laws according to their desires. For example, some governments attempt to impose capitalism by force. These man-made legislations cannot be compared to the Legislations of Allah, because they are human ideas that contradict other human ideas. What is better than that is to receive our legislations from the One Whom we do not disdain to be His servants, that is, Allah the Almighty.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says:

رَّسُولٗا يَتۡلُواْ عَلَيۡكُمۡ ءَايَٰتِ ٱللَّهِ مُبَيِّنَٰتٖ لِّيُخۡرِجَ ٱلَّذِينَ ءَامَنُواْ وَعَمِلُواْ ٱلصَّٰلِحَٰتِ
مِنَ ٱلظُّلُمَٰتِ إِلَى ٱلنُّورِۚ وَمَن يُؤۡمِنۢ بِٱللَّهِ وَيَعۡمَلۡ صَٰلِحٗا يُدۡخِلۡهُ جَنَّٰتٖ تَجۡرِي
مِن تَحۡتِهَا ٱلۡأَنۡهَٰرُ خَٰلِدِينَ فِيهَآ أَبَدٗاۖ قَدۡ أَحۡسَنَ ٱللَّهُ لَهُۥ رِزۡقًا ١١

And a messenger – reciting to you God's revelations that make things clear – to bring those who believe and do righteous deeds from darkness into light. God will admit those who believe in Him and do righteous deeds into Gardens graced with flowing streams, where they will remain for ever — He has made good provision for them[11]

The word 'Messenger' here is a substitution for the word Dhikr (Reminder). The messenger here is Jibril (Gabriel) peace be upon him. So, both the Quran and Jibril (Gabriel) are sent down because the latter was sent with the Quran to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. Thus, Jibril (Gabriel) is the Messenger of Allah from among the angels to the Messenger of Allah from among the human beings. He the Almighty describes him as: 'The Faithful Spirit has descended with it' (ash-Shu'ara': 193). Therefore, he is the Holy Spirit trusted with delivering the Quran to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him.

One of the great Bounties of Allah the Almighty is that He has sent Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him to us to recite the verses of the Quran in order to attract people's attention to the universal signs. He the Almighty says elsewhere: '…a Messenger from among themselves, reciting to them His communications and purifying them…' (Al-'Imran: 164). Thus, Prophet Muhammad's mission was not confined to reciting the verses of the Quran so that the people admire them; rather, he peace and blessings be upon him was assigned to draw the listeners' attention to the One Who has created this marvellous universe and its wonderful signs. There is a difference between the recitation of the verses and teaching them. The recitation means that he peace and blessings be upon him reads the Quran to them, but teaching it entails that the listeners become able recite it themselves. So, He the Almighty says: '…and teaching them the Book and the wisdom…' (Al-'Imran: 164). Teaching means to transmit knowledge from the teacher to the student.

The revelation used to descend to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him with some revelations up to forty verses or three-quarters of a hizb (section). When the revelation of these verses ends, he recites them to his Companions in order that they write them down and memorise them. So, the scribes write them down and they, along with other Companions, memorise them. So, they were the ummah of memorisation and narration.

Thus, the recitation of the Quran is just to read it, whereas teaching its verses means to know their meaning and the commands they carry in order to apply them. Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him was brought up among the people of Mecca and it is known that he could neither read nor write, and that he did not go to a teacher. Reading is the synonym of recitation because we do not recite except what is written down and is meaningful. Therefore, Allah the Almighty commands him peace and blessings be upon him to recite the Quran to all people whether they believe in him and in the Quran or not. This recitation constitutes a Call to Islam.

When Allah the Almighty says: 'These are the revelations of Allah which We recite to you [Muhammad] with the truth' (al-Baqara: 252), He refers to His wonderful signs. The signs of Allah the Almighty are of three kinds:

1- The universal signs that are the wonderful phenomena in the cosmos about which He the Almighty says: 'And from His signs is the night and day and the sun and the moon…' (Fussilat: 27); and: '…one of His signs is that He created mates for you from yourselves' (ar-Rum: 21).

2- The miracles that prove the veracity of the Messengers while conveying the Divine Messages. The miracles go against the laws of nature that the people are familiar with and that is why they attract people's attention. An example of this is when Ibrahim (Abraham) peace be upon him was thrown into the fire, and then Allah the Almighty saved him. The primary purpose of this incident is not to save him from the fire because Allah the Almighty could have made them unable to catch him in the first place. Further, if He had willed, He could have quenched the fire with rain. However, this was intended to be a miracle to prove his truthfulness. He the Almighty has ordered the fire, saying: 'O fire! Be a comfort and peace to Ibrahim (Abraham)' (al-Anbiya': 69).

3- The verses of the Holy Quran are also called signs. As long as the Quranic verses, the miracles and the universal signs are all from Allah the Almighty then no contradiction can happen among them. This is due to the fact that the One Who has created the universe, sent the Messengers with the miracles, and revealed the Quran is One God. If this were not the case, the contradiction would happen among these signs.

The word 'sign' is used to refer to the wonderful and attractive things. You may say, for example, that so and so is a sign in beauty, which means that his beauty is attractive. You may also say, 'So and so is a sign in smartness,' which signifies that his smartness is wonderful. Thus, the sign is that the human being reflects on its wonderfulness for a long time.

Thus, the signs are either seen in the cosmos or recited in the Quran. The Quran explains the signs of the universe and the universe reciprocally explains the verses of the Quran. Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him came with the verses of the Quran to attract people's attention to the seen signs in the universe. The wonderfulness of the signs of the universe is represented in the precision of the creation.

Thus, he peace and blessings be upon him has a religious mission which is to attract the attention of the listeners of the Quran to the Creator of this marvellous universe which is full of wonderful signs. Then, he peace and blessings be upon him should inform them about the Way of Guidance that corresponds with the marvelousness of the universe. By so doing, he peace and blessings be upon him conveys the Divine Way that purifies and elevates the human being.

In fact, Islam is the path of light whose principles are clear. Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him has conveyed it perfectly, clearly and comprehensively in a way that encompasses all the matters of life. With regard to the saying of Allah the Almighty: '…that make things clear…' (at-Talaq: 11), it means that the Quranic verses prove for the one who listens to and reflects on them that they are Allah's revelations. These verses are clear in themselves and illustrate for the people the rulings that they need to regulate their lives.

Hafs recited the Quranic word Mubayanat as Mubayinat (clarifying) which means that the Quranic verses clarify the rulings that the people need. The majority of the reciters of the Quran recited it as Mubayanat (clarified) which means that these verses are clarified by Allah the Almighty as He says elsewhere: 'We have made the communications clear to you…' (Al-'Imran: 118). This means that He the Almighty clarifies through these verses what is lawful and what is unlawful. Furthermore, He the Almighty says: 'And certainly We have sent to you clear communications…' (an-Nur: 34). So, these clear verses guarantee a life of honour and purity for Allah's Vicegerent on earth. They address and regulate all the matters of life; there is no matter that the Islamic legislation does not regulate, so no one is excused for violating it.

In this regard, 'Ali ibn Abu Taleb said about the Quran, 'It contains the rulings that judge between you; the news of what happened before you; and what will happen after you. It is the Criterion (between right and wrong) without jest. Whoever among the oppressive abandons it, Allah crushes him and whoever seeks guidance from other than it, Allah leaves him to stray.'(1) The time keeps confirming this statement. Consider the fate of all the ideas, ideologies, parties and the capitalist and the communist states that attempted to destroy the religion of Islam; all of these ideologies, beliefs, and states declined before people's eyes.

Indeed, whoever among the oppressive people abandons it, Allah the Almighty crushes him, and whoever seeks guidance from a source other than it, He the Almighty leaves him to stray. He the Almighty is your Creator and He knows best what is in your interest. So, it is not appropriate to be one of His creatures and then you become arrogant and set laws for yourself.

(1) This Hadith is narrated on the authority of 'Ali ibn Abu Taleb Allah be pleased with him. See: At-Tirmidhi, Sunnan, Hadith no.2906; Al-Bazzar, Musnad, Hadith no. 636; Ad-Darimi, Sunnan, Hadith no. 3331; and Ibn Abu Shayba, Musannaf, Hadith no. 30629.

The meaning of the saying of Allah the Almighty: '…that makes things clear…' (at-Talaq: 11) is that His revelations are the clear verses that straighten the movement of life. In fact, life necessitates that everyone undertakes his mission and that people's activities become supportive not conflicting. What causes people to suffer is that some of them build, while others destroy. The intended outcome of these verses is stated in His saying: '…to bring those who believe and do righteous deeds from darkness into light…' (at-Talaq: 11).

Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him was sent to bring the people out of the darkness of disbelief into the light of belief. In order that his people could understand his Message, he was selected from among them and shared their cultural norms. For this reason, Allah Glorified is He states: 'Certainly Allah conferred a benefit upon the believers when He raised among them a Messenger from among themselves, reciting to them His Messages and purifying them, and teaching them the Book and the wisdom, although before that they were surely in manifest error' (Al-'Imran: 164).

Thus, the Quran was revealed to bring the people out of the darkness of disbelief into the light of belief in order to lead their lives upon guidance and insight. Allah Glorified is He makes a comparison between the believers and the disbelievers, saying: 'Allah is the guardian of those who believe. He brings them out of the darkness into the light; and [as for] those who disbelieve, their guardians are the devils who take them out of the light into the darkness' (al-Baqara: 257). The Lord Glorified is He is the Ally of the believers Who cannot leave them in the darkness of polytheism and disbelief; rather, He brings them out of that darkness into the light of belief, monotheism and obedience. Hence He the Almighty is the Guardian of the believers in all their affairs; He loves, supports and grants them victory. Accordingly, He Glorified is He brings them out of the darkness of ignorance into the light of belief. On the other hand, the allies of the disbelievers, that is the false gods and the devils, take them out of the light into the depths of darkness.

Hence, the believers followed the way of peace and pleased Allah Glorified is He. In this regard, He the Almighty says: 'Allah guides those who follow what pleases Him to the ways of peace and brings them out of darkness [lit. darknesses] into light' (al-Ma'ida: 16) meaning, whoever follows what pleases Him the Almighty Allah will be pleased with him and will guide him to the ways of peace as a reward for him. Such good people are brought out of darkness into light. Darkness, as we know, is the state where collision is likely to happen.

When Allah Glorified is He brings them out of darkness into light, the believers are able to distinguish between the Righteous Path leading to goodness and the other paths that lead to evil. We should take into account that He the Almighty says that He brings the believers out of darkness using the plural 'darknesses', but He does not say He brings them into lights, that is He does not use 'light' in the plural form; rather, He uses it in the singular form, 'light'. This is due to the fact that light is only one and cannot be numerous. The darkness, on the other hand, overwhelms any place devoid of light and it can be found everywhere. Not only the material side but also the spiritual side of the worldly life needs to be illuminated by the spiritual light of guidance. The light with which Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him came simultaneously enlightens the material and the spiritual sides for us not to collide with anything hidden in the darkness and for us to move on a clear path without colliding with any barriers.

Someone may ask, 'Why do people live in darkness? Why do they not incline towards the light?' We respond to this question, saying, 'Some people derive benefits when the rest of the people live in darkness. Such people, who forcibly appropriate people's properties and cause mischief on earth, are afraid of the callers who forbid them from doing injustice and call them to guidance using logic and reason. In fact, the unjust person hates the Call to faith as well as its callers. Such people have become accustomed to living in darkness and chaos, and causing mischief to others. When the true religion came, they turned away from its light because it deprives them of their delusive pleasures of living in darkness and error, and because it guides other people from whose misguidance they derive benefits'.

Darkness is the place where collision is likely to happen. When Islam brings the people out of darkness into the light, they are able to see the Righteous Path leading to goodness and the other paths leading to evil. Besides, their movements and activities will be supportive, not conflicting. Hence, all the causes of rancour and hatred among those who embrace Islam will come to an end. As a matter of fact, the spiritual darkness is stronger than the material one and, similarly, the spiritual light is stronger than the material one.

Allah Glorified is He brings only the believers who do righteous deeds out from darkness. Thus, every good deed must stem from one’s Belief, that is, the believer's activities in life should be consistent with the Will of Allah the Almighty and with his Belief. Consequently, Belief is the source of every righteous deed.

When Allah Glorified is He says: ‘Those who believe...’ (at-Talaq: 11), He refers to the actions of the heart, and when He says: ‘…do righteous deeds…’ (at-Talaq: 11), He refers to the actions of the limbs. The actions of the heart along with that of the limbs achieve together a righteous behaviour that complies with Belief. In fact, having a profound Belief makes the toil of doing righteous deeds acceptable and easy for the believer. Thus, doing righteous deeds is the fruit of having a strong belief. The righteous deeds are the actions that comply with Allah’s Way of Guidance. The opposite of righteousness is corruption. The least form of righteousness is to leave what is good in the same state if you cannot make it better. As a matter of fact, no one can do all the righteous deeds, a fact which is clear in the saying of Allah Glorified is He: ‘But he who has done [whatever he could] of righteous deeds and has faith need have no fear of injustice or deprivation’ (Ta Ha: 112). But the Muslim is required to do righteous deeds to the best of his ability.

The lowest rank of righteousness is to leave what is good in the same condition by refraining from corrupting it. As a matter of fact, any action that serves man’s vicegerency on earth is a righteous deed. For example, paving the roads for people not to be tired; providing transportation for them to reach their destinations easily, and working on ending their concerns about the necessities of life are all forms of righteous deeds.

Allah’s Reward in the Hereafter will be on the grounds of believing and doing righteous deeds, a fact which is clearly manifested in His saying: ‘Allah will admit those who believe in Him and do righteous deeds into Gardens graced with flowing streams, where they will remain forever…’ (at-Talaq: 11).

In the worldly life, He Glorified is He wants us to lead the good life that He grants to those who obey Him by believing and doing righteous deeds. In fact, the believer lives in a state of tranquility due to his Belief. In addition, He Glorified is He will admit him into Gardens with flowing rivers.

The rivers flow from beneath the Gardens, indicating that the source of these rivers is under these Gardens which are full of plants and sublime buildings. According to human estimation, the water which the plants need causes harm to the buildings; but the Estimation of Allah Glorified is He is different as He prepares everything according to what befits His Omnipotence.

In the worldly life, people's buildings are harmed by water, but on the contrary, Allah designs, due to His Omnipotence, Gardens with flowing rivers without these rivers causing any harm either to the buildings or the plants. With regard to the rivers of the Gardens, He the Almighty says: '…and He has prepared for them Gardens beneath which rivers flow…' (at-Tawba: 100) and He also says: 'Gardens graced with flowing streams, where they will remain forever…' (at-Talaq: 11).

These rivers flow by themselves and they have no banks. They consist of numerous things that the human being desires, a fact which is crystal clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'Here is a picture of the Garden promised to the pious: rivers of water forever pure, rivers of milk forever fresh, rivers of wine, a delight for those who drink, rivers of honey clarified and pure, [all] flow in it…' (Muhammad: 15).

The problem with the water of the river in this worldly life is that it may become stagnant and, consequently, its smell changes and algae appear on it. That is why Allah Glorified is He says about the water of paradise: '…rivers of water forever pure…' (Muhammad: 15). He Glorified is He removes from the water of the Gardens all the defects that we see in the water of our worldly life. Moreover, the water of the Gardens flows forever without the banks that restrain it.

In this vein, Anas ibn Malik Allah be pleased with him narrated that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'You think that the rivers of the Garden flow in river beds dug in the earth. This is not true, for, by Allah, these rivers flow without river beds. One of their two banks is made of pearls and the other is made of rubies. The mud of these rivers is pure musk'. He was asked, 'What is pure musk?' He responded, 'It is the musk that has not been mixed with anything'.(1)

As far as the rivers of milk are concerned, they will be forever fresh. In this connection, the Arabs used to milk the she-camels and store the milk in containers made of goatskin. When the she-camels went far away for grazing or travelling and the Bedouin needed milk, his only option was to drink the stored one. He used to find its taste had altered, but he could not find anything else to drink. For this reason, Allah Glorified is He grants the believers rivers of milk which are forever fresh because they will live forever in these Gardens, as He says in the verse we are discussing: '…they will remain forever…' (at-Talaq: 11).

With regard to the rivers of the Garden, Allah the Almighty also says: '…rivers of wine, a delight for those who drink…' (Muhammad: 15). That wine is different from the wine of the worldly life which takes away one's reason. The wine of the Garden is delightful for those who drink it, unlike the wine in this worldly life. This is evident when you see the one who drinks wine, as he consumes the whole glass all at once. By contrast, when you drink a cup of mango juice, for example, you do not drink it all at once in order to enjoy its taste. The one who drinks wine in this worldly life, though, drinks it all at once. This is because if it is consumed quickly, its bitter and sour taste is less. Moreover, unlike the wine in the Hereafter, the wine of the worldly life takes away one's reason.

The fourth of these rivers is that of clarified honey. It is clarified and pure from any sand, pebbles, impurities or any other defects. It will be granted to the believers without any effort on their part. Thus, Allah Glorified is He will provide us in the Hereafter with the best kind of honey that we used to desire in this worldly life, but without its defects.

In the verse under discussion, Allah the Almighty says: '…they will remain forever (khalideen)…' (at-Talaq: 11) meaning the believers will dwell in the Gardens forever, for neither will the Gardens vanish nor will the believers be driven away from them. The Arabic word 'al-khulud' (eternity) which is derived from 'khalideen' (remain forever) means to live for a very long time and endlessly; it implies that living in the Gardens is not just for a long time, but it is endless. This fact is further illustrated in the saying of Allah Glorified is He: 'And as to those who are made happy, they shall be in the Garden, abiding in it as long as the heavens and the earth endure, except as your Lord please...' (Hud: 108). Here, about what heaven and what earth does Allah Glorified is He speak? Is it the heaven that we see and the earth that we live on? This is not possible as He says in another verse: 'On the Day when the earth shall be changed into a different earth and the heavens (as well)' (Ibrahim: 48). The earth on which we live, and the heaven that shadows us, will be destroyed on the Day of Judgment. This means there is no eternal or immortal life on this earth, and that is why we should neglect this fleeting worldly life and focus on the eternal life of the Hereafter. Paradise is the Promised Land where you live without means of sustenance; you will not cultivate, harvest or do anything to earn your provision. Rather, once you think about something, you will find it before you without any effort or toil.

(1) This Hadith is narrated on the authority of Anas ibn Malik Allah be pleased with him. See Abu Nu'aym, Hilyat Al-Awliya', 6/205; Ibn Abu Ad-Dunya, Sift Al-Janna, Hadith no. 66; and Ad-Daylami, Al-Firdaws Bi Ma'thur Al-Akhbar, Hadith no. 5412.

Allah the Almighty concludes the verse in question, saying: 'He has made good provision for them' (at-Talaq: 11). The word 'provision' here reminds us about the Promise that Allah Glorified is He has made for the pious people, saying: 'Allah will find a way out for those who are mindful of Him, and will provide for them from an unexpected source' (at-Talaq: 2-3). Thus, the pious person is provided abundantly in this worldly life from an unexpected source. The Lord the Almighty grants him provision for himself, the maintenance of his wife under his guardianship—or the alimony of his divorced wife—and for his children.

Furthermore, in the Hereafter, Allah Glorified is He will give the believers another provision, namely, Gardens with flowing rivers where they will remain forever. Concerning this abundant provision, Allah Glorified is He says: 'He has made good provision for them' (at-Talaq: 11). Hence, He the Almighty will provide the believer abundantly with endless bliss in the Gardens of Paradise that contain many kinds of food, drinks and all what He has prepared for His righteous slaves.

Therefore, Allah, the Most Merciful, made a generous Promise, to reward those who believe in Him and do righteous deeds, of Gardens with flowing rivers where they will remain forever. The bliss of these Gardens will never run out or come to an end. No reward or provision is better than paradise, for it is incomparable with any bliss in this worldly life. He Glorified is He bestows His provision in both this worldly life and in the Hereafter, but His provision in the former is deemed little when compared with that of the latter, that is, paradise.

Allah Glorified is He does not say that He gave good provision to ‘them’, but He uses the singular form ‘him’ to indicate that every believer who does righteous deeds will have a special provision; it is not a general provision shared by all the believers. As a matter of fact, people vary concerning the provisions they receive in this worldly life and this will also be the case with the regards to their provision in paradise; they will have different food, drinks and houses. They will share, however, the state of eternity in paradise, and that is why Allah Glorified is He says: ‘…they will remain forever…’ (at-Talaq: 11), using the plural ‘they’. Hence, all of them will live eternally.

In many Quranic verses, Allah Glorified is He speaks about the provision in paradise; He, says, for example: ‘And convey good news to those who believe and do good deeds that they shall have gardens in which rivers flow. Whenever they shall be given a portion of the fruit thereof, they shall say, “This is what was given to us before”, and they shall be given the like of it’ (al-Baqara: 25). Both the chapter of at-Talaq and al-Baqara talk about the rivers and the provision of the Gardens whose fruits differ in taste and scent from that of the worldly life, although they share the same name. The people of the paradise will guess that this fruit may be a mango and that one may be a fig that they had eaten in the worldly life, but the fruits of paradise are totally different from that of the worldly life.

Moreover, the food of the people of paradise does not produce any wastes and the one may eat as much as he likes without discharging anything. This is because the fruits of this worldly life are different from that of the Hereafter with respect to how they are formed. Besides, while gaining the provision of this worldly life could be tiring, the provision of Allah Glorified is He in paradise is granted without having to rely on any means, and it is better than the provision of the worldly life that comes from pursuing means.

Inasmuch as Allah Glorified is He tells the believer that He has made for him a good provision, the believer should do righteous deeds. In this vein, the people of Qarun (Korah) advised him, saying: ‘Do not exult, surely Allah does not love those who exult [in riches]; And seek, by means of what Allah has given you, the abode of the future’ (al-Qasas: 76-77). Inasmuch as Allah the Almighty treats you benevolently, you should deal with other people kindly. You should forgive their faults and give good things to them to the same extent as you like Allah Glorified is He to forgive you your sins and give you of His Bounty.

Refraining from causing mischief on earth is an act of righteousness. In fact, corruption results from violating Allah’s Way of Guidance. In this connection, the Lord Glorified is He says: ‘…and do not corrupt the earth after it has been set right’ (al-An‘am: 56). Allah the Almighty has created everything in a good state in order to delight His creation. For this reason, you should abstain from corrupting anything in the universe. His Way of Guidance is needed to establish a good spiritual life which takes precedence over the material one. Thus, you should be disciplined towards the universe around you to the extent that if you could not increase its goodness, at least leave it as it is, without corrupting it.

Allah the Almighty then says:

ٱللَّهُ ٱلَّذِى خَلَقَ سَبْعَ سَمَٰوَٰتٍ وَمِنَ ٱلْأَرْضِ مِثْلَهُنَّ يَتَنَزَّلُ ٱلْأَمْرُ بَيْنَهُنَّ لِتَعْلَمُوٓا۟
أَنَّ ٱللَّهَ عَلَىٰ كُلِّ شَىْءٍ قَدِيرٌ وَأَنَّ ٱللَّهَ قَدْ أَحَاطَ بِكُلِّ شَىْءٍ عِلْمًۢا ﴿١٢﴾

It is God who created seven heavens and a similar [number] of earths. His command descends throughout them. So you should realize that He has power over all things and that His knowledge encompasses everything [12]
(The Quran, at-Talaq: 12)

The Divine Way of Guidance that the Lord the Almighty revealed to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him teaches us that He has created the human beings as well as the universe. In fact, the precision of creation indicates the Existence of a Great Creator.

Here, Allah Glorified is He reminds us about the greatness of the creation. In this regard, He says: ‘Allah has raised up the heavens with no visible supports and then He established Himself on the Throne; He has subjected the sun and the moon each to pursue its course for an appointed time; He regulates all things, and explains the signs in detail so that you may be certain of meeting Him’ (ar-Ra‘d: 2), and: ‘Allah, to Whom belongs whatever is in the heavens and whatever is in the earth; and woe to the unbelievers on account of the severe chastisement’ (Ibrahim: 2), and: ‘Allah is He Who created the heavens and the earth and sent down water from the clouds, then brought forth with it fruits as a sustenance for you. And He has made the ships subservient to you, that they might run their course in the sea by His command, and He has made the rivers subservient to you. He has made subservient to you the sun and the moon pursuing their courses, and He has made subservient to you the night and the day. He gives you all that you ask Him; and if you count Allah’s Favours, you will not be able to number them; most surely, man is very unjust, very ungrateful’ (Ibrahim: 32-34).

Allah Glorified is He tells us that He has created the heavens and earth and explains that the heavens are seven, and that is why they are used in the plural form, while the word ‘earth’ is used in the singular, a point which is clear in His saying: ‘Surely your Lord is Allah, Who created the heavens and the earth in six Days…’ (al-A‘raf: 56). However, in the chapter of at-Talaq, He the Almighty says: ‘It is Allah who has created seven heavens and of the earth the like of them’ (at-Talaq: 12). Here arises a question, which is, ‘Why does He mention the heavens in the plural, while the earth is mentioned in the singular? Why does Allah not say, ‘seven earths’ using the plural form?’ He Glorified is He does not use the Arabic word ‘aradin’ (earths) because it is heavy on the tongue and difficult to pronounce, but He mentions the Arabic word ‘as-samawat’ (the heavens) in the plural form because is it light and easy to pronounce. This is why, when Allah Glorified is He mentions the heavens, He says: ‘seven heavens’ (at-Talaq: 12). On the contrary, He does not say, ‘seven earths’; rather, He says: ‘…and of the earth the like of them’ (at-Talaq: 12). This indicates that the earths are seven like the heavens, even if we literally consider that the heaven is what shadows you and that the earth is what you live on.

But where are the seven earths? The Quran tells us that the heavens are seven and Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him told us that he passed by them on the Journey of Ascension. He said that there is so-and-so in the first heaven and so-and-so in the second one, and so on. Given that the heaven is what shadows you and the earth is what carries you, then the heaven of the creatures living in the lowest heaven is the heaven that is immediately higher than theirs. Likewise, the lowest heaven is the heaven of those living on earth, and so on and so forth.

The heaven is a canopy, as Allah Glorified is He says: ‘And We made the heaven a well-secured canopy, and yet they turn away from its wonders’ (al-Anbiya’: 32). Thus, the Great Creator made the heaven a canopy that covers the whole earth and it is preserved without any visible supports. Accordingly, the Lord the Almighty says: ‘Allah has raised up the heavens with no visible supports’ (ar-Ra‘d: 2), and He says: ‘He created the heavens without any pillars that you can see, and put mountains upon the earth lest it might shake with you…’ (Luqman: 10). Hence Allah Glorified is He has created high heavens which are sustained by His Omnipotence without any supports. Another possible interpretation is that the verse implies the existence of supports for the heavens, but they are different from the ones that we are familiar with. That is to say that Allah the Almighty has raised the heavens using the laws of gravity. The verse could also mean that the heavens’ supports are invisible; when we look to the horizon, we find that the heaven has no supports.

The creation of the heavens and the earth is not an easy action except for Allah, the Omnipotent, Who has created mankind wonderfully. However, the creation of the heavens and the earth is more wonderful than the creation of man, as He says: ‘Surely the creation of the heavens and the earth is greater by far than the creation of mankind’ (Ghafir: 57).

Consequently, we come to know that Allah Glorified is He might have raised the heavens by so subtle and fine supports that our eyes cannot perceive them. These supports may be existent, but we cannot see them because we are restricted by the limitations of our sight. You should not be surprised to know that there could be invisible creatures because the eye, which is one of the means of perception, has its special law that enables it to see things and not see others.

Allah Glorified is He Who has created the seven heavens, is not one of the false gods or idols worshipped by the polytheists. These gods and idols cannot create anything, and that is why the Lord Glorified is He says to the polytheists: ‘Have you considered your associates which you call on besides Allah? Show me what part of the earth they have created, or have they any share in the heavens’ (Fatir: 40).

Allah's Perfect Omnipotence is evident in the creation of the heavens and earth; He says: ‘Do you not see how Allah has created the seven heavens one above another’ (Nuh: 15). He has created them one over the other with precision to the extent that the beholder sees no flaw in them, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: ‘Who created the seven heavens one above another; you see no incongruity in the creation of the Most Gracious. Then look again and again, can you see any disorder?’ (al-Mulk: 3) If the beholder looks again and again to the heaven, he finds no defects, cracks or flaws. This is the creation of the Creator Who wonderfully builds designs and adorns.

To continue, Allah Glorified is He says: ‘…and of the earth the like of them. His Command descends throughout them.’ (at-Talaq: 12) His command descends throughout the seven heavens as well as the seven earths. The command can refer to the revelation or the Divine Decree and the Predestination about who will live or die and who will become rich or poor. Allah's Command regulates all things; He, for example, sends water from the sky, causes the plants to grow and brings the day and night and summer and winter. Some scholars said that in every earth and heaven, there are some of Allah's Creatures, Commands and Decrees.

Then Allah Glorified is He says: ‘So you should realise that He has power over all things’ (at-Talaq: 12). Hence, Allah's Decree and Command descends throughout the heavens and earths in order for us to know the reality of His Power and Control and that He is Able to do anything He wants, for nothing can stop Him. Everything is subjected to His Will and Omnipotence, and to Him belongs the control of the heavens and earth as His Power is over all things. He has absolute Power over His Dominion so that if He wills to do something, it will definitely happen. There is no absolute power in the universe except Allah's Power, and only what He wills takes place. He is Able to eternalise His Divine Laws because no power can change this reality, as these Laws are prescribed by Allah Glorified is He Himself, and thus no one has the power to change them.

In fact, Allah the Almighty is eternally Powerful; He possessed this Attribute even before anything existed for Him to have power over. That is to say that He did not become powerful only after the creation of mankind; rather, He was Omnipotent even before creating them, and by virtue of His Power, they were created. He is unchangeable, and as a result He will remain Powerful and Existent in every moment and forever.

Allah the Almighty is eternally omnipotent. He has been Able to bring all His creation into existence and to give them what maintains their lives and preserves their species. Out of His Bounty, He provides everyone with provision, principles and morals they need. His command descends between the heavens and the earths in order for the people to know the reality of His Power and Control, and to know also that nothing is beyond His Power.

Allah Glorified is He then says: '…and that His knowledge encompasses everything' (at-Talaq: 12). He the Almighty is fully aware of everything, even one's thoughts. He knows what the ears hear, what the eyes see and what is in the people's chests. As His Knowledge encompasses all things, He knows all the feelings of human beings.

This all-inclusive Knowledge entails having Knowledge and Power over the people; they will not escape from either His Knowledge or His Power. The knowledge is required along with the power, and that is why He Glorified is He says: 'Surely, your Lord encompasses men' (al-Isra': 60). This comprehensive knowledge means that Allah the Almighty is fully aware of the people and is able to impose His commands on them.

at-Tahrim

In the Name of God, the Most Merciful, the Dispenser of Mercy

The chapter of at-Tahrim (1).

Allah(2) Glorified is He says:

يَٰٓأَيُّهَا ٱلنَّبِيُّ لِمَ تُحَرِّمُ مَآ أَحَلَّ ٱللَّهُ لَكَۖ تَبۡتَغِي مَرۡضَاتَ
أَزۡوَٰجِكَۚ وَٱللَّهُ غَفُورٞ رَّحِيمٞ ١

Prophet, why do you prohibit what God has made lawful to you in your desire to please your wives?
Yet God is forgiving and merciful [1]

What links Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him to his followers is not his name, Muhammad; rather, it is his being the Prophet and Messenger of Allah. Thus, every Muslim should call him with that title. Allah Glorified is He Who has created and selected him, distinguished Prophet Muhammad from other Prophets and even from the Messengers of firm resolve by addressing them with their names while addressing him peace and blessings be upon him with the honorary title of prophethood or Messengership. For example, Allah the Almighty says: ‘O Adam! Dwell you and your wife in the garden…’

(1) The chapter of at-Tahrim was revealed in Medina. It is chapter number 66 in the Quran and number 107 in terms of its revelation. It consists of 12 verses and was revealed after the chapter of al-Hujurat and before the chapter of al-Jumu‘a. It is also called ‘Lima Tuharrim’ (Why do you prohibit).

(2) The Islamic conception of ‘Allah’ is not the same as the Christian and Jewish conception of ‘God’. However, the word ‘Allah’ does not refer to a tribal god or the God of only Muslims; it refers to the Creator of the whole world, the One God (who has no son). We prefer, however, to use ‘Allah’ rather than ‘God’ as it has a unique character: it cannot be used to refer to any false gods and does not have any derivatives like goddess, gods, etc. It is a unique word used solely to describe the One God of this universe.

(al-Baqara: 35), and: ‘O Nuh (Noah)! Descend with peace from Us…’ (Hud: 48), and also: ‘O Ibrahim (Abraham)! You have already fulfilled the dream…’ (as-Saffat: 105), including: ‘O Musa (Moses)! I am Allah…’ (al-Qasas: 30), and: ‘O ‘Isa (Jesus), son of Mary, did you say to men…’ (al-Ma‘ida: 116), as well as: ‘O Dawud (David)! Surely We have made you a ruler in the land…’ (Sad: 26).

By contrast, Allah Glorified is He did not address Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him by his name; rather, He called him by his honorary title as a Messenger and a Prophet. Thus Allah Glorified is He has not made the way of addressing Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him like the way of addressing other Prophets and Messengers. If this is the case, we should not call him by his name; rather, we should call him by his title as a Prophet and a Messenger because these are the honorary titles that befit him.

When He Glorified is He addressed the most honourable people from among His creation, that is, His Messengers, He used their personal names. The personal name does not give any description because it only serves to specify the person, apart from his qualities. Thus Allah Glorified is He has addressed His Messengers with their names which only define their persons, but He has never called Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him by his personal name, as He used the title of prophethood or Messengership that gives an additional description about him. The reason is that Allah the Almighty wanted to tell us that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him believes in all the Messengers and that his Message abrogates theirs. Moreover, Prophet Muhammad deserves to be called by the title of the Messenger as it gives another description about him: he will remain the Messenger of Allah until the coming of the Hour.

In the verse in question, Allah the Almighty says: ‘O Prophet…’ (at-Tahrim: 1). The Quran mentions that Prophet Muhammad’s personal name is Muhammad and Ahmed. When someone is born, he is given a name. Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him has a name, a kunya (tecknonym) and a title. His name is Muhammad, which is mentioned four times in the Quran; firstly: ‘Muhammad is only a Messenger before whom many Messengers have gone…’ (Al-‘Imran: 144); secondly: ‘Muhammad is not the father of anyone from the men; he is Allah’s Messenger’ (al-Ahzab: 40); thirdly: ‘Muhammad is the Messenger of Allah…' (al-Fath: 29); and lastly: 'He will overlook the bad deeds of those who have faith, do good deeds, and believe in what has been sent down to Muhammad' (Muhammad: 2). In the Quran, he was called Ahmed only one time in Allah's saying: '…giving the good news of a Messenger who will come after me ['Isa (Jesus)], his name being Ahmad…' (as-Saff: 6).

Prophet Muhammad's kunya (teknonym) is Abu Al-Qasim and his honorary title is the 'Messenger of Allah'. When he was born, his grandfather named him by the most beloved name to him; He said that he named him 'Muhammad' (the praiseworthy) in order for him to be praised on earth and in the heaven.(1) When Prophet Muhammad's son, Al-Qasim, was born, his kunya (teknonym) became Abu Qasim (the father of Al-Qasim). Further, when Allah Glorified is He selected him to convey His Message to the creation, He gave him the title of Prophet and Messenger. These two titles are greatly dignifying for anyone if the people called him by them, let alone Allah Glorified is He. When we want to dignify the person we are addressing, we put some titles before his name, saying, for example, 'Your Master', 'Your Excellency', and, 'Your Majesty'.

In the verse under discussion, the Arabic word 'iyyoha' (O you!) preceded the name of the person who is being called, that is, 'an-Nabyy' (the Prophet) because it starts with the article 'al' (the). This is because in Arabic it is not possible to call someone by their name without mentioning the word 'iyyoha' (O you!) first. However, this does not apply to the Name Allah, as we call Him the Almighty with this Name without inserting the word 'iyyoha' in front of it, although His Name has the article 'al' at the beginning. It is as if He Glorified is He is Unique is everything, even in the way of calling Him.

Allah Glorified is He addresses Muhammad as a Prophet and a Messenger because he is like an ambassador between Him the Almighty and His creation; Prophet Muhammad was sent to convey the Divine Way of Guidance to the people in order that they follow it in their lives. In fact, a Messenger is the one who conveys a Divine Message, whereas a Prophet is the one sent by Allah the Almighty without any new laws, as he follows the laws of the Messenger who preceded him. A Prophet constitutes a role model and a good example for his people. In this regard, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him deserves the two titles. He is a Prophet because he was commanded to do certain acts of worship but he was not commanded to impose them on the people, and he is a Messenger because he was ordered to do certain obligations and was commanded to convey and impose them on the people.

The scholars said that a Messenger is necessarily a Prophet, but a Prophet is not necessarily a Messenger. This is true if the terminological meaning is considered; however, they are all sent by Allah Glorified is He. The Arabic word 'Nabi' (Prophet) is derived from the word 'naba'' (an important announcement) which refers to a great matter of which we should be heedful. The root of the word 'naba'' is 'nabwa', which refers to a high circular area in the middle of a flat place. When you say, for example, that you have seen so-and-so today, this is not called a 'naba'' because it is not an important piece of news. For this reason, Allah says about the Day of Judgment: 'What are they asking about? The momentous announcement (an-naba')' (an-Naba': 1, 2). 'An-naba'' is a momentous announcement that reaches all people.

As a matter of fact, Prophet Muhammad's prophethood is a mercy in itself and is the reason Allah keeps sending down His Mercy on the creation. He is a supreme example of good manners and ethics. Those who obey Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him are his true followers. A Prophet only comes to direct people's attention towards Allah's Way of Guidance that properly regulates their activities in the universe. The people themselves are the ones who benefit from it, and they suffer only when they deviate from the Divine Way.

Allah is the One Who selects His Prophets, and prophethood is superior to any worldly position. It is a Mercy from Allah the Almighty as He says about Al-Khidr (Khidr): 'They found one from among Our slaves on whom We had granted mercy from Us…' (al-Kahf: 65). Moreover, when the polytheists asked, 'Why was this Quran not revealed to a man of importance in the two towns?' (az-Zukhruf: 31), Allah the Almighty responded to them saying: 'Will they distribute the Mercy of your Lord?' (az-Zukhruf: 32) Here, mercy refers to prophethood. He the Almighty also says: 'Those who disbelieve from among the followers of the Book do not like, nor do the polytheists, that good should be sent down to you from your Lord, and Allah chooses whom He pleases for His special Mercy, and Allah is the Lord of Mighty Grace' (al-Baqara: 105).

Allah Glorified is He grants prophethood and shows His Mercy to whom He wills. Prophethood is a Divine Bounty and is considered the highest form of His Mercy which has been given to the people, being represented in the Prophets. It is a Mercy that He Glorified is He has distributed among the offspring of Ibrahim (Abraham) peace be upon him.

How can the polytheists distribute Allah's Mercy represented by prophethood while He is the One Who distributes even what is lower than it, that is, their provisions and livelihood in this worldly life? Therefore, His saying about Prophet Lut (Lot) peace be upon him: 'And We admitted him into Our Mercy; surely he was of the good' (al-Anbiya': 75) means that He the Almighty selected him as a Prophet because he was qualified for this mission. After all, He Glorified is He knows best where to place His Messages.

However, the climax of Allah's Mercy is embodied in sending the seal of the Prophets and the Messengers, namely, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. For this reason, He the Almighty addresses him, saying: 'We have not sent you except as a mercy to all people' (al-Anbiya': 107). This means, while the Messengers before him peace and blessings be upon him were a mercy to their people, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him is a mercy to all people. Hence, Allah's Message is a Mercy for which He singles out whoever He wills from among His slaves, a fact which is clear in His saying: 'Allah knows best where to place His Messages' (al-An'am: 124).

In order to differentiate between a Prophet and a Messenger, we say that both of them are sent by Allah the Almighty, but a Prophet does not come with a new Law; he is sent with the Law of the Messenger who preceded him. Proving that a Prophet is different from a Messenger, Allah the Almighty says: 'And We did not send before you any Messenger or Prophet, but when he desired…' (al-Hajj: 52). A Prophet is only sent to be a practical example for the implementation of the teachings conveyed by the Messenger who preceded him.

A Messenger sent by Allah the Almighty bears a new Message that includes new rulings and addresses new issues which were not addressed by the Message that preceded it; but a chosen Prophet is the one who applies what came in the previous Message. That is, the Prophets are practical examples who implemented the previous Messages, but they do not come with new Messages. By contrast, a Messenger is sent with a new Law to adhere to and apply; this is his additional mission. To sum up, the Lord Glorified is He has sent Messengers to convey and apply a Message and He has sent Prophets to be ideal examples of applying these Messages with which the previous Messengers were sent.

Back to the verse in question; Allah Glorified is He reproaches Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him saying: 'O Prophet [Muhammad], why do you prohibit what Allah has made lawful to you…' (at-Tahrim: 1). Allah the Almighty has reproached him many times in the Quran. This reproach, in fact, is in his interest and not against him, just like the father who reproaches his son for exhausting himself with studying, out of fear for him. An illustrative example for this is when the Lord the Almighty says in the chapter of 'Abasa: 'He frowned and turned away when the blind man came to him. And what could make him know that he will purify himself?' ('Abasa: 1-3) Here, Allah has reproached Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him because he left the believing man who came to ask him about some religious matters, calling instead the disbelievers, who denied his Message, to Islam; as if he chose the hard choice and left the easier one.

Thus, this reproach is in the interest of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and not against him, as some people mistakenly think when they try to understand this verse. Similarly, Allah the Almighty reproaches him, saying: 'O Prophet [Muhammad], why do you prohibit what Allah has made lawful to you…' (at-Tahrim: 1). This is because Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him made matters difficult for himself by prohibiting what is lawful for him. As we have said previously, this reproach is beneficial for him peace and blessings be upon him.

With regard to the case of Ibn Umm Maktum, for which Allah Glorified is He reproached Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him in the chapter of 'Abasa, we find that the Prophet peace and blessings be upon him realised that the weak people easily accepted his Message. And for this reason, he pre-occupied and exhausted himself by calling the disbelieving, arrogant masters of Quraysh, hoping that they might taste the sweetness of Belief. Thus, the reproach is in his best interest. Out of his keenness on guiding all the people to Islam, he used to deal with arrogant people kindly and leniently, hoping that he may win over their hearts.

As for the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘O Prophet [Muhammad], why do you prohibit what Allah has made lawful to you…’ (at-Tahrim: 1), it means that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him prohibited himself from what is lawful for the rest of the believers. The Lord the Most High explains to Prophet Muhammad that he should not prohibit what He has made lawful for him, which is in his interest. Of course, only He the Almighty is entitled to make something lawful or unlawful; no one should intervene in this matter. The human being, however, sometimes intervenes in Allah's Ruling by prohibiting what He made lawful or by permitting what He made unlawful. For this reason, Allah Glorified is He says: ‘O you who believe! Do not forbid the good things which Allah has made lawful for you…’ (al-Ma‘ida: 87).

But the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘O Prophet [Muhammad], why do you prohibit what Allah has made lawful to you…’ (at-Tahrim: 1) alludes to something that made Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him so angry that he refrained from certain lawful matters which he desired. We should note that he peace and blessings be upon him did not permit what the Lord the Almighty had made unlawful; rather, he prohibited for himself what Allah Glorified is He made lawful, which is not in his interest. It is as if Allah the Almighty is reproaching Prophet Muhammad for exhausting himself by doing this. That is, this reproach is in his interest.

As prohibition constrains the person, Allah the Almighty reproached Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him for constraining himself by prohibiting what He has made lawful for him, just as you may reproach your son who exhausts himself by staying up to study. Consequently, the reproach is beneficial to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. We should note that Allah Glorified is He made things lawful and others unlawful; consequently, you should not make what is unlawful permissible or what is lawful prohibited, as He the Almighty says: ‘Who has prohibited the embellishment of Allah which He has produced for His slaves and the good provisions?’ (al-A‘raf: 32)

We see that Allah the Almighty forbids Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him from constraining himself by prohibiting what Allah has made lawful for him in the same way that He will blame him if Prophet Muhammad—Allah forbid—permitted what He has made unlawful. Regarding this incident, 'Aisha Allah be pleased with her said that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him used to visit Zainab Bint Jahsh and to have honey there. So, 'Aisha and Hafsa agreed that the one whom Prophet Muhammad visited first should say, 'I notice that you smell of the Maghafir (gum of mimosa)'. Prophet Muhammad visited one of them and she said that to him, whereupon he said, 'I have had honey in the house of Zainab Bint Jahsh and I will never do that again'. Afterwards, the following verses were revealed: 'O Prophet [Muhammad], why do you prohibit what Allah has made lawful to you in your desire to please your wives? Yet Allah is Forgiving and Merciful. He has ordained a way for you [believers] to release yourselves from [such] oaths—Allah is your Helper: He is the All Knowing, the All-Wise. Prophet [Muhammad] told something in confidence to one of his wives. When she disclosed it [to another wife] and Allah made this known to him, he confirmed part of it, keeping the rest to himself. When he confronted her with what she had done, she asked, "Who told you about this?" He replied, "The All Knowing, the All-Aware told me". If both of you [wives] repent to Allah—for your hearts have inclined [away from/to what is right]—[all will be well]; but if you collaborate against him, [be warned that] Allah, He is his Protector, and so are Jibril (Gabriel) and all righteous believers, and furthermore, the angels will be his supporters. His Lord may well replace you with better wives if the Prophet [Muhammad] decides to divorce any of you: wives who submit to Allah, true believers, devout, who turn to Him in repentance and worship Him, given to Fasting/travelling [for their faith in Islam], whether previously married or virgins' (at-Tahrim: 1-5).

Thus, this story begins when Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him was in the habit of visiting all his wives after the Dawn Prayer. One narration states that Hafsa Bint 'Umar Allah be pleased with her was gifted a bottle of honey and she used to give some of it to Prophet Muhammad when he visited her. Therefore, 'Aisha became annoyed because Prophet Muhammad used to stay a long time with Hafsa. She asked a slave girl from Abyssinia called

Khadra' to see what he was doing when he went to Hafsa. The slave girl told 'Aisha about the matter of the honey, which made her jealous. She sent to the other wives of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and asked them to tell the Prophet that they smell Maghafir (gum of mimosa) on him, which Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him hated because of its bad smell and because it harmed the angel who used to bring the revelation to him. Thereupon, all his wives told him that they smelt the gum of mimosa on him. When he visited 'Aisha, she put her hand on her nose, whereupon he asked her, 'What is the matter with you?' She replied that she smelt the gum of mimosa. When she asked him if he had eaten it, he answered her negatively and told her that Hafsa had given him honey. She replied, 'You have had the honey of the bees which took their nectar from the gum of mimosa'. Thus, he took an oath to refrain from eating honey and he made it unlawful for himself.(1)

Allah the Almighty does not want Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him to do the same as Prophet Ya'qub (Jacob) peace be upon him who prohibited some matters for himself which Allah the Almighty had made unlawful. In this regard, the Lord Glorified is He says: 'All food was lawful to the children of Israel except that which Israel had forbidden to himself, before the Torah was revealed. Say, "Bring, then, the Torah and read it, if you are truthful"' (Al-'Imran: 93). That is, Israel, Prophet Ya'qub (Jacob) peace be upon him made unlawful for himself some kinds of food because he was allowed to do that or because He the Almighty approved his action.

When someone makes a vow, he commits himself to do what Allah the Almighty has not imposed on him. Israel only prohibited himself from some kinds of food before the revelation of the Torah, and these then became unlawful for the children of Israel as well. By contrast, the Lord the Almighty reproached Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him for prohibiting himself from what is lawful. His prohibition was not imposed on the believers; rather, Allah Glorified is He has established the following maxim: 'Who has prohibited the beautiful [gifts] of Allah which He has produced for His slaves and the provisions [which are] clean and pure?' (al-A'raf: 32). As long as Allah the Almighty has brought forth the adornments and good provisions, then He allows His slaves to enjoy them.

As for the saying of Allah the Almighty: '…in your desire to please your wives?' (at-Tahrim: 1), it indicates that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him prohibited what was lawful for him in order to please his wives. The word 'azwaj' (mates) is the plural of 'zawj' (mate), which means one mate that has something similar to the other mate. For this reason you should not think that it refers to two mates; rather, it refers to only one mate, as the Lord the Most High says: 'Then He made of him two mates (az-zawjain), the male and the female' (al-Qiyama: 39) meaning the male is one 'zawj' (mate), and the female is also one 'zawj'.

In fact, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him was the best one among the people, especially in terms of good treatment of his household and wives. To the best of his ability, he was keen on pleasing and treating them benevolently. However, Allah Glorified is He willed to correct the matter of his making what is lawful prohibited for himself. The husband should not prohibit what He the Almighty has made lawful for him in order to please his wives.

Allah Glorified is He concludes the verse, saying: 'Yet Allah is Forgiving and Merciful' (at-Tahrim: 1). This is a proof that He has forgiven Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him for prohibiting himself from what He has made lawful. The Lord the Almighty is Forgiving and Merciful; He forgives people's sins if they seek His Forgiveness. The Lord Glorified is He is so merciful that He does not hasten to punish the people for their sins out of His Compassion for them, and He loves those who repent to Him.

This means that Allah the Almighty is Forgiving and Merciful even to the one who delays repentance for a while, in order for him to join those who have faith and make up for what he has lost. Allah the Almighty forgives the previous sins of His slave if the slave wants to make amends for them. Allah Glorified is He is eternally All-Forgiving and All-Merciful; He possesses these Attributes even before anyone existed to forgive or for Him to show mercy to. His Attributes have been affirmed and He is the Unchangeable One Who can change anything. Time does not change Him; He is eternally All-Forgiving, All-Merciful, All Knowing and All-Wise.

In their absolute sense, the Attribute of Forgiveness and Mercifulness are only attributed to Allah the Almighty. These Attributes are manifested in accepting the repentance of the guilty and showing mercy to the wronged person. That is, Allah the Almighty is the All-Forgiving and the All-Merciful.

You should never say that so-and-so does not deserve Allah’s Forgiveness and Mercy because He the Almighty controls the affairs of the heavens and earth, and He is the One Who has made it obligatory on Himself to justly recompense the human beings with what they deserve. He has Absolute Power over the universe, and His Forgiveness and Mercy precede His Anger and Punishment. In this regard, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, ‘Before Allah created the creations, He wrote a Book [wherein is written], “My Mercy has preceded My Anger”. That Book is written with Him on His Throne’.(1)

Allah the Almighty then says:

قَدْ فَرَضَ ٱللَّهُ لَكُمْ تَحِلَّةَ أَيْمَٰنِكُمْ ۚ وَٱللَّهُ مَوْلَىٰكُمْ ۖ وَهُوَ ٱلْعَلِيمُ ٱلْحَكِيمُ ﴿٢﴾

He has ordained a way for you [believers] to release you from [such] oaths — God is your helper: He is the All Knowing, the Wise [2] (The Quran, at-Tahrim: 2)

Prescribing the expiation for one’s broken oaths preceded Prophet Muhammad’s oath to prohibit for himself some of what is lawful. We know that the Arabic particle ‘qad’, written before ‘has ordained’ in this verse, is used to affirm the action when it precedes a verb in the past tense. However, when it is used with the present tense, it indicates that the action is likely to happen if there are logical reasons to support that; otherwise, the action will be deemed unlikely to happen. This particle, however, affirms the action, even if the verb is in the present tense, when it is pertinent to any of the Attributes of Allah the Almighty as in His saying in the chapter of al-An’am: 'We know indeed that what they say certainly grieves you...' (al-An'am: 33), where the verb 'know' is preceded by the particle 'qad'.

(1) This Hadith is narrated on the authority of Abu Hurayra Allah be pleased with him. See Al-Bukhari, Sahih, Hadith no. 7554; Abu Ya‘la, Musnad, Hadith no. 6432; and Ibn Manda, Tawhid, Hadith no. 714.

Thus, Allah's Knowledge is eternal and no power or matter goes beyond His Knowledge. In the verse in the chapter of al-An'am, the particle 'qad' preceded the present tense, but it was used to affirm the action, as it is attributed to Allah the Almighty. Here, He Glorified is He wants to tell us that He eternally knows all that will happen.

Obligatory acts are what Allah the Almighty has imposed on us, like praying five times a day, fasting the month of Ramadan, giving zakat (prescribed alms) of 2.5% of one's property that reaches a certain amount after the lapse of one year, and performing the major Pilgrimage to the Sacred House once in a lifetime if the person is able to do this.

However, it is not obligatory that the Muslim does the supererogatory Prayers, fasts some days other than the month of Ramadan, gives more than the prescribed alms, or performs the major Pilgrimage more than one time or the optional minor pilgrimage. These are good deeds that the Muslim does out of his own accord and are the same type as the obligatory rites.

So, when Allah the Almighty says: 'They used to sleep but little in the night. And in the morning they asked forgiveness' (adh-Dhariyat: 17-18), does He make it obligatory on the believers to pray at night and sleep only a little? No, but whoever wants to attain to the level of excellence should do this. The ordinary Muslim has to only perform the obligatory prayers like the Evening Prayer, and he can sleep until the Dawn Prayer of the following day. On the contrary, the one who attained the level of excellence sleeps only a little at night.

The obligatory matter requires the existence of the one who ordains it, i.e. Allah the Almighty and the one on whom it is imposed. There is a subtle difference between fard and wajib, which both refer to an obligatory act. The former is imposed by Allah the Almighty, while the latter may be imposed by the person on himself. The person may oblige himself to do something that Allah the Almighty has not imposed on him.

An illustrative example of an act ordained by Allah (fard) is the dowry. The Lord Glorified is He made it obligatory for the husband to give the dowry to his wife, saying: ‘And to those, with whom you desire to enjoy marriage, give them their dowries (faridah) as appointed…’ (an-Nisa’: 24), using the word ‘faridah’ (dowries) which is derived from the word ‘fard’ (obligatory act ordained by Allah). Therefore Allah the Almighty is the One Who made it obligatory for the husband to give the dowry to his wife. After that, Allah the Almighty says: ‘…and there is no blame on you if, after [having agreed upon] this lawful due (faridah), you mutually agree upon something [else]…’ (an-Nisa’: 24). We notice here the difference between the rights imposed by Allah the Almighty and the matters for which He has left the door of generosity open. The wife is entitled to take the dowry, but she can willingly refuse to take it. Besides, the husband can give her more than the dowry. These cases are addressed in His saying: ‘Do not forget to be generous towards one another’ (al-Baqara: 237). Thus, the husband and the wife are not blamed for what they mutually choose to do after fulfilling the obligation.

Furthermore, Allah the Almighty says at the beginning of the chapter of an-Nur: ‘(This is) a chapter which We have revealed and made obligatory (faradna)…’ (an-Nur: 1). The obligatory act (fard), from which the word ‘faradna’ (We made obligatory) is derived, is one of His Rulings that the person is obliged to do. Moreover, He the Almighty says: ‘And if you divorce them before you have touched them and you have appointed (faradtum) for them a portion, then (pay to them) half of what you have appointed’ (al-Baqara: 237). In this case, the husbands have to give half of what they had fixed. Therefore, every matter has a ruling in the Islamic Shari’a which is ordained wisely by Allah the Almighty. What the husband has imposed on himself in this case is different from Allah’s Obligation of the five pillars of Islam, for example.

The meaning of Allah’s saying: ‘(This is) a chapter which We have revealed and made obligatory (faradnaha)…’ (an-Nur: 1) is that He made the rulings mentioned in this great chapter obligatory. He has sent it down and obligated us to act on its rulings. With regard to His saying: ‘Allah has ordained a way for you (farada…lakum) [believers] to release yourselves from [such] oaths…’ (at-Tahrim: 2), it means that Allah has ordained this obligation to achieve the interest of the Muslims in order for them to find a way to release themselves from the oaths that they took but then caused hardship for them.

Thus, Allah Glorified is He clarified the way for the Muslims to release themselves from the oaths that they have taken. Some scholars said that if the verb 'farad' (to obligate) is followed by the preposition ''ala' (on), then the command only indicates an obligation, as when He the Almighty says: 'We know what We have obligated on them (faradna 'alaihim)' (al-Ahzab: 50). But if that verb is followed by the preposition 'lam' (for), as in the verse under discussion in the chapter of at-Tahrim, then the command may indicate either a clarification or an obligation.

We should take into account that Allah's saying: 'O Prophet [Muhammad], why do you prohibit what Allah has made lawful to you…' (at-Tahrim: 1) addresses Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him specifically, but when He talks about the obligatory expiation of the broken oath, He addresses all the Muslims. For this reason, the scholars held different views about whether Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him expiated for his broken oath or not, and whether the command is directed to only the rest of the Muslims.

In this regard, Al-Hasan Al-Basri maintained that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him did not expiate for his oath because Allah the Almighty had forgiven his past and future sins.(1) This verse carries certain teachings to the believers in general. Was Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him taking the oath of refraining from eating honey to please his wives a sin? And is it right to say that it is a sin, but Prophet Muhammad was not required to expiate for it because Allah the Almighty had forgiven his past and future sins?

In the same vein, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said to a few men from the Ash'ariyyin tribe, 'By Allah, I will not give you any mount; besides, I do not have anything to mount you on'. But after that a few camels from the war booty were brought to him, and he asked about them, saying, 'Where are the group of the Ash'ariyyin?' He ordered for five fat camels to be given to them, and then they set out. But they said, 'What have we done? We made Prophet Muhammad forget his oath. By Allah, we will never be successful'. Consequently, they returned to him and reminded him of his oath. He said, 'I have not provided you with the mount, but Allah has provided you. By Allah, I may take an oath to do something but on finding something else which is better, I do that which is better and make an expiation for my oath'.(1)

Allah Glorified is He revealed the following verse concerning them: 'Nor (is there blame) on those who, when they came to you to be provided with mounts, you said, "I cannot find that on which to carry you"; they went back while their eyes overflowed with tears on account of grief for not finding that which they could spend' (at-Tawba: 92). Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him did not have mounts for them to ride, so they turned away with their eyes shedding tears, being grieved because they had nothing to contribute regarding the battle of Tabuk.

They did not shed tears in front of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him; rather, they shed tears after turning away. They were pushed to the point of tears due to their grieving for not participating in fighting. But had they shed tears before the Prophet, the hypocrites will have claimed that they were shedding crocodile tears and trying to show-off. Thus, they expressed their strong feelings of grief away from him.

Moreover, as the Quran recounts their story, this proves the truthfulness of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and that the Quran is a revelation from Allah the Almighty for how could he peace and blessings be upon him know about this incident while it did not happen before him.

As for the expiation of the broken oaths, it is ordained for Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and the Muslims alike, as Allah the Almighty says: 'O Prophet [Muhammad], why do you prohibit what Allah has made lawful to you...' (at-Tahrim: 1); and He says: 'He has ordained a way for you [believers] to release yourselves from [such] oaths—Allah is your Helper: He is the All Knowing, the All-Wise' (at-Tahrim: 2). When we reflect on these two verses, we find that the first one only talks about Prophet Muhammad's prohibition for himself of what is lawful and that the second one talks about Allah's Ordainment for the Muslims to expiate for their oaths. As such, does this mean that the mere prohibition of what the Lord the Almighty made lawful without taking an oath necessitate expiation? The scholars held different stances about this issue. However, whether his prohibition of what is lawful alone necessitated expiation or it was combined with an oath, as some narrations confirm, the verse obligates releasing oneself from one’s broken oath. In other words, it prescribes expiation for the broken oath.

Allah the Almighty clarifies this expiation, saying in the chapter of al-Ma’ida: ‘Allah does not call you to account for your inadvertent oaths, but He calls you to account for the oaths you make deliberately. The expiation in that case is the feeding of ten poor men with the average amount (of food) you feed your families, or clothing them, or the freeing of a slave; but whosoever cannot find (means) to do this should fast for three days. This is the expiation of your oaths that you have sworn. And guard your oaths. In this way Allah makes His Commandments clear to you that you may be thankful’ (al-Ma‘ida: 89).

As a matter of fact, the expiation wipes out the penalty, but this does mean that the one is required to expiate for a binding oath that he fulfills. Rather, the expiation is only required when the person breaks his oath. The expiation should be one of four kinds: firstly, feeding ten poor people with food equivalent to what the person normally gives his own family; secondly, clothing poor ten people; thirdly, setting free a slave if this is possible; and lastly, fasting for three days if the person cannot find the means for the above.

As for the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘He has ordained a way for you [believers] to release yourselves from [such] oaths...’ (at-Tahrim: 2), it refers to the way of expiating for the broken oath mentioned in the chapter of al-Ma'ida, as it preceded the revelation of the chapter of at-Tahrim.

The expiation has two aspects; it is a deterring measure for the person and it also wipes out the sin of breaking the oath. When an Andalusian caliph took an oath and wanted to make an expiation for it, Mundhir ibn Sa‘id, who was a judge at the time, gave him a religious verdict that the expiation for his broken oath was fasting for three days, even though fasting is only the last resort for the one who does not have money to feed or clothe ten poor people or free a slave. Did the caliph have no money? Of course not, but Mundhir ibn Sa‘id considered for the expiation the aspect of being deterred from breaking another oath. That is why he responded to the one who asked him about this verdict, saying, ‘How can the Commander of the Faithful be deterred by freeing a slave or feeding ten poor people?’

Someone may ask, ‘Why was Prophet Muhammad obliged to expiate for his oath even though he did not break it?' Yes, he did not break his oath; he did not take honey or have sexual intercourse with Mariya. This second point is according to the narration that stated that the cause of revelation for this verse is that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him had sexual intercourse with Mariya in the room of his wife Hafsa, which provoked Hafsa’s anger. After this, he took an oath to refrain from having sexual intercourse with Mariya and made her unlawful for him. Thereafter, this verse was revealed.

In fact, Allah Glorified is He has not prescribed the expiation only as a penalty for the one who breaks his oath, but as a way of releasing the person from his oath even before breaking it. That is, He prescribed what releases us from our oaths before and after breaking them. Everyone who prohibits himself from what Allah the Almighty made lawful or takes a binding oath can release himself.

Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him did not break his oath. This is because the Arabic word 'tahilla' (release) indicates that the releasing from an oath does not take place after breaking it, which obligates expiation. The release, however, takes place when you dissolve yourself from the oath before breaking it. The dissolution of the oath after breaking it is expiation because it wipes out the sin of breaking it.

The miraculous style of the Quran is clearly manifested here, as it did not mention anything about the expiation by saying, for example, that Allah the Almighty had ordained for them the expiation for their oaths. Rather, He the Almighty says: 'He has ordained a way for you [believers] to release (tahilla) yourselves from [such] oaths...' (at-Tahrim: 2). We have said previously that this obligation is in the interest of the believers; for if it had been a penalty, Allah the Almighty will have said that He has obligated that as a punishment for the sin that they have committed. We also notice that the following verse indicates that the believer should reduce the number of oaths he takes. Allah Glorified is He says: 'And keep your oaths' (al-Ma'ida: 89).

Keeping an oath means that the person should not break it. Therefore, the person should reduce the number of oaths he takes as much as possible, as Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'No Muslim whose three children die will go to the hellfire except for Allah's Oath that has to be fulfilled'.(1) Allah's Oath is mentioned in His saying: 'And there is not one of you but will pass over it [Hell]; this is [a promise] from your Lord that has to be fulfilled' (Maryam: 71). This Hadith means that if the one whose three children die remains patient and does not despair or disbelieve, he will not enter the hellfire, but he has to pass over it.

Allah Glorified is He gives us an example of releasing oneself from an oath in the story of Prophet Ayyub (Job) peace be upon him saying: 'And take in your hand a green branch and beat her with it, and do not break your oath' (Sad: 44). Ayyub peace be upon him took an oath to strike his wife one hundred lashes if he recovered from his illness. Allah Glorified is He wanted to release him from that oath, commanding him to take a bunch of grass that consists of one hundred rods and to strike his wife lightly with it one time.

This was a mercy that Allah the Almighty showed to Prophet Ayyub peace be upon him and his wife who had taken care of him during his illness. Ayyub peace be upon him was thankful to Allah the Almighty. It was as if the one strike equalled one hundred. By taking this concession, he released himself from the oath.

The expiation is sufficient for preserving the sublime position of taking an oath by Allah the Almighty. For this reason, Allah the Almighty recommends the Muslims to accept the concession in order to release themselves from the oaths which were taken due to sincere intentions.

As for the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'Allah is your Helper (mawla)…' (at-Tahrim: 2), it means that He the Almighty is the Supporter of the believers

Who takes care of their affairs. The Arabic word 'mawla' (helper) could mean a relative, a supporter, and a helper on whom one relies in times of hardship.

You may have a helper in this worldly life but he may not always remain your helper, and he may not be able to support you if your calamity is beyond his capacity. Furthermore, he may refuse to support you against your proponent because the latter has a stronger relationship with him. In this case, your helper will take the side of your opponent and may delude you into believing that he is on your side. By contrast, Allah Glorified is He is the True Helper; no power is greater than His and He, unlike His creation, is Unchangeable.

Allah Glorified is He concludes the verse in question, saying: 'He is the All Knowing, the All-Wise' (at-Tahrim: 2). Here, Allah the Almighty describes Himself with two Attributes: Knowledge and Wisdom. He Glorified is He knows everything, be it visible or invisible, and He is the Bestower of knowledge. He knows our intentions, how sincere we are and what is in our chests, even before we utter anything. Therefore, His Knowledge encompasses everything, for nothing can escape from Him.

Furthermore, Allah the Almighty knows the people's secrets and properly legislates what is necessary for them. Besides, He knows what the human soul can withstand and does not charge it with more than what it can bear. He Glorified is He also knows what is suitable in every condition a person may be in and what benefits all the people. Therefore, His Knowledge encompasses all matters and He even knows what we are thinking of in our minds.

Allah the Almighty is also the Wise One Who does not undertake any action except for a profound wisdom. He is Wise in His Actions, Determinations and Decrees. He puts everything in its right place and only prescribes what is in our interest. He the Almighty does not look to the apparent aspects of something, neglecting the harm that it may cause. On the contrary, you yourself may think that something will save you from your problems, but it turns out to be harmful.

Allah Glorified is He organises everything in the right way. His Knowledge encompasses what the people reveal and conceal. He Glorified is He is wise with His Creation and Directives, and that is why He laid down for us the rulings that ensure our interests and suit our conditions.

Allah then says:

وَإِذْ أَسَرَّ ٱلنَّبِيُّ إِلَىٰ بَعْضِ أَزْوَٰجِهِۦ حَدِيثًا فَلَمَّا نَبَّأَتْ بِهِۦ وَأَظْهَرَهُ ٱللَّهُ عَلَيْهِ عَرَّفَ بَعْضَهُۥ
وَأَعْرَضَ عَنۢ بَعْضٍۖ فَلَمَّا نَبَّأَهَا بِهِۦ قَالَتْ مَنْ أَنۢبَأَكَ هَٰذَاۖ قَالَ نَبَّأَنِىَ ٱلْعَلِيمُ ٱلْخَبِيرُ ﴿٣﴾

The Prophet told something in confidence to one of his wives. When she disclosed it [to another wife] and God made this known to him, he confirmed part of it, keeping the rest to himself. When he confronted her with what she had done, she asked, 'Who told you about this?' and he replied, 'The All Knowing, the All Aware told me' [3] (The Quran, at-Tahrim: 3)

The secret is what you tell someone confidentially; it is to be known only by two people, you and the one to whom you disclosed it. There is, however, what is more hidden than the secret, namely, what you keep only to yourself; it remains in your heart and you share it with no one. In this regard, Allah the Almighty says: 'And if you utter the saying aloud, then surely He knows the secret (as-sirr), and what is yet more hidden' (Ta Ha: 7). This means that what you confidentially tell someone is a secret, but what you hide in your heart without telling anyone about it is what is even more hidden that the secret.

The secret only becomes a secret when you tell another one about it, but what the person hides in his heart and no one knows except Allah the Almighty is what is more hidden that the secret. In fact, you only confer your secret to the one whom you trust, as if the secrets are kept in a safe and no one knows what is inside it. When you tell someone a secret, you consider him like yourself, believing that he will not reveal it.

The Arabic word 'najwa' (secret counsels) means to speak privately with someone when you are with other people. The secret (sirr), when mentioned with the word 'najwa', is what you conceal inside yourself. In this regard, Allah the Almighty says: 'Do they not know that Allah knows their secret [thoughts] (sirrahum) and their secret counsels (najwahum)' (at-Tawba: 78). In this context, the secret thought (sirr) is what you conceal and do not tell anyone about it. Here, the secret does not refer to the private discussions in which you tell someone about a certain matter apart from other people sitting with you. He the Almighty knows both the secret that you entrust someone with and what you hide inside yourself.

With regard to the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'The Prophet told something in confidence (a secret) to one of his wives...' (at-Tahrim: 3), 'the secret' belongs to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him who shared it with one of his wives.

What is more hidden than the secret is what you keep to yourself, but Allah Glorified is He knows the secret as well as what you do not disclose to anyone. He the Almighty is fully aware of it even before it is a secret. We know that the secret can mean what you keep to yourself without telling anyone about it. It also refers to the confidential matter about which you inform someone, but in this case it is not really a secret anymore. If you cannot keep something in your heart, others will be more unlikely to keep it in their heart without disclosing it to others.

As for the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘The Prophet told something in confidence (a secret) to one (ba’d) of his wives…’ (at-Tahrim: 3), Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him told a secret to only one of his wives. If he had shared it with all his wives, it will have not been a secret anymore. The Arabic word ‘ba'd’ (one) may refer to one male or female. Here, it refers to Hafsa Bint ‘Umar, Prophet Muhammad's wife.

Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him had sexual intercourse with his concubine, Mariya, in Hafsa’s room Allah be pleased with her. On seeing Mariya with him, she said, ‘O Prophet Muhammad, why did you do that in my house and not in any other one of your wives?' Whereupon he told her that he made Mariya unlawful for him and asked Hafsa to keep the matter secret.

Additionally, Hafsa went to meet ‘Aisha and said to her, ‘Daughter of Abu Bakr, shall I tell you good news? Prophet Muhammad, may my mother and father be sacrificed for him, told me that your father will succeed him and that my father will succeed your father. He asked me to keep that a secret and I promised him to do so'. (1)

(1) This Hadith is narrated on the authority of Abu Hurayra Allah be pleased with him. See At-Tabarani, Al-Mu'jam Al-Kabir, Hadith no. 504; and Al-Awsat, Hadith no. 2316.

Mariya was Prophet Muhammad's concubine that Al-Muqawqas, the leader of the Coptic in Egypt, gave to him as a present after Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him had sent him a message calling him to Islam. Subsequently, Al-Muqawqas gave her to him. She became his concubine and gave birth to his son Ibrahim. As she became the mother of his son, he freed her and she became one of his wives.

The Arabic word 'zawj' (a spouse, wife or mate) refers to something which has a mate. Allah the Almighty says: 'And We said, "O Adam! Dwell you and your wife (zawjuka) in the garden…"' (al-Baqara: 35). Here, Huwwa (Eve) is called a 'zawj' (a spouse), literally 'zawjuka' which means 'your spouse'. That is, Adam is a 'zawj' (a spouse) and Eve is also a 'zawj'. Every one of Prophet Muhammad's wives is his spouse. You should not think that the word 'zawj' refers to two mates; rather, it refers to one mate only. Allah the Almighty also says: '…and created its mate (zawj) of the same (kind)…' (an-Nisa': 1).

Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him made Mariya unlawful for himself in order to please Hafsa. That is why Allah the Almighty reproached him just as He the Almighty reproached him for prohibiting honey for himself in order to please his wives. In this vein, Allah the Almighty says: 'O Prophet [Muhammad], why do you prohibit what Allah has made lawful to you in your desire to please your wives? Yet Allah is Forgiving and Merciful' (at-Tahrim: 1). The matter of honey was known to most of his wives as they agreed to ask him when he arrived at anyone of them if he had eaten honey. As for the case of prohibiting Mariya for himself, it was only known by Hafsa and so was the matter of her father's succession after Abu Bakr, the father of 'Aisha. These two matters were what Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him had told her secretly, but she soon disclosed them to 'Aisha.

We have said that the Arabic word 'naba'' (announcement) is only used with important news. Therefore, we do not refer to any normal piece of news as a 'naba''. 'Naba" means very important news that has a great impact, and that is why Allah the Almighty uses it in this verse. Its importance here is presented in Hafsa's carefulness about disclosing the information to 'Aisha.

Allah Glorified is He then says: '…and Allah made this known (azhhara) to him…' (at-Tahrim: 3). This means that Allah the Almighty informed Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him that Hafsa had disclosed to ‘Aisha what he had secretly told her. Linguistically, the Arabic word ‘azhhara’, the verb in the present being (yazhharo), has two meanings. The first one is to come to know about something, as in Allah’s saying: ‘If they come to know (yazhharo) about you, they will stone you’ (al-Kahf: 20). The meaning is that if their enemies knew their place, they will stone them. The second meaning of ‘azhhara’ is to scale something high and to defeat someone; this meaning is found in the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'So they were not able to scale it (yazhharo) or could make a hole in it' (al-Kahf: 97). This means that Yajooj (Gog) and Majooj (Magog) could not scale the barrier of Dhu Al-Qarnayn, nor could they pierce it.

The first meaning applies to Allah’s saying: '…the children who have not attained knowledge (yazhharo) of what is hidden of women…' (an-Nur: 31). They do not know about women’s private aspects or cannot enter into marriage because they are not aware of them. As such, ‘azhhara’ means to know something, but it here implies that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him overlooked what had happened, namely, Hafsa’s disclosing the secret that he had confided to her and ordered her to keep secret.

For this reason, Allah Glorified is He says afterwards: '…he confirmed part of it, keeping the rest to himself…' (al-An‘am: 3). That is, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him confirmed part of what Hafsa disclosed, keeping the rest to himself. He rebuked Hafsa for revealing some of what he had confided to her, but he did not rebuke her for revealing the other part, due to his noble character. In this regard, some scholars said that the noble person never investigates people's faults.

It is said that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him informed her about her revealing what happened with Mariya and making her unlawful for himself. However, he avoided rebuking her for disclosing the secret that Abu Bakr and ‘Umar Allah be pleased with him will succeed him.

If you had talked in confidence with someone and then found that he had revealed your secret, you will find him confused when you encounter him. He tries to know if you had discovered that the whole secret was revealed or only part of it. If you informed him about only one thing he has revealed, you will find him anxious, confused, and ashamed that he revealed it, especially if you had asked him to keep it a secret.

Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him ordered Hafsa to keep the matter secret. When he confronted her with what she had done, she asked, ‘Who told you about this?' She thought that ‘Aisha had informed him that she, that is Hafsa, had disclosed the secret to her. She did not imagine that Allah Glorified is He had informed Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him about what he does not know regarding his followers. She asked him peace and blessings be upon him about the one who had told him, thinking that ‘Aisha had told him. She wondered how he knew about her disclosure of the secret even though she talked with ‘Aisha in private; she wondered, 'Had ‘Aisha told him?' But Prophet Muhammad told her that it was Allah Glorified is He Who had told him, as He is the All Knowing, the All-Aware. In this regard, Allah the Almighty says: '…she asked, “Who told you about this?”' and he replied: ‘The All-Knowing, the All-Aware told me’ (at-Tahrim: 3).

Allah the Almighty is the Omniscient Who knows everything be it hidden or apparent, and all knowledge comes from Him. He is the All-Hearing of what is said and the fully Aware of what in the chests, even before it is said. In fact, every movement is known by Him Glorified is He even before it takes place.

Allah's Attribute of being fully aware indicates that He possesses comprehensive knowledge; He is the Omniscient Who possesses subtle knowledge about hidden matters. In the important worldly problems, we call an expert to solve them because the normal specialist cannot solve them, for the expert has in-depth knowledge; we should not ask those who only have basic knowledge, but we should ask an expert who has detailed knowledge.

Thereupon, Allah Glorified is He addresses Hafsa and ‘Aisha Allah be pleased with them saying:

إِن تَتُوبَآ إِلَى ٱللَّهِ فَقَدْ صَغَتْ قُلُوبُكُمَا ۖ وَإِن تَظَٰهَرَا عَلَيْهِ فَإِنَّ ٱللَّهَ هُوَ مَوْلَىٰهُ
وَجِبْرِيلُ وَصَٰلِحُ ٱلْمُؤْمِنِينَ ۖ وَٱلْمَلَٰٓئِكَةُ بَعْدَ ذَٰلِكَ ظَهِيرٌ ٤

If both of you [wives] repent to God — for your hearts have deviated — [all will be well]; if you collaborate against him, [be warned that] God will aid him, as will Gabriel and all righteous believers, and the angels too will back him [4]

Allah Glorified is He has commanded His slaves to repent to Him as accepting repentance is a Mercy that He the Almighty shows to His slaves. In fact, prescribing repentance is a Mercy not only to the sinner but also to the whole society. If it had not been prescribed, the whole society will have suffered. That is to say that if Allah the Almighty had not prescribed repentance and given us the glad tidings of Him accepting it, the sinner will not have stopped committing sins. In fact, He Glorified is He accepts the repentance in order for the person not to despair; the person will feel that the doors of Mercy are always open and that Allah, his Creator, is Merciful to him. Hence, if he commits a mistake, the Lord the Almighty opens for him the doors of repentance and forgives his. In this way, the person feels the Care that Allah Glorified is He provides for him.

The way Allah Glorified is He acts is already set for the one who wants to believe; and repentance is legislated for every sinner. It results in Allah forgiving you, for if you repent from your sin and are determined never to repeat it, Allah Glorified is He accepts your repentance and pardons you. Allah the Almighty delights at His slave's repentance and He is more pleased with it than the one who found his camel after he had lost it in a waterless desert.(1)

As such, the verse means that if Hafsa and ‘Aisha repented to Allah the Almighty and regretted doing what they had done, their repentance will be accepted. When the Lord Glorified is He says: ‘If both of you [wives] repent to Allah…’ (at-Tahrim: 4), this is a way of urging and offering repentance to them because He Glorified is He says after this: '…but if you collaborate against him, [be warned that] Allah, He is his Protector…' (at-Tahrim: 4).

(1) A Hadith to that effect has been narrated on the authority of Anas ibn Malik Allah be pleased with him. See Al-Bukhari, Sahih, Hadith no. 6309; Muslim, Hadith no. 7137.

With regard to the saying of Allah Glorified is He: 'If both of you [wives] repent to Allah—for your hearts have inclined (saghat) [away from/to what is right]—[all will be well]…' (at-Tahrim: 4), the Arabic word 'al-isgha'' (listening attentively), from which the word 'saghat' (deviated) comes, means to listen attentively to the speaker, as you may not be able to hear the speaker without listening attentively. For example, when one of us walks in the street, he hears a lot of sounds, but he listens attentively to what he thinks is important. In this connection, Allah Glorified is He says: 'And that the hearts of those who do not believe in the Hereafter may incline (tasgha) to it and that they may be well pleased with it and that they may earn what they are going to earn (of evil)' (al-An'am: 113). It is true that the ears hear, but the hearts may or may not listen and incline to what is being said.

When Allah Glorified is He says: 'If both of you [wives] repent to Allah—for your hearts have inclined (saghat) [away from/to what is right]—[all will be well]…' (at-Tahrim: 4), He moves the sense of listening from the ears to the heart. This means that their hearts inclined to Prophet Muhammad's prohibition of Mariya for himself, even if he hated that. Some scholars said that they inclined to repentance. As a result, this part of the verse means that Hafsa and 'Aisha wanted to repent for what they had done because their hearts inclined to the right way which required refraining from doing what displeased Prophet Muhammad peace and blessing be upon him.

As for the saying of Allah Glorified is He: '…if you support each other (tazhahara) against him…' (at-Tahrim: 4), the Arabic word 'al-zhahir', from which the verb 'tazhahara' (support each other) is derived, means the supporter, as He Glorified is He says: 'Those who have not supported anyone (yuzhahiro) against you...'(at-Tawba: 4). Etymologically, the root of the verb 'yuzhahir' (to support) is 'al-zhahr' (back), which can bear more than the hand. The person, for instance, may not be able to carry a certain measure of wheat with his hand, but he can carry it by means of his back. There is the Egyptian proverb that says, 'Whoever is supported by a powerful figure, he cannot be harmed'. Likewise, the Lord Glorified is He says: '…then We aided those who believed against their enemy, and they became the ones that prevailed (zhahireen)' (as-Saff: 14).

This means that the meaning of His saying: '…if you support each other against him…' (at-Tahrim: 4) is that if they collaborated to harm Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him by supporting each other with regard to their excessive jealousy and disclosing his secret, Allah the Almighty will aid him with His unlimited Omnipotence. He Glorified is He it the True Ally; there is no greater power than His and He is Unchangeable.

Allah Glorified is He stresses the fact that He Himself is the Ally of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him saying: 'Allah, He is his Protector…' (at-Tahrim: 4). The Lord the Almighty mentions the pronoun 'He' after His Majestic Name to emphasise His Support and Help for Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him.

Not only Allah Glorified is He is his Ally but also the angel Gabriel and the righteous believers, as He then says: '…and so are Jibril (Gabriel) and all righteous believers…' (at-Tahrim: 4). Here, He Glorified is He especially mentions Jibril (Gabriel) even though He then mentions the angels' protection of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him saying: '…and furthermore, the angels will be his supporters' (at-Tahrim: 4). Jibril (Gabriel) peace be upon him is the one trusted with the revelation and the closest angel to the Prophets and Messengers, especially Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. As such, every Messenger was supported by Jibril (Gabriel), the Holy Spirit.

He Glorified is He tells us about Jibril, saying: 'Say [Prophet Muhammad], “If anyone is an enemy of Jibril (Gabriel)—who by Allah’s leave brought down the Quran to your heart confirming previous scriptures, as a guide and good news for the faithful— if anyone is an enemy of Allah, His angels and His Messengers, of Jibril (Gabriel) and Mikail (Michael), then Allah is certainly the enemy of such disbelievers”' (al-Baqara: 97-98); and: 'He was taught by one mighty in power. [An angel] Endowed with surpassing power, who manifested himself in his true state' (an-Najm: 5-6); and saying: 'Most surely it is the Word of an honored Messenger, the processor of strength, having an honorable place with the Lord of the Dominion, one (to be) obeyed and faithful to his trust' (at-Takwir: 19-21). As such, Jibril (Gabriel) peace be upon him possesses a hidden and an apparent mighty power for him to be able to do what Allah Glorified is He commands him and deliver the revelation to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him.

Allah the Almighty then says: '…and all righteous believers…' (at-Tahrim: 4). As such, not only will Allah the Almighty and Jibril support Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him but also the righteous believers, namely, Abu Bakr and 'Umar Allah be pleased with them. The quality of righteousness, however, refers to every righteous believer. In this connection, 'Umar used to support Prophet Muhammad's position and reproach his daughter, Hafsa, for arguing with him, that is, Prophet Muhammad, although the Prophet thought this arguing had never occurred. 'Umar said, 'Once, while I was thinking over a certain matter, my wife said, "I advise you to do so-and-so". I said to her, "What have you got to do with this matter? Why do you poke your nose in a matter which I want to see fulfilled?" She said, "How strange you are, O son of Al-Khattab! You do not want to be argued with whereas your daughter, Hafsa, surely argues with Prophet Muhammad so much that he remains angry the whole day!"' 'Umar then related how he immediately put on his outer garment, went to Hafsa and said to her, 'O my daughter! Do you argue with Prophet Muhammad to the extent that he remains angry the whole day?' She said, 'By Allah, we argue with him'. 'Umar said, 'Know that I warn you of Allah's Punishment and the anger of Allah's Messenger . . . O my daughter! Do not be deceived by the one who is proud of her beauty and of the love of Prophet Muhammad for her (that is, 'Aisha)'.

Allah Glorified is He concludes this verse, saying: '…and furthermore, the angels will be his supporters' (at-Tahrim: 4). The Arabic word 'malai'ka' (angels) is feminine, but Allah did not say 'zhaheerah' (supporter), which matches this feminine form in the Arabic language. Rather, Allah Glorified is He uses the word, 'zhaheer' (supporter). This is because the support entails power, determination and strength, and therefore this word is used to imply possessing power. That is, the word 'zhaheer' in this noble verse refers to the supporter. If it is said that so-and-so backs someone, this means he supports him powerfully. If so-and-so 'zhahara' (defeated) so-and-so, this means that the former defeated and overpowered the latter. The word 'zhaheer' is used equally to refer to the masculine and the feminine, just like the word ‘qareeb’ (near), which is used with the feminine word ‘rahma’ (mercy) in the saying of Allah the Almighty: '…surely the Mercy (rahma) of Allah is near (qareeb) to those who do good (to others)...' (al-A‘raf: 56). To sum up, Allah, Jibril, the righteous believers and the angels are all supporters of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him against those who harm him or intend to offend him. Here, the word ‘zhaheer’ (supporter) is used to refer to the plural, ‘zhuhara’’ (supporters), just like when He the Almighty says: ‘What excellent companions (rafeeq) these are!' (an-Nisa’: 69), where the word ‘rafeeq’ (companion) is used to refer to ‘rufaqa’’ (companions).

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says:

عَسَىٰ رَبُّهُۥٓ إِن طَلَّقَكُنَّ أَن يُبْدِلَهُۥٓ أَزْوَٰجًا خَيْرًا مِّنكُنَّ مُسْلِمَٰتٍ مُّؤْمِنَٰتٍ
قَٰنِتَٰتٍ تَٰٓئِبَٰتٍ عَٰبِدَٰتٍ سَٰٓئِحَٰتٍ ثَيِّبَٰتٍ وَأَبْكَارًا ﴿٥﴾

His Lord may well replace you with better wives if the Prophet decides to divorce any of you: wives who are devoted to God, true believers, devout, who turn to Him in repentance and worship Him, given to fasting, whether previously married or virgins [5] (The Quran, at-Tahrim: 5)

Linguistically, the Arabic word ‘'asa’ (‘may’ or ‘hope’) has different meanings. It could signify hoping for something; when you say, for instance, ‘So-and-so may come', and when someone says to his friend, 'So-and-so may bring something good for you’. This means that these actions are possible. Further, someone may say to his friend, ‘I may bring something good for you’. Here, the occurrence of what is hoped for is higher than in the first example because its occurrence depends on the speaker. Can the speaker, nevertheless, guarantee the ability or even that he will still be alive to bring that good thing for the addressee? If someone says, ‘I hope that Allah relieves you of your condition’, is his hope stronger? Is the speaker certain of Allah's Acceptance for what he is hoping for? He the Almighty may or may not accept that, according to His Will, not according to the will of the one who hoped that or the one for whom he wished that relief. However, when Allah the Almighty says: ‘His Lord may well…'

(al-An'am: 5), this implies that what He wills attains the highest rank of being a certain hope. The word ''asa' ('may' or 'hope'), with its different levels, reaches its highest level when Allah the Almighty uses it. What He hopes will inevitably come to pass. He says in another verse: 'Allah may well ('asa) pardon them' (an-Nisa': 99). This is what we hope from our Generous and Powerful Lord. Nothing can challenge or disobey Him the Almighty and hence when He says that He may do such-and-such, then what He has promised will be fulfilled. Thus, the verse means that Hafsa and 'Aisha should be in awe of Allah Glorified is He because He may well replace them with better wives.

In this connection, we notice Ya'qub's (Jacob's) confidence that Allah Glorified is He will achieve His Promise to bring all of his sons back to him, saying: '…maybe Allah will bring them all together to me; surely He is the Knowing, the All-Wise' (Yusuf: 83). In this verse, he hoped for an alleviation which actually took place later. He did not say, 'Maybe they will all come', rather, he attributed this action to Allah the Almighty saying: '…maybe Allah will bring them all…' (Yusuf: 83). This means he wished that Allah the Almighty will bestow His Bounties on him. When you say that Allah the Almighty may give you, this constitutes a high hope because you ask for the bounty from the One Who is Omnipotent and Unchangeable. That is, your hope, which depends on Him, will inevitably happen.

Similarly, the matter in the verse in question has nothing to do with Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him; rather, it is handled by Allah the Almighty as He the Almighty says: 'His Lord may well replace you with better wives...' (at-Tahrim: 5). Moreover, He Glorified is He does not say: 'Allah may well', rather, He says: 'His Lord may well...' (at-Tahrim: 5). As such, it is Prophet Muhammad's Lord who may well replace them with good wives because they did not preserve his status of messengership and prophethood. Using the word 'his Lord' instead of 'Allah' reminds us about the Hadith in which Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'I have been educated by My Lord and He has educated me properly'.(1) This means Allah Glorified is He is his Lord Who educated him properly.

(1) In his book, Al-Albani grades this Hadith as weak. Ibn Taymiya said, 'The meaning of this Hadith is correct, but it has no authentic chain of narrators'. This opinion is supported=

The perfection of education is proportional to the perfection of the educator. It is as if Allah the Almighty said to him, 'I am your Lord Who has perfected your education. Therefore, if anyone wants to see the Omnipotence of My Lordship, let him witness it in you'. If the educator is perfect, the educated person achieves the highest level of education. Clearly, Prophet Muhammad's Lord will not forsake him and He is not displeased with him.

Similarly, Yusuf (Joseph) peace be upon him took refuge with his Lord and invoked Him, saying: 'My Lord! I prefer prison to what these women are calling me to do' (Yusuf: 33). He supplicated Allah the Almighty referring to His Attribute of Lordship as recognition of His Favours, for Allah had educated and put him under His Care. Invoking Allah the Almighty to not abandon him in his calamity, Prophet Yusuf peace be upon him uses the Attribute of Lordship. It is clear that the Lord is the One in charge of educating and bestowing Bounties. Besides, His Divinity dictates that we worship Him and carry out His Obligations. For this reason, the believer invokes his Lord during times of hardships, saying, ‘My Lord’, recognizing Him as his Creator Who cares for him and bestows the means on him.

This idea is referred to in the Hadith when ‘Aisha said to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him ‘O Messenger of Allah, I see that your Lord hastens in fulfilling your desires'.(1) He told her, ‘If you are pious, He will hasten to fulfill your desires'. That is, Allah the Almighty fulfills what you desire if you fulfill His Purpose; if you obey His command, He gives you what you desire, even before asking Him.

Allah Glorified is He refers to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him using the third person singular, saying: 'His Lord may well replace you with better wives…' (at-Tahrim: 55). This is because He the Almighty is addressing his wives in order to defend Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him as the Prophet did not do anything wrong to them. Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him is entitled to eat whatever he desires with whoever he wants from among them. Furthermore, he is entitled to have sexual intercourse with any of them and wherever he wants from among his homes. However, he conceded to them by prohibiting himself from taking honey and having sexual intercourse with Mariya, the mother of his son Ibrahim. What do his wives want after all of this?

Allah's Discourse in this verse is directed to Prophet Muhammad's wives, presenting to them that He was Prophet Muhammad's Lord and that He never forsakes him. Consequently, He the Almighty says: 'If both of you [wives] repent to Allah— for your hearts have inclined [away from/to what is right]— [all will be well]; but if you support each other against him, [be warned that] Allah, He is his Protector, and so are Jibril (Gabriel) and all righteous believers, and furthermore, the angels will be his supporters' (at-Talaq: 4).

We have said that His saying: '…the righteous believers…' (at-Tahrim: 5) refers to Abu Bakr and 'Umar Allah be pleased with them. 'Umar said, 'I came to know that some of the Mothers of the Believers caused troubles to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and therefore I talked to each one of them and admonished them to refrain from causing troubles to him, saying, 'If you refuse, Allah will replace you with wives better than you'. Zaynab came to him and said, 'O son of Al-Khattab*,* is Prophet Muhammad able to admonish his wives?' Thereupon, Allah revealed the verse: 'His Lord may well replace you with better wives if the Prophet decides to divorce any of you…' (at-Tahrim: 5). This means replacing his wives was to be through divorcing them. The word ''asa' (may) does not connote that this replacement is obligatory, as Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him did not actually divorce them. The verse is only intended to frighten and admonish his wives.

The first attribute of the wives with whom Prophet Muhammad's wives may be replaced is their submission to Allah the Almighty in all His commands, as Allah says: '…wives who submit to Allah…' (at-Tahrim: 5). Secondly, they are described as believing in Allah and Prophet Muhammad. This means that they possess the same attributes of his wives and even more because they are true believers who do not submit and believe only by words.

The third of their attributes is their devotion to Allah the Almighty which indicates their permanent obedience to Him. Qunut Al-Fajr in the Dawn Prayer, in which we invoke Allah the Almighty and prolong our standing in prayer, is derived from the same Arabic word of 'qanitat' (devout). The devoted woman is the one who submits to Allah Glorified is He out of her righteousness. He the Almighty says: '…the righteous women are therefore devoutly obedient (qanitat)...' (an-Nisa': 34). Clearly, the righteous women are those who adhere to the Divine Path that their Creator set for them.

Devotion to Allah the Almighty is an act of worship accompanied by permanent humbleness and submission. He the Almighty addresses the wives of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him saying: 'O wives of the Prophet [Muhammad]! Whoever of you commits an open indecency, the punishment shall be increased to her doubly; and this is easy for Allah. And whoever of you devoutly obeys and submits (yaqnut) to Allah and His Messenger [Muhammad] and does good, to her We will give a reward twice over, and We have prepared for her an honorable sustenance' (al-Ahzab: 30-31), where the word '*yaqno*t' (is obedient) is derived from the word 'qanitat' (devout). As such, devotion means excessive righteousness and fear to the extent of humbleness and submission. It refers to complete submission to Allah the Almighty and humbleness and submission while supplicating Him. He the Almighty for instance, commands Mary, saying: 'O Mary, devoutly obey and submit (uqnuti) to your Lord and humble yourself, and bow down with those who bow' (Al-'Imran: 43), where the word 'uqnuti' (devoutly obey and submit) is derived from the word 'qanitat' (devout). This means that she should be excessively humble and submissive to Allah by prostrating and putting her forehead, which is the most honourable part of the person, on the ground, as prostration is the highest level of submission.

Allah the Almighty does not want the bodies; rather, He wants the devoted and submissive hearts. Concerning the one who is obedient to Allah but then stops being obedient, it is as though he experienced closeness to Allah but did not find his Lord qualified for that closeness—Allah forbid. On the contrary, the truly obedient slave devotes himself to Allah and as a result does not abandon the acts of worship, as he has tasted the sweetness of worshipping Him. As long as he has tasted the sweetness of worshipping Allah, he will always do the acts of worship with humbleness and serenity to be a devout slave.

The wives who could replace Prophet Muhammad's wives will also be ones who repent to Allah the Almighty. Repentance requires a determination to not commit sins again. The Lord Glorified is He opened the gates of repentance, and He is slow to punish us, deprive us of His Bounty or cause us to perish for disobeying Him.

It is out of Allah's Mercy to us that He has prescribed repentance to protect us from the ferocity of evil and disobedience. Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, ‘All the sons of Adam are sinners, but the best of sinners are those who repent often’.(1) If Allah Glorified is He had not prescribed repentance and had not given us the glad tidings of accepting our repentance, every sinner will have never stopped his disobedience, and the whole world will have suffered.

Allah Glorified is He is pleased with the truthful and sincere repentance after which the persons does not return to the sin. It requires that the sinner stops doing the sin, regrets committing it and is determined not to return to it once again. Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, ‘Allah the Exalted will continue to stretch out His Hand in the night so that the sinners of the day may repent, and He will continue to stretch His Hand in the daytime so that the sinners of the night may repent, [and this will continue] until the sun rises from the west’.(2)The repentant women are those who repent from their sins and abide by Prophet Muhammad's orders, leaving what they desire if he hates it.

Allah the Almighty also describes these wives, saying: '…and worship Him [Allah]…' (at-Tahrim: 5). This attribute is implicitly included in describing them with the character of being devoted, but the Lord the Most High emphasises this attribute, proving that the acts of worship are not confined to praying, fasting and being humble and submissive in doing these rites. Rather, worshipping Allah the Almighty entails obeying Him by following His commands and refraining from His prohibitions. Consequently, describing them as worshippers here implies that they obey Him as the God Who is worshipped in His universe. This entails obeying Him by doing what He has commanded and refraining from what He has prohibited.

(2) This Hadith is narrated on the authority of Abu Musa Al-Ash‘ari Allah be pleased with him. See Muslim, Sahih, Hadith no. 7165; Ahmad, Musnad, Hadith no. 19547 and 19635; Al-Bazzar, Musnad, Hadith no. 3021; and At-Tayalisi, Musnad, Hadith no. 492.

In this connection, Allah Glorified is He says: 'I only created jinn and mankind to worship Me' (adh-Dhariyat: 56). Clearly, the human beings should worship Him, but not only through sitting in the mosques and remembering and exalting Him; rather, worship is a path that includes the whole life, it includes your home and work. This means worshipping Him the Almighty means to obey Him by doing what He has commanded and refraining from what He has prohibited. If Allah Glorified is He commands me to do something, I should do it, and if he prohibits me from doing something, I should refrain from it; this is the meaning of worshipping Him.

Allah Glorified is He prohibits the believers from offending Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him saying: '…and it does not behove you that you should cause trouble to the Messenger of Allah [Muhammad]' (al-Ahzab: 53). Therefore, if Prophet Muhammad divorced his wives, Allah the Almighty will replace them with ones who will worship Him and submit to His commands. They will refrain from offending Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and will submit to what he wants.

Then Allah Glorified is He mentions another attribute, saying: '…given to fasting/travelling [for their faith in Islam] (sa'ihat)...' (at-Tahrim: 5). The Arabic word 'al-sa'ih', from which the word 'sa'ihat' (given to fasting/travelling) is derived, refers to the one who leaves his country in which there are his home, family, children and friends from among his people. He leaves all these and goes to a potentially dangerous place bereft of all such comforts. The word 'as-siyaha' means to travel for far distances to ponder over the dominion of the heavens and the earth and to deduce from the signs of Allah what strengthens your belief in you Lord. But a man may travel for worldly interests, like travelling through the land seeking Allah's Bounty. However, travelling for reflection is shared by men and women, as He the Almighty describes women, saying: 'His Lord may well replace you with better wives if the Prophet [Muhammad] decides to divorce any of you: wives who submit to Allah, true believers, devout, who turn to Him in repentance and worship Him, given to fasting/travelling [for their faith in Islam]…' (at-Tahrim: 5). Describing the women as ones who travel is meant for travelling for reflection, while she is with her husband who travels through the land to seek His Bounty.

The word 'as-siyaha' also refers to fasting because travelling takes you out of your country where you used to stay and where your property and family are, and likewise fasting deprives you of having what you are familiar with, namely food, drinks and sexual intercourse. That is, what is common between men and women is travelling for refection and fasting. Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him wanted to divorce Hafsa Allah be pleased with her, but Jibril came to Prophet Muhammad and said, 'Do not divorce her as she habitually fasts and prays at night and she will also be your wife in Paradise'.(1) When the news reached 'Umar that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him wanted to divorce his daughter, he put dust on his head and said, 'If this happens, Allah will not care about you, O son of ibn Al-Khattab'. Thereupon, Jibril went to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and said, 'Allah commands you to keep Hafsa as a mercy for 'Umar'.

'Umar narrated this situation, saying, 'When Prophet Muhammad left his wives, I entered the mosque and found people striking the ground with pebbles and saying, "Allah's Messenger has divorced his wives". That was before they were commanded to observe seclusion, and therefore I went to 'Aisha and said to her, "Daughter of Abu Bakr, have you reached the extent of causing trouble to Prophet Muhammad?" Thereupon she said, "Son of Al-Khattab, you have nothing to do with me, and I have nothing to do with you. You should look to your own receptacle"'. He ('Umar) said, 'I visited Hafsa, daughter of 'Umar, and said to her, "Hafsa, the (news) has reached me that you cause Prophet Muhammad trouble. You know that Allah's Messenger does not love you, and had I not been (your father) he will have divorced you". (On hearing this) she wept bitterly. I said to her, "Where is Prophet Muhammad?" She said, "He is in the store room". I went in and found Rabah, the servant of Allah's Messenger, sitting on the threshold of the window dangling his feet on the hollow wood of the date-palm with the help of which Prophet Muhammad used to climb (into the apartment) and leave it. I asked permission to enter into [the presence of] Prophet Muhammad three times. The last time I cried, “O Rabah, ask Allah's Messenger's permission for me to strike her (Hafsa’s) neck”. I raised my voice and he pointed to me to climb up (and enter his apartment). I entered upon him and he was lying on a mat. As I had entered I saw the signs of anger on his face, and I therefore said, “Messenger of Allah [Muhammad], what trouble do you receive from your wives for you to divorce them. Surely Allah, His angels, Jibril, Mikail, me, Abu Bakr and the believers are with you”. I hardly talked, and I hoped that Allah will testify to my words that I uttered (on that day). Consequently, Allah’s saying: “His Lord may well replace you with better wives if the Prophet decides to divorce any of you” (at-Tahrim: 5) was revealed’.

(1) This Hadith is narrated on the authority of 'Ammar ibn Yasir Allah be pleased with him. See Al-Bazzar, Musnad, Hadith no. 1401; At-Tabarani, Al-Mu 'jam Al-Kabir, Hadith no. 18827; and Abu Nu'aym, Ma'rifat As-Sahaba, Hadith no. 6770, and Hilyat Al-Awliya', 2/50.

As for the saying of Allah the Almighty: '…but if you support each other against him, [be warned that] Allah, He is his Protector, and so are Jibril (Gabriel) and all righteous believers, and furthermore, the angels will be his supporters' (at-Tahrim: 4), it was ‘Aisha, the daughter of Abu Bakr, and Hafsa who support each other against Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. ‘Umar continued, ‘I said, “Messenger of Allah, have you divorced them?” He said, “No”. I said, “Messenger of Allah, I entered the mosque and found the Muslims playing with pebbles (absorbed in thought) and saying, 'Allah's Messenger has divorced his wives’. Should I climb down and inform them that you have not divorced them?” He said, “Yes, if you wish to”. And I went on talking to him until I (found) the signs of anger had disappeared on his face and (his seriousness was changed to a happy mood and as a result thereof) his face had its natural tranquility on it'. (1)

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says: '…whether previously married or virgins' (at-Tahrim: 5). The previous six attributes, regarding their Islam, belief, devotion, repentance, worship and fasting, are all abstract qualities. In this verse, He Glorified is He addresses women some of whom were very jealous about Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. For this reason, He Glorified is He wanted to eliminate their jealousy, saying, 'If you were either previously married or virgins, Allah is Able to replace you with not only previously married women but also with virgins'.

(1) This Hadith is narrated on the authority of ‘Umar ibn Al-Khattab Allah be pleased with him. See Muslim, Sahih, Hadith no. 3764; Ibn Hibban, Sahih, Hadith no. 4188; Al-Bazzar, Musnad, Hadith no. 195; and Abu Ya‘a, Musnad, Hadith no. 164.

The Arabic word 'thayyib' (deflowered woman) refers to the woman who has previously married, whether she is divorced or a widow. She was called this because after she is divorced or her husband dies, she returns to her father's house. As for the Arabic word 'bikr' (a virgin woman), it refers to the woman which is not deflowered. The woman cannot be a virgin and deflowered at the same time, and that is why He the Almighty uses the conjunction 'or', meaning: '…whether previously married or virgins' (at-Tahrim: 5).

The first six attributes can all be found in one man or one woman and that is why Allah Glorified is He has not used the conjunction 'or' here. That is to say that it is possible to find a Muslim, believing, devoted, repentant, worshipping and fasting (or travelling) man or woman who has all these qualities at the same time.

As for the saying of Allah the Almighty: '…whether previously married or virgins' (at-Tahrim: 5), the attribute of virginity in this verse may refer to 'Aisha Allah be pleased with her and that of being deflowered may refer to Hafsa Allah be pleased with her because she was married to someone before Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. By contrast, 'Aisha was a virgin when Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him married her and she used to take pride in being the only woman who was a virgin when he married her to the extent that she once asked him, 'O Messenger of Allah! Suppose you landed in a valley where there was a tree of which something had been eaten and then you found trees of which nothing has been eaten, from which tree will you let your camel graze?' Prophet Muhammad said, '(I will let my camel graze) from the one from which nothing had been eaten before'.(1) She was referring to the fact that he peace and blessings be upon him had not married any virgin except her.

One may ask, 'What is the virtue of replacing Prophet Muhammad's wives with deflowered ones if he preferred virgins?' Prophet Muhammad said to Jabir ibn ‘Abdullah after he married, ‘Have you married a virgin or a previously married woman?' Jabir said, 'A previously married woman'. He said, 'Why not a virgin, so you could play with her and she could play with you?'(1) However, the previously married woman has certain benefits in practical life. For this reason, Jabir mentioned the reason for preferring the previously married woman, saying, 'Abdullah (my father) died and left girls, and I did not like to marry a girl like them who cannot educate them or take care of them, and that is why I married a previously married woman in order for her to look after them and educate them’.(2) Jabir had nine young sisters whose father, ‘Abdullah ibn Haram, left when he died, and for this reason Jabir wanted to marry a previously married woman who could take care of and educate his young sisters. Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him knows that a previously married woman has many benefits, but he wanted to make Jabir happy after the death of his father.

Thus, Allah’s saying: ‘…previously married…' (at-Tahrim: 5) is intended for Hafsa Allah be pleased with her as if He Glorified is He is saying that He will replace Prophet Muhammad's wives, whether previously married or virgins, with also previously married and virgin wives, but the latter will be better than the former.

Nothing can be harder for the woman than divorcing her and her husband's determination to marry another wife. This can break her heart and pre-occupy her mind. Accordingly, it is an extremely serious threat for her.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says:

غِلَاظٞ شِدَادٞ لَّا يَعۡصُونَ ٱللَّهَ مَآ أَمَرَهُمۡ وَيَفۡعَلُونَ مَا يُؤۡمَرُونَ ٦

Believers, guard yourselves and your families against a Fire fuelled by people and stones, over which stand angels, stern and strong; angels who never disobey God's commands to them, but do as they are ordered [6] (The Quran, at-Tahrim: 6)

In this verse, Allah Glorified is He addresses those who believe in Him as their Lord and have pledged the covenant of faith with Him. Allah Glorified is He addresses all people to pay their attention to the matter of faith, whereas when He addresses the believers, He charges them with religious obligations. By contrast, He the Almighty does not assign any rulings to those who do not believe in Him. This is due to the fact that belief entails a commitment; as long as you devoted yourself to Allah as your All-Wise Lord, you should take the rulings of your religion from Him.

The believers adhere to the obligations of Allah Glorified is He out of their love for Him, even if His Obligations are difficult for them, like fasting or striving in His Way. Let us take fasting as an example; He Glorified is He says: 'O you who believe! Fasting is prescribed for you, as it was prescribed for those before you so that you may guard (against evil)' (al-Baqara: 183). Fasting entails that one refrains from eating, drinking and sexual intercourse from dawn to sunset for one lunar month. Undoubtedly, fasting is a hard obligation; however, the true believers wait and feel happy for the advent of Ramadan every year.

Let us offer another example to illustrate this point further; Allah Glorified is He says: 'O you who believe! Retaliation is prescribed for you in the matter of the slain, the free for the free, and the slave for the slave and the female for the female…' (al-Baqara: 178). The retribution can be brutal, but the believers accept it wholeheartedly because it leads to social reform and deters criminals. For this reason, the Lord Glorified is He says: 'And there is life for you in (the law of) retaliation, O men of understanding, that you may guard yourselves' (al-Baqara: 179).

The true believers believe that Allah's Legislation is absolutely precise as Allah wisely sets the duties and the rights. There is no duty without a right and vice versa. In order to recognise the supremacy of Allah's Legislation, every believer should reflect on and compare his duties with his rights. Thereupon, he will realise that, in the light of Allah's Way of Guidance, he is treated with absolute justice.

In the verse under discussion, Allah the Almighty says: 'Believers, guard (qu) yourselves and your families against a fire…' (at-Tahrim: 6). The believers should place a barrier between them and the hellfire and be cautious about being cast into it. The Arabic word 'wiqaya' (prevention), from which the word 'qu' (guard) is derived, means to guard yourself against the evil that you cannot bear. This means Allah the Almighty commands us to place a barrier between us and the hellfire because its evil is unbearable.

Out of His Greatness, Allah Glorified is He perfected the creation of the human soul. In every soul there is a commander and a commanded being. The person should guard himself by directing the order of the commander to the commanded being and to make the latter obey the former. You are commanded to protect your soul from the causes of perdition by ordering it to do good and not to commit evil. To give an example of this, the Lord the Almighty says: 'His [Qabil's (Cain's)] soul prompted him to kill his brother…' (al-Ma'ida: 30). This implies that part of Qabil's (Cain's) entity incited his whole entity to kill his brother, Habil (Abel).

In fact, Allah the Almighty has instilled numerous qualities within the human soul, like generosity and miserliness. The generous one tends to seek peoples' praise while the miser seeks to have sufficient money. These qualities compete with each other within every human soul and that is why He the Almighty commands us to guard ourselves. That is to say that we should guard ourselves against the bad qualities of our souls. One bad quality of the soul could be its longing to satisfy its desires, but another good quality within the same soul warns it against these fleeting desires whose consequences will be suffered later. Thus, there is a struggle within one's soul; when it renounces evil, it returns to goodness.

When Allah Glorified is He sets His Way of Guidance, He instills religious inclinations in every soul to make it adhere to His Way if it is careful and alert. But if these religious inclinations are neglected, the soul goes astray.

However, after this temporal deviation, it becomes alert again. This happens to the self-reproaching soul that whispers to the person when he does something wrong that Allah the Almighty commanded him not to do. Thereupon, the person returns to Allah’s Way of Guidance in order to seek His Forgiveness and Pardon.

If the self-reproaching soul is absent, then the soul that incites him to evil takes its place and directs the person towards deviations. Every soul is surrounded by many souls that want to reform the society and resist deviations. However, sometimes the reformation and redirection towards the right, after committing something wrong, comes from one's self-reproaching soul. But when one’s self-reproaching soul is absent, the soul that incites to evil replaces it.

Deviation from the Divine Way takes place gradually. When someone does not follow Allah's Way in a certain matter, his soul reproaches him for that; such a soul is called a self-reproaching soul. After a person commits a sin, his soul returns to being careful about following the Divine Way if such a person possesses religious immunity. By contrast, another person enjoys deviating from the right course and his soul urges him to go astray. He has a soul that incites him to evil and frequently prompts him to commit sins. Such a person needs someone else to guide him to do good.

Allah Glorified is He has made the human soul three kinds: self-reproaching, inciting to evil and at peace. The self-reproaching soul is in charge of rejecting the whispers of the soul inciting to evil. If it does not reject such whispers, the soul inciting to evil keeps inciting the human being to do wrong and nothing can stop it. As for the soul at peace, it is the one who is assured regarding the Divine Way of Guidance. We should take into account that the human soul naturally loves goodness. If its evil does not control it, it inclines to goodness and loves it. But if the evil soul controls it, its evil veils its goodness and its whims and desires open the gates of evil for it.

The person may follow his whims and commit a bad deed, but he then becomes heedful and his soul reproaches him for committing the bad deed; this is the self-reproaching soul which rebukes himself for doing evil and motives himself to do good. If the self-reproaching soul prevails, the society will be in a good state. To sum up, the soul at peace obeys Allah the Almighty and commands the human beings to obey Him, and the self-reproaching soul reproaches himself for doing evil. Every believer may undergo some weakness in his faith. In such a case, he should seek instruction from his co-religionist who will blame him for his weakness in faith and put him back on the right track.

The person is not only responsible for guarding himself against the hellfire, but he is also responsible for his household, including his wife and children. Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him was asked, ‘How can we guard ourselves and families against the hellfire?’ He replied, ‘By ordering them to do what pleases Allah and not to do what He dislikes’.(1) This means that we should learn what is good and then teach it to our families in order to guard ourselves and the people we know against the hellfire by obeying Allah the Almighty. Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him commands us to first learn what is beneficial for us, and then teach it to those we are responsible for; that is, the person starts with himself, then his closest relatives, and then the rest of his family. This is because Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'Start with your dependents'.(2) The man is in charge of his family and should take care of them as Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, ‘All of you are guardians (ra’i) and are responsible for your charges’.

The root of the Arabic word ‘ra'i' (guardian) is derived from grazing sheep because when the shepherd takes the sheep to the pasture, he guards them for none of them to go astray and then be caught by the wolves. He provides for the sheep what makes them at rest for them not to become exhausted and die on the way.

Thus, the man shoulders the responsibility of his family as Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'The man is the guardian of his family and is responsible for them; a woman is the guardian of her husband's home and his children and is responsible for them; and the slave is a guardian of his master's property and is responsible for it. Surely, every one of you is a guardian and is responsible for his charges'.(1)

(1) In his Tafsir, As-Suyuti ascribed this Hadith to Ibn Mardawayh on the authority of Zayd ibn Aslam. It is also narrated by Sa'id ibn Mansor, Abd ibn Hamid, Ibn Jarir, and others. See As-Suyuti, Ad-Durr Al-Manthur, 14/588.

(2) This Hadith is narrated on the authority of Abu Hurayra Allah be pleased with him. See Al-Bukhari, Sahih, Hadith no. 1426.

Giving the example of one of the Prophets, Allah the Almighty teaches us how to care for our families, saying: 'And he [Ismail (Ishmael)] enjoined on his family prayer and almsgiving, and was one in whom his Lord was well pleased' (Maryam: 55). One of the virtues of Prophet Ismail (Ishmael) peace be upon him is that he used to order his wife and children to pray and give alms. He Glorified is He does not make mention of a virtue unless it is great and proportional to Ishmael's virtues of being truthful to his promise and being a Messenger and a Prophet. As such, anyone who wants to be described with a prophetic virtue should command his household to pray and give alms.

But why does Allah Glorified is He especially mention one's household? This is because they immediately surround him and that if they are righteous, his whole family and offspring will be good. If the man draws his household's attention towards the remembrance of Allah and praying five times a day, this blocks the ways of Satan. After all, he has no chance in a home where prayer is established five times a day. In this regard, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'May Allah show mercy to a man who gets up during the night and prays two units of prayer, and who wakens his wife and she prays; but if she refuses, he sprinkles water on her face. May Allah show mercy to a woman who gets up during the night and prays, and who wakens her husband and he prays; but if he refuses, she sprinkles water on his face'.(2)

This means every night, every man and woman can be like a Messenger for their household. In this connection, He the Almighty says: 'And enjoin prayer on your followers, and be constant in it. We do not ask you for subsistence; We give you subsistence. And the (good) end is for those who guard (against evil)' (Ta Ha: 132). Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him explained this matter for us, saying, ‘Command your children to perform prayer when they are seven, and beat them for not offering them when they are ten’.(1) The order to pray is issued by the child's family, but it is ultimately issued by Allah the Almighty. This is because He the Almighty wanted to make the child, in this early age, ordered from someone physically closer to him. His father is the one who gives him the material bounties by providing him with food, drink and all the necessities of life. For this reason, if his father orders him to pray, he will likely obey him. After all, the child's faculties of perception are not broad enough to understand the One Who really bestows the bounties, namely Allah the Almighty. That is why Allah commands the father to make his child accustomed to carrying out Allah’s Obligations, punishing him if he does not adhere to that order. This is because the one who issues any order is the one who punishes for neglecting it. When the child attains puberty, he receives the order from the One Who bestows bounty on him, that is Allah Glorified is He. At that time, the child will be familiar with the religious obligations; therefore, they will be easy for him.

(1) This Hadith is narrated on the authority of Ibn 'Umar Allah be pleased with him. See Al-Bukhari, Sahih, Hadith no. 7138; Muslim, Sahih, Hadith no. 4828;

You should notice that Allah Glorified is He says: '…and be patient (istabir) in it [the prayer, yourself]' (Ta Ha: 132) meaning, the responsibility of the father and the mother is not confined to ordering the children to pray, but they should be steadfast in praying themselves. There is a difference between the imperative ‘isbir’ and ‘istabir’ (be patient), which have similar meanings. The Arabic verb ‘istabir’ used in the last verse expresses a hyperbole; to be more patient and deliberately do it by, for example, caring to pray in front of the children to established the importance of prayer in their minds. For instance, when you enter your house and find the food is ready, you can say to your children, ‘Wait until I offer my prayer’. In this way, the children will be aware that Prayer is more important than food. Furthermore, you will instill the idea of respecting Allah's Obligation in their souls, and that keeping up prayer takes precedence over any other action, whatever it may be. ‘Umar Allah be pleased with him used to get up at night to pray what Allah the Almighty used to make easy for him until the Dawn Prayer. Then he used to wake his household up for prayer; but if they refused, he would sprinkle water on their faces. When you make your children accustomed to the call for prayer, they will answer it once they hear it without prioritising anything else. In fact, Allah Glorified is He does not bless any work that distracts you from answering the call for prayer.

(1) This Hadith is narrated on the authority of 'Amr ibn Al-'As Allah be pleased with him. See Ahmad, Musnad, Hadith no. 6756; Abu Dawud, Sunnan, Hadith no. 495.

Back to the verse in question; Allah the Almighty says: 'Believers, guard yourselves and your families against a fire fuelled by people and stones…' (at-Tahrim: 6). In another verse, He the Almighty also says: '…then be on your guard against the fire of which men and stones are the fuel; it is prepared for the unbelievers' (al-Baqara: 24). This means people and stones will be the fuel of the hellfire that lights it and makes it blaze strongly. Moreover, Allah Glorified is He says: 'Surely you and what you worship besides Allah are firewood (hasab) of hell; to it you shall come' (al-Anbiya': 98). The Arabic word 'hasab' (firewood) means all that is used as fuel for fire, whether it is wood, cloth, oil or electricity. So, what do you think if the fuel of the hellfire is the disbelieving people themselves? The hellfire waits, longs and yearns for their coming; a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: 'On the Day when We will say to Hell, "Are you filled up?" And it will say, "Are there any more?"' (Qaf: 30), and in His saying: 'When they shall be cast therein, they shall hear a [dreadful] inhaling as it boils up' (al-Mulk: 7). When the disbelievers are thrown into the hellfire, it will blaze forth, making a great blast. Its inhalation seizes the hearts as if it sucks in what is thrown into it.

It has been narrated that when Allah's saying: '…a fire fuelled by people and stones…' (at-Tahrim: 6) was revealed, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him recited it and thereupon a young person sitting beside him fell unconscious. Out of mercy for him, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him put his head on his lap. After a while, the young boy opened his eyes to find his head on the lap of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. Thereupon, the young man said, 'May my father and mother be scarified for you, Prophet Muhammad. What is the stone of the Hell like?' He replied, 'Is what has inflicted you not enough? Anyhow, if one of its stones were placed on a mountain, it would melt'. (1)

(1) This Hadith was narrated by Ibn Al-Mundhir on the authority of Mohammad ibn Hisham, but Al-Albani graded it as weak. In his Tafsir, As-Suyuti ascribed it to Ibn Abu Ad-Dunya =

Afterwards, Allah the Almighty describes the angels who are in charge of the hellfire and are its keepers as being: '…stern and strong…' (at-Tahrim: 6). The Arabic word 'ghilazh' (strong) refers to those who have strong and big bodies. The distance between the two shoulders of any of these angels is like the distance of travelling for one year. They also use harsh words and treat the disbelievers who are the companions of the hellfire roughly. Furthermore, they are heartless and merciless to the disbeliever when they beg for mercy, for their mercy to the disbeliever has been taken away from their hearts, even though they are angels. Allah the Almighty says: 'And We have not made the wardens of the fire other than angels. And We have not made their number but as a trial for those who disbelieve, in order that the people of the Book may be certain and those who believe may increase in faith…' (al-Muddaththir: 31).

The number of these angels who are in charge of the hellfire is nineteen, as Allah the Almighty says: 'Over it are nineteen' (al-Muddaththir: 30). They are harsh when responding to the people of the hellfire, as Allah the Almighty says: 'And those who are in the Fire shall say to the keepers of Hell, "Call upon your Lord that He may lighten to us one day of the punishment"' (Ghafir: 49). But the keepers of the hellfire will shatter their hopes, saying: 'They shall say, "Did your Messengers not come to you with clear arguments?" They shall say, "Yes". They [the angels] shall say, "Then call. But the call of the unbelievers is nothing but [futile wandering] in [mazes of] error"' (Ghafir: 50).

The punishment of the hellfire is so severe that the disbelievers will ask Allah the Almighty to cause them to perish in order to relieve themselves from that punishment. In this regard, the Lord the Almighty says: 'And they shall call out, "O Malik! Let your Lord put an end of us". He shall say, "Surely, you shall abide"' (az-Zukhruf: 78). Furthermore, it is narrated that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'When the people of Paradise enter Paradise and the people of Hell enter Hell, death shall be brought in a form of a sheep. Then it will be said to the believers, "Do you recognise this?" They will say, "We recognise it. It is death. It came to us and we knew it". Then it will be said to the people of the fire, "Do you recognise this?"

= and Ibn Qudama in his book Al-Buka' Wa Ar-Riqa. See Al-Albani, Da'if At-Targhib, Hadith no. 2152; and As-Suyuti, Ad-Durr Al-Manthur, 14/689.

They will say, “Yes”. Then it will be said, “O people of Paradise! Have an everlasting life without death! O people of the Fire! Have an everlasting life without death!”'(1)

Therefore, the people of the hellfire will wish to die in order to be relieved of the chastisement. There is a great difference between death and punishment. Death ends the life and causes one's pain to come to an end, whereas the punishment lasts as long as the person lives. You can imagine the severity of the punishment that makes the punished person wish and beg for death. In this connection, Allah the Almighty says: ‘They will be hurled into a narrow part of the hellfire, chained together. They will cry out for death. Do not cry out this day for one death, but cry out for many deaths' (al-Furqan: 13, 14). A poet says in this regard:

How terrible your suffering is if you consider death a cure and how calamitous it is to wish to die!

Allah Glorified is He describes the angels in general and the keepers of the hellfire in particular, saying: '…angels who never disobey Allah’s Commands to them, but do as they are ordered' (at-Tahrim: 6). They never disobey His command, and for this reason not one of the disbelievers should think that they can, for instance, incite one of the keepers of the hellfire to let them leave the hellfire. Naturally, the angels obey the commands of Allah the Almighty and never disobey Him. For this reason, Allah Glorified is He made the keepers of the hellfire angels who were created from light and who naturally obey Him. Furthermore, the Lord Glorified is He describes them, saying: 'They fear their Lord above them and do what they are commanded' (an-Nahl: 50). Besides, they never disdain to worship Him the Almighty nor do they grow weary, as He the Almighty says: 'Those who are with Him [Allah] are not proud to serve Him, nor do they grow weary' (al-Anbiya’: 19). They are not like the disbelievers and the deniers; rather, they do not become weak, eat or grow weary of obeying Him Glorified is He. Moreover, Allah the Most High says: 'Those who bear the Supreme Throne [of Allah] and those around Him

(1) This Hadith was narrated on the authority of Abu Sa'id Al-Khudri Allah be pleased with him. See Al-Bukhari, Sahih, Hadith no. 4730; Muslim, Sahih, Hadith no. 7360.

[Allah] celebrate the praise of their Lord and believe in Him, and ask protection for those who believe…' (Ghafir: 7). They do not celebrate Allah's praise out of fear and awe; rather, out of love and faith, and that is why the Lord Glorified is He says that they: '…believe in Him…' (Ghafir: 7).

Afterwards, Allah the Exalted says:

‘You who disbelieve, make no excuses today: you are only being repaid for what you used to do’[7]
(The Quran, at-Tahrim: 7)

There are numerous kinds of addresses in the Quran, and the addresses differ according to the addressee. For example, Allah the Almighty addresses the believers, saying: ‘O you who believe, shall I show you a bargain that will save you from a painful torment? Believe in Allah and His Messenger [Muhammad] and struggle for His Cause with your possessions and your persons—that is better for you, if only you knew’ (as-Saff: 10-11), and: ‘O believers, obey Allah and His Messenger [Muhammad]: do not turn away when you are listening to him. And do not be like those who say, “We heard”, though in fact they were not listening. The worst creatures in Allah’s eyes are those who are [wilfully] deaf and dumb, who do not use reason’ (al-Anfal: 20-22).

In addition, Allah Glorified is He addresses the Prophets and the people of the Book, but He does not address the disbeliever except in this verse that reads: 'O you who disbelieve, make no excuses today: you are only being repaid for what you used to do' (at-Tahrim: 7). He, however, includes the disbelievers in His general address directed to all the people commanding them to believe in Him, as in His saying: ‘O people, be mindful of your Lord, for the earthquake of the Last Hour will be a mighty thing’ (al-Hajj: 1), and: ‘O people, be mindful of your Lord and fear a day when no parent will be able to avail their child at all, nor will a child be able to avail their parent at all. Allah’s Promise is true, so do not let the present life delude you nor let the Deceiver delude you about Allah' (Luqman: 33). Here, Allah Glorified is He addresses all people, believers and disbelievers.

Allah Glorified is He does not address the disbelievers except when they enter the fire and suffer the severe torment, saying: ‘O you who disbelieve, make no excuses today…' (at-Tahrim: 7). The disbelievers wishfully think that pleasure is confined to the worldly life, which runs counter to the Truth that they will come to know only in the hereafter, after they are thrown in the hellfire. In this regard, Allah Glorified is He says: 'Leave them to eat and enjoy themselves and to let false hopes distract them for they will come to know the consequences of their actions' (al-Hijr: 3).

The disbelievers are of two kinds: one kind disbelieved in Allah the Almighty, but when guidance came to them, they employed their minds, arrived at the Truth and declared their belief in Him the Almighty. The other kind of disbelievers benefited from their disbelief and, therefore, clung to it, no matter what proofs of faith were presented to them, out of their stubbornness in their disbelief.

These disbelievers did not disbelieve in Allah Glorified is He because the Message did not come to them. After all, it is their right to be sent a Prophet or a Messenger to lead them to the Divine Way. However, they considered their disbelief a mission to fulfill and a path to follow, given the fact that their disbelief made them masters and unjustly gave them extra privileges over other people. Disbelief means to try to veil the reality of Allah's Existence, the necessarily existing God. In fact, their concealment of Allah's Existence is a proof in itself that He exists, for no one attempts to conceal what is non-existent. Thus, their attempt to conceal Allah's Existence rebound, as it proves His Existence. As such, the disbelievers themselves attest to Allah's Existence.

The worst kind of disbelief is that preceded by believing in Allah the Almighty as He says: 'Surely, those who disbelieve after having believed, then increase in disbelief, their repentance shall not be accepted, and these are the ones that go astray' (Al-‘Imran: 90). The one whose disbelief increases is the one who, after disbelieving himself, bars others from having faith in Allah the Almighty. Such a disbeliever is not satisfied with his disbelief, for he tries to spread it to others, which increases his disbelief. Furthermore, Allah the Almighty says: 'Surely, those who disbelieve and die while they are unbelievers, the earth full of gold shall not be accepted from one of them, though he should offer to ransom himself with it. They are the ones who shall have a painful chastisement, and they shall have no helpers' (Al-'Imran: 91). It will be said to them: 'Did you disbelieve after having believed? Taste therefore the chastisement because you disbelieved' (Al-'Imran: 106). This is because they first believed then disbelieved and died in the state of disbelief.

Their faces will be black on the Day of Judgment, even if they were masters in this worldly life, enjoying its pleasures. In this connection, Allah the Almighty commands Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and the Muslims, saying: '[O Prophet], do not be deceived by the disbelievers' [lucrative] trading to and fro in the land' (Al-'Imran: 196). The disbelievers only enjoy the short, fleeting pleasure of this worldly life. By contrast, the believers will enjoy the deferred yet eternal pleasure in the hereafter. For this reason, Allah the Almighty says about the disbelievers' enjoyment: 'This is only a brief enjoyment, after which Hell will be their home—a miserable resting place!' (Al-'Imran: 197) That is why the Lord the Most High will not accept their excuses because, on the Day of Judgment, the matter is over and their life in this world will have end. As a result, they had already lost their opportunity to believe and their excuses will neither be accepted nor be beneficial for them. They will be punished for their misdeeds, as they did not offer anything except their disbelief in Allah the Almighty rejecting His signs and fighting His Messengers and righteous slaves.

They will give many excuses in the Hereafter, saying, for instance: 'The last of them shall say with regards to the foremost of them, "Our Lord! These led us astray, therefore give them a double chastisement of the Fire". He will say, "Every one shall have double, but this you do not understand"' (al-A'raf: 38). This excuse is not accepted because all the disbelievers have a double punishment. Those who imitated others in going astray from the Way of Guidance increased the number of the callers towards error and strengthened their position, which incited many people to follow them.

The oppressed ones among the disbelievers will give another excuse that the haughty, disbelieving oppressors schemed, night and day, against them, ordering them to disbelieve in Allah the Almighty. In this connection, Allah the Almighty says: 'The oppressors will say to them, “Was it we who prevented you from following right guidance after it had reached you? No! You yourselves were sinners”. The oppressed will say to them, “No, it was your scheming, night and day, ordering us to disbelieve in Allah and set up rivals to Him”. When they see the punishment, they will fall silent with regret, and We shall put iron collars on the disbelievers’ necks. Why should they be rewarded for anything other than what they have done?' (Saba’: 32-33) Each of the two groups will blame the other, claiming that it is responsible for the punishment they suffer. When the oppressors charged the oppressed saying that they were sinners who followed them to avail themselves of the pleasures of the worldly life, the oppressed will respond by stating that the oppressors used to scheme, day and night, persuading and urging them to disbelieve until they followed them.

Furthermore, they will give another lame excuse, saying: 'O our Lord! Our adversity overcame us and we were an erring people. O our Lord! Take us out of it; then, if we return (to evil), surely we shall be unjust' (al-Mu’minun: 106-107). Thereupon, Allah the Almighty replies: 'Away with you! Remain in it [Hell] with ignominy! Do not speak to Me!’ (al-Mu’minun: 108) They wanted to be acquitted of their charge, putting the blame on Allah Glorified is He by saying that He predestined their waywardness and as a result they are not sinful, for how can they be among the blessed if their destiny was otherwise. Moreover, they will say, 'If Allah willed, we will not have disbelieved'. As a result, Allah the Almighty replies: 'Away with you! Remain in it [Hell] with ignominy! Do not speak to Me!’ (al-Mu’minun: 108) It is as if Allah Glorified is He is saying to them, 'Be silent in your humiliation and disgrace, for you used to persecute the believers'.

On their entry to the hellfire, Allah the Almighty says to them: 'O you who disbelieve, make no excuses today: you are only being repaid for what you used to do' (at-Tahrim: 7). This is meant to shatter their hopes of salvation. The Lord the Almighty also says: 'But on that day their excuse shall not profit those who were unjust, nor will they be allowed to receive a reprove [so as to be given another chance after it] (yust’ataboon)' (ar-Rum: 57). In addition to the unacceptability of their excuses, they will not be allowed to make amends.

The Arabic word ‘al-'itab’ from which the word ‘yust’ataboon’ (receive a reprove) is derived, means to reprove someone gently for something he has done. No one will even dare to ask them to plead with Allah the Almighty to waive their punishment.

The Day of Judgment is not the time for giving excuses; rather, it is the Day of Recompense for deeds. The disbelievers will be admitted to the hellfire as a repayment for their misdeeds. Their excuses for their sins and crimes will not be useful for them as they had been warned in the worldly life.

In the verse in question, Allah the Almighty says: '…you are only being repaid for what you used to do’ (at-Tahrim: 7). That is, the disbelievers' punishment is not decreed unjustly against them because the Lord the Almighty neither unjustly favours the one who does good deeds nor is He unjust to the one who does misdeeds; a fact which is clear in His saying: '…no injustice (shall be done) this Day…' (Ghafir: 7).

Allah the Almighty also says: 'And you shall see every nation kneeling down; every nation shall be called to its book. Today you shall be rewarded for what you did' (al-Jathiya: 28). Consequently, Allah the Almighty does not unjustly punish them; rather, He says to them: '…Taste what you did' (al-'Ankabut: 55). It is as if their misdeed is the hellfire that burns them. In fact, the person is only held accountable and rewarded for his own actions, and as a result no one should ask the Lord the Exalted about something that has nothing to do with him.

The human being is asked to repent regardless of his religious condition. If he is a disbeliever, his repentance is to believe in Allah the Almighty and if he is a believer, his repentance is to stop committing sins, misdeeds and injustice, and to refrain from appropriating people's rights.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He commands the believers, in particular, to repent, saying:

سَيِّـَٔاتِكُمۡ وَيُدۡخِلَكُمۡ جَنَّٰتٖ تَجۡرِي مِن تَحۡتِهَا ٱلۡأَنۡهَٰرُ يَوۡمَ لَا يُخۡزِي ٱللَّهُ
ٱلنَّبِيَّ وَٱلَّذِينَ ءَامَنُواْ مَعَهُۥۖ نُورُهُمۡ يَسۡعَىٰ بَيۡنَ أَيۡدِيهِمۡ وَبِأَيۡمَٰنِهِمۡ يَقُولُونَ رَبَّنَآ
أَتۡمِمۡ لَنَا نُورَنَا وَٱغۡفِرۡ لَنَآۖ إِنَّكَ عَلَىٰ كُلِّ شَيۡءٖ قَدِيرٞ ﴿٨﴾

Believers, turn to God in sincere repentance. Your Lord may well cancel your bad deeds for you and admit you into Gardens graced with flowing streams, on a Day when God will not disgrace the Prophet or those who have believed with him. With their lights streaming out ahead of them and to their right, they will say, 'Lord, perfect our lights for us and forgive us: You have power over everything' [8]
(The Quran, at-Tahrim: 8)

One may ask, 'Why does Allah address the disbelievers in the previous verse, although in the verse before and after it He addresses the believers? He firstly addresses the believers, saying: 'O believers, guard yourselves and your families against a fire fuelled by people and stones, over which stand angels, stern and strong; angels who never disobey Allah's Commands to them, but do as they are ordered' (at-Tahrim: 6), and followed it by saying: 'O you who disbelieve, make no excuses today: you are only being repaid for what you used to do' (at-Tahrim: 7), and then He says: 'O believers, turn to Allah in sincere repentance' (at-Tahrim: 8). The one who reflects on these verses will find that Allah the Almighty has compassion for the disbelievers as He places His discourse to them between two verses addressing the believers. He the Almighty wants them to believe in Him; but why do they reject the Call of Belief?

From these verses we also learn that Allah the Almighty also warns the believers against disbelieving and asks them to guard themselves and their families against the hellfire fuelled by men and stones. In another verse, He the Almighty says: 'And if you are in doubt as to that which We have revealed to Our slave, then produce a chapter like it and call on your witnesses besides Allah if you are truthful. But if you do (it) not, and never shall you do (it), then be on your guard against the fire whose fuel is men and stones; it is prepared for the unbelievers' (al-Baqara: 23-24). After Allah the Almighty makes mention of the hellfire in the earlier verse in the chapter of at-Tahrim, it is suitable that He calls the disbelievers, saying: 'O you who disbelieve, make no excuses today: you are only being repaid for what you used to do' (at-Tahrim: 7).

Afterwards, Allah the Almighty commands the believers to repent, saying: 'Believers, turn to Allah in sincere repentance (tawba)' (at-Tahrim: 8). Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him also said, 'Allah is more delighted at the repentance of His slave than the one who found his camel after he had lost it in a waterless desert'.(1) If one tries to get closer to Allah the Almighty He guides him. Repentance requires the determination of the repentant to not commit new sins or return to those which he had previously committed. The Lord the Almighty does not reject the invocations of anyone who seeks His Bounty.

To know how great His Mercy towards His slaves is, we should read the following Sacred Hadith in which Prophet Muhammad related Allah as saying, 'On every day the sun rises, the sky says to Allah, "My Lord, grant me the permission to fall apart on the human beings for they eat from Your Provision but are ungrateful to You". The seas say, "My Lord, grant us the permission to drown the human beings for they eat from Your Provision but are ungrateful to You". The mountains also say, "My Lord, grant us the permission to smash the human beings for they eat from Your Provision but are ungrateful to You". Thereupon Allah says, "Leave them, for if you had created them, you will have been merciful to them. They are my slaves. If they repent to Me, I will be pleased with them. Otherwise, I will reform them"'.(2)

The Arabic verb 'taba' (to repent), from which the word 'toobu' (turn in repentance) in the verse under discussion is derived, means that the slave repents to Allah the Almighty seeking His Forgiveness for his sins and misdeeds. By doing this, the Lord the Almighty accepts his repentance. Thus, the word repentance revolves around returning to Him the Almighty.

Allah's Kindness and Mercy is evident in prescribing repentance in order for the people to have their sins forgiven. Accordingly, when the person commits a sin and regrets doing it, he should not think that repentance is difficult for him, as the Lord Glorified is He says: 'Except those who repent and amend and make manifest (the Truth), these are the ones to whom I turn (in mercy); and I am the Oft-Returning (to mercy), the Most Merciful' (al-Baqara: 160). Thus, Allah accepts the repentance of all sinners as He is the Oft-Returning (to mercy). In addition to prescribing repentance in order for the slaves to have their repentance accepted, Allah the Almighty prescribed it to guard His slaves against the evils of committing sins and to show Mercy to the repentant sinners.

(1) This Hadith was narrated on the authority of Anas ibn Malik Allah be pleased with him. See: Al-Bukhari, Sahih, Hadith no. 6309; Muslim, Hadith no. 7137.

In fact, Allah the Almighty shows great Mercy to His slaves and especially the repentant ones among them, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: ‘And (as to) those who do evil deeds but then repent and believe, your Lord after that is most surely Forgiving, Most Merciful’ (al-A‘raf: 153). Thus, repentance means to regret your sin and be determined not to do it again. It also means to return from falsehood to Truth. Some people even repent from their disbelief that inflicted their pure natural belief in order to follow the Divine Way of Guidance. Out of His Mercy, Allah the Almighty opens the doors of repentance to the sinners which protects the whole society from the deviant people and the followers of whims and desires. Had these doors of repentance been closed in front of the sinners, the whole society will have suffered because the sinners will keep on their falsehood and error, as they will not have had any motivation to be righteous.

The repentance should be a sincere one, for Allah the Almighty says: ‘O believers turn to Allah in sincere repentance...’ (at-Tahrim: 8). Being sincere in repentance requiring that the repentant slave abstains from committing the sin, is determined not to repeat it, and returns the rights to the people, if applicable. The sincere repentance, therefore, is the one after which the repentant person does not commit the sin and does not mockingly renege on it saying, ‘I will commit such-and-such a sin and then I will repent again’. Thus, the person should truly return to Allah the Almighty by being determined not to return to the sin again.

There are some conditions that should be met with regard to repentance in order for it to be a sincere one. These stipulated conditions include: firstly, to abstain from committing the sin; secondly, to regret committing it; and finally, to be determined not to repeat it again. This does not mean that if you commit the same sin again He the Almighty does not accept your repentance because you may undergo some circumstances that make you fall into the same sin once again. What you should do is be truthfully determined not to return to the sin after your repentance, but if you fell into it again, this should be unintentional. However, if you said you will commit the sin and then repent, how can you be sure that the Lord the Most High will grant you a respite until you repent again? As such, we should hastily repent before it is too late. These are the conditions of repentance of the slave regarding a sin committed against Allah the Almighty.

If it is related to other people, the repentant person should meet another condition, namely, returning the rights to the people concerned if this is possible. If it is not possible, he should give any good type of charity, intending to give the reward thereof to the people he had wronged.

Allah says: ‘Your Lord may well cancel your bad deeds for you…’ (at-Tahrim: 8). That is, He forgives the major and the minor sins of the believers. There are many reasons He forgives, including repentance, concealing the charity given to the poor, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: ‘If you give alms openly, it is well. But if you hide it and give it to the poor, it is better for you; this will do away with some of your evil deeds. And Allah is aware of what you do' (al-Baqara: 271), and piety. Allah Glorified is He says: 'O you who believe! If you are careful of (your duty to) Allah, He will grant you a distinction, do away with your evils and forgive you. And Allah’s Favour is indeed immense’ (al-Anfal: 29).

It has become clear that Allah Glorified is He conceals the believer's misdeeds and forgives them, waiving the punishment they deserve for committing these misdeeds. In addition, avoiding the major sins like killing, committing adultery and fleeing the battlefield is one of the reasons for having sins forgiven, a fact which is illustrated in His saying: ‘If you avoid the great sins you have been forbidden, We shall wipe out your minor misdeeds and let you in through the entrance of honour’ (an-Nisa’: 31).

But this is a matter over which the scholars have pondered and lingered. They said, 'The people may be incited to do the minor sins if they avoided the major ones'. We say, 'No'. On the other hand, insisting on doing a minor sin is a great sin. For this reason, you should not insist on committing minor sins; He the Almighty only forgives what you do unintentionally. That is why Allah Glorified is He says: 'Repentance with Allah is only for those who do evil (as-soo') in ignorance and then turn (to Allah) soon. These are the ones to whom Allah turns (in mercy), and Allah is All Knowing, All-Wise' (an-Nisa': 17). They do the misdeed without previously arranging to do it, for repentance is not accepted from the one who enjoys committing sins and is heedless of repentance except when he is dying. For this reason, Allah the Almighty says: 'It is not true repentance when people persist in doing evil deeds (as-sai'aat) until death confronts them and they then say, "Now I repent", nor those who die while they are disbelievers: We have prepared a painful torment for these' (an-Nisa': 18).

You should notice that the Quran used the word 'as-soo'' ('evil', in the singular) to refer to the one sin that the person unintentionally fell into, but for the one who deviates from Allah's Way of Guidance, the word 'as-sai'aat' ('evil deeds', in the plural) is used to describe them as persisting in doing evil deeds. Committing only one sin means that the person has only one weak point, and he does his best to make up for it by doing good deeds. By contrast, the one who habitually commits evil deeds does not have only one weak point as he commits many sins and indulges in deviation. He also defers repentance until the time he is dying, and then he says: 'Now I repent' (an-Nisa': 18).

Wiping out the sins means that Allah the Almighty conceals them in this worldly life and waives the punishment they incur in the Hereafter. Allah the Almighty wipes out the sins of the one who repents sincerely by abstaining from committing a certain sin and not thinking about returning to it. It is as if the sincere repentance has purified the organs of his body; it has purified the heart and the mind from having or thinking about bad intentions.

With regard to the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'Believers, turn to Allah in sincere repentance…' (at-Tahrim: 8), 'Umar ibn Al-Khattab Allah be pleased with him commented, 'It is related to the person who commits a sin and then repents honestly and does not return to it'.(1)

In fact, Allah's Mercy encompasses all the believers who sin, for He forgives all their sins for them. However, the person might not have all his sins wiped out; this is because sins are of two types: there are sins which are committed against Allah the Almighty by violating His Orders, and there are others which are committed by the people against each other. The repentant person may have all the sins committed against Allah the Almighty forgiven for him. This is because he, that is the sinner, does not actually do wrong against Allah the Almighty Himself by committing such sins, but rather to himself. However, any harm committed against the human beings will abuse them and violate their rights. For this reason, repentance in this case occurs only by the restitution of these rights.

Islam is a religion that takes into consideration the reality of the human beings. Allah the Almighty knows that His slaves frequently commit sins, and that is why He Glorified is He has laid down for them the way to ask for forgiveness. If they commit sins, Allah the Almighty asks them to seek repentance.

Polytheism is the major sin that Allah the Almighty does not forgive, a fact which is clear in His saying: 'Surely Allah does not forgive that anything should be associated with Him, but forgives anything else besides that to whomsoever He pleases; and associating anything with Allah is to devise a most heinous sin indeed' (an-Nisa': 48). That is, Allah the Almighty does not pardon those who die without repenting from polytheism, and consequently they will go to the fire whose fuel is men and stones. To such people He the Almighty says: '…make no excuses today: you are only being repaid for what you used to do' (at-Tahrim: 7).

Returning to the verse under discussion, the Lord the Almighty then says: '…and admit you into Gardens graced with flowing streams, on a Day when Allah will not disgrace the Prophet or those who have believed with him. With their lights streaming out ahead of them and to their right, they will say, "Lord, perfect our lights for us and forgive us: You have power over everything"' (at-Tahrim: 8).

There are many kinds of Gardens. They include: Al-Firdaws, Eden, the Bliss, the Abode of Eternity, the Abode of Peace and the Abode of Shelter. But the best of these Gardens is called 'Illiyun. Furthermore, the greatest of all the blessings in paradise is to enjoy seeing Allah the Almighty. Thus, the bliss of paradise is far superior to the bliss of having food and drink in this worldly life.

These Gardens are fully equipped with everything and do not require any effort on the part of the believers. The rivers are running underneath them, and the believers will find there what Allah the Almighty had promised them: '…wherein they abide eternally, with purified spouses…' (Al-'Imran: 15).

Allah the Almighty has created paradise and made it a perpetual abode, as He Glorified is He says: 'Allah has promised to the believing men and the believing women Gardens beneath which rivers flow, to abide in them, and goodly dwellings in Gardens of perpetual abode; and best of all is Allah's goodly Pleasure—that is the grand achievement' (at-Tawba: 72).

In paradise, there are Gardens and Homes provided for the human beings. This is because the human being likes to have a home in order to enjoy his own pleasures by himself. Besides, he likes to sit with other people in a beautiful place, exactly as we do on holidays and special occasions when we go out to the gardens and orchards to sit together. It is as if the Gardens are prepared for extra luxury when you want to meet the people. On the other hand, the Homes of paradise are dedicated for privacy in which each one has a special place to privately enjoy his surroundings.

Therefore, the Gardens are like the orchards, but they were not created with normal causes and means because it is Allah the Almighty Who created them. When we go to a house of a rich person, we may find that the house has a garden looked after by a skilled gardener who takes care of its flowers and trees for them to look nice for the rich owner. In this case, we enjoy sitting in this garden very much and hate to leave it. If this is what happens in the worldly life and within human capacity, how about the Garden created by Allah the Almighty? How great will be the beauty, sweetness and pleasure of these Gardens?!

It is Allah Glorified is He Who promised to admit us into these Gardens, and He is Fully Able to fulfill His Promises to make us enjoy the bliss which no eye has seen, no ear has heard, and no mind has imagined. He the Almighty made these Gardens vast and full of plants and flowers which please the eye with their beauty, the hand with their soft touch, and the nose with their pleasant fragrance.

The rivers running under paradise give it another feature of beauty. They are running underneath it and the source of the water comes from another place or branch from underneath paradise itself. That is, the water originates itself from the same place, so it seems that every river springs from underneath its paradise. They are very beautiful, for they were created by Allah the Almighty. In our worldly life, we see that every river has two banks, but the rivers of paradise run without banks. These rivers, which contain milk, honey, water and wine share the same canal but do not mix. Each river is separate from the others because it is Allah the Almighty Who created them.

The paradise consists of Gardens that contain homes. In the worldly life, we find villas placed in the centre of gardens; but just imagine the beauty of the homes that Allah the Almighty promised us in the centre of paradise! In the Arabic language, the word 'janna' (garden) means 'concealment' or 'hiding', and one of its derivatives is the word 'al-junun' (insanity). The garden can conceal everything by means of the great number of its trees. This means that anyone can walk under its shade or sit in it without being seen. Since it is full of luxuries, the human being will not think of leaving it. The Gardens of Eden and residence in them are perpetual because they contain everything the human being needs. Besides, everyone wishes to live eternally therein.

Allah the Almighty describes these Gardens, saying: 'Gardens of perpetual residence, which they will enter, beneath which rivers flow…' (an-Nahl: 31), and: '…Gardens graced with flowing streams' (at-Tawba: 100). These verses mean that the rivers are running beneath the Gardens, but the source of the water may come from another place. Someone may say, 'The flow of these rivers may be stopped'. That is why Allah the Almighty says: '…beneath which rivers flow' (an-Nahl: 31). This means that the Garden provides water for itself, and it does not come from another source that may be stopped.

Regarding the Lord's saying: '…Gardens graced with flowing streams' (at-Tawba: 100), it means that the spring of this water comes from a remote place and passes underneath the Garden. As for His saying: '… beneath which rivers flow' (an-Nahl: 31), it implies that this water springs from underneath the Garden itself. Consequently, the believers should not fear of it stopping or drying up. This offers assurance that the bliss of paradise is eternal and permanent.

The Arabic word 'anhar' (rivers) is a plural whose singular is 'nahr'. The river is a canal which contains running water; it does not refer to just the water itself. Allah the Almighty says: 'Gardens of perpetual residence, which they will enter, beneath which rivers flow…' (an-Nahl: 31). Where are these rivers running? Are they running under the plants or homes of paradise?

The garden is the orchard which contains trees that the people can hide behind, but it is not similar to the flowering orchard in which only the flowers delight the eyes. Paradise has high trees, thus they can conceal people walking in it. Furthermore, it contains a provision and all what the person needs. It does not let you look for an alternative place because it contains everything. If anyone lacks anything in his worldly life, he looks forward to having everything he needs. But if he has everything he needs, he does not look for other things.

From this we learn that the Garden in paradise covers the believers; its trees have grown to hide the people walking under their branches and leaves. The believers do not look forward to leaving paradise as everything is provided there: water, food, a comfortable place to sit or dance and other blessings bestowed by Allah the Almighty.

The difference between the rivers in this worldly life and those of paradise is that the former are channels that have banks, but the latter run on the surface of the land, without banks to detain the water. In paradise, the rivers of wine are running on the surface of the land but they do not mix with the rivers of water or that of milk. And nothing can stop the flow of the rivers in paradise. All of this has been created by an Omnipotent, All-Wise Lord. The running of the rivers in the worldly life is merely a way to achieve greenery, fertility and ripeness. To sum up, the saying of Allah the Almighty: '…beneath which rivers flow' (Ta Ha: 76) means that the water provides itself; it does not come from another source that may be stopped or banned.

Allah the Almighty says about the rivers of paradise: 'Here is a picture of the Garden promised to the pious: rivers of water forever pure, rivers of milk forever fresh, rivers of wine, a delight for those who drink, rivers of honey clarified and pure, [all] flow in it. There they will find fruit of every kind, and they will find forgiveness from their Lord. How can this be compared to the fate of those who dwell forever in the fire and are given boiling water to drink that tears their bowels?' (Muhammad: 15)

The Lord the Most High gives the rivers of paradise certain names that we are familiar with. However, He purified these rivers from any mud that we might see in the rivers of this worldly life which run between two banks. By contrast, the rivers of paradise will have no banks to detain the water as they will be detained by Allah's Power.

In paradise, you will find rivers of milk whose taste has not been changed, and rivers of wine different from that of the worldly life; it will be delicious for the drinkers. In this worldly life, on the other hand, people drink wine without pleasure, as a person drops it into his mouth at once to reduce its sharp and acidified taste.

Unlike this worldly life, paradise has rivers of honey refined by Allah the Almighty. In this regard, the Arabs used to collect honey from the mountains but they used to find it mixed with stones and sand. Thus, Allah the Almighty filters these blessings from all impurities; He filters water from dirtiness, milk from its taste being altered, wine from what causes drunkenness, and honey from all impurities. That is, He the Almighty purified them from all the impurities known in this worldly life. In this worldly life, water, for example, is sweet, serene and pure, but it becomes dirty when it stagnates. On the contrary, the rivers of water in paradise are purified from all these impurities.

Also, the wine of the Hereafter differs from that of this worldly life; it does not harm the mind. Besides, the wine of this world is not delicious for its drinkers because it is extracted from alcohol which has an astringent taste. This is why you find its drinkers pour it quickly into their mouths in order to avoid its bitterness which in turn hurts their stomach. The situation is different if the drink is mango, orange or sugar-cane juice. People like to taste those fruits, and as a result, we find that they drink their juices slowly to retain their taste for a longer time. Furthermore, Allah the Almighty says about the wine of paradise: 'No bad effect is there in it' (as-Saffat: 47). He the Almighty purifies the rivers of wine from the impurities of the wine of this worldly life which make the mind unaware of what he is doing.

The greatness of paradise is presented by the fact that regardless of the pleasures we enjoy in this worldly life, we cannot have a river of wine, milk or honey. Moreover, out of Allah's Omnipotence, these rivers run in paradise without banks, yet they do not mix with each other.

Enjoying these pleasures will be realised on: '…a Day when Allah will not disgrace (yukhzi) the Prophet [Muhammad] or those who have believed with him' (at-Tahrim: 8). The word 'khizi' (disgrace), from which the verb 'yukhzi' is derived, has two meanings in the Arabic language: scandal and shame.

The two senses are interconnected; if a person encounters a scandal, he becomes ashamed. This indicates that disgrace is an ugly thing that you hate people to know about. With regard to the Hereafter, the 'disgrace' is a level of punishment that is more severe than the torment of hell. The most severe disgrace is when a person takes things from this worldly life in order to redeem himself from the punishment of hell, but Allah the Almighty does not accept that from him. In this regard, He the Almighty says: 'Surely (as for) those who disbelieve, even if they had everything that is on the earth, and the like of it with it, to give as a ransom for the punishment of the Day of Resurrection, it shall not be accepted from them. They shall have a painful punishment' (al-Ma'ida: 36). This is the harshest disgrace that one should avoid.

Likewise, the Jewish will suffer from disgrace and scandal, a fact which is clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'For them in this world is disgrace and they will have in the Hereafter a great punishment' (al-Baqara: 114). Thus, not only will they be punished by being disgraced, but also by a great torment in the hellfire.

In fact, disgrace is harsher on the soul than torment because it entails a scandal. For example, if a person, who used to have a high status in his neighborhood, had a fight with a young boy in front of the people, the disgrace which afflicts this person for starting a fight will be harsher than any physical beating, to the extent that he will become unable to face the people.

The torment which results in disgrace in this worldly life can be embodied in every haughty bully who persecutes the people. His disgrace in this worldly life is realised by being punished and humiliated by the people.

Furthermore, the torment of the Hereafter is the severest and the worst type of torment. Any disgraced person feels worthless and suffers due to the scandal among the people.

Thus, disgrace is an unbearable dishonour and humiliation which is more painful than any physical harm. Disgrace is a chill that inflicts the body and no one can escape from it, even if he is able to conceal his pain. It affects the person psychologically, and this appears on the face; no one can conceal this because it affects one's arrogance, removing it.

With regard to the saying of Allah the Almighty: '…on a Day when Allah will not disgrace the Prophet [Muhammad] or those who have believed with him' (at-Tahrim: 8), this tells those who did not believe in Allah the Almighty that they will be subject to disgrace and debasement, leaving them ashamed and worried and in a poor position. Moreover Allah the Almighty will not disgrace the believers as long as Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him will not be subject to disgrace. The word 'believers' here refers to those who follow the Prophet’s way. But if they abandoned his way, they will be subject to disgrace.

In this connection, the Lord the Almighty says: 'Our Lord, indeed, whoever You admit to the Fire—You have disgraced (akhzaytahu)' (Al-‘Imran: 192). Here, the believers do not focus on the torment of those who will go to the fire, but rather on how they will be disgraced. The word ‘khizi’ (disgrace) from which the word ‘akhzaytah’ is derived, reminds me about a joyful situation which I experienced when I was young. Sheikh Hassan Zaghloul Allah rest his soul used to review Quran for us to ensure we were reciting it in a good way. He was blind and we often used to trick him. If we found an opportunity, we escaped from him and ran away to avoid having our recital of the Quran checked. Concerning this point, I wish to stress strongly that those students, who memorise the Quran alone, without a teacher, can make mistakes in their recitation.

One day, one of our colleagues, Sheikh Mohamad Hassan ‘Abd Al-Bary, forgot to have his Quran recitation reviewed. Suddenly, the principal of the school attended and tested him in the Quran. Sheikh ‘Abd Al-Bary recited: 'Our Lord, indeed, whoever You admit to the Fire—You have disgraced' (Al-‘Imran: 192). But instead of reciting the word ‘akhzaytah’ (disgraced him) with the letter 'zay', he recited it with the letter 'raa'. Sheikh Hassan Zaghloul Allah rest his soul laughed very much and said, 'The meaning is correct, but the narration is not like that'. Usually, whenever we wanted to make Sheikh 'Abd Al-Bary laugh, we used to remind him about this situation.

Next, Allah the Almighty says: 'With their lights streaming out ahead of them and to their right…' (at-Tahrim: 08). This verse is similar to His saying: 'On that day you will see the faithful men and the faithful women—their light running before them and on their right. Good news for you today: Gardens beneath which rivers flow, to abide therein, that is the grand achievement' (al-Hadid: 12). This means that their light will shine in front of them, whereas Allah relates what the hypocrites will say to the believers: 'The Day the hypocrites, men and women, will say to the believers, "Wait for us, that we may have light from your light"; it will be said, "Turn back and seek a light". Then a wall will be put up between them, with a gate in it; (as for) the inside of it, there shall be mercy throughout, and (as for) the outside of it, all along there will be punishment' (al-Hadid: 13). It too late for such hypocrites to seek light, for the time to seek light was in the worldly life by following the Right Path and doing good deeds. From the verse we learn that the Lord the Most High gives the believers light above their light in the Hereafter. Anyone who follows the Divine Way will be given a guiding light streaming out ahead of him and to his right.

Allah the Almighty relates that the believers will say: 'Lord, perfect our lights for us…' (at-Tahrim: 08). When the believers see the hypocrites' light extinguished, they will ask Allah the Almighty to perfect their light in order to reach paradise. Ibn 'Abbas said, 'Every Muslim will be given a light on the Day of Judgment'. (1)

Thus, the light of the hypocrite will be extinguished, and when the believers see that, they will become fearful and thus: 'They will say, "Lord, perfect our lights for us…"' (at-Tahrim: 08). The people of the hell do not get anything from the bliss of paradise and the light of the believers. When they request some light from the people of paradise, the people will reply to them, 'It is too late as the time of fulfilling the religious obligations is over'. Therefore, whoever wishes to obtain the light in the Hereafter should work hard in this worldly life. After all, this light is not a gift from a human to another but a gift from Allah the Almighty to the believers.

(1) In his Tafsir, Ibn Al-Jawzi ascribed this narration to Ibn Abu Hatim on the authority of Ibn 'Abbas, and Ibn Kathir does as well. However, As-Suyuti ascribed it to Al-Bayhaqi. See Ibn Al-Jawzi, Zad Al-Masir, 4/311; Ibn Kathir, Tafsir Al-Quran Al-'Azhim, 1/192; and As-Suyuti, Ad-Durr Al-Manthur, 8/228.

To sum up, the hypocrites will say, 'Wait for us that we may acquire some of your light'. But the people of paradise will not be able to give them light. Allah the Almighty says regarding these hypocrites: 'Their parable is like the parable of one who kindled a fire, but when it had illumined all around him, Allah took away their light and left them in utter darkness—they do not see' (al-Baqara: 17). They lit a fire to give them light in order to see the Path of Belief, but when this light was present, they did not take it. At that point, Allah the Almighty took away the light from their hearts. Thus, they are the ones who requested the Light of Belief, but when He the Almighty bestowed light on them, they did not take it.

Allah the Almighty keeps relating what they will say: '…and forgive us' (at-Tahrim: 8). We ask Him the Almighty to save us from the sins that provoke His Anger. In another verse, He the Almighty says: ‘And their words were not but that they said, 'Our Lord, forgive us our sins and the excess [committed] in our affairs, and plant firmly our feet and give us victory over the disbelieving people' (Al-‘Imran: 147).

Seeking Allah's Forgiveness means the person acknowledges he was negligent and committed sins. When you ask Him for forgiveness, you also acknowledge your belief in Him and that the religious obligations He charged you with are right. Moreover, as long as the person has asked forgiveness for the past sins, he should not commit new sins. In other words, after repenting, the slave should be keen to avoid sins.

Allah the Almighty is the One Who forgives all sins. One day, Al-Asma'i was near the Ka'ba and saw a Bedouin invoking Allah the Almighty saying, 'O Lord, I know that I am disobedient and I am not entitled to supplicate You in such a case, but I know there is no god but You. Hence, if I cannot ask you, who else can I ask?' Thereupon, Al-'Asma'i said, 'Allah will forgive you because you supplicated Him in the proper way'. Allah the Almighty says: 'Say, “O My slaves who have transgressed against themselves [by sinning], do not despair of the Mercy of Allah. Indeed, Allah forgives all sins. Indeed, it is He Who is the All-Forgiving, the Most Merciful' (az-Zumar: 53).

Allah the Almighty is fully Able to do anything and that is why the believers say in their invocation: 'You have power over everything' (at-Tahrim: 8). He the Almighty knows we tend to be inattentive, and He always alerts us to His Omnipotence. He Glorified is He has full Power over His universe, and there is no Ultimate Power but His. Allah is the All-Powerful even before the existence of anything. That is to say that He did not become Omnipotent after bringing human beings into existence; rather, His Power existed before mankind and the entire universe was created. Allah the Almighty remains Powerful and in control in every moment.

Allah the Almighty is the One Who created paradise, including its rivers. Out of His Omnipotence, He has the Power to admit anyone who believes in Him into paradise. Furthermore, He the Almighty gives such a person light to guide him, while the disbeliever will be deprived of this light. Rather, the hell into which such a disbeliever will be thrown is full of only the light from the fire.

The believers will continuously pray and invoke Allah the Almighty to perfect their light. On the other hand, the hypocrites will say to the believers: 'Wait for us that we may borrow from your light...' (al-Hadid: 13). This verse means that the hypocrites will say to the believers, 'Look at us or wait for us to walk through your light', but it will be said to them: 'Turn back and seek a light' (al-Hadid: 13). That is, it will be said to them, 'Go back to this worldly life, for in the Hereafter you will find only the lights you had in the worldly life!' This means His saying: 'Turn back and seek a light' (al-Hadid: 13) is a form of sarcasm, as, on the Day of Judgment, it is not possible to return to this worldly life to seek light. Moreover, in the Hereafter, there will be no light for those who had not acquired it in the worldly life.

All Muslims will have light on the Day of Judgment to guide them along the Straight Path. By contrast, the hypocrites will not have light and will be separated from the believers. This verse tells us that the Lord the Almighty has allocated light for the believers in the Hereafter but deprived the hypocrites of light because they did not follow the light that He the Almighty revealed in this worldly life.

With regard to the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'On a Day when Allah will not disgrace the Prophet [Muhammad] or those who have believed with him. With their lights streaming out ahead of them and to their right, they will say, “Lord, perfect our lights for us…”' (at-Tahrim: 8), ‘Abdullah ibn 'Abbas, the well-known interpreter of the Quran, said, 'All the Muslims will have light on the Day of Judgment'. As for the hypocrites, they will have no light. When the believers see that, they become fearful and say: 'Lord, perfect our lights for us…' (at-Tahrim: 8). Then Allah the Almighty says:

عَلَيۡهِمۡۚ وَمَأۡوَىٰهُمۡ جَهَنَّمُۖ وَبِئۡسَ ٱلۡمَصِيرُ ﴿٩﴾

Prophet, strive hard against the disbelievers and the hypocrites. Deal with them sternly. Hell will be their home, an evil destination! [9] (The Quran, at-Tahrim: 9)

The Arabic word ‘jahada’ (to strive) has the same form as ‘sharaka’ (to participate) and ‘qatala’ (to fight); the verb 'to strive' and 'to fight' depend upon participation in the incident which means that if someone fights you, you should exert your effort to fight against him. They are similar to the verb 'to participate'. In Arabic, it is not correct to say, 'Zayd participates', for you should complete the meaning and say, 'Zayd participates with 'Amr'. In the case of the verb ‘to fight’, you should say, 'Zayd fights 'Amr'. That is, there is reaction when you fight. The verb 'to strive' entails resistance, patience and confrontation in the battle. It means exerting the utmost effort in the battlefield. One of its derivatives is used when you say, 'Someone strove to do something', and 'Striving in extracting the legal ruling'. We can see that striving produces a reaction, which needs a great effort. In other words, it comes from two sides, you and the other party.

These two verbs ‘to strive’ and ‘to fight’ refer to participation in an action. Similarly, you say, 'Zayd participates with 'Amr'. In this example, both of them are simultaneously a subject and an object.

Striving is needed in many fields: striving against the instincts and emotions, the hardship of following the commands and the prohibitions, the demons of mankind and jinn, and the opponents of Islam who want to extinguish Allah's Light.

Furthermore, Jihad takes many forms; whoever has power and money or one of them must strive with what he has. If the person is weak, he should provide money to the strong to buy arms, horses, armour, and any other means needed for fighting. As a matter of fact, the one who strives with money is certain that Allah the Almighty will reward him with better than what he spent.

In this verse, Allah the Almighty commands Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him to strive against the disbelievers and the hypocrites. The disbelievers benefit from corruption and in order to keep this corruption, they resist the Right Path of the believers. By doing this, they want to keep the privileges they gained by means of following the falsehood.

Consequently Allah the Almighty alerts Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him to the reality of these disbelievers who benefitted from corruption, and consequently fought him. That is why He the Almighty says to him: '…strive hard against the disbelievers and the hypocrites' (at-Tahrim: 9).

Striving against the disbelievers is two types: firstly, when the disbelievers resist the call of Islam and stand in the way of the ones who call others to it, trying to silent them; secondly, Muslims strive in order to spread the Message of Allah the Almighty worldwide, without coercion. As a matter of fact, no one can be forced to adopt any religion. As such, the Islamic military campaigns were not intended to impose the religion of Islam, but rather to guarantee the freedom of religion for the human being, in order for people to choose their religion without coercion. The freedom of choice comes by removing the obstacles that used to force a person to adopt a certain religion. After that, all the religions become available to him and he can choose whatever he wants.

As long as Jihad is an obligation in this sense, every Muslim is obliged to strive. Here, we should know that Jihad is either an individual obligation upon the Muslim—this is when the believers are attacked and their number is insufficient to resist the enemy or a collective obligation—this is when the numbers and troops of the Muslim army are sufficient to defeat the enemy.

Striving against the disbelievers differs from striving against the hypocrites. As for the disbelievers, Allah the Almighty describes their characteristics in two verses, saying: 'Indeed, those who disbelieve—it is all the same for them whether you warn them or do not warn them—they will not believe. Allah has set a seal upon their hearts and upon their hearing, and there is a covering over their eyes, and there is a great punishment for them' (al-Baqara: 6-7). The disbelievers are explicit in their hostility. And, as they explicitly announce their disbelief, we can avoid their harm. In fact, unlike the hypocrites who deny faith inwardly and announce it outwardly, the disbelievers deny faith and announce it with their tongues.

As for the hypocrites, we must be cautious about them because we do not know their true state. For this reason, we should be careful in dealing with them, for they may betray us and can harm us greatly.

As such, the believers face enmity from two categories: the disbelievers and the hypocrites. The disbelievers announce their disbelief publicly and everyone knows they are disbelievers. This matter appears in their speech and actions, for they disbelieve inwardly and outwardly.

On the other hand, the hypocrites announce faith with their tongues but hide disbelief in their hearts. In this way they are a dangerous enemy as they cheat us. You may think that someone is a believer and you disclose your secrets to him. Then you discover that he betrayed you in order to distort your religion. That is, the hypocrites declare with their tongues what runs counter to what is in their hearts, and fear that other people may discover their reality.

As the hypocrites declare with their tongues what is not in their hearts, Allah the Almighty will treat them in the same way. While they are treated like the true Muslims in the worldly life, their secrets will be disclosed on the Day of Judgment when they will go to the bottom of the hell; their status will not be equal to the disbeliever but be even worse.

The Arabic word ‘nifaq’ (hypocrisy) is derived from ‘nafaq al-jerbou' (the holes of jerboa). Jerboa is a desert animal that cheats anyone who wants to kill it. It opens two holes, entering into one of them in front of the person, and then going out from the other. If the person waits for it at the entrance of one hole, it will come out from the other.

By announcing his disbelief, the disbeliever has given the Muslims an indication to be careful in dealing with him. For this reason, his harm to us will be limited. On the other hand, the hypocrite pretends to be a believer, and this makes his harm more likely. After all, he knows our secrets and weaknesses, and as a result he can hurt us fatally. That is, the disbeliever is an explicit enemy, but the hypocrite is an enemy in disguise. In fact, the invisible enemy is more harmful than the apparent one. We usually do not take care of the invisible enemy, and he knows all our movements and can betray us at any time without us being mindful of this treachery.

The initial stage of Jihad is achieved by using argument. At the early time of Islam, the believers were weak and few, and did not have the strength to face the great power of disbelief. Allah the Almighty says: 'O you who have believed, fight those adjacent to you of the disbelievers and let them find in you firmness. And know that Allah is with the righteous' (at-Tawba: 123). This refers to the believers confronting a disbelieving group who was relatively closer to them than other groups which were further away. In the same vein, Allah the Almighty says: 'And fight against the disbelievers collectively as they fight against you collectively…' (at-Tawba: 36) and: 'Fight in the way of Allah those who fight you but do not transgress. Indeed. Allah does not like the transgressors' (al-Baqara: 190).

The intention of fighting must be for Allah's sake, not for arrogance and tyranny. Therefore, in Islam, no fighting shall be launched for the sake of the worldly life, wealth or gaining an economic market. Rather, fighting shall be only for the sake of making the Word of Allah superior and supporting the religion. This is the purpose of fighting in Islam: fighting to repel aggression, not to initiate it. We should take into account that the sword was not used to impose the religion but to protect the freedom of religion.

Allah the Almighty did not prescribe fighting for the preceding Messengers before Prophet Muhammad, peace and blessings upon him. They used to call their people to belief. If they believed, they were saved from the punishment; otherwise they were punished with a furious wind, quake, blast, drowning, causing the earth to swallow them, etc.

That is, the previous Messengers communicated Allah's Message, and Allah the Almighty punished those who denied them. Fighting was not prescribed until the followers of the previous Prophets, like the children of Israel, asked Allah the Almighty to prescribe it. In this regard, Allah the Almighty says: 'Have you not considered the assembly of the Children of Israel after [the time of] Moses when they said to a Prophet of theirs, “Send to us a king, and we will fight in the way of Allah…”' (al-Baqara: 246).

They were the ones who proposed fighting. But fighting for the sake of spreading Allah's Message to the whole world came only with Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. It seems that Allah the Almighty granted his followers the merit of being entrusted with the rest of the people.

Someone might ask, 'Why does Allah the Almighty not grant victory to the believers and Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him directly, without them fighting the disbelievers and the polytheists?’ We reply, 'If victory came due to an unseen reason or unrealized wisdom, it might be said that victory came due to any natural phenomenon. But Allah the Almighty wants to show us that a small number of believers achieved victory over their enemy'.

When Allah the Almighty commands the believers to fight the disbelievers, we understand that the latter must have done something wrong to deserve to be fought, or that they had intended to fight the believers, which is why the believers must fight them. The disbelievers sought to fight Muslims in the Battle of Badr. Furthermore, they marched to Medina and held alliance with the Jews in the Battle of the Trench in order to eliminate the Islamic State that emerged in Medina. Clearly, fighting becomes a must to defend Islam and ensure its survival.

Satan incited the disbelievers to fight the believers promising them to achieve victory and to become notables in the entire Arabian Peninsula. This will result in other people fearing them and they will finally become the chiefs of the peninsula. In this regard, Allah the Almighty says: 'And [remember] when Satan made their deeds pleasing to them and said, “No one can overcome you today from among the people, and indeed, I am your protector”. But when the two armies sighted each other, he turned on his heels and said, “Indeed, I am clear of you. Indeed, I see what you do not see; indeed I fear Allah. And Allah is severe in punishment' (al-Anfal: 48).

Striving against the disbelievers here refers to fighting against them in the battlefield where there will be a victor and a loser. But striving against the hypocrites is another kind of Jihad because they do not announce their hostility; rather, they declare a false loyalty. Jihad against them is to inflict punishment on them because they used to commit sins and afterwards deny doing them by means of false oaths. Having been interrogated by Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him they denied their wrongdoing, and thus he forgave them. In this regard, Allah the Almighty says: 'And they swear by Allah that they are from among you while they are not from among you…' (at-Tawba: 56), and: 'They swear by Allah that they did not say [anything against Prophet Muhammad] while they had said a word of disbelief…' (at-Tawba: 74). Moreover: 'They swear by Allah to you [Muslims] to satisfy you. But Allah and His Messenger [Muhammad] are more worthy for them to satisfy…' (at-Tawba: 62), and: 'When the hypocrites come to you, [O Muhammad], they say, "We testify that you are the Messenger of Allah". And Allah knows that you are His Messenger. And Allah testifies that the hypocrites are liars' (al-Munafiqun: 1).

The hypocrites used to stand in the first rows of prayer because all of them wanted to hide their hypocrisy. For this reason, they were keen on doing the apparent acts of worship. They are more dangerous to the believers than the disbelievers! In this connection, Allah the Almighty says: '…Surely Allah will gather together the hypocrites and the disbelievers, all in Hell. Those [are the ones] who wait for (some misfortune to befall) you; if you have a victory from Allah they say, "Were we not with you?" And if the disbelievers gain a success, they say [to them], "Did we not gain an advantage over you and guard you from the believers?" So Allah shall Judge between you on the Day of Resurrection, and Allah will by no means give the disbelievers a way against the believers' (an-Nisa': 140-141). They wait looking at the believers; if they are victorious, they try to benefit from that, but if they are defeated, they try to benefit from the opponents of Islam. They are believers in public, and disbelievers in secret. They wait looking at the believers to see what will happen in order to arrange their affairs according to that.

If Allah the Almighty granted victory to the believers in a battle and they took the spoils of war, the hypocrites say: 'Were we not with you?' (an-Nisa': 141)

This means that they used to claim a share in the spoils of war. But if the believers were defeated, the hypocrites turn to the disbelievers, a fact which is clear in His saying: 'And if the disbelievers gain a success, they say [to them], “Did we not gain an advantage over you and guard you from the believers?”' (an-Nisa’: 141) The hypocrites said: 'Did we not gain an advantage over you and guard you from the believers?’ (an-Nisa’: 141) This reveals their status during the battle. They, that is the hypocrites, try to know the details of the battle to recognise the intention of the believers. When they go into the battlefield, they pretend to capture the disbelievers, just to protect them from the swords of the believers. Then they say to the disbelievers, 'Did we not gain the advantage over you, but we protected you from the believers?' Finally, they asked them for a price for that.

We see that Allah the Almighty mentions the disbelievers and the hypocrites together in the verse under discussion, saying: 'O Prophet [Muhammad], strive hard against the disbelievers and the hypocrites. Deal with them sternly. Hell will be their home, an evil destination!' (at-Tahrim: 9) Dealing sternly with them signifies warning them against the horrible torment that awaits them in order that they may take admonition. Harshness is not always needed, but it is applicable when necessary. That is why Allah the Almighty says: 'O you who have believed, fight those of the disbelievers who are near to you and let them find you firm…' (at-Tawba: 123). This means, the believer should attack his enemy strongly, boldly and bravely. And when the enemy tries to attack him, he should be steadfast. Thus, firmness is required in both cases. It is not enough to hit your enemy severely, but you should bear his attack with ruggedness. As such, firmness requires you to attack and to bear you enemy's attack. Patience entails endurance, which in turn requires courage. If your opponent has patience and courage, you should have more patience and endurance than him.

Ruggedness should be shown by Muslims in the battlefield by being strong in both attack and defence. Allah the Almighty says: 'I will cast terror into the hearts of those who disbelieved so strike [them] upon the necks and strike from them every fingertip [which holds a sword]' (al-Anfal: 12). Striking above the necks means to cut the head in order for the enemy to lose his ability to think and as a result his life comes to an end. As for those who averted death in the battlefield, they will grieve for the death of their fellows. With regard to His saying: '…and strike from them every fingertip' (al-Anfal: 12), it means to strike their hands with swords to make them incapable of fighting.

The disbelievers and the hypocrites will go to hell, a fact which is clear in Allah's saying: 'Hell will be their home (ma'wa)' (at-Tahrim: 9). The word 'ma'wa' ('home' or 'refuge') is a place to which one returns. That is, the fire will be their home. In the Arabic language, this word refers to the place that protects you from something. If the fire is their refuge, then its surroundings must be even more severe. They resort to the fire for refuge as it is their final destination.

In this connection, Allah the Almighty says: '…where they burn? What an evil place to stay!' (Ibrahim: 29) The hell has gates as Allah the Almighty says: 'So enter the gates of hell (Jahannam) to abide eternally therein, and how wretched is the residence of the arrogant' (an-Nahl: 29). Jahannam (hell) is one of the names of the fire in the Hereafter. It looks very ugly and its bottom is very deep.

With regard to the saying of Allah the Almighty: '…an evil destination!' (at-Tahrim: 9), the destination is the final fate for everything. Thus, the last destination of the disbelievers will be unpleasant. They will not go to hell by their choices; rather, Allah the Almighty will force them to go there, a fact which is clear in His saying: '…then I will drive him to the punishment of the fire, a wretched (bi's) destination indeed' (al-Baqara: 126). Here Allah the Almighty warns the disbelievers that they will be punished in the Hereafter, as they will be forcibly thrown into the hell. Therefore, the path that leads to hell must be extremely bad.

Out of His Mercy to His creation, Allah the Almighty revealed to them the religious approach that guides them through this life on earth for them not to be captivated by this fleeting worldly life. In addition, He warned them against the bad fate that awaits the disbelievers which indicates His Glorified is He Love for His creation. Out of His Love for them, He does not want to see them in such a bad fate, being cast into hell in the Hereafter. That is why He warns the people against the fate of the disbelievers. The fire is the eternal resting place for the disbelievers. The Arabic word 'bi's' (wretched) is used to vilify and offend something. Surely, the fire will be a wretched refuge.

One of the battles in which Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him performed Jihad against the disbelievers and the hypocrites together is the Battle of the Confederates about which Allah the Almighty says: 'O you who believe! Call to mind the favor of Allah to you when there came down on you hosts, so We sent against them a strong wind and hosts that you saw not. And Allah sees all that you do. When they came on you from above you and from below you, and when the eyes turned dull and the hearts rose up to the throats, and you began to imagine various [vain] thoughts about Allah. There, the believers were tried and they were shaken with a severe shaking' (al-Ahzab: 9-11).

In this fierce battle, Allah the Almighty caused the wind to blow so strongly against the disbelievers that it dispersed them everywhere. Afterwards, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him returned to Medina. The Muslim fighters were supposed to rest after the battle.But before they took off their clothes for war, the Archangel Jibril (Gabriel) peace be upon him came to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and said, 'O Messenger, did you take off the clothes for war?' He said: 'Yes'. The angel said, 'Allah ordered the angels not to put their arms down until they attack Banu Qurayza. O Muhammad, Allah the Almighty commands you to attack Banu Qurayzah, and I will precede you to strike fear into their hearts'. Then, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him ordered his Muedhin (an announcer to Prayer) to say, 'Do not pray Al-'Asr Prayer except in Banu Qurayzah'. Some of the people prayed it on the way when its time had come, while others said, 'We should not pray it until we reach Banu Qurayzah'. When Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him was told about their different actions, he did not reproach any of them.

Next, the Lord the Almighty says:

كَانَتَا تَحْتَ عَبْدَيْنِ مِنْ عِبَادِنَا صَٰلِحَيْنِ فَخَانَتَاهُمَا فَلَمْ يُغْنِيَا
عَنْهُمَا مِنَ ٱللَّهِ شَيْـًٔا وَقِيلَ ٱدْخُلَا ٱلنَّارَ مَعَ ٱلدَّٰخِلِينَ ﴿١٠﴾

God has given examples of disbelievers: the wives of Noah and Lot who married two of Our righteous servants but betrayed them. Their husbands could not help them against God: it was said, 'Both of you enter the Fire with the others'[10] (The Quran, at-Tahrim: 10)

Allah the Almighty has given us examples (daraba) with physical matters to convey abstract meanings to our minds. That is because we are familiar with matters we can sense. The human being's perception begins with the matters we can see which enable him to understand abstract matters after this.

In this regard, the Lord the Exalted gives examples even using small creatures, as He says: 'Allah does not disdain to give examples (yadrib) even using something as small as a gnat or larger…' (al-Baqara: 26), using the word 'yadrib' (give examples) which is derived from 'daraba' (has given examples). He Glorified is He is not shy to give such an example because mosquitos have all the systems needed for having a life, just like the elephant, the camel and the other large animals. In addition, this mosquito that you despise may be stronger than you and may challenge one's strength and tyranny. As such, Allah the Almighty gives you this despicable creature in your eyes as an example to alert you to hidden matters.

Regarding the importance of giving an example to clarify unclear matters, poets usually use this method to clarify meanings. The poet may face a complex issue that is only perceived by wise people, but he wishes to express this issue for the public audience to understand.

One such example is that even though an innocent person might be accused of unjust charges, these false accusations often make him attain a higher status among the people. The following lines of poetry are a case in point:

If Allah wanted to show a concealed virtue

He makes an envious man talk about this virtue

Unless a fire breaks out
Scant smell of aloes wood will not appear

You may have a virtue that no one knows about, and then an envious person accuses you and tarnishes your reputation. As a result, he unintentionally discloses this virtue and all of your other unknown talents. This is similar to aloes wood that we cannot smell unless we burn it.

Thus, 'the example' aims at clarifying an unknown matter using a well-known one. For example, if you do not know the person we are talking about, we can tell you that he is similar in height to someone you know, and similar in colour to another person. Then you can combine these images to form a complete picture of this person who you do not know.

In the Quran, there are many examples that clarify unknown matters with known ones. They describe the abstract matters with ones we can sense. Allah the Almighty gives us an example of spending money for His sake and how He has promised us to multiply such money, saying: 'The example of those who spend their wealth in the Way of Allah is like a seed [of grain] which grows seven spikes; in each spike is a hundred grains. And Allah multiplies [His reward] for whom He wills. And Allah is All-Encompassing and All Knowing' (al-Baqara: 261).

The word 'darab' (to give an example) is taken from the phrase 'darbu al 'umla' (minting coins), as currency in the past used to be made from gold and silver. The people shaped pieces of silver or gold in a specified form to determine their value, and thus they became circulating currencies. Another meaning of this word is used in the phrase, 'durib fi Misr' meaning it was manufactured in Egypt, which means that this object became a reality, and likewise examples spread and become realities. In the past, currency was made from gold and silver. Out of fear of fraud, the experts used to mix the gold with copper and stamp it to become certified, reliable and valid for trading.

When Allah the Almighty gives us an example of something unknown by something known, the matter will become clear in our minds. The Arabic word 'ad-darb' (hitting), which is derived from 'daraba' (give an example), means to hit something with a tool. As we have said, this word refers to minting coins and stamping them to become valid for trading.

This word also means 'to strike', a meaning which is clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'And We had inspired to Musa (Moses), “Travel by night with My slaves and strike (fadrib) for them a dry path through the sea, without fear of being overtaken [by Pharaoh] and without fear [of drowning]' (Ta Ha: 77). Musa peace be upon him hit (‘fadaraba’ from the word ‘darb’) the sea with his stick and so the sea divided into two parts, providing a dry path for the crossing of the children of Israel. In other words, it means that the path was paved for them for transportation.

In the verse in question, the word ‘darb’ (to strike) does not entail an adverse impact, but rather a positive one. Similarly, Allah the Almighty says: 'And others traveling (yadriboon) throughout the land seeking [something] of the bounty of Allah…' (al-Muzzammil: 20), which uses the word ‘yadriboon’ which is derived from the word ‘darb’. It is as if hitting has a lasting impact on the ground as it extracts its treasures. Likewise, minting leaves a significant impact on the coins that cannot be erased by people’s hands during the trading activity.

In the same sense, giving examples clarifies unclear matters exactly as the process of minting coins defines their shapes. It makes the idea clear in the mind. The Arabic word ‘darb’ (to strike) needs three elements: the striker, the one who is struck and the tool used for this purpose.

Allah the Almighty gives us an example to explain the topic of Oneness, saying: 'Allah sets forth an example (daraba): There is a slave in whom are (several) partners differing with one another, and there is another slave wholly owned by one man. Are the two alike in condition? (All) praise is due to Allah. Nay! Most of them do not know' (az-Zumar: 29).

Whoever worships another god with Allah the Almighty is similar to a slave who has two masters who are always in disagreement; when he tries to satisfy one, the other becomes angry. He feels tired with them. The question now is ‘Is this slave equal to one who has only one master?’ This example is similar to worshipping Allah the Almighty without any partners. In this way, the issue becomes clear in our mind. It is as if He the Almighty says, 'I do not disdain to give you such an example because I want to make facts clear for you and to explain abstract meanings for you'.

In the same vein, He the Almighty says: 'And We have certainly given (darabna) to the people, in this Quran, every [kind of] example' (ar-Rum: 58). This means that He Glorified is He has given them examples and signs that should leave an effect on the mind in the same way striking leaves an effect on the person because striking is the last stage of perception.

Now, why does Allah give us examples? The scholars have said, 'This is because the human being has many senses; he sees, hears, smells, tastes and touches. If you think about these senses, you will find that ‘hitting/striking’ is the most effective way to affect someone’s perception. That is why if you want to awaken a person from sleep, you shake him as if you are hitting him in order to make him get up, as he might not hear your call.

Clearly, hitting leaves a massive and powerful impact on matter, a point which is clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty: '…and others traveling (yadriboon) throughout the land seeking [something] of the bounty of Allah' (al-Muzzammil: 20). The verse means that they, that is the pious people, left a great impact on the land through ploughing, for example, which is similar to hitting. Allah the Almighty gives examples to make you perceive matters, just as a person feels pain when hit. If the person does not understand the example, it is as though he does not feel the physical pain of being hit.

Allah the Almighty gives us an example about two women who were wives of two Prophets, saying: 'Allah has given examples (daraba) of disbelievers: the wife of Nuh (Noah) and the wife of Lut (Lot) who were under two of Our righteous slaves but betrayed them...' (at-Tahrim: 10).

Despite being Prophets, Nuh and Lut peace be upon them both, did not succeed in convincing their wives to believe in the Oneness of Allah. It is noteworthy to mention concerning this story that the betrayal here is not a sexual one. Rather, it means that even Messengers are not entitled to force their wives to believe in the sound creed.

Thus, the woman has freedom of belief and the man cannot force her to adopt any religion. Even Pharaoh, who claimed divinity, could not do that, a fact which is clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'Allah has also given examples of believers: Pharaoh’s wife, who said, “Lord, build me a house near You in Paradise. And save me from Pharaoh and his actions, and save me from the evildoers"' (at-Tahrim: 11). These facts tell us that the issue of faith has nothing to do with lineage or marital relationship. The verse we are discussing has made it clear that a Messenger cannot impose any faith on his wife, for sound conviction has to do with freedom of belief.

With regard to His saying: 'Allah has given examples of disbelievers: the wife of Nuh (Noah) and the wife of Lut (Lot) who were under two of Our righteous slaves...' (at-Tahrim: 10), we should take into account that none of the two wives in question were arrogant to her husband, a fact which is clearly stated in the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'Who were under two of Our righteous slaves…' (at-Tahrim: 10). That is to say that both were under the guardianship of their husbands, but they did not obey them in the matter of faith which is subject to one's free choice.

Some people mistakenly tried to accuse both women of adultery, but this is a pure fabrication. In this regard, we stress that their betrayal is a result of their rejection of the Divine Messages with which their husbands were sent. Both Prophet Nuh and Lut peace be upon them did not succeed in convincing their wives to believe in Allah the Almighty emphasising that belief cannot be achieved except through self-choice.

In this verse, Allah the Almighty does not specify the names of the wives, as mentioning their names here will add nothing. The verse states that the matter of guidance is controlled by Him the Almighty Alone, and that even the Prophets could not convert their wives and relatives to the sound creed. The verse clearly indicates that women have absolute freedom of belief.

Allah the Almighty does not specify their names, but rather, He mentions an important description of them, namely: being the wives of two Messengers. However, neither Prophet Nuh nor Prophet Lut peace be upon them was able to convince his wife to renounce her disbelief. Both of the two women had conspired against their husbands and that is why their last destination will be the hellfire. The lesson deduced from this story is that choosing religion is up to every person's free choice. In fact, freedom of belief is a clear foundation for the Right Path.

Clearly, both the man and the woman are entitled to freedom of belief; there is no authority for a particular gender over the other. No man can force a woman to adopt any religion. As for those who accused the wife of Prophet Nuh peace be upon him of adultery, they should ask for forgiveness from Allah the Almighty for He Glorified is He is far removed above being unfair to His Messenger by allowing him to marry a wife who was unchaste. The wife of Prophet Nuh's betrayal was nothing but her disbelief in the Message he brought from Allah. As for the wife of Prophet Lut's betrayal, it lies in her cooperation with the transgressors and her disclosure of his secrets; she used to inform her people about Lut's guests.

In this regard, the angels prohibited Prophet Lut peace be upon him from bringing his wife with him because she had betrayed him. Consequently, he had to leave her with those who suffered the torment. Yet, when Prophet Lut peace be upon him was about to leave the town, she claimed that she was faithful to him and said, 'I will leave with you'. But she preferred her people and as a result returned to stay with them, and thereby received the punishment brought by the angels in the time set, namely the morning. In this connection, Allah the Almighty says: 'They said, "O Lut (Lot), indeed we are Messengers of your Lord; [therefore], they will never reach you. So set out with your family during a portion of the night and let not any among you look back—except your wife; indeed, she will be struck by that which strikes them. Indeed, their appointment is [for] the morning. Is the morning not near?' (Hud: 81)

Instead of being happy with meeting the angels, Prophet Lut peace be upon him was sad and afraid. At this moment, they said: 'Fear not, nor grieve. Indeed, we will save you and your family, except your wife; she is to be of those who remain behind' (al-'Ankabut: 33). They said to him, 'Do not be afraid of those corrupt people as we are not human beings, but rather, we are angels. We came to root out those malicious people and we will save you and your relatives from the torment that will befall them'. However, they excluded his wife from salvation, saying: 'Except your wife; she is to be of those who remain behind (ghabireen)' (al-'Ankabut: 33). This is because she used to disclose his secrets and inform her people about his guests. Hence, she was one of those who remained behind to receive the punishment. The Arabic word 'ghabra', from which the word 'ghabireen' (remain behind) is derived, has many meanings; it means staying in a place and it also refers to anything that is finished in the past.

While Allah the Almighty saved Prophet Lut peace be upon him from the torment that inflicted his people, we find that his wife did not go out with him and stayed in the place where the torment occurred. We should not delve into the details about why she stayed with her people. Some people accused her of sexual betrayal. According to this allegation, it is as if Allah the Almighty was unfair to one of His Prophets for allowing him to marry an unchaste woman. Here, it is of great importance to clearly state that we only accept what Allah the Almighty mentions about this matter, that is, she was a disbeliever, which means she was not a follower of Prophet Lut.

Both the wife of Prophet Nuh and the wife of Prophet Lut were: '…under two of Our righteous slaves (salihain)…' (at-Tahrim: 10). Allah the Almighty says about Prophet Nuh: 'O descendants of those We carried [in the ship] with Nuh (Noah). Indeed, he was a grateful slave' (al-Isra': 3). This verse means that Nuh's righteous deeds benefitted his offspring. As a result, the Lord Glorified is He has taken care of his offspring and has not left them scrambling in the maze of life. Furthermore, He the Almighty sent for them the guidance that explains for them the Right Path to avoid slipping and deviating.

With regard to Allah's saying: '…righteous slaves (salihain)…' (at-Tahrim: 10), it means that both Prophet Nuh and Lut peace be upon them were righteous; they were two good slaves, and were not coerced by Allah the Almighty to do their good deeds. Instead, they were righteous in themselves and that is why Allah the Almighty chose them to be Prophets.

The Arabic word 'salih' (a righteous man), from which 'salihain' (two righteous men) is derived, means that the person is qualified to be Allah's vicegerent on earth. This term is also used to refer to cultivating the land. The righteous person is the one who leaves what is good in its state of goodness and tries to increase its goodness, or is the one who reforms anything bad. Depending on his in-depth knowledge, such a person does not do what apparently seems useful but eventually turns out to be harmful.

Continuing with the verse under discussion, nothing can avail the disbelievers against Allah's Torment, a fact which is clear in His saying: '(As for) those who disbelieve, surely neither their wealth nor their children shall avail them in the least against Allah, and these it is who are the fuel of the Fire' (Al-'Imran: 10). Nothing can save them from the fire and what will happen on the Day of Judgment, for children, wealth, friends, and intercession are not helpful on that Day. The Judgment is not determined by one's ancestry or relationships, and the paradise is not for sale. In other words, no one can buy a place in paradise with money.

Similarly, Allah the Almighty says: 'Their husbands could not help them against Allah…' (at-Tahrim: 10). Thus, Prophet Nuh and Lut peace be upon them cannot save their wives from the fire, even if they are Prophets who are close to Allah the Almighty.

The disbelievers grudged Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him for receiving the Glorious Quran, which was a test for him. However, he was patient and continued to communicate Allah's Message without paying attention to what the disbelievers said. In fact, Prophet Muhammad took their saying as evidence of the strength of the miracle of the Quran that confirms his truthfulness.

Allah the Almighty calls these disbelievers to faith, saying: 'So believe in Allah…' (at-Taghabun: 8). Believing in Allah is the foundation of faith and the most important element in religion. It is not only related to believing in His Existence, but also in His Oneness and Him being worthy of worship, for Allah the Almighty Alone is the One Who created this universe with its sky, land, human beings, animals and plants.

This means it is not enough to just believe in Allah's Existence, refuting thus the charge of atheism. Here, we should take into account that the disbelievers of Quraysh, to whom Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him was sent, acknowledged that Allah is the Creator of the entire universe; the Quran recorded this undeniable fact in more than one position: 'If you asked them, "Who created the heavens and earth and subjected the sun and the moon?" they will surely say, "Allah". Then how are they deluded?' (al-'Ankabut: 61), and: 'And if you asked them, "Who sends down rain from the sky and gives life thereby to the earth after its lifelessness?" they will surely say "Allah". Say, "Praise to Allah", but most of them do not reason' (al-'Ankabut: 63), and: 'And if you asked them who created them, they will surely say, "Allah". So how are they deluded?' (az-Zukhruf: 87)

Associating other gods and idols with Allah the Almighty was their problem and the reason behind their disbelief. Furthermore, they used to take idols as mediators to Him, saying: 'We only worship them that they may bring us nearer to Allah in position' (az-Zumar: 3). If they had said, 'We slaughter for them to be close to Allah', it will have been possible to include them among the worshippers of Allah the Almighty. However, they confirmed their worship of the idols. For this reason they will, undoubtedly, go to the hellfire.

The Lord the Almighty says: '…it was said, "Both of you enter the Fire with the [others] ones who enter [it]"' (at-Tahrim: 10). This means that the wives of Prophets Nuh and Lut will go to hell with the other disbelievers of their peoples whom they supported against these Prophets.

That is, Allah the Almighty gives no hope to those who commit sins that they will not benefit from the good deeds of others. There is no intercession in the matter of disbelief. They had the ability to believe and, therefore, go to paradise, but they chose not to.

The word 'imra'a' (a woman) illustrates how wonderful the Quran was written. In this verse under discussion, it was not written with the last letter shaped as a 'taa' marbouta', but with the shape 'taa' maftouha', which clearly indicates that the marital relationship between each Prophet and his wife was already established at the time. This is because 'taa' maftouha' is used when the wife is mentioned in the possessive form that is the Prophet's wife.

In the verse in question, the verb 'to say' is used in the passive voice; Allah says: '…it was said, "Both of you enter the Fire with the [others] ones who enter [it]"' (at-Tahrim: 10). By using the passive voice, it shows a disregard for them because of their disbelief. They should have believed in Allah's Messengers, especially because they were their husbands.

Both of them were: '…under two of Our righteous slaves' (at-Tahrim: 10). They were their wives and Allah's Revelation came down in their presence. But why did they lose the way of guidance even though they were wives of Prophets who lived in their houses?!

One should only take pride in Islam and faith, not in ancestry, relatives or parentage. If you reflect on the history of early Muslims, you will find that they took pride in Islam, not in ancestry. Religion and belief are the strong link that binds a human being with another, even if the latter is lower according to life’s standards.

Hudhayfa Allah be pleased with him said, 'I came to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. Al-'Abbas Allah be pleased with him was sitting on his right, and Fatima Allah be pleased with her on his left. Then Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, “O Fatima, daughter of the Messenger, do good deeds for the sake of Allah, as I cannot avail you on the Day of Resurrection; O 'Abbas ibn ‘Abd Al-Muttalib, uncle of Prophet Muhammad, do good deeds for the sake of Allah as I cannot avail you on the Day of Resurrection”, he repeated that three times'.(1)

Thus, on the Day of Judgment, the criterion will be the good deeds, not the relationships. That is why Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said to his relatives, 'People will come to me with their good deeds on the Day of Judgment but you should never come to me with your relationships'.(2) Prophet Muhammad also said, 'O Fatima, daughter of the Messenger , do good deeds for the sake of Allah, as I cannot avail you on the Day of Resurrection'.

On that Day, people’s relationships and lineages are not beneficial. Allah the Almighty told us through the story of Prophet Ibrahim (Abraham) that one’s relatives have no value, for only one’s religion will be beneficial. Allah the Almighty says: 'Every soul, for what it has earned, will be detained' (al-Muddaththir: 38). The good deeds and faith will only be the controlling factors on the Day of Judgment, not relatives.

In the same connection, we should reflect on the story of Musʿab ibn ‘Umayr Allah be pleased with him. He was the most indulged boy of Quraysh and one of the richest people. He used to wear the finest clothes and lead a luxurious life. When he believed in Allah, he renounced all this bliss and deprived himself of the money that his family owned. Then he migrated to Medina. There, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him saw him wearing the skin of a sheep. Thereupon he said, 'Look! How faith changed your brother Musʿab!'

(2) This Hadith is narrated on the authority of Abu Hurayra Allah be pleased with him. See Al-Bukhari, Al-'Adab Al-Mufrad, Hadith no. 897; Ibn Abu 'Asim, As-Sunna, Hadith no. 213.

In the Battle of Badr, Musʿab saw that his brother Abu ʿAziz ibn ʿUmayr had been captured; he had been captured by the Companion Abu Al-Yusr Allah be pleased with him. Musʿab said to Abu Al-Yusr, 'Be careful of him lest he escapes from you as his mother is rich and will ransom him with a lot of money'. Then Abu ʿAziz ibn ʿUmayr looked at his brother Musʿab and said, 'This is a bad intercession from you, brother'. Therefore, Musʿab said to him, 'Abu Al-Yusr is my brother in Islam, not you'. Clearly, there are no lineages between the believers or the disbelievers in the worldly life and in the Hereafter.

The Lord the Almighty then says:

وَضَرَبَ ٱللَّهُ مَثَلٗا لِّلَّذِينَ ءَامَنُواْ ٱمۡرَأَتَ فِرۡعَوۡنَ إِذۡ قَالَتۡ رَبِّ ٱبۡنِ لِي عِندَكَ بَيۡتٗا
فِي ٱلۡجَنَّةِ وَنَجِّنِي مِن فِرۡعَوۡنَ وَعَمَلِهِۦ وَنَجِّنِي مِنَ ٱلۡقَوۡمِ ٱلظَّٰلِمِينَ ١١

God has also given examples of believers: Pharaoh’s wife, who said, ‘Lord, build me a house near You in the Garden. Save me from Pharaoh and his actions; save me from the evildoers’ [11] (The Quran, at-Tahrim: 11)

Here Allah the Almighty does not mention the name of Pharaoh's wife because the important matter here is that she was a believing wife of someone who claimed divinity, as He the Almighty says: 'And Pharaoh said, “O eminent ones, no god do I know for you but myself”' (al-Qasas: 38). Although he claimed divinity, he could not convince his wife that he was a god, nor could he force her to disbelieve in Allah the Almighty. This is evidence that the man has no authority over the woman in the matter of belief and cannot coerce her to follow a certain religion, even if he was Pharaoh who claimed divinity. It suffices here to know that she was the wife of the tyrannical Pharaoh; it is not important to mention her name here.

As such, the wife of Pharaoh—the man who misguided people and claimed divinity—was a believer. It is as if Allah the Almighty alludes for all people that religions and beliefs are related to the choice of the person and cannot be affected by other people, no matter who they are. The guidance of a Prophet or the false enticements of the one who claimed divinity does not affect a person with regards to choosing a religion.

Therefore, Islam preserves women's role and power and respects her opinion. Allah the Almighty brought this story without telling the names of the characters in order for it to be a role model and example for everyone. Had their names been mentioned, it will have been associated with only one specific person.

Why does Allah the Almighty not disclose her name? This is to know that the same situation can happen to any woman; she can be a believer, while her husband is a tyrant. Conversely, the woman can be a disbeliever, while her husband is a pious man.

Allah the Almighty says: 'But no one believed Musa (Moses), except [some] youths (dhuriya) among his people, for fear of Pharaoh and his chiefs, least they should persecute them. And indeed, Pharaoh was haughty within the land, and indeed, he was of the transgressors' (Yunus: 83). Commenting on the meaning of the word 'dhurriya' (offspring, youths among his people) in this verse, scholars said, 'It included the wife of Pharaoh (Asiya), the treasurer of Pharaoh and his wife, the hairdresser of Pharaoh's daughter, and some of Musa's people who concealed their faith'. All of these people feared Pharaoh's torment, so they did not disclose their belief in the Message of Musa peace be upon him. Pharaoh was a tyrant who claimed divinity; if he saw anyone falsify his claim of divinity, he used to have killed him. And they feared this oppression. With the help of his soldiers, Pharaoh killed the sons of the children of Israel but left their women alive. They were afraid of these aides who carried out what Pharaoh wanted.

Allah the Almighty made Asiya, the wife of Pharaoh, love Prophet Musa peace be upon him when he was a child in the cradle. In this regard, Allah the Almighty says: 'I showered you with My Love and planned that you should be reared under My Watchful Eye' (Ta Ha: 39). This means that Asiya loved Musa peace be upon him by the Will of Allah. When she saw Musa, she loved him despite the opposition of Pharaoh.

Moreover, Pharaoh's daughter, who suffered from leprosy, had seen in a dream that her recovery will be through something coming out of the sea and that she should take the saliva of this thing and paint her body with it if she wanted to be cured. When she saw Musa peace be upon him she remembered her dream. She took his saliva and rubbed her skin with it, and then she was recovered immediately. As a result, she hung on to him peace be upon him.

Pharaoh's tyranny could not prevent his wife and daughter from believing in Allah the Almighty despite the fact that he, that is Pharaoh, said: 'I am your most exalted lord' (an-Nazi'at: 24). He was helpless in making his wife a disbeliever.

This indicates that choosing one's belief is a well-protected right, as the human being chooses his religion on the basis of full conviction, and not on the basis of oppression. Pharaoh's wife was an example of faith that appeared in the house of disbelief.

Out of her faith in Allah, the Last Day and the existence of paradise, Pharaoh's wife said: 'Lord, build me a house near You in Paradise…' (at-Tahrim: 11). Pharaoh and his soldiers used to torment her; they used to place her under the scorching sun, hanging her from four pieces of wood to which her hands and feet were tied. Whenever the torturers left, the angels used to put their wings above her to protect her from the heat of the sun. Furthermore, Allah the Almighty enabled her to see her home in Paradise.(1)

The reason behind her faith was that she had seen the wife of the treasurer suffering from the torment of Pharaoh. The story started when a comb fell from the hairdresser of Pharaoh's daughter. She said, 'O miserable disbelievers'. Pharaoh's daughter said to her, 'Do you have a lord other than my father?' She said, 'Allah is my Lord, the Lord of your father and the Lord of all things'.

Pharaoh's daughter slapped the hairdresser and told her father about what she had said. Pharaoh said to her, 'Do you worship a lord other than me?' She said, 'Allah is my Lord, your Lord and the Lord of all things, and I worship Him'. Pharaoh claimed she was a liar. He tied up her hands and legs, and brought snakes to bite her. One day, he came to her and said, 'Do you insist on your belief?' She said to him, 'Allah is my Lord, your Lord and the Lord of all things'. He said to her, 'I will slaughter your son if you do not give that up'.

(1) In his Tafsir, As-Suyuti attributed this narration to Ibn Abu Shayba, 'Abd ibn Hamid, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mudhir, Al-Hakim, who authenticated it, and Al-Bayhaqi in Shu'ab Al-Iman on the authority of Salman. See As-Suyuti, Ad-Durr Al-Manthur, 8/229; and At-Tabari, 23/114.

She said to him, 'Do what you want'. He slaughtered her son, but the spirit of her son came and said to her, 'Be patient, my mother, Allah will reward you'. She insisted on her stance. Then Pharaoh came to her another day and repeated what he had earlier said, whereupon she repeated what she had said. Then he slaughtered her younger son. The spirit of this son said to her, 'Be patient, my mother, Allah will reward you with such and such'.

The wife of Pharaoh saw the whole situation, and she heard the words of the spirit of the hairdresser's eldest and younger sons, which is why she believed in Allah. The hairdresser eventually died and her high status in paradise was uncovered to the wife of Pharaoh, a matter that increased her belief and certainty.

When Pharaoh knew about the belief of his wife Asiya, he went out to the public and said, 'What do you know about Asiya Bint Muzahim?' The people praised her. He said to them, 'She worships another lord'. At that time, they asked him to kill her. He tied up her hands and feet, and as a result she invoked Allah the Almighty saying: 'Lord, build me a house near You in Paradise. Save me from Pharaoh and his actions, and save me from the evildoers' (at-Tahrim: 11).

While she was looking at her house in paradise, she laughed, which is why Pharaoh came next to her and said, 'She is mad. We torment her and she laughs'. Then he killed her. At this moment, she saw her house of white pearl in paradise.(1)

Here arises a question which is, 'Why did she ask her Lord to build her a house in Paradise?' The answer is that her people claimed that if she believed, she will lose a great kingdom and a magnificent palace. They also claimed that if she believed in the Lord of Musa, she will not be buried in the pyramid that Pharaoh had built for himself and his wife. That is why she asked Allah the Almighty to build her a house in paradise. Moreover, she said: '…near You…' (at-Tahrim: 11). That is, she chose to be near to Allah, not Pharaoh. She wanted her house to be close to the Mercy of Allah or in the group closest to Allah. She wanted to be among the upper rank in paradise because Allah Glorified is He is far removed above being confined in any place. Thus, her saying: '…near You…' (at-Tahrim: 11) means that the house is near to Allah's Throne, while Pharaoh will be helpless and without any power.

(1) In his Tafsir, Al-Qurtubi, related this narration on the authority of Abu Al-'Aliya as well as Salman Al-Farisi. See Al-Qurtubi, Jame' Ahkam Al-Quran, 18/203.

The Arabic word 'bayt' (house) is taken from 'al-baytuta', that is a shelter that you resort to in order to live and rest. It is as if the wife of Pharaoh wants to get rid of Pharaoh's torment.Then she says: '…Save me from Pharaoh and his actions...' (at-Tahrim: 11). She asked Allah the Almighty to save her from Pharaoh's tyranny, injustice, torment and all his misdeeds, including disbelief. She asked Allah the Almighty to grant her steadfastness in faith and to rid her of Pharaoh's deeds and his tyranny against the believers.

After that, Allah the Almighty relates that she said: '…and save me from the evildoers' (at-Tahrim: 11). The verse refers to the wrongdoing people who committed injustice that is polytheism; they took Pharaoh as another god with Allah the Almighty.

We know that injustice is to unfairly give a right to someone other than its due owner. Clearly, the highest level of injustice is polytheism; it is a great injustice, a fact which is clear in the Lord's saying: 'Indeed, association [with Allah] is a great injustice' (Luqman: 13).

Afterwards, Allah the Almighty says:

وَمَرۡيَمَ ٱبۡنَتَ عِمۡرَٰنَ ٱلَّتِيٓ أَحۡصَنَتۡ فَرۡجَهَا فَنَفَخۡنَا فِيهِ مِن رُّوحِنَا
وَصَدَّقَتۡ بِكَلِمَٰتِ رَبِّهَا وَكُتُبِهِۦ وَكَانَتۡ مِنَ ٱلۡقَٰنِتِينَ ١٢

And Mary, daughter of 'Imran. She guarded her chastity, so We breathed into her from Our spirit. She accepted the truth of her Lord's words and Scriptures: she was truly devout [12] (The Quran, at-Tahrim: 12)

The wife of Pharaoh is not the only example of the believing woman given by Allah the Almighty for He also makes Maryam (Mary), daughter of 'Imran (Amram), an example. He says: 'And Maryam (Mary), daughter of 'Imran (Amram); she guarded her chastity [of her body and soul; lit. opening], so We breathed into it [the opening of her garment] from Our Spirit.

She accepted the truth of the Words of her Lord and His Revelation, and was one of the truly devout' (at-Tahrim: 12).

He the Almighty mentions Maryam (Mary) with her given name along with the name of her father because the event which happened to her is unique and will not be repeated for any other woman.

It is wisely recommended to leave general matters vague, not linked to any particular person, time or place, as in the story of the People of the Cave. Allah the Almighty did not disclose their names in order to make them an example and a role model for every believer in every time and place.

For this reason, the stories of the Quran provide anonymous figures, except in the story of Prophet ‘Isa (Jesus), son of Maryam (Mary), and Maryam (Mary), daughter of ‘Imran (Amram) because what happened with them is a miracle that will not be repeated. This is why Allah the Almighty identified them by their names.

With regard to the word ‘Imran (Amram) as a name in the Quran, we should know that there are two persons bearing that name: the father of Musa (Moses) and Harun (Aaron) peace be upon them and the father of Maryam (Mary). The former is 'Imran, the son of Qahat. His grandfather is Levi, the son of Ya’qub (Jacob), the son of Ishaq (Isaac), the son of Ibrahim (Abraham) peace be upon them. The other 'Imran is the father of Maryam (Mary) Allah be pleased with her. He is 'Imran, the son of Mathan, a descendant of Sulaiman (Solomon), the son of Dawud (David) peace be upon them.

In the chapter of Al-‘Imran, Allah the Almighty says about Maryam (Mary): 'And [mention] when the angels said, “O Maryam (Mary), indeed, Allah has chosen (istafa’) you and purified you and chosen (istafa’) you above the women of the worlds' (Al-‘Imran: 42). The Arabic word ‘istafa’ means has selected or chosen. It also refers to something which is pure. In this verse in the chapter of Al-‘Imran, Allah the Almighty says twice that Maryam (Mary) has been chosen; in the first time, the word ‘istafa’’ is neither preceded nor followed by any preposition, as for the second time, it is followed by the preposition ‘'ala’ (over).

The first time Maryam (Mary) was chosen was a means to inform her that Allah the Almighty had distinguished her by giving her faith, goodness and good ethics. Many individuals, men and women, may be chosen in this way.

As for the second time Maryam (Mary) was chosen, about which Allah the Almighty says: '…and purified you and chosen you above the women of the worlds' (Al-'Imran: 42), it is special for her, for she was the only woman that gave birth to a child without a man, that is, she was a mother for a newborn who had no father.

In the verse under discussion, Allah the Almighty mentions Maryam (Mary), saying: 'And Maryam (Mary), daughter of 'Imran (Amram); she guarded her chastity (ahsanat)…' (at-Tahrim: 12). This means that she prevented any one from having sexual intercourse with her and did not succumb to anyone.

The Arabic word 'ihsan' (chastity), from which the word 'ahsanat' (guarded her chastity) is derived, refers to chastity which is a merit in the free woman who prevents anyone from having a sexual relationship with her. The Arabic word 'muhsana' (chaste) refers also to a free woman that no one can dare to touch because of her status.

The Arabic word 'muhsana' (chaste) has three meanings, as follows: first, the married woman who preserves her chastity and has no sexual relationship except with her husband; second, a chaste woman even if she is unmarried; third, a free woman, for the crime of adultery during the time of the revelation of the Quran was mostly committed by slave women.

Chastity means preservation; it is derived from the word 'hisn' (fortress) that protects what is inside it. The chaste woman thus fortifies herself with marriage in order to avoid adultery, or preserves her chastity even if she is unmarried, exactly as Maryam (Mary) did; she never got married, but she was chaste.

But if she had: '…guarded her chastity…' (at-Tahrim: 12), how was Prophet 'Isa (Jesus) peace be upon him born?! Allah the Almighty provides the answer, saying: '…so We breathed into her from Our Spirit…' (at-Tahrim: 12). Breathing the Spirit here was in Maryam's (Mary's) vagina, not in anything else. Breathing the Spirit into other things was a special privilege for Prophet 'Isa, son of Maryam (Mary). In this regard, Allah the Almighty relates that 'Isa said: 'Indeed, I have come to you with a sign from your Lord in that I design for you from clay [that which is] like the form of a bird, then I breathe (fanfokho) into it and it becomes a bird, by the Permission of Allah' (Al-'Imran: 49).

This aforementioned verse in the chapter of Al-'Imran refers to blowing in the mud which had been shaped like a bird for it to become a living creature. Here, we should know that the Quran mentions that the act of breathing into Maryam (Mary) was inside herself; He the Almighty says: 'And she who guarded her chastity [of her body and soul; lit. opening], so We breathed into it [the opening of her garment] (fanafakhna fihi) of Our Spirit and made her and her son a sign for the nations' (al-Anbiya': 91), and it also states that it was in her vagina; He the Almighty says: 'And Mary, daughter of Imran. She guarded her chastity [of her body and soul; lit. opening], so We breathed into it [the opening of her garment] (fanafakhna fihi) from Our Spirit. She accepted the truth of the Words of her Lord and His Revelation, and she was one of the truly devout' (at-Tahrim: 12). As a matter of fact, the two verses give the same meaning. Here, we should also remember that Allah blew into Adam, when he was lying on the ground, which resulted in a soul entering him.

The act of breathing was not made directly into her vagina but rather into the opening of her dress, till it reached her womb and thus carried Prophet 'Isa peace be upon him. Here, we should know that every opening or crack is called 'farj', as we can see from the saying of Allah the Almighty: '…and [how] it has no cracks (furooj)?' (Qaf: 6), where the word 'furooj' ('cracks' or 'openings') is plural for 'farj' (opening).

Allah the Almighty says: '…from Our Spirit...' (at-Tahrim: 12). The spirit has many meanings. First, it refers to the basic element of our life. When Allah blows the Spirit into the bodies, they become alive and the body systems start to work.

The Spirit also refers to Archangel Jibril (Gabriel) peace be upon him as Allah the Almighty says: 'Then We sent to her Our Spirit…' (Maryam: 17). Jibril (Gabriel) presented himself, that is, he was not in his real form or nature. The angels' image has other characteristics; they have, for example, two, three or four wings. He came to her in a human form because their meeting cannot be in a hidden way. In addition, it is impossible for the angels and the humans to meet with each other when both are in their normal form and nature. Each has his own rules, which does not fit with the other. That is, the angel must be in a human image or the human must be upgraded to an angelic form, exactly as what was done with Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him who was upgraded to the rank of the angels during the Night Journey. Meeting between two different types of beings cannot happen without this convergence.

Allah the Almighty then says: 'She accepted (saddaqat) the Truth the Words of her Lord and His Revelation…' (at-Tahrim: 12). The word 'accepted' (saddaqat) here means that she believed. The word in Arabic, 'saddaqat, means that she acknowledged this Divine Truth and proved her faith by doing good deeds. Here, we should take into account the true believer is known through his good deeds and commitment to the Divine Way of Guidance. This means the true proof of faith is its interpretation into doing good deeds. Therefore, the matter of 'tasdiq' (practical faith), which is derived from the word 'saddaqat', refers to more than the abstract faith of the heart. But the first step needed for faith is to firmly believe in the soundness of the creed, for believing is the most important factor in this respect.

The Words of Allah the Almighty are the imperative order, 'Be!' by which all what He wants in the universe is carried out, including what we have known or will know in the future, and what we will know only on the Day of Judgment.

Prophet 'Isa (Jesus) peace be upon him is a Word; Allah says: '…and His Word which He bestowed on Maryam (Mary) and a soul [created by a command] from Him' (an-Nisa': 171). He was not created through the natural way known to all people, that is, from a mother and a father. Rather, he was created by Allah's Power, which is meant to prove His Omnipotence regarding His creation and that He creates what He wills.

One time, Allah the Almighty created a man without a father and a mother, like Adam peace be upon him. Another time, He created a man from a mother, that is, without a father, as in the case of Prophet 'Isa peace be upon him. Other times, He Glorified is He creates people through a father and a mother. Finally, He created a woman through a father but without a mother, as in the case of Hawwa' (Eve).

Maryam's (Mary's) belief in the Words of Allah clearly indicates her belief in Angel Jibril, who Allah relates as saying: 'He [Angel Jibril (Gabriel)] said, “I am only a Messenger of your Lord to give you [news of] a pure boy” She said, “How can I have a boy while no man has touched me and I have not been unchaste?” He said, “Thus [it will be]; your Lord says, 'It is easy for Me, and We will make him a sign to the people and a mercy from Us’. And it is a matter [already] decreed”' (Maryam: 19-21).

Maryam (Mary) believed in the Words of her Lord and His Books revealed to the former Messengers. She believed in the Torah of Prophet Musa peace be upon him. She used to worship Allah Glorified is He in her sanctuary. Her sister's husband was Prophet Zakaryya (Zechariah) peace be upon him and her sister's son was Prophet Yahya (John) peace be upon him.

Allah the Almighty concludes this verse in question, saying: '…she was one of the truly devout (qaniteen)' (at-Tahrim: 12). The Arabic word ‘al-qaniteen’ (the truly devout) is plural the singular form of which is ‘qanit’. It means the slave who continuously worships his Lord in humility and contentment. When someone adheres to obedience but then leaves it, this will be as if he tries Allah's Kindness yet finds that He Glorified is He is not appropriate for that kindness.

The obedient slave is the one who does not stop worshipping Allah because he has already tasted and fully realised the sweetness of the continuity of worship, which is why he firmly adheres to worship with reverence, tranquility and sustainability, and he becomes among the devoutly obedient people.

The good woman is the righteous one who follows Allah's Way of Guidance. As long as she is a good woman, she will be devoutly obedient. One of the practical applications of the Arabic word ‘qunut’ (devoutness), from which the word ‘qaniteen’ (devout) is derived and which refers to permanently worshipping Allah, is ‘Qunut Al-Fajr’ (supplication of devoutness in Al-Fajr Prayer) in which we pray a longer time to supplicate Allah the Almighty.

The devoted woman is subject to Allah the Almighty. As a result, she adheres to His Way of Guidance. Allah the Almighty says about Maryam (Mary): 'She accepted the Truth of the Words of her Lord...' (at-Tahrim: 12) as well as: '…she was one of the truly devout' (at-Tahrim: 12), and: 'The Maseeh (Messiah), son of Maryam (Mary), was nothing but a Messenger;

[other] Messengers have passed on before him. And his mother was a supporter of the Truth' (al-Ma'ida: 75). She was a support of the Truth, that is, she did not only believe in the Truth, but rather supported it as well. This is a trait she had which was granted by Allah the Almighty. Thus Allah the Almighty concludes this chapter with His saying: 'And Maryam (Mary), daughter of 'Imran (Amram); she guarded her chastity [of her body], so We breathed into it [the opening of her garment] from Our Spirit. She accepted the truth of the Words of her Lord and His Revelation, and she was one of the truly devout' (at-Tahrim: 12).

al-Mulk

In the Name of God, the Most Merciful, the Dispenser of Mercy

The chapter of al-Mulk(1).

تَبَٰرَكَ ٱلَّذِى بِيَدِهِ ٱلْمُلْكُ وَهُوَ عَلَىٰ كُلِّ شَىْءٍ قَدِيرٌ ١

Exalted is He who holds all control in His hands; who has power over all things [1] (The Quran, al-Mulk: 1)

The Dominion belongs to Allah(2) the Almighty Alone. He has the power to do anything. We did not exist until He the Almighty granted us life in His own universe. Besides, He the Almighty prepared the universe for us before bringing us into existence.

The chapter of al-Mulk provides us with a comprehensive view that goes beyond the limited realm of the earth and the earthly life; it delves into the realms of the heavens that have no flaws. When the human being understands the nature of his presence in this universe, he becomes compatible with the system of the universe that glorifies Allah the Almighty.

(1) The chapter of al-Mulk was revealed in Mecca. It consists of 30 verses and was revealed after the chapter of at-Tur. It is also called Al-Waqiya, Al-Munjiya and Ad-Dafi'a. Ibn 'Abbas narrated that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'I wish that every Muslim glorifies the One in Whose Hands is Dominion'. Furthermore, Abu Hurayra Allah be pleased with him narrated that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'One of the chapters of Allah's Book, which only consists of 30 verses, will intercede on behalf of man so that he will be taken out of the Hellfire on the Day of Judgment and admitted to Paradise. It is the chapter of Tabarak'. See Atha 'alibi, Tafsir, 9/354.

(2) The Islamic conception of ‘Allah’ is not the same as the Christian and Jewish conception of ‘God’. However, the word ‘Allah’ does not refer to a tribal god or the God of only Muslims; it refers to the Creator of the whole world, the One God (who has no son). We prefer, however, to use ‘Allah’ rather than ‘God’ as it has a unique character: it cannot be used to refer to any false gods and does not have any derivatives like goddess, gods, etc. It is a unique word used solely to describe the One God of this universe.

Allah the Almighty says: 'Exalted is He (tabarak)...' (al-Mulk: 1). If you carefully examine the word 'tabarak' ('exalted' or 'blessed') in the Quran, you will find that the letter 'alif' is clearly written after the letter 'baa'' in some cases, while in other cases the 'baa'' comes without the 'alif' being clearly written as a separate letter. This is to indicate that the matter is not a result of the words being written haphazardly.

Just as the words and structures of the Quran are miraculous, Allah the Almighty wanted its writing to be a miracle too. Some have said that the Arabs in the time of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him did not master writing. We say, 'If they were not familiar with the rules of writing, they could not write the word 'bism' (in the name) properly, without a letter 'alif' in its position. They knew that the Quran should be written in the exact way in which it was revealed by the Archangel Jibril (Gabriel), and as Allah the Almighty ordained'.

The expression 'Exalted is He' (al-Mulk: 1) usually refers to blessings, which refer to gaining more than what you expect from something. For example, when food for three persons becomes enough for ten, you say that this food is blessed. The word 'tabark' means that Allah is Almighty, the Bestower of all good and All-Generous in His Bounty, three characteristics which are complementary to each other.

Interestingly, the way the term 'Exalted is He' (al-Mulk: 1) is written and its form is a miracle. If you trace it in the Quran, you will find that this word is mentioned nine times; seven of them having the letter 'alif' as a separate letter and the other two without 'alif' being written clearly. We may ask why this word was not written with a letter 'alif' clearly written as a separate letter in all the verses, or vice versa. This shows us that the writing in the Quran has been divinely ordained; the words have not been written haphazardly. The word 'bism' (in the name of…) in the saying of Allah: 'Recite, in the name (bism) of your Lord who created…' (al-'Alaq: 1) is a case in point. In this verse of the chapter of al-'Alaq, unlike in the other verses of the Quran, this word is written with the letter 'alif' after the letter 'ba''. To conclude, the way the Quran is written and read is not ordinary. For example, you read any other book in any situation, but when you recite the Quran, you must perform ablution first.

Thus, the expression: 'Exalted is He…' (al-Mulk: 1) connotes three meanings, which are: Allah is Almighty, no one is equivalent to Him, and He bestows on His creation abundant good. He is unparalleled in His Power, His Being, His Attributes and His Actions. All this is in our interest. There is no God that is Almighty or Self-Sufficient but Him Glorified is He.

When we read: '…in whose Hands is Dominion (all control)…' (al-Mulk: 1), we must know that Allah the Almighty knows best about Himself. As a result, we should stop delving further into this topic. Yes, Allah Glorified is He has two Hands. But beware of imagining that anything related to Him is similar to the human being.

Basically, you exist, and Allah the Almighty exists. But your existence is different from His, and your hand is likewise different from His. For this reason we should avoid anthropomorphism by mistakenly saying that His Hands are like ours. Let us say that His Hand is meant to represent His Power or Blessing. The noble aim behind this is to maintain that He is Exalted.

And some people say, 'Allah has Hands, but not like our hands because we perceive each Description of Allah in the light of the verse: “There is certainly nothing like Him” (ash-Shura: 11), and accordingly the interpretation of Allah’s Attributes is possible'.

The Lord the Most High says: ‘…both His Hands are spread out, He expends as He pleases…’ (al-Ma‘ida: 64) and: ‘…the Hand of Allah is above their hands' (al-Fath: 10). This means that His Power is over theirs, just like when He talks about His Ability to create, saying: ‘And the heaven, We raised it high with [Our] Hands (power), and most surely, We are steadily expanding it' (adh-Dhariyat: 47).(1)

Therefore, as the true dominion is controlled by Him, you should not worry about your provision; since He has created you, He has guaranteed your provision. Such provision is sent down from the heaven to the earth in the form of rain by means of which plants grow; it is upon these plants that every creature, including the human beings who may also eat herbivores, such as cattle and sheep feed.

(1) The phrase ‘with Hands’ means by Power and Capability. An extra vowel letter is added to the Arabic word in the Holy Quran to distinguish its meaning from the literal meaning of the word. Interpreting the word ‘Hand’ in this context as Allah's Power by means of which He has built the sky undoubtedly takes precedence over the literal meaning of the word ‘Hands’. See Al-Ibyari, Al-Mawsu'a Al-Qur'aniyya, 3/104.

Your provision is linked to all the natural phenomena on the earth including the wind, air, sun or rain. All of such are within the Dominion of Allah the Almighty Alone because there is no other god besides Him. Why then should the human being feel worried about his provision?

Allah the Almighty says: '…in Whose Hands is all Dominion (control) (mulk)…' (al-Mulk: 1). When there is a dominion (mulk), it logically follows that there is a dominator, persons who are dominated and a power to maintain such dominion. It is as if the Lord the Almighty wants to show us His Absolute Power in this phrase.

The human being does not truly have the ability to dominate or maintain what he dominates. There is a difference between the two words here: ‘ownership’ and ‘dominion’, both of which are derived from the word ‘mulk’ in Arabic. As for ‘ownership’, it means that the human being possesses some things, such as clothes, books and other belongings.

But, to have control over the owners of such things is what we call ‘dominion’. If such possession is part of what we can see, we call it 'the dominion' of the world we can behold. If such possession is part of the unseen, we call it ‘the kingdom of the unseen world’.

Now, we have ‘ownership’, ‘dominion’ and ‘kingdom’. Ownership is used with a person who owns things, whereas the dominion is what is controlled by those who are in charge of some group of people, like the kings. This has to do with the dealings of humans.

As for Allah the Almighty He is the Owner of all things and all owners. Thus, no one should ever think that there is a person who owned something or any position in this worldly life without Allah's Permission, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: 'Say, “O Allah, Lord of all dominion! You give dominion to whomsoever You please and take away dominion from whomsoever You please, and You exalt whom You please and abase whom You please. In Your hand is all good; surely, You have power over all things”' (Al-‘Imran: 26).

Therefore, any worldly ownership or dominion is temporary because Allah the Almighty takes it away from whom He wills and gives it to whom He wills. All of this is done according to the Will of the Supreme Creator; whenever He wills, nothing can stop His Decree.

With His Absolute Power and Might, He the Almighty created life and death, and the heaven with its planets, the suns and the stars. He has also subjected the earth, mountains and rivers to be of service to the human being. Then He the Almighty asked the human being to walk in the paths of the earth, seeking His Provision. That is, Allah the Almighty is the Omnipotent Who created the human being and gave him the ability to cultivate the land and to pave the ways of the earth and the mountains. But all this is due to His Power, not the power of the human being.

Allah the Almighty says: '…Who has power over all things' (al-Mulk: 1). Allah the Exalted has Absolute Power in this dominion. Consequently, if He says He wills to do something, that thing will definitely come to pass. There is no capability or power in this universe but Allah's, and only what He wills can happen. Nothing can overpower Him the Almighty and nothing goes against His Will. The Lord has Power over everything, and everything occurs according to His Will and Power. To Him belongs the dominion of the heavens and the earths, and He is the Omnipotent.

Allah has the Power to do anything: creating, providing, bringing to life, causing death, and starting immortality in either Paradise or Hell. He is truly Capable of anything.

Since actions vary according to different capabilities, Allah's Ultimate Power requires no time to bring about any action. In this regard, the Lord the Almighty says: 'Look then at the signs of Allah's Mercy, how He gives life to the earth after its death. Most surely He will raise the dead to life; and He has power over all things' (ar-Rum: 50). Allah the Almighty has the All Perfect Attributes of Knowledge, Power, Wisdom, Withholding, Giving and Causing benefit or harm.

The Lord the Almighty was All-Powerful even before the existence of any object over which this Power is exercised. That is to say He did not become All-Powerful when He created the human beings; rather, by His very Power, He created the entire universe. As Allah the Almighty is Unchangeable, He remains Fully Capable and Ever-Living.

The Arabic word ‘qadir’ (fully capable) is in the morphological form ‘fa'il’, which may refer to a subject or an object. This is like when we say, ‘Allah is Rahim (All-Merciful)’, in which Allah is the subject that does the action, whereas the word ‘qateel’ (the killed person), which is in the same morphological form, refers to the object upon which the action is done.

The Lord Glorified is He then says:

ٱلَّذِى خَلَقَ ٱلْمَوْتَ وَٱلْحَيَوٰةَ لِيَبْلُوَكُمْ أَيُّكُمْ أَحْسَنُ عَمَلًا ۚ وَهُوَ ٱلْعَزِيزُ ٱلْغَفُورُ ٢

Who created death and life to test you [people] and reveal which of you does best — He is the Mighty, the Forgiving [2] (The Quran, al-Mulk: 2)

Allah the Almighty has created a Spirit whereby He provided the human being with life. Thus, we can imagine that death has a reality; when death approaches the human being, it takes away his Spirit. In the light of this, we can understand His saying: 'He created death and life...' (al-Mulk: 2). As such, death is not a negative process as some people mistakenly think. It is rather a positive process; it is created with such high efficiency which is appropriate for the Creator Glorified is He.

In this verse in question, Allah the Almighty clarifies that He brought death forward before life, even though we apparently believe that life came first, not the other way round.

Life gives man power with which he can make use of what has been created in his service: he plants the earth, trades in goods, invents whatever is suitable for his life and enjoys hearing and sight. Therefore, he thinks life was created first. However, Allah the Almighty clarifies and draws our attention not to think carefully about life unless you are already aware of its opposite. In this regard, He the Almighty says: 'He created death and life...' (al-Mulk: 2). This makes it easier for us to understand the Sacred Hadith that explains to us how it will be like after the people of the paradise enter paradise and the people of hell enter hell. After this, Allah the Almighty calls upon death to be brought in the form of a ram that is then slain.

Abu Hurayra Allah be pleased with him narrated that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'On the Day of Resurrection, death will be brought to stand on the Sirat (the Bridge over Hell). It will be said, “O people of Paradise!” Thereupon they will look, anxious and afraid lest they be brought out of the place where they are. Then it will be said, “Do you know this?” They will reply, “Yes, Allah, this is death”. Then it will be said again, “O people of Hell!” They will look, hoping that they may be brought out of the place where they are. It will be said, “Do you know this?” They will reply, “Yes, this is death”. The command will be given that the ram will be slaughtered on the Sirat, and it will be said to both groups, “Eternity for you, and no death ever”'.(1) Embodying death as a ram means that death has an entity. Then Allah the Almighty tells us that death will be eliminated which clearly means that we will live in eternity.

It is Allah the Almighty Who created death and life, and He is the Ever-Eternal. He needs no human to keep His Life; He has the Power to do everything, with no exception.

Before Allah the Almighty shows how He benevolently bestowed life upon us, He warned us against being deceived by it. He urges the human being to perceive life, knowing that He the Almighty has likewise created death, the opposite of life. Allah the Almighty does not say that He created life and then death, but rather says: 'He created death and life...' (al-Mulk: 2). In this way, each one of us realises that life is preceded by death, its opposite.

This is for you not to be arrogant or forget about such an inevitable end, and to act accordingly. It is as if the Lord the Almighty tells us about our death even before creating life. He brought death forward before life to warn us against being deceived by the worldly life and to urge us to strive for the Hereafter.

If a person examines the verses in the Quran, he finds that the word life has always preceded death, except for the verse in question: 'He created death and life...' (al-Mulk: 2). The reason for this is that Allah the Almighty by granting us life, grants us also a will to move all the parts of our body. Life then may deceive the person into believing that he is in control of his will and body, and consequently he transgresses. Therefore, Allah the Almighty wanted to warn people that He can cause them to die. Such a warning will make him perceive life and its opposite, and so make him follow a straight path in life.

(1) This Hadith is narrated on the authority of Abu Sa'id Al-Khudri Allah be pleased with him. At-Tirmidhi graded it as a good authentic Hadith. See Al-Bukhari, Sahih, Hadith no. 4730; see also At-Tirmidhi, Sunnan, Hadith no. 3156; and Al-Ajurri, Shari'a, Hadith no. 942.

Creation and ending life are Established Attributes of Allah the Almighty even before He created or ended the life of anything. In other words, they are Eternal Attributes that existed even before He used them to bring about life or cause death to any creature.

Life is created, and death is also created. Death can be sensed and observed. Both death and life are controlled by Allah the Almighty. Death is subject to His Will and Absolute Power which determine its definite time, which will not be advanced or delayed. Afterwards, each person will face the consequence of his deeds.

Both life and death are controlled by the Giver of Life. One should never think that fighting in battles causes death. In this regard, Khalid ibn Al-Walid on his deathbed sets an example for each believer in Allah the Almighty. He said, 'I have witnessed around 100 battles, and there is no spot in my body left without a scar or a wound made by a sword or a spear. Yet here I am dying on my bed just like a camel. May the eyes of cowards never fall asleep!'(1) Therefore, life and death are not conditional on fighting in battles or other causes. They are conditional on Allah's Will, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: 'And most surely We bring to life and cause to die, and We are the heirs' (al-Hijr: 32). When Allah the Almighty addresses the matter of death and life, and the return of everything in the universe eventually to its Creator, He talks to us about two matters experienced by each creature: life and death. They are experienced by all creatures, for every creature has a defined period in which to live and a fixed time when he will die.

The creation of death and life has a purpose which is clearly illustrated in His saying: '…to test you [people] and reveal which of you is best in deeds…'

(1) In his book, Ibn Kathir ascribed this narration to Al-Wahidi, who quoted Ibn Abu Az-Zinad. See Ibn 'Abd Al-Bar, Al-Isti'ab, 1/409; Adh-Dhahabi, Siyar A'lam An-Nubala', 1/382; Al-Kandahlawi, Hayat As-Sahaba, 1/565; and Ibn Kathir, Al-Bidaya wa An-Nihaya, 7/129.

(al-Mulk: 2). That test, then, is the purpose of creating life and death. Life is not futile; rather, it is a test and trial for the people. A test is not something bad in itself; it is bad only when its result is bad. As long as Allah the Almighty tests us with what He provides us, we ought to be wise and hasten to do good deeds. In this connection, Allah Glorified is He says: '…hasten to good deeds; to Allah is your return, and so He will let you know that in which you differed' (al-Ma'ida: 48).

Hastening to do good deeds is for the purpose of passing the test which results in a greater reward than what we will get by being disobedient to Him the Almighty. Clearly, such a test is in our interest because those who pass it will surely attain eternal success.

The meaning of the saying of Allah: '…to test you [people]…' (al-Mulk: 2) indicates that such a test is in order for the people to see which one of them does best. But who determines those deeds? It is Allah the Almighty.

Does Allah the Almighty then need to test His creatures? No, simply because He knows beforehand all the deeds His creatures will do. But by such a test He means to match what His creatures do to what He already knew, and thereby leave no excuse for anyone; this test is evidence for or against us.

Unlike what some people think, Allah's Test is a blessing; it is good if we pass and bad if we fail. Hence, this test is not bad in itself; it is rather a scale for testing the good and the bad deeds. It is Allah, our Lord, Who tests us. He is the Lord Who educates us in a way that qualifies us to reach the required state of goodness. One of the basics in educating someone is to test him to know whether he learnt the topic well or not.

There must be some good out of such a test. The test may be in the form of a temptation. When people say 'test the gold', they mean put it in a pot and heat it at a high temperature until it turns into liquid in order to get rid of any impurities and make it pure.

Temptation in itself is not bad. What is bad is its negative results, that is whether a person will pass or fail the test. All the tests that the human being encounters are temptations; but whoever passes the test, temptation is something good for him. As for he who fails, temptation is something bad.

Allah the Almighty has bestowed upon the human being the ability to choose in order to see who will pass the test and who will fail in it, who will believe and who will disbelieve.

The Lord the Almighty does not neglect the reward of the doers of good deeds who remember Him while doing their work. The losers are those who work for the sake of pleasing people instead of Allah the Almighty but the people possess no power to benefit them. Hence, whoever does good deeds for the sake of Allah will be rewarded in both this worldly life and the Hereafter, as Allah the Almighty says: 'We do not neglect the reward of those who do good deeds' (al-Kahf: 30).

In this verse, the word 'who' is general, thus it includes both the believers and the disbelievers. The Lord the Most High does not say, 'We do not neglect the reward of the one who has good faith', because there might be a worker who does his work well though he is a disbeliever. Allah Glorified is He does not diminish the reward of such a disbeliever, yet the reward is given to him only in this worldly life.

If a disbeliever works hard and excels at science, agriculture, or trade, etc., he will not be deprived the fruits of his work and diligence. However, he will have his fruit early in this worldly life, but he will have no reward in the Hereafter.

Allah the Almighty says that He is: '…the Mighty…' (al-Insan: 2), Who, due to His Greatness, is never defeated and is not held accountable by anyone. Hence, He Glorified is He is Predominant in all that He wills to do. He is the All Powerful and the Mighty Whom no one can harm.

The word 'the Mighty' implies Allah's Predominance, Omnipotence and Power; no one has supremacy over Him. Mightiness means Power and Predominance. He is the absolutely Almighty, for there is no god but Him and He is never defeated or overpowered by anyone.

He is the Lord of Glory in all its forms. If it is the glory of wisdom, He is the Most Wise. He is the 'Almighty' Who is never defeated or overpowered, and He is also the '…All-Forgiving' (al-Insan: 2). Due to His Almightiness, He forgives; and due to His Greatness, He pardons as He is All-Sufficient and is not in need of any creature.

In order to understand this fact, we should read Allah’s saying: 'When Allah says, ‘‘Isa (Jesus), son of Maryam (Mary), did you say to the people, 'Take me and my mother as two gods alongside with Allah'?” He will say, “May You be exalted! I will never say what I had no right to say—if I had said such a thing You will have known it. You know all that is within me, though I do not know what is within You. You alone have full knowledge of things unseen…If You should chastise them, then surely they are Your slaves; and if You should forgive them, then surely You are the Mighty, the All-Wise”' (al-Ma‘ida: 116-118).

Since the context is about Mercy, we should logically say, 'You are the All-Forgiving and the Most Merciful’, yet ‘Isa peace be upon him addresses the matter not from the perspective of Mercy or Forgiveness but from the perspective of Absolute Power which may not be objected to. That is why he said: 'You are the Mighty, the All-Wise' (al-Ma‘ida: 118).

If some people say, 'Why does He forgive them though they said so and so?' The answer is that He is the Almighty Who predominates and is never defeated, and no one can object to His Judgment.

Then Allah the Almighty says:

ٱلَّذِى خَلَقَ سَبۡعَ سَمَٰوَٰتٖ طِبَاقٗاۖ مَّا تَرَىٰ فِى خَلۡقِ ٱلرَّحۡمَٰنِ
مِن تَفَٰوُتٖۖ فَٱرۡجِعِ ٱلۡبَصَرَ هَلۡ تَرَىٰ مِن فُطُورٖ ﴿٣﴾

Who created the seven heavens, one above the other.
You will not see any flaw in what the Lord of Mercy creates.
Look again! Can you see any flaw? [3] (The Quran, al-Mulk: 3)

Allah the Almighty is the God Who created the universe. He is the Creator, the Originator, the All-Wise and the Most Merciful to His slaves. He created everything on this earth and in the heavens, and He is Exalted and high above having a partner in His Creation, for He Alone is the One: 'Who created….' (al-Mulk: 3).

He is the Creator, the Lord of Mercy, the Most Merciful, and the Predominant. He is the Creator even before bringing His creatures into existence, for He, due to His eternal Attribute of being able to create, is a Creator. He is the Provider even before the existence of what receives His Provision. With His Ever-Lasting Attributes, He orders a thing to 'Be', and it is.

Thus, if a Messenger told us that Allah is the One Who created the sun; he is either truthful and hence we all shall acknowledge that Allah the Almighty is the Creator and the Originator, or he is not truthful and then a question arises, ‘Why then has no one else claimed to be its Creator?!’

Yet, the accuracy and the inimitability of the creation which cannot be matched by any individual or any collective and cooperative human powers is undisputable proof that it is Allah the Almighty Alone Who created everything. Thus, until we find—and we will never find—someone who claims to have created the universe, the issue is settled in favour of Allah the Almighty and there are no adversaries.

A Messenger came to us to say, 'The Creator of the earth, the sun and the heavens is Allah the Almighty'. Since no one else claimed to have created any of these, this is proof of the credibility of the Messenger’s call. This affirms that this universe is created by an Infinite Power. He the Almighty says: 'Or were they created out of nothing, or are they the creators?' (at-Tur: 35)

If the answer is 'no' for both the two aforementioned Divine Questions, there must be a Creator–Who is Allah–in Whom we must believe because He did not let anyone be able to claim that he is the creator of this universe or that he created himself.

Allah the Almighty is the Creator Who accurately created everything and placed His signs in the universe. When we ponder over the universe around us, we find signs that prove the creativeness of the Creator and the wonderfulness of His creation. We also find harmony and congruity among these signs of the universe.

Allah Glorified is He says in some verses addressing this matter: 'And of His signs are the night and the day, the sun and the moon…' (Fussilat: 37) and: 'And of His signs are the ships that run on the sea like mountains' (ash-Shura: 32). These verses draw our attention to the Omnipotence of the Creator Glorified is He.

Allah the Almighty created the universe, including the earth, the heavens and human beings, and revealed the Quran to regulate their lives. He did not leave the universe to work automatically by itself and did not separate Himself from His creation because they are in continuous need of His Provision.

Some creatures share some Attributes with Allah the Almighty but in a limited sense. In this regard, Allah the Almighty says: 'So blessed is Allah, the best of creators' (al-Mu'minun: 14) and: 'And you create falsehood…' (al-'Ankabut: 17).

This means that there are creators other than Allah the Almighty. Creation means bringing something into existence. A person who produces glass from sand is a creator and a manufacturer of the glass. In this example, a person brought something into existence, and Allah brings things into existence. However, such a person has brought something into existence out of something else which already existed even before the existence of such a person.

Hence, the Lord Glorified is He is the best of creators. He Glorified is He was fair to you and did not deny you the title of a creator. Consequently, you should be fair and describe Him the Almighty with the description: '…the best of creators…' (al-Mu'minun: 14). Allah the Almighty respected your bringing something into existence and called you a creator. He did not deny you one of His Attributes, but told you that He is the best of the creators. Hence, He is the best of creators, the best of providers, the best of those who inherit, and the best of those who arrange matters.

It is more proper to turn towards the Great Creator Who brought this universe into existence. Allah's universal signs draw humans' attention to His wonderful, unrivalled creation and the necessity of believing in Him. Through these signs, we come to know that there is an All-Powerful Creator Who manages and maintains this magnificent universe. Even before the creation of the human beings, Allah the Almighty created the heavens, the earth, water, and air for them. Besides, Allah Glorified is He determined the creatures' sustenance on the earth till the Day of Judgment. Further, Allah the Almighty tells us that the creation of the heavens and the earth is greater than the creation of the human beings, a fact which is crystal clear in Allah's saying: 'The creation of the heavens and earth is greater than the creation of mankind, but most of the people do not know.' (Ghafir: 57)

When Islam emerged and presented empirical science, it called our attention to the signs of the Creator in the universe and ordered us to meditate on them. In this regard, Allah the Almighty says, ‘And how many a sign in the heavens and the earth which they pass by, yet they turn aside from it...’ (Yusuf: 105). Thus, Allah the Almighty draws our attention to His signs in the heavens and the earth for us to contemplate over them and derive from them what contributes to the achievement of our civilisation. It is important to note that Allah the Almighty unprecedentedly created the heavens, the earth and everything therein, as Allah the Almighty says, ‘The Originator of the heavens and the earth.’ (al-Baqara: 117) In other words, before, Allah the Almighty created them, there were no heavens, earth, angels, jinn and humankind, so that the same entities would be patterned by Him the Almighty. Thus, Allah Glorified is He did not have recourse to ‘patterning’ or ‘moulding’.

We should be filled with wonder about the creation of the heavens and earth. The human being should be conscious of what Allah the Almighty created for him in order that he finds out about his Creator, believes in Him and bears witness that He is the only One God.

If the humans ponder on the creation of the heavens and the earth, their natural dispositions will guide them to the fact that this well-knit, perfect universe is originated by Allah the Almighty. However, most of them do not think properly. So, the heavens and the earth are maintained in a stunning balance by Him the Almighty alone. In this connection, He says, ‘Surely, Allah upholds the heavens and the earth lest they come to naught; and if they should come to naught, there is none who can uphold them after Him; surely, He is the Forbearing, the Forgiving.’ (Fatir: 41). If the heavens and the earth were destined by Allah the Almighty to cease to exist, no one can preserve them, given the fact that they are maintained by His Omnipotence. In other words, if He wills them to vanish, no one can hold them and prevent their disappearance.

Regarding the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘Who created the seven heavens…’ (al-Mulk: 3), the word ‘heavens’ is in the plural form. In another verse, Allah the Almighty says, ‘So He ordained them seven heavens in two periods, and revealed in every heaven its affair; and We adorned the lower heaven with brilliant stars and (made it) to guard; that is the decree of the Mighty, the Knowing.’ (Fussilat: 12)

In the past, some people used to claim that the seven heavens refer to seven planets: the sun, the moon, Mercury, Venus, Mars, Jupiter, and the Earth. But Allah the Almighty willed to refute this claim, while those who made it were still alive. This refutation was done by the astronomers who discovered other planets such as Neptune and Pluto. This serves as a rebuttal of the claim of those who argued that the 'seven heavens' mean 'seven planets'. They held this view in good faith and in an attempt to link the Quran with science. However, they did not scrutinise the Quranic verses properly, for Allah the Almighty informs us that the sun, the moon, and other planets are just the adornments of the lower heaven. So, what would we think of the nature and the adornments of the remaining heavens?!

In the same vein, Allah the Almighty says, 'And certainly We made above you seven heavens; and never are We heedless of creation.' (al-Mu'minun: 17) The Arabic word tarai'q means the 'beaten ways' or the paths made for the angels. A beaten object has a size which widens by treading, exactly as a piece of iron expands by striking against it. So, you should look at the heaven and its boundless vastness and say, 'Exalted is the One Who expanded it'.

It is worth noting here that Allah the Almighty does not mention the earth. So, what is the reason for that? This is because we can stand steady on the earth without fear; whereas we fear that the heaven should collapse upon us. That is why Allah the Almighty says, '…and never are We heedless of creation.' (al-Mu'minun: 17) Allah the Almighty is never unaware of the heaven and He holds it with His Power. The birds that fly and are held aloft by Him the Almighty provide us with a tangible proof of how He raised the sky over us without pillars. In this regard, Allah the Almighty says, 'Do they not see the birds above them spreading and closing their wings? It is only the Lord of Mercy who holds them up: He watches over everything.' (al-Mulk: 19)

Linguistically, the Arabic word as-sama` (the sky) means everything that overtops and shades you. So, does the sky, meant by Allah the Almighty, refer to all that is over you, including the stars, the sun, and the moon? We should say to those who claim that the seven heavens are the planets that these planets are not always over us. The sun and the moon, for example, sometimes overtop us and at times go down. So, the sun, the moon, and other planets cannot be the seven heavens. Besides, these people are mistaken because Allah the Almighty revealed to them via modern science that the sun has other satellites. Some astronomers say that they are eight satellites while others state they are nine. According to some others, they amount to ten. Thus, the notion that these satellites are the seven heavens has been refuted, for the heaven overtops all these celestial bodies.

Allah the Almighty created the heavens in layers, one above the other, a fact which is crystal clear in Allah's saying: 'You will progress from stage to stage.' (al-Inshiqaq: 19) It is Allah the Almighty Who perfectly created the seven-layered heavens. When one looks at heaven, he cannot find any defect. Even if he looks once again, he also finds no cracks or flaws.

Let us notice the objects that the humans make. If one wants to build, for example, a house or a ceiling, it should be built in a very precise way. However, you may see protruding bricks. So, a plasterer tries hard to level the surface of the wall and measures it with a spirit level. However, we may see unlevelled parts in the wall. At this point, the painter's role comes; he tries to repair any faults by using putty.

After a person uses up all the means of building his house as he likes, some days later Allah the Almighty discloses for him the defects in his building, regardless of its precision, by means of a layer of dust that vertically covers the wall. This exposes clearly any faults in the wall.

If the objects made by the humans differ according to their skills and adeptness, what do you think about Allah, the Creator Who builds perfects and beautifies His creations?

Allah the Almighty then says, '…You will not see any flaw in what the Lord of Mercy creates…' (al-Mulk: 3). By virtue of His Mercy, Allah the Almighty created the universe in this perfect way. Here, He mentions the Name which must be extolled, namely; the Lord of Mercy. Out of His Mercy and Bestowals, people live in the universe and enjoy their sustenance and all what surrounds them. So, they should have appreciated the creation of the Lord of Mercy in which they played no role. Allah, the Lord of Mercy, is the One Who grants all the bestowals and blessings, and He mentions this Attribute in particular because Mercy evokes people’s tender feelings unlike His Attribute of Omnipotence or the Almightiness.

There are no flaws in the creation of the Lord of Mercy. Let us offer an example to illustrate this fact; the most skilful maker may be asked to flatten the ceiling of several rooms with one material and paints them in one colour. However, you can notice that his painting of each room differs from the others in some aspect. Even if the painter combines the colour of the paint at one time for all the rooms, the colour will be different because when he takes out some of the paint mixture, the remaining quantity becomes more concentrated. Further, if the task does not finish on the same day, what remains of the paint loses a quantity of water the next day, which affects the degree of the colour.

So, the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘…You will not see any flaw in what the Lord of Mercy creates…’ (al-Mulk: 3) means that His creation is devoid of any dissimilarity or disproportion. Using the word ‘any’ in this verse implies that there are no flaws whatsoever in His creation. For example, if you go to someone to borrow some money from him, he may say to you, ‘I do not have enough money to lend you’. This means that he owns several pounds that are insufficient for lending. However, when you go to another person for the same purpose, he may say to you, ‘I do not have any money’. Using the word ‘any’ means that he does not even one pound. Likewise, you will not see any flaw in the creation of Allah the Almighty.

Thus, you cannot notice any imperfection in His creation. In the heaven, for example, you cannot see any disproportion, dissimilarity, or crookedness. Disproportion refers to the inharmonious objects that do not fit together. All of this is untrue regarding the creation of Allah the Almighty thereby the beholder cannot say, ‘If the heaven had been created in such-and-such a way, it would have been better’, because Allah the Almighty created it perfectly and in a well-knitted way.

Allah the Almighty then says: ‘…Look again...’ (al-Mulk: 3). So, let anyone look at the heaven repeatedly and meditates on His creation; he should not just look at this creation without consideration and reflection, as Allah the Almighty says, ‘…Look again...’ (al-Mulk: 3). You may mistakenly think that some words have the same meaning, yet we stress that each word has a specific sense. For example, the verbs ‘see, look, catch sight of, glance sideways at and stare at’ refer generally to the act of seeing something, but each verb has a specific meaning.

Regarding concrete objects, sight is the function of the eye. When the sight is accompanied with insight and reflection, this enlightens the heart till one discerns that Allah’s creation is not tainted with dissimilarity or imperfection. One who is endowed with the in-depth knowledge and the insight of the scholars discerns, by means of reflection and knowledge, the hidden aspects of the world, and therefore, extracts mysteries and deduces facts.

Then Allah the Almighty says, ‘…Look again! Can you see any flaw?’ (al-Mulk: 3) If the human being looks repeatedly at the heaven, he woill not spot any fissures or cracks. He, the Omnipotent, bestows on each of His creatures’ specific characteristics that make it suitable for its function. So, the one should not think that such a creature is out of the control of its Creator. It is Allah the Almighty Who created the heavens and the earth with absolute creativity and perfection; it is He alone Who can ruin them or cause breaks in them at any time. Also, it is He Who will wrap the sun in darkness, dim the stars, and turn the mountains into dust.

The lower heaven has one shape and contains no cracks or defects whatsoever as Allah the Almighty perfected its creation, as He says, ‘And the heaven, We raised it high with power...’ (adh-Dhariyat: 47); and He says in elsewhere: ‘I swear by the heaven full of ways.’ (adh-Dhariyat: 7) Thus, the creation of the heaven is well-knit and consistent. In the last verse, the Arabic word hubuk (compactness) refers to the fact that the invisible atoms of the heaven fit neatly together and that it why it seems smooth and even. In this regard, Allah the Almighty says about the heaven: ‘He raised its ceiling and proportioned it.’ (an-Nazi’at: 28). If you have a look at the heaven when it is clear, you find that it is an even structure having no protrusions or curvatures despite its vastness and the absence of pillars. Hence, Allah the Almighty orders you to consider and meditate, as if He is saying: ‘We do not deceive you. Look at the heaven attentively and carefully’. So, He says in the verse in question: ‘…Look again! Can you see any flaw?’ (al-Mulk: 3); and He says: ‘Say, “Observe what is in the heavens and earth…”’ (Yunus: 101). It is as if He is saying to the people: ‘The entire universe is before your eyes. Why do not you observe and meditate on it’?

Allah the Almighty raised the heaven and laid down the balance. The heaven does not fall on the earth, and everything in His creation is completely precise and cohesive. The sun rises in the east and sets in the west. The moon and the stars move with utmost precision and perfection because the humans have nothing to do with such celestial bodies.

If you want your life to be managed as perfect and sound as the heaven and the earth, you should apply the Divine Balance to your affairs and follow the saying of Allah: ‘And the heaven, He raised it high, and He made the balance. That you may not be inordinate in respect of the measure, And keep up the balance with equity and do not make the measure deficient (ar-Rahman: 7-9).

As you notice that the celestial bodies move in an orderly way without any human intervention which caused corruption to many things, why do not you follow Allah’s Way of Guidance regarding the matters in which you involve? If you adopt this Divine Way, which He created for you, in this worldly life, your affairs will be as sound as everything related to the universe. The heaven, for example, does not fall on the earth because it is governed by a perfect system. The earth does not move away from its orbit as Allah the Almighty determined its order as well. This is a precise and perfect system which the human being has nothing to do with. Thus, you should lay down a balance for all the matters that are left to your choice so that you do not transgress this balance. By virtue of His Omnipotence, Allah the Almighty perfected the creation of the heaven.

Allah the Almighty then says:

ثُمَّ ٱرۡجِعِ ٱلۡبَصَرَ كَرَّتَيۡنِ يَنقَلِبۡ إِلَيۡكَ ٱلۡبَصَرُ خَاسِئٗا وَهُوَ حَسِيرٞ ﴿٤﴾

Look again! And again! Your sight will turn back to you, weak and defeated [4] (The Quran, al-Mulk: 4)

Even if you have a look several times, you still cannot see any cracks, dissimilarity or imperfection in the creation of the heaven. If you did not ascertain through your first look, you can look once again carefully and closely. However, this will not change the fact that its creation is flawless. One may not spot the faults of something unless he repeatedly looks at it. Hence, if you think that the heaven has defects or disproportions, take repeated looks so that you eliminate your doubts. It is as if Allah the Almighty says, ‘Take your time looking and scrutinizing to be certain of this fact.’ The result is that your sight will be fatigued and too weak to withstand the intense light. For example, if your eyes encounter the sunlight or a car light, your eyes cannot bear such light. This is because light is primarily used to enable us to see things.

So, regarding the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘…your sight will turn back to you, weak and defeated’ (al-Mulk: 4), it means that your sight will get humbled and fail to keep looking. It will be humbled because it will not make you see cracks and faults.

Not only will your sight turn humbled but it will also become too exhausted and strained to endure the intense light. The Arabic word hasra means to regret losing something. Allah the Almighty says, ‘To Him belongs whoever is in the heavens and the earth. And those near Him are not prevented by arrogance from His worship, nor do they tire.’ (al-Anbiya’: 19) This word here means to be weary of something.

Allah the Almighty makes mention of the creation of the Heaven and earth, saying: ‘Allah is He Who created the heavens and the earth and what is between them in six periods, and He mounted the throne (of authority)…’ (as-Sajda: 4). Allah the Almighty informs us that He established Himself above the Throne after the creation of the heavens and the earth. We should consider this fact in the context of His being the All Exalted and far above the way the humans seat themselves. Allah the Almighty also says, ‘The Beneficent is firm in power.’ (Ta Ha: 5) Has Allah the Almighty got a body to seat Himself on a Throne?! This anthropomorphism must be categorically negated. The reality of this matter is one of the ambiguous ones that the believers must believe in without arguing over them. Humans’ existence, hand and sitting are unlike Allah’s Existence, Hand and Establishing Himself on the Throne. Concerning His Throne, Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said: ‘Over them is the Throne, and the distance between its upper and lower parts is the same as the distance between every two heavens. Then Allah is above all that.'(1) We are bound to believe in these facts as they are. At the same time, we must not understand them according to our human capabilities. Whatever crosses your mind, Allah Glorified is He is absolutely unlike it.

Afterwards, Allah the Almighty says:

وَلَقَدْ زَيَّنَّا ٱلسَّمَآءَ ٱلدُّنْيَا بِمَصَٰبِيحَ وَجَعَلْنَٰهَا رُجُومًا
لِّلشَّيَٰطِينِ ۖ وَأَعْتَدْنَا لَهُمْ عَذَابَ ٱلسَّعِيرِ ٥

We have adorned the lowest heaven with lamps and made them [missiles] for stoning devils for whom We have also prepared the torment of a blazing fire [5] (The Quran, al-Mulk: 5)

The Arabic particle qadd (already) emphasises the predicate of a sentence. It can be used before the past and present tenses. Allah the Almighty adorned the lower heaven with lamps which are the stars. Surprisingly, the light of some stars reaches us in fifty light years. If we want to calculate the distance between us and a star, we will have to add a lot of zeros to a figure.

Astronomers set a suitable unit for measuring the distances of stars. This unit of measurement is called 'light year'. As we know, the speed of light is about three hundred thousand kilometres per second. As a huge and bright star, the sun is ninety-three million miles from us. Its light reaches us within eight minutes and a third. The light of Sirius (1), the brightest star in the earth's night sky, reaches us in nine light years. Thus, the 'light year' is the measurement unit for the celestial distances.

(1) Ibn `Abbas is narrated to have said, 'Once we were sitting with Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him at Al-Batha, a cloud appeared (in the sky). Thereupon, he asked, "Do you know what this is?" We replied, "It is a cloud." He asked, "And a nimbus?" We replied, "And a nimbus." He asked, "And Al-`Anan?" We kept silent, then he asked, "Do you know the distance between the sky and earth?" We said, "Allah and His Messenger know better." He said, "The distance between the sky and earth is five hundred years; the distance between one heaven and another is five hundred years; the thickness of each heaven amounts to the distance of five hundred years. Over the seventh heaven is a sea; the distance between its top and bottom is like that between the heaven and earth. Over (that sea) are eight ibexes, the distance between their knees and hoofs is like the distance between the heaven and earth. Over that is the Throne, the distance between its upper part and lower part is the same distance as that between the heaven and earth. Above that is Allah and nothing of the actions of the humans is beyond His Knowledge."' See Ahmad, Musnad, Hadith no. 1770.

We also observe bright stars in the lower heaven, and thus Allah the Almighty states that the sun, the moon, and the stars are its adornments. So, what do we think about the nature and the adornments of the remaining heavens? We should bear in mind that the stars and the planets are objects of adornment hanging down from the lower heaven and giving light at the same time. But they do not constitute the lower heaven.

The lower heaven is far more remote than the bright stars we see. The sun is eight light minutes from us, while the Andromeda Galaxy(2) is one hundred light years from us. The distance between us and our galaxy is one million light years. You can multiply one million light years by one hundred and sixty-five days, then multiply the total by twenty-four hours, then multiply the total by sixty minutes, then sixty seconds and finally multiply the total by three hundred thousand kilometres. Afterwards, reflect on the final number you come to.

The sun is the largest star that beautifies our sky and from which all people benefit, believers, sinners, atheists, and polytheists. When the sun sets, everyone uses a source of light within a limited place and according to his own capabilities; a person may light a candle, another brings an oil lamp and someone else brings an electric light bulb or many electric lamps to fill his room or house with light. Does anyone leave their lamp being lit on once the sun rises? Everyone turns off his lamps for being satisfied with the light of the sun. This is the tangible light. The difference between the light that one gets by human means and the light of the sun is that the latter overwhelms all the lamps in the worldly life because it encompasses everything.

(1) Sirius is the brightest star in the sky at night and the fourth brightest celestial body. It consists of two stars that appear together. Allah the Almighty says: 'And that it is He who is the Lord of Sirius.' (an-Najm: 49)

(2) The Andromeda Galaxy is the nearest to our galaxy and is approximately two million light years and a half away from us. It contains two hundred and fifty billion stars. Its diameter is one hundred and fifty thousand light years. The Andromeda Galaxy can be seen with the naked eye.

Allah the Almighty does not only created the stars as lamps beautifying the sky, but He also made them signs of guidance for people, as He says, ‘And landmarks; and by the stars they find the right way.’ (an-Nahl: 16)

We know that those who travel by sea depend on the stars to guide them to the right way. Likewise, those who travel by land through deserts depend on the stars. In this regard, the people of Quraysh used to make two commercial journeys every year: one in winter and the other in summer. They used to follow certain routes with the help of stars as they were familiar with the positions of stars. In this vein, Allah the Almighty says, ‘And He it is Who has made the stars for you that you might follow the right way thereby in the darkness of the land and the sea; truly We have made plain the communications for a people who know.’ (al-An‘am: 97). Allah the Almighty created the stars so that those who travel by land or sea at night are guided by them. After all, they need some light to show them the way.

So, the Arabs used to depend on the stars to be guided to the right directions in their travels. One can say to another, ‘Go while such-and-such a star is facing you; walk while such-and-such a star is on your left and you will reach such-and-such a place; go ahead while such-and-such a star is behind you and you will find such-and-such.’

The stars are not only designed to guide us when we travel by land or sea. If so, all the stars would be the same size; however, we see large and small stars. Due to its remoteness, a seemingly small star may be larger than an apparent big one.

Allah the Almighty also created stars for aesthetic purposes. They give us the sense of pleasure and awe when we look at them. That is why Allah Glorified is He says, ‘…and has beautified it for the observers.’ (al-Hijr: 16) An object can be useful but has no aesthetic value. However, Allah the Almighty gave aesthetic values to the stars because the human soul has the faculty of appreciating beauty and being impressed by it. Therefore, Allah the Almighty says, ‘And We have placed within the heaven great stars and have beautified it for the observers.’ (al-Hijr: 16)

As a matter of fact, beauty is a value and a blessing from Allah the Almighty Who mentions some of His Blessings, saying: ‘And [He created] the horses, mules and donkeys for you to ride and [as] adornment.' (an-Nahl: 8). It is Allah Glorified is He Who created these animals in beautiful shapes. In the same vein, Allah the Almighty says, 'And there is beauty in them for you when you drive them back (to home), and when you send them forth (to pasture).' (an-Nahl: 6) Allah Glorified is He does not only create these animals for us to make use of them, but to satisfy our feelings of beauty. The more we get impressed by beauty, the more we recognise Allah's Oneness.

Allah the Almighty spreads His Blessings among all His creatures by beautifying the lower heaven with stars. Likewise, Allah Glorified is He provides those who have loads with the animals that can carry their loads, as He says, 'And they carry your heavy loads to regions which you could not reach but with distress of the souls; most surely your Lord is Compassionate, Merciful.' (an-Nahl: 7) About those who have no heavy loads, they can see horses move gracefully and enjoy their attractive shapes even though these horses may not belong to them. Thus, Allah the Almighty spreads His Favours among His creatures.

Allah the Almighty grants us luxuries in addition to the basic needs of life. He does not only give the necessary warmth, benefits and foodstuff but also the luxuries of life, like the beautiful things that the person delights upon seeing them. Warmth, useful things, and food are special benefits for those who own cattle and livestock whereas beauty is common to everyone. The moment you see a beautiful horse or a vigorous cow you enjoy the Favours of Allah the Almighty that please the beholders. This beauty and splendour please our soul.

Thus, Allah the Almighty conferred upon us the necessities of life as well as its luxuries. The adornment is for the purpose of beauty. In this connection, Allah the Almighty says, 'Surely, We have adorned the nearest heaven with an adornment, the stars. And (there is) a safeguard against every rebellious devil. They cannot listen to the exalted assembly and they are thrown at from every side. Being driven off, and for them is a perpetual chastisement.' (as-Saffat: 6-9)

When you look at the sky during the night, you find it exquisitely ornamented with twinkling stars. In this respect, 'Abdullah ibn Mas`ud is narrated to have said, 'Jarir ibn 'Abdullah said to Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him "Tell us about the lower heaven, O Allah's Messenger." He said, "Allah created the lower heaven from smoke then raised it. He placed therein a sun and a luminous moon; He also ornamented it with stars and designed them to pelt devils with shooting stars; He safeguarded it from every damned devil.'"(1)

Allah the Almighty says, '…and made them [missiles] for stoning devils…' (al-Mulk: 5); and: 'And We adorned the nearest heaven with lamps and as protection. That is the determination of the Exalted in Might, the Knowing.' (Fussilat: 12) According to these two verses, Allah the Almighty made the stars, with which He beautified the lower heaven, an instrument for throwing devils with meteors and preventing them from listening secretly to the Highest Assembly of angels. Allah's saying: '…and made them…' (al-Mulk: 5), refers to the meteors which are taken from the planets, not the planets per se.

So, some stars are immobile ornaments for the sky; others guide humankind through the darkness of land and sea; while some others are designed to pelt devils with meteors. The stars with which the lower heaven is ornamented are not the ones thrown at devils to burn them. The stars and planets are bright objects in the sky which resemble a ceiling decorated with pendent lamps. Allah the Almighty describes these stars as lamps that are noticeably luminous. The stars give incandescent light while the moon gives a gentle derived light. In this connection, Allah the Almighty says, 'It is He who made the sun a shining light and the moon a derived light' (Yunus: 5); 'And made the moon therein a [reflected] light and made the sun a burning lamp?' (Nuh: 16)

As the sun gives incandescent light, it is like a burning lamp. Unlike the gentle and heatless light of the moon, the incandescent light of the sun is accompanied with heat and warmth. Heat arises when light intrinsically comes from a shining object such as the sun. As for the moon, its light is extrinsic and emanates from the sunrays when they are reflected on it. The moon is like a mirror; if you direct some light towards it, it reflects this light.

The hurled objects thrown at the eavesdropping devils are the meteors that are derived from the stars, and they look like a flaming brand taken from a fire, as in the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'He saw a fire and said to his people, "Stay here—I can see a fire. Maybe I can bring you a flaming brand from it or find some guidance there.'" (Ta Ha: 10) Prophet Musa (Moses) peace be upon him brought his family a torch out of a fire, but it remained the same. In another context, he peace be upon him said, 'an ember', which is a piece of wood or coal that remains very hot after a fire stops burning. Elsewhere, he said: 'I will bring you from there information or will bring you a burning torch…' (an-Naml: 7).

Allah the Almighty made the meteors missiles shot at the devils. Before the revelation of the Quran, they used to eavesdrop and have positions of eavesdropping in the sky to listen secretly to what was sent down to the earth, a fact which is crystal clear in Allah's saying: 'We used to sit in places there, listening, but anyone trying to listen now will find a shooting star lying in wait for him.' (al-Jinn: 9) They used to eavesdrop and add numerous fabrications to each single truth they heard.(1) So, Allah the Almighty relates that the devils said: 'We tried to reach heaven, but discovered it to be full of stern guards and shooting stars—we used to sit in places there, listening, but anyone trying to listen now will find a shooting star lying in wait for him.' (al-Jinn: 8-9)

Allah the Almighty then says in the verse in question: '…for whom We have also prepared the torment of a blazing Fire.' (al-Mulk: 5) Just as Allah the Almighty punishes them with shooting stars is their worldly life, He has prepared for the devils the punishment of the blazing fire in the Hereafter. Devils are the rebellious jinn about whom Allah the Almighty says: 'Surely, We have adorned the nearest heaven with an adornment, the stars. And (there is) a safeguard against every rebellious devil. They cannot listen to the exalted assembly and they are thrown at from every side. Being driven off, and for them is a perpetual chastisement. Except him who snatches off but once, then there follows him a brightly shining flame.' (as-Saffat: 6-9)

(1) Ibn `Abbas said, 'Each tribe of the jinn used to have fixed positions for eavesdropping. Whenever a divine revelation descended, the angels heard a sound like the crash of a piece of iron thrown on the mountain of As-Saffa, whereupon they prostrated themselves and did lift their heads till the divine revelations had been sent down. Afterwards, they asked one another, "What did your Lord say?"' In case these divine revelations were related to the earth such as the unseen, deaths or anything else, they talked about them and said, 'Such-and-such a thing will take place.' Devils used to listen secretly to the conversation of the angels and convey them to their leaders. When Allah sent Prophet Muhammad, the devils were repelled by shooting stars.' See Ibn Abu Shayba*, Al-Musannaf, Hadith no. 36542.*

As-Sa`ir (the Blaze) is one of the names of hell and also one of its types which include: the Flame, the Crusher, Saqar and the Abyss. The Blaze is the fire that burns non-stop and devours everything before it. From the same root of this word, we refer to the rabid dog.

Allah the Almighty then says:

وَلِلَّذِينَ كَفَرُوا۟ بِرَبِّهِمْ عَذَابُ جَهَنَّمَ ۖ وَبِئْسَ ٱلْمَصِيرُ ﴿٦﴾ إِذَآ أُلْقُوا۟ فِيهَا
سَمِعُوا۟ لَهَا شَهِيقًا وَهِىَ تَفُورُ ﴿٧﴾ تَكَادُ تَمَيَّزُ مِنَ ٱلْغَيْظِ ۖ كُلَّمَآ أُلْقِىَ
فِيهَا فَوْجٌ سَأَلَهُمْ خَزَنَتُهَآ أَلَمْ يَأْتِكُمْ نَذِيرٌ ﴿٨﴾

For those who defy their Lord We have prepared the torment of Hell: an evil destination [6] They will hear it drawing in its breath when they are thrown in. It blazes forth, [7] almost bursting with rage. Its keepers will ask every group that is thrown in, 'Did no one come to warn you?' [8]

While the blazing fire is the punishment of the devils, the disbelievers' punishment is hell. The punishment of the latter begins with hearing the inhalation of hell while it is boiling over. Inhalation linguistically means the power that takes the air into the nose and chest. So, what do we think of the strength of the inhalation of hell which attracts and pulls people destined to be punished towards it? In the following Quranic verse, hell itself answers the question of Allah the Almighty: 'We shall say to hell on that Day, "Are you full?" and it will reply, "Are there no more?"' (Qaf: 30) It is the power of hell which calls for punishing more disbelievers. It breathes in those destined to enter it. Naturally, inhalation of air occurs more rapidly than its exhalation. Taking air into the lungs in this worldly life is a necessary process for maintaining one's life. It also exists in the Hereafter, but it is connected with hell which inhales to swallow the disbelievers, as it yearns and waits for them.

Hell also exhales as Allah the Almighty says, 'When it shall come into their sight from a distant place, they shall hear its vehement raging and roaring.' (al-Furqan: 12) Those who enter hell will also breathe in and out, a fact which is crystal clear in Allah's saying: 'For them therein is [violent] exhaling and inhaling.' (Hud: 106) As we know, those who breathe in hell will take hot air into their lungs and send it out hot as well. Imagine how breathing occurs in Hell which is filled with flames. A person in this worldly life breathes to relax by fresh air. So, how can he breathe in that extremely hot air? Without doubt, this will be unbearably painful.

What sort of ease or relaxation can a person get from the hot air of a boiling hell? As for the saying of Allah the Almighty: '…it blazes forth.' (al-Mulk: 7), it means that the fire of Hell boils as water does when it is heated. Water contains air, given the fact that fish breathe while in water. Otherwise, how do fish breathe? If we boil water, we see bubbles rise to the surface.

The disbelievers and sinners will be thrown into hell with a lot of force. Entering hell will not be easy or merciful for them. The act of throwing is associated with concrete objects. This verb is mentioned in many verses of the Quran; Allah the Almighty says, '…and he threw down the tablets and seized his brother by [the hair of] his head, pulling him toward him. [Harun (Aaron)] said, "O son of my mother, indeed the people oppressed me."' (al-A'raf: 150) Throwing down the tablets is something visible and physical. Allah the Almighty also says: 'So they threw their ropes and their staffs and said, "By the might of Pharaoh, indeed it is we who are predominant."' (ash-Shu'ara': 44). As for Allah's saying here: 'When they are thrown in…' (at-Talaq: 7), it means that the disbelievers will be flung into hell, body and soul.

On the other hand, Allah the Almighty uses the verb 'throwing' in some Quranic verses to refer to abstract meanings. He says, '…We will cast terror into the hearts of those who disbelieve…' (Al-'Imran: 151). Allah Glorified is He wants to make terror overwhelm the disbelievers. It seems as if He brings terror and places it into their hearts. Terror is an abstract feeling, but it has a tangible effect on their hearts.

Regarding the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'They will hear it drawing in its breath when they are thrown in.' (al-Mulk: 7), it means that the disbelievers will hear hell inhaling when it swallows them. They are sucked into it violently. This prospect is full of activity and vehemence: the disbelievers are thrown into a fire, while it is moving forward and swallowing them. Its flames receive them while it is boiling up and blazing forth. Allah Glorified is He describes this miserable destination, saying: 'For those who defy their Lord We have prepared the torment of hell: an evil destination.' (al-Mulk: 6) How cannot hell be a most miserable destination for the disbelievers?! They should have borne in mind that fate when they had the free choice in the worldly life. The worst thing about this fate is that it is inescapable, a fact which is crystal clear in Allah's saying: 'On that Day man will say, "Where can I escape?" Truly, there is no refuge:] they will all return to your Lord on that Day. ' (al-Qiyama: 10-12); 'They will wish to get out of the Fire, but never are they to emerge therefrom, and for them is an enduring punishment.' (al-Ma'ida: 37)

Whenever the flames of fire burn the disbelievers, they wish to get out of it. But how do they wish to exit from it? The moment the fire burns them and they move about restlessly, the flames push them towards outside, whereupon they think that their torment comes to a stop. However, Allah the Almighty says, '…and for them is an enduring punishment.' (al-Ma'ida: 37) Thus, the punishment of the disbelievers in the fire is perpetual. It is a painful torment that will remain unbearably so, and it will never be alleviated. Likewise, its humiliating punishment will also remain so forever. In both cases, the punishment is eternal.

Allah the Almighty then describes hell, saying: 'Almost bursting with rage. Its keepers will ask every group that is thrown in, 'Did no one come to warn you?' (al-Mulk: 8) As the fire boils up, inhales and exhales, it is: 'Almost bursting with rage…' (al-Mulk: 8) at the disbelievers. An example of this is when you see a pot in which water boils up and produces bubbles; some of these bubbles get out from the pot. Likewise, when a person rages, things like the bubbles come out of him, which expresses his seething with rage. Hell also is incandescent with rage as it is punishing the disbelievers who did not realise the value of belief.

Allah the Almighty gives us another example in Allah's saying: 'How many of the gardens and fountains have they left! And cornfields and noble places! And goodly things wherein they rejoiced. Thus (it was), and We gave them as a heritage to another people. So, the heaven and the earth did not weep for them, nor were they respited.' (ad-Dukhan: 25-29)

The earth is resentful at the existence of the disbelievers on it. So, neither the heaven nor the earth grieves for the underground burial and exemplary punishment inflicted on the disbelievers. Conversely, they grieve over the death of the believers. The earth never gets along with the sinners. Likewise, hell explodes with rage against all those who disbelieve in Allah Glorified is He. However, it is crazy about torturing the disbelievers. It is as if the punishment itself is yearning for inflicting them.

Hell is raged at the disbelievers and so it eagerly prepares itself for them. When anger is unendurable by a person, he certainly feels irritated and explodes. So, the saying of Allah: 'Almost bursting with rage…' (al-Mulk: 8) means that the constituents of the fire of hell almost break away from one another.

The Arabic word al-ghayzh (rage) is an inner feeling and it is a considerable degree of anger which is accompanied by sadness and sorrow. Both the believers and the disbelievers explode with rage; we get angry about the disbelievers' obstinacy and mockery, but Allah the Almighty drives our anger away. Thus, the fire of hell is: 'Almost bursting with rage…' (al-Mulk: 8).

Then, Allah the Almighty says, 'Its keepers will ask every group that is thrown in, 'Did no one come to warn you?' (al-Mulk: 8) The dwellers of hell will be flung into it in groups, as He the Almighty, says, '[Its inhabitants will say], "This is a company bursting in with you." No welcome for them. Indeed, they will burn in the Fire.' (Sad: 59); 'and [warn of] the Day when We will gather from every nation a company of those who deny Our signs, and they will be [driven] in rows.' (an-Naml: 83)

Allah the Almighty also says, 'So, as to those who are unhappy, they shall be in the fire; for them shall be sighing and groaning in it.' (Hud: 106) Those who brought down distress upon themselves because of their deviation from the Way of Allah will be bound together by wretchedness. But they will enter Hell individually and in groups, a fact which is clearly manifested in Allah's saying: 'And those who disbelieved will be driven to Hell in groups...' (az-Zumar: 71); '…every time a nation enters, it will curse its sister…' (al-A'raf: 38). So, the appointed dwellers of hell will come to Him the Almighty singly and in groups.

As for the saying of Allah the Almighty: '…its keepers will ask every group…' (al-Mulk: 8), the 'keepers of Hell' are the angels including Malik and his associates. The same question is also mentioned in a verse of the chapter of az-Zumar, which reads: 'And those who disbelieve shall be driven to Hell in companies; until, when they come to it, its doors shall be opened, and the keepers of it shall say to them: Did there not come to you Messengers from among you reciting to you the communications of your Lord and warning you of the meeting of this Day of yours? They shall say: "Yea!" But the sentence of punishment was due against the disbelievers.' (az-Zumar: 71)

The keepers of hell ask the disbelievers reprovingly: 'Did there not come to you Messengers from among you reciting to you the communications of your Lord and warning you of the meeting of this Day of yours?' (az-Zumar: 71) This question dumbfounds and overwhelms the disbelievers. Allah the Almighty does not seize the disbelievers suddenly when they were unaware. Rather, He sent for them Messengers from themselves, that is to say, they were humans like them and belong to the same milieus, so that they can easily model themselves on them.

Regarding the saying of Allah the Almighty: '…Did no one come to warn you?' (al-Mulk: 8), we should state that the warnings given to the people during their lives are a clear token of Allah's Mercy towards His servants. The warners (i.e. the Messengers), including Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him will bear witness that they conveyed the Divine Message to their people.

The Arabic word an-nadheer (a warner) refers to a person who tells about something bad that may happen in the future so that its causes can be avoided or prevented. The opposite of a warner is a giver of glad tidings who notifies of something good that will happen if the person does what it takes to obtain it. So, giving a warning and glad news are concerned with future occurrences. Warning implies intimidation and advice. For example, if you want your son to study hard, you will say to him, 'If you do not study hard, you will be as miserable and worthless as the son of so-and-so'. You warn him in order that he avoids the practices that lead him to school failure.

Warning and bringing glad tidings are intended for those who have free choice. Allah the Almighty tells us in this regard: '…and there is not a people but a warner has gone among them.' (Fatir: 24) A warner testifies that he conveyed the Divine Message to his community. All the prophets came as warners for their peoples, as Allah the Almighty says, 'And We had certainly sent Nuh (Noah) to his people, [saying], "Indeed, I am to you a clear warner."' (Hud: 25)

The prophets are givers of warnings as well as glad tidings. Those who believe shall receive the glad tidings. As for the disbelievers, they should expect the realisation of the warnings. So, to give a warning means to tell someone about something bad that will affect him in the future in order that he get ready to protect himself. On the other hand, giving glad tidings is about something promising and hopeful.

Through warning and giving glad tidings, all issues and aspects of the human being's life become clear. In Arabic, the word bishara (giving a glad tiding) denotes telling about something pleasant or unpleasant. But it is commonly used in the sense of telling pleasant news that will realise in the future. As for the act of warning, it is exclusively associated with telling about potential depressing and sad events, which is a blessing in itself. It, in fact, is one of the best favours that Allah the Almighty confers upon humans, for by virtue of which they can take their precautions. Such threatening, instruction and intimidation are intended to avoid what incurs punishment. There must be an interval between giving a warning and the realisation of the potential danger so that a person can properly take his precautions. Thus, warning means to advise someone against doing something that can harm him in the future. Allah's warning is directed to all people so that they can shun what leads them to hell. This implies the necessity of quitting one's faults before having good qualities. In other words, you should safeguard yourself against what causes you harm and then turn your attention to what is beneficial for you. This is based on the maxim that read: 'warding off harm takes precedence over the obtainment of benefit'. The warner forewarns against evil things before they occur, for giving such a warning at the time of their occurrence is pointless. The Prophets were sent to the humans and jinn as warners, a fact which is crystal clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'O company of jinn and mankind, did there not come to you messengers from among you, relating to you My verses and warning you of the meeting of this Day of yours?' (al-An'am: 130) Hence, Allah the Almighty states that He has sent Messengers for both the jinn and mankind from among themselves. However, some scholars hold the view that the Messengers were all human beings because the Quran says on the jinn's tongues: '…indeed we have heard a [recited] Book revealed after Musa (Moses) confirming what was before it which guides to the truth and to a straight path.' (al-Ahqaf: 30). Here, the jinn argue that they knew about a Scripture that was revealed after Prophet Musa (Moses) peace be upon him. So, it seems that they receive their Message from the human Messengers. That is to say that Allah the Almighty sent the prophets only from among the human beings, but their messages include the jinn as well.

Allah the Almighty sends prophets as warners so that people do not have any arguments or pleas, a fact which is crystal clear in Allah's saying: '[We sent] Messengers as bringers of good tidings and warners so that mankind will have no argument against Allah after the Messengers.' (an-Nisa': 165)

Allah the Almighty then says:

قَالُواْ بَلَىٰ قَدۡ جَآءَنَا نَذِيرٞ فَكَذَّبۡنَا وَقُلۡنَا مَا نَزَّلَ ٱللَّهُ مِن شَيۡءٍ إِنۡ أَنتُمۡ إِلَّا فِي ضَلَٰلٖ كَبِيرٖ ٩

They will reply, 'Yes, a warner did come to us, but we did not believe him. We said, "God has revealed nothing: you are greatly misguided"' [9] (The Quran, al-Mulk: 9)

Allah the Almighty does not punish for crimes before revealing religious texts through the messengers that clearly criminalise them. In other words, Allah Glorified is He does not penalise people for their wrongdoings except after being notified of His Message. None is excusable after having received the Message. The rationale of sending Prophets is to leave no room for pleas or argument by the people who received the divine messages through these prophets.

Here, after having been thrown into Hell, the disbelievers are asked: '…Did no one come to warn you?' (al-Mulk: 8) They will reply, 'Yea.' (al-Mulk: 9) The word bala (yea) is a particle like na`am (yes). The only difference between both is that bala is used to answer a question or a statement containing a negation to indicate that the opposite is true. Bala, unlike na`am, negates what is stated in a question. For example, if a person says to you, ‘You are not entitled to anything with me’ and you reply with ‘yes’, this means that what he says is true and you agree with him. But if you say, ‘Yea’, this means that you are entitled to something and disagree to his claim.

Once you say a negative statement and it is followed by the particle ‘bala’, you indicate that the opposite of the statement is true. So, it comes as an answer to a negative question. The saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘…am I not your Lord?’ They said, “Yes…”’ (al-A‘raf: 172), is a case in point. The adverb ‘Yes’ comes as an answer to the negative question and affirms the opposite of the question. That is, Allah the Almighty is their Lord.

Further, Allah the Almighty says, ‘And they swear by Allah their strongest oaths [that] Allah will not resurrect one who dies. But yes - [it is] a true promise [binding] upon Him.’ (an-Nahl: 38) The disbelievers deny Resurrection, swearing that Allah Glorified is He will not raise anyone from death. So, Allah the Almighty replies to them by the adverb ‘yes’ to negate their preceding statement and to affirm that He will resurrect those who die.

As for Allah’s saying in the verse in question: ‘They will reply, “Yes, a warner did come to us, but we did not believe him.” We said, “Allah has revealed nothing…”’ (al-Mulk: 9), the disbelievers admit that a warner came to them, but they rejected it. Allah the Almighty sent prophets to the people in different periods of times so that they would have no arguments against Him, saying: ‘…there came not to us any bringer of good tidings or a warner...’ (al-Ma‘ida: 19). Prophets already warned the people against the Day of Judgment, but the disbelievers utterly denied the Prophets and the revelation.

Regarding the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘…but we did not believe him. We said, “Allah has revealed nothing…”’ (al-Mulk: 9), the denial of the truth is a detestable matter that denotes the rejection of the denier. It implies adopting a hostile stance and turning away from the Divine Way of Guidance. The disbelievers have three stages regarding rejecting belief: abandonment, denial, and derision. Abandonment is a negative response while denial is a positive one even though it runs counter to belief. As for derision, it exceeds the denial and embodies clashing with the believers. The disbelievers do not praise and exalt Allah Glorified is He as duly as required because they claim: '…Allah has revealed nothing…' (al-Mulk: 9).

In this vein, Allah the Almighty also says, 'And they did not praise Allah with true praise when they said, "Allah did not reveal to a human being anything..."' (al-An'am: 91). So, Allah Glorified is He replies to those deniers: '…say, "Who revealed the Scripture that Musa (Moses) brought as light and guidance to the people?"...' (al-An'am: 91) The disbelievers denied that Allah the Almighty selected some of His servants to receive His Way of Guidance and communicate it to other people.

Some people of the Book were among those who claimed: '…Allah has revealed nothing…' (al-Mulk: 9). In Prophet Muhammad's biography, it is related that a rabbi called Malik ibn As-Sayf used to argue against Islam. While a rabbi should be an ascetic who devotes himself to knowledge and worship, he was obese as he used to overeat in contrast to other devoted rabbis. Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him knew that such a rabbi was in the habit of impugning Islam. So one day they met and he peace and blessings be upon him said to him, 'Is it true that the Torah says, "Allah hates the fat rabbi?" He stood thunderstruck and immediately said, 'Allah did not reveal to a human being anything', meaning that Allah did not reveal anything of what he peace and blessings be upon him said to a human. Thus, we know that such claims are made by the people of the Book.

After Malik ibn As-Sayf made this allegation, some Jews criticised him for his statement. He said to them, 'Muhammad infuriated me, so I had to respond to him by this falsehood.' Thereupon, they said, 'So you are not qualified for being a rabbi as you disgraced us.' They indeed deposed him and appointed Ka`b ibn Al-Ashraf as the new rabbi.(1)

(1) In his Tafsir, As-Suyuti narrates this account and ascribes it to Ibn Jarir, Ibn Al-Mundhir and Ibn Abu Hatim on the authority of Sa`id ibn Jubayr who said, 'A Jew called Malik ibn As-Sayf came to Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and disputed with him. He peace and blessings be upon him said to him, "I adjure you by the One who sent down the Torah upon Musa (Moses). Do you read in the Torah that Allah hates the fat rabbi?" Malik ibn As-Sayf was indeed an obese man. He was angered by the Messenger's question and said, "I swear that Allah did not reveal anything to a human." Thereupon, the companions of Malik ibn As-Sayf said to him, "Woe betide you! Even to Musa (Moses)?"' See As-Suyuti, Ad-Durr Al-Manthur, 3/314.

Allah the Almighty judges the disbelievers saying, '…you are not but in great error.' (al-Mulk: 9) The short clause 'You are not but' occurs in many Quranic verses, as in Allah's saying: 'And to `Ad [We sent] their brother Hud. He said, "O my people, worship Allah; you have no deity other than Him. You are not but inventors [of falsehood]."' (Hud: 50) This verse means they are fabricators of lies regarding worshipping idols besides Allah Glorified is He. Another related example is the verse reading: 'Their messengers said, "Can there be doubt about Allah, Creator of the heavens and earth? He invites you that He may forgive you of your sins, and He delays your death for a specified term." They said, "You are not but men like us."' (Ibrahim: 10) According to this verse, the opponents of the messengers argue that they are human beings like them, and thus they assume that the messengers have no advantage over them.

Likewise, Allah the Almighty says, 'And We have certainly presented to the people in this Quran from every [kind of] example. But [O Muhammad], if you should bring them a sign, the disbelievers will surely say, "You [believers] are but falsifiers."'(ar-Rum: 58) Here, the disbelievers label Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and his Companions as liars and inventors of falsehoods. Thus, all the disbelievers accused the messengers who conveyed the Message of Allah Glorified is He of being liars. That is why Allah the Almighty says to these disbelievers: '…you are not but in great error.' (al-Mulk: 9)

The Arabic word dalal (error) means following a way that does not lead you to your desired destination. Those who deviate from the Right Path no longer have a guide. This word has several meanings: firstly, getting lost and perishing, a meaning which is clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'And they say, "When we are lost within the earth, will we indeed be [recreated] in a new creation?" Rather, they are, in [the matter of] the meeting with their Lord, disbelievers.' (as-Sajda: 10); secondly, not following the right way or not being righty guided as in the verse reading: 'And He found you lost and guided [you].' (ad-Duha: 7) It is as if Allah the Almighty is saying: 'Muhammad, you did not approve of idolatry like the people of Quraysh. So, you kept on searching for the sound Way of Guidance till Allah guided you and sent down upon you the Right Path. You were lost and looked for spiritual guidance and finally Allah conferred on you this great blessing'. Thirdly, swerving from the Right Path, after having recognised it, and adopting human approaches based on personal inclinations.

Deviation regarding worldly and material matters may not achieve your desired goal; rather, it may cause a greater evil. About deviation from the true religion, it does not only make you fail to attain your desired goal, namely paradise, but it also leads you to the opposite, hell. This is the manifest error.

So, deviation means that a person follows a route that does not lead to his desired goal. Each step a person takes towards his error keeps him away from this desired goal. This is called the extreme error or deviation.

This extreme error is extensive as Allah the Almighty says, ‘And whoever disbelieves in Allah, His angels, His Books, His Messengers and the Last Day has certainly gone far astray.’ (an-Nisa’: 136) The phrase ‘gone far astray’ means that the person deviated from the Right Path and was misguided. Once a person strays from his desired goal, he is said to have swerved from the right path. As for one who ‘…has certainly gone far astray’ (an-Nisa’: 136), he is the person who sinks into the deep abyss of disbelief.

Misguidance is repairable whereas extreme error and sinking into the abyss of disbelief is irreparable. The error of the person who is involved in deviation from the Right Path will stop at the end of his life. On the other hand, misguiding and leading others astray elongates the effect of error beyond the person’s life. In other words, the error will outlive the one misleading himself as the succeeding generations inherit error from him.

Going astray is contrary to being rightly guided; the former means that a person does not follow the Path leading to the desired goal, while the latter denotes reaching the desired goal. Also, a person who is unaware of the true way that is conducive to the desired goal is in error. As for the disbeliever, he is the one who knows the True Path but goes astray. When Allah the Almighty talks about the disbelievers, He describes them as being engaged in extreme error. This is because they recognise the route to spiritual guidance, but they do not follow it. This is the apex of error.

Regarding the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘…You are not but in great error.’ (al-Mulk: 9), their error is described as ‘great’ because the disbelievers excessively went stray from the Truth and Right Path.

Some exegetes are of the opinion that the saying of Allah the Almighty: '…you are not but in great error.' (al-Mulk: 9) is among the words of the disbelievers themselves and that it functions as a supplement of their previous words: '…we said, 'Allah has revealed nothing…' (al-Mulk: 9). They went to say these words to their prophets: '…you are not but in great error.' (al-Mulk: 9)

Allah the Almighty mentions to us some similar statements in the Quran. For example, He says about Prophet Nuh (Noah) peace be upon him: 'The people of Nuh (Noah) denied before them, and they denied Our servant and said, "A madman", and he was repelled.' (al-Qamar: 9) According to this verse, the people of Nuh (Noah) accused him of lunacy. Allah the Almighty also tells us about him: 'And he constructed the ship, and whenever an assembly of the eminent of his people passed by him, they ridiculed him. He said, "If you ridicule us, then we will ridicule you just as you ridicule."' (Hud: 38)

Nuh's (Noah's) people made fun of him and wondered how the ark could sail from Naynawa(1) to the sea, while there were no seas or rivers nearby. They did not realise that he peace be upon him knew that the floodwater would make the ark float and sail. They went as far as to say to him: '…indeed, we see you in clear error.' (al-A'raf: 60) They feared that the call Prophet Nuh (Noah) peace be upon him should be the Straight Path. So, they deluded themselves into believing that his call was a deviation from the Straight Path and project their error onto him.

Allah the Almighty then continues to relate what the disbelievers will say:

وَقَالُوا۟ لَوْ كُنَّا نَسْمَعُ أَوْ نَعْقِلُ مَا كُنَّا فِىٓ أَصْحَٰبِ ٱلسَّعِيرِ ﴿١٠﴾

They will say, 'If only we had listened, or reasoned, we would not be with the inhabitants of the blazing fire' [10]
(The Quran, al-Mulk: 10)

So, they confessed their error, saying, 'if we had minds to reason properly or listen carefully and meditatively to the Truth that Allah revealed, we would not have been with the inhabitants of the blazing Fire'. Some other scholars state that this verse means that if they had listened consciously or thought perceptively, they would not have been among the denizens of hell.

(1) Naynawa is a governorate in the north of Iraq and its city centre is Mosul, the second largest city of Iraq. It is 402 km from Baghdad. The Mosque of Prophet Yunus (Jonah), located on a foothill, is one of the landmarks of the city.

Listening attentively and reasoning are among the ways of discernment and guidance. As for listening attentively, it is directed at what Allah the Almighty revealed to the Prophets, while reasoning helps a person recognise facts and attain to faith. Thus, it is as if the disbelievers' means of discernment broke down. Their ears were deaf to listen to the call to the Right Path; their tongues failed to express what was within their hearts; and their eyes were blind to Allah's signs in the universe. Hence, their faculties of spiritual discernment were broken-down. Allah the Almighty describes such disbelievers, saying: 'The example of those who disbelieve is like that of one who shouts at what hears nothing but calls and cries cattle or sheep - deaf, dumb and blind, so they do not understand.' (al-Baqara: 171) There is something that obstructed their ears and made them deaf, for if a person does not hear, he does not speak. Ears help one to hear what is useful, but their ears cannot hear the call guidance, so they seemed to be out of order.

The mind helps one to think, but if a person does not think properly and logically, he will seem to be mindless. A deaf person is better than another person who has the sense of hearing but does not understand. This is because the person who is born deaf or dumb is excusable, and so is the mad person.

Reasoning occurs after one listens carefully and uses his faculties. As a matter of fact, the primary constitution of the human being is kinetic and sensory; he sees, hears, and tastes. Then, he formulates his rational thoughts. The fact that the disbelievers do not hear does not mean that their ears are out of order. Actually, they listen with their ears but do not understand that to which they listen. That is why Allah the Almighty says about them: '…so what is [the matter] with those people that they can hardly understand any statement?' (an-Nisa': 78) When you say, 'So-and-so does not understand', this means that his mind is hindered from understanding. But if you say, 'So-and-so can hardly understand', this means that such a person almost does not understand. Thinking and employing the mind lead to understanding. So, when the disbelievers do not understand, we wonder at their lack of understanding because the matter put forward is intelligible. Understanding is to have the faculty of comprehending what is said to you. So, it is the first stage, while knowledge is the second one. In this connection, Allah the Almighty says: ‘Have they not travelled in the land so that they should have hearts with which to understand, or ears with which to hear? For surely it is not the eyes that are blind, but blind are the hearts which are in the breasts.’ (al-Hajj: 46)

Does a person understand with his heart? As we know, our minds are in our brains, while our hearts are in our breasts. Any person has means of perception, namely; the senses which receive what is tangible like eyesight and touching. When a person perceives things through his senses, his mind intervenes to filter them and choose what is suitable among them. After the mind decides on and compares between the alternatives, it reaches the judgment of which a person is convinced. This final judgment does not require further perception or choosing between alternatives.

In addition to choosing and comparing between alternatives, reason has other functions: it prevents a person from wrongdoing and safeguards him against falling into labyrinths. Some people hold the erroneous belief that the intellect entails freedom of thought and thus gives free rein to one’s ideas. In fact, the opposite is true. Linguistically, the Arabic word `aql (intellect) is derived from the word `iqal which means a hobble with which a camel is tied to prevent it from running away. So, the intellect does not mean that you indulge yourself excessively in your thoughts; rather, it functions as a regulator and controller of your thoughts and behaviour. It says to you, ‘Consider your ideas carefully. Do not let your own inclinations influence your ideas so that you do what is correct and say what is proper’.

The disbelievers subjected themselves to their errors and unsound personal inclinations. They do not listen to Allah’s Guidance in a useful, reasonable, and deliberate way that stops them from falling into disbelief and error. As they do not listen thoughtfully or meditate, they deserved to be among the denizens of the blazing fire. What is more, the Satan himself entraps them and leads them to that catastrophic fate, a fact which is crystal clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘Indeed, Satan is an enemy to you; so take him as an enemy. He only invites his party to be among the companions of the Blaze.’ (Fatir: 6)

The disbelievers will be among the companions of the blaze as if there is intimacy between both. Allah the Almighty says in the verse under discussion: '…would not be with the inhabitants of the blazing fire.' (al-Mulk: 10) Here, Allah the Almighty uses the Arabic preposition fi (in), instead of min (among), to indicate that those mentioned in the verse are in the centre of hell, while its other dwellers surround them. We conclude this from the connotation of the preposition fi. But why do these disbelievers deserve being in the centre of hell, while other dwellers are around them?!

Afterwards, Allah the Almighty says:

فَٱعۡتَرَفُواْ بِذَنۢبِهِمۡ فَسُحۡقٗا لِّأَصۡحَٰبِ ٱلسَّعِيرِ ﴿١١﴾

And they will confess their sins. Away with the inhabitants of the blazing fire! [11]

The companions of the blazing fire confess to doing their sins and wrongdoings. As a matter of fact, confession is the strongest evidence. Allah the Almighty refers to their admission in other verses, saying: 'And their declaration when Our punishment came to them was only that they said, "Indeed, we were wrongdoers!"' (al-A'raf: 5); 'They said, "O woe to us! Indeed, we were wrongdoers."' (al-Anbiya': 14) They wronged themselves by disbelieving in Allah Glorified is He as He says in another verse: 'Lest a soul should say, "Oh [how great is] my regret over what I neglected in regard to Allah."' (az-Zumar: 56)

Allah the Almighty also tells us about another kind of people, saying: 'And [there are] others who have acknowledged their sins. They had mixed a righteous deed with another that was bad. Perhaps Allah will turn to them in forgiveness. Indeed, Allah is Forgiving and Merciful.' (at-Tawba: 102) This verse shows that those people confessed their sins and did not persist in hypocrisy and disbelief. On the contrary, the disbelievers and hypocrites only admit their sins when facing the punishment of hell. In the verse in question, they confessed to only one sin, namely, disbelief, as Allah the Almighty says, 'And they will confess their sin…' (al-Mulk: 11). About Allah's saying: '…others who have acknowledged their sins…' (at-Tawba: 102), it refers to multiple sins though those who committed them were believers. So, the word ‘sin’ comes in the plural form ‘sins’ because they are different from one another.

Confessing sins is of two types: penitence-based confession and brazenness-based confession. The example of the second type is to ask someone else, ‘Did you hit so-and-so?’ and that person says, ‘Yes, I did’, and brazenly adds, ‘I will also hit any person trying to defend him’. As for the first type, which is accepted by Allah the Almighty it denotes that a person admits a sin and asks for pardon. Accordingly, the verse reading: ‘…others who have acknowledged their sins…’ (at-Tawba: 102), refers to a confession based on penitence. This is also supported by Allah’s saying: ‘…they had mixed a righteous deed with another that was bad...’ (at-Tawba: 102). The ‘righteous deed’ denotes here their admission of their sin and recognising that their confession in the worldly life is less serious than their confession in the Hereafter. The bad deed here is desisting from jihad and spending money charitably. So, their confession is based on penitence.

One of the admissions of the disbelievers is stated in the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘If you asked them, “Who created the heavens and earth and subjected the sun and the moon?” they would surely say, “Allah.” Then how are they deluded?’ (al-’Ankabut: 61) The question of creation is so clear that none should deny it. So, the disbelievers answer here by saying: ‘…Allah…’ (al-’Ankabut: 61). This acknowledgement obliges the believers to thank Allah Glorified is He and say to themselves, ‘Thanks to Allah! The disbelievers have recognised this indubitable fact. Thanks to Allah Who made them tell the truth and thus He showed the argument that refuted their disbelief’. Therefore, Allah the Almighty says at the end of the verse: ‘…Then how are they deluded?’ (al-’Ankabut: 61) How do they turn their backs on Him Glorified is He and the truth after such an acknowledgement?

Allah the Almighty says, ‘And they will confess their sin…’ (al-Qalam: 11). Now, what is the point of this admission? How does it benefit the confessors, while they face the final Reckoning? Such an admission is similar to that of Pharaoh before he drowned: ‘…I believe that there is no deity except that in whom the Children of Israel believe…’ (Yunus: 90). So, Allah the Almighty replies to him: ‘Now?! And you had disobeyed [Him] before and were of the corrupters?’ (Yunus: 91)

Pharaoh disbelieved in Allah the Almighty and disobeyed His commands. How did he acknowledge Resurrection and final Judgment, while he only committed the acts of disbelief and disobedience? Moreover, he used to deny what Prophet Musa (Moses) peace be upon him conveyed to him.

Even if the human soul has its own desires, its sound state of mind makes it feel sorry when its owner commits a sin or an act of disobedience. Thus, we see a lot of people suffer from troubles because of their sins. They want to confess these sins before anyone. But those who receive confession are unable to eliminate the aftereffects of these sins as they have already happened. What does a person who admits his sin before someone else want? A person confesses to unbosom himself. Each activity a person does can have an effect. For example, when someone provokes your anger, you tend to retaliate. Thus, Islam orders one to shift his position when someone else infuriates him. So, regarding the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'And they will confess their sin…' (al-Mulk: 11), those disbelievers admitted their guilt the moment when they are at their wits' end. They will say, 'Unless Allah has mercy on us and forgives us, we will be destroyed'. This indicates their confession to their sin and turning to Allah Glorified is He for help.

Their sin is their denial of Allah's Existence, which is the gravest sin. To such people, it will be said, '…Away with the inhabitants of the blazing Fire.' (al-Mulk: 11) This means they are excluded from the Mercy of Allah the Almighty. Moreover, their final fate is loss and wretchedness. How miserable and destructible they are! They will lose His reward and be punished with the blazing fire that will burn their bodies. For them, the reward and Mercy of Allah are unattainable.

The Arabic word s*uhqan* (destruction) is in the accusative case as a verbal noun and it means that Allah Glorified is He inflicted upon them great destruction. Allah the Almighty also says, '…then away with the wrongdoing people.' (al-Mu'minun: 41) So, the wrongdoing people will not obtain the Mercy and Bliss of Allah the Almighty which they are promised in case they believe in Him. This does not mean that they are far above being punished. Distance can be in time or place. So, to say, 'this is remote or distant' means that it is far away in time or place. What is meant here is that they will not attain the bliss that awaits them in case they believe, and they are not far away from the punishment. Allah the Almighty also says, '…so away with a people who do not believe.' (an-Nur: 44) This verse means that the disbelievers are away from Allah's Mercy and Bliss which they would attain in case they believe. He who turns away from Allah Glorified is He He makes him more distant once and for all.

In the same vein, concerning the people of Hud, Allah the Almighty says, 'And they were [therefore] followed in this world with a curse and [as well] on the Day of Resurrection. Unquestionably, `Ad denied their Lord; then away with `Ad, the people of Hud.' (Hud: 60) The people of Hud deserved the destruction and punishment inflicted on them and none pitied them because of their grave sin. The phrase 'away with' does not denote an imprecation against the people of Hud because they had already been ruined. The root of the Arabic word bu`d (away with) is b-a-d (to be far away). It is used for separation that is either followed by a meeting or not. Thus, Allah the Almighty says, '…then, away with Midyan as Thamud was taken away.' (Hud: 95) Remoteness meant by this verse denotes separation that is not followed by a meeting except when Allah Glorified is He gathers all mankind on the Day of Judgment. A poet wrote:

They say while burying me, 'Do not go away';
But that is the only distant place I will settle at.

The grave is the faraway place a person goes to and never returns. In the same vein, Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him will say on the Day of Judgment to those who deviate from the Way of Allah and change the religious matters, 'Be off with you'. He said to his companions, 'I will reach the fountain ahead of you.' They said, 'O Messenger of Allah, how will you recognise those of your ummah who have not yet come?' He said, 'If a man has a horse with a blaze on its forehead and white feet, do you not think that he will recognise it among horses that are deep black in colour?' They said, 'Of course.' He said, 'On the Day of Resurrection, they will come with radiant faces, hands, and feet because of the traces of ablution.' He said, 'I will reach the fountain ahead of you.' Then he said, 'Men will be driven away from my fountain just as stray camels are driven away. And I will call to them, "Come here!" But it will be said, "They changed after you were gone, and they kept turning on their heels." So I will say, "Be off with you! Be off with you!"'(1) Some exegetes state that as-suhq is a valley in hell in which fire is kindled and its dwellers will be the companions of the blazing fire.

Afterwards, Allah the Almighty says:

إِنَّ ٱلَّذِينَ يَخۡشَوۡنَ رَبَّهُم بِٱلۡغَيۡبِ لَهُم مَّغۡفِرَةٞ وَأَجۡرٞ كَبِيرٞ ١٢ there is forgiveness and a great reward for those who fear their Lord though they cannot see Him [12]

(The Quran, al-Mulk: 12)

The true believer fears Allah the Almighty Alone because he knows for certain that Allah Glorified is He is the Omnipotent. So, when he embarks on something, he fears none except Him. Everyone must fear Him and put His Way of Guidance into practice.

The Arabic word khashya (fear) means to fear someone who is able to harm you. As no one but Allah the Almighty is fully Able to bring benefit or cause harm, a person should not fear someone like him. So, it is not true to think that a ruler or someone in power is able to harm you. Let everyone fear Allah Glorified is He Alone as He instructs us to dread Him.

Hence, as Allah is the One Who causes harm, He orders us to fear Him. Out of veneration and exaltation, the believers fear Him because He is their Lord and Creator. You may fear something, while you hate or despise it, whereas when you fear Him the Almighty you hold Him in awe and veneration.

An example of awe is to fear that your father or teacher should see you neglect your duties. As for dreading Allah the Almighty it means your fear that you may fall short of doing the obligations Allah the Almighty imposes on you. It is the pious people who fear their Lord even though they cannot see Him, a fact which is crystal clear in Allah's saying: 'We gave Musa (Moses) and Harun (Aaron) [the Scripture] that distinguishes right from wrong, a light and a reminder for those who are mindful of Allah, those who stand in awe of their Lord, though He is unseen, and who fear the Hour.' (al-Anbiya': 48-49)

(1) This Hadith is narrated on the authority of Abu Hurayra Allah be pleased with him. See Ibn Maja, Sunnan, Hadith no. 4306; see also Malik, Muwatta`, Hadith no. 72; and Ahmad, Musnad, Hadith no. 9292.

As for the saying of Allah the Almighty: '…though they cannot see Him…' (al-Mulk: 12), it means that the believers fear Him the Almighty though they do not see Him with their eyes, but rather through the signs of His Creation. Another possible interpretation is that they fear Him Glorified is He through the unseen things about which He informs them. Thus, these unseen matters became as clear to them as what they see with their eyes. Moreover, the verse could mean that the believers fear Him the Almighty when they are alone. They dread Him even when they are in solitude, unlike those who pretend to be Allah fearing only before others.

Those who stand in awe of their Lord though He is unseen also: '…fear the Hour.' (al-Anbiya': 49) The Arabic word al-ishfaq means 'fear,' which is accompanied by being cautious about what you fear. Hence, fearing Allah the Almighty is associated with awe and reverence while dreading the Hour is accompanied by being cautious about it, lest it should take place before one prepares oneself fully for it. Dread is a strong fear of something. The person can fear something, but he hopes for salvation and protection against it. That is to say that he hopes that there is a chance to avert what he fears. But your dread of Allah the Almighty leaves no room for hope. So, if you fear His punishment, you should not think that there is a chance to escape from it if you do what incurs it.

Fear is of two categories which are referred to in the saying of Allah the Almighty: '…and you feared the people, while Allah has more right that you fear Him…' (al-Ahzab: 37). The first category is your fear of something that may harm you, and the second one is the fear which is provoked by diffidence. The fear of Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him stated in Allah's saying: '…and you feared the people…' (al-Ahzab: 37) is provoked by diffidence. In this regard, Allah the Almighty says, '…surely this gives the Prophet trouble, but he forbears from you, and Allah does not forbear from the truth…' (al-Ahzab: 53). He peace and blessings be upon him was afraid that the disbelievers should spread rumours about him and say that he peace and blessings be upon him married the wife of his adopted son. But it slipped their minds that Allah the Almighty abolished adoption.

It is normal that he peace and blessings be upon him fears the slanders of the disbelievers because he came to change the bad traditions and customs of the pre-Islamic period. He peace and blessings be upon him was destined to bear the consequences of this transformation as it was carried out by him. He was shy about his marriage to Zaynab, the ex-wife of his adopted son, and the gossip of the people and thus wanted to clear himself of anything dishonourable. He always disproved any doubts about him.

Once, some of his companions saw him meeting a woman. They walked quickly so that they would not embarrass him. He called them and said, 'Wait! This is my wife Safiyya.' They said, 'We never have any misgivings about you, O Messenger of Allah.' He said, 'Satan's evil suggestions run through the mind of the son of Adam as blood runs [through his body].'(1) He peace and blessings be upon him wanted to eliminate any suspects concerning him so that no one would assume that he concealed something wrong about himself. Thus, his fear was not about anything that might harm him; rather, it was based on his diffidence as he desired to refute any suspicions about him.

The prophets never feared to convey anything from Allah the Almighty. So, Allah the Almighty tells us that Messenger Muhammad's fear was not due to conveying the Message; rather, it was due to his diffidence about the rumours that might circulate concerning him. In fact, he knows for sure that they cannot harm him in anyway. Thus, Allah the Almighty describes all His prophets, saying: '[Allah praises] those who convey the messages of Allah and fear Him and do not fear anyone but Allah. And sufficient is Allah as Accountant.' (al-Ahzab: 39)

(1) It was narrated that Safiyya Bint Huyayy, the wife of Prophet Muhammad, went to him while he was staying in the mosque during the last ten nights of the month of Ramadan. She spoke to him for a while at night and then she got up to return home. Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him got up to accompany her and when they reached the gate of the mosque opposite the dwelling place of Um Salama, the wife of Prophet Muhammad, two Ansari men passed by and greeted Messenger Muhammad, then they quickly went ahead. He peace and blessings be upon him said to them, 'Do not be in a hurry. She is Safiyya, the daughter of Huyayy.' They said, 'Exalted is Allah! O Allah's Messenger (how dare we suspect you).' That was a great thing for both them. He peace and blessings be upon him then said, 'Satan runs in the body of the sons of Adam as his blood circulates in it, and I was afraid that he (Satan) might insert an evil thought in your hearts.' See Ahmad, Musnad, Hadith no. 26863; see also Ibn Maja, Sunnan, Hadith no. 1779.

The believers dread their Lord though He is unseen. The unseen is what cannot be perceived by the means of perception. None differs over the concrete things we notice with our senses. So, it is said, ‘There is no evidence besides the eyes’. As for the unseen, it is not perceived with the senses. They, the believers, fear Allah, their Lord and Creator, as a token of veneration and exaltation for Him. The wise believers also fear the evil Reckoning in the Hereafter, and thus they strain every nerve to follow Allah’s Commands and shun all what provokes His Anger.

So, Allah the Almighty says here: ‘But there is forgiveness and a great reward for those who fear their Lord though they cannot see Him.’ (al-Mulk: 12) Fearing Him the Almighty leads a servant to join those who are referred to in Allah’s saying: ‘Indeed, the Muslim men and Muslim women, the believing men and believing women, the obedient men and obedient women, the truthful men and truthful women, the patient men and patient women, the humble men and humble women, the charitable men and charitable women, the fasting men and fasting women, the men who guard their private parts and the women who do so, and the men who remember Allah often and the women who do so - for them Allah has prepared forgiveness and a great reward.’ (al-Ahzab: 35)

But for one’s fear of Allah the Almighty and recalling His punishment and reward, he would not be a devout, truthful, patient, humble, benevolent, fasting, and chaste Muslim. For such a Muslim, ‘Allah has prepared forgiveness and a great reward.’ (al-Ahzab: 35) After all these characteristics of the Muslim, he needs forgiveness. Thus, Allah the Almighty purges the believer of sins before he receives his final reward.

This final reward is abundant and great. Any reward a person gets in this worldly life for an achievement lasts for a specified time and comes to an end. By contrast, the reward of the Hereafter lasts forever, and a believer will not miss it. Thus, it is described as ‘great’. Anything is given or done for the sake of Allah the Almighty never gets lost, as He says, ‘…and whatever good you send before for yourselves, you shall find it with Allah; surely Allah sees what you do...’ (al-Baqara: 110).

Every believer should feel reassured that he will be rewarded for each good deed he does. When he performs Prayer, pays zakat, gives alms, fasts, or performs Pilgrimage, he obtains a reward for all this. The reward a believer gets is not according to the actual amount or value of the good deed; rather, it is doubled too many times. It also depends on the Power of Allah the Almighty not the human abilities. Furthermore, this reward is not transient; on the contrary, it is eternal.

You do not keep the reward for the righteous deeds with yourself or with someone else who may deny it one day. It is Allah the Almighty Who saves it for you. So, you should be confident that Allah the Almighty will multiply your reward for you many times so that you will find it when you are in a dire need for it, that is, on the Day of Judgment.

Afterwards, Allah the Almighty says:

وَأَسِرُّوا۟ قَوْلَكُمْ أَوِ ٱجْهَرُوا۟ بِهِۦٓ ۖ إِنَّهُۥ عَلِيمٌۢ بِذَاتِ ٱلصُّدُورِ ﴿١٣﴾

Whether you keep your words secret or state them openly, He knows the contents of every heart [13] (The Quran, al-Mulk: 13)

How do you call your Lord who is closer to you than your jugular vein?! How do you call Him while He hears you before you speak a word?! If Allah the Almighty is Ever-Watchful over you, what is the purpose of calling Him? Your calling of others differs from invoking Allah Glorified is He. You need to raise your voice to make others hear you, but when you call Him the Almighty you supplicate to the One Who knows the public and private matters alike. One of the approved of practices of supplication is to invoke Him as He instructs us, saying: ‘Call upon your Lord in humility and privately...’ (al-A‘raf: 55). He the Almighty: ‘…knows the secret and what is [even] more hidden.’ (Ta Ha: 7) So, Allah Glorified is He knows what is more hidden than secrets because He knows the secret before it becomes so.

Allah the Almighty teaches us that the best supplication is that which is private and covert. Perhaps a person invokes Him the Almighty aloud and someone else hears the supplication and thus disparages him, as the person may confess his sins in his supplication. Thus, the supplication should be private so that one’s personal affairs will not be known by others. After all, Allah the Almighty likes concealing people’s faults even if they are sinners.

Sometimes a pious person invokes Allah the Almighty and pleads Him for something private. The supplication of Prophet Zakaryya (Zechariah) peace be upon him is a case in point. Allah the Almighty says, ‘This is a mention of the Mercy of your Lord to His servant Zakaryya (Zechariah). When he addressed his Lord with private supplication, He said, “My Lord, indeed my bones have weakened, and my head has filled with white, and never have I been in my supplication to You, my Lord, unhappy. And indeed, I fear the successors after me, and my wife has been barren, so give me from Yourself an heir Who will inherit me and inherit from the family of Ya`qub (Jacob). And make him, my Lord, pleasing [to You].”’ (Maryam: 1-6)

Prophet Zakaryya (Zechariah) peace be upon him invoked Allah the Almighty in private because he asked Him Glorified is He to bestow a child on him despite the presence of his paternal cousins who would be in charge of his righteous path after his demise. But he had no confidence in them because their lifestyles were inconsistent with his approach. So, how could he peace be upon him entrust them with the Path of Allah the Almighty, while they could not be entrusted with themselves? If he peace be upon him had invoked Allah the Almighty in public to grant him a male child to inherit prophethood from him, his relatives would have showed enmity towards him. Therefore, he invoked Him Glorified is He in private.

Allah the Almighty says: ‘And if you speak aloud - then indeed, He knows the secret and what is [even] more hidden.’ (Ta Ha: 7) As Allah the Almighty knows what is overt and secret, He is also fully Aware of what is more hidden. To say something aloud means to let others hear you, while what the secret means what is known about by a limited number of people and kept hidden from others.

So, whether you speak publicly or privately, ‘…He knows the contents of every heart. (al-Mulk: 13) This verse means that Allah the Almighty knows your innermost thoughts and feelings before you express them. Moreover, He says, ‘And We have already created man and know what his soul whispers to him...’ (Qaf: 16). Misgivings and innermost thoughts are more hidden than secrets. Therefore, we have what is public, what is secret, and what is more hidden than secrets. In the same vein, He the Almighty says, 'And your Lord knows what their breasts conceal and what they declare.' (al-Qasas: 69) 'Indeed, He knows what is declared of speech, and He knows what you conceal.' (al-Anbiya': 110)

As for Allah's saying: '…knows the contents of every heart' (al-Mulk: 13), it means what stays at and accompanies the breasts. One keeps his inner thoughts hidden from others within his breast as he keeps the secrets of his friend. The same phrase also denotes the inner feelings that always exist in hearts such as hatred, spite or the senses that do not appear through ordinary actions such as good or bad intentions.

Afterwards, Allah the Almighty says:

أَلَا يَعْلَمُ مَنْ خَلَقَ وَهُوَ ٱللَّطِيفُ ٱلْخَبِيرُ ﴿١٤﴾

How could He who created not know His own creation, when He is the Most Subtle, the All Aware? [14] (The Quran, al-Mulk: 14)

Allah's Way of Guidance is the most optimal and appropriate way as it comes from the Creator Who knows best about His creations. For example, a human maker is supposed to know best about the object he makes and gives a set of instructions for its operation and maintenance. This, in turn, guarantees good performance and safe use. If you use your machine according to the rules and instructions of its maker, it will carry out its functions accurately and efficiently and be devoid of any failures or breakdowns. Similarly, the One Who created the human beings is more acquainted with the do's and do not's of reforming them. The big problem with the people, who are created by Allah the Almighty is that they renounce His Laws and derive their laws from other humans. This is even though these man-made laws are defective and can never be on an equal footing with those of Allah the Almighty. His Laws are superior to any man-made ones.

So, life cannot be sound and optimal without Allah's Way of Guidance. Whoever adopts this Divine Way will enjoy optimal life and the well-being of belief. This in itself is a great bestowal that one obtains in this worldly life. On the other hand, Allah the Almighty informs us of what is better than this worldly bestowal, that is, the bliss of the Hereafter. So, Allah the Almighty grants us the bliss of this worldly life and that of the Hereafter together.

In fact, you enjoy blissful life in case you follow Allah's moderate and precise approach. It ensures righteousness, peace, and secure coexistence with others. This is corroborated by the following Quranic verses: 'And when guidance comes to you from Me, whoever follows My guidance – there will be no fear concerning them, nor will they grieve.' (al-Baqara: 38); '…then whoever follows My Guidance will neither go astray [in the world] nor suffer [in the Hereafter].' (Ta Ha: 123); Whoever does good whether male or female and he is a believer, We will most certainly make him live a happy life, and We will most certainly give them their reward for the best of what they did.' (an-Nahl: 97)

Allah the Almighty is fully Aware of everything about mankind and does not involve them in a labyrinth. He says to us: 'How could He who created not know His own creation, when He is the Most Subtle, the All Aware?' (al-Mulk: 14) Let us give an example to clarify this point; a chair maker knows well that the chair is made of wood, be it beech, oak or mahogany and that the nail that joins parts together is made out of steel or another metal. Also, the chair maker knows which kind of glue is used to stick the parts of the chair and the paint materials with which the chair is painted.

So, the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'How could He who created not know His own creation, when He is the Most Subtle, the All Aware?' (al-Mulk: 14), is indisputable. Let us offer another example; the carpenter who wants to display his product would tell a customer, 'I will make a chair for you out of beech and you should pass by me every day to see the stages of making the chair'. Then the chair maker begins to make the chair under the supervision of the customer. Likewise, a nomadic Bedouin knows how to make a saddle or a tent.

Allah the Almighty states what refutes any arguments and polemics based on premises and conclusions in His decisive saying: 'How could He who created not know His own creation, when He is the Most Subtle, the All Aware?' (al-Mulk: 14) Allah the Almighty is the Omniscient Whose Knowledge encompasses everything, and it is He Who created all the human beings and thus He knows best about the laws most suitable for them.

According to our human traditions, the person who makes an object lays down the code of its maintenance so that it functions properly. Likewise, Allah the Almighty Who created humankind laid down the code of their maintenance through do's and do not's. That is why He says, 'How could He who created not know His own creation, when He is the Most Subtle, the All Aware?' (al-Mulk: 14) For example, one takes his watch and goes to the watchmaker who examines the watch, identifies its problem, and repairs it. This is what we do to repair a watch, so what about the human being? It is Allah the Almighty Who lays down the Laws that reform our lives because He is our Creator; thereby, He is fully Aware of what is good and what is bad for us.

The prevailing corruption in our worldly life is ascribable to the fact that people who are firmly convinced that Allah Glorified is He created them lay down laws far from His Way of Guidance. We say to them, 'Let the Creator of mankind lay down for you the code of your maintenance through do's and do not's. If the humans want to make laws, they should do that in the light of the Divine Way of Guidance. In this way, if a failure or problem arises, a person should remit it to the code of the maintenance of the Supreme Creator, namely; the Quran'.

Troubles result from the fact that the human being sometimes ignores that he is a creature of Allah's and thus tries to make laws far removed from His Laws. Thus, what eliminates the sufferings of humanity is to return to the code of its maintenance which the Supreme Creator laid down.

In our daily life, we find that a person makes a device, machine or tool and other people make use of it. Such a person clarifies the specifications of using the device or the machine even if it is a thresher or plough. By following these instructions, the device or the machine will work properly and smoothly.

In the same connection, if a person's car breaks down, he calls a mechanic to examine and mend it. If the mechanic is honest, he will diagnose the problem with the car correctly and repairs it. If he is dishonest, he will damage the parts that work well and increase maintenance works which the car does not need.

Thus, we see that every maker knows well about his product. So, what do we think of the Great Creator Glorified is He Who is fully Acquainted with everything? Knowledge is required because a maker who produces something must be aware of what is good and bad for it. This also necessitates the ability of comprehension, for knowledge alone is insufficient.

Every maker is aware of his own product and he alone lays down the code of its maintenance. As regards Allah’s Way of Guidance, which is composed of do’s and do not’s, it allows of neither addition nor modification. You must adopt it as it is. If the human beings go beyond the framework which He the Almighty provides for them, they will cause a great deal of corruption and disorder in the universe through disobeying the commands and committing the prohibitions. As every maker knows well about the minute details of his product and what causes its ruin, Allah the Almighty is fully Aware of what is good and bad for the human beings and He laid down His Laws accordingly.

The maker of a product provides a manual along with it to show how to maintain it. The first failure in the universe is done at the hands of the people who desire to lay down a code of maintenance by themselves. This is wrong because the one who makes laws for others must meet certain conditions. The most important condition is that the lawmaker must have extensive knowledge that allows of no further amendments. As for the humans, their knowledge is limited and often proves unsuitable, wrong, and rectifiable. Only the Laws of Allah the Almighty cannot be amended or corrected because of His Omniscience. Moreover, all the humans are equal before Him and He does not favour a group of them over others. He has no wife or children. That is why Allah the Almighty reassures us, saying: ‘And that He— Exalted be the Majesty of our Lord— has not taken a consort, nor a son.’ (al-Jinn: 3) It seems as if Allah Glorified is He is saying to us: ‘Be reassured that your Lord has neither a wife who can influence Him nor a child to favour him’. After all, the wife and children can be a weakness point and lead to deviations regarding legislation.

Allah the Almighty does not get benefit from what He legislates for us as He created us with His Power and He does not derive benefit from people’s obedience, nor is He harmed by our disobedience. Consequently, it is Allah the Almighty Alone Who fulfils the conditions of lawgiving and is entitled to it.

Allah the Almighty Alone has the right to lawgiving as He is the Omniscient, the Fully Aware Who knows best about everything, be it visible or invisible.

All knowledge comes from Him and it makes Him create everything wisely. Allah the Almighty also knows about the mysteries and subtleties of humankind since His Knowledge is intrinsic.

If the humans derive their laws from Allah's Knowledge, the whole world will be in harmony. Allah Glorified is He is Fully Aware of the mysteries of His servants and their natural characteristics. He knows from eternity about all human actions and mysteries and what is beneficial for mankind at all times and in all places.

In another verse, Allah the Almighty says, 'Allah is He Who created you from a state of weakness then He gave strength after weakness, then ordained weakness and hoary hair after strength; He creates what He pleases, and He is the Knowing, the Powerful.' (ar-Rum: 54) As for Allah's saying here: '…and He is the Knowing, the Powerful.' (ar-Rum: 54), it means that creation is based on Knowledge, but Knowledge alone is not enough. You may have knowledge, but you are unable to put it into practice. For example, an electrical engineer can have a lot of information about his field but he may be unable to install an electric grid or an electric plant. So he asks a financer to help him install the grid or the electric plant. About Allah, He describes Himself as the All Knowing and the All Powerful as in the two verses reading: 'Allah's is the kingdom of the heavens and the earth; He creates what He pleases; He grants to whom He pleases daughters and grants to whom He pleases sons. Or He makes them of both sorts, male and female; and He makes whom He pleases barren; surely, He is the Knowing, the Powerful.' (ash-Shura: 49-50)

Allah the Almighty is All Knowledgeable about the laws He made for the human beings and is Fully Able to enforce these laws. Allah Glorified is He is the Subtle as He says, 'Vision comprehends Him not, and He Comprehends (all) vision; and He is the Knower of subtleties, the Aware.' (al-An'am: 103) As believers, we believe that Allah the Almighty can never be seen with eyes, yet He knows about everything hidden from you.

There are certain things in the universe which we do not perceive. However, Allah the Almighty created them for our benefit. Even when you manage to discover them, they continue to be at your service. If Allah the Almighty tells you about something unseen by you, you should not say, 'As such a thing is unperceivable, it does not exist'. Let us offer an example to illustrate this point; you cannot see electricity or gravity. Further, none knows the place of the spirit which is the ever-unsolved mystery of life and if it exits from your body, you become dead. No one sees, hears, smells, tastes, or touches this spirit. It is present in your entire body but you do not notice it. Thus, if you are unable to see one of the creatures of Allah the Almighty then how is it possible for you to see the Creator? If you should see Him, He would not be a God because in this case He becomes the object of your senses.

The Arabic word latif (Subtle) has many connotations. It may refer to something minute. For example, we have discovered microbes only recently because they are too tiny to be seen with the naked eye. When the microscope was invented, we became able to see these microbes. The more minute something is, the more difficult it is to be seen. Also, the subtler a thing is, the nobler it becomes. So, we can say, 'Allah is Subtle and Kind towards His servants'.

So, the Arabic word latif (kind) is an active participle like akil (eater). When this adjective is used regarding Allah the Almighty it denotes an intensiveness form as Allah the Almighty is All Kind towards all the humans and all the creatures. Also, the Divine Attribute 'Most Merciful' expresses intensiveness because His Mercy encompasses all His servants.

The first form of the Subtlety and Grace of Allah the Almighty is clear in managing people's delicate matters in a way that serves their interests in this worldly life. If we, for example, want to bring a glass of water for every person, we will need to exert a lot of effort. What do we think about Allah's management of all His servants needs?

Allah the Almighty created the earth and made three quarters of its area consist of bodies of water while the remaining quarter is land. He willed to increase the area of water so that evaporation would be easier and more. If water was deep and its area was small, evaporation would be at a superficial level only. Thereupon, clouds will not bring the rainwater sufficient for all creatures. So, Allah the Almighty increased the area of the bodies of water so that water would evaporate and form clouds in the sky and then rain would fall as fresh water over a cold area in order that its dwellers drink, water their cattle, and irrigate their crops thereof.

There are other indescribable forms of the Subtlety of Allah. So, each scholar looks at one of the aspects of Allah's Kindness and Mercy towards His creatures. These aspects are as follows: plentiful and wide-ranging bestowals; precise management; conferring numberless blessings upon all creatures as Allah's Favours are numerous and never run out or decrease.

So, the manifestations of Allah's Subtlety and Kindness are innumerable. He is the All Subtle Who answers your invocations when you supplicate Him, Who gives you protection when you seek refuge with Him, Who favours you when you love Him, Who rewards you generously when you obey Him, Who grants you well-being and care when you give charity and interest-free loans and Who calls you when you turn away from Him.

A scholar impressed by Allah's Subtlety and Kindness said, 'The Subtle One is the One Who rewards you when you fulfil your obligations and pardons you when you are negligent.' Another scholar added to the meaning of Subtlety and Kindness by saying, 'He who takes pride in Him will be honoured; he who shows his need for Him will be self-sufficient.' A third scholar referred yet to an additional form of Subtlety, saying, 'Allah's Bestowals are forms of goodness and His withholding of Favours are kept in reserve for the person in the Hereafter.' All of these are forms of His Subtlety and Kindness.

Allah Glorified is He describes Himself as: '…the Most Subtle, the All Aware.' (al-Mulk: 14) He is the Most Subtle as He knows what permeates things, the All-Aware of everything and the All Powerful over everything. Allah the Almighty also says: '…my Lord is Most Subtle in achieving what He wills; He is the All Knowing, the Truly Wise.' (Yusuf: 100) Allah the Almighty is the Manager from Whom nothing is hidden.

The Arabic word lutf (fineness) is the opposite of kathafa (density). As for the adjective latif, it refers to the tiny objects. The tinier an object is, the more intense it is since there are no obstacles in its way.

Nothing hampers Allah the Almighty Who knows best about the whereabouts of all things. So He combines Subtlety and Acquaintance. Being Subtle, Allah the Almighty is never hindered by anything. Nothing can be hidden from Him or stand against His Will.

In fact, Allah’s Knowledge is absolute, and He is All Wise as He manages all the affairs for subtle purposes. None can add to or decrease anything from His Knowledge or Wisdom and He is the Possessor of Unlimited Perfection. Further, He is the All-Aware Whose Knowledge encompasses everything.

An expert differs from a scholar; the latter knows general matters, while the former is a trained specialist. So, the two Attributes ‘the Most Subtle and the All-Aware’ are often used together since ‘the All-Aware’ denotes knowledge about the positions of things whereas ‘the Most Subtle’ means knowing how to reach these positions. For example, you can know that a person hides in a mountain. But mere knowledge is not enough to reach the whereabouts of the hiding person. What is needed in this situation are subtlety and accuracy. So, we depend upon an expert who knows about mysterious matters, particularly the important, mundane ones. About a normal specialist, he is unable to know such mysterious matters. An expert has a lot of accurate information. Thus, it is said, ‘Ask the one who is well-versed’. So, the expert is a person who is well-informed about things.(1)

Subtlety and meticulousness mean to handle matters and come to good results even if your means are limited. As we said earlier, the tinier the harmful objects are the stronger and more effective they are. For example, the metal bars you fix into your windows to protect yourself against wolves are different from those you fix to protect yourself against snakes, mosquitoes, flies and so on. We also note that the most deadly diseases result from microscopic viruses.

The proper handling of matters means to attain your goals regardless of their complexity. For example, you may need to insert your hand into a narrow object to take out something inside it. If you fail, you can ask a little boy whose hand is smaller than yours are to help you take out the thing you want. If this fails, you can use a gadget for this purpose.

To sum up, the attribute ‘subtle’ is complemented by the attribute ‘aware’. The former means being meticulous and precise about dealing with matters and the latter denotes being well informed about a situation. Having subtle knowledge is only achieved by having a practical experience.

(1) Allah the Almighty says, ‘…so ask about Him one well informed.’ (al-Furqan: 59) To say, ‘So-and-so is well-versed in such a matter’ means that he is well-more informed about this matter than someone else.

Afterwards, Allah the Almighty says:

هُوَ ٱلَّذِى جَعَلَ لَكُمُ ٱلْأَرْضَ ذَلُولًا فَٱمْشُوا۟ فِى مَنَاكِبِهَا
وَكُلُوا۟ مِن رِّزْقِهِۦ ۖ وَإِلَيْهِ ٱلنُّشُورُ ﴿١٥﴾

It is He who has made the earth manageable for you — travel its regions; eat His provision – and to Him you will be resurrected [15] (The Quran, al-Mulk: 15)

In this verse, Allah the Almighty draws our attention to the creation of the earth on which human beings live. None claimed to have created or originated the earth. In the same regard, we should note that there is a difference between 'creation' and 'making'. With respect to Allah Glorified is He creating is to bring something out of nothing while 'making' means to direct a creature towards its function in life. None of Allah's creatures have the power to create anything, for creation and making are exclusive to Him the Almighty. As human beings, we must single out everything for its predetermined function in life that Allah the Almighty willed for it. To put it differently, we are bound to leave determination and direction to Him the Almighty Alone. For example, Allah Glorified is He created pigs to eat garbage. By prohibiting people from eating pork, Allah the Almighty protects them from many illnesses and harms. The human being is obliged to designate pigs for this function, not to consume their meat. This is because changing the primary function of any of Allah's creatures harms the human being who, in turn, is created to be a vicegerent on the earth.

It is Allah, the Creator, Who 'creates' and 'determines'. An example of this is Allah's saying: 'It is He who made the sun a shining light and the moon a derived light.' (Yunus: 5) In this verse, Allah the Almighty does not only remind us that He created the sun and the moon, but He also refers to the original functions of both celestial bodies.

As a matter of fact, corruption arises in the universe when we change the primary function of something which Allah Glorified is He created for us. We should take it for granted that everything is created for a special function. So, we are not allowed to direct a thing to a function different from its original one. If we do so, this has serious consequences.

Allah the Almighty created the earth and determined its definite functions; Allah the Almighty says, '[He] who made the earth a resting place…' (al-Baqara: 22). 'Resting place' suggests that Allah the Almighty prepared the earth in a comfortable way for mankind. This looks like a mat you spread out on the ground to sit or lie on so that you have comfort.

The earth, which we inherit, generation after another, is suitable for our life. From the moment the earth was created till the Day of Resurrection, it will remain as a prepared land for the human being. Even after the world became more civilised and prosperous, the earth remains as a resting place despite the other physical comforts that man may experience in his life.

Thus, Allah the Almighty prepared the earth for us in a way that suited every generation. Allah Glorified is He endowed each generation with a life of ease. By virtue of the modern civilisation and the advancement of science, Allah the Almighty makes the earth more subservient to the human being.

Allah the Almighty says in another verse: '[The one] who has made for you the earth a bed.' (az-Zukhruf: 10) The Arabic word al-mahd (a bed) means 'a cradle' which is used as a small bed for babies. It should be comfortable because if it is not restful, the baby is not able to make it restful itself. Thus, a mother prepares her baby's cradle well so that it can sleep peacefully. So, the Arabic word al-mahd is derived from arranging and preparing an object to be fit for its function as when you tidy your bed before sleeping. The small bed of a baby is called a cradle because you prepare it and remove any inconveniences for the sake of the baby's comfort.

So, the saying of Allah the Almighty: '[It is He] who has made for you the earth as a bed [spread out]' (Ta Ha: 53) means that Allah Glorified is He prepared the earth and made it suitable for your life and livelihoods. It does not mean that Allah Glorified is He levelled and paved the earth. It denotes that He adapted it to its function since it contains mountains and valleys without which we cannot live. Preparing the earth entails making it fit for the function of living on it despite its straight, sinuous, high, or low parts.

Allah the Almighty says, ‘And whoever does righteousness - they are for themselves preparing.’ (ar-Rum: 44) This verse shows that the person who does good deeds in this worldly life prepares a palace for himself in the Hereafter. In this connection, Abu Mansur ibn Hazim narrated that 'Abu 'Abdullah Al-Husayn said, ‘Good deeds precede their doer to the paradise to prepare a bed for him as a servant tidies a bed for any of you’.

Allah the Almighty made the earth manageable and subservient, and thus the human being can travel through it and benefit from what it yields. It is serviceable and tractable. These attributes are mentioned in the story of the Cow which Allah the Almighty ordered the Jews to slaughter. In this regard, Allah the Almighty says, ‘It is a perfect and unblemished cow, not trained to till the earth or water the fields. They said, “Now you have brought the truth”, and so they slaughtered it, though they almost failed to do so.’ (al-Baqara: 71) The Cow was not trained to carry out farming works. A tractable cow is the domesticated one which works smoothly and easily. Also, trained horses do not put those who ride them to hardship. The first characteristic of the cow of the children of Israel was that it was undomesticated. It used to graze freely and was intractable. It was not used for ploughing soil or irrigating it. Allah the Almighty made cattle serviceable and tractable for us, a fact which is crystal clear in Allah’s saying: ‘Do they not see that We have created cattle for them, out of what Our hands have wrought, so they are their masters? And We have subjected them to them, so some of them they have to ride upon, and some of them they eat.’ (Ya Sin: 71-72)

The believers should consider that Allah the Almighty made camels manageable by their owners and enabled even a little child to order a camel to kneel to put heavy loads on it and rise up. But if a person sees a snake or serpent, he cannot make it tractable. Here, Allah Glorified is He draws our attention to His Absolute Power: He made huge animals like the camel manageable for the humans and made them frightened of snakes.

There are other types of tractable animals. For example, the donkeys that farmers use for carrying manure do not object to this task. In another case, the farmer can work as a chief of the guards and orders that his donkey should be washed and a saddle be put on its back for him to ride it when he meets the police commissioner. The donkey does not disobey in both cases as it is tractable.

The human being should beware of thinking that his skills alone make animals tractable. If he relies on his skills alone, he cannot control the small flea which attacks him at any time. A flea may also disturb you all night and force an entire family to stay up late.

It is Allah the Almighty Who renders some animals manageable for the human being. If it was not for Him the Almighty the human being could never make them tractable. By virtue of His Wisdom and Mercy, He made all things we need to live with serviceable for us. For example, a little boy can drive a huge camel, make it kneel down or carry heavy loads because Allah the Almighty made it serviceable. However, if the camel angers, none can control it. Thus, it is not controlled by one's power; rather, Allah Glorified is He made it subservient to the human being.

Let us offer another example; a snake, despite its small size, is dangerous and everyone fears to get near it because Allah Glorified is He did not make it tractable for us. There is a rationale behind this. It is as if Allah the Almighty is telling us, 'Anything I make serviceable for you, even if it is a camel or elephant, you can use it, and if I do not make it tractable for you, you will be unable to render it so even if it is small'. Hence the matter does not depend on your abilities or skills. That is why you must use the creatures which are subservient to us according to the function for which Allah the Almighty created them. In this connection, Allah Glorified is He says, 'And We have tamed them for them...' (an-Nahl: 69). Thus, Allah the Almighty subjected these animals to us and they are not controlled by the human abilities.

In the same vein, Allah the Almighty commands the bees, saying, '…and follows the ways of your Lord laid down [for you]…' (an-Nahl: 69). This verse means that the bees are commanded to follow the ways which Allah Glorified is He facilitated for them and to move freely from a flower to another. So, we cannot build houses for bees to live therein since they have to move from a garden to another. As for Allah's saying: '…laid down [for you]…' (an-Nahl: 69), it means that the ways are facilitated and arranged for the bees; they follow these facilitated ways smoothly and fly from a flower to another. Have we ever heard that a tree repelled a bee?! This does not take place because Allah the Almighty facilitated the life of bees.

Therefore, the universe is serviceable for the human being. This means that there are some manageable phenomena in the universe. At the same time, there are other universal phenomena uncontrollable by mankind such as floods, volcanoes and other natural disasters. These unmanageable phenomena in the universe draw our attention to the fact that everything in it is serviceable by Allah's Command and Power, not by our control. If the creatures serve you through your own power, can you control them when they get intractable? Everything in the universe is subject to His Omnipotence and so are the causes and effects. The existence of flooding, storms, earthquakes and volcanoes proves that the human being is incapable of controlling the universe he lives in. Interestingly, some animals feel earthquakes before they happen and run away from the locations of these earthquakes. One the other hand, despite the human being's mental capabilities; he cannot comprehend what will occur.

Allah the Almighty made the earth easy to plough, grow crops and walk through, a fact which is crystal clear in Allah's saying: '…disperse within the land and seek from the bounty of Allah...' (al-Jumu'a: 10). In the verse under discussion, Allah Glorified is He also orders us to travel through the earth, saying: '…travel its regions…' (al-Mulk: 15).

Allah Glorified is He mentions those who travel throughout the land to earn their livings side by side with those who fight in His cause, saying: 'Indeed, your Lord knows, [O Muhammad], that you stand [in prayer] almost two thirds of the night or half of it or a third of it, and [so do] a group of those with you. And Allah determines [the extent of] the night and the day. He has known that you [Muslims] will not be able to do it and has turned to you in forgiveness, so recite what is easy [for you] of the Quran. He has known that there will be among you those who are ill and others traveling throughout the land seeking [something] of the bounty of Allah and others fighting for the cause of Allah. So, recite what is easy from it…' (al-Muzzammil: 20).

The code of reformation which Allah Glorified is He lays down for humans' life is based on two foundations: travelling through the earth to satisfy the necessities of life and fighting in the Way of Allah to protect the Islamic Call and the Divine Way of Guidance. These two foundations protect both the material and spiritual aspects. If the ummah neglects either of these foundations, it becomes a coveted object for its enemies. That is why we note that underdeveloped countries live on the financial aids of the rich ones. This is attributable to the fact that the underdeveloped countries neglect Allah's favours and desist from construction(1) and reclamation.

The human being should make the best use of the earth as it is serviceable for him. He should seek his provision by traveling through the earth and planting it. Travelling through the land can be for the purpose of meditating on the realms of the heavens and the earth and concluding the proofs that strengthen and consolidate one's belief in Allah the Almighty. Besides, one can go throughout the land to earn his provision.

In the verse in question, Allah the Almighty attributes the provision to Himself, saying: '…eat of His provision…' (al-Mulk: 15). In other verses, He ascribes it to the human being, saying: 'And as for man, when his Lord tries him and [thus] is generous to him and favours him, he says, "My Lord has honoured me." But when He tries him and restricts his provision, he says, "My Lord has humiliated me." (al-Fajr: 15-16) Allah the Almighty reassures everyone that his sustenance inevitably reaches him, even from an unexpected source. As for seeking hard to earn your living, it is something different, for you may work to provide for someone else, not yourself. For example, you can grow wheat and leave the crop to travel abroad. So, others consume your wheat crop, while you eat out of someone else's crop.

The Provision of Allah the Almighty is everything He confers upon you. You can get it by multiple means and from different sources. That is why Allah Glorified is He says, 'Allah extends provision for whom He wills and restricts [it]. And they rejoice in the worldly life, while the worldly life is not, compared to the Hereafter, except [brief] enjoyment.' (ar-Ra'd: 26)

People look at sustenance from just one angle. They think that it is only money and thus divide people into rich and poor. However, sustenance is not confined to money. It is anything beneficial for a person, be it reasoning, physical strength, or any other useful thing. Thus, we should not look at sustenance from one angle; rather, we should bear in mind the various faculties and talents that Allah Glorified is He endows others with like good health, strength, intelligence, forbearance and bravery. People vary in these forms of Divine Bestowals.

(1) Ibn `Arabi said, 'Some Shafi' jurists state that al-ist`amar means construction.' As for the saying of Allah the Almighty: '…and settled you in it…' (Hud: 61), it means that He created you to construct the earth. In his Tafsir, Sheikh Rashid Rida writes: 'Allah created you to populate the earth as they [the people of Thamud] were farmers, artisans and builders.' The word 'ist`amar' (colonialism) has been used in the sense of seizing and subjugating poor countries by powerful states. See Rashid Rida*,* Tafsir Al-Manar, 12/101.

Allah Glorified is He is the Highest Provider of Sustenance and from His favours all the creatures benefit. His Provision is based on Wisdom and Predestination; granting abundant provision is not a token of tribute, nor is giving little provision a sign of offense. This is proven by the fact that He the Almighty gave Qarun great wealth and then inflicted an exemplary punishment upon him.

In this vein, Allah Glorified is He says, ‘O My servants who have believed, indeed My earth is spacious, so worship only Me.’ (al-’Ankabut: 56) This verse means that if you fail to make a decent living somewhere, try to make it somewhere else, for the whole earth belongs to Him Glorified is He. Once people divided it and demarcated borders that hindered movement, a lot of problems arose and humans found it difficult to travel for reflection or finding work to earn good livings.

The Sudan, for example, owns vast areas of fertile land which can be sufficient for the whole Arab world if they are grown. Are we able to go there to grow this fertile land? If we went there, others would claim, ‘They come to occupy our land’. So, when I had an opportunity to speak at the UN Organization, I said, ‘The current problems of the world cannot be solved. Allah made us vicegerents on the earth to settle and construct it, a matter which requires us to move throughout the land. As Allah wills us to move about and construct the earth, there must be some activities and procedures to organise travelling and regulate some diverse arts which are necessary for constructing the earth like architecture. Allah distributes the energies of these arts in the form of talents and natural abilities.’

Every action that leads to the construction of the universe and extracting the mysteries of existence is regarded as an act of worship. This is because when we get out the treasures which Allah the Almighty placed into the earth, the people turn their attention to the truth of belief. In this regard, Allah Glorified is He says, ‘And the earth He laid [out] for the creatures.’ (ar-Rahman: 10)

Thus, Allah the Almighty created the earth for all creatures, not for a specific group of them apart from the others.

Allah the Almighty concludes the verse in question, saying: '…and to Him you will be resurrected.' (al-Mulk: 15) The Arabic word an-Nashr (dispersion) linguistically means 'moving throughout the earth' as in the verse reading: '…disperse within the land and seek from the bounty of Allah...' (al-Jumu'a: 10). Allah Glorified is He also made day as a time of movement and activity, while night is a period of repose and sleep, a fact which is crystal clear in Allah's saying: 'And He it is Who made the night a covering for you, and the sleep a rest, and He made the day to rise up again...' (al-Furqan: 47).

As other living beings do, the humans need rest according to their efforts and activity. Thus, time is divided into night in which people sleep and take rest, and day in which they earn their livelihoods. Allah the Almighty knows from eternity that night is not a time of torpor for all people, for there must be some people who keep wakeful to perform their duties during the night. Concerning this kind of people, Allah Glorified is He says, 'And of His signs are your sleep by night and day...' (ar-Rum: 23).

Allah the Almighty gives a chance to those who keep wakeful all night to have rest by day. He made day and night alternate. If night or day were endless, life would be impossible. Therefore, He swears by specific times, saying: 'By the morning brightness. And [by] the night when it covers with darkness.' (ad-Duha: 1-2) Forenoon which is one of the periods of the day is a time of activity, while night is a time of repose. Hence, both the day and night must exist together.

The Resurrection means rising from graves on the Day of Judgment, as Allah the Almighty says, '…and they possess not [power to cause] death or life or resurrection.' (al-Furqan: 3) The false deities that the disbelievers worship have no ability to cause death, give life or resurrect the dead, for only Allah Glorified is He has the Power to do that. So, the Arabic word an-nushur refers to the Resurrection that precedes the final Reckoning, while an-nashr means 'spreading something through a limited area'. There is something rolled and there is something else that is spread. The rolled object coalesces and its space is narrow, while the spread object scatters and is wide. In this vein, Allah the Almighty says, ‘O mankind, fear your Lord, Who created you from one soul and created from it its mate and dispersed from both of them many men and women.’ (an-Nisa’: 1) The verb ‘dispersed’ means spreading something in different directions. This very word points out that people must scatter through the earth so that they all benefit from Allah’s favours that Allah Glorified is He placed on the earth.

A believer must turn his life to useful work that can benefit him and others who are unable to work. Not only does Allah Glorified is He order us to travel through the earth to satisfy our daily needs but also to benefit those who are not able to work. In this way, the society embodies everyone and gets rid of spite, envy, and hatred.

Further, Allah the Almighty wants our work to be noble and honest. One must earn his living through his own efforts. Before a person thinks of eating, he should work to eat. In other words, he should not wait for the fruit of others’ work. This is because laziness diffuses chaos in the society as the idle person, who satisfies his daily needs through the efforts of others, can become an example, and even persuades others to stop working and live as parasites. As a result, the movement of life will cease, the fruit of hard-working people will go in vain, and everyone will starve. Thus, Allah the Almighty wants the humans to work so as to satisfy their basic needs and so that life cycle continues.

In conclusion, Allah Glorified is He wants us to have the honour of work and to do whatever is useful for us. Our efforts are good for us and for others. When the people vie for noble work, they will all take part in it. On the contrary, when some people simply depend on the fruit of other’s work, the chaos will prevail in the society.

Afterwards, Allah the Almighty says:

ءَأَمِنتُم مَّن فِي ٱلسَّمَآءِ أَن يَخۡسِفَ بِكُمُ ٱلۡأَرۡضَ فَإِذَا هِيَ تَمُورُ ﴿١٦﴾

Are you sure that He who is in Heaven will not make the earth swallow you up with a violent shudder? [16] (The Quran, al-Mulk: 16)

In this regard, Allah Glorified is He also says, ‘And He it is Who is Allah in the heavens and Allah in the earth…’ (az-Zukhruf: 84). Concerning feeling secure from His Plan, Allah the Almighty says, ‘But no one feels secure from the plan of Allah except the losing people….’ (al-A‘raf: 99) Feeling secure from His Plan is one of the major sins, as He says, ‘Then, did the people of the cities feel secure from Our Punishment coming to them at night, while they were asleep? Or did the people of the cities feel secure from Our Punishment coming to them in the morning, while they were at play? Then did they feel secure from the plan of Allah? But no one feels secure from the plan of Allah except the losing people.’ (al-A‘raf: 97-99)

What is it that makes the disbelievers feel safe from the same punishment that befell the previous nations? So, one should not think that he can escape the punishment during the night or in the daytime. Safety means lack of fear or trouble. To say, ‘So-and-so is safe’ means that such a person leads a tranquil life.

We should consider that Allah the Almighty says: ‘Then did they feel secure from the plan of Allah?’ (al-A‘raf: 99) We may mistakenly think that some of the Actions Allah Glorified is He attributes to Himself do not behove Him. We wonder, ‘Does our Lord scheme?’ for we consider scheming improper for Him the Almighty. We should note that the Quran says: ‘…but the evil plot does not encompass except its own people…’ (Fatir: 43). According to this verse, scheming on the part of Allah the Almighty is good and beneficial. So, Allah Glorified is He says, ‘Then did they feel secure from the plan of Allah? But no one feels secure from the plan of Allah except the losing people.’ (al-A‘raf: 99) All the stories of the prophets affirm that those who feel secure from His Plan are losers.

Thus, Allah’s plans are stronger and more forceful than those of humans. The plans of humans can be detected or thwarted by other people. On the other hand, if Allah Glorified is He makes plans against the humans, can they discover them? Of course not!

In the chapter of al-Isra`, Allah the Almighty says, ‘Then do you feel secure that [instead] He will not cause a part of the land to swallow you or send against you a storm of stones? Then you would not find for yourselves an advocate. Or do you feel secure that He will not send you back into the sea another time and send upon you a hurricane of wind and drown you for what you denied? Then you would not find for yourselves against Us an avenger.' (al-Isra': 68-69) You should not think that the earth is safe. It can be dangerous to you whether you are on land or at sea.

The Arabic word al-khasf means causing the earth to swallow what is on it. The object that is swallowed by the earth is that which sinks into the ground. With the same Arabic word, we refer to 'the lunar eclipse'. Allah Glorified is He punished Qarun by causing the land to swallow him along with all his material possessions, a fact which is crystal clear in Allah's saying: 'And We caused the earth to swallow him and his home...' (al-Qasas: 81). This type of punishment is mentioned in several Quranic verses like the one reading: 'So each We seized for his sin; and among them were those upon whom We sent a storm of stones, and among them were those who were seized by the blast [from the sky], and among them were those whom We caused the earth to swallow…' (al-'Ankabut: 40).

So, the Arabic word al-khasf means that the ground splits and swallows what is on it. This was exactly what happened to Qarun when the earth swallowed him along with his house, treasures, and all his possessions. Is there anyone who feels secure from being swallowed by the earth while it shakes and sways? If this happens, the ground shakes violently till the thing swallowed reaches the lower earth and is buried therein.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says:

أَمۡ أَمِنتُم مَّن فِي ٱلسَّمَآءِ أَن يُرۡسِلَ عَلَيۡكُمۡ حَاصِبٗاۖ فَسَتَعۡلَمُونَ كَيۡفَ نَذِيرِ ١٧

Are you sure that He who is in Heaven will not send a whirlwind to pelt you with stones? You will come to know what My warning means [17] (The Quran, al-Mulk: 17)

The punishment that the humans inflict on one another is governed by their own capabilities and laws. As for the punishment of Allah the Almighty it matches His Power. So, can we withstand or endure His punishment? Of course, we cannot. His punishment sometimes comes suddenly and at times occurs openly.

Punishment occurs surprisingly so that the person anticipates it at any time and takes place openly so that he will be terrified and frightened before it occurs. In this connection, Allah the Almighty says, ‘Say, “Have you considered if the punishment of Allah should come to you unexpectedly or manifestly, will any be destroyed but the wrongdoing people?”’ (al-An‘am: 47); ‘…“we will never believe you until we see Allah outright”; so the thunderbolt took you while you were looking on.’ (al-Baqara: 55) If death comes to them suddenly, they will not feel its shock and horribleness except at the moment in which it happens. But if it occurs openly, they will experience it while they are in panic and terror. Are you safe from the punishment of Allah? You must safeguard yourselves against it as you are not able to endure it. It occurs suddenly or outright so that no one argues, ‘If punishment does not occur unexpectedly, I will take my precautions’. Further, it occurs, while the people are hopeless and desperate; they cannot find any way out.

So, what is the rationale behind inflicting the punishment suddenly and outright? Sudden punishment proves to those who worship idols and false deities that they are deluded into worshipping these false deities. If those deities and idols were true gods, they would not accept that their worshippers would be punished without their knowledge. Consequently, unexpected punishment evidences the powerlessness of idols and false deities as they are unable to protect their worshippers.

As for the disbelievers who argue, the ‘…punishment occurs suddenly, but if it comes outright, we will be able to confront and resist it’, Allah the Almighty inflicts the punishment outright on them. As they are unable to resist it, then their arguments are baseless. However, such obstinate disbelievers keep blind to the truth of belief.

Hence, no one can repel or prevent the punishment of Allah Glorified is He as He says, ‘…and indeed, there will reach them a punishment that cannot be repelled.’ (Hud: 76) Here, Allah the Almighty reminds the wrongdoers that His punishment is irresistible so that they bear in mind that the punishment may befall them at any moment and none would be able to prevent it.

By studying the history of previous nations, we learn the normative precept of destroying the wrongdoers. The peoples of Nuh (Noah), `Ad, Thamud and Lut (Lot) faced the punishment of annihilation. Concerning the punishment that happened to those peoples, Allah Glorified is He says, ‘So each We seized for his sin; and among them were those upon whom We sent a storm of stones, and among them were those who were seized by the blast [from the sky], and among them were those whom We caused the earth to swallow.' (al-'Ankabut: 40)

It is Allah the Almighty Who inflicts the punishment upon the disbelievers and wrongdoers. He did not order any of the former Prophets before Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him to fight for the sake of His Faith. For example, Prophet `Isa (Jesus) peace be upon him was sent to guide the people to the true faith, not to protect his faith by means of war.

Regarding the Muslim ummah, it is allowed to carry the sword to discipline those who stand in the way of the Right Faith. We should strongly emphasise that force is not permitted to impose religion. Rather, it aims at protecting people's freedom of religion. Instead of leaving the people being compelled to embrace wrong faiths, Muslims use force against those who subdue and oppress other peoples. By so doing, the people can be free to choose their religious beliefs.

The disbelievers from among the peoples of 'Ad, Thamud, Midyan, Lut (Lot) and Qarun, Pharaoh and Haman were on an equal footing regarding disbelief but varied in punishment. The first type of these penalties, which is mentioned in the chapter of al-`Ankabut and here in the chapter of al-Mulk, is sending a tempest of stones against the disbelievers, as Allah the Almighty says, 'So each We seized for his sin; and among them were those upon whom We sent a storm of stones...' (al-'Ankabut: 40); 'Are you sure that He who is in Heaven will not send a whirlwind to pelt you with stones?' (al-Mulk: 17); 'Then do you feel secure that [instead], He will not cause a part of the land to swallow you or send against you a storm of stones? Then you would not find for yourselves an advocate.' (al-Isra': 68) This last verse means that Allah the Almighty can send against the people a storm of stones that hits them violently. None can resist this kind of punishment and that is why He, the Glorified is He says, '…then you would not find for yourselves an advocate.' (al-Isra': 68) It means that the people will not find any protector. So, they should not feel secure from the punishment whether they are on the ground or at the sea.

The Arabic word al-hasib (A storm of stones) denotes 'small stones' that are violently hurled to burn and scorch slowly when a strong wind stirs them up. Allah Glorified is He does not say here: 'He will send against you a Fire' because fire may burn disbelievers to death at once, while scorching, small stones burn them and make their pains last longer. So, we hear some people say, ‘I will burn it on a slow fire’, denoting that they will make the painful punishment lasts as long as possible.

Wind is described as ‘a storm of stones’ because it hurls pebbles at those destined to be punished. The saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘…send a whirlwind to pelt you…’ (al-Mulk: 17), implies that this storm is set against each individual from among the disbelievers. Similar examples are the verses reading: ‘There will be sent upon you a flame of fire…’ (ar-Rahman: 35); ‘Or do you feel secure that He will not send you back into the sea another time and send upon you a hurricane of wind and drown you for what you denied? Then you would not find for yourselves against Us an avenger.’ (al-Isra’: 69)

The stony wind is sent upon disbelievers from above. In this connection, the people of Lut (Lot) were punished by sending against them a storm of stones like that which destroyed the soldiers who intended to demolish the Ka`ba.

One may argue, ‘Allah refers here to the sinking down of the earth first and then He mentions the punishment that comes from the heaven, as He says: “Are you sure that He who is in Heaven will not make the earth swallow you up with a violent shudder? Are you sure that He who is in Heaven will not send a whirlwind to pelt you with stones?” (al-Mulk: 16-17) Elsewhere, however, He says, “Say, ‘He is the [one] Able to send upon you affliction from above you or from beneath your feet...” (al-An‘am: 65). So, why is the punishment that descends from the heaven mentioned before that of the earth in the last verse, unlike the previous two verses’?

This is an example of the exceptionally inimitable expressions of the Quran. The chapter of al-Mulk says: ‘It is He Who has made the earth manageable for you—travel its regions; eat His provision– and to Him you will be resurrected.’ (al-Mulk: 15) What suits this context is to remind the disbelievers that Allah the Almighty is fully Able to cause the earth to swallow them. Regarding the chapter of al-An`am, He the Almighty says, ‘And He is the subjugator over His servants, and He sends over you guardian-angels…’ (al-An‘am: 61). So, it is more proper to say afterwards: ‘Say, “He is the [one] Able to send upon you affliction from above you...”’ (al-An‘am: 65). Here, Allah Glorified is He mentions the punishment that comes from above the disbelievers, not from the earth.

Allah the Almighty concludes the verse under discussion, saying: '…you will come to know what My Warning means.' (al-Qalam: 17) It is as if Allah Glorified is He is saying, 'You, people of Mecca, will realise how serious the consequence of My Warning is once punishment befalls you'. In other verses, Allah the Almighty says: '`Ad denied; and how [severe] were My punishment and warning. Indeed, We sent upon them a screaming wind on a day of continuous misfortune. Extracting the people as if they were trunks of palm trees uprooted. And how [severe] were My punishment and warning.' (al-Qamar: 18-21) As a matter of fact, the warning of Allah the Almighty precedes His punishment, for He does not punish anyone without prior warning. The conjunction 'and' in the verse that reads: '…My punishment and warning…' (al-Qamar: 18), does not connote sequence; it just joins the two actions together.

Sending prophets gives the disbelievers the warning that they will face Allah's punishment in case they insist on disbelieving in Him, His prophets, and the Sacred Books. In this regard, Allah Glorified is He says, '…And never would We punish until We sent a Messenger.' (al-Isra': 15) He is the All Merciful towards the human beings as He sent prophets to show them the Right Path and distinguish it from the wrong one. There is no punishment without incrimination that is based on unequivocal texts conveyed to the people through the prophets who warn them against the punishment.

Abu Umama Allah be pleased with him narrated that Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'Some people of this ummah will spend the night eating, drinking and amusing themselves [in an unreasonable and illegal way]. And in the morning, they will be metamorphosed into monkeys and pigs, and they will be swallowed by the earth to the point that people will say, "So-and-so people were swallowed by the earth yesterday; the buildings of so-and-so sank into the ground yesterday." A storm of stones from the sky will be sent, as was the case with the people of Lut (Lot), against some tribes and their houses. A barren wind like that which destroyed the people of `Ad will be set against some tribes and their houses for their consumption of wine, wearing silk clothes, having songstresses, practicing usury and severing good ties with kith and kin.'(1)

Thus, you should not do what provokes Allah's Anger to avert the punishment that befell those who preceded you. You must safeguard yourselves against hell and the Wrath of Allah Glorified is He. As for the ill-gotten gains, they never bring good results. If your basic needs are satisfied from illicit money, your entire body will be affected by it. Moreover, your actions and characteristics will resemble those of monkeys and pigs.

Afterwards, Allah the Almighty says:

وَلَقَدْ كَذَّبَ ٱلَّذِينَ مِن قَبْلِهِمْ فَكَيْفَ كَانَ نَكِيرِ ﴿١٨﴾

Those who went before them also disbelieved – how terrible was My condemnation! [18]
(The Quran, al-Mulk: 18)

The disbelievers of Mecca were not the first to disbelieve in and deny the Divine Message, for so did the peoples who preceded them, a fact which is crystal clear in the saying of Allah Glorified is He: 'And certainly did the companions of Thamud deny the Messengers.' (al-Hijr: 80); '[Theirs is] like the custom of the people of Pharaoh and those before them. They denied Our signs, so Allah seized them for their sins. And Allah is severe in penalty.' (Al-'Imran: 11) The people of Pharaoh were in the habit of disbelief and tyranny, and thus Allah the Almighty inflicted on them an exemplary punishment.

Denial is an act of rejection on the part of the denier, and it also implies repudiating a statement or an action. It also means barring the people from believing in Allah the Almighty. Further, it was the cause of drowning those who disbelieved in Prophet Nuh (Noah) peace be upon him a fact which is crystal clear in Allah's saying: 'But they denied him, so We saved him and those who were with him in the ship. And We drowned those who denied Our signs. Indeed, they were a blind people.' (al-A'raf: 64). According to this verse, drowning was the first punitive event in the history of the messages as Prophet Nuh's (Noah's) Message was the first one to be denied and rejected.

Denying the signs of Allah Glorified is He entails rendering them false and unreal. The category of the deniers includes the atheists; those who believe in a god, but not in any prophet; or believe in a God and a prophet but not in what was sent down upon Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. Denial was a phenomenon from which all former Prophets suffered because they announced to their peoples what they would reject at first blush. In this regard, Allah the Almighty says, ‘And if they deny you, [O Muhammad] - so, before them, did the people of Nuh (Noah) and `Ad and Thamud deny [their prophets].’ (al-Hajj: 42) It is as if Allah the Almighty says, ‘As the people of Mecca deny and encumber your Message, Muhammad, know that you are not the first prophet to meet this reaction. Many previous Prophets were denied. But the question of disbelief is not separated from its consequences. Yes, your people have denied your Message, but sooner or later they will face the same punishment as the previous deniers.’ That is why Allah Glorified is He says, ‘And if you [people] deny [the Message] - already nations before you have denied.’ (al-’Ankabut: 18). You have to be alert to what happened to the previous disbelievers and how severe their punishment was. It is as if He is telling Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him: ‘Since your people have disbelieved you, do not grieve, for many former prophets were disbelieved too. Muhammad, you are not the first prophet to be disbelieved and obdurately opposed. So be completely sure that I will support you’.

As for the saying of Allah the Almighty in the verse in question: ‘…how terrible was My condemnation!’ (al-Mulk: 18), the statement is made in the form of questions so that the addressees confirm its veracity. The meaning is: ‘Did We give them their just punishment’? Thus, the addressee confirms that this happened.

The Arabic word nakir (condemnation) means reproaching and neglecting a person. For example, suppose that a person treats you kindly and generously and suddenly stops doing that, whereupon you wonder, ‘Why does he shun me like this’? So the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘…how terrible was My condemnation!’ (al-Mulk: 18), means Allah Glorified is He condemned their ingratitude for His favours and thus He replaced them with calamities that befell them.

Allah the Almighty then says:

أَوَلَمۡ يَرَوۡاْ إِلَى ٱلطَّيۡرِ فَوۡقَهُمۡ صَٰٓفَّٰتٖ وَيَقۡبِضۡنَۚ مَا يُمۡسِكُهُنَّ
إِلَّا ٱلرَّحۡمَٰنُۚ إِنَّهُۥ بِكُلِّ شَيۡءِۭ بَصِيرٌ ﴿١٩﴾

Do they not see the birds above them spreading and closing their wings? It is only the Lord of Mercy who holds them up: He watches over everything [19] (The Quran, al-Mulk: 19)

In this verse Allah Glorified is He draws the attention of the deniers, who disbelieve in Allah, His Messenger, and the Book, to reflect on the sky. Allah the Almighty states this point in the form of a question: ‘Do they not see…?’ (al-Mulk: 19) This indicates that those disbelievers have noticed this matter. So why do they disbelieve? Similarly, Allah the Almighty says, ‘Do they not see that We have created for them from what Our hands have made, grazing livestock, and [then] they are their owners? And we have tamed them for them, so some of them they ride and some of them they eat.’ (Ya Sin: 71-72); ‘Have they not seen that We set upon the land, reducing it from its borders? And Allah decides; there is no adjuster of His Decision. And He is swift in account.’ (ar-Ra‘d: 41)

Allah the Almighty reminds the people of Mecca about something they themselves have experienced in their lives, saying: ‘Have they not seen that We made [Mecca] a safe sanctuary…’ (al-’Ankabut: 67). Further, Allah Glorified is He says about the people of `Ad: ‘As for `Ad, they were arrogant upon the earth without right and said, “Who is greater than us in strength?” Did they not consider that Allah who created them was greater than them in strength? But they were rejecting Our signs.’ (Fussilat: 15)

Regarding the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘Do they not see…’ (al-Mulk: 19), He does not say, ‘Do they not know?’ because knowledge could be unseen. So, He uses the verb ‘to see’ to denote that the sign mentioned in this verse is clearly witnessed and perceived by their eyes. This expression directs people’s attention to consider and reflect on the creations of Allah Glorified is He. Among His creations is water which He sends to the barren land, a fact which is crystal clear in the verse reading: ‘Have they not seen that We drive the water [in clouds] to barren land and bring forth thereby crops from which their livestock eat and [they] themselves? Then do they not see?’ (as-Sajda: 27)

In the verse in question, Allah the Almighty draws our attention to the birds which fly in the sky, saying: ‘Do they not see the birds above them spreading and closing their wings?’ (al-Mulk: 19) The birds fly aloft by the motion of their wings which push air away and resist gravity so that they do not fall down. Also, a predatory animal pushes water away with its forelegs to swim. If a bird folds its wings while flying, it does not fall. So, who keeps it aloft in this case? The birds you observe glorify and praise Allah Glorified is He. This fact is supported by the verse saying: ‘Do you not see that Allah is exalted by whoever is within the heavens and the earth and [by] the birds with wings spread [in flight]? Each [of them] has known his [means of] prayer and exalting [Him].’ (an-Nur: 41)

We see the birds fly high. In this regard Allah Glorified is He says, ‘Do they not see the birds controlled in the atmosphere of the sky? None holds them up except Allah. Indeed, in that are signs for a people who believe.’ (an-Nahl: 79) This does not refer to the flapping of wings, for we watch the birds fold their wings while they are high in the air, yet they do not fall down. So, there must be a power that prevents them from falling. That is why Allah the Almighty says, ‘Do they not see the birds above them spreading and closing their wings?’ (al-Mulk: 19) This means that whether the birds spread out or fold their wings, they keep flying and do not fall over. On the other hand, we notice that some other birds have long wings but they do not fly, like the geese. Accordingly, the matter has nothing to do with having wings; rather, it is one of Allah’s miraculous signs: the birds fly through the air freely without being hindered by the gravity; they lift off and land whenever they want.

Allah Glorified is He wants to make birds as an example of something greater. The birds are subject to the law of gravity that attracts anything heavy in the air towards the ground. Nevertheless, Allah the Almighty breaks this law regarding the birds which stretch and fold their wings through the air and do not fall over. So, He says here: ‘Do they not see the birds above them spreading and closing their wings? It is only the Lord of Mercy who holds them up…’ (al-Mulk: 19).

You can see birds stretching out their wings and staying steady in the air without falling; nothing but Allah’s Power holds them up in the air. It is as if Allah Glorified is He is asking us to take such a view of the birds as an example and a means of clarification for His following saying: '…And He withholds the heaven from falling on the earth except with His permission…' (al-Hajj: 65). We must believe in and accept such truth. Furthermore, Allah Glorified is He says: 'surely Allah upholds the heavens and the earth lest they come to naught; and if they should come to naught, there is none who can uphold them after Him…' (Fatir: 41). As we recognise the fact that He the Almighty is fully Able to hold the flying birds up, we should, by analogy, acknowledge that He has the Power to uphold the heaven and the earth. In this way, we use the tangible phenomena to recognise the facts which are beyond our sensory perception.

Regarding the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'Surely, Allah upholds the heavens and the earth lest they come to naught; and if they should come to naught, there is none who can uphold them after Him; surely, He is the Forbearing, the Forgiving.' (Fatir: 41), He the Almighty reassures us that the heavens and the earth are maintained in a wondrous and amazing state of stability. If Allah Glorified is He destined them to cease to exist, no one can safeguard them against disappearance, for they are maintained only by His Omnipotence.

Allah Glorified is He upholds the heavens and the earth so that they achieve their appointed function. Further, He the Almighty has wonderfully laid down the rules of gravity that protect the cosmos against disorder. We should note that gravity had existed before being discovered lately. Thus, upholding the heaven and the earth totally depends on Allah's Omnipotence. Despite the absence of any pillar that supports the heaven, it cannot fall on the earth, as it is upheld by His Omnipotence.

In this vein, He the Almighty says: '…and never are We heedless of creation.' (al-Mu'minun: 17) So, Allah Glorified is He is Fully Aware of the heaven and He holds it. Holding the birds up in the sky is material evidence that He the Almighty keeps the heaven from falling on the earth.

As Allah the Almighty is the One Who holds the heavens, the earth and the birds, He deserves to be described as 'the Lord of Mercy' in His saying here: '…it is only the Lord of Mercy who holds them up…' (al-Mulk: 19).

The Arabic word Ar-Rahman (the Lord of Mercy) is an intensive form of the Divine Attribute of Mercy; it is the exaggeration of 'being Merciful'. The same is true for the Divine Name Rahim (the Giver of Mercy). Allah the Almighty is the Lord of Mercy in the worldly life and the Giver of Mercy in the Hereafter.

'The Lord of Mercy' is a Divine Name that indicates that Allah's Mercy includes all the creation and that He bestows all the blessings. His Attribute of Mercy is meant for softening the hearts of the human beings. Allah Glorified is He does not say that the sky is held by the Omnipotent or the Almighty, though these Divine Actions of holding the sky from falling down on earth and holding the birds up in the sky are more understandable, from a superficial viewpoint, to be done by the Divine Attributes of Omnipotence and Almightiness. After all, He the Almighty holds them by His Omnipotence and Mightiness. These two Divine Names, i.e. the Almighty and the Omnipotent are two of the causes of Mercy. Allah Glorified is He bestows His Mercy upon His servants even by these two Attributes. He is the Most Merciful and His Mercy includes everything. Thus, all the affairs of the creation are managed within the scope of Mercy.

Allah Glorified is He is All Merciful towards the believer and the disbeliever, for He created both. Therefore, He grants them blessings out of His Mercy and not due to what they actually deserve. For example, the sun rises on both the believers and disbelievers; it does not reflect its rays on the believers and block them from the disbelievers. Further, the sky rains on those who worship Him the Almighty and those who worship the idols. Moreover, both of those who testify that there is no god but Allah and those who deny this testimony can breathe fresh air.

Thus, out of His Mercy to all His creatures in the worldly life, Allah the Almighty bestows His Blessings on them. Further, His Lordship over both the obedient and the disobedient people and His Acceptance of their repentance are forms of Mercy.

He the Almighty concludes the verse in question, saying: '…He watches over everything.' (al-Mulk: 19) You should beware of thinking that there is anything that can be concealed from Allah Glorified is He or that anyone can deceive Him, for He watches over and knows everything – not only the things that we reveal but also the things that we conceal inside ourselves and hide them from others. Thus, He the Almighty hears and watches over us and we are under His protection.

In this regard, Allah Glorified is He commands Prophet Nuh (Noah) peace be upon him saying: ‘Build the Ark under Our [watchful] eyes and with Our Inspiration. Do not plead with me for those who have done evil– they will be drowned.’ (Hud: 37) His saying: ‘…Our [watchful] eyes…’ (Hud: 37) means that he peace be upon him is under Allah’s complete care and perfect protection.

Allah says:

أَمَّنْ هَٰذَا ٱلَّذِى هُوَ جُندٌ لَّكُمْ يَنصُرُكُم مِّن دُونِ ٱلرَّحْمَٰنِ ۚ إِنِ ٱلْكَٰفِرُونَ إِلَّا فِى غُرُورٍ ﴿٢٠﴾

What force can help you if the Lord of Mercy does not?
The disbelievers are truly deluded [20]

The Arabic word jund (force) is a singular form, but it indicates a plural form. Its original linguistic meaning refers to the hard, solid, and strong land. Since forces are supposed to be strong and powerful, they are called ‘jund’. Although it is a singular form, it refers to a tribe or a group of people, that is, it is a collective noun.

In this verse, Allah the Almighty asks the disbelievers to tell Him what force can help them if He wanted to harm them. Who can protect them against His Will?! Here, the expression: ‘What force…’ (al-Mulk: 20), is a reprimand and a criticism in the form of interrogation.

None of these statues and idols that the disbelievers worship can preserve and save them from Allah’s Punishment, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: ‘Do they have gods who can defend them against Us? Their gods have no power to help themselves, nor can they be protected from Us.’(1) (al-Anbiya’: 43) These false gods cannot protect themselves, so how can they protect and save their worshippers from Allah’s punishment if it befalls them?

(1) The Arabic word yushabun (be protected from Us) means that there is no one or friend who can save them from Allah’s Punishment. In his lexicon, Ibn Mandhur says, ‘The root of the word ‘sahib’ means to save and protect, as in the verse reading: ‘…nor can they be protected from Us.’ (al-Anbiya’: 43) It is said in Arabic ‘Sahebak Allah’ which means ‘may Allah protect you’. See Al-Qamus Al-Qawim, 1/369; and Ibn Mandhur, Lisan Al-’Arab.

As for His saying: '…nor can they be protected from Us.' (al-Anbiya': 43), it means that these disbelievers have no friends to protect them from the punishment. Thus, as they are not the allies of Allah the Almighty He will not save them from the punishment, nor will anyone be able to do so.

So, His saying: 'What force…' (al-Mulk: 20), is a rhetoric question directed to the disbelievers to criticise and threaten them, and to prove that their allegations are groundless. No force can save them if He the Almighty wants to punish them, for there is no protector, saviour or supporter but Him the Almighty. No one can save or support the disbelievers if they persist in opposing the Divine Way of Guidance. As Allah Glorified is He abandons such disbelievers, no one can save them, given the fact that there is no saviour or supporter but Him the Almighty.

Elsewhere in the Quran, Allah Glorified is He says: 'Ibrahim (Abraham) said to them, "You have chosen idols(1) instead of Allah but your love for them will only last for the present life: on the Day of Resurrection, you will disown and reject one another. Hell will be your home and no one will help you."' (al-'Ankabut: 25) Thus, the disbelievers have no Protector from among the idols that they worship instead of Allah Glorified is He. After all, they are asking for the help of rocks and idols which cannot speak or answer them.

In the same vein, He the Almighty says: 'I will make the disbelievers suffer severely in this world and the next; no one will help them.' (Al-'Imran: 56) This verse asserts the same idea, i.e. no one of the disbelievers can find a helper because there is no supporter whatsoever to someone defeated and punished by Him the Almighty.

The wrongdoers will have no one to save them from Allah's punishment; no one will offer help or intercession to them. So, no one will say, 'There is a person who is being punished, let us help him'. Thus, no one will support them or help them escape the punishment.

The same meaning is crystal clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'And halt them for questioning: "Why do you not support each other now?" —no indeed! They will be in complete submission on that Day.' (as-Saffat: 24-26) Where will the disbelievers' powerful helpers be to save them at that time?! The aim of this question is to ridicule and criticise them; it is as if Allah the Almighty asks them, 'Why are you not defending each other as you used to do in the worldly life'?! The followers from among the disbelievers used to help their masters who, in turn, were collecting, supporting, and stimulating their followers. As there is no one to defend or support them, they will be in complete surrender, defeatism, humiliation, and submissiveness. They have no power or argument to defend themselves and they are submissively and humbly waiting for Allah's Judgment.

(1) The Arabic word awthan means idols. The singular of this word is wathan (idol) and its root is wathana which means to stay and rest in a place. See Al-Qamus Al-Qawim, 2/320.

Allah the Almighty says in the verse in question: '…can help you…' (al-Mulk: 20). The Arabic word al-nasir (helper) refers to the one who defends somebody with his power and ability. Therefore, it is as if Allah Glorified is He is asking them, 'Where are your helpers who can defend you against Allah?! Who can save you if I wanted to punish you'?! Indeed, there will be no force or support to save them.

The saying of Allah the Almighty: '…what force…' (al-Mulk: 20), is put in a way that draws the attention of the disbelievers because He the Almighty is warning, threatening and alerting them. So, the Arabic particle 'ha' which is used for drawing attention, is suitably used in this context to intensify the tone of warning and to draw more attention to the situation they are involved in.

The Arabic word nusra (help) has two meanings; it denotes that a person cannot be defeated or that he can have a power which defends and helps him. But the idols worshipped by these disbelievers instead of Allah the Almighty will offer them no support. After all, they are asking for help from stones and idols which neither can speak nor respond to them.

In the same connection, Allah the Almighty says: '…they will have no one but Him to protect them and no one to intercede— so that they may beware.' (al-An'am: 51) The Arabic word wali (guardian) refers to the one who protects another when facing a problem. The greatest problem that a disbeliever faces will be in the Hereafter because no one will protect him from Allah's Punishment. As for His saying: '…and no one to intercede…' (al-An'am: 51), it means that there will be no one to intercede and ask forgiveness for him from the One Who has the Power to save him, i.e. Allah the Almighty. When someone loves another and cannot help him, he seeks help from someone else who can help the one he loves. Even this option will not be available for those who do not learn the lesson, remember Allah Glorified is He or follow the Straight Path.

In the verse under discussion, He the Almighty says: '…if the Lord of Mercy does not?' (al-Mulk: 20) Here, Allah Glorified is He makes mention of His Attribute of Mercy and being the Lord of Mercy. He the Almighty does not say, 'If Allah does not'; rather, He says: '…if the Lord of Mercy does not?' (al-Mulk: 20) This is a reminder for all His servants that Allah Glorified is He is the Most Merciful. So, if they are abandoned by their supporters, He is there to protect and help them, out of His Mercy, if they believed in Him. Allah Glorified is He wants His servants to be believers not disbelievers, for He will have no benefit from punishing them, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: 'Why should Allah make you suffer torment if you are thankful and believe in Him? Allah always rewards gratitude and He knows everything.' (an-Nisa': 147)

Allah the Almighty then concludes the verse in question, saying: '…the disbelievers are truly deluded.' (al-Mulk: 20) Some people may be deluded by the vain comforts of the worldly life and think that they are safeguarded against Allah's punishment and that they will not meet Him.

There are two diacritical marks for the Arabic word ghurour (be deluded); one with a 'u' (ghurour), and another with an 'a' (gharour). The one with a 'u' means to see something as if it is a truth, but in reality, it is an illusion. As for the one with an 'a', it refers to the one who practices such deception. That is why Satan is called 'Al-Gharour' (the deceiver) as he beautifies for the human being the untrue things and affects him in the same way the mirage affects the thirsty who mistakenly thinks the refraction of sunrays as water. Allah Glorified is He says about this state: '…like a mirage in a desert: the thirsty person thinks there will be water but, when he gets there, he finds nothing...' (an-Nur: 39).

Similarly, Satan beautifies a false thing to the human being and makes him falsely think it will delight him, but when he is involved with this thing, he discovers it is not a reality; rather, it is delusion. So, 'being deluded' means to desire something that cannot be reached or achieved. When we say to somebody, Allah forbids, 'You are deceived', we mean that he is following the wrong path that will not get him to the desired target.

There are other verses in the Quran stating the same meaning. For example, Allah Glorified is He says: ‘People! Allah’s Promise is true, so do not let the present life deceive you. Do not let the Deceiver deceive you about Allah.’ (Fatir: 5), and ‘Bear in mind that the present life is just a game, a diversion, an attraction, a cause of boasting among you, of rivalry in wealth and children. It is like plants that spring up after the rain: their growth at first delights the sowers, but then you see them wither away, turn yellow, and become stubble. There is terrible punishment in the next life as well as forgiveness and approval from Allah; the life of this world is only an illusory pleasure.’ (al-Hadid: 20)

When we describe a person as ghirr (inexperienced), this means that he does things without having previous experience about them, so he does not reap a benefit from them. Therefore, Allah the Almighty describes Satan as the ‘Deceiver’ because he deceives the humans by illusory things that will not really happen.

Delusion leads the human being to vainly waste his lifetime because he deviated from the Right Path, and the serious consequences of this action will extend to the Hereafter. In the same vein, He the Almighty says: ‘…the lies they have invented have deluded them in their own religion.’ (Al-‘Imran: 24) Those disbelievers become totally dominated by delusion; meanwhile, they are fully enjoying the blessings that Allah Glorified is He granted to them. So, they suddenly face His punishment because they consented to the promises of Satan which are nothing but vain promises, a fact which is crystal clear in the verse reading: ‘…Satan promises them nothing but delusion.’ (al-Isra’: 64)

Allah Glorified is He warns us so that we will not be deluded by this worldly life, for the one who does not follow the Divine Way of Guidance will be indulged in the sea of delusion and arrogance. Therefore, the Arabic word ghurour (delusion) means to be deluded so that you separate the blessings you have from the One Who granted them to you, that is, Allah the Almighty and attribute these blessing to yourself, as in the case of Qarun who was beguiled by his wealth and knowledge.

In the Quran, Allah the Almighty uses the linguistic style of ‘enna’ then ‘ella’ (Truly nothing but) to assert the idea that the disbelievers are truly having nothing but delusion and their state does not imply any other interpretation.

They are actually deluding themselves by a fleeting worldly life and unreal gods which can neither benefit nor harm them.

Regarding the saying of Allah the Almighty: '…Satan promises them nothing but delusion.' (*al-Isra': *64), we should consider that Satan cannot deceive anyone by his promises except those who are in delusion and heedlessness. Thus, the act of deluding someone means that the falsehood is beautified for him to look like the truth.

In fact, no one can deceive another person and persuade him that the falsehood is the truth unless he has a limited understanding and an absent mind. But if he became aware, he would be able to distinguish the truth from the falsehood. So, only the heedless person can be deceived.

A verse of poetry(1) explains the meaning of being in delusion. A poet was talking to his beloved and stating how she was neglecting(2) him, so he said, 'Nothing deluded you into thinking that I am going to forgive you but the fact, which you are fully sure of, that your love overwhelms me and whatever you say my heart obeys.'

In brief, to delude someone is to make him full of delusion so that he accepts things and involves in acts in the light of such delusions.

Afterwards, Allah the Almighty says:

أَمَّنۡ هَٰذَا ٱلَّذِي يَرۡزُقُكُمۡ إِنۡ أَمۡسَكَ رِزۡقَهُۥۚ بَل لَّجُّواْ فِي عُتُوّٖ وَنُفُورٍ ﴿٢١﴾

Who can provide for you if He withholds His provision?
Yet they persist in their insolence and their avoidance of the Truth [21] (The Quran, al-Mulk: 21)

It is as if Allah the Almighty is asking the disbelievers, 'who can feed, provide you with water and provide you with sustenance if I withhold My Provision?!

(1) The poet is Imru` Al-Qays ibn Hajar ibn Al-Harith Al-Kindi, one of the most famous Arab poets. He is from Yemen and was born in Najd in 130 before Hijra. His father was the king of Asd and Ghatafan. His mother's brother was Al-Muhalhel, a famous poet. His uncle taught him poetry in his early childhood, and he composed it at that early age. He was known as 'the aimless king' because his life was not stable, and 'the ulcerous [king]' because of the illness he suffered from before his death. He died in 80 before Hijra at the age of 50.

Who else can provide for you?! Can any of those false gods provide for you if I withhold My Provision'?

As a matter of fact, no one gives, withholds, creates, or gives provision and help but Allah the Almighty. Allah Glorified is He gives the human beings the benefits of the worldly life and the means of getting His Provision. For example, He provides them with the rains, but if He the Almighty wills, He can stop the wind from blowing or makes water sink deep and disappears in the earth, as He the Almighty says at the end of al-Mulk: 'Say, "Just think; if all your water were to sink deep into the earth who could give you flowing water in its place?"' (al-Mulk: 30)

The Arabic word amsak (to withhold) indicates a state of close connection. If someone is connected to something, it means that he upholds it. The derivatives of this word include 'to catch, to keep holding and to stay connected'. The verb 'to hold fast' is also one of its derivatives which intensifies the meaning of the word, as in the saying of Allah the Almighty: '…but as for those who hold fast to the Scripture…' (al-A'raf: 170).

Regarding His saying: '…if He withholds His Provision…' (al-Mulk: 21), we should note that the Provision here is ascribed to Allah Glorified is He. In the Quran, we notice that the word 'provision' is ascribed two times to Allah the Almighty and two times to the human being, as in His saying in the chapter of at-Talaq: '…and let the wealthy man spend according to his wealth. But let him whose provision is restricted...(1)' (at-Talaq: 7); and the chapter of al-Fajr: '…but when He tries him through the restriction of his provision…' (al-Fajr: 16).

The two times in which the provision is ascribed to Allah Glorified is He are mentioned in His saying in the chapter of al-Mulk: 'It is He who has made the earth manageable for you—travel its regions; eat His provision…' (al-Mulk: 15), and 'Who can provide for you if He withholds His Provision?' (al-Mulk: 21) It is He the Almighty Who provides with sustenance. Ascribing the provision to Him the Almighty suits the context of the chapter of al-Mulk which begins with His saying: ‘Exalted is He who holds all control in His Hands…’ (al-Mulk: 1). He the Almighty controls and has Power over everything.

(1) If Allah Glorified is He restricted the provision by His Will, it means that He made it limited to the necessary needs with no surplus. The same meaning is mentioned in His saying in the chapter of al-Fajr: '…through the restriction of his provision…' (al-Fajr: 16). See Al-Qamus Al-Qawim, 2/102.

When the issue of provision is discussed, many people mistakenly think that provision is only to have money. But this is untrue, for the provision is everything that can be of a benefit; power, knowledge, wisdom, modesty and different forms of provision and so is everything that helps in the development of life.

Likewise, the rain and the plants that grow therefrom are forms of provision, as Allah Glorified is He says: ‘…Who spread out the earth for you and built the sky; who sent water down from it and with that water produced fruits as a provision for you. Do not, knowing this, set up rivals to Allah.’ (al-Baqara: 22) So, it is a provision for us that the rain falls so that the plants and the fruits grow. Thus, the provision is what can benefit the human being and not what he earns. Money is one of the forms of provision and so are the health, children, food, Allah’s Blessing and all His Graces.

Allah Glorified is He draws our attention to the fact that the provision is sent to us from above, saying: ‘…Who sent water down from the sky and with that water produced fruits as a provision for you...’ (al-Baqara: 22), and ‘In the sky is your provision and all that you are promised.’ (adh-Dhariyat: 22)

Allah Glorified is He in the verse under discussion says: ‘Who can provide for you if He withholds His Provision? Yet they persist in their insolence and their avoidance of the Truth.’ (al-Mulk: 21). Some scholars say that ‘provision’ refers to the rain. So, it is as if He the Almighty says, ‘Who will provide you with rain if Allah withholds the water of the sky from you’? Some people mistakenly say that rain pours as a normal result of the natural laws of the universe. So, Allah the Almighty draws our attention to the incorrectness of this conception by the fact that there come times of draught where no rain pours, even a drop. In this way, we come to know that rain does not fall because of the natural laws, but rather due to the Will of the Creator of the universe Who laid down its laws. If the natural laws act by themselves in the case of the fall of the rain, for example, who stopped its fall during the seasons of dryness? In fact, Allah’s Will is above these laws; if He the Almighty wants, He will stop them from acting. Thus, everything in the universe is attributed to Allah Glorified is He; He is the One Who gives, withholds, and makes some creatures subservient to others.

At the time of our first creation, He the Almighty did not govern us with one rule, i.e. He did not make all things obligatory on us. We are only compelled in the sense that our will and acts do not interfere in the matters that affect the essential movement of life, i.e. He did not make the sun, the moon, the winds, and rain under our control.

All these matters are under Allah's Control. This is because they are brought to existence before the human being could have a life and a will. They were created to pave the way for the life that the human being was going to be granted. If Allah Glorified is He had left all these matters under the human being's control, their creation would have been delayed until the will, power, and knowledge were granted to the human being.

Out of Allah's Wisdom, He created tunnels for water under the ground so that the very hot countries can reach groundwater and so that the water spread on wide areas are protected from evaporation. In this regard, Allah Glorified is He says: '…Allah sends water down from the sky, guides it along to form springs in the earth…' (az-Zumar: 21).

Allah the Almighty hides some amount of water under the ground for the sake of preserving the life of the human being. In hot countries, we can also find salt on the surface of the soil which is clear evidence that Allah Glorified is He has laid down the rule of distillation of sweet-water so that it becomes drinkable and ready to be used for cultivation.

Further, Allah Glorified is He is the One Who sends water down from the sky, and no creature has any role in this process; water has been always evaporating without the human being's awareness of this fact, which was discovered a few centuries ago. Now, we know how clouds are formed and then the rain falls. As the human being has nothing to do with this process, Allah Glorified is He says: 'Have you [Prophet] not considered how Allah sends water down from the sky…?' (al-Hajj: 63)

Did the disbelievers receive Allah's Blessings in the universe by faith, or by an obstinate and arrogant refusal to believe? The answer is provided in

His saying: '…yet they persist in their insolence and their avoidance of the Truth.' (al-Mulk: 21)

The Arabic word bal (yet) is used for negating what comes before it and affirms what comes after it. This means that they did not believe or follow the Right Path. They were expected to follow that Path after knowing about the messages of the prophets, yet they rejected it and followed the path of denial and persistence on avoiding the Truth. So, the Arabic particle bal (yet) is used for negating what is said before it and confirming the new speech which is said after it.

With regard, to the saying of Allah the Almighty: '…yet they persist…' (al-Mulk: 21), it means that they persistently continued in their insolence and avoidance of belief and refused to follow other than this wrong path. They neither consider nor think wisely; rather, they insist on their transgression and persist in staying away from faith. The Arabic word lajju (entering persistently) means deeply involved in sins; they involved in this wrongdoing regardless of the clear proofs that called them to stay away from it. They continued in their transgression, lies, and error. Thus, they insisted on their insolence and refusal of the Truth.

So, regarding His saying: '…yet they persist in their insolence and their avoidance of the Truth.' (al-Mulk: 21), the Arabic word 'utaww (insolence) means arrogance and refusal. Here, it means that the disbelievers refused, disobeyed, and avoided the Truth. This is the utmost level of corruptness. This word means to exaggerate in transgression, challenge, and exceeding of limits. The insolent transgressor is the one who reached the extreme level of aggression such as the tyrant. The more people fear him, the more he becomes confident and powerful.

'Utaww also means disbelief, transgression, tyranny, and gross corruption. In this regard Allah the Almighty says: 'Those who do not fear to meet Us say, "Why are the angels not sent down to us?" or "Why can we not see our Lord?" They are too proud of themselves and too insolent.' (al-Furqan: 21) They are too arrogant and try to give themselves a value above what they deserve, neglecting the fact that every human being is of a specific value.

Nufour (avoidance) means to disbelieve and to arrogantly avoid believing and following the Truth and the Path of Faith. So, utaww (insolence) means to insist on disbelief, while nufour (avoidance) means to avoid the Truth. Thus, the disbelievers' arrogant persistence led them to avoid and disbelieve in the Truth.

Does a person shun the Truth and refuse to believe in Allah the Almighty? The answer is provided in His saying: 'Whenever Allah is mentioned on His Own, the hearts of those who do not believe in the Hereafter shrink with aversion, but they rejoice when gods other than Him are mentioned.' (az-Zumar: 45) His saying: '…shrink with aversion…' (az-Zumar: 45) means that their hearts turn away. When anyone feels unpleasant things, the feelings of annoyance appear on his face. Afterwards, the feeling of rejection overwhelms him and then he turns away from that thing. Similarly, when Allah Glorified is He is mentioned, the disbelievers' souls shrink and turn away from believing in His Oneness. Shrinkage of hearts is a hidden feeling, but it appears on the face due to the soul agitation.

Allah the Almighty also says: 'We have explained things in various ways (1) in this Quran so that such people might take notice, but it has only turned them further away.' (al-Isra': 41) Instead of returning to the Right Path, the disbelievers persistently continued in their rejection and avoidance of the Truth. But, why did they refuse the Message of Truth? This is because it came with certain principles and teachings that run counter to their interests and give rise to their fear and annoyance, so they turn away in fear and rejection.

Nufour (avoidance) is to keep yourself away from something because you hate it. In this regard, Allah the Almighty says: 'Yet when they are told to bow down before the Lord of Mercy, they say, "What is the Lord of Mercy? Should we bow down before anything you command?" and they turn even further away.' (al-Furqan: 60)

Elsewhere in the Quran, Allah Glorified is He gives us an image for their avoidance of the Truth, shunning belief and neglecting the Divine Warning, saying: ‘What is the matter with them? Why do they turn away from the warning, like frightened zebras (1) fleeing from a lion (2)?’ (al-Muddaththir: 49-51) They should not have turned away from the Reminder, but they turned away violently, not in normal reasonable attitude, just like the attitude of zebras when they encounter a sudden attack of a lion.

(1) Sarraffna (clarified in many ways) here means that Allah the Almighty has provided explanations in various types of speech, i.e. telling stories and lessons from the past nations to be learned, giving examples, using techniques such as imperative, prohibition, giving of advice and reproach. Allah Glorified is He has given us examples for everything.

They behave haphazardly without thinking about reasons for persistence in disbelief. This is not the attitude of the sane people; they are like the zebras who are escaping from the lions fearfully and panicky. They have no purpose but to flee. Similarly, those disbelievers escape aimlessly from the Message, and continue in their wrong way with no guidance.

Then, Allah the Almighty says:

أَفَمَن يَمۡشِي مُكِبًّا عَلَىٰ وَجۡهِهِۦٓ أَهۡدَىٰٓ أَمَّن يَمۡشِي سَوِيًّا عَلَىٰ صِرَٰطٖ مُّسۡتَقِيمٖ ٢٢

Who is better guided: someone who falls on his face, or someone who walks steadily on a straight path? [22]
(The Quran, al-Mulk: 22)

Here, Allah Glorified is He draws a comparison between two types of people. First, those who walk and then fall on their faces for they turned away from the Path of the Truth and chose the way of wrongfulness and deviation instead; second, those who follow the Straight Path. Allah the Almighty makes this comparison in the form of interrogation, saying: ‘Who is better guided: someone who falls on his face, or someone who walks steadily on a straight path?’ (al-Mulk: 22) Which one of the two is better guided and following the Right Path? To be truly guided, one must follow Allah’s Way of Guidance. It is the Straight Path that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him clarified for us in his saying, ‘None of you [truly] believes until his desires are subservient to that which I have brought.’(1)

(1) Humur (zebras) is the plural of zebra; it refers to zebras because Allah the Almighty follows this verse by saying: ‘Fleeing from a lion.’ (al-Mudaththir: 51) So, Allah Glorified is He is describing wild life. But the donkey is mentioned in other verses, as in His saying: ‘…are like donkeys carrying books…’ (al-Jumu’a: 5); and ‘…for the ugliest of all voices is the braying of donkeys.’ (Luqman: 19).

(2) Qaswara means a lion. This word has other meanings according to Ibn Mandhur. He said, ‘Ibn Al-A`rabi and Ibn Al-Athir say that qaswara means hunting archers.’ So, it may mean in this verse that the zebras fled from the hunters and their arrows. See Al-Qamus Al-Qawim, 2/115; Ibn Mandhur, Lisan Al-`Arab, the root q-s-r.

As for the ways and the approaches leading to wrongfulness and error, they are numerous; there are thousands of them. This is clear in the verse where Allah the Almighty says: ‘This is My Path, leading straight, so follow it, and do not follow other ways: they will lead you away from it…’ (al-An‘am: 153). When Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him read this verse, he drew, for his companions, a straight line surrounded by zigzag lines, and then he pointed to the straight one and said, ‘This is what I am upon and my companions.’(2)

Thus, the path towards guidance is only one, but misguidance has thousands of doctrines and approaches. If we look to those who are following the path of misguidance, we will find that they have various ideologies and every one of them has his own inclinations. In this connection, Allah the Almighty says: ‘Anyone Allah guides is truly guided, and you will find no protector other than Him for anyone He leaves astray. On the Day of Resurrection We shall gather them, lying on their faces, blind, dumb and deaf. Hell will be their Home. Whenever the Fire goes down (3), We shall make it blaze more fiercely for them.’ (al-Isra’: 97)

(1) This Hadith is narrated by Ibn Abu `Asim and Al-Hasan ibn Sufyan. Al-Albani Allah rest his soul said that its chain of narrations is weak; the narrators are all trusted, except Nu`aym ibn Hammad for he frequently erred. See Ibn Abu `Asim, As-Sunna, Hadith no. 15; Al-Albani, Dhilal Al-Janna Fi Takhrij As-Sunna, 2/12; and Al-Hasan ibn Sufyan, Al-Arb`in, 1/65.

(2) In his Musnad, Imam Ahmad narrates this Hadith on the authority of Ibn Mas`ud and Jabir ibn ‘Abdullah. In his Sunnan, Ibn Maja narrates it on the authority of Jabir ibn ‘Abdullah who said, ‘We were with Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him then he drew a line with his hands, then he drew two other lines to the left, and two to the right. Then he put his hand on the middle line and said that this is the way to Allah. Then he recited the verse: ‘This is My Path, leading straight, so follow it, and do not follow other ways: they will lead you away from it…’ (al-An‘am: 153). As for the Hadith: ‘This is what I am upon and my companions’ it was narrated by `Abdullah ibn `Umar that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, ‘What befell the children of Israel will befall my ummah, step by step. Indeed, the children of Israel split into seventy-two sects, and my ummah will split into seventy-three sects. All of them are in fire except one sect. It is what I am upon and my companions.’ See Ahmad, Musnad, Hadith no. 4142 and 15277; Ibn Maja, Sunnan, Hadith no. 11; and At-Tirmidhi, Sunnan, Hadith no. 2641.

(3) In his Tafsir, Mujahid says, ‘Whenever the Fire goes down’ means every time the fire fades away.’ In his Tafsir, Muqatil ibn Sulaiman says, ‘This happens when the Fire=

Abu Hurayra Allah be pleased with him said that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, ‘People will be gathered in three classes on the Day of Resurrection: A class walking, a class riding and a class upon their faces.’ It was said, ‘O Messenger of Allah! How will they walk upon their faces?’ He said, ‘Indeed the One Who made them walk upon their feet is Able to make them walk upon their faces. Indeed, they will try to protect their faces from every bump and thorn.’(1)

What is strange about the fact that the disbelievers will walk upon their faces?! We can already see that creatures have different kinds of movement, a fact which is clear in His saying: ‘And Allah created each animal out of [its own] fluid: some of them crawl on their bellies, some walk on two legs and some on four. Allah creates whatever He wills; Allah has Power over everything.’ (an-Nur: 45) Can we not see how the snakes move fast on their bellies? The Creator of snakes is fully Able to make those who went astray walk on their bellies. This matter depends on Allah’s Omnipotence Who wills to humiliate and degrade the disbelievers. Such degradation and humiliation do not stop at that extent, as He the Almighty says: ‘…We shall gather them, lying on their faces, blind, dumb and deaf…’ (al-Isra’: 97). This is a continuation of the methods of humiliation. In addition to walking on their faces blindly with no guidance, the disbelievers are deaf and dumb; they can neither hear any call nor say anything.

These are the descriptions of disbelievers in the worldly life too, i.e. they lay on their faces following the path of wrongfulness with no guidance; Allah the Almighty says: ‘Allah is mocking them, and allowing them more slack to wander blindly in their insolence.’ (al-Baqara: 15) Here, wandering blindly refers to the blindness of insight. ‘To wander blindly’ means that the disbelievers become unguided. They are wandering blindly in a material sense, for they have no sight; they are morally unguided, losing the insight that guides them to the way of morality and the Divine Path.

= totally burns their bodies and nothing remains but their bones and they turn into coal. Then the Fire fades away.’ See Mujahid, Tafsir, 1/442; and Muqatil, Tafsir, 2/552.

(1) In his Musnad, Imam Ahmed narrates this Hadith on the authority of Abu Hurayra and also Anas ibn Malik in a summarised form. The core of its meaning is narrated by Muslim as follows: ‘A man came to Prophet Muhammad and asked him, ‘O Messenger of Allah! How will the disbelievers walk upon their faces on the day of Resurrection?’ See Ahmad, Musnad, Hadith no. 8647 and 12708; see also Muslim, Sahih, Hadith no. 2806.

Wandering blindly also means to be hesitant and perplexed, i.e. the disbelievers are going in their wrongfulness hesitantly with no reason or insight; they are confused and unable to make the right choices; they are perplexed and blind to righteousness and the Right Path; they cannot distinguish the good from the evil; and they do not know where to go!

Allah the Almighty says about them: ‘Deaf, dumb (and) blind, so they will not turn back.’ (al-Baqara: 18) Their means of perception do not work properly. So, they cannot realise the signs of Allah Glorified is He to reach the absolute faith. Further, they do not listen to the Quran or understand its verses. This is because all the doors towards apprehension are closed in front of them.

They are not only deaf and dumb, but they also turn away from guidance, as Allah the Almighty says: ‘You [Prophet] cannot make the dead hear and you cannot make the deaf hear your call when they turn their backs and leave.’ (ar-Rum: 52) As they turn their backs, they become with no means for receiving guidance and having perception. There is no hope for guiding them as they are deaf, dumb and, due to turning their backs, blind. So, blindness hinders the way towards guidance, particularly if the blind insisted on being so, i.e. he continues in his way of wrongfulness and disbelief. His heart is blinded, thus follows his desires without any guidance from Allah Glorified is He. He is completely blind, that on the Day of Judgment, he cannot see what is before him, or what is on his right or left side. This is because such a disbeliever ‘…falls on his face…’ (al-Mulk: 22). This means that he walks with a lowered head. This indicates that the disbelievers eagerly committed sins in the worldly life, so they will be resurrected on their faces. In this regard, when Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him was asked, ‘How will the disbelievers walk upon their faces?’ he said, ‘Indeed the One Who made them walk upon their feet, is Able to make them walk upon their faces on the Day of Resurrection.’(1)

The disbelievers walk aimlessly in the darkness, with no insight; they cannot see the way of guidance. They have neither insight nor sight and they cannot see on their right or left sides.

So, the saying of Allah the Almighty: '…falls on his face…' (al-Mulk: 22), portrays a retrogression and decline of the normal creation of the human being, given the fact that Allah Glorified is He has created him: '…in the finest state.' (at-Tin: 4) Every living creature is created with its face facing the ground, except for the human being, for He the Almighty has created him on an upright status, i.e. he walks on his feet and eats by his hands.

Allah Glorified is He tells us that disbelievers are not like the cattle which just eat and drink only, but, they are also even worse, as the cattle are performing their due function in life, while those disbelievers are not, i.e. they do not worship Allah the Almighty. This fact is clearly mentioned in His saying: 'We have created many jinn and people who are destined for hell, with hearts they do not use for comprehension, eyes they do not use for sight, ears they do not use for hearing. They are like cattle, no, even further astray: these are the ones who are entirely heedless.' (al-A'raf: 179) Cattle do not go astray as they are bounded by their instincts and do not have the freedom of choice. But as for the disbelievers from among the jinn and mankind, they do not give Allah Glorified is He His due Esteem, while cattle, the inanimate objects and the plants do, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: '…there is not a single thing that does not celebrate His praise, though you do not understand their praise...' (al-Isra': 44).

The disbelievers of Quraysh asked some of the rabbis about who is better guided; is it they or Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him? Allah the Almighty makes mention of this incident, saying: '[Prophet], have you considered those who claim purity for themselves? No! Allah purifies whomever He wills: no one will be wronged by as much as the husk of a date stone. See how they invent lies about Allah, this in itself is a flagrant sin! Do you not see how those given a share of the Scripture, [evidently] now believe in idols and evil powers? They say of the disbelievers, "They are more rightly guided than the believers."' (an-Nisa': 49-51) Some of Quraysh's leaders said to the Jew scholars, 'You are the People of the Book and knowledge, give us your opinion about us and about Muhammad.' They said, 'Who are you and who Muhammad is?' They said, 'We slaughter dromedaries (1), provide water with milk, release captives, maintain the bonds of kinship, provide water for pilgrims while Muhammad severs the bonds of kinship.' The rabbis said, 'You are better guided than him.'(2)

The Jews said that the idolaters are better guided than Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and his followers. They said so even though their Books told them that he peace and blessings be upon him would be sent with the final Divine Message. They even were saying to the disbelievers of Medina, 'There is a prophet to be sent and we will follow him. We will fight with him and kill you as `Ad and Iram have been killed.'(3)

The argument in question raised in the verse under discussion: 'Who is better guided: someone who falls on his face, or someone who walks steadily on a straight path?' (al-Mulk: 22), and will remain until the Day of Resurrection. Who is better guided?! The one who rebels against and disobeys his Creator and walks with his face down to ground as if he falls on it, or he who walks steadily on a straight path? Are they equal?!

The word Sawiyya (walks steadily) means that the body stands upright with no curvature. Here, Allah the Almighty describes the one who follows the Path of Faith as 'walking steadily'. Sometimes He the Almighty describes the Path itself as 'even', as in His saying: '…so follow me: I will guide you to an even path.' (Maryam: 43) An even path is a straight path which easily leads you to your target in the shortest possible time. It is a path with no curves, so it is the closest to your target because the curved path takes a longer time to deliver you to the desired target.

(1) Kawma (dromedary) refers to a type of camels with a very big and high hump. See Al-Qasim ibn Salam, Gharib Al-Hadith, 3/84; and Az-Zamakhshari, Al-Fa`iq Fi Gharib Al-Hadith Wa Al-Athar, 1/388.

(2) This Hadith is narrated by At-Tabari and As-Suyuti who ascribes it to At-Tabarani and Al-Bayhaqi in Dala`il An-Nubuwwa on the authority of `Ikrima from Ibn `Abbas. See At-Tabari, Jame` Al-Bayan, p. 9789; and As-Suyuti, Ad-Durr Al-Manthur, 2/562.

(3) In his Tafsir, At-Tabari narrates this narration when he was giving the explanation of the verse: 'When a Scripture came to them from Allah confirming what they already had, and when they had been praying for victory against the disbelievers…' (al-Baqara: 89). See At-Tabari, Jame` Al-Bayan, 2/333.

What is meant by a 'path'? It is a way leading to a destination. A straight path is the shortest way to reach a destination as the straight line is the shortest between two points. Accordingly, if you want to go to a place, the shortest road to take is the straight un-crooked one. Deviation from a straight path may not be noticeable at the beginning, but it ultimately leads to a wide divergence from the desired destination.

We can take the railway tracks as an example. If we watch a train when it starts to change its direction, we will find that it deviates only few millimetres at the very beginning. The deviation at the beginning of the shunting point is too small, but it gets wider as the train continues its track. Ultimately, we find that the end of the road is tens and may be hundreds of kilometres away from the beginning. Regarding the Way of Guidance, any deviation, regardless how much it is simple, turns you greatly away from the Straight Path. The even path is a straight path which leads you to the target with the least effort and in the shortest time.

Then Allah Glorified is He says:

قُلْ هُوَ ٱلَّذِىٓ أَنشَأَكُمْ وَجَعَلَ لَكُمُ ٱلسَّمْعَ وَٱلْأَبْصَٰرَ وَٱلْأَفْـِٔدَةَ ۖ قَلِيلًا مَّا تَشْكُرُونَ ﴿٢٣﴾

Say [Prophet], 'It is He who brought you into being, He who endowed you with hearing, sight, and understanding – what small thanks you give!' [23] (The Quran, al-Mulk: 23)

Here, Allah the Almighty orders Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him to state that it is Allah Glorified is He Who brought us into existence. He the Almighty does not mention here what we are created from, but He mentions this point in other verses, as in His saying: 'It is He who first produced you from a single soul, then gave you a place to stay [in life] and a resting place [after death]...' (al-An'am: 98); 'It was He who brought you into being from the earth and made you inhabit it…' (Hud: 61); and '…just as He produced you from the offspring of other people' (al-An'am: 133). To bring something into being means to initiate its creation with no other helping means, that is, to create it without making use of something else. That is why it is not said about the one who makes an invention that he is a creator because he makes use of certain things to make his invention. He may use a material extracted from mountains, depending meanwhile on the precedent experiences. By contrast, Allah Glorified is He is the One Who creates things out of nothing. So, there are two types of bringing something non-existent into being: to create something by using existing beings or out of nothing.

The latter type, i.e. 'bringing something out of nothing' is only attributed to Allah Glorified is He and it clearly manifests the Divine Will. He the Almighty brings the human being into being through sexual intercourse between a man and a woman.

If we returned to the first creation of the human being, i.e. the creation of Adam peace be upon him we find that he was created out of the same substance of the earth, which in turn is created by Allah the Almighty. The semen of a man and the ovum of a woman are formed from blood which is an extract of the food coming from the earth. So, whether we attribute the creation of the human being to the bringing of Adam into being out of the earth or just to the normal process of the creation of his offspring, both eventually are attributed to Allah's Will.

Bringing something into being is a process of construction. Allah, the Creator, says that we are created from dust, mud, dark mud and dried clay like an earthenware. Water is added to the dust and it turns into mud. The mud is left until its colour changes and it becomes dried clay. Then, it becomes stiffer and turns into dark mud. Then, Allah Glorified is He moulded it and breathed from His Spirit into it, and then it became a human being. Lastly, death time comes and destroys life. Destruction of anything means the opposite of its construction.

To construct a building, you start from down to up, but it is destroyed from up to down. Also, if you are heading to a place, the last point you reach is the first point you start from on your way back. For example, if you are travelling to Alexandria, the last place you reached is the first place you will start from in your way back.

The first thing that goes out of our bodies at the moment of death is the Spirit, which is the last thing breathed into it. Then the body toughens and becomes like dark mud, then it rots and becomes like clay, then water vaporises and it turns into dust. Thus, according to the life stages that Allah Glorified is He has clarified for us, death stages are the reverse to those of life.

Allah the Almighty gives us a description for the stages of creating the human being inside his mother's womb, saying: 'We created man from an essence of clay, then We placed him as a drop of fluid in a safe place, then We made that drop into a clinging form, and We made that form into a lump of flesh, and We made that lump into bones, and We clothed those bones with flesh, and later We made him into other forms glory be to Allah, the best of creators!' (al-Mu'minun: 12-14) He the Almighty creates the human being inside his mother's womb in phases and stages during which he depends on his mother. Then, Allah Glorified is He puts him in another form and state of creation after he is born and granted a chance for another new life in which he does not depend on any one. In other words, the human being depends on his mother as long as he is in her womb, and then He the Almighty turns him into an independent creature. During the delivery process, the infant is head is directed downwards and it is the first thing that appears of him. Afterwards, he begins to breath. At this moment, he is separated from his mother and gains his own self. This way of delivering the baby is a Mercy from Allah the Almighty because even if the rest of his body is obstructed for a while in the womb, he will still have a chance to breathe and there will be no risk to suffer from asphyxiation while dealing with the rest of the body.

The foetus through all such phases—being a drop of fluid, a clinging form, a lump of flesh, bones and then clothing those bones with flesh—is still dependant on his mother as it is fed from her. When it is born by the Will of Allah the Almighty it is separated from its mother and begins to manage its life on its own.

Allah Glorified is He has created us out of nothing and moulded us in an upright structure and in the best stature, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: 'Who created [all things] in due proportion; who determined their destinies and guided them.' (al-A'la: 2-3) This moulding was done at the beginning to the first man who was created directly from clay. In this regard, Allah the Almighty says: '…when I have fashioned him and breathed My Spirit into him, bow down before him.' (al-Hijr: 29) He the Almighty further explains this fact in another verse, saying: '…Who gave everything its perfect form. He first created man from clay, then made his descendants from an extract of underrated[1] fluid. Then He moulded him; He breathed from His Spirit into him; He gave you hearing, sight, and minds. How seldom you are grateful!' (as-Sajda: 7-9)

Adam peace be upon him had passed through such a process of perfect forming which is mentioned in the last verse, i.e. the clay was moulded and shaped in the form of a man and then the Spirit was breathed into him. Similarly, He the Almighty perfects the formation of Adam's descendants who pass through certain stages, including being a drop of fluid, then a clinging form, then a lump of flesh and finally Allah Glorified is He breathes from His Spirit into them.

After He the Almighty brings the human being into existence and creates him from his father's semen and his mother's ovum, Allah Glorified is He gives him hearing, sight, and mind. The Arabic verb ja`al (gave) differs from the verbs 'to create' and 'to bring into being'. Creation is to bring something into being out of nothing. But ja`al linguistically means 'to make' or 'to direct'. For example, the Divine Act of creating the sun and the moon differs from making the sun a source of light, and the moon for reflecting that light.

Human beings, on their part, can make a pot or any other earthenware from clay. Also, we can use cotton for making cloth. However, these materials are not of our creation.

As for Allah the Almighty He has brought Adam out of nothing, and has created the materials from which he was created, i.e. water and dust which turned into clay. Then He the Almighty endowed him with hearing and sight to perform his mission. Thus, al-ja`l (to give /make) means to direct the creature towards its mission.

In this vein, Allah the Almighty says: 'It is Allah Who brought you out of your mothers' wombs knowing nothing, and gave you hearing and sight and minds so that you might be thankful.' (an-Nahl: 78) Those three things, i.e. the hearing, the sight, and the mind are the means and the senses needed for perception and for gaining knowledge. The master of those senses is the eyes. You can hear someone's experience about something, but when you experience it yourself, you find it different. That is why it is said, 'What is seen is more certain than what is heard'.

(1) Mahin (underrated) means something which is fiddling and of no value; it also means weak. The semen of the male is weak that anything can affect the sperms contained in it and they become unable to fertilise the female ovum. Allah the Almighty reminds the human being that he is created of such semen so that he may not become arrogant. See Al-Qamus Al-Qawim, 2/243.

Allah Glorified is He mentions first the hearing and the sight for they are the basic two means of perception. Then He mentions the 'mind' which is related to the perception of the abstract conceptions, emotions, etc. The two senses of perception, hearing and sight, are the ones which enable the human being to gain experience.

So, the means of perception are hearing, sight, and mind. What the eye witnesses represents the human being's own experience, but what he hears represents the experience of others. Therefore, the experience gained through the sense of hearing is much broader than that gained by the eyes.

The sense of hearing is the first means of perception that the human being is endowed with when he is born. If we look to a newborn baby, we find that he is not affected when something comes close to his eyes because he cannot see well. This may last for ten days, and then the process of sight begins. However, if that baby heard a sound beside him, he makes a reaction. Thus, hearing is the first sense with which Allah the Almighty endows the human being, then comes the sense of sight, then comes the 'mind'.

Al-Ja`l (giving/making) here means that Allah Glorified is He has allocated some of the human being's cells to form the eyes, some others to form the ears and the tongue. He the Almighty has set the tasks of these senses. The ears begin performing their task upon delivery, while the eyes begin after a while; the hearing first, then the sight. So, through hearing and sight, knowledge is gained, and intellectual information is constituted.

For example, when a child gets close to a fire, he is warned against touching it so that he may not be burnt. But he may not believe that and get attracted by its light. When he touches it, he gets burnt, and after that there is no need to remind him that he may get burnt by fire, for he has developed an intellectual experience. Thus, hearing came in the first place, then sight, then the mind at last. The human being's means of perceiving knowledge are the senses of hearing, sight, taste, touch, and smell. Through these five senses, he can perceive knowledge after he was born without having any knowledge.

Here arises a question, which is, ‘Why is the word hearing mentioned in the singular form, while the words ‘sight’ and ‘mind’ are mentioned in the plural in Allah’s saying: ‘…Hearing, sight and minds…’ (al-Mulk: 23)? We can say that the ears receive various sounds at the same time, but the scope of our vision is limited. When we do not need to see something, we can easily turn our eyes away, but you cannot prevent our ears from receiving sounds from everywhere. Therefore, the hearing came in the singular form, while the sight came in the plural one. Every person may see something different from the other, but the ears hear all sounds whether we are asleep or awake. Therefore, hearing is the main sense for calling or awaking someone.

Hearing and sight are the masters of the senses. In fact, the miraculous signs in the universe need the eyes to see them, and the messages of the prophets need ears to hear them. `Ali ibn Abu Taleb Allah be pleased with him drew our attention to some of the wonders relating to the creation of the human being, saying, ‘The human being is a wonderful creature; he sees through the layers of fat (the eyes), speaks through a lump of flesh (the tongue), hears through a bone (the ears) and breathes through a hole (the nose).’ Someone added, ‘Smell through a cartilage (the nose), touch through skin and thought by dough (the brain).’ When the human being is born, his brain is like a piece of dough receiving information from the universe. These pieces of information will be stored to be the base for constituting the intellectual abilities after that.

When the scholars were considering the meanings of words, they concluded a maxim: ‘If some items of the same category are spoken about differently, there must be a reason for making this difference.’ Here, the sense of hearing is one of the means of perception, and so is the sight. So, why does Allah Glorified is He talk about hearing in the singular form and about sight in the plural form? Why does not He the Almighty use one form for both?

The Speaker here is Allah the Almighty and certainly every word He says has a profound wisdom and is perfectly chosen. As a matter of fact, we hear sounds in every place around us. On the contrary, the eyes see only in one direction; if we need to look to the right, we turn our eyes to the right side, and if we need to see what is behind our backs, we change our position. So, the ears hear everything and we do not have a control or a choice to prevent our ears from hearing. However, the sight needs several processes so that we can see what we want, and we can control it by turning our eyes away or closing them.

The human being will be held accountable for what he hears by his ears, sees by his eyes and believes in by his heart, a fact which is crystal clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘Surely, ears, eyes and heart, you will be questioned about all these.’ (al-Isra’: 36) Every Muslim should know that he will be questioned on the Day of Resurrection about his hearing, sight, heart, and tongue. He should not be careless about perfecting his words and deeds so that he does not fear either in the worldly life or in the Hereafter.

Everyone is individually responsible for his hearing, sight, tongue and all the rest of his senses. He will be questioned about his own hearing, sight and heart, and not that of other people. The one who protects his tongue from saying evil and indecent words keeps his dignity and gains the respect of others, as they will value his exquisite speech. We should consider that all of one’s organs will be witnesses on what he has done, including the sins he has committed and the corruption he has caused in the worldly life, a fact which is crystal clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘…their ears, eyes and skins will, when they reach it, testify against them for their misdeeds. They will say to their skins, ‘Why did you testify against us?’ and their skins will reply, “Allah who gave speech to everything, has given us speech…”’ (Fussilat: 20-21). Therefore, the feet, the skin, and the other organs of the body will be witnesses on the Day of Judgment. In the worldly life, they are under our control, i.e. we can order our hand, saying, ‘Do this!’, our feet, ‘Go to this place!’ and our tongues, ‘Insult this person!’

Allah the Almighty subjected the body organs to their owner’s will in the worldly life. But, will we have control on them on the Day of Resurrection? No, they will be out of our control, as Allah Glorified is He says: ‘They will say to their skins, “Why did you testify against us?” and their skins will reply, “Allah, who gave speech to everything, has given us speech…”’ (Fussilat: 21). So, the organs of the human being’s body, including the hands, the feet and the skin, will speak on the Day of Resurrection. Do we consider what will they say in the Hereafter? All these organs will speak to establish the proof against those sinners. These organs were the means they used to commit their crimes. That is to say that they stole by their hands; uttered false statements by their tongues; headed towards sins with their legs; and these crimes were determined by their hearts.

As a matter of fact, the human being is composed of certain organs with specific systems that altogether constitute the human being. The whole body is managed by the mind. It orders the hands either to steal or to pat on an orphan; the eyes to either look at the beauty in the universe and to contemplate the events occurring around or to look at the unlawful. Similarly, the hands can be used either for hitting and attacking or for offering help and giving charity to the needy. The legs can walk either to the mosques or to the public houses.

The organs of the human being and his abilities are subjected to his will. He can order his tongue to say that there is no god but Allah, or to say that there is no god at all or that Allah is the third of three. The tongue obeys him and does not violate the orders. Allah Glorified is He has granted the human being this freedom and guaranteed for him the freedom of choice only because He the Almighty will hold him accountable on the Day of Resurrection: did he seek the good that Allah Glorified is He has guided him to, or the evil from which he was ordered to refrain?

One’s control on his organs will come to an end on the Day of Resurrection when Allah Glorified is He calls for His creatures and says: ‘…Who has control today? Allah, the One, the All Powerful.’ (Ghafir: 16) The organs will testify against their owners and speak as if they will be speaking tongues, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: ‘On the Day when their own tongues, hands, and feet will testify against them about what they have done.’ (an-Nur: 24)

The organs become free of the constraints of the human being’s will, and now they can complain to Allah the Almighty and say the truth they could not utter before due to being under the human being’s control. With regard to His saying: ‘…Allah, Who gave speech to everything, has given us speech…’ (Fussilat: 21), it means that Allah Glorified is He has made for everything in the universe its unique way of speech, as He the Almighty tells us about the ant which said: '…Ants! Go into your homes…' (an-Naml: 18); and the hoopoe which said: '…I have learned something you did not know: I come to you from Sheba with firm news.' (an-Naml: 22)

The organs itself have their own life and speech that we cannot comprehend, for their lives are different from ours. Allah the Almighty is the One Who created the hearing, the sight, the heart, and the tongue for us. That is why He the Almighty says in the verse in question: 'Say [Prophet], "It is He Who brought you into being, He who gave you hearing, sight and minds– what small thanks you give!"' (al-Mulk: 23) We can thank Him Glorified is He for endowing us with these organs, whether our hearing, sight or tongues, by not using them for committing sins.

As for the tongue, we have to hold it from saying evil and rude words. We talk to people by using the ability of speaking that Allah the Almighty has granted to our tongues, and if He wanted, He would have made us dumb and speechless. We, therefore, have to thank Him Glorified is He and give Him His due Praise.

In this verse, Allah the Almighty clearly tells us that we rarely thank Him for His Blessings. But in another verse, Allah Glorified is He reminds us of the Gifts He granted to us, so that we may give Him His due Praise, saying: 'It is Allah Who brought you out of your mothers' wombs knowing nothing, and gave you hearing and sight and minds so that you might be thankful.' (an-Nahl: 78)

The expression 'so that you might be thankful' means that if the orders are obeyed, a great reward will be granted. The normally expected act when a blessing is received is to give thanks. Thus, when we thank Allah Glorified is He for a blessing, we expect another blessing that cannot be attained except by giving thanks.

As we have said before, the hearing, the sight, and the minds are the means of perception. Allah Glorified is He explains to us that He has created such means of perception so that we might be thankful as we notice their impacts on ourselves, and how they help us to perceive the matters.

Giving thanks means the giving of praise to the giver of a blessing by the one who received it. As for His saying: '…what small thanks you give!', it demonstrates that there are different types of people who give thanks; some people thank Allah for all His Blessings in general, others thank Him for every blessing, and some others give Him special thanks, not only for every blessing, but for the detail of every single blessing.

Before eating, the Muslim should say, ‘In the name of Allah’ and after finishing his meal, he should say, ‘All praise is due to Allah’. Someone may say, ‘In the Name of Allah’ with every morsel he has, and may say, ‘All Praise is due to Allah’ with every morsel of food he masticates and swallows, thanking Allah the Almighty because it did not stick in his throat.

Similarly, when we drink water, we should drink it in three portions, saying, ‘In the Name of Allah’ before we drink each one, and we should say, ‘All Praise is due to Allah’ after finishing each. Who does this is not expected to commit sins as long as the benefit of this sip of water remains in his body because he said before taking it, ‘In the Name of Allah’, which will protect him from committing sins. If we ever contemplated every single blessing, we will find that it contains many other blessings.

When we do not thank Allah the Almighty for His Blessings, we lessen the number of blessings that we might get. By contrast, if we thank Him Glorified is He we will have more blessings, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: ‘…if you are thankful, I will give you more…’ (Ibrahim: 7). So, it is an act of foolishness not to thank Allah the Almighty.

As a matter of fact, the thanks are mainly given when getting a blessing. The means of perception, including the hearing, the sight, and the mind, are of His Blessings for which we should thank Him. Through these means, we are able to acquire perceptual knowledge after we were having no knowledge at all. Therefore, thanks are due to Allah the Almighty for endowing us with these means.

Allah Glorified is He did not oblige to thank Him, but He left this issue for our volition. Whenever we hear a sound, see a beautiful scene, or smell a nice smell, we should thank Him for endowing us with ears, eyes, and noses, respectively, to perceive such things. All these blessings require that we thank Allah, the All Giver.

We should look at the blessings we have and consider those who are deprived of them. We should also make a comparison between their state and ours, and how they are deprived of enjoying the blessings which we are enjoying.

Regarding Allah’s saying: ‘…what small thanks you give!’ (al-Mulk: 23), some scholars say that ‘the small thanks’ refers to the act of not giving thanks at all. But this interpretation is incorrect, for He the Almighty says that His servants do thank Him, but they give little thanks, while Allah Glorified is He wants them to thank Him endlessly for every single blessing they are endowed with.

When we see the blind who are deprived of the blessing of sight blundering in the street, we should thank Allah the Almighty that we are enjoying this blessing. In fact, we may not notice such blessings except when we see those who are deprived of them.

In order to keep a blessing, we should keep remembering of Allah the Almighty and if we want to preserve it, we should not forget that Allah Glorified is He is the Giver of that blessing and He is the Only One Who is Fully Able to keep and preserve it. As a matter of fact, the human being is not deprived of a blessing except when he fails to remember its Giver and neglects thankfulness for it.

So, the first act of wisdom regarding the blessings is to thank Allah Glorified is He as the fruit of these thanks returns to the one who gives them. The believers' thanks to Him the Almighty should be endless. To give thanks for the blessings of having a tongue and the ability to speak, we should refrain and protect our tongues from insulting and offending people. It is good to know that He the Almighty has made the teeth and lips like doors to our tongue, so why do we unreasonably open them?

In this connection, it was narrated by `Amr ibn Dinar that a man was talking in the presence of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and was extremely expatiating. So, he peace and blessings be upon him said to him, 'How many doors are before your tongue?' He said, 'My teeth and lips.' He peace and blessings be upon him said, 'Are they not enough to stop you from talking?'(1)

We should either say what is good, or keep silent. In this regard, Luqman peace be upon him said, 'Silence is a form of wisdom, yet few people practice it.’(1) Further, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, ‘He who truly believes in Allah and the Last Day should either utter good words or better keep silence.’(2)

(1) In his book, Al-Ghazali narrates this Hadith on the authority of `Amr ibn Dinar who said, 'A man was talking in the presence of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings upon him and extremely elaborated. So, he peace and blessings upon him said, 'How many barriers before your tongue?' He said, 'My lips and teeth.' He peace and blessings upon him said, 'Are they not enough to stop you from talking?' Al-Hafizh Al-Iraqi said it was narrated by Ibn Abu Ad-Dunya in this way without mentioning the Companion from whom it was transmitted, and its narrators are trusted. See Al-Ghazali, Ihya` `Ulum Ad-Din.

The best form of silence is to be like the servants of the Lord of Mercy about whom Allah the Almighty says: ‘…who, when the foolish address them, reply, “Peace”’ (al-Furqan: 63). The foolish is the silly person who speaks carelessly and irrationally and does not understand the principles of morality and good manners.

If a person foolishly talked to you, you should never answer him back in the same foolish manner. Rather, you should just admonish him gently and say: ‘…peace…’ (al-Furqan: 63), to make him feel the difference between both of you. Imam Ash-Shafi`i(3) said good words in this sense:

If a foolish man speaks, answer him nothing. Silence is better than answering.

If you retaliated, he would be pleased; and if not, out of anger, he could be dead.

If this foolish person exceeded the limits and his transgression intensified, you should stop such transgression and retaliate equally because when you treated him kindly, he did not decline. Contrarily, he regarded your kindness as weakness, and so you should show him the difference between being weak and being kind.

(1) In his Tafsir, As-Suyuti attributes this narration to Imam Ahmad ibn Hanbal Allah rest his soul who narrated that Abu Najih said, ‘Luqman peace be upon him said, ‘Silence is a form of wisdom, yet few people practice it.’ Al-Maydani said in Al-Amthal, that the Arabic word hukm means wisdom as Allah the Almighty says about Prophet `Isa (Jesus): ‘...while he was still a boy, We granted him wisdom.’ (Maryam: 12). It means that keeping silent is a form of wisdom, but few who do this. See As-Suyuti, Ad-Durr Al-Manthur, 6/519

(2) This Hadith is narrated by Al-Bukhari and Muslim in the chapter of ‘Encouragement to honour one’s neighbour’. The rest of the Hadith is: ‘And he who believes in Allah and the Last Day should treat his neighbour with kindness and he who believes in Allah and the Last Day should show hospitality to his guest.’ See Al-Bukhari, Sahih, Hadith no. 6475, 6138, 6136 and 6018; and Muslim, Sahih, Hadith no. 74/47 and 75/47

He visited Baghdad twice, and came to Egypt in 199 A.H. at the age of 49, and died there in 204 A.H. at the age of 54. He was a distinguished poet and linguist, and an authority on Arab history, Islamic Jurisprudence and Hadith. He wrote Al-Umm, Ar-Risala and Musnad, etc.

Then Allah the Almighty says:

قُلْ هُوَ ٱلَّذِى ذَرَأَكُمْ فِى ٱلْأَرْضِ وَإِلَيْهِ تُحْشَرُونَ ﴿٢٤﴾

Say, 'It is He who scattered you throughout the earth,
He to whom you will be gathered' [24]
(The Quran, al-Mulk: 24)

As a matter of fact, Allah the Almighty is the One Who scattered and spread us throughout the earth to inhabit it in full. We sometimes wonder why there are some people insisting on living in mountains and desolate bare deserts, accepting no other alternatives. They face hardships and difficulties to maintain their lives there, to the extent that you may say, 'Why do not they leave this place and go to another fertile one?' This is because Allah Glorified is He has distributed equally His Blessings all over the earth. In other words, every vertical piece of land has as much resources as the other pieces have.

We have seen the example of Yemen, Saudi Arabia and Kuwait and how their people endured the poor state that Allah Glorified is He has destined for such desert countries which were bare lands. In Yemen, for example, people suffered a lot after it was totally drowned by the flood of the dam. People of those countries narrated how much they suffered and how much life was hard. But their patience has borne fruits; these mountains and deserts became the richest countries in the world. They accepted Allah's Predestination and that is why He has rewarded them for their forbearance for the boiling hot temperature of the desert that blessing, i.e. oil without which those who are living in comfort in the worldly life would have died of cold.

Allah Glorified is He has scattered and spread out His creatures all over the earth for a profound wisdom He intended. Dhara` (scattered) means that He the Almighty created, spread out and scattered people all over the earth. He granted His creatures the ability to reproduce by themselves, whether when the females become pregnant through the males— in the case of the human beings, animals and plants—or by hatching in the case of the birds.

The verb dhara` (scattered) differs from creating in an absolute sense. It is the type of creation in which the creature is granted the ability to reproduce by itself. Allah the Almighty has created Adam peace be upon him first, then He created his descendants from him. They are consequently able to reproduce by themselves when the two spouses have sexual intercourse, a fact which is clearly manifested in His saying: ‘People, be mindful of your Lord, who created you from a single soul, and from it created its mate, and from the pair of them spread countless men and women far and wide…’ (an-Nisa’: 1). Allah Glorified is He has created from Adam and Hawwa` (Eve). Then, from both of them, He the Almighty spread many people who, in their turn, produced even more people.

Whenever a new group is brought into life, the number of the human beings grows. If we compared a population of any country one century ago to its population now, we will find the former too much fewer. For example, Egypt’s population was estimated maximally five million people one century ago; two centuries before, it was fewer, and so on and so forth. Thus, as long as we are heading to the future, the number of the people in the world is increasing as Allah Glorified is He spreads from the males and the females more men and women who will reproduce larger numbers.

We explained that the verb ‘to scatter’ means to spread out, but we notice here in the last verse that Allah the Almighty mentions ‘men’ first, saying: ‘…spread countless men and women far and wide...’ (an-Nisa’: 1). This means that ‘men’ are the ones who are responsible for exerting effort and spreading out throughout the earth. They are addressed in the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘…travel its regions; eat His provision.’ (al-Mulk: 15) Women, on the other hand, should stay in their houses to manage their affairs and to make them a place of tranquillity. This is the basic job of the woman, while the man is required to deal with the outer world. However, He the Almighty does not say ‘countless men’ only, but rather, He includes women by using the conjunction ‘and’. Women are the counterpart of men(1), yet they are not the ones who are asked to spread out in the earth.(2)

(1) `Aisha Allah be pleased with her said, ‘Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him was asked about a person who found moisture (on his body or clothes) after having a wet dream. He replied, “He should take a bath.” He was asked about a person who remembered that he had a wet dream but did not find moisture. He replied, “A bath is not necessary for him.” Umm Salama then asked, “Is washing necessary for a woman if she sees that (in her dream)?” He replied, “Yes. Women are counterpart of men.”’ See Ahmad*, Musnad, Hadith no. 26195*

(2) Sheikh Ash-Sha`rawi Allah rest his soul here means that women are not required to face the hardships and difficulties of the outer world, and it is the man’s job to keep women safe and secure. (The translator)

Those who are scattered throughout the earth are two types: those who have power to achieve their interest on their own, and those who are weak and cannot manage their own needs alone, i.e. women and orphans.

In another verse, Allah the Almighty portrays for us how such spreading on the earth ought to be, saying: ‘Another of His signs is that He created spouses from among yourselves for you to live with in tranquillity…’ (ar-Rum: 21). Allah Glorified is He originally created Adam peace be upon him from clay, which is dust mixed with water. How such clay turned into a human being of flesh and blood who has the ability to reproduce by its own? Allah Glorified is He puts this fact in His saying: ‘One of His signs is that He created you from dust and– lo and behold!– you became human and scattered far and wide.’ (ar-Rum: 20) He the Almighty created Adam peace be upon him from dust and then his descendants grew rapidly and spread out the earth. That is why the particle ‘idha’ (lo and behold), which indicates a sudden occurrence of something, is used in the aforementioned verse.

All the human beings should spread out throughout the earth and make use of Allah’s Blessings which are scattered throughout it. To spread something is to make it scattered throughout a space. This is the opposite of folding something which entails gathering it in a limited space. Thus, the space in which something is gathered is narrow, while the space available for a scattered thing is wide.

So, the human beings should spread throughout and inhabit all parts of the earth. Allah Glorified is He has ordered His believing servants to disperse in the land with the aim of seeking provision. In this regard, He the Almighty says: ‘…disperse in the land and seek out Allah’s bounty…’ (al-Jumu‘a: 10). We disperse in the land to seek Allah’s Provision in a place which is uninhabited or whose resources are not exploited yet. ‘Spreading out throughout the earth’ does not only mean to be just distributed on various parts, but here it means to work, exert effort, and extract the benefits contained in it. He the Almighty has equally distributed such benefits and provisions all over the earth.

The earth continuously gives us some of its blessings that Allah Glorified is He hid in it. At the early ages, we have known nothing but agriculture, but later, with the advancement of science and discoveries and the development of the human being's tools, we discovered minerals, oil, and other treasuries hidden in the earth.

Allah the Almighty concludes the verse in question, saying: '…He to whom you will be gathered.' (al-Mulk: 24) Here, Allah Glorified is He tells us to beware of thinking that, after He has scattered us on the earth and we inhabited all of it, we may escape from Him or that He would not be Able to gather us again. Contrarily, as He scattered us for a reason, He will, due to His Profound Wisdom, gather us, and no one can go beyond His Control.

Allah Glorified is He is the One Who is fully Able to resurrect and gather us, and no one will go against His Will, as He the Almighty says: 'Among His signs is the creation of the heavens and earth and all the living creatures He has scattered throughout them: He has the power to gather them all together whenever He will.' (ash-Shura: 29)

Al-Hashr (gathering) means to gather and assemble. The Day of Gathering is the Day when all people, from the time of Adam peace be upon him till the Day of Judgement will be gathered in one place and for one purpose. If we are complaining of the crowdedness of the earth, while we are only one of the generations, can we imagine the situation when all the beings throughout the whole ages till the Day of Judgement will be gathered?!

In this vein, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'Allah will gather all beings and say: "O My servants, prepare your arguments to facilitate your responds. You are going to be assembled, called to account and held responsible for your deeds. O My angels, tell my servants to stand in rows and on the tip of their toes because they are going to be called to account."'(1)

(1) In his Tafsir, As-Suyuti attributes this Hadith to Ibn Manda in his book, At-Tawhid. Mu`adh ibn Jabal narrated that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'On the Day of Resurrection, Allah will call and say, "O My servants, I am Allah, there is no god but Me, the Most Merciful, the Most Decisive of Judges and the Swiftest of Reckoners...' See As-Suyuti, Ad-Durr Al-Manthur, 5/400.

Then, Allah the Almighty says:

وَيَقُولُونَ مَتَىٰ هَٰذَا ٱلْوَعْدُ إِن كُنتُمْ صَٰدِقِينَ ٢٥

They say, ‘If what you say is true, when will this promise be fulfilled?’ [25] (The Quran, al-Mulk: 25)

The disbelievers reject the fact that Allah the Almighty will gather and assemble them, after they have become dust, on the Day of Resurrection. They also reject the fact that they will be held accountable for their deeds. Such denial, rejection, and sarcasm are the approach of the disbelievers and atheists throughout all ages and places. Nevertheless, Allah’s Promise is true and will be fulfilled. They ask sarcastically, ‘When will this promise of punishment be fulfilled’?

Asking, in such sarcastic manner, about the time of the fulfilment of this promise, using the word ‘when’, means that they have the feeling that such a promise will not be fulfilled. They disbelieve in the veracity of the Last Day when they will for sure stand before Allah the Almighty and will be punished for their disbelief by the hellfire which will burn their skins away, then they will be replaced with new skins.

Those who do not believe in the Day of Resurrection and the Hereafter will say: ‘If what you say is true, when will this promise be fulfilled?’ (al-Mulk: 25) The promise here refers to the coming of the Day of Resurrection. They called what Allah Glorified is He has told them about the Resurrection a ‘promise’, while it is a ‘threat’.

There is a difference between ‘promising’ and ‘threatening’; the former is used for expressing something good, while the latter expresses something bad. Though the disbelievers of Mecca were a people of eloquence, Allah the Almighty hindered their tongue from speaking well, and they said: ‘When will this promise be fulfilled?’ (an-Naml: 71), though it is a ‘threat’ for them. In fact, threating the disbelievers is simultaneously a promise for the believers.

Indeed, the promise of Allah Glorified is He will be definitely fulfilled, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: ‘What you are promised is sure to come, and you cannot escape.’ (al-An‘am: 134) When He the Almighty makes a promise, it will surely be fulfilled, and if He makes threats against something, they will surely be carried out. As we have said before, a ‘promise’, unlike a ‘threat’, entails something good.

What is awkward about their question is that they say: ‘…if what you say is true.’ (al-Mulk: 25) They forgot that breaking promises or the inability to carry out a threat is only expected from the creatures. It is an act of those who are subject to change and may change their minds so that they are no longer expected to fulfil their promises. They may have given a promise thinking that they are able to fulfil it, and then it gets out of their hand, as they cannot control all what is necessary for fulfilling the promise.

However, if the One Who gave the promise is the Omnipotent and there is no other god to stand against His promises or threats, then His promises will definitely be fulfilled and His threats will be certainly carried out. Hence, when Allah the Almighty sets a rule, the believers must take it as an absolute fact because there are no gods besides Him to change this rule, and Allah Glorified is He is not prone to change.

Let us give an example to illustrate this point; He the Almighty says: ‘May the hands of Abu Lahab be ruined! May he be ruined too! Neither his wealth nor his gains will help him: he will burn in the Flaming Fire and so will his wife, the firewood-carrier, with a palm-fibre rope around her neck.’ (al-Masad: 1-5)

This threat against Abu Lahab and his wife could have been willingly avoided on their part, yet they insisted and did not believe in Allah Glorified is He. The previous verses explain that every Muslim should not deal with this issue doubtfully and think that Abu Lahab or his wife would have repented and converted to Islam like other disbelievers who converted to Islam, such as Hind bint `Utba, and Abu Sufyan.

Allah Glorified is He surely knows to what choice Abu Lahab and his wife would incline, and both had the freedom of choice. There is no other god to change or modify what He the Almighty ruled concerning this matter. Some may mistakenly think that Allah Glorified is He will fulfil His promises, yet they can escape from Him. But He tells them that His promises will be fulfilled and they cannot escape from Him. No one can prevent Him Glorified is He from fulfilling His promises or carrying out His threats, and thus no one can escape from either of them. We cannot escape from Allah the Almighty or be out of His control, for He always prevails in His purpose.

When Allah Glorified is He makes a threat, He is fully Able to carry it out, and no one can escape from Him. His promises are also absolute and can never be broken. As the human being is subject to change, he is expected to break his promise. For example, someone may, when the time of fulfilling his promise falls due, finds himself practically or psychologically unable to fulfil it.

Conversely, when Allah Glorified is He gives a promise, it will inevitably be fulfilled because there is no other power to prevent Him from that. He the Almighty is the One Who controls all the creatures that He made subject to change, while He is Unchangeable. In this connection, He the Almighty says: ‘He is Allah: there is no god but Him. He will gather you all together on the Day of Resurrection, about which there is no doubt. Whose word can be truer than Allah’s?’ (an-Nisa’: 87) The verb ‘gather’ here means that Allah Glorified is He will bring us all together out of graves and gather us before Him. It also may mean that He the Almighty will resurrect and call us for account on the Day of Resurrection.

Then Allah the Almighty says:

قُلْ إِنَّمَا ٱلْعِلْمُ عِندَ ٱللَّهِ وَإِنَّمَآ أَنَا۠ نَذِيرٌ مُّبِينٌ ﴿٢٦﴾

Say, ‘God alone has knowledge of this:
my only duty is to give clear warning’ [26]
(The Quran, al-Mulk: 26)

Here, Allah Glorified is He instructs Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him to say: ‘Allah Alone has knowledge of this…’ (al-Mulk: 26). Yet, in another verse, He the Almighty tells him to say: ‘Say, “You have an appointment for a Day which you cannot put off or bring forward, even by a single moment.’ (Saba’: 30) Thus, only Allah Glorified is He knows the time when the Day of Judgment comes. That is why when he peace and blessings be upon him was asked, ‘When will the Hour be?’ he answered, ‘The one who is asked about it does not know more than the one who is asking.’(1)

(1) This is the Hadith of Jibril (Gabriel) peace be upon him in which he asked about faith, Islam and ihsan (the highest rank of Islam), then he asked about the time of the Hour.=

Elsewhere in the Quran, Allah the Almighty says: ‘Knowledge of the Hour [of Resurrection] belongs to Allah…’ (Luqman: 34). This interrogation about the Hour is related to the Unseen which no one has knowledge about except Him the Almighty. Therefore, the disbelievers’ question is useless. That is why when one of the Companions asked Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him about the Last Hour, he answered him, ‘What have you prepared for it?’(1) In this way, he peace and blessings be upon him drew this Companion’s attention to the point that he should ask and care about.

The disbelievers do not believe that there will be a Day of Judgement, a point which is crystal clear in Allah’s saying: ‘Still, the disbelievers say, “The Last Hour will never come upon us.” Say, “Yes, by my Lord, [it will], by Him who knows the unseen! Not even the weight of a speck of dust in the heavens or earth escapes His knowledge…”’(2) (Saba’: 3). Allah the Almighty is the only One Who has the Knowledge of the Last Hour. The Last Hour does not only mean the Day of Resurrection, but it also means the last hour of the life of every one of us. When someone dies, his last hour begins. We have no control over the Hour. When it comes suddenly, it will be disastrous, deafening, reverberating, and shaking. So, we should beware of being seized suddenly by the Hour while we are unaware of and unprepared for it.

In this vein, Allah the Almighty says: ‘People ask you about the Hour. Say, “Allah alone has knowledge of it.” How could you [Prophet] know? The Hour may well be near.’ (al-Ahzab: 63) Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him had been asked about the Last Hour many times for two reasons. First, the

= It is a long Hadith. See Al-Bukhari, Sahih, Hadith no. 50 and 4777; see also Muslim, Sahih, Hadith no. 8, 9, and10.

(1) Anas ibn Malik said, ‘While me and Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him were going out of the mosque, we met a man at the door of the mosque. He said, ‘O Prophet Muhammad! When will the Last Hour be?’ He peace and blessings be upon him said, ‘What have you prepared for it?’ The man said, ‘I have not prepared for it much of prayers or fast or alms, but I love Allah and His Messenger.’ He peace and blessings be upon him said, ‘You will be with those whom you love.’ See Al-Bukhari, Sahih, Hadith no. 7153; and Muslim, Sahih, Hadith no. 2639.

(2) The expression ‘Adhab Al-Amr’ (became hidden) means it is far, hidden and hard to find. Here, in this noble verse, it means that nothing is hidden, far or escapes Allah’s Knowledge. He knows all the minute and huge things and matters. See Al-Qamus Al-Qawim, 2/18.

people of the Book challenged him peace and blessings be upon him as they have some knowledge from their Prophets and Books. They wanted to ask him about some matters that they thought he was unaware of to put him in an embarrassing situation. They knew that he peace and blessings be upon him is illiterate; he could neither read nor write, and he never had a teacher. But Allah the Almighty has revealed the answer to him. Once he said the right answer, they felt extremely gloomy, and tried to find any other question to prove to themselves that he is ignorant.

Second, a Jew asked Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him about the Last Hour as in the chapter of al-Ahzab: 'People ask you about the Hour…' (al-Ahzab: 63) because they deny it. For them, it is better that this Day will not come so that they will not be held accountable for the grievous deeds they had committed in the worldly life, i.e. wrongfulness, disbelief, immorality, blood shedding and backbiting.

The matter of the Day of Resurrection and Reckoning is naturally clear. Only those who transgress against themselves deny that Day, for they fear the punishment that will be waiting for them on that Day, and they have nothing to do but to deny the reality of its coming. As for the saying of Allah Glorified is He: 'People ask you about the Hour…' (al-Ahzab: 63), it means that they ask, 'Does it exist or not'? If they answered affirmatively, they will say: '…if what you say is true, bring us the punishment you threaten.' (al-A'raf: 70) But the answer of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him was: 'Allah Alone has knowledge of this…' (al-Mulk: 26). Then he followed it by saying: '…my only duty is to give clear warning.' (al-Mulk: 26) It was his mission to warn the people and make this warning clear. His duty was to warn them and to convey the Message to them.

Nadheer (a warner) is the one who brings the bad tidings about something that will happen in the future. The noble verse here only talks about 'warning' because it addresses the people of wrongfulness and denial, so, the warning is more suitable than talking about glad tidings.

In other verses, Allah the Almighty describes Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him as both a bringer of good tidings and a warner, saying: 'Worship no one but Allah. I am sent to you from Him to warn and to give good news.' (Hud: 2) The warner is the one who warns about something bad which may happen so that there will be a chance to avoid the deeds leading to it. By contrast, the bringer of good tidings is the one who tells about the good which will happen if the Way of Guidance is followed.

Both the acts of warning and bringing good tidings are related to things that have not happened yet. Giving warning entails giving an alarm and it is also a form of teaching. Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him is described in the Quran by both descriptions, as a warner and a bringer of good tidings.

He peace and blessings be upon him delivers to us such warning through the Revelation of Allah the Almighty Who says: 'Use the Quran to warn those who fear being gathered before their Lord.' (al-An'am: 51)

So, He the Almighty commands him to use this revelation, the Quran, to warn those who fear to stand before Him Glorified is He on the Day of Judgment. As we said before, the word 'to warn' means to tell about something horrible that may happen before its occurrence, so that it can be avoided. In this sense, the Quran is a warning for the disbelievers. All the Messengers of Allah the Almighty are warners and bringers of good tidings, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: 'We send Messengers only to give good news and to warn…' (al-An'am: 48).

The mission of the Messengers is to warn and bring good news. So, we should not take them to a further level or rank and ask them to perform miracles or do certain actions that are beyond their control. Indeed, everything is under the Control of Allah the Almighty Alone. The purpose of giving warnings and good news is to make people remember that there is a Fire and a Paradise. That is why we find that every messenger tells those who believe from his people that they will go to the paradise, while those who disbelieve will be thrown into the fire.

The two acts of giving warn and good news make no ground for those who may argue. In this regard, Allah the Almighty says: '…they were Messengers bearing good news and warning, so that mankind would have no excuse before Allah, once the Messengers had been sent…' (an-Nisa': 165). So, the people will have no ground to argue or excuse before Him Glorified is He after the sending of messengers. No one has an excuse after being informed.

Therefore, when the people of the hell are admitted into the fire, Allah the Almighty says to them: '…were you not sent your own messengers to recite the revelations of your Lord to you…' (az-Zumar: 71). Now they have no justification for their disbelief as Allah Glorified is He has sent them Prophet Muhammad, peace and blessing be upon him, with the true Message, to lead them to the way of righteousness and its reward, i.e. to be admitted into the paradise, and to warn them against evil and its punishment, i.e. going to the hellfire.

Then, Allah the Almighty says:

فَلَمَّا رَأَوْهُ زُلْفَةً سِيٓـَٔتْ وُجُوهُ ٱلَّذِينَ كَفَرُوا۟
وَقِيلَ هَٰذَا ٱلَّذِى كُنتُم بِهِۦ تَدَّعُونَ ٢٧

When they see it close at hand, the disbelievers' faces will be gloomy, and it will be said, 'This is what you were calling for'[27] (The Quran, al-Mulk: 27)

Here, Allah the Almighty describes the disbelievers' reaction. When they see the approach of the Day of Reckoning that Allah Glorified is He has promised, their faces become gloomy because of the torture, humiliation, degradation and pain they will be suffering from. He the Almighty mentions the face in particular because their reactions appear on their faces; when they see what they are warned against, the feelings of sadness and worry appear on their faces.

In another noble verse, Allah Glorified is He talks about those darkened faces, saying: 'On the Day when some faces brighten and others darken…' (Al-'Imran: 106). It is known that the human being's deep feelings and inner thoughts are reflected on his attitude and face complexion. The face of anyone who sees his position in the hellfire will be definitely gloomy. They may have been seen with brightened faces in the worldly life, but on the Day of Resurrection they will be seen with a dusty dark face veiled in blackness. Their faces become black and they look here and there in panic, trying to find something that may ease their worries or soothes them. Unfortunately, they will find nothing but more fear and panic. Their eyes are humbled in humiliation as there is no escape or refuge for them. Allah the Almighty describes their condition in various positions in the Quran, saying: 'And their eyes will be downcast…’ (al-Qalam: 43); ‘hearts will tremble and eyes will be downcast.’ (an-Nazi‘at: 8-9), and ‘Have you heard tell [Prophet] about the Overwhelming Event? On that Day, there will be downcast faces, toiling and weary, as they enter the blazing fire and are forced to drink from a boiling spring, with no food for them except bitter dry thorns that neither nourish nor satisfy hunger.’ (al-Ghashiya: 1-7)

With regard to the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘…And it will be said, “This is what you were calling for.”’ (al-Mulk: 27), it is a rebuke for their denial of the Day of Reckoning, or for their request to see the Promise of Allah the Almighty when they said: ‘…when will this promise be fulfilled?’ (al-Mulk: 25) On the Day of Resurrection, it will be said to them, ‘This is the Promise of Allah that you were calling for and alleging that it will not come. Now you see it so close to you’.

In the verse under discussion, Allah Glorified is He uses three verbs, ‘to see’, ‘to be gloomy’ and ‘it will be said’. In the Arabic text, they are put in the past tense while the verse is talking about something that will happen in the future, that is, on the Day of Resurrection. Such linguistic technique in Arabic is used for affirmation. It is as if He the Almighty is telling us that such future incidents will undoubtedly occur so that they can be regarded as if they have already happened. What is considered future for us is, according to the Knowledge of Allah, a past as Allah Glorified is He knows all what will happen in the future. He knows everything at one time, not through a gradual process. Then Allah the Almighty says:

قُلْ أَرَءَيْتُمْ إِنْ أَهْلَكَنِيَ ٱللَّهُ وَمَن مَّعِيَ أَوْ رَحِمَنَا
فَمَن يُجِيرُ ٱلْكَٰفِرِينَ مِنْ عَذَابٍ أَلِيمٍ ﴿٢٨﴾

Say, ‘Just think – regardless of whether God destroys me and my followers or has mercy on us – who will protect the disbelievers from an agonizing torment?’ [28]
(The Quran, al-Mulk: 28)

Allah the Almighty uses this expression: ‘Say, “Just think…”’ (al-Mulk: 28), in many verses, For example, Allah Glorified is He says: ‘Say, “Just think, if Allah were to cast perpetual(1) night over you until the Day of Resurrection…”’ (al-Qasas: 71); ‘Say [Prophet], “Think: if Allah were to take away your hearing and your sight and seal up your hearts…”’ (al-An‘am: 46) and ‘Say, “You think: if the punishment of Allah should come to you, by surprise or openly…”’ (al-An‘am: 46). In the last verse, the Arabic text uses two signs referring to the second person which is a linguistic technique used to draw the attention to something. In another time, one pronoun only is used to refer to the second person to give the following meaning: ‘You tell me and provide me with certain knowledge that proves this issue’. When Allah the Almighty shows His Blessings to His creatures, He asks: ‘Tell Me what you could do if…?’ Such a question is meant to make them confess the truth.

Regarding the saying of Allah Glorified is He: ‘Regardless of whether Allah destroys me…’ (al-Mulk: 28), destruction is the opposite of life. When we say that something is destroyed, we mean it has no life, as destruction means death. It is as if Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him says to them, ‘What will you do if Allah causes death for me and my followers or bestows His Mercy and extends our life time?’ The disbelievers were wishing death to him peace and blessings be upon him and the Muslims, so He the Almighty ordered him to say to them, ‘Whether Allah causes death for me and my followers, or bestows His Mercy on us, still this will not, under any circumstances, save you from His Torment’.

So, if Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and the believers are not fully sure whether He the Almighty will shower His Mercy on them or destroy them, so imagine what will be the case with those who disbelieved? Who can save them from Allah’s torment? Do they think that the idols will save them?

No one can save or protect them but Allah the Almighty a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: ‘Say, ‘Who holds control of everything in His hand? Who protects, while there is no protection against Him, if you know [so much]?' (al-Mu'minun: 88) The protection implies three elements: a protector who accepts to protect and defend someone; the weak one who asks for protection; and the strong who wants to tyrannise.

(1) Sarmad (Perpetual) means a lasting period of time, whether night or day. Perpetual night is the very long night. It also means continuous with no interruptions. Abu `Ubayda says that anything that lasts with no interruptions, be it the life, prosperity, distress, or calamity is described as perpetual. See Ibn Mandhur*, Lisan Al-’Arab, the root Sarmad;* see also Abu `Ubayda, Majaz Al-Quran, 2/109.

Allah Glorified is He protects who asks for His Protection and helps the one who seeks refuge with Him. When someone wants to protect another from a powerful enemy, he should have the power to do so. So, who could protect the disbelievers if Allah Glorified is He wants to torment them?

Allah the Almighty says: '…who will protect the disbelievers from an agonizing torment?' (al-Mulk: 28) So, who will safeguard them against the very painful torment? When we need to evaluate an action, it should be evaluated according to its doer. This is because the doer, whether weak or strong, affects the action and determines its effect on the object who is the recipient of the action. Thus, if Allah the Almighty is the One Who is going to punish, so the Punishment must be extremely painful.

If such action of torment is attributed to Allah the Almighty Who has the absolute Power and Omnipotence to do so, it will, then, be intolerable torment. The wrongdoers will find neither helper nor intercessor to save them from such torment. No one will come and say, 'There is a person in torment, let us help him'.

Then Allah Glorified is He says:

قُلْ هُوَ ٱلرَّحْمَٰنُ ءَامَنَّا بِهِۦ وَعَلَيْهِ تَوَكَّلْنَا ۖ فَسَتَعْلَمُونَ مَنْ هُوَ فِى ضَلَٰلٍ مُّبِينٍ ﴿٢٩﴾

Say, 'He is the Lord of Mercy; we believe in Him; we put our trust in Him. You will come to know in time who is in obvious error'[29] (The Quran, al-Mulk: 29)

The Divine Name 'Lord of Mercy' indicates an intensive form of Mercy. Allah the Almighty is the Lord of Mercy in the worldly life and the Giver of Mercy in the Hereafter. Due to His Lordship over all His creatures, Allah Glorified is He shows His Mercy to all of them. He gives the sinners a respite to repent, and opens the doors of repentance for whoever returns to Him. In this verse, He the Almighty mentions His Name the 'Lord of Mercy' to remind the people about the Bounties He bestowed on them. They should have appreciated these Bounties that they received without any effort on their part.

So, the Divine Name ‘the Lord of Mercy’ entails giving all bounties and bringing up His creatures. Being created, raised up, and given all the necessities of life are enough reasons for worshipping Him the Almighty Alone without any partners. Allah Glorified is He has chosen for Himself the Name ‘the Lord of Mercy’ because His Mercy encompasses all the aspects of worship. He has sent down His Way of Guidance to adjust the humans’ life and make them lead their lives happily. In fact, His Mercy is the main wisdom behind His Legislations. In this regard, He the Almighty says: ‘It is the Lord of Mercy. Who taught the Quran.’ (ar-Rahman: 1-2) The Quran was revealed to adjust, control, and reform the humans’ life. It provides you with peace in your relationship with Allah, with yourself, and with other people. Thus, it is a form of Mercy bestowed by Allah the Almighty.

Allah Glorified is He showers anyone He likes with His Mercy. As for the disbelievers, they will not receive His Mercy as none will save them of His Punishment. The Divine Name ‘the Lord of Mercy’ is mentioned here to reassure the sinners who have committed great sins, and to remind them that their Lord is the Most Merciful. If they repented, He will accept their repentance and fulfil that with which He has promised them. Thus, all the affairs of the creation are managed within the scope of Mercy, and that is why we ought to obey and submit to Him.

As for His saying: ‘…We believed in Him...’ (al-Mulk: 29), the verb ‘to believe’ means to acknowledge and accept something. In this regard, the brothers of Prophet Yusuf (Joseph) peace be upon him said to their father: ‘…you will not believe us even if we were truthful.’ (Yusuf: 17) If the Arabic verb amana (to believe) is followed by the letter ba`, it means to have faith; if it is yet followed by the letter lam, it means to believe what someone says. Further, if it is followed by another letter, it means to give protection, as in the saying of Allah Glorified is He: ‘So let them serve the Lord of this House. Who feeds them against hunger and gives them security against fear.’ (Quraysh: 3-4)

Moreover, the Arabic verb amana (to believe) could mean to trust someone with something, as in Allah’s saying: ‘He said: “I cannot trust in you with respect to him, except as I trusted in you with respect to his brother before…”’ (Yusuf: 64). So, this verb could mean to believe in something, to believe what someone says, to give protection and reassurance or to keep a trust and pay it back. The last meaning is mentioned in Allah's saying: '…and among them there are some such that if you entrust one (of them) with a dinar he shall not pay it back to you except so long as you remain firm in demanding it…' (Al-'Imran: 75).

So, as for the saying of Allah the Almighty: '…we believe in Him…' (al-Mulk: 29), it means that the believers say that they have believed in Him the Almighty, while the people of Mecca disbelieved in Him and in His Bounties and associated false deities with Him. Not only do the believers believe in Him, but they also put their trust in Him. They rely upon no one other than Him Glorified is He. The true meaning of reliance is to work with your body and to rely on Him the Almighty with your heart. The one who works without reliance is faced with frustration.

The believers rely upon Allah the Almighty to put them under His care. They do not rely on somebody who may die tomorrow; rather, they rely on the Ever-living Who never dies the Almighty Who can never be defeated, and the All Powerful Who can never be conquered. In this regard, Allah Glorified is He says: 'And rely upon the Exalted in Might, the Merciful.' (ash-Shu'ara': 217). His Power and Mercy is for our interest. So, we must rely on the One Who loves us and appreciate our deeds. He commands us, saying: 'And rely on Allah; and Allah is sufficient for a Protector.' (al-Ahzab: 3)

Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him gave us an example of reliance by the birds, saying, 'If you all depend on Allah with due reliance, He would certainly give you provision as He gives it to birds who go forth hungry in the morning and return with a full belly at dusk.'(1) The birds go out of their nests searching for food; they go forth hungry in the morning, and return back with full bellies. They followed the ways of getting food and thus gain Allah's Provision.

(1) This Hadith is narrated on the authority of `Umar ibn Al-Khattab Allah be pleased with him. At-Tirmidhi rated this Hadith as a good, authentic one. See At-Tirmidhi, Sunnan, Hadith no. 2344; Ibn Maja, Sunnan, Hadith no. 4164; and Ahmed, Musnad, Hadith no. 205, 307 and 373.

So, if you relied on Allah the Almighty you should follow the ways that Allah Glorified is He has shown to you. If you did not find a means of gaining your provision, you should not lose hope because your Lord has Power over any means, for He is actually the Creator of the means.

As for themeaning of the saying of Allah the Almighty: '…you will come to know in time who is in obvious error' (al-Mulk: 29), the same meaning is mentioned in another verse reading: '…you will come to know who is the follower of the even path and who goes aright.' (Ta Ha: 135) This knowledge will be revealed on the Last Day, when the people go to either the Paradise or the Hell. There, they will know who was really following the Right Path; however, this knowledge then will be of no use to the disbelievers, for it will be too late. The Day of Judgment is the time for account, not that of doing deeds.

Dalal (error) in this verse means to take the wrong way that does not make you reach your destination. The word has different meanings; it could mean to vanish, as in the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'And they say: "What! When we have become lost in the earth, shall we then certainly be in a new creation?" Nay! They are disbelievers in the meeting of their Lord.' (as-Sajda: 10) It also means to be unable to reach the truth, as Allah Glorified is He describes Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him when he refused to worship idols and kept searching for the Right Path till He the Almighty guided him by the Revelation, saying: 'Did He not find you lost and guide you?' (ad-Duha: 7) He was searching for the truth till the great Favour of Allah the Almighty came to him by revealing His Way of Guidance to him.

The third meaning of 'error' is to know the truth then drift away from it, as in Allah's saying: 'A faction of the people of the Scripture wish they could mislead you. But they do not mislead except themselves, and they perceive [it] not.' (Al-'Imran: 69)

Allah the Almighty concludes the verse in question, saying: '…in obvious error.' (al-Mulk: 29) The disbelievers are in 'clear error' that is apparent to them; it takes them away from the truth and surrounds them inescapably.

Allah the Almighty consequently says:

قُلْ أَرَءَيْتُمْ إِنْ أَصْبَحَ مَآؤُكُمْ غَوْرًا فَمَن يَأْتِيكُم بِمَآءٍ مَّعِينٍ ﴿٣٠﴾

Say, 'Just think: if all your water were to sink deep into the earth who could give you flowing water in its place?' [30]
(The Quran, al-Mulk: 30)

Allah Glorified is He stores some of the water for us underground. This is not meant to hide the existing water, but rather that we find it when we miss it on the surface of the earth. The underground water solves many problems, for the ground safeguards it against evaporation and does not make us in need to build dams to save the sweet water.

Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him gave us an example of that saying, 'The similitude of guidance and knowledge with which Allah has sent me is like a rain which has fallen on some ground. A fertile part of earth has absorbed water and brought forth much grass and herbs. Another part, which is solid, held the water and Allah benefits men thereby. They drank and gave others to drink, and used it for irrigation. But some of it has fallen on a portion of sandy land which neither retains the water nor produces herbage. This is the similitude of guidance and knowledge with which Allah has sent me.'(1)

These are three kinds of earth that are given as an example of the people's level of benefiting from knowledge. The first one holds water and gives out plants. The second one keeps the water for the benefit of the people. Someone may ask, 'What is the benefit of the third one that neither keeps water nor brings forth planets? Why was it created then'? It is in fact beneficial as it leads the water to where it will settle underground. In this regard, Allah Glorified is He also says: '…and sent down water from the sky and given you drink from it. And you are not its retainers.' (al-Hijr: 22); and 'Say, "Just think: if all your water were to sink deep into the earth who could give you flowing water in its place?"' (al-Mulk: 30) Thus, if we reflect on this kind of earth, we will find that it also has a role, as He the Almighty has never created something without a purpose.

(1) This Hadith is narrated on the authority of Abu Musa Al-Ash`ari Allah be pleased with him. See Al-Bukhari, Sahih, Hadith no. 79; see also Muslim, Sahih, Hadith no. 2282.

In the same way, the people make benefit of knowledge. The fruits of knowledge could appear on some people very quickly, but regarding other people they are postponed to the following generations. Then, you should not think that the underground sweet water mixes with the salty water, for this does not happen. The sweet water runs into special tunnels; you can find it even under the Gulf salty water! This is one of the Wonders of Allah's creation that clearly shows His Great Power. Further, there is a barrier between the salty water and the sweet one above the ground, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: 'He has made the two seas to flow freely (so that) they meet: between them is a barrier which they cannot pass.' (ar-Rahman: 19-20) Likewise, there is also a barrier between the salty underground water and the sweet one.

Allah Glorified is He has made the earth suitable for us, and laid down the necessary laws for achieving that purpose. The places with no much rain have underground water to be used at the time of need. It is stored underground in order not to be evaporated by the sun.

With regard to the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'Say, "Just think: if all your water were to sink deep into the earth who could give you flowing water in its place?"' (al-Mulk: 30), one may ask, 'Can the water sink deep into the earth'? In the same connection, He the Almighty says: 'Or its waters should sink down into the ground so that you are unable to find it.' (al-Kahf: 41) The disbelievers are unable to see Allah's signs on the earth, and they are unable to attain to His Guidance. That is why Allah Glorified is He describes them saying: 'And the parable of those who disbelieve is as the parable of one who calls out to that which hears no more than a call and a cry; deaf, dumb (and) blind, so they do not understand.' (al-Baqara: 171) Their ears refused to hear the beneficial knowledge, so they are like the deaf. In fact, the deaf person is better than the one who can hear but cannot understand. The deaf, dumb, or mad persons are excused, but these people are not.

You start to think after the faculty of hearing and the rest of senses play their role. The human being is originally a sensory constitution, i.e. he sees, hears and tastes first, and then starts to think. Those disbelievers hear with their ears, but they do not understand what they hear. Allah Glorified is He describes them, saying: '...So what is [the matter] with those people that they can hardly understand any statement.' (an-Nisa': 78) This means that they cannot even come close to understanding. Thinking necessarily leads to understanding and that is why it is very strange that they cannot understand what they see every day. He the Almighty has created for them all what they can live with, and has given them intelligence to make use of in gaining their sustenance.

In the same vein, He the Almighty says: 'And We send down water from the cloud according to a measure, then We cause it to settle in the earth, and most surely, We are able to carry it away.' (al-Mu'minun: 18) We take our needs from the rainwater and the rest sinks into the earth to be stored until we need it. In this connection, He the Almighty says: 'Do you not see that Allah sends down water from the cloud, then makes it go along in the earth in springs…' (az-Zumar: 21). One of the wonders of Allah's Omnipotence is that the salty and sweet water flow in different tunnels so that they do not mix together.

The underground water is stored in natural tanks to be used if we lost sweet water or missed the rain. Allah Glorified is He also reminds us about His Ability to deprive us from this bounty, saying: '…and most surely We are able to carry it away.' (al-Mu'minun: 18) So, we should use water in the right way in order not to lose it.

Regarding Allah's saying: 'Say, "Just think: if all your water were to sink deep into the earth who could give you flowing water in its place?"' (al-Mulk: 30), the flowing water is the running water that is easy to be reached. If your water was to become sunken into the earth, who can bring it back to you?

In this verse, there is wisdom behind saying 'your water'. Although the water is attributed to the people, they cannot control it. Only Allah is fully Able to bring it, as everything is under His Control Glorified is He. If the disbelievers know this, why do they associate partners with Him? Allah Glorified is He is asking them and He knows their answer. They would say that none can bring it back to us except Him the Almighty. So, why do they worship others who cannot bring the water to them?

Allah the Almighty is fully Able to do anything; He is Able to create and destroy, to give life and cause death, to honour and degrade people, to withhold and grant abundance, and to cause benefit and harm. He is Omnipotent over all things.

Allah the Almighty reminds us that He is fully Able to deprive us from the bounty of water to take care of and use it in a way that does not destroy it. We should ask the One Who controls the entire universe and supplicate to Him. When you have no means, ask the One Who owns all the means. If you relied on Him and followed all the means that He has given to you, He will always be with you; He will help you get what you want after being hindered by the earthly means.

Allah the Almighty has sent Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him with guidance and knowledge. Some people accept this knowledge and benefit themselves and others. This kind of people are like the earth that holds water of rain and brought thus forth much grass and plants on which animals and people feed. Other people keep guidance and knowledge for others to benefit from, like the earth that keeps the rainwater for people to drink, cultivate, and from which to feed animals. The third kind of people is those who do not accept guidance or knowledge that came with him peace and blessings be upon him. This kind is like the earth that neither keeps water nor brings forth plants. It does not make benefit of the rain that falls on it, and thus the rainwater went in underground routes.

Human beings, in general, are losers, but who will be saved from the loss? Allah Glorified is He gives us the answer, saying: ‘Except for those who have believed and done righteous deeds and advised each other to truth and advised each other to patience.’ (al-’Asr: 3) So, the belief and good deeds are the way of being saved from loss. No disbeliever will be saved from Allah’s Punishment. His Mercy and Favour are the way to salvation and the paradise. None will be saved without them i.e. His Mercy and Favour. To be saved from the fire, you should repent to Allah the Almighty reform what has been corrupted, keep on His Way, and be sincere to Him.

al-Qalam

In the Name of God, the Most Merciful, the Dispenser of Mercy

The chapter of al-Qalam (1):

نٓۚ وَٱلۡقَلَمِ وَمَا يَسۡطُرُونَ ١

Nun,* By the pen! By all they write! [1]
(The Quran, al-Qalam: 1)

Islam puts the pen, the inkwell, reading and writing in a high position, as Allah the Almighty has named this chapter in question al-Qalam (The Pen) and it is also named ‘Nun’ which means the inkwell that was used in writing. The first thing that was created is the pen, and then Allah the Almighty ordered it to write everything that will happen in the world till the Day of Judgment in the Preserved Tablet. So, the pen has written everything that would happen till the Day of Judgment, including the actions, the provisions and the appointed times of death.

In this regard, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, ‘The first thing Allah created was the pen. He said to it, ‘Write.’ It asked, ‘What should I write, my Lord?’ He said, ‘Write what was decreed about everything till the Last Hour comes.’(2) This is what is meant by His saying: ‘Nun. By the pen! By all they write!’ (al-Qalam: 1)

(1) The chapter of al-Qalam is number 68 in the Quranic order and it was revealed in Mecca. All its verses are clear, including no abrogating or abrogated verses. It is also named ‘Nun’ because it starts with the same word. It was the second chapter to be revealed in Mecca and the number of its verses is 52. It was revealed after the chapter of al-`Alaq. Thus, the time of its revelation was between the beginning of the revelation and the migration to Abyssinia.

(2) This Hadith is narrated on the authority of Abu Hurayra Allah be pleased with him. See Al-Qiryabi, Al-Qadar, 1/29; and Al-Ajurri, Ash-Shari`a, Hadith no. 179.

Allah the Almighty has written what the people will do because He knows it even before it is done, for He is the Omniscient. He knows what will happen in His Universe even before it occurs. In this connection, Allah Glorified is He says: 'And there is not a town but We will destroy it before the Day of Resurrection or chastise it with a severe chastisement; this is written in the Divine ordinance.' (al-Isra': 58) Thus, everything is written and recorded in the Preserved Tablet.

As for the saying of Allah 'Nun' (al-Qalam: 1), we know that the Arabic letters are twenty-eight. In the Quran, half of them exist in the form of discrete letters at the beginning of some chapters. Some chapters begin with one of those letters, like the letter Qaf in Allah's saying: 'Qaf. By the honoured Quran' (Qaf: 1); the letter Sad in His saying: 'Sad. By the Quran containing a reminder' (Sad: 1); and the letter Nun here in the verse in question: 'Nun. By the pen! By all they write!' (al-Qalam: 1)

Some chapters yet begin with two of these letters, like His saying: 'Ha Mim.' (al-Jathiya: 1); some others begin with three letters as in His saying: 'Alif, Lam Mim.' (al-Baqara: 1); some begin with four letters: 'Alif, Lam, Mim Sad.' (al-A'raf: 1); and some begin with five letters: 'Kaf, Ha, Ya, `Ayn Sad.' (Maryam: 1).

We notice that the letter in the chapters that start with one letter is not considered a verse. The two or more letters are sometimes considered a verse, as in Allah's saying: '`Ayn Sin Qaf.' (ash-Shura: 2); 'Ta Ha' (Ta Ha: 1); 'Ya Sin' (Ya Sin: 1); 'Kaf, Ha, Ya, `Ayn Sad' (Maryam: 1) and 'Alif, Lam, Mim Sad' (al-A'raf: 1) However, these letters constitute only part of a verse in His saying: 'Alif, Lam, Mim Ra. These are the verses of the Book…' (ar-Ra'd: 1) and 'Ta Sin'. These are the verses of the Quran and the Book…' (an-Naml: 1).

These discrete letters are pronounced by their names, not their sounds as in other words. They may refer to a name, like in Ta-ha, which is said to be one of Prophet Muhammad's names.(1) The letter Nun may also refer to the

(1) There is no authentic Hadith proving that Ta Ha is one of Prophet Muhammad's names, but this was only mentioned in some books of Tafsir.

Whale, as in His saying: ‘And remember the man with the whale, when he went off angrily…’ (al-Anbiya’: 87); and Qaf may refer to a name of a mountain.

One of the miraculous aspects of the Quran is that it consists of the same letters and words of the normal speech. That is why Allah the Almighty often says after these discrete letters: ‘These are the verses of the clear Book.’ (ash-Shu'ara’: 2), and ‘These are the verses of the Quran and the Book that makes (things) clear.’ (an-Naml: 1) This means that the Quran consists of these discrete letters and their likes. Each of these letters has secrets that we have not reached yet. All the previous interpretations of these letters are just humble trials. He the Almighty mentions them many times throughout the Quran to remind us always about them.

When we want to recite these letters correctly, we must read them separately. In this regard, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, ‘I do not say Alif Lam Mim is one letter; rather, Alif is one letter, Lam is one letter and Mim is one letter.’(1) To emphasise this meaning, these letters must be recited separately.

These letters are the main components of the words of the Quran. Let us give an example for this; if you have some textile workers and you want to know the most skilful one among them, you must give them the same material. It is not accepted to give someone of them cotton, the other wool and the third silk, that is to say that it is not accepted to give them different materials. Silk, for example, will be naturally softer. If you really want to know the most skilful one, give them all the same material. In the same sense, the Quran is miraculous because it is formed from the same letters that they use; however, they could not meet its challenge. The Quran used their letters and words, and put them in such an eloquent way that they could not bring even one chapter like it.

The Quran was revealed in Arabic and challenged the Arabs who were then the people of eloquence and magnificent ways of expression and styles. It was revealed among the people of Quraysh whose dialect enjoyed all the accents of the Arabic tribes. There were among them very strong disbelievers, but none of them asked about the meaning of 'Alif Lam Mim' or 'Ha Mim'. If they had found that these discrete letters give them a chance to attack the Quran, they would have never missed this opportunity. But in fact, they have never asked about them which proves that they understood these letters and knew that they have a meaning. At least, they considered them letters for attracting attention, like what they were using in their poetry and speech.

(1) This Hadith is narrated on the authority of `Abdullah ibn Mas`ud Allah be pleased with him. See At-Tirmidhi, Sunnan, Hadith no. 2910; and Ibn Al-Mubarak, Az-Zuhd, Hadith no. 808.

Some scholars have said that the letter Nun at the beginning of this verse refers to the whale. That is why Prophet Yunus (Jonah) was named Dhan-Nun (The man of the whale) in Allah's saying: 'And remember the man with the whale, when he went off angrily…' (al-Anbiya': 87).

Then Allah Glorified is He says: '…By the Pen…' (al-Qalam: 1). Here, He the Almighty swears by the pen, as He swears by whatever He wants about whatever He wants. The oath is used to emphasise something because someone has doubts about it. Allah Glorified is He has taken oaths by many things in the Quran. He swears by the figs, the olives, the Quran etc.

In some verses, the word La (no) precedes the oath, as in Allah's saying: 'Nay! I swear by this city. And you shall be made free from obligation in this city—And the begetter and whom he begot. Certainly, We have created man to be in distress.' (al-Balad: 1-4), the word 'nay' refutes their allegation, and then comes the oath to emphasise the issue that He states. It means that the disbelievers have no right to deny it.

So, Allah Glorified is He swears by whatever He likes about whatever He wants. He has sworn by the sun, by the places of the stars, and with the falling star. He is fully Aware of His creatures; none knows the greatness of a creature better than the One Who created it. He the Almighty knows the purpose for which He created these creatures. However, He ordered us not to take oaths except by Him.

In this verse, Allah Glorified is He swears an Oath to emphasise the meaning. In this regard, one of the righteous people said, 'Who provoked the Anger of the Most Gracious and made Him take an Oath'. He the Almighty does not swear except to stress a great matter. The human beings take an oath to emphasise the truthfulness of their speech. By contrast, Allah Glorified is He is the All Truthful, and He does not need any Oath to fulfil His Promises. So, what if He takes an Oath?

Thus, He the Almighty swears here by the pen by which we write. That is why he said afterwards: '…and all what they write.' (al-Qalam: 1) Al-Qalam (pen) also means a 'lot' which people use to cast lots if they differed about something. In this regard, He the Almighty says: '…when they cast their pens (to decide) which of them should have Mary in his charge…' (Al-'Imran: 44). It is also mentioned in the Quran in the plural form, as in His saying: 'And were every tree that is in the earth (made into) pens and the sea (to supply it with ink), with seven more seas to increase it, the words of Allah would not come to an end...' (Luqman: 27). In the past, pens were made from the branches of trees, not from the plants that do not have trunks.

Then, Allah the Almighty says: '…and all what they write.' (al-Qalam: 1) Some scholars said that this refers to what the angels write of the deeds of the humans. Others said it is what He the Almighty prescribed for the benefit and the interest of His creatures.

Allah Glorified is He tells us that the angels write our deeds, as He says: 'And most surely there are keepers over you; Honourable recorders. They know what you do.' (al-Infitar: 10-12); '…surely Our messengers write down what you plan.' (Yunus: 21), and 'Or do they think that We do not hear what they conceal and their secret discourses? Aye! And Our messengers with them write down.' (az-Zukhruf: 80) Thus, the angels record all what the humans do; they then keep that in books that Allah Glorified is He keeps in a way that is unknown to us. On the Day of Judgment, it will be said to the human being: 'Read your book; your own self is sufficient as a reckoner against you this day.' (al-Isra': 14)

The writing of the angels is not in the way we are familiar with; it even records the voice and every breath. On the Last Day, everyone will find what he has done, and will read his book by himself, in order not to have any argument. In this vein, Allah the Almighty says: 'And the Book shall be placed, then you will see the guilty fearing from what is in it, and they will say: "Ah! Woe to us! What a book is this! It does not omit a small one nor a great one, but numbers them (all); and what they had done they shall find present (there); and your Lord does not deal unjustly with anyone."' (al-Kahf: 49)

The angels write both the good and the bad deeds. The pronoun in the saying of Allah Glorified is He: '…what they write.' (al-Mulk: 1), refers to the angels. In this regard, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'When it is Friday, the angels stand at the gate of the mosque and keep on writing the names of the persons coming to the mosque in succession according to their arrivals. The example of the one who enters the mosque in the earliest hour is that of one offering a camel (in sacrifice). The one coming next is like one offering a cow, and then a ram, and then a chicken and then an egg respectively. When the Imam comes out (for the Friday Prayer) they (i.e. angels) fold their papers and listen to the khutba (preacher sermon).'(1)

Then Allah Glorified is He says:

مَآ أَنتَ بِنِعۡمَةِ رَبِّكَ بِمَجۡنُونٖ ٢

Your Lord's grace does not make you
[Prophet] a madman[2] (The Quran, al-Qalam: 2)

The mad person is the one whose mind is out of order. Unlike the sane person, he does consider things purposelessly; his speech is inharmonious; his deeds are not straight; and he has no restrictions as to what he takes or leaves. He has lost the intellectual balance by which he chooses from among the alternatives. For this reason, he is exempted from the religious obligations. In other words, as the insane person does not have the ability to choose, Allah the Almighty exempts him from these religious obligations.

Now, let us compare the insane person with the sane one; the highest stage that the sane person can reach is to say what he wants without being accounted or objected to. In fact, the insane person reaches this stage; none objects to his words and if he makes something wrong, none holds him accountable. Similarly, he will not be accounted on the Day of Judgment.

Thus, the insane person's deeds are not balanced and his intellect is not controlling him. His mind has no ability to realise or choose from among the alternatives. He does whatever comes into his mind without thinking. That is why we do not account him for his actions, even if he hits or insults someone. All what we do is to smile and ask Allah the Almighty to keep us safe from that which has afflicted him.

(1) This Hadith is narrated on the authority Abu Hurayra Allah be pleased with him. See Ahmad, Musnad, Hadith no. 10568; Al-Bukhari, Sahih, Hadith no. 929; and Al-Bayhaqi, As-Sunnan Al-Kubra, Hadith no. 5862

In the verse in question, Allah the Almighty categorically refute the claim that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him is mad. Allah's Favour here means the Book and the Wisdom that was revealed to him peace and blessings be upon him. It is the Right Path that he, by Allah's Favour, was guided to after being lost, searching for guidance. The one who is guided by the favour of Allah the Almighty is not mad by any means.

The mad person acts without logic; he laughs, cries and hits the people unreasonably. So, have you, O people of Quraysh, seen Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him doing any of such actions?

Moreover, the favour of Allah the Almighty upon him peace and blessings be upon him is not magic as some of them claimed, for he does not force them to believe by using such alleged magic. Further, the Quran is not the words of a soothsayer, as he peace and blessings be upon him was brought up among his people, and they all knew that he is truthful and honest, and that none has taught him. Besides, the words of the soothsayers have special tones and characteristics which are different from that of the Quran.

The people of Quraysh knew that the Quran could not be the words of a mad person because the speech of such a person is harmonious. Have they seen anything that shows that Prophet Muhammad's deeds are inharmonious? Of course not!

The mad person has lost the intellectual balance by which he chooses among the alternatives. Then how could they say that Messenger Muhammad peace be upon him is mad although he has lived among them? They knew that he has never lost his intellectual balance; they named him the Truthful and the Honest; they even kept their valuable things with him, although they disbelieved in him.(1)

(1) Ibn Ishaq said that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him told his cousin `Ali that he would migrate to Medina, and ordered him to remain in Mecca to return the trusts to their owners. Everyone had a precious thing was keeping it with Prophet Muhammad because of what was known of his honesty and truthfulness. `Ali remained for three days in Mecca to return the trusts and then he migrated to Medina. See Ibn Hisham, As-Sira An-Nabawiyya, 1/485 and As-Suhayli, Ar-Rawd Al-Unuf, 4/153

They have wronged him peace and blessings be upon him when they brought illogical accusations against him. Allah the Almighty has advised those who accuse him, saying: 'Say, "I only advise you of one [thing] - that you stand for Allah, [seeking truth] in pairs and individually, and then give thought." There is not in your companion any madness. He is only a Warner to you before a severe punishment.' (Saba': 46)

Each two of them should sit together and think: is Muhammad mad or sane?! All of them will then realise, out of their experience, that he is the most honest person; otherwise they would not have called him 'the Honest' even before the coming of the Revelation. Further, it is inconceivable that the Revelation affected him or made him lose his intellectual balance.

Thus, Prophet Muhammad's behaviour has nothing to do with madness, for the mad person does not know what he does and his actions are unreasonable. We cannot accuse such a mad person of anything like lying because his means of making choices is not working and his actions are inharmonious. For example, he may smile to you and hit you at the same time, and he may give you something then spit in your face. Thus, Allah the Almighty advises those who accused Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him of madness to consider the matter wisely to come to the fact that he cannot be mad by any means.

Madness entails that the person acts unwisely and aimlessly without considering the consequences of his actions. As for the sane person, he organises his actions wisely and examines them carefully. His intellect leads him to the good actions, and he treats the people in a harmonious, right way. So, did any of the disbelievers find any unreasonable behaviour on the part of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him? No, they did not.

Thus, Allah Glorified is He advises them to stand for Him in pairs and individually and to study Prophet Muhammad's behaviours. Then, they will find that his behaviour is logical and even built on perfect manners. It is far more different from the behaviour of a madman who has no restrictions that control his unreasonable actions.

Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him was not the only one to be accused of madness; many Prophets before him were accused of madness as well, a fact which is crystal clear in the saying of Allah Glorified is He: ‘Thus there did not come to those before them a Messenger but they said: “A magician or a mad man.”’ (adh-Dhariyat: 52) That is, previous messengers were also accused of magic, despite the fact that these two characteristics cannot be found in a prophet because he is an example in his behaviour. There was no sign that indicates that he peace and blessings be upon him was a madman or a magician. Moreover, madness contradicts with magic; how could they accuse him with both?

Besides being mad, they also accused him of being a soothsayer, but He the Almighty refutes their allegations, saying: ‘Therefore continue to remind, for by the grace of your Lord, you are not a soothsayer or a madman.’ (at-Tur: 29). In the chapter of as-Saffat, they accused him of being a mad poet, saying: ‘…What! Shall we indeed give up our gods for the sake of a mad poet?’ (as-Saffat: 36). How could he organise the ideas and the verses of the poetry while being mad?! The problem then lies in their illogical thinking.

Allah Glorified is He relieves Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him by saying: ‘We know that you, [O Muhammad], are saddened by what they say. And indeed, they do not call you untruthful, but it is the verses of Allah that the wrongdoers reject.’ (al-An’am: 33). In addition to relieving him, He the Almighty gives him peace and blessings be upon him the examples of the previous Prophets in order that he does not feel sad for the disbelievers’ accusations and disbelief. It is as if He the Almighty says to him, ‘I know that you feel sad because of their disbelief and accusing you of being a poet, a magician, a madman, a liar and a soothsayer. Do not be sad, O Muhammad! You are innocent from what they say, and they know that you are truthful and honest, but they are jealous of what Allah has given you’. They disbelieve in the Quran because it orders them to abandon the false deities they worship, and to devote themselves to worshipping Allah, Alone.

Then Allah the Almighty relieves Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him from this sadness, saying:

وَإِنَّ لَكَ لَأَجۡرًا غَيۡرَ مَمۡنُونٖ ۝٣

You will have a never-ending reward [3]

Allah the Almighty has prepared Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him for carrying out the Message with steadfastness, and promised him with everlasting reward. This means that the reward of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him is neither interrupted nor limited. He will have a great and unlimited reward for his patience for the disbelievers' harm.

This reward is a favour from Allah Glorified is He; it far exceeds the reward of the deed itself. That is why Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'None amongst you can get into paradise by virtue of his deeds alone.' They asked Allah's Messenger, 'Not even you?' Thereupon he said, 'Not even I, but that Allah should wrap me in His Grace and Mercy.'(1) In this regard, He the Almighty says: '…and if not for the favour of Allah upon you and His mercy, you would have been among the losers.' (al-Baqara: 64) Therefore, Allah Glorified is He gives you more than what you deserve. All your good deeds do not fulfil the due right of one of Allah's Graces upon you. So, you should not depend on your deeds, for you will not enter paradise except by Allah's favour.

Even the martyrs who sacrificed their lives, which is the most precious thing they have, for the sake of Allah Glorified is He will enter the paradise by His favour, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: 'Rejoicing in what Allah has given them out of His Grace and they rejoice for the sake of those who, (being left) behind them, have not yet joined them, that they shall have no fear, nor shall they grieve.' (Al-'Imran: 170) If this is the case with the martyrs who are in the highest level of the paradise, what about those who are lower in rank than them?!

Thus, Allah's Favour encompasses all the people, as He says: '…most surely Allah is Gracious to people, but most people are not grateful.' (al-Baqara: 243).

(1) This Hadith is narrated on the authority of Abu Hurayra Allah be pleased with him. See Al-Bukhari, Sahih, Hadith no. 5673 and 6463; and Muslim, Sahih, Hadith no. 2186.

That is why we ask Him the Almighty to treat us with His favour rather than His Justice, and with His Goodness rather than the Balance. That is because our deeds are not enough to make us enter the paradise and His Justice may ruin us. So, we should look forward to His Favour and Grace.

However, Allah's favour is conditional on doing good deeds. When you make a good deed, your Lord doubles its reward for you many times. So, we will only be saved by His Mercy and Favour. The true believer does not feel arrogant for his good deeds; rather, he feels happy for Allah's Favour and Mercy. It is as if he is saying to his Lord, 'I am not relying on my deeds, but on Your Mercy and Favour. The acts of worship that you ordered me to do is nothing, if compared to Your favours upon me. They cannot fulfil You Right upon me. If you admit me into the paradise, this is a great Favour from You'. Thus, if we think wisely, we will come to the fact that the reward in the Hereafter is a mere favour of Allah Glorified is He and thus the person should only be happy when he is included among those who receive His Favour and Mercy.

In the verse in question, Allah Glorified is He says to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him that the reward of his patience for conveying the Message and enduring the disbelievers' harms is guaranteed. That is why He says: 'You will have a never-ending reward.' (al-Qalam: 3) He the Almighty emphasises this fact by using two particles, namely; inna and a-lam (indeed).

Prophet Muhammad's everlasting reward includes the lasting blessing of Allah upon him, and the supplication of the angels and the believers for him. In this regard, He the Almighty says: 'Surely Allah and His angels bless the Prophet; O you who believe! Call for (Divine) blessings on him and salute him with a (becoming) salutation.' (al-Ahzab: 56). Allah's Blessing for him peace and blessings be upon him is a comprehensive and all-inclusive. It suffices that He the Almighty has made him the last Prophet.

Then Allah Glorified is He describes Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him saying:

وَإِنَّكَ لَعَلَىٰ خُلُقٍ عَظِيمٍ ﴿٤﴾

Truly you have a strong character [4]

The disbelievers of Mecca were accusing Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him of being mad. However, does a madman have great morals?! Allah the Almighty has created and endowed him peace and blessings be upon him with great morals. Further, Allah Glorified is He has prepared him to receive the Message with steadfastness, and promised him to have an uninterrupted reward.

Having a great moral character means that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him understands and reacts to the ongoing actions in the perfect way, and none can do this except a sane person. The disbelievers of Mecca all agreed that his morals are great, then how can they accuse him of being mad?! How can an insane person have an appropriate, good behaviour? This shows that all their accusations came out of their insistence on disbelief, and are not based on tangible proofs. They attested to the opposite of what they accused him. All the prophets faced the same accusation from their people who wanted to refute the veracity the Message of Truth with which the Prophets came.

Having great morals means that Prophet Muhammad's behaviour is controlled with values and that he naturally behaves in a moral manner. When you describe someone of being benevolent, you mean that benevolence is part of his character; he gives charities very easily. If the disbelievers examined Prophet Muhammad's behaviour singly and in pairs, they would find that it is based on a perfect moral character that cannot for sure be attributed to a madman.

The morals are the characteristics that qualify the human being to live peacefully in a sound community. When one's morals are sound, this means that his criterion of judgment is sound as well. That is why Allah the Almighty has mentioned the intellect and the morals together, saying: 'Your Lord's Grace does not make you [Prophet] a madman: you will have a never-ending reward, truly you have a great moral character.' (al-Qalam: 2-4) When someone has good morals, this means that he has some characteristics such as honesty and truthfulness that keep him on the right, moral way. The intellect puts these morals in their right positions according to the situation, which may need strength, softness, and wisdom.

A madman cannot have good morals because he has no ability to choose from among the alternatives. That is why Allah the Almighty does not put him into account for his actions, or do the people do so. He cannot choose the right action in each situation. Thus, Allah Glorified is He has refuted the claim that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him is mad, and approved that he has great morals.

We do not hold the mad person accountable for his action even if they are rude ones. Someone may ask, ‘How does Allah deprive someone of the intellect by which He has honoured the human beings?’ To recognise the Divine Justice and Wisdom in this matter, we should draw a comparison between the sane and the insane people. The sane person is accounted for every action he does, whatever minor it is. The greatest rank that he can reach in the worldly life is to do whatever he wants without hearing objections from here and there. Do you not see that the insane person enjoys the same rank? He says and does whatever he likes without being asked in this worldly life or in the Hereafter. Is this not a sufficient compensation for him? So, we should not look at what was taken from him, but rather try to see the merits that he was given in this worldly life and in the Hereafter.

The mad person neither thinks about his actions nor chooses from among the alternatives, for he has no control over his will and behaviour. Did the disbelievers recognise any of the characteristics of insanity in Prophet Muhammad’s behaviour? Allah Glorified is He has refuted their claim, saying: ‘Nun. By the pen! By all they write! Your Lord’s Grace does not make you [Prophet] a madman: you will have a never-ending reward—truly you have a strong character—and soon you will see, as will they.’ (al-Qalam: 1-5)

A madman cannot have good manners because they only stem from the balanced faculties that make the person incline towards goodness. So, how can Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him be mad, while he was of great moral character? Did they notice any of the characteristics of madness in his behaviour? Further, if he was mad, how could they entrust him with the most precious things they owned? How could they call him ‘the Truthful’ and ‘the Honest’? They did so because they knew his great morals which are firm and well established. They should have judged him according to his morals without considering the Message that he came with because morality has only one criterion. Could any of them accuse him of a bad moral? Of course not! If so, they should not have questioned his intellect as well because the intellect is the criterion and the essence of morality. Thus, Prophet Muhammad’s great morals are the most compelling evidence of his sanity.

Apart from the behaviour of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him an insane person cannot speak or act reasonably. As the disbelievers of Mecca were well aware of his good manners, truthfulness and honesty, how could they accuse him of insanity? Having a good moral character makes the person incline to goodness and rectifies his behaviour. So, how can he peace and blessings be upon him be of a great moral character and simultaneously insane? This is sheer contradiction.

When `Aisha Allah be pleased with her was asked about the morals of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him she said, ‘His morals were those of the Quran, have you not read in the Quran: ‘Truly you are of a great moral character.’ (al-Qalam: 4)?(1) This is how she Allah be pleased with her described him. As for Khadija, she described him peace and blessings be upon him and his morals at the beginning of Revelation. She encouraged and supported him, saying ‘Never! By Allah, Allah will never disgrace you. You keep good relations with your kith and kin, help the poor and the destitute, serve your guests generously, and assist the deserving calamity-afflicted ones.’(2) How would Allah Glorified is He disgrace him with all these good attributes?

His wife, Khadija, believed in him peace and blessings be upon him before hearing one verse of the Quran, and so did his friend Abu Bakr Allah be pleased with him and the early believers. This is because they depended on his previous history before being a prophet. They knew for sure that the one who does not lie about the people can never lie about his Lord. Abu Bakr Allah be pleased with him believed in Messenger Muhammad's prophethood as soon as he heard about it. He also unhesitatingly believed in his Night Journey. When he was asked about this, he said, 'We believe him in a greater matter, that is, the Revelation, so how can we not believe him in other matters? If he said it, he is truthful.'(1)

(2) This Hadith is narrated on the authority of ‘A’isha Allah be pleased with her. See Al-Bukhari, Sahih, Hadith no. 3; see also Muslim, Sahih, Hadith no. 160.

It is thus crystal clear that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him had great morals that made the people believe him in all what he says. He said about himself, 'My Lord has taught me good manners properly.'(2) Thus, he has reached the peak of good manners because he was brought up and educated by his Lord, Allah Glorified is He.

One of his attributes was that he used to sit with his Companions and look at all of them equally. He never gave any of them more attention than the other. By so doing, no one of them would think that he peace and blessings be upon him favoured him over the others. He used to sit with the righteous people whom he knew that they would not exploit such a status to have authority over the people. When he shook hands with anyone, he used not to pull his hand till the other one does.(3) This is one of the great morals that Allah Glorified is He has taught him.

Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him used to sit where he finds an empty place, and so did his Companions. None of them sat beside him all the way so that none could think that these companions have higher positions than the others. All of them were equal.

In addition, 'Ali ibn Abu Taleb Allah be pleased with him described Prophet Muhammad's morals in the gatherings, saying, 'When he visited people, he used to sit where he finds a place. He used to sit on ground and eat on ground. He sometimes milked the sheep. He accepted the invitations of the kings.'(1) How great these morals are! He peace and blessings be upon him used to sit in any place. In this way, he gave his Companions the best example that makes them meet different people every time they sit with him. Through these gatherings and encountering different believers daily, they integrated with each other as a faithful community.

(2) In his book, As-Suyuti ascribes this Hadith to Ibn As-Sam`ani in his book Adab Al-Imla` on the authority of Ibn Mas`ud. Al-Albani graded it as weak. See Al-Albani, Da`if Al-Jame`, Hadith no. 249.

(3) A Hadith to this effect is narrated on the authority of Anas ibn Malik Allah be pleased with him. See Ibn Maja, Sunnan, Hadith no. 3716; and Ibn Al-Mubarak, Az-Zuhd, Hadith no. 392.

Look how humble he peace and blessings be upon him was! Despite his prophethood and messenger-ship, He used to carry his own things by himself. If any of his companions offered to carry it, he would refuse and say, 'The owner should carry his own things.'(2) This shows how humble and far removed from arrogance he was.

In this connection, Anas ibn Malik, who enjoyed serving Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'I have served Prophet Muhammad for ten years, he has never asked me why did I do this or did not do that.'(3)

Moreover, Zayd ibn Haritha was greatly affected with Prophet Muhammad's good manners to the extent that he refused to leave him in order to return back to his family. He was one of the people of Banu Kalb and the thieves kidnaped and sold him as a slave. Hakim ibn Hizam bought him for Khadija, the wife of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and she gifted him to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him to serve him. One day, one of his people saw him in the streets of Mecca and told his family. Zayd's father went quickly to Mecca searching for his son till he found him. He told him peace and blessings be upon him the story of Zayd and asked him to let him return to his people. He peace and blessings be upon him loved Zayd very much, but he gave him the freedom to choose between him and his family. He said to his father, 'Give him the choice; if he chooses, you take him, but if he chooses to stay with me, I will be like his father.' Zayd replied, 'I can never choose anyone other than the Messenger of Allah.'(1) This choice was out of what he had seen of Prophet Muhammad's good manners about which Allah the Almighty says: 'So by mercy from Allah, [O Muhammad], you were lenient with them. And if you had been rude [in speech] and harsh in heart, they would have disbanded from about you. So, pardon them and ask forgiveness for them and consult them in the matter…' (Al-'Imran: 159).

His nature was suitable for his mission, as it helped him face his people's refusal to believe in Islam and his prophethood. Although such a refusal can provoke anyone's anger he peace and blessings be upon him did not become angry because of the nature of his character which made him deal mercifully with his ummah.

Allah Glorified is He softened Prophet Muhammad's heart towards his ummah, which caused him a great deal of grieve reminding him about his merciful nature and kind heart, and urging him to keep this nature and not to act against it. Thus, He the Almighty endowed him peace and blessings be upon him with the mercy that suits his task and ordered him to forgive his ummah and be lenient with them.

The mercy in his heart is what attracted the hearts of the believers to him. This is besides his great manners, humbleness, kind smile, supporting look and considering their conditions. Out of his great moral character, when he peace and blessings be upon him shakes hands with someone, he does not pull his hand until the other person does so. All these great morals made him overlook their faults because he is their teacher. This requires not being angry at all their faults.

Due to the mercy that Allah the Almighty conferred on him peace and blessings be upon him he was lenient towards the people and that is why they loved and followed him. If he had not been merciful, all the people would have dispersed from around him.

All of Prophet Muhammad's actions prove that mercifulness is one of his natural characteristics. One of the situations that show his mercy and forgiveness is the way he treated the people of Mecca when he opened it. When those who harmed became under his control, he forgave them. He said to them, 'O people of Quraysh! What do you think I am about to do with you?' They said, 'We think you will treat us well, you are a noble brother, the son of a noble brother.' He said, 'Then go; you are free.'(1) He did so even though they arrogantly and stubbornly rejected the Truth and forced him to leave Mecca, the most beloved city to his heart. On that day, he entered the city as a triumphant and was able to eliminate them all. However, he was not sent to do so, but rather to relieve and honour them.

Out of his great morals, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said to them, 'Go, you are free!' What a great merciful and lenient person he is! It is Allah Glorified is He Who bestowed this mercy and leniency on him peace and blessings be upon him. Would such a great Prophet be rejected and denied! Despite the fierce enmity and aggressiveness showed by the disbelievers of Mecca towards him and their continuous endeavours to harm him, he peace and blessings be upon him used to invoke Allah the Almighty to guide them, saying, 'O Allah, guide my people, for they do not know!'(2) He also used to say, ‘I hope that Allah will let them beget children who will worship Allah Alone, and will worship none besides Him.’(1) This actually has come to pass and most of his people were guided to belief.

(2) During the Battle of Uhud, Prophet Muhammad's teeth were broken and his face was hurt. This was very difficult for the prophet's companions, so they said, 'O Prophet Muhammad, would you not invoke Allah to destroy them?' He replied, 'I was not sent to curse people, but as a mercy. O Allah, guide my people for they do not know.' This Hadith is narrated by Al-Bayhaqi in Shu`ab Al-Iman in the same wording on the authority of 'Abdullah ibn 'Ubaid. Al-Bayhaqi commented, 'It is a mursal Hadith (The name of the Companion is not mentioned in the chain of narrators).' He narrated another short narration which he attributed to Prophet Muhammad through an uninterrupted chain of narrators on the authority of Sahl ibn Sa`d, stating, 'O Allah, guide my people for they do not know!' See Manahil As-Safa Fi Takhrij Ahadith Ash-Shif'a, 1/60.

The people of Mecca were well acquainted with Prophet Muhammad’s moral character and behaviour. Although they had bitterly fought him and tortured the earlier Muslims, he used to recommend his followers to maintain good relationships with their disbelieving relatives and to treat them well, regardless of their disbelief in Allah the Almighty.

Let us offer an example in this regard; although the mother of Asma` bint Abu Bakr, whose name was Qatila,(2) was still a disbeliever, Asma` Allah be pleased with her asked Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him whether she was permitted to give her some money for food. She said to him peace and blessings be upon him ‘My mother has come to me and she desires to receive a reward from me. Shall I keep good relations with her?’ He peace and blessings be upon him said, ‘Yes, keep good relations with her.’(3)

Such are the lofty morals preached by Islam. Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him used to abide by this high moral standard even in his dealings with the disbelievers. Moreover, He ordered the Muslims to follow the same manner in dealing with their disbelieving parents who try their best to convert their Muslim children to disbelief again.

(1) When Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him went to At-Ta`if and called them to embrace Islam, they rejected his call, harshly responded to him and threw stones at him to the extent that his feet were severely injured. Being overwhelmed with excessive sorrow, he departed and proceeded on, and could not relax till he found himself at Qarn Ath-Th`alib. The angel of the mountains called him saying, ‘Allah has heard your people’s saying to you, and what they have replied back to you. If you like, I will let Al-Akhshabayn (i.e. two mountains) fall on them.’ He peace and blessings be upon him said, ‘No, but I will wait, hoping that Allah will let them beget children who will worship Allah Alone.’ See As-Suhayli, Al-Huda Wa Ar-Rashad, 5/90.

(2) She is Qatila bint `Abd Al-`Uzza ibn `Amir ibn Lu`ay. She was a woman from the tribe of Quraysh. She was the wife of Abu Bakr As-Siddiq and the mother of `Aisha bint Abu Bakr and Mohamad ibn Abu Bakr. Abu Bakr divorced her before the advent of Islam. Once she brought presents to her daughter, but the latter refused to accept them as the former was still a disbeliever. Afterwards, she embraced Islam and migrated to Medina.

(3) See Abu Dawud Al-Tayalisi, Musnad, Hadith no.1748; Ahmad, Musnad, Hadith no. 26945 and 26939; As-Shafi`i, As-Sunnan Al-Ma`thura, Hadith no. 529; At-Tabarani, Al-Mu’jam Al-Kabir, Hadith no. 203 and 342; Al-Bukhari, Sahih, Hadith no. 2620; and Muslim, Sahih, Hadith no.1003.

Having observed his morals and lofty character, `Aisha Allah be pleased with her said about Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him ‘His character was (an application of the morals of) the Quran.’ `Aisha used to feel jealous of the late Khadija, Prophet Muhammad’s first wife. One day, Fatima, the daughter of Prophet Muhammad, went to her father while she was very angry. He peace and blessings be upon him said to her, ‘O my beloved daughter, what makes you angry?’ She replied, `Aisha said to me, ‘The Messenger of Allah married your mother after she had been previously married, but I was the only virgin among all his wives.’ He peace and blessings be upon him said to Fatima, ‘Should she say this again, say to her, ‘But my mother married Allah’s Messenger while he was still a virgin and you married him while he was previously married.’(1) This was his prophetic comment. `Aisha never said this again.

Out of his lofty character, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him used to say to his Companions, ‘None of my Companions should convey to me anything regarding another one because I desire to meet every one of you with a clean heart.’(2) This means that he peace and blessings be upon him did not want to develop a feeling of hatred or enmity towards any one so that he could deal with all people fairly and generously to an extent which may lead a sinner or disobedient person to return in repentance to Allah Glorified is He and follow the Straight Path.

(1) `Aisha used to feel jealous of Khadija even though Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him married `Aisha after the death of Khadija. Muslim narrates, in the chapter of the Merits of Khadija, that `Aisha said to Prophet Muhammad, ‘What makes you remember an old woman amongst the old women of Quraysh, an old woman (with a toothless mouth) of red gums who died long ago, and in whose place Allah has given you somebody better than her?’ The colour of Prophet Muhammad’s face changed and scolded `Aisha, saying, ‘By Allah, Allah did not grant me any one better than her; she believed in me while people disbelieved in me, believed me while people belied me, supported me with her money while people prevented me and Allah granted me children through her alone.’ See Muslim, Sahih, Hadith no. 2437

(2) This Hadith is narrated on the authority of Ibn Mas`ud Allah be pleased with him. The completion of the narration states, ‘The Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him was brought some wealth, so he distributed it. Then I came across two men that were sitting saying: “By Allah! Muhammad did not intend the pleasure of Allah in his distribution, and nor the abode of the Hereafter.” So, I spread this when I heard them, and I went to the Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him and I informed him. So, his face became red and he said, “Do not bother me with this, for indeed Musa (Moses) was afflicted by more than this and he was patient.’ See Ahmad, Musnad, Hadith no. 3759; Al-Bazzar, Musnad, Hadith no. 2038; Al-Bayhaqi, Shu`ab Al-Iman, Hadith no.10597 and 10598; Abu Dawud, Sunnan, Hadith no. 4860; At-Tirmidhi, Sunnan, Hadith no. 3898; and Al-Bayhaqi As-Sunnan Al-Kubra, Hadith no. 16675.

Further, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him used to take care of all the matters. He used to command his Companions to be kind to their neighbours. In this regard, he said, ‘The neighbours are of three kinds: the neighbour who has only one right, the right of this one is the lowest, a neighbour who has two rights and a neighbour who has three rights, and the right of this kind is the ultimate. As for the neighbour who has a right, he is the polytheist neighbour to whom you have no kinship. The neighbour who has two rights is the Muslim neighbour as he has a right as a Muslim and another right as a neighbour. The neighbour who has three rights is the Muslim neighbour to whom you have a kinship. So, he has a right as a Muslim, a right as a neighbour, and a right as a relative.’(1) In this connection, Allah Glorified is He says: ‘And serve Allah and do not associate anything with Him and be good to the parents and to the near of kin and the orphans and the needy and the neighbour of (your) kin and the alien neighbour, and the companion in a journey…’ (an-Nisa’: 36).

In the same vein, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, ‘Jibril (Gabriel) kept on recommending me about treating the neighbours in a kind and polite manner so much so that I thought that he would confer on them a share of inheritance.’(2) He peace and blessings be upon him was very keen that the Muslims cooperate with each other and deal with each other according to the high moral standard. He once said to Abu Dharr Allah be pleased with him ‘Abu Dharr! If you cook some stew, make a lot of it, and divide it among your neighbours.’(3)

This was Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him; a man of a great moral character. He was a real application of the morals preached by the Quran. He is the best example of the true believer whom he peace and blessings be upon him described in one of his statements, saying, ‘The believer is like a bee which eats that which is pure and wholesome and lies that which is pure and wholesome.’(1) He was a practical implementation of the teachings of the Quran and the Way of Guidance which Allah the Almighty has revealed to him. Thus, he peace and blessings be upon him is the role model that we should follow.

Then, Allah Glorified is He says:

فَسَتُبْصِرُ وَيُبْصِرُونَ ﴿٥﴾ بِأَييِّكُمُ ٱلْمَفْتُونُ ﴿٦﴾ إِنَّ رَبَّكَ هُوَ أَعْلَمُ بِمَن ضَلَّ عَن سَبِيلِهِۦ
وَهُوَ أَعْلَمُ بِٱلْمُهْتَدِينَ ﴿٧﴾ فَلَا تُطِعِ ٱلْمُكَذِّبِينَ ﴿٨﴾ وَدُّوا۟ لَوْ تُدْهِنُ فَيُدْهِنُونَ ﴿٩﴾

And soon you will see, as will they [5] Which of you is afflicted with madness [6] Your Lord knows best who strays from His path and who is rightly guided [7] So do not yield to those who deny the truth [8] They want you to compromise with them and then they will compromise with you [9] (The Quran, al-Qalam: 5 - 9)

It is as if Allah Glorified is He says to Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him, ‘You, Muhammad, and the people of Quraysh will see the recompense of those people who claim that you are insane when they will be defeated at the Battle of Badr. You as well as the people in Mecca will see those people, who levelled this accusation against you, in a state of humiliation, while you will be in a state of triumph and greatness. This is their recompense in the worldly life’.

Yet, some scholars state that the saying of Allah Glorified is He: ‘And soon you will see, as they will’ (al-Qalam: 5) refers to the state of the disbelievers on the Day of Judgment when they see the punishment prepared for them. In the same vein, He the Almighty says: ‘Tomorrow shall they know who the liar is, the insolent one.’ (al-Qamar: 26) Here is an important linguistic note; in Arabic, when we want to refer to the near future, we add the prefix sin to the verb, but to refer to the distant or remote future, we use the particle sawfa. In the verse in question and in the aforementioned verse, Allah Glorified is He uses the prefix sin to refer to what will happen to the disbelievers.

(1) This Hadith is narrated on the authority ‘Abdullah ibn `Amr ibn Al-`As Allah be pleased with them both. See Ahmad, Musnad, Hadith no. 6872; Al-Bayhaqi, Sunnan, Hadith no. 5382; and Al-Hakim, Al-Mustadrak, Hadith no. 253.

Accordingly, the meaning of the verse in question can refer to both meanings, i.e. the disbelievers will see the recompense of their misdeeds both in the worldly life and in the Hereafter. Similarly, Allah the Almighty says in another verse: ‘…they who act unjustly shall know to what final place of turning they shall turn back.’ (ash-Shu'ara': 227) Allah Glorified is He states that the disbelievers will come to know on the Day of Judgement that the insane person is one from among them, not Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him or any of his Companions.

Regarding the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘And soon you will see, as will they’ (al-Qalam: 5), it is associated with the interrogative sentence which comes after it, that is: ‘Which of you is afflicted with madness.’ (al-Qalam: 6) The Arabic verb absara (saw) signifies either sight or knowledge. Thus, the meaning of the verse is that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him as well as the people of Quraysh will come to know who was really inflicted with madness and was in clear error. This will take place when truth shall be clearly distinguished from falsehood on the Day of Judgment.

As for the saying of Allah Glorified is He: ‘Which of you is afflicted with madness’ (al-Qalam: 6), we should note that the word bi-ayyikom (which of you) could be used without the preposition ba` in a context other than the Quran. Therefore, the people who are not versed in the rhetoric of the Arabic language may ask, ‘Why is this preposition mentioned’? Some others may mistakenly say that it is superfluous. Those people should beware of saying that the Quran contains even one superfluous letter because this indicates that the meaning of the Quranic sentence can be completed without any need for some letters. This is completely untrue, for there is no superfluous letter in the Quran. Instead, in such a case, you should say, ‘I do not understand the reason of the existence of this letter’. The early Arabs heard Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him reciting this very verse and none of them argued that the usage of the preposition ba` in this context is incorrect. Should it have been mistakenly used, they would have publicly declared it as the Quran challenged them to bring forth even one mistake or even one verse similar to it. Their failure to meet this challenge proves that the style of the Quran is completely consistent with the language of the early Arabs.

So, regarding the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'Which of you is afflicted with madness' (al-Qalam: 6), the Arabic letter ba` in the word bi-ayyikom (Which of you) signifies an additional meaning. That is to say that it plays a linguistic role in asking them, 'Who among you is overwhelmed with madness or deviation'? Some scholars say that maftun (the deviant) refers to Satan because he leads anyone under his control to deviation and madness.

In this vein, Allah Glorified is He explains that the one who is touched by Satan is driven to insanity, as He the Almighty says: 'But those who take usury will rise up on the Day of Resurrection like someone tormented by Satan's touch…' (al-Baqara: 275). At-Takhabbut means to walk unsteadily and to move in an uncontrolled way. Accordingly, the verse signifies that Satan may touch a person in a way that corrupts the soundness his faculties which work together to make one's body behave in the correct manner. When Satan touches someone and corrupts his faculties, his psychological faculties get affected and disharmonised and thus his movements become disorganised or uncontrollable. In this way, we find that the proposition ba` in the verse under discussion is not superfluous. Unlike the human speech which can contain superfluous words or letter, Allah's Words or Speech can never include any superfluous letter or word. In fact, each word in the Quran is stated to communicate a certain meaning and should any letter be omitted from its place, the meaning would become incomplete. As it is He the Almighty Who revealed the Quran to communicate a certain Message, the linguistic style He uses must deliver this Message completely and perfectly.

Some scholars opine that the preposition ba` means 'in' and accordingly the meaning is as follows: 'In your opinion, which of the two parties (Prophet Muhammad and his Companions, and the then disbelievers of Quraysh) includes the one who is afflicted with madness?'

We should also note that Allah Glorified is He doubled the letter ya` in the same word. This signifies that the disbelievers of Mecca at that time reached the ultimate level of transgression. Therefore, they were the real insane people. This is because Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him who has the perfect standards of morals, cannot be described with insanity. Accordingly, whoever accuses him of insanity is the one who is really insane.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says: ‘Your Lord knows best who strays from His path and who is rightly guided.’ (al-Qalam: 7) It is Allah Glorified is He Who really knows the reality of these disbelievers as well as that of Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and his followers. The former group are polytheists who had gone astray and were overwhelmed by Satan, while the latter group are the believers who were guided to the Truth.

So, it is as if He the Almighty says to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him, ‘I know about those who have gone astray such as the disbelievers of Quraysh who deviated from Allah’s Religion and the Path of Guidance. Likewise, I am fully Aware of those who have been guided and followed the Truth’. Allah Glorified is He is Omniscient; He is fully Aware of the believers and the disbelievers and the rightly guided and the misguided ones.

Those who have gone astray are the people who deviated from Allah’s Way of Guidance and followed other paths which led them astray. They deviated in this worldly life and became the followers of Satan. Thus, they are far away from the true Religion and the Straight Path. In fact, Islam is all about following Allah’s Path as it is the only the true path which leads to the desired objective. All other paths shall not lead you to the desired objective as they run counter to the Way of Guidance which He the Almighty has clarified to us. Allah Glorified is He specified a certain path, i.e. His commands and legislations, so if we followed it, we will attain His Pleasure and Reward.

The Arabic word as-sabeel (path) signifies a material meaning. Yet, Allah Glorified is He uses it here to signify a creedal and an abstract meaning. So, He the Almighty clarifies this abstract meaning by means of the material sense of this word. At a crossroads, if someone deviates from his road even one inch, he will keep moving away from his intended destination. He keeps moving away from his destination as long as he walks in that direction.

Therefore, Allah Glorified is He orders us to follow His Straight Path and not to follow other paths, saying: ‘And (know) that this is My Path, the right one therefore follow it, and follow not (other) ways, for they will lead you away from His Way…’ (al-A‘raf: 153).

Allah Glorified is He guides the people to the Truth and Guidance by the Quran, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: ‘O followers of the Book! Indeed Our Apostle has come to you making clear to you much of what you concealed of the Book and passing over much; indeed, there has come to you light and a clear Book from Allah. With it Allah guides him who will follow His pleasure into the ways of safety and brings them out of utter darkness into light by His will and guides them to the right path.’ (al-Ma‘ida: 16) This verse indicates that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him is a light and that the Quran explains the Truth and shows the Way of Guidance. He the Almighty guides those who obey Him and follow His legislations to the way of peace. This verse also indicates that following him peace and blessings be upon him who received the clear Book, is in itself an indication of Allah’s pleasure which is shown to those who follow and obey Him. Moreover, He the Almighty rewards such people by guiding them to the way of peace which are so many. They include one’s peace of mind, one’s peace with his own family, community, world, and universe, and more importantly with Allah Glorified is He.

Therefore, He the Almighty warns Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him against obeying those misguided and disbelieving people, saying: ‘So do not yield to those who deny the truth.’ (al-Qalam: 7) The disbelievers of Quraysh were calling him peace and blessings be upon him to follow their religion. Therefore, Allah Glorified is He ordered him to hold fast to His Religion, Islam, and not to obey those who deny His Oneness.

The people who denied Allah’s verses are the disbelievers and the polytheists and all those who deny and fight Islam. Denial in this case is an act of rebellion on the part of the denier who opposes Allah’s Message and strives to destroy it and stop its spread.

This state of denial is preceded by a stage in which the hearts of those people get filled with deviation. Therefore, they declared that they deny the prophethood of Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and accused him of lying about conveying a Message from Allah the Almighty and that he contrived the Quran. Therefore, Allah Glorified is He ordered him peace and blessings be upon him not to follow them or respond to their wishes, saying: 'And thus have We revealed it, a true judgment in Arabic, and if you follow their low desires after what has come to you of knowledge, you shall not have against Allah any guardian or a protector.' (ar-Ra'd: 37)

Furthermore, Allah Glorified is He ordered him peace and blessings be upon him to say to them: '…I do not follow your low desires. For then indeed I should have gone astray and I should not be of those who go aright.' (al-An'am: 56). Here, He the Almighty says to him peace and blessings be upon him that his mission is only to convey the Message to those polytheists and not to follow their wishes which shall lead him to deviation. Whoever follows such whims and wishes will surely go astray and deviate from the Path of the guided people. Therefore, He the Almighty prompts him peace and blessings be upon him to publicly declare that he does not follow their desires so that they should know that there is no room for any compromise with them in the matter of truth and falsehood.

Therefore, Allah the Almighty warns Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him saying: 'They want you to compromise with them and then they will compromise with you.' (al-Qalam: 9) He the Almighty warns him peace and blessings be upon him against being deceived by those people or making compromises with them, as they suggested that they would worship Allah with him for a year and he would worship their gods for a year. (1) Allah Glorified is He rejected this matter altogether and revealed His saying: 'Say: "O disbelievers! I do not worship that which you worship. Nor do you worship Him Whom I worship. Nor am I going to worship that which you worship.' (al-Kafirun: 1-4)

(1) In his Tafsir, At-Tabari relates on the authority of Ibn `Abbas that the people of Quraysh said to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him 'We are going to suggest only one thing to you which will be of benefit to us.' He replied, 'What is it?' They said, 'You will worship our gods (al-Lat and al-`Uza) for one year and we will worship your god for one year.' He peace and blessings be upon him said, 'I will wait until Allah reveals something [in this regard].' Afterwards, the chapter of al-Kafirun was revealed.' See, At-Tabari, Jame` Al-Bayan, 24/662.

This is a categorical rejection of this compromise about mutual worshipping. We know that worship is an inward creed related to the heart and cannot be compromised. Therefore, severance of relationship with the disbelievers and total rejection of this compromise is an obligation. It is not a political matter; rather, it is a Divine Order prescribed by Allah Alone.

In another verse, Allah Glorified is He says: 'And surely, they had purposed to turn you away from that which We have revealed to you, that you should forge against Us other than that, and then they would certainly have taken you for a friend.' (al-Isra': 73) So, they made many malicious suggestions to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him to divert him from the Divine Message. Once they proposed that he peace and blessings be upon him leave them to worship their false gods and they would give him what is consecrated to these gods. At another time, they prevented him peace and blessings be upon him from approaching the Black Stone until he glorified their gods first. They wanted to equalise between belief and disbelief in Islam. Instead, Allah Glorified is He made a final Judgment of categorical rejection of all such suggestions as the issue of belief and disbelief cannot be compromised

In this regard, severance of relations and the categorical rejection is different from the political severance of relations between two countries which may resume their relations again. Rather, severance of relations with the disbelievers here is categorical and permanent. It is as if Allah the Almighty is saying to them, 'Do not ever think that your proposals and suggestion in this regard may be reconsidered at a later time'. To underline this fact, Allah Glorified is He asserts His Rejection of their suggestion many times in the chapter of al-Kafirun to the extent that some people, who read the Quran without deep understanding or contemplation, thought that a repetition. However, the different forms of negation in that chapter mean that we, the Muslims, do not accept to worship the disbelievers' gods in the present time. Likewise, in the future, nothing shall oblige us to reconsider this decision or make compromises.

The saying of Allah the Almighty: 'They want you to compromise with them and then they will compromise with you' (al-Qalam: 9) refers to the convictions. When someone has a conviction about something, all his faculties act accordingly. Therefore, as they suggested that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him worship their false gods and they worship Allah, they will not then have sincere belief in his religion. After all, this runs counter to their convictions. Allah Glorified is He told him peace and blessings be upon him that, as he would reject the suggestion of those disbelievers, they would always reject his call to serve their ends. Therefore, he should always beware of them.

Allah the Almighty also told him peace and blessings be upon him that Allah Glorified is He would expose all their plots and secrets so that he would be knowledgeable of all their actions and not to incline to have compromises with them or expect that they would have a sincere belief in his Message. Their only wish was that they turn him peace and blessings be upon him from belief in Allah the Almighty into disbelief.

Their only aim was that he peace and blessings be upon him would accept their suggestion of mutual worship of their false gods along with Allah Glorified is He. They spared no effort to urge him peace and blessings be upon him to abandon his call to Islam; they offered him wealth, authority and all kinds of temptations. Categorically rejecting all these proposals, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said his well-known statement, ‘By Allah, should they place the sun in my right hand and the moon in my left hand to abandon this matter (Islam), I shall not abandon it until Allah makes it predominant or I die in this cause.’(1)

They sent a delegation to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and told him, ‘We came to you so that we would be free from blame. You have brought about an innovative matter which has never appeared among your people; you cursed our gods, despised our minds, and insulted our religions. If you seek money, we would give you until you become the wealthiest among us and if you want authority, we would make you our leader or king.' He peace and blessings be upon him replied, 'By Allah, I do not seek any of what you are saying but Allah have sent me with the truth. It is either that you obey me, or I shall wait until Allah gives me victory over you.'

(1) Abu Taleb was sent to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and said to him, ‘O my nephew, your people came to me and said to me such and such. So, protect me and yourself and do not overburden me with something I cannot tolerate.’ Prophet Muhammad felt that his uncle would stop supporting him and therefore he said to him, ‘O uncle! By Allah, should they place the sun in my right hand and the moon in my left hand to abandon this matter (Islam), I shall not abandon it until Allah makes it predominant or I die in this cause.’ Then, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him was about to cry and he headed to leave. At this point, Abu Taleb called upon him and said to him, ‘O my nephew, come to me.’ When he peace and blessings be upon him returned to him, Abu Taleb said, ‘O my nephew, go and preach whatever you want for by Allah I shall never fail to support you.’ See Al-Bayhaqi, Dala’il An-Nubuwwa, 2/187.

The disbelievers of Mecca made this attempt secretly hoping that they might come to a compromise with him peace and blessings be upon him. As they were his opponents, they thought that it would be difficult for him to respond to their proposals. Therefore, they decided to send him someone towards whom he peace and blessings be upon him showed respect and reverence. They went to his uncle Abu Taleb, and asked him to talk to him on their behalf. After Abu Taleb talked to him, he peace and blessings be upon him categorically rejected their proposals and said his well-known statement, 'O uncle, By Allah, should they place the sun in my right hand and the moon in my left hand to abandon this matter (Islam), I shall not abandon it until Allah makes it predominant or I die in this cause.'

All their attempts did not divert Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him from striving hard for disseminating Allah's Religion. Their attempts did not stop even when he migrated to Medina. In this regard, Allah Glorified is He says: 'And that you should judge between them by what Allah has revealed, and do not follow their low desires, and be cautious of them, lest they seduce you from part of what Allah has revealed to you…' (al-Ma'ida: 49). Some disbelievers tried to deceive him peace and blessings be upon him to issue some rulings in their favour. They said that they would accept Islam if such rulings were issued. But Allah Glorified is He warned him, against their plot, saying: '…and be cautious of them, lest they seduce you from part of what Allah has revealed to you…' (al-Ma'ida: 49). Al-Hadhar (caution) signifies one's cautiousness and fear of what may harm him, even if it may bring about some benefit. The one who wants to harm another may present him the harmful matter in a good way to beautify it in his eyes so that he sees it. Therefore, caution means being watchful against anyone who purposes to harm/her you by something while he tries to persuade you that it is beneficial.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says:

وَلَا تُطِعۡ كُلَّ حَلَّافٖ مَّهِينٍ ١٠

Do not yield to any contemptible swearer [10]
(The Quran, al-Qalam: 10)

Halif/yahlif means to swear or take an oath. When we contemplate on the Quran, we find that halif is always stated to refer to false swearing while the word qasam (an oath) refers to both the honest and false swear. For example, Allah the Almighty states: '…This is the atonement for breaking your oath…' (al-Ma'ida: 89). As there is expiation for one's oath, this means that he has broken it.

Similarly, Allah the Almighty says here: 'Do not yield to any contemptible swearer.' (al-Qalam: 10) The swearer meant in this verse used to take many false oaths. In this regard, Allah Glorified is He says about the hypocrites: 'They swear to you by Allah that they might please you…' (at-Tawba: 62). They used their false swearing as a means to please the believers so that they feel assured towards them. Then He the Almighty asserts the fact that: '…Allah, as well as His Messenger, has a greater right that they should please Him…' (at-Tawba: 62). On the other hand, the true believer takes oaths to please Allah the Almighty Alone because one may deceive some people for a while and circumvent man-made laws, but Allah Glorified is He cannot be deceived and His punishment cannot be avoided.

It is noteworthy that yahlifun (to swear) occurs in the chapter of at-Tawba more than any other Quranic chapter. It only occurs once in the chapters of al-Ma'ida and an-Nisa` and three times in the chapter of al-Mujadala.

This word occurs in the chapter of at-Tawba seven times. Therefore, some call it 'the chapter of yahlif (to swear)(1) because this word is mentioned in this chapter more than all the rest of the Quranic chapters.

(1) This word occurs in the chapter of at-Tawba in the following verses: 'They swear to you by Allah that they might please you and, Allah, as well as His Messenger, has a greater right that they should please Him, if they are believers.' (at-Tawba: 62); 'They swear by Allah that they did not speak, and certainly they did speak, the word of =

Back to the verse in question, Allah Glorified is He orders Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him not to obey the one who frequently swears. It is said that the one intended here was Al-Akhnas ibn Shurayq(1), but some others state that it refers to Al-Walid ibn Al-Mughira or Al-Aswad ibn ‘Abd Yaghuth. Yet, this verse is not intended to refer to a specific person. Instead, it generally refers to anyone who frequently swears.

Such a person is described as ‘maheen’ (degraded) and it refers here to the one who is of a poor discretion. The person should keep his oath, as Allah Glorified is He says: ‘…and keep your oath…’ (al-Ma‘ida: 89). Moreover, the early Arabs used to praise the one who did not frequently swear.

The wisdom behind Allah’s order to people not to frequently swear by Him is that when one swears to all matters, taking oaths becomes an easy matter to him and thus he may swear to false matters. The Quran used to expose those who falsely take oaths and prohibits them from making such oaths, saying: ‘…Say: “Swear not…”’ (an-Nur: 53). No one can be prevented from taking an oath, especially when one swears to do a good thing. But those people used to break their oaths and, therefore, their oaths would be worth nothing, as they had taken them insincerely.

As Allah Glorified is He ordered Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him not to obey the one who frequently took oaths, He ordered him to disobey other categories of people such as the disbelievers, the hypocrites and those who are unmindful of the remembrance of Allah the Almighty as He says: ‘And be not compliant to the disbelievers and the hypocrites, and disregard their annoying talk…’ (al-Ahzab: 48); ‘O Prophet! be careful of = unbelief, and disbelieved after their Islam, and they had determined upon what they have not been able to effect…’ (at-Tawba: 74) and ‘They will swear to you that you may be pleased with them; but if you are pleased with them, yet surely Allah is not pleased with the transgressing people.’ (at-Tawba: 96)

(1) Al-Akhnas ibn Shurayq Ath-Thaqafi embraced Islam on the day of the liberation of Mecca. He participated in the Battle of Hunayn and was given a share of the spoils. He died in the beginning of the caliphate of `Umar ibn Al-Khattab. In his book, Ibn Hajar says that his name was `Ubbay and was nicknamed as Al-Akhnas (lit. the retreating one) because he ordered his people to return and not to participate in the Battle of Badr when the news came that Abu Sufyan saved the caravan. See Ibn Sa`d, At-Tabaqat Al-Kubra, 1/293; and Ibn Hajar, Al-Isaba, 1/192.

(your duty to) Allah and do not comply with (the wishes of) the disbelievers and the hypocrites; surely Allah is Knowing, Wise.' (al-Ahzab: 1) and: '…and do not follow him whose heart We have made unmindful to Our remembrance, and he follows his low desires and his case is one in which due bounds are exceeded.' (al-Kahf: 28)

Obedience to Allah Glorified is He means to follow His commands and refrain from His prohibitions. The last verse denotes that the disbelievers asked Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him not to gather them with the poor people in one place. However, He the Almighty wanted him to honour those poor people by prohibiting him from driving them away. This is the lofty way of honouring those who constantly remember Him Glorified is He as they were the early believers and the Companions of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him.

The reason of the Divine Order that the one shall not follow the people who are unmindful of the remembrance of Allah the Almighty is that they lead him astray from Him Glorified is He and His Religion. In this connection, He the Almighty says: 'And if you obey most of those in the earth, they will lead you astray from Allah's way…' (al-An'am: 116). Those people follow their own desires and as long as one is preoccupied with his own desires, he neglects Allah's Commands. The true believer is the one whose own desire is consistent with His commands and Legislation and never deviates from His Way of Guidance.

In the same vein, Allah Glorified is He: 'So do not follow the disbelievers, and strive against them a mighty striving with it.' (al-Furqan: 52) Here, He the Almighty orders Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him not to obey them should they offer him kingship, wealth, or leadership and to be sure that what Allah Glorified is He prepares for him is certainly better than that. This does not mean that he peace and blessings be upon him was obeying the disbelievers. Actually, this resembles His order to the believers to believe in Him, saying: 'O you who believe! Believe in Allah…' (an-Nisa': 136). So, He the Almighty orders him peace and blessings be upon him to refrain from following anyone who offers him money for renouncing his religion such as Al-Walid ibn Al-Mughira who was a degraded and feeble trader. Similarly, Allah Glorified is He commands him, saying: '…and obey not from among them a sinner or an ungrateful one.' (al-Insan: 24)

Allah the Almighty describes this one who frequently makes oaths as being backbiter and slander-monger, saying:

هَمَّازٍ مَّشَّآءِۭ بِنَمِيمٍ ﴿١١﴾

To any backbiter, slander-monger [11]
(The Quran, al-Qalam: 11)

Likewise, He the Almighty says: 'Woe to every slanderer, defamer.' (al-Humaza: 1) Al-Humaza (a slanderer) refers to anyone who mocks at people, even by a gesture. For example, he may encounter a lame person and mocks at him by imitating his way of walking or by ridiculing him. As for al-hamaz (backbiter), it refers to the person who back bites people and defames their honour. These characteristics could be a sign of disbelief. The backbiter is imaged in Islam as if he is eating the corpse of his fellow Muslim.

Therefore, the Arabic word al-humaza signifies that one backbites and ridicules others in public, while the word al-lumaza means to ridicule people by imitating their way of walking or making sounds with his voice or any other movement to make people laugh.

For instance, when there is a group of people together and someone furtively tries to mock another by winking or whispering or any other way, provided that he refers to the slandered one's defect stealthily without most people noticing it. So, al-lumaza (scorners) are those who frequently slander others in their presence openly and blatantly, whereas al-humaza (backbiters) are the weak ones who defame people stealthily.

Both Arabic words used in the verse for 'slandering' and 'backbiting' are exaggeration patterns indicating doing something excessively. Backbiting signifies frequent defamation of people and implies the weakness of the backbiter; otherwise he would do this action openly. Some hypocrites used to backbite Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him mock the legislation of the alms and blame the rich who exert themselves to get money then give it to the poor who make no effort, as stated in Allah's saying:

'And of them there are those who blame you with respect to the alms; so if they are given from it they are pleased, and if they are not given from it, lo! they are full of rage.' (at-Tawba: 58) So, did they criticise the legislation itself? Or did they criticise Allah Glorified is He for urging people to give charity? Or did they vilify giving a varying amount on money to the poor? They used to defame all or most of these issues.

Further, the backbiter is the one who defames people verbally and the scorner is the one who defame them by action. Not only does such a person meant in the verse defame, mock and slander, but he also goes about with malicious gossip. Going about with malicious gossip always takes the side of evil and denotes spreading calumnies between people to harm and arouse hostilities between them. They conceal the good deeds of people and expose their evil ones to the extent that they tell lies about them if they cannot get to know their evils deeds.

Mashsha` (going about with malicious gossip) comes in the form of an exaggeration pattern to affirm that such an atrocious trait is deeply instilled in such a person that he habitually and excessively intends to spread hatred among people and sour their relations by gossip and telling lies. Thus, such a slander-monger causes discord between people. That is why Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said 'A qattat (slanderer or bearer of false tales) shall not enter Paradise.'(1) Qattat refers to the one who overhears people's talk and carries it to others to spread animosity and spoil their relations.

Further, Ibn `Abbas narrated that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him passed by two graves and said, 'Both of them (the persons in these graves) are being tortured, and they are not being tortured for a major sin. One of them used not to save himself from being soiled with his urine, and the other one used to go about with calumnies.'(2)

Further, Asma` bint Yazid ibn As-Sakan narrated that he peace and blessings be upon him said, 'Shall I not inform you of the worst amongst you? It is those who: go forth as tale-bearers (those who indulge in gossip); cause separation amongst people who love one another and make excuses for sins (which they commit).'(1) Causing discord between people and spoiling their relations are deemed as dangerous matters. Moreover, he peace and blessings be upon him said, 'Shall I not inform you of what is more virtuous than the rank of fasting, prayer and charity?' They said, 'But of course!' He said, 'Making peace between each other, for indeed spoiling relations with each other is the haliqa (razor). I do not tell you that it shaves the hair, but it shaves away the religion.'(2)

Allah Glorified is He describes this act as devilish, a fact which is crystal clear in his saying: 'Satan only desires to cause enmity and hatred to spring in your midst…' (al-Ma'ida: 91). The Arabic verse is worded in such a way to indicate that the one who indulges in gossip causes separation between two people who are firmly united and having a close relation.

Allah then says:

مَّنَّاعٍ لِّلْخَيْرِ مُعْتَدٍ أَثِيمٍ ﴿١٢﴾

Or hinderer of good, to anyone who is sinful, aggressive [12] (The Quran, al-Qalam: 12)

The chiefs of Quraysh used to hinder the people from doing good deeds and having faith in Allah the Almighty. In this regard, Allah the Almighty says: 'Have you considered him who calls the judgment a lie? That is the one who treats the orphan with harshness. And he does not urge (others) to feed the poor. So, woe to the praying ones who are unmindful of their prayers, who do (good) to be seen, and withhold the necessities of life!' (al-Ma'un: 1-7) Allah Glorified is He points out that among the necessaries of life that should not be withheld are the container used for kneading dough, sifter, etc. which a poor person may not possess, so he borrows them from his neighbour. Hence, the forbidder of good is stingy in giving away money or charity. Al-Walid ibn Al-Mughira, who was a rich man and had ten sons to whom he used to say, 'Whoever accepts Islam among you, I shall deprive him of my bounty.'(1) That is why He the Almighty says: 'Just because he has wealth and sons.' (al-Qalam: 14) He is very cautious to forbid others and even himself from doing any good deed and that is why he stood against the Call of Faith and withheld his money from the needy.

He did not only prevent the good from others, but he also took it unlawfully by theft, bribe, seizure, extortion, and deception. By so doing, he commits transgression in all its forms, and therefore he is an extravagant sinner. He is not considered so only due to his misdeeds and injustice, but also because of his insistence on wronging himself without desisting from it or being reproached by an admonition from His Lord Glorified is He. In another verse, He the Almighty says: 'Forbidder of good, exceeder of limits, doubter.' (Qaf: 25) This suggests that he doubts the Day of Judgment, for if he had believed in the Reckoning and Recompense, he would not have prevented himself and his family from doing good deeds nor would he have resisted faith and giving Allah's Rights. Being a sinner, a doubter fears to get exposed, as the traditional proverb goes: 'A doubter is about to say take me.' This is because he perpetrated evil, thereby he is a sinner.

Allah says:

(1) In his Tafsir, Az-Zamakhshari said that Al-Walid ibn Al-Mughira Al-Makhzumi had ten sons and said to them, 'Whoever accepts Islam among you, I shall deprive him of my bounty.' See Az-Zamakhshari, Al-Kash-shaf, 4/587.

عُتُلِّۭ بَعۡدَ ذَٰلِكَ زَنِيمٍ ﴿١٣﴾

Coarse, and on top of all that, an imposter [13]

`Utul (coarse), which originally connotes pushing fiercely and violently, refers to the treacherous ill-speaking person who is intensely stubborn in his disbelief and vehemently contentious. This linguistic meaning is mentioned is the saying of Allah Glorified is He: 'Seize him, then drag him down into the middle of the Hell.' (ad-Dukhan: 47) Here, this word means to forcibly drag the disbeliever on his face into the middle of hellfire. This ignoble baseborn pretender is known by his evil as a sheep is known by its notable sign which usually hangs on its neck. In this regard, Zayd ibn Aslam, narrated that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'The heaven weeps over a person whom Allah has given strength, wealth and enlarged his stomach, but he does injustice to people; such is the ignoble baseborn pretender.'(1) Zanim (baseborn pretender) refers to one stuck with people, while he is not one of them; whose father is not known and his mother is a prostitute thereby attributed to someone other than his father and adopted by his people.

This does not mean, however, that everyone walking around with gossips is a fatherless baseborn pretender, since the context of the verse is about a specific person with such characteristics and therefore it is added: '…and on top of all that...' (al-Qalam: 13). This means that this description is added to the previous descriptions. Such a person with theses consecutive characteristics, each is worse than the others, is a habitual swearer who knows himself to be neither honest nor trustworthy, thereby is typically characterised as mean and debased even if he has power, wealth or beauty. He prevents the good from himself and from others as well; transgresses the limits of truth, justice, and fairness; and indulges in sins, prohibitions, and forbidden matters. He is described as cruel, harsh, despised; and marked by his evil, wickedness and enjoying the spread of hatred between people. The one going around with gossip is a double-faced, dissembler, slanderer, and fully busy with finding faults in others, concealing the good, exposing the evil, telling lies and spreading rumours. Besides all this, he is a baseborn pretender of the lowest people; on looking into his reality, you find him having unknown father, attributed to a people to whom he does not belong as if all of his vicious traits emanate from his debased origin.

Allah says:

أَن كَانَ ذَا مَالٍ وَبَنِينَ ﴿١٤﴾

Just because he has wealth and sons [14]

In this verse, it is noted that his origin has nothing to do with the wealth and sons that Allah the Almighty granted him, and this concept is affirmed by His saying: ‘So [Muhammad] leave them for a while steeped [in their ignorance]. Do they reckon that, by giving them wealth and sons, We race to give them good things? They really have no idea!’ (al-Mu’minun: 54-56) Do they think that what is extended to them of wealth and children is good for them? Contrarily, it is but a respite for them so that they may indulge more in committing sins. Therefore, we should not obey such a person even if he has wealth and children. It is said that Al-Walid ibn Al-Mughira is intended here as he had a garden in At-Ta`if and twelve sons. However, his wealth and children did not separate him from his debased origin, and thus his traits came in conformity with such origin. Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, ‘My ummah will remain well so long as illegitimate birth is not prevalent among them; should it happen, Allah would inflict a punishment upon them.’(1) `Ikrima even said, ‘Prevalence of illegitimate births causes drought.’(2) After Al-Walid ibn Al-Mughira had been given wealth and children in abundance, and yet desiring for more, Allah Glorified is He destroyed and deprived him of all that, leaving him penniless. In this regard, He the Almighty says: ‘Leave Me and him whom I created alone. And gave him vast riches, and sons dwelling in his presence. And I adjusted affairs for him adjustably. And yet he desires that I should add more! By no means! Surely, he offers opposition to Our communications.’ (al-Muddaththir: 11-15)

Allah Glorified is He says:

إِذَا تُتۡلَىٰ عَلَيۡهِ ءَايَٰتُنَا قَالَ أَسَٰطِيرُ ٱلۡأَوَّلِينَ ١٥

When our revelations are recited to him, he says, ‘These are just ancient fables’ [15] (The Quran, al-Qalam: 15)

Aya (a sign or a verse) refers to the marvellous wonders capturing one’s attention like the universal signs which include the sun, the moon, the stars, the earth, the mountains, the seas, etc. Being beyond the ability of humans, such wonderful phenomena were created by Allah the Almighty as a sign of His Omnipotence as well as to serve mankind.

Ayat could also refer to the miracles of the Prophets. When Allah Glorified is He sends a messenger or a prophet to his people, Allah Glorified is He breaks the laws of nature for him to prove his prophethood to his people. Such miracles were intended for the people who witnessed them with the aim of establishing faith in the hearts of the believers in times of difficulties; when they see a proof for the truthfulness of their Messenger, this helps them strengthen their belief.

Further, the word ayat refers to the verses of the Glorious Quran; the miraculous Speech of Allah Glorified is He which verifies the prophethood of Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him until the Day of Judgment. In the Quran, He the Almighty also mentions His miracles concerning the creation of the human being, the heavens, the earth, etc.

Accordingly, aya (sign) signifies a marvelous wonder, the miracles of the prophets attesting to their truthfulness and the verses of the Glorious Quran. The miracles with which Allah Glorified is He supported Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him are clear before the disbelievers and need no evidence. Even though he peace and blessings be upon him was unlettered, he brought this miraculous Quran from Allah the Almighty both in wording and meaning which is a clear self-evidenced miracle.

Furthermore, he peace and blessings be upon him prophesised through the divinely revealed Quran about the result of a war which was yet to take place nine years later. Besides, he exposed what was concealed within the hearts of the hypocrites and the disbelievers, predicated some future events, and stated some cosmic laws. Further, the Quran contained all types of scientific, cosmic, and universal miracles. These are all clear signs with which the Quran challenged the disbelievers. They were clear enough that no one rejected them except he who desired to go beyond the path of Allah Glorified is He and follow his whims. The signs of the universe, the Glorious Quran and Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him need but an unbiased mind to come to the conclusion that the Quran, being full of linguistic and scientific miracles, was revealed from Allah Glorified is He and will remain a miracle for every coming generation.

The disbelievers do not believe in Allah's signs, even if they are conspicuously clear and even if they come on their request, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: 'And those who have no knowledge say: "Why does not Allah speak to us or a sign come to us?" Even thus said those before them, the like of what they say, "Their hearts are all alike." Indeed, We have made the communications clear for a people who are sure.' (al-Baqara: 118) The Glorious Quran was revealed to challenge them regarding to the future events and the mysteries of the human soul. Had the disbelievers used their minds, it would have sufficed them to reach the truth, but they, out of obstinacy, rejected every sign coming to them and demanded another one.

Moreover, the signs brought forth to the disbelievers increased their obstinacy and disbelief. Whenever they demanded a sign, they rejected it and grew in their rejection and stubbornness, even if they knew for certain that such signs were sent down from Allah Glorified is He and that it is the mission of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him to deliver them, as stated in His saying: 'Even as We have sent among you a Messenger from among you who recites to you Our communications and purifies you and teaches you the Book and the wisdom and teaches you that which you did not know.' (al-Baqara: 151) We should note that the signs are of two types: seen and read ones. The visual signs encompass the whole universe and explain the verses of the Quran, which Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him recited. The verses of the Quran filled the people with wonder, so they were supported by the signs in the universe. He peace and blessings be upon him came with recited verses to attract people's attention to the observed signs. Through provoking wonder at the precision of the creation of the universe, the people attain to belief in its Creator.

Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him did not recite the Quran to draw people's admiration only; rather, he had a spiritual mission, namely, drawing the attention of everyone listening to the Quran to the creation of this astoundingly beautiful universe which comprises marvellous signs. Upon believing in its Creator, he peace and blessings be upon him conveys to them the Way of Guidance which best suits the beauty of the universe. Furthermore, He peace and blessings be upon him was sent to recite Allah's verses to the people to purify them, increase their purity and decency, and teach them the Book and the wisdom. The Revelation used to be sent down to him peace and blessings be upon him with some verses and in some occasions with two or three rub` (quarters). When the revelation departed, he peace and blessings be upon him used to recite what was revealed to him to his Companions so that they would record and recite it in exactly the same way they heard it. Some of them memorised the whole Quran by heart, for they were the ummah of narration and strong memory.

In the verse in question, the Arabic verb tala/yatlu (to recite) is used in the passive form because the reciter in this case, i.e. Prophet Muhammad, is well known and the focal point here is what the disbeliever would do when Allah's verses are recited to him. Many disbelievers described Allah's verses as: '…ancient fables.' (al-Qalam: 15) Among such disbelievers was An-Nadr ibn Al-Harith, the ally of Banu Abu Ad-Dar, who used to frequently visit Al-Hira to listen to the rhymed prose and speech of its people. When he came to Mecca and heard the Quran and the speech of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him he said, 'We have heard indeed; if we pleased, we could say the like of it ;(1) this is nothing but the stories of the ancients.' He also said, 'This is but the rhymed prose of the people of Al-Hira.'

Likewise, Al-Walid ibn Al-Mughira was among the disbelievers who labelled the Quran as 'ancient fables'. He also used to mock Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and that is why the following verses were revealed about him: 'When our revelations are recited to him, he says, "These are just ancient fables." We shall brand him on the snout!' (al-Qalam: 15-16)

Al-Walid was a man of wealth, power, and children, but he turned away and scoffed at the Quran, thereby Allah Glorified is He inflicted him with an exemplar punishment. Asatir (fables) means something composed of wonders and magical events. Descripting the Quran as 'ancient fables' is a sign of the disbelievers' failure; after they labelled it once as magic, another time as soothsaying, they now call it 'ancient fables'!

Being the people of eloquence and rhetoric, they perceived the greatness of the Quran, and were fascinated by its eloquent styles, and yet they described it as 'ancient fables'. As they mistakenly thought that the Quranic orders were difficult for them, they were not willing to abide by it. Thus, the fables signify the legends and myths such as 'One Thousand and One Nights', 'The Iliad' and other books of legends. Some people contend that asatir (legends) has two singular forms, but the meaning is the same in either case. The legends refer to the fabricated speech which has no origin, but not to the speech which did not take place at its specified time, a fact which is crystal clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'And those who disbelieve say: "This is nothing but a lie which he has forged, and other people have helped him at it"; so indeed they have done injustice and (uttered) a falsehood. And they say: "The stories of the ancients—he has got them written; so these are read out to him morning and evening."' (al-Furqan: 4-5)

So, the disbelievers alleged that the Quran comprised the legends and the stories of the ancients which Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him had them written, that is, he ordered someone to write them. Out of their hesitation and confusion, they levelled such accusations against him peace and blessings be upon him while he was unlettered, and claimed that such legends were read out to him morning and evening so that he could memorise them. Baffled by their negligence, they accused him peace and blessings be upon him of learning from a man in Mecca, whereas the Quran makes it clear that the man whom they regarded as his teacher was a foreigner, not an Arab. In this regard, Allah Glorified is He says: '…the tongue of him whom they reproach is barbarous, and this is a clear Arabic tongue.' (an-Nahl: 103) Out of their arrogance, they did not believe in the Hereafter.

Further, Allah the Almighty says: 'And when it is said to them, what is it that your Lord has revealed? They say: "Stories of the ancients."' (an-Nahl: 24) It is surprising, though, that they did not deny Allah's Existence and Lordship; when asked What your Lord has revealed, they answered: 'Stories of the ancients.' (an-Nahl: 24) Their answer described what was revealed but did not deny the Revelation. Had they been consistent with themselves, they would have rejected Allah's Divinity and the Revelation as well. As for the pious believers, when they were asked this question: 'What your Lord has revealed?' (an-Nahl: 30), they answered: 'Good…' (an-Nahl: 30). This reveals the difference between the believers and the disbelievers. When Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him called upon his people to believe in Allah, the One, Who revealed to him Guidance in a miraculous Book, his news spread all over the Arabian Peninsula, and every tribe sent an envoy to find out more about him peace and blessings be upon him. To divert people away from him, the disbelievers of Quraysh divided themselves into four groups to stand at the four entrances of Mecca. Whenever asked by the tribes' envoys, 'What has Your Lord, Who sent you a Messenger, said?' they answer, 'He (Prophet Muhammad) is but a liar and a fabricator', with the aim of turning the envoys of the tribes away from him.

Allah Glorified is He tells Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him of what the disbelievers said to the envoys who came to find out about him and how they gave them misleading answers. Giving the same answer on the four entrances of Mecca indicates that it is previously prepared and agreed upon by those who stood on such entrances to hinder the envoys from listening to him peace and blessings be upon him. They drew a parallel between the Divine Revelation and what was related to them of the stories of the former people by An-Nadr ibn Al-Harith, which are similar to the stories of `Antra and Abu Zayd Al-Hilali related nowadays.

Then Allah Glorified is He threatens anyone uttering such saying about the Quran, saying:

سَنَسِمُهُۥ عَلَى ٱلْخُرْطُومِ ﴿١٦﴾

We shall brand him on the snout! [16]
(The Quran, al-Qalam: 16)

Branding him on the snout means to be hit by the sword on his nose, leaving a mark on top of it. This mark was found on the nose of Al-Walid after he was hit at the Battle of Badr. Allah Glorified is He communicated this prophecy through Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him at an earlier time and it came true later on. When this prophecy was fulfilled, those who believed in Allah the Almighty and the Quran became more affirmed about the truthfulness of Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him in everything he said and more willing to trust what is told to them of the matters of this worldly life and the Hereafter.

Similarly, on hearing the saying of Allah Glorified is He: 'Soon shall the hosts be routed, and they shall turn (their) backs' (al-Qamar: 45), `Umar Allah be pleased with him said, 'Which host shall be routed (1) while we cannot protect ourselves?' He also commented in the same way regarding Allah's saying: 'We shall brand him on the snout!' (al-Qalam: 16) Then, the Battle of Badr took place assuring him of the truthfulness of this prophecy. Surprisingly, this verse was revealed at a time when the Muslims could hardly defend themselves. That is why there was no possibility of such expectation, for their predicament at that time inspired no hope of victory. However, it is Allah Glorified is He Who declared it. So, they did witness Al-Walid ibn Al-Mughira marked on his nose after he was struck on it. This is because the One Who foretold that is the Omnipotent and no force can hinder the fulfilment of what He had prophesised.

(1) In his Tafsir, 'Abd Ar-Raziq relates that `Umar Allah be pleased with him said, 'When this verse: "Soon shall the hosts be routed, and they shall turn (their) backs." (al-Qamar: 45), was revealed, I kept wondering which assembly was this. I realised what it meant as Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him was reciting it on the Battle of Badr, while putting on his armour.' In other books of exegesis, `Umar Allah be pleased with him is narrated to have said, 'When the verse: "Soon shall the hosts be routed, and they shall turn (their) backs." (al-Qamar: 45), was revealed, I did not know its interpretation until the day when the Battle of Badr took place as I saw Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him reciting it.' See 'Abd Ar-Raziq, Tafsir, 3069.

When the saying of Allah Glorified is He: 'We shall brand him on the snout!' (al-Qalam: 16) was revealed about , some Muslims wondered, 'How could we get to him?' Then, the Battle of Badr came and they saw his nose struck by the sword and scarred with a mark. Who had foreseen this future incident? It is Allah the Almighty not Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. If you reflect upon these issues, you will conclude that he peace and blessings be upon him was only a communicator of the Quran, which is revealed from Allah Glorified is He Who is fully Aware of the past, the present and the future, for He is the Owner of time.

Thus, the Quranic verse: 'We shall brand him on the snout!' (al-Qalam: 16), was sent down at the time of the Muslim's weakness, prophesising the branding of Al-Mughira's nose which is the sign of his pride and arrogance. Then the Battle of Badr took place so that the Muslims could see the fulfilment of the prophecy. Likewise, every issue brought forth by Allah the Almighty is truthful. Indeed, the Quran is a challenging Divine Speech and its recitation is an act of worship.

Allah Glorified is He said that about one of the masters of Quraysh when the Muslims were unable to defend themselves and even had to migrate to Abyssinia to protect themselves from the oppression of those masters, and every believer was seeking someone to protect him. At the Battle of Badr, though, this master's nose was branded and Allah's saying: 'We shall brand him on the snout!' (al-Qalam: 16) came true. So, who decides on whom would be killed or survive even before fighting takes place? It is Allah the Almighty Who knows what will happen in the future.

Astoundingly, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him specified the places where some masters of Quraysh were killed, and it is by Allah's Will that what happened was exactly as what he peace and blessings be upon him had foretold before the battle took place, saying, ‘This will be the place of the falling of so and so.’(1) They even brought the head of Al-Walid ibn Al-Mughira and found the mark scarring his nose. So, who is it that controls death? It is only Allah Glorified is He Who informed Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him of such news.

Moreover, they did not distinguish Al-Walid ibn Al-Mughira from the other killed people except with this mark on his nose. It is worth noting that Allah Glorified is He uses the Arabic prefix ‘sin’ to refer to the future instead of the particle ‘sawfa, ’ because the latter means that the action will happen in the distant future, whereas the prefix ‘sin’ indicates that it will happen soon in the near future. The semantic distinction between sawfa and the prefix sin is made clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘Leave them that they may eat and enjoy themselves and (that) hope may beguile them, for they will soon know.’ (al-Hijr: 3) ‘But there came after them an evil generation, who neglected prayers and followed and sensual desires, so they will meet perdition’ (Maryam: 59) and ‘…you cannot (bear to) see Me but look at the mountain, if it remains firm in its place, then will you see Me…’ (al-A‘raf: 143). In these verses, the particle sawfa is used to denote that there is a longer time before the action takes place or that the interval between the two incidents is extended. By contrast, using the prefix sin connotes that the interval between two incidents is short, thereby it will happen soon, as in the saying of Allah Glorified is He: ‘The fools among the people will say…’ (al-Baqara: 142). So, when you say to someone, ‘If you visit me, I will treat you generously’, this means that you treat him in that way shortly after his arrival if the prefix sin is used. But if the particle sawfa is used, this means that your generosity will take a longer time to be shown.

Regarding the saying of Allah Glorified is He: ‘We shall brand him on the snout!’ (al-Qalam: 16), the prefix sin (shall) imply that the punishment is soon to be inflicted on him. His punishment was branding his nose so as to be a permanent mark and feature of him, lucidly clear to one and all. The nose represents the face which is the most honourable organ of a human, and even when someone finds an arrogant proud person, he says, ‘I want to break his nose’, i.e. to put an end to his arrogance and pride.

(1) Anas ibn Malik Allah be pleased with him said, ‘The Messenger of Allah showed us the day before where the disbelievers would fall. He said, “This is the place where so-and-so will fall tomorrow, if Allah wills.” By the One Who sent him with the truth! They did not miss those places, then they were placed in a well.’ See Ahmad, Musnad, Hadith no. 182, 13296 and 13703; Al-Bazzar, Musnad, Hadith no. 222; Ibn Hibban, Sahih, Hadith no. 6498; and Abu Dawud At-Tayalisi, Musnad, Hadith no. 40.

The snout could allude to the human being’s nose, and thus the verse refers to what happened to Al-Walid at the Battle of Badr, whereas others maintain that this punishment will be in the Hereafter where he will be tortured in the hellfire with a fire placed on his nose.

Then, Allah Glorified is He says:

إِنَّا بَلَوۡنَٰهُمۡ كَمَا بَلَوۡنَآ أَصۡحَٰبَ ٱلۡجَنَّةِ إِذۡ أَقۡسَمُواْ لَيَصۡرِمُنَّهَا مُصۡبِحِينَ ١٧

We have tried them as We tried the owners of a certain garden, who swore that they would harvest its fruits in the morning [17] (The Quran, al-Qalam: 17)

Here, Allah the Almighty relates to us the story of the brothers who had a garden, and once they prevented the rights of the poor, the needy and the orphans, He the Almighty destroyed the fruits of their garden and burnt its trees. Allah Glorified is He punished them for their injustice. However, would not we find a person who has not wronged himself, and yet was afflicted by a calamity? We can see that in our daily life and if this person be patient and thankful, He the Almighty will grant him a reward from Him. Allah Glorified is He may destroy the money of someone because he has earned it unlawfully due to negligence. Regarding the believer, the calamity either brings a reward or purifies one’s money. As for the disbeliever who does spend out for the sake of Allah the Almighty he will get no rewards and no one can guarantee the permanency of the bounties he has.

Additionally, if you analyse any of the favours in which you play a role to bring it about, you will find that even your role is accredited to and gifted from Allah Glorified is He. Even after the plants grow and yield, you cannot feel secure that they will not be affected by blight or stricken by calamity, as He the Almighty says: ‘If We pleased, We should have certainly made it broken down into pieces, then would you begin to lament: "Surely we are burdened with debt: Nay! we are deprived."' (al-Waqi'a: 65-67)

As a matter of fact, the people can be tried with blessings as well as with misfortunes. It is not the 'trial' itself that arouse fear, but rather, the result of that trial, for if you overcome the tests and the trials successfully, it will be good for you; otherwise you will encounter the bad consequences of failing the test. The trials represent the criteria for choosing the good or the evil and are regarded as a favour from Allah the Almighty. So, testing people is not evil in itself, but the evil is to fail in the test. Every trial or calamity is regarded as a test, and no one can claim that the tests are evil except from the perspective of the one who could not bear the burden of striving to achieve success. That is why Allah the Almighty says: 'And as for man, when his Lord tries him, then treats him with honour and makes him lead an easy life, he says: "My Lord honours me." But when He tries him (differently), then straitens to him his means of subsistence, he says: "My Lord has disgraced me."' (al-Fajr: 15-16) So, neither wealth is a sign of dignity, nor is poverty a sign of humiliation. But when does wealth become a sign of dignity? Such is the case when the person is guided to give away its dues to the needy. On the other hand, if he does not give its dues, it will be a source of humiliation and abasement. In this case, being a poor person is better than being rich.

Thus, Allah Glorified is He states that neither having money is a sign of dignity nor is poverty is a sign of humiliation. Allah Glorified is He provides a proof for this fact, saying: 'Nay! But you do not honor the orphan. Nor do you urge one another to feed the poor. And you eat away the heritage, devouring (everything) indiscriminately.' (al-Fajr: 17-19) How could wealth be a sign of dignity when you do not honour the orphan? Indeed, wealth in this case is a burden. Similarly, how could strip you of such a wealth, with which you do not honour the orphan, be a sign of humiliation? In fact, Allah Glorified is He purifies you from this humiliation and relieved you of the responsibility of wealth. Consequently, neither wealth is a sign of dignity, nor is poverty a sign of humiliation.

Even if someone does not possess money to give it out charitably, should he not then spur the wealthy to do so? Such a person is even stingy in giving advice, as he does not encourage other people to feed the poor. How could he then claim that wealth is a sign of dignity and poverty is a sign of humiliation?

As we had previously said, the trials are not evil by definition, but so are the bad results thereof. This is because the trials are regarded as tests which one may overcome successfully while another fails in them. Further, the people can be tried with the blessings or misfortunes so that Allah Glorified is He sees who is patient and who is not.

Regarding the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘We have tried them…’ (al-Qalam: 17), Allah Glorified is He states that He tried the people of Mecca with hunger and tested the polytheists of Quraysh when Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him invoked Him against them, saying: ‘O Allah! Be hard on the tribe of Mudar and let them suffer from famine years like that of the time of Yusuf (Yusuf (Joseph)).’(1)

So, regarding the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘We have tried them as We tried the owners of a certain garden…’ (al-Qalam: 17), they were tried as a punishment for them. Similarly, He the Almighty says: ‘The likeness of what they spend in the life of this world is as the likeness of wind in which is intense cold (that) smites the seed produce of a people who have done injustice to their souls and destroys it; and Allah is not unjust to them, but they are unjust to themselves.’ (Al-‘Imran: 117) Al-Janna (the garden) refers to the garden that they owned. It is derived from the word al-jann (veil), and it signifies a grove planted with trees that if one were to walk through it, he would be veiled by its trees, unlike the groves with short flowers that only give a beautiful sight to behold. Bu contrast, the garden is characterised by tall bushy trees that hide one from sight and it also has everything to suffice your need so that you do not turn to another. When one is deprived of something, he looks for what meets his need, but the one who has what suffices him is not in need of others. Thus, al-janna (garden) denotes veiling and coverage. Further, one of its derivatives is insanity, for it covers to the mind. Additionally, when this word collocates with the word ‘night’, it means that the night is beginning to fall so that you cannot see others nor be seen. Such are the implications of ‘garden’, whose derivatives denote veil and coverage.

(1) Abu Hurayra Allah be pleased with him said, ‘When Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him finished recitation in the fajr prayer and raised his head from (bowing), he used to say: “Sami`a Allahu Liman Hamidah, Rabbana Wa Laka Al-Hamd.” He would, then, invoke Allah saying: “O Allah! Save Al-Walid ibn Al-Walid and Salama ibn Hisham ... O Allah! Be hard on the tribe of Mudar and let them suffer from famine years like that of the time of Yusuf (Yusuf (Joseph)).”’ See Al-Bukhari, Sahih, Hadith no. 804, 106 and 2932; and Muslim, Sahih, Hadith no. 294 and 295.

A garden is a place filled with plants, fruits, and tall bushy trees with abundant twisted branches which cover the one entering into it and satisfies him so that he is not in need of other places. It has all the necessities of life; food, fruit, grass, water, greenery, joy, etc.

The owners of the garden inherited it from their father who used to give away in charity a portion of everything it produces to the needy at the time of harvest. However, his sons said that their money was little and their children were many, and thus they could not give in charity as their father did. Then, they decided to deprive the poor of their charity, thereby suffer the consequence of their misdeed, which is mentioned in the Quran.

They swore to harvest the fruits of their palm trees without the poor noticing it, a fact which is crystal clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘…who swore that they would harvest its fruits in the morning.’ (al-Qalam: 17) So, they agreed to do that in the morning, but they did not say, ‘If Allah wills’, therefore Allah Glorified is He destroyed their garden, while they were asleep. In the morning, they went to their garden, saying: ‘Make sure no poor person enters the garden today!’ (al-Qalam: 24)

Thus, they blocked their way of obtaining Allah’s Bounty when they deprived the poor. Then Allah the Almighty says: ‘But when they saw the garden, they said, “We must have lost our way! No–we are ruined!”’ (al-Qalam: 26-27) Afterwards, they realised their fault and came to their senses, saying: ‘But maybe our Lord will give us something better in its place: we truly turn to Him in hope.’ (al-Qalam: 32)

Then, Allah Glorified is He says:

وَلَا يَسْتَثْنُونَ ﴿١٨﴾

And made no allowance [for the Will of God] [18] (The Quran, al-Qalam: 18)

When they were planning to harvest their garden, they did not say, ‘If Allah wills’. Therefore, beware of saying that you are going to do something without relating it to Allah’s Will because you cannot guarantee your life or the fulfillment of your promise. After all, nothing can happen without His Will, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: ‘And do not say of anything: “Surely, I will do it tomorrow.”’ (al-Kahf: 23)

As a matter of fact, the human being controls neither the time nor the place of an action. He even does not guarantee the presence of the means to do what he wants. All such elements; the action, its doer, time, place and cause are only controlled by Allah Glorified is He. Hence, one should shield himself against telling lies or venturing by following His saying: ‘and do not say of anything: “Surely I will do it tomorrow.” Unless Allah pleases…’ (al-Kahf: 23-24). In this way, he keeps away from being a liar because he will not do something unless He the Almighty wills.

Further, you cannot guarantee that you will be alive to do something in the future. In fact, the human being does not control the action, its time, place, and cause. Further, he does not have the ability to do it. Out of courtesy, you need to say, ‘If Allah wills’, and if it did not happen, you would say, ‘I said, “If Allah wills”, but He did not will it to happen’, thereby evading blame and telling lies.

Some scholars, though, contend that the saying of Allah Glorified is He: ‘And made no allowance [for the Will of Allah].’ (al-Qalam: 18), means that they would leave nothing of the fruits of their garden trees, i.e. they will not set aside some portion of the harvest to give away to the poor and the needy, as their father used to do.

Allah Glorified is He prescribes the zakat as a fixed portion of the rich’s property for the needy and the poor, as He the Almighty says: ‘And those in whose wealth there is a fixed portion, for him who begs and for him who is denied (good).’ (al-Ma’arij: 24-25) Giving alms, nevertheless, is not limited when it comes to the property of the doer of good. In this connection, He the Almighty says: ‘And in their property was a portion due to him who begs and to him who is denied (good).’ (adh-Dhariyat: 19) The person should not make the benefit of his money confined to himself; rather, the poor and the needy have a share in it. After giving their rights, he can make use of his property. Allah Glorified is He does not specify the right in the last verse as fixed, but leaves it unspecified, for only the zakat is prescribed as a fixed portion, while the one seeking the rank of the ihsan (excellence in faith) gives away of his money to the poor and the needy more than what is prescribed on him. As the Legislator Glorified is He ensures this right to the poor, He protects the poor and the rich all the same. He specified the prescribed alms in case of zakat in order that no one gives less than what is prescribed.

Some jurists argued that since the zakat is the right of the poor in the money of the rich, then if a rich person withholds it from the poor, his hand should be cut off because he has taken the right of the poor. The rich person is responsible for the right of the poor, and this is in the interest of poor. If the rich person does not give him his right on the due date, and then the money gets destroyed, then the rich person guarantees the right of the poor. So, the rich person is a guardian of the poor’s right and should treat him as he likes to be treated. He should not look down on the poor, thereby depriving him of his right.

The owners of the garden devised a plot, but they were overwhelmed by it, as Allah the Almighty says: ‘…and the evil plans shall not beset any save the authors of it…’ (Fatir: 43). Anyone devising evil plans tries to conceal his intentions, so he may show his love while disguising hatred. Harbouring bad intentions is one of the elements of evil planning and needs skill and experience. However, it can be exposed by insight and intuition. Allah Glorified is He inflicts His punishment on those who devise evil plans.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says:

فَطَافَ عَلَيْهَا طَآئِفٌ مِّن رَّبِّكَ وَهُمْ نَآئِمُونَ ﴿١٩﴾

A disaster from your Lord struck the garden
as they slept [19] (The Quran, al-Qalam: 19)

Therefore, Allah the Almighty punished the owners of the garden by sending a disaster on their garden, encompassing every part of it, and burning its trees.

Such a disaster was sent by His command at night. Allah Glorified is He sent on their garden a chastisement from the heaven which burnt it completely, leaving it as black as the dark night.

Allah says:

فَأَصْبَحَتْ كَالصَّرِيمِ ﴿٢٠﴾

And by morning it was stripped bare, a desolate land [20] (The Quran, al-Qalam: 20)

Sareem refers to the black dust. So, their garden became as black as the dark night. Its fruits were destroyed as though they were cut and reaped. Its owners swore that they would harvest its fruits before the poor coming in the morning to ask for charity. It is as if Allah the Almighty says to them, ‘You wanted to reap it and harvest its fruits to keep them for yourselves only, and consequently We destroyed it in order that you do not benefit from it. This is a punishment for your evil plans’.

Allah says:

فَتَنَادَوْا مُصْبِحِينَ ﴿٢١﴾ أَنِ اغْدُوا عَلَىٰ حَرْثِكُمْ إِن كُنتُمْ صَارِمِينَ ﴿٢٢﴾

Still they called each other at daybreak [21] Go early to your field if you wish to gather all its fruits [22] (The Quran, al-Qalam: 21-22)

In the morning, they called out to each other to go early to reap the fruits, saying: ‘Go early to your field if you wish to gather all its fruits.’ (al-Qalam: 22) They were unaware of the fact that their garden was burnt and their fruits were destroyed. They attributed the crops to themselves, saying: ‘Go early to your field...’ (al-Qalam: 22). The word ‘field’ here refers to the plants, cultivation, and the cultivated land.

In this vein, Allah Glorified is He reminds us, saying: ‘Have you considered what you sow? Is it you that cause it to grow, or are We the causers of growth? If We pleased, We should have certainly made it broken down into pieces, then would you begin to lament: “Surely we are burdened with debt:

Nay! we are deprived.'" (al-Waqi'a: 63-67); and '…as the likeness of wind in which is intense cold (that) smites the seed produce of a people who have done injustice to their souls and destroys it; and Allah is not unjust to them, but they are unjust to themselves.' (Al-'Imran: 117) Thus, even after the plants grow and flower, one cannot ensure that no blight or calamity would affect them. Hence one should not be proud of his deeds, and if farming is his job, he should not forget that He the Almighty is All Powerful over all things. The owners of the garden called one another in the morning to go early to reap the fruits, as was agreed upon, to keep the harvest for themselves. So, they were resolved and decisive in their plan.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says:

فَٱنطَلَقُواْ وَهُمۡ يَتَخَٰفَتُونَ ﴿٢٣﴾ أَن لَّا يَدۡخُلَنَّهَا ٱلۡيَوۡمَ عَلَيۡكُم مِّسۡكِينٞ ﴿٢٤﴾

And went off, whispering [23] Make sure no poor person enters the garden today! [24] (The Quran, al-Qalam: 23-24)

Intalaq (to go off) connotes determination and will power to do something, which, in this case, aimed at preventing the good from the poor people. This is similar to the person described previously as: 'Hinderer of good…' (al-Qalam: 12). They decided to commit a misdeed and did not want to be noticed. That is why, after calling one another, they lowered their voices as they were setting out. The saying of Allah the Almighty: '...whispering.' (al-Qalam: 23), is an adverbial clause describing their condition as they were going out. They walked in the darkness whispering to one another in lower voices so as not to be heard or noticed.

The Arabic letter 'waw' of plurality is employed to denote consensus of opinion regarding their plan, and that no one of them was so good as to draw back; rather, all the verbs relating their story connote their determination, resolve and insistence. So, they unanimously agreed to cut their crops hastily and secretly in order not to give anything to the poor. Not only did they decide to deprive the poor of their right in the crops and the fruits, but they also determined to prevent them even from entering the garden, a fact which is clear in their saying: 'Make sure no poor person enters the garden today!' (al-Qalam: 24)

They would prevent the poor even from entering the garden even if they had to use force, apart from expelling, scolding, closing doors and using every means to drive them out. Affirming their speech, the letter nun is used to imply that affirmation in the phrase: ‘Make sure no poor person enters…’ (al-Qalam: 24).

The poor used to enter this garden to take their share as the father of its owners had never prevented them. But the sons were stingy, preventing the good, as their hearts absorbed the love of the worldly life, thereby denying the rights of the others. They prevented the poor people even though they knew how needy they were that they labelled them ‘poor’, hence admitting that they were in dire need and abject poverty.

Allah says:

وَغَدَوۡاْ عَلَىٰ حَرۡدٖ قَٰدِرِينَ ﴿٢٥﴾

They left early, bent on their purpose [25]

This verse indicates that they had a settled purpose and determination to prevent and withhold. When hard collocates with the word ‘year’ it means that it is a dry one, and when it collocates with the ‘she-camel’, it means that it does not give milk. They purposefully contrived their plan and agreed to undertake it unjustly with malice aforethought. It indicates that they were not mindful of Allah the Almighty during the time of devising their plans, agreeing to it, sleeping, waking up in the morning and setting out. They were focusing on achieving what they agreed to, and went together with the intention of preventing the poor from entering their garden by all possible means. Paying no heed to Allah Glorified is He they did not realise that as they planned, He the Almighty also planned, and He is the best of planners, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: ‘And they planned and Allah (also) planned, and Allah is the best of planners.’ (Al-‘Imran: 54)

Thus, if they planned and plotted, He the Almighty has another plan to teach them a lesson so that they would not consider themselves able to do everything. In the same vein, Allah Glorified is He says: ‘…until when the earth puts on its golden raiment and it becomes garnished, and its people think that they have power over it, Our command comes to it, by night or by day, so We render it as reaped seed; produce, as though it had not been in existence yesterday…' (Yunus: 24). Much to their fallacy, some people are deluded to think that they are able to devise plans and plots, neglecting the fact that over them is an Ever-Watchful God Who is not overtaken by slumber or sleep.

He says:

فَلَمَّا رَأَوْهَا قَالُوٓاْ إِنَّا لَضَآلُّونَ ﴿٢٦﴾ بَلۡ نَحۡنُ مَحۡرُومُونَ ﴿٢٧﴾

But when they saw the garden, they said, 'We must have lost our way! [26] No – we are ruined! [27]
(The Quran, al-Qalam: 26 - 27)

They agreed to cut the crops of their garden in the morning, and did not say, 'If Allah wills', so He the Almighty destroyed it, while they were asleep. That morning, they set out to their garden whispering to one another: 'Make sure no poor person enters the garden today!' (al-Qalam: 24) When they deprived the poor, they blocked their way of obtaining the Bounty of Allah Glorified is He. At this point, He the Almighty says: 'But when they saw the garden, they said, "We must have lost our way! No–we are ruined!"' (al-Qalam: 26-27) Then, they realised their fault and came to their senses, saying: 'But maybe our Lord will give us something better in its place: we truly turn to Him in hope.' (al-Qalam: 32)

Standing before their garden in the morning and seeing its burnt fruits, crops and trees, they thought they had lost the way to their garden, and therefore some of them said, 'We are lost, this is not our garden.' They left it the day before rich with fruits and that day they found debris, black burnt trees and fruits which they wanted to cut in the early morning so as not to give the poor their rights in the harvest which they used to take at the time of their father.

They found it burnt, nothing was left, and it was as black as night, turned into ashes, thereby doubting it to be their garden of yesterday with its greenery and rich fruits. They thought they lost their way to it and that it was not their garden, but one of them said, 'No–we are ruined!' (al-Qalam: 27) He ensured that it was actually their garden, and they were not lost; rather, that was the reality before them. They lost their garden owing to their evil intentions to deprive the poor of their right.

Hence, we should not take great pride in our achievements in the worldly life, as Allah the Almighty says: ‘Have you considered what you sow? Is it you that cause it to grow, or are We the causers of growth? If We pleased, We should have certainly made it broken down into pieces, then would you begin to lament: “Surely we are burdened with debt: Nay! we are deprived.”’ (al-Waqi‘a: 63-67) We do not set beside the seed we plant in the field, pulling it to grow daily. All what you do is to plough the land and cultivate the seeds. Even after the plants grow and flower, one cannot ensure that no blight or calamity would affect them, as stated in the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘If We pleased, We should have certainly made it broken down into pieces, then would you begin to lament: “Surely we are burdened with debt: Nay! we are deprived.”’ (al-Waqi‘a: 65-67)

The deprived person is the one whose plants, fruits or the offspring of his cattle get destroyed, and hence becomes entitled to a right from any Muslim not afflicted by such calamity. Here is a surprising note; those people became poor and the zakat became entitled to them after they were once wealthy by having their garden. They were too rich to ask the people and were themselves required to give the zakat.

They became poor and worthy of people’s empathy, for they denied the poor their rights in their crops, zakat and harvest. So, what should they expect after becoming poor? They were heedless of the wisdom behind the zakat and giving the poor of what Allah the Almighty gave them. When a weak person finds himself in a society joined in solidarity and the wealthy gives him of his money, he cannot envy such rich people. In the countryside, we find that when the buffalo or any of the animals producing milk, walks around in the neighbourhood, everyone used to ask Allah to bestow blessings upon it. This is because its owner gives away of its milk and butter to his neighbours. Its owner did not have to tie, feed, or worry about it, and whatever it produces was to be distributed among family and relatives. In such a cooperative society, the poor people are helped and supported, and that is why they do not envy the rich ones; rather, they say, ‘Their good reaches out to us’.

In addition, the one giving charity feels assured that should he get infirm one day, he would find someone to care for him, given the fact that the ability is changeable and one may be strong today and weak tomorrow. For this reason, we advise those who rise to high ranks of wealth or power to beware when the blessings are perfected for them. This is because when you reach the utmost rank of wealth, influence, health and children, your status is likely to change, and since blessings has been perfected for and reached its utmost, then they are likely to be downgraded. As someone reaches the top, being in a changeable status, he then has to go down, as a poet put it: 'Whenever something is complete, it is likely to show imperfection; thus, expect it to lack it if it is said to be perfect.'

The bounties of life, including money and wealth, are gained through the movement in life which necessitates the person to have power. But when he lacks such power, how could he subsist? Allah Glorified is He ensures his provision through the one who has the ability to earn his provision. He the Almighty made the ability one of the fleeting gains in life. Accordingly, one may be able today and unable tomorrow. That being the case, when the able person receives His command to spend on the unable people, he has to realise that his ability is one of the fleeting gains of life, and that he is prone to be unable later, saying to himself, 'When I am unable, I will find someone to support me'. Is this not true insurance? It is the insurance of the believer who gives away when he has the financial ability so that Allah Glorified is He relieves him from the burden of asking people should he become unable. So, he would find people providing for him if confronted straitened circumstances.

In the blink of an eye, the owners of the garden became poor and deprived, in need of zakat, charity, and help. Allah the Almighty says: 'And in their property was a portion due to him who begs and to him who is denied (good).' (adh-Dhariyat: 19); and 'And those in whose wealth there is a fixed portion. For him who begs and for him who is denied (good)' (al-Ma'arij: 24-25). Allah Glorified is He is Self-Sufficient, above any need for the richest among His servants, as He states: '…Allah is Self-sufficient, Forbearing.' (al-Baqara: 263) This is a warning to the wealthy who deprives the poor, as though it is said to him, 'You prevented none but yourself from Allah's rewards'. Allah Glorified is He addresses the rich, saying: 'Behold! you are those who are called upon to spend in Allah's way, but among you are those who are stingy, and whoever is stingy is stingy against his own soul; and Allah is Self-sufficient and you have need (of Him), and if you turn back He will bring in your place another people, then they will not be like you.' (Muhammad: 38) He the Almighty is the Self-Sufficient with His Absolute Omnipotence; He has the Power to bring in the place of the stingy another people who give abundantly of what He the Almighty provides for them. Accordingly, the one who is stingy in giving only prevents himself from His Mercy.

Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him told Anas Allah be pleased with him, 'Woe to the rich from the poor on the Day of Judgment. They will say, "O Allah! They prevented us from our rights You prescribed on them", and Allah will reply, "By My Power and Majesty I will bring you closer and drive them far away." Then, he peace and blessings be upon him recited this verse: 'And in their property, was a portion due to him who begs and to him who is denied (good)' (adh-Dhariyat: 19).

Further, a man from the people of Yamama had a property which was destroyed by flood, to that one of Prophet Muhammad's Companions said, 'This is the deprived, give him a portion of your charity.' The deprived is opposite to the one given abundant provision. The owners of the garden were deprived of benefitting from the fruit of their effort and hard labour because they wanted to cut the crops without giving the poor their rights. Hence, they were turned from richness to poverty and became deprived people deserving charity and zakat on account of their evil intentions.

At that moment, the brothers began to blame one another to evade responsibility for what happened to them. Allah Glorified is He says:

قَالَ أَوْسَطُهُمْ أَلَمْ أَقُل لَّكُمْ لَوْلَا تُسَبِّحُونَ ﴿٢٨﴾

The wisest of them said, 'Did I not say to you, "Will you not glorify God?"' [28] (The Quran, al-Qalam: 28)

Regarding the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'The most moderate of them…' (al-Qalam: 28), it indicates that there were two parties; one party, then the moderate (being in the middle), then the other party. This is because moderation denotes being in the middle of something. To identify the moderate, one needs to recognise both parties first, and then he can determine the moderate as being in the middle of them. It is always the halfway point between two opposing parties, and this means that the other two parties are even since being in the middle necessitates that the distance between both parties and the middle is equal. In fact, moderation is the best policy. The end of both parties is defined from the halfway point being a separator between them; on its right is a party and on its left is the other party. Thus, the exact central point is usually regarded as the middle.

The saying of Allah the Almighty: 'The most moderate of them said…' means that after observing what happened to their garden, fruits and crops, the brothers were of different opinions. They were of one opinion when they devised their plan to cut the fruits and crops in the early morning before the coming of the poor in order not to give them anything. That is why He the Almighty says: 'We have tried them as We tried the owners of a certain garden, who swore that they would harvest its fruits in the morning and made no allowance [for the Will of Allah].' (al-Qalam: 17-18) and then He says: 'Still they called each other at daybreak, "Go early to your field if you wish to gather all its fruits", and went off, whispering, "Make sure no poor person enters the garden today!"— they left early, bent on their purpose.' (al-Qalam: 21-25) Then came the moment when they had different opinions. They wondered whether this was really their garden or they lost their way to it, but some of them knew for certain that it was theirs, and firmly recognised that Allah the Almighty deprived them of its fruits. In this regard, He the Almighty says: 'But when they saw the garden, they said, "We must have lost our way! No–we are ruined!"' (al-Qalam: 26-27) Those of the first opinion stating that they did not follow the right way to their garden and that the garden was not theirs, whereas those of the other opinion maintained that they were prevented and deprived of it. Yet the most moderate of them tried to inspire hope in Allah's Mercy, saying: 'Did I not tell you to glorify Allah?' (al-Qalam: 28) He the Almighty describes this opinion as: 'The most moderate of them…' (al-Qalam: 28) to manifest that He the Almighty did not shut the door of mercy on them.

The most moderate of them opined that their problem lay in not glorifying Allah the Almighty and not saying Allah willing, but this opinion does not denote disagreement with his brothers over preventing the poor from their fruits. It is rather a comment on the significance of relating their plan to Allah's Will such as when someone tells another to say, 'Allah willing'. Even a thief, in his way to commit theft, would ask Allah the Almighty to facilitate it for him, saying, 'O Allah! We put our trust in You, cover us so as not get exposed!' What he said is not a sign of his absolute goodness; rather, it is a sign of underestimating Allah's Greatness and Omnipotence. Yet, it may also be taken as a sign of not totally heedlessness of Allah Glorified is He as he, i.e. the most moderate among them was neither completely hostile to the poor nor was he deceiving himself saying, 'We lost the way to our garden for this is not ours'. They also did not lose hope in Allah's Mercy, and realised that they should have said 'Allah willing', and that Allah Glorified is He did not utterly deprive them of the good, as there was another chance to make up for their loss in the following year. Accordingly, after much debate they said together: 'but maybe our Lord will give us something better in its place: we truly turn to Him in hope.' (al-Qalam: 32)

Here, arises a question, which is, 'Those people were afflicted by blight due to their evil intention and wronging themselves, so are the people who have good intentions and do not wrong themselves saved from such calamities'? We say, 'No, everyone is prone to calamities, as He the Almighty: "The likeness of what they spend in the life of this world is as the likeness of wind in which is intense cold (that) smites the seed produce of a people who have done injustice to their souls and destroys it; and Allah is not unjust to them, but they are unjust to themselves." (Al-'Imran: 117) Those who do injustice to themselves are afflicted by calamities as a punishment for them.

The owners of the garden were afflicted with such a punishment, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: 'We have tried them as We tried the owners of a certain garden, who swore that they would harvest its fruits in the morning and made no allowance [for the Will of Allah] a disaster from your Lord struck the garden as they slept and by morning it was stripped bare, a desolate land.' (al-Qalam: 17-20) Allah Glorified is He punished them for their injustice, but could not we find a person who does not do injustice to himself and yet his plants get destroyed? We see it often in our daily life, and should such a person be patient, he would receive his reward from Allah the Almighty. With such a calamity, Allah Glorified is He may destroy the money that you earned unlawfully due to negligence. So, regarding the believer, the calamity either brings reward or purifies one's money. To think that you can guarantee the permanency of what you have of bounties is great injustice you commit against yourself, for none can guarantee that for himself or for the others.

Thus, the owner of the two gardens said: 'And he entered his garden while he was unjust to himself. He said: "I do not think that this will ever perish."' (al-Kahf: 35) It was not merely by entering his garden that he was unjust to himself, since it was his own and he was entitled to enter it whenever he liked. Rather, the act of injustice here refers to what he thought as he was entering the garden; i.e. superiority with his richness and arrogance with Allah's Blessings, thereby thinking that such blessings and delight would never end or perish.

Lawla (why do you not) signifies exhortation, i.e. the wisest one of the brothers said, 'Did I not tell you to glorify Allah?', This implies that he stimulated them to glorify Him the Almighty, and to say 'Allah willing' if they intended to carry out their plan, but they did not listen to him. So, his advice was not effective and he even followed their evil plans. Additionally, the word lawla implies that they did not glorify Him the Almighty nor did they say, 'Allah willing'. Therefore, they did not get what they wanted and did not achieve their objective. Lawla means that two things did not happen; one being absent due to the absence of the other, For instance, we say, 'If Zayd were present, I would come to you.' This means that Zayd was not present and as a result the speaker would not go to the addressee. So, it indicates the absence of something as a result of something else being absent.

When lawla is followed by a verb, it suggests exhortation, as in Allah's saying: 'Why did the believing men and the believing women, when you heard it, not think well of their own people, and say: "This is an evident falsehood? Why did they not bring four witnesses of it?"' (an-Nur: 12-13) If it is followed by a nominal statement, it means the absence of something due to the presence of something else; for instance, we say, ‘Were it not for Zayd, I would come to you’. Accordingly, the speaker would not come because Zayd is present. It may also refer to the absence of something as a result of something else being absent. Yet, when followed by a verb, it suggests exhortation.

The most moderate of them said: ‘Did I not tell you to glorify Allah?’ (al-Qalam: 28) He said that they should have related their oath to Allah’s Will, saying, ‘If Allah wills’. That is why they should have glorified Allah the Almighty and felt remorseful for what they did.

Allah says:

قَالُوا۟ سُبْحَٰنَ رَبِّنَآ إِنَّا كُنَّا ظَٰلِمِينَ ﴿٢٩﴾

They said, ‘Glory be to God, Our Lord! Truly, we were doing wrong!’ [29] (The Quran, al-Qalam: 29)

They acknowledged what the most moderate of them said to be true, especially that their garden was burnt and their crops of the year were destroyed. Further, thinking that it was not their garden and that they lost their way to it did not avail them to evade the reality. Hence, they said along with their brother ‘Glory is to our Lord’, exalting Him to have done injustice to them, and admitting their wrongdoing thereby deserving whatever happened to them. ‘Glory is to Allah’ represents exaltation to Him the Almighty that He is far above any of the attributes of imperfection since Allah Glorified is He has all the Attributes of Perfection and His Actions are perfect. Allah Glorified is He does not do injustice to anyone, a fact which is clear in His saying: ‘Surely Allah does not do injustice to the weight of an atom…’ (an-Nisa’: 40); ‘…and your Lord is not in the least unjust to the servants.’ (Fussilat: 46) and ‘This is for what your own hands have sent before and because Allah is not in the least unjust to the servants.’ (Al-‘Imran: 182) What happens to the people is the consequence of their evil deeds and sins. Allah Glorified is He does not permit Himself nor His servants to be unjust, as Allah Glorified is He says in a Qudsi Hadith: ‘O My slaves! I have made oppression unlawful for Myself and I have made it unlawful among you, so do not oppress one another.’ When you cause harm to others, this is called ‘evil’ and it is an act of injustice to them, while causing harm to yourself is called self-injustice.

It refers to the evil that affects oneself only. It also refers to committing a bad deed and enjoying it for a moment without recalling its ensuing severe punishment in this worldly life and the Hereafter. It is the owners of the garden who were unjust to themselves as a consequence to what they perpetrated, as stated in the saying of Allah the Almighty: '…and We did them no injustice, but they were unjust to themselves.' (an-Nahl: 118)

They admitted their fault and said, 'Surely we were unjust to ourselves because we did not glorify Allah as he ordered us, and we did not exalt Him from imperfection nor did we refer to His Will in what we were going to do. We did injustice to ourselves by preventing the poor from their right'. Interestingly, they said, 'Glory be to Our Lord...' (an-Naba': 29), instead of saying 'Glory is to Allah'. They referred to His Lordship rather than His Divinity in pursuit of His Provision. A devout worshipper once said, 'I do not address Allah as being His servant, but as Being My Lord, which renders me comfortable because He is the Lord of the worlds, and the one having a father caring for him has no worries, so what about the one having the Lord of the world's supporting and caring for him?'

Allah says:

فَأَقْبَلَ بَعْضُهُمْ عَلَىٰ بَعْضٍ يَتَلَٰوَمُونَ ﴿٣٠﴾ قَالُوا۟ يَٰوَيْلَنَآ إِنَّا كُنَّا طَٰغِينَ ﴿٣١﴾

And then they turned to each other in mutual reproach [30]
They said, 'Alas for us! We have done terrible wrong [31]
(The Quran, al-Qalam: 30 - 31)

They blamed each other for their negligence, not referring to Allah's Will in their oath and insisting on preventing the poor from their garden. They mutually accused one another of being the cause of what happened and the one to be blamed, shifting the responsibility onto each other. All of them involved in this plan in one way or another; some drew up the plan, some accepted it, some gave advice and warning and then withdrew and some were silent and content. They entered discussions and debates, levelling accusations against one another; one said to another, 'You threatened us with poverty', a second one said, 'You tempted me to collect money' and a third one said, 'You seduced me into withholding charity from the poor and the needy who deserve it'.

The brothers or the people in every community always tend to have different opinions, some towards the right, others towards the left, and yet the others are in the middle. This happened with the brothers of Prophet Yusuf (Joseph) peace be upon him when they decided to get rid of him because their father loved him more than all of them. So, they had different opinions over how to do that. Some of them suggested killing him, then, to be less evil; they thought of casting him out to another land that he may be killed unintentionally. Afterwards they decided, making it less evil again, to throw him into the well so that he may be picked up by some travellers. In this regard, Allah the Almighty relates that they said: 'Slay Yusuf (Joseph) or cast him (forth) into some land so that your father's regard may be exclusively for you, and after that you may be a righteous people. A speaker from among them said: "Do not slay Yusuf (Joseph), and cast him down into the bottom of the well if you must do (it) (so that) some of the travellers may pick him up."' (Yusuf: 9-10) We find that one of them rejected the suggestion of killing and suggested throwing him into the bottom of the well instead. Further, it is worth noting that the holder of this opinion was not violent or aggressive towards his brothers' suggestion to kill Yusuf (Joseph) or cast him out to another land. Rather, to diffuse their anger, he tried to persuade them not to kill him. So, he did not say, 'Do not kill him'. Instead, he said, '…do not kill Yusuf (Joseph)…' (Yusuf: 10). Through mentioning his name, he tried to excite sympathy for their brother so that they may go back on their plan.

Back to the verse under discussion; the owners of the garden confessed their bad deeds and admitted what they caused to themselves inasmuch as they invoked Allah the Almighty against themselves saying, '…woe to us.' (al-Qalam: 31) This is like the case of the criminal who, filled with remorse, regretfully says, 'I am guilty, I deserve to go to prison'. This is a condition of being conscience-stricken and a representation of self-criticism. The word 'woe' is used to indicate intense regret for one's negligence of the punishment. In this case, it signifies intense regret at the sight of their destroyed garden, for being in a difficult predicament as there was no way of getting back their fruits which were burnt and turned into debris and ashes. In such situation, they could do nothing but regret, thereby reprimanding themselves and deeming them worthy of punishment. The expression 'Woe to us', is an invocation of punishment, as one says, ‘Alas, how miserable I am!’ or ‘How afflicted I am!’ With such saying one does not call upon misery or affliction, since he only calls upon what makes him happy. They feel intense regret and great grief for what they did and realised that they deserve what happened to them, thereby blaming themselves. The word ‘woe’ denotes rapid destruction invoked upon themselves, but does anyone seek destruction to be inflicted on him? We say, ‘Yes, when someone perpetrates evil and recognises its bad consequences and encounters the bitter fact, he inclines to torturing himself. Do you not hear someone saying, “I deserve to be punished, this is my recompense?” He says so to blame himself and rebuke it for involving him in a predicament’. They attributed the ‘woe’ to themselves, despite being outside of them; i.e. a punishment inflicted on them, as evidence of being the cause for what happened to them and of being liable to it for good.

Further, Allah the Almighty then says: ‘They said, “Alas for us! We have done terrible wrong.”’ (al-Qalam: 31) They stated that they went beyond the limits of Allah Glorified is He as they prevented the right of the poor and did not refer to Allah’s Will in their planning nor did they glorify Him, the Giver of all Blessings. They said, ‘Our forefathers did not defy Allah with His Blessings; rather, they were thankful and gave the poor their right, and as a result He kept bestowing His Blessings on them and gave them in abundance. As for us, we denied His Favours and did not spare a portion for the poor. Therefore, such was our recompense; that fire destroyed all that we have’.

Allah Glorified is He made a reference to the human beings’ transgression against His Blessings, saying: ‘Nay! Man is most surely inordinate because he sees himself free from want.’ (al-‘Alaq: 6-7) For example, the person ploughs his land and when it produces crops, he thinks he had made it subservient to him and to his rules so as to produce whatever he likes. The human being thinks that he made everything submissive to him, while it is He the Almighty Who made everything subservient to serve him, and established the rules and the regulations. Throughout your life, you have no control over the world; everything changes around you without you having a hand in it. In the beginning of your life, you need your father and even when you grow up and become able to do certain actions, you cannot make this period of youth and strength permanent. As you advance into old age, you need someone to support and help you even with the simplest things such as food and drink. Hence, from your early childhood until old age you are in need for others. Even in your youth you may get affected by a disease leaving you disabled. If you have true will and power, why do you not drive such disease away from you? Indeed, you cannot.

Allah Glorified is He created these variable conditions of the human being to put an end to his arrogance and so that he comes to know that he is strong and able only because He the Almighty made the laws of the universe subservient to him. In this way, we acknowledge that all of us are in need of Him, the Omnipotent, the Self-Sufficient. He brings about change, but He is Unchangeable; causes death but is Ever Existing; and ordains weakness after strength, while He is the All Powerful. Further, what is with the people comes to an end, whereas what is with Him is enduring and never runs out. He the Almighty is the Lord in the heavens and in the earth. Thus, you have no right to allege that you have submitted the universe with your powers because you cannot even keep to one condition.

Naturally, when the human being finds that he has enough bounties in this worldly life, he may fall in transgression, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: ‘Nay! Man is most surely inordinate because he sees himself free from want.’ (al-‘Alaq: 6-7) One may transgress the limits and behave arrogantly with the people and even with his Lord because he has wealth. In fact, nothing but true faith could get the person out of these situations. Without following His Way of Guidance, the person gets drowned in the sea of arrogance and doubt. On the other hand, living in the light of Allah’s Way teaches the person how to observe Him in all conditions. Therefore, if He the Almighty bestows upon him wealth, he gives away to the needy.

The worldly means of sustenance may deceive the human being when they respond to him; when he farms the land and it produces fruits, he may be deluded into thinking that these means respond to his power and will. Thus, Allah Glorified is He reminds him, saying: ‘Nay! Man is most surely inordinate because he sees himself free from want.’ (al-‘Alaq: 6-7) It is obligatory to thank Him the Almighty for His Blessings and direct them to the good ways. In this way, the person will be successful; otherwise, he will fail the exam. Allah Glorified is He made it clear that the means have no effect except with His permission; one may plough, plant seeds, irrigates, looks after his plants, and when they are about to ripen, a heat wave or heavy rain may destroy them. The human being is only humiliated when he suffers of an affliction. Conversely, he increases in inordinacy when the blessings are perfected for him. If he is prevented from such blessings, his pride will fade away.

In fact, anyone showing off his strength may hope one day to be able to take some steps, but he may not be able to do that. So, the human being is not to be contended except with what he has intrinsically, not with what is granted to him, and thus he should not be arrogant. Allah, the Giver of Blessings, may withhold His Blessings; for example, He may deprive the human being of health, wealth, and authority. We always see the healthy people becoming ill, the rich getting poor, and the powerful being stripped of their authority. Thus, there is no need for conceit as it is He the Almighty Who grants you everything and you have nothing of your own, thereby the incentive for pride is lacking. Given that everything the human being has is a gift from the great Giver Glorified is He then He may divest him of His Gifts, and should this happen, he would come to his senses. So, one should not be conceited so as not to easily give in to depravity.

Then Allah Glorified is He relates that they said:

عَسَىٰ رَبُّنَآ أَن يُبْدِلَنَا خَيْرًا مِّنْهَآ إِنَّآ إِلَىٰ رَبِّنَا رَٰغِبُونَ ﴿٣٢﴾

But maybe our Lord will give us something better in its place: we truly turn to Him in hope [32]
(The Quran, al-Qalam: 32)

When you desire something you love very much, you should follow the way leading you to obtain it. However, some people may desire something, but they do not actually pursue the means to get access to it. This is what happened in the story of the owners of the garden. In this regard, Allah the Almighty says: 'We have tried them as We tried the owners of a certain garden, who swore that they would harvest its fruits in the morning and made no allowance [for the Will of Allah]; a disaster from your Lord struck the garden as they slept and by morning it was stripped bare, a desolate land.'

(al-Qalam: 17-20) They agreed to cut the crops of their garden in the morning and did not say ‘Allah willing’. Therefore, He the Almighty destroyed it while they were asleep. In the morning, they set out to their garden saying that no poor should enter it. In this way, they deprived themselves as they deprived the poor, as He the Almighty says: ‘But when they saw the garden, they said, “We must have lost our way! No–we are ruined!”’ (al-Qalam: 26-27) Then they came to their senses and realised their fault; they asked Him Glorified is He to give them a better one, saying: ‘But maybe our Lord will give us something better in its place: we truly turn to Him in hope.’ (al-Qalam: 32)

They are desirous of the way that gets them closer to Allah Glorified is He as it is not a matter of love only. That is to say that it is not enough to say, ‘I love Allah’, for, in fact, true love stimulates you to strive and exert yourself to follow His Way. Accordingly, to prove your love for Him the Almighty, you should be desirous of following His Guidance.

`Aya (maybe) is used generally to mean that one wishes or hopes for something to happen, but it may happen or not. It has stronger connotations when uttered by the person himself; for instance, he may say, ‘I wish I could bring you good’. But it is less strong when it comes from third person, even though the person who made that promise cannot ensure his power or presence so as to bring good to the one he addressed. If someone says, ‘I hope Allah grants you happiness’, it indicates the highest degree of hope, still the speaker cannot be sure that Allah Glorified is He will respond to him, as this is subject to His Will. According to His Will, He the Almighty may respond to the person or not; the matter is not depending on the will of the one who wishes or for the one wished.

Similarly, the owners of the garden wish that Allah Glorified is He gives them a garden better than the one which was destroyed on account of their evil intentions, saying: ‘But maybe our Lord will give us something better in its place: we truly turn to Him in hope.’ (al-Qalam: 32) He the Almighty may or may not respond to their wishing, as inferred from the word ‘maybe’ which is followed by something we wish for. Knowing that their repentance was sincere and their confession to sins was faithful, Allah Glorified is He granted them a better garden. In this connection, 'Abdullah ibn Mas`ud said, 'I was informed that the owners of the garden were sincere and Allah knew they were truthful. Hence He granted them another garden called Al-Hayawan; a mule could only bear a bunch of its grapes.'

The scholars disagree over whether Allah Glorified is He changed the condition of their own garden which they owned and turned its debris and destruction into greenery and bloom, or He gave them instead a totally different garden in a different place. The scholars stated that the owners of the gardens were from Yemen which is filled with gardens and groves.

In this vein, He the Almighty tells us of the story of the kingdom of Sheba which was in Yemen, saying: 'certainly there was a sign for Saba' in their abode; two gardens on the right and the left; eat of the sustenance of your Lord and give thanks to Him: a good land and a Forgiving Lord!' (Saba': 15) In the kingdom of Sheba, they used to have gardens on their right and on their left, yet they were not grateful to Allah Glorified is He for what He granted them of good land and forgiveness, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: 'But they turned aside, so We sent upon them a torrent of which the rush could not be withstood, and in place of their two gardens We gave to them two gardens yielding bitter fruit and (growing) tamarisk and a few lote-trees.' (Saba': 16) Allah Glorified is He conferred His Blessings on the people of Sheba, but they were not thankful for Him, and that is why they were punished.

They used to brag about their dam which retained the water of rain, and on which they depended for water supply throughout the year. However, this very dam was the disaster that destructed their planting. The dwellings of the people of Sheba represented a sign of Allah's Omnipotence; two beautiful gardens on the right and on the left so that they may eat and thank Him for His Provision and Blessings. Nonetheless, they turned away from giving thanks for the abundant provision granted to them, and consequently He the Almighty sent upon them the flood of the dam that was destructed by virtue of one of the lowest and the weakest animals, that is, the rats which made a hole in the dam. Thus, it was destructed and the flood drowned their property and engulfed their houses.

As for the owners of the garden in the chapter in question, they inherited goodness from their father, and thus they admitted their sins and returning to Allah the Almighty in repentance, hoping that it would be accepted. That is why they said: '…we truly turn to Him in hope.' (al-Qalam: 32) It should be noted that they repetitively affirmed Allah's Lordship, saying: 'Glory be to Allah, Our Lord!' (al-Qalam: 29); and 'But maybe our Lord will give us something better in its place: we truly turn to Him in hope.' (at-Tariq: 32) This suggests that they were desirous and hopeful of His favour, for He is their Lord. If the word raghib (desirous of) is followed by the preposition `ann, it means that the person abandons something, and if used in the passive form followed by the preposition 'to', it means to pursue something. Being desirous toward Him Glorified is He they should not have separated giving in this worldly life from being rewarded in the Hereafter. After all, the worldly life is not everything and so long as the person desires Allah's reward, He will give him everlasting, boundless bliss in the Hereafter.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says:

كَذَٰلِكَ ٱلْعَذَابُ ۖ وَلَعَذَابُ ٱلْـَٔاخِرَةِ أَكْبَرُ ۚ لَوْ كَانُوا۟ يَعْلَمُونَ ﴿٣٣﴾

Such is the punishment [in this life], but greater still is the punishment in the Hereafter, if only they knew [33] (The Quran, al-Qalam: 33)

The words 'such' here is a reference to the chastisement of the people of the garden in this worldly life; they saw their burnt garden and lost their fruits. It is as if He the Almighty says, 'As We did to the owners of the garden, the same will be the case of whoever disobeys My Orders and disbelieves in My messengers. With such worldly chastisement We have punished the one who said that the Quran is nothing but legends of the former peoples'. In this regard, He the Almighty says: 'Just because he has wealth and sons, when our revelations are recited to him, he says, "These are just ancient fables." We shall brand him on the snout!' (al-Qalam: 14-16) It is as though Allah Glorified is He mentions the story of the owners of the garden to respond to those who disbelieved in the Quran and rejected to believe that it is a Divine Revelation. Such a person was given wealth and children, and yet he did not believe in Him the Almighty just like the owners of the garden who were given ripe fruits and beautiful garden, but were deprived of it on account of disobedience and willingness to prevent the rights of Allah.

Such will be the chastisement to be inflicted on the people of Quraysh. It is said that Quraysh suffered from drought which endured for seven years that they saw smoke, out of extreme hunger, and had to eat the skins of dead animals. Allah Glorified is He introduces the story of the owners of the garden with the verse: 'We have tried them as We tried the owners of a certain garden…' (al-Qalam: 17). This means that He the Almighty tried the people of Quraysh as He tried the owners of the garden. Allah Glorified is He only gives them wealth and children to test them. However, they used His Blessings to transgress against Him, and to turn people away from His Guidance. Accordingly, their chastisement is similar to that of the owners of the garden, and let it be known that the chastisement of the Hereafter is greater, as He the Almighty says: '…but greater still is the punishment in the Hereafter, if only they knew.' (al-Qalam: 33)

So, the disbelievers should not think that the worldly chastisement will evade them the chastisement of the Hereafter because the former may affect both the believer and the disbeliever, but the greater punishment of the Hereafter will afflict the disbelievers only. The chastisement in the Hereafter has different attributes, which includes being great, disgraceful, painful and lasting. A great chastisement is inflicted either by 'means' or by the causer. The worldly chastisement is always inflicted by 'means,' which could be a stick, a whip, or an insult, all of which are different in strength. However, the chastisement in the Hereafter is inflicted by Allah, the Omnipotent. Therefore, if we compare the worldly chastisement to that of the Hereafter, we will surely find that the latter is the greatest of all.

Regarding the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'Then it shall be said to those who were unjust: Taste abiding chastisement…' (Yunus: 52), Allah Glorified is He describes the chastisement in the Hereafter as 'abiding ' meaning that it never ends, whilst chastisement in this worldly life, however humiliating and degrading, is temporary and even petty when compared to the everlasting chastisement of the Hereafter. Thus, the chastisement in the Hereafter is far greater than that in the worldly one, which can never in any way be similar to that of the former, however severe and cruel it is.

In addition, Allah Glorified is He calls the Day of Judgment 'a dreadful day', saying: '…What suffering will come to those who obscure the truth when a dreadful Day arrives!' (Maryam: 38) The punishment on the Day of Resurrection is witnessed by all people. On the contrary, the chastisement in this worldly life is only witnessed by the present contemporaries, but not by the predecessors or the successors. Moreover, anyone evading the punishment in this worldly life can never escape it in the Hereafter.

Regarding the saying of Allah the Almighty: '…If they only know' (al-Qalam: 32) Allah Glorified is He affirms their ignorance and negates their knowledge, given the fact that knowledge which the person does not apply and benefit from is pointless. So, it is as though they knew nothing. Elsewhere, He the Almighty say: '…most people do not know. They know the outward of this world's life…' (ar-Rum: 6-7). Allah Glorified is He negates that they have true knowledge even though He affirms that they know what is apparent of the worldly life, i.e. the marital worldly knowledge. However, the verse under discussion: '…If they only know' (al-Qalam: 32) carries the meaning of negation, that is, they do not know, or wishing, that is, they had better know this reality of this worldly life and the Hereafter. Had they known it, they would have followed the Guidance of their Lord to get the everlasting reward and they would have followed the Path of Faith instead of that of disbelief.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says:

إِنَّ لِلْمُتَّقِينَ عِندَ رَبِّهِمْ جَنَّٰتِ ٱلنَّعِيمِ ﴿٣٤﴾

There will be Gardens of bliss for those who are mindful of God [34] (The Quran, al-Qalam: 34)

`Ittiqa (guarding against/shielding) means to be cautious and refrain from evil, as stated in His saying: 'O you who believe! Save yourselves and your families from a fire whose fuel is men and stones.' (at-Tahrim: 6) Here, it means to shield ourselves from the fire and be careful of not falling into it by committing what provokes Allah's Anger. Hence, one should keep himself away from hellfire by abstaining from disobedience and by doing good deeds.

Taqwa (piety or fear of Allah) is one of the wonders of the Quran since it collocates with 'Allah' and the 'hellfire'. But if we look closely, we will find that the meaning is the same because with the word ‘hellfire’, it means to draw a barrier between yourself and the hellfire to protect yourself from it. However, when it collocates with the word ‘Allah’, it does not mean to draw a barrier between yourself and Him because a believer is always under His care. Rather, it means to shield yourself from His Attributes of Majesty and their effects, such as the Avenger, the Compeller, and the Subduer. Piety suggests warding off something harmful for you. So, the true piety is that which takes you away from disbelief which admits you to hellfire, rids you of niggardliness and prevents you from committing disobedience. The pious people are those who love to fear Him Glorified is He by keeping away from disbelief. Such are the believers of the higher rank.

Thus, piety implies keeping away from an unbearable evil. Similarly, as cannot bear Allah’s Wrath or Mightiness, you should shield yourselves from His Attributes of Majesty and their effects – one of which is hellfire. The basis of piety and fear of Allah the Almighty is being mindful of the Day of Resurrection. The pious believer is the one who controls his conduct and refrains from disobedience and following his whims. Piety also indicates evading the troubles and the problems of the worldly life by adhering to the Divine Way of Guidance. Only then one would keep away from troubles. As for the one who turns away from piety, he will lead a miserable life, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: ‘And whoever turns away from My reminder, his shall be a straitened life…’ (Ta Ha: 124).

After clarifying what happened to the owners of the garden and how it was burnt and destroyed on account of their determination to prevent the rights of the poor and the needy, Allah Glorified is He speaks about the pious servants and what He prepared for them. Owing to their lack of faith, piety, and fear of Allah, Who watches over them, the owners of the garden feared that the owners of rights, i.e. the poor and the needy may see or know what they were plotting. They whispered and lowered their voices, deciding that no poor was to be allowed to enter their garden. In this regard, He the Almighty says: ‘Still they called each other at daybreak, “Go early to your field if you wish to gather all its fruits,” and went off, whispering, “Make sure no poor person enters the garden today!”’ They feared the people instead of Allah the Almighty and were careful not to let anyone see them.

Further, in the verse under discussion, the letter Nun of emphasis is used to reassure the pious of their reward which is with their Lord, the Disposer of affairs. It is noteworthy that His saying: '…with their Lord…' (al-Qalam: 34) denotes that their reward will never be lost for it is with their Lord Who nourishes and sustains them. On the contrary, when your recompense, for example, is with a human being like you, he may devour it. The true believer considers this matter with certainty, for he knows for sure that his reward is with his Lord Who nourishes him and takes upon Himself to raise him to the required level of perfection. This Quranic phrase: 'with their Lord' (al-Qalam: 34) is mentioned in many verses, such as His saying: '…and give good news to those who believe that theirs is a footing of firmness with their Lord…' (Yunus: 2); 'Surely those who believe, and those who are Jews, and the Christians, and the Sabians, whoever believes in Allah and the Last day and does good, they shall have their reward from their Lord, and there is no fear for them, nor shall they grieve.' (al-Baqara: 62); '(as for) those who spend their property in the way of Allah, then do not follow up what they have spent with reproach or injury, they shall have their reward from their Lord, and they shall have no fear nor shall they grieve.' (al-Baqara: 262) and '(as for) those who spend their property by night and by day, secretly and openly, they shall have their reward from their Lord and they shall have no fear, nor shall they grieve.' (al-Baqara: 274)

Those who believe and give away in charity shall have their reward with their Lord since they fear Him the Almighty, believe in Him, and spend out of what He granted them, being absolutely certain that He watches over them. As for those who deprived the poor and the needy of their rights and plotted to cut the fruits of their garden in secret, in the absence of those entitled to these rights, they have little faith as they mistakenly think that He the Almighty does not watch them.

This Quranic phrase: 'with their Lord' (al-Qalam: 34) is not limited to the believers, for He the Almighty is the Lord of all, the believers and disbelievers, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: 'And could you but see when the guilty shall hang down their heads before their Lord…' (as-Sajda: 12). Thus, He the Almighty is the Lord of the disbelievers as well since how could it be that

He leaves them without care or provision after He had brought them into existence. On the Day of Resurrection, they will stand before Him whether they like it or not.

Thus, their reward of the pious people is with Allah the Almighty so what did He, the Supreme Lord, prepare for them? Allah Glorified is He prepared for them the eternal Gardens of Delight in which neither they die nor the Gardens come to an end. They are not like the garden which was burnt and turned into ashes.

Allah Glorified is He mentions the reward for belief and good deeds, saying: '…so those who believe and do good will be in gardens of bliss.' (al-Hajj: 56) So, there are many Gardens of everlasting bliss and delight which cannot cease to exist. These Gardens include the following: the Garden of Al-Firdaws, the Garden of Eden, the Garden of Bliss, the Garden of Eternity, and the Garden of the Abode of Peace and the Garden of Refuge. There is also the Garden of `Illyyun which is the best of Gardens, and the greatest bliss in it is to see Allah Glorified is He.

These gardens are conferred out of Allah's favour, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: 'Surely those who guard (against evil) shall be in gardens and fountains. Taking what their Lord gives them; surely they were before that, the doers of good.' (adh-Dhariyat: 15-16); and 'Say: "Shall I tell you what is better than these? For those who guard (against evil) are gardens with their Lord, beneath which rivers flow, to abide in them, and pure mates and Allah's pleasure; and Allah sees the servants."' (Al-'Imran: 15) The gardens in the Hereafter are those of delight and bliss, where a believer can find whatever he desires or comes to his mind and even what does not come to mind.

Furthermore, Allah Glorified is He points out that He prepared these gardens for those who are: 'The patient, and the truthful, and the obedient, and those who spend (benevolently) and those who ask forgiveness in the morning times.' (Al-'Imran: 17) Such are the attributes of the pious, to whom He the Almighty prepared the Gardens. These gardens are graced with rivers and purified mates. Further, the Pleasure of Allah the Almighty is the greatest of these blisses.

Giving away in charity is one of the attributes of the pious people to whom Allah Glorified is He has prepared gardens graced which rivers flow.

Giving out in charity is meant to protect the weak people whom He created for a certain purpose. Spending out is not taking from others, but a handling which is made clear when considering the fact that whatever is additional to your needs is not yours except with your extra movement in life.

Pursuing the means of sustenance in life requires a mind to plan, limbs to act upon the intellectual plan, and the means by which the plan is undertaken. These means include, for example, a plot to be planted or a machine to be manufactured. In fact, the human being has no role in having these blessings; his mind and energy are gifts from Allah the Almighty as we can find someone deprived of the mind which makes plans, and another deprived of the energy which undertakes the plan, and a third deprived of the means helping him to implement his plan. Hence, none of these things are of his own making, for they all are gifts from Him the Almighty.

The true believer should trade with Allah Glorified is He through giving the rights of the weak. Such right is not taken by Him the Almighty, but rather, He made it the right of one's the weak brother, and should the rich person be in a similar circumstance, he would be entitled to it. Spending in the Way of Allah, prevented by the owners of the garden, is one of the attributes of the pious since it provides protection for the weak.

Bliss and delight in the paradise is beyond imagination, it is befitting Allah's Perfection, Beauty, and Omnipotence. In this worldly, life the delight enjoyed by the human being is proportional to his perception of delight. For instance, a mayor of some village may want to build a guesthouse, room for the telephone and a terrace; this is considered a delight from his perspective, but how could it be from the perspective of the Creator, Allah Glorified is He. For this reason, the Gardens of Delight are abiding; you never die therein nor do they perish.

The pious believers will abide eternally in the Gardens of Delight. Allah Glorified is He addresses the people who enjoyed some delight in their life due to His Favours upon them, but they also witnessed some people losing favours and others leaving them by death. Hence, He the Almighty reassures the pious people that they will abide eternally in the Garden of the Delight which never ceases to exist nor are they driven away from it. The garden, in the absolute sense, refers to the paradise in the Hereafter, whilst a garden in this world is liable to get destroyed or to have its trees and plants dried, fallen or burnt–the same as what happened to the owners of the garden. By contrast, the Garden of the Hereafter has everlasting fruits.

This worldly life with whatever it has of delight is proportional to the human being's potentials and perspective, and such delight is threatened by two things. First, the person dies and leaves it, which frequently happens; second, the delight may run out or come to an end. Thus, the true delight is the great attainment, that is, the everlasting, endless, uninterrupted delight of the paradise. In this regard, Allah the Almighty says: 'How many of the gardens and fountains have they left! And cornfields and noble places! And goodly things wherein they rejoiced, Thus (it was), and We gave them as a heritage to another people. So the heaven and the earth did not weep for them, nor were they respited.' (ad-Dukhan: 25-29) Those people were granted many blessings; gardens, fountains, cornfields, and goodly things wherein they rejoiced. However, this was temporal and therefore they left it and departed this life. Then it became the heritage of other people. This is not the true delight, for the true one is only that of the Hereafter which is eternal and abiding.

Additionally, the word 'gardens' signifies the place laid out with a variety of plants and fruits adorning it. The derivatives of this Arabic word denote covering and veiling. Thus, the garden is the place laid out with plants, fruits, and trees with twisted branches and sprigs so that it veils anyone entering it and hides him from sight. It would not make him in need for others.

In the garden, there are all the constituents of life: food, fruits, grass, water, greenery, joy, and everything else, such as the perfect house which includes all the facilities that meet all your needs so that you do not need anything else. Here arises a question, which is, 'Why is it that Allah Glorified is He uses the word 'gardens' in the plural, despite using it in the singular in other verses, and yet in some other verses it is used in the dual form?' Mentioning it in the plural does not mean that every believer will enter all of them, but rather, every believer will enter one of these gardens according to his good deeds and his level of faith and obedience.

It is worth noting that a dweller of a higher Garden will not be envied by a dweller of a lower Garden, nor will the dweller of the highest Garden take pride in it. Rather, everyone feels happy for the rank of the other, as we may find a student, out of purity of soul, feels happy for his successful colleague who, in turn, does not take pride in his success. If this could happen in this worldly life, so what about the Hereafter, where Allah roots out whatever rancour in their breasts? In this regard, Allah the Almighty says: ‘And We will root out whatever of rancour is in their breasts— (they shall be) as brethren, on raised couches, face to face.’ (al-Hijr: 47) Undoubtedly, every one of the dwellers of the Garden feels happy for his rank and for those of higher ranks because he will have abundant good from the dweller of the higher rank when he comes to visit him.

Regarding the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘And for him who fears to stand before his Lord are two gardens.’ (ar-Rahman: 46), He the Almighty states that everyone with a higher rank will get two Gardens; one for his own and another for honouring those lower than him in rank, as if it is prepared for hosting those whom he likes. Thus, the dwellers of the Garden will feel happy for those above them because they will obtain good from them. Thus, there is no rancour, envy, or jealousy among them.

In this connection, it was narrated that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said once to his Companions while they were sitting with him, ‘A man from the dwellers of paradise will appear before you.’ Then a man, known by the Companions, entered, but they wanted to know for which deed he deserved this good news of paradise from Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. So, they asked him about that deed to act upon it and be promised of paradise. The man replied, ‘I pray as you pray, fast as you fast and give zakat in the same way, except that I do not envy anyone because of the good that Allah has given them.’ On hearing that, they went to him peace and blessings be upon him and told him what the man said, so he said, ‘Is there other reason why paradise is preferred to this worldly life?’ This is further stated in the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘Surely those who guard (against evil) shall be in the midst of gardens and fountains. Enter them in peace, secure. And We will root out whatever of rancour is in their breasts— (they shall be) as brethren, on raised couches, face to face.’ (al-Hijr: 45-47)

Furthermore, we should know that Allah Glorified is He did not create the Gardens for the believers only, nor did He create the hellfire for the disbelievers only; rather, He the Almighty created a place in the paradise and in the hellfire for every one of His creation until the Day of Judgment, and. Accordingly, when the Garden is occupied by its dwellers, some other Gardens will be vacant because those for whom it was created entered the hellfire. Then, Allah Glorified is He gives them to the believers, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: 'And this is the garden which you are given as an inheritance on account of what you did.' (az-Zukhruf: 72)

So, following Allah's Guidance causes one to rejoice at the delight of these Gardens, and gives him eternal life and abiding bliss. These Gardens are not prepared according to people's abilities, but in proportion to the Omnipotence of Allah Glorified is He. Given the fact that His Blessings in the worldly life are uncountable, so what about thinking of His Blessings in the Hereafter?

Further, He the Almighty says: 'They have therein what they wish and with Us is more yet.' (Qaf: 35) Thus, in the Garden, not only will you get what you want or wish once it comes to your mind, but you will be given more than that, i.e. the delight that you did not know before. In fact, the delight in this worldly life is proportional to people's abilities, whilst in the Hereafter it is proportional to Allah's Omnipotence. What entitles you to the delight of the Hereafter is doing good deeds and following Allah's Way of Guidance. Even though this may be physically and mentally burdensome, it is temporal, for in the end you will rejoice at everlasting enjoyment and bliss in the Gardens of Eternity.

There is the ultimate goodness, that is, you are born, grow up, graduate at university, hold eminent posts, then enters paradise where nothing is left but eternity in the delight.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says:

أَفَنَجۡعَلُ ٱلۡمُسۡلِمِينَ كَٱلۡمُجۡرِمِينَ ﴿٣٥﴾ مَا لَكُمۡ كَيۡفَ تَحۡكُمُونَ ﴿٣٦﴾

Should We treat those who submit to Us as We treat those who do evil? [35] What is the matter with you? On what basis do you judge? [36] (The Quran, al-Qalam: 35 - 36)

In these two verses, there is a rhetorical question the answer to which is known to be ‘No, they should not be treated equally’, as the Muslims who submit to Allah the Almighty are not like the guilty. How could the believer who submits himself to Him and follows His Guidance and law be treated as he who defies against His Guidance, rejects it, disobeys, and disbelieves in Him? Certainly, they cannot be equal. In addition, Allah Glorified is He gives us many examples of things which are unequal, for equality is sometimes unfair, and Allah Glorified is He is far from being unfair.

In this connection, He the Almighty say: ‘Have you not considered how Allah sets forth a parable of a good word (being) like a good tree, whose root is firm and whose branches are in heaven, yielding its fruit in every season by the permission of its Lord? And Allah sets forth parables for men that they may be mindful.’ (Ibrahim: 24-25) He the Almighty gives us the two parts of the parable, being ‘good word’ and ‘evil word’, and the Quranic context leaves us to decide for ourselves. It is as if He states that they are not equal, but leaves it to us to utter the ruling with our own mouths.

Similarly, He says: ‘Allah sets forth a parable: (consider) a slave, the property of another, (who) has no power over anything, and one whom We have granted from Ourselves a goodly sustenance so he spends from it secretly and openly; are the two alike? (All) praise is due to Allah! Nay, most of them do not know.’ (an-Nahl: 75) Here, one may ask, ‘There are two parts of the parable, why then does Allah say “are they alike” in the plural form, not in the dual form’? We say that the parable, even if each of its parties is singular, applies to many, being common among the slaves and among the masters of good provision as well. So He the Almighty uses the plural to generalise the parable.

In another verse, Allah Glorified is He says: ‘Is he then who is a believer like him who is a transgressor? They are not equal.’ (as-Sajda: 18) The words ‘believer’ and ‘transgressor’ are in the singular form, but Allah Glorified is He does not say, 'They are not equal', in the dual form, but instead uses the plural form because He does not speak about specific individuals, but rather about the people in general. The verse might have been revealed regarding specific individuals, yet the generality of the wording, not its specific cause of revelation, is to be considered. Consequently, the context considers the specific cause regarding 'the believer' and 'the transgressor', and considers the generality of the issue when the plural is used 'they are not equal'. As the believer and the transgressor are not alike, the slave, who has no power over anything, cannot be held equal to the one who is free and to whom Allah the Almighty grants a goodly sustenance so he spends from it secretly and openly. In the same way, a believer is not equal to the evildoers.

Now, it can be observed that Allah Glorified is He compares the Muslim to the evildoers and the believer to the transgressor since the believer is the one who believes firmly with his heart whilst the transgressor is the one whose limbs transgress Allah's Guidance. He does not believe firmly with his heart, and thereby he is opposite to the believer. As for the Muslim, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'A Muslim is the one from whose tongue, and hands the Muslims are safe'. So, Islam is related to controlling one's limbs, including his hands and tongue with which he should not harm others going about with gossip, backbiting, insulting, oppressing or helping the oppressors. Similarly, he should not harm others with his hands by hitting, killing, taking bribes, helping oppressors. Harming others with hands or tongue represents a crime punishable by a prescribed punishment or ta`zir (the punishment administrated at the discretion of the judge).

Allah the Almighty says: 'and the Book shall be placed, then you will see the guilty fearing from what is in it, and they will say: "Ah! Woe to us! What a book this is! It does not omit a small one nor a great one, but numbers them (all)"; and what they had done they shall find present (there); and your Lord does not deal unjustly with anyone.' (al-Kahf: 49) Here, we find that the crimes of these guilty people are recorded by the Angels in specific records and books, and everyone will read it by himself. They thought that nothing was recorded against them and that they will not be punished, owing to their confused faith in the Hereafter and the Day of Judgment. These criminals may control people's lives and spread mischief in the land, and no one can stand in their way. Such criminals should heed the following Threat of Allah the Almighty: '…There shall befall those who are guilty humiliation from Allah and severe chastisement because of what they planned.' (al-An'am: 124)

As a matter of fact, the believers are the opposite of the criminals. So, if the way of the criminals is made clear to us, we can distinguish it from the way of the believers. As Allah the Almighty clarifies that the way of the criminals ends with cursing and expulsion from His Mercy, then we get to know, by contrast, that the way of the believers is that of Mercy and honour. Regarding the criminals, He the Almighty says: '…and His punishment cannot be averted from the guilty people.' (al-An'am: 147)

The criminals are also those who disbelieve in Allah's verses, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: 'Surely (as for) those who reject Our communications and turn away from them haughtily, the doors of heaven shall not be opened for them, nor shall they enter the garden until the camel pass through the eye of the needle; and thus do We reward the guilty.' (al-A'raf: 40) Therefore, they deserve this punishment as a result of their misdeeds. They will not enter the paradise, and so they are deprived of the good. Moreover, they enter the hellfire. Therefore, there are two punishments for them: being deprived of the good which is entering paradise, and bringing about harm on themselves by entering the hellfire. So, Allah Glorified is He deprived them of the delight owing to their disobedience and disbelief, and admitted them to hellfire as another punishment. Being guilty, they were forbidden to enter the paradise, and their injustice proved them worthy of entering the hellfire and being encompassed by it. In this regard, He the Almighty says: 'They shall have a bed of hell-fire and from above them coverings (of it); and thus do We reward the unjust.' (al-A'raf: 41)

Thus, injustice is related to committing crimes, and it may be a kind of crimes, a fact which is crystal clear in the saying of Allah Glorified is He: 'And certainly We did destroy generations before you when they were unjust, and their apostles had come to them with clear arguments, and they would not believe; thus do We recompense the guilty people.' (Yunus: 13)

Thus, the criminal may commit a major sin, i.e. disbelief in Allah the Almighty which is meant in His saying: ‘And you will see the guilty on that day linked together in chains.’ (Ibrahim: 49) Therefore, you find all criminals gathered together and fettered in shackles which are the chains bounding one’s legs.

There are those whose legs are fettered in shackles, and others bound with chains around their hands and their necks as well. Every group of the criminals committing the same crime will be linked together by one rope, due to the sympathy and affection towards each other in the worldly life.

The criminal is also the one evading the Truth. In this sense, the crime means abandoning the truth for supporting falsehood. The criminals will be distinguished on the Day of Resurrection with their blue faces, a fact which is crystal clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘…and We will gather the guilty, blue-eyed, on that Day.’ (Ta Ha: 102) The blueness will be the colour of their faces, as you may see someone in blue face because he was inflicted with something. Some scholars explain that the last verse refers to their blindness as the blue water which affects the eyes and causes blindness. Additionally, it is known that blueness of the body only results from strong hits and bruises stimulating harmful interactions under the skin so that it turns blue.

Further, the blue colour indicates ugliness and intimidation. For that reason, the soldiers used to cover their faces in blue to frighten and horrify their enemies in the Middle Ages. Moreover, the people take it as the colour of Satan.

Another sign of the criminals on the Day of Judgment is hanging down their heads, as Allah says: ‘and could you but see when the guilty shall hang down their heads before their Lord: “Our Lord! we have seen and we have heard, therefore send us back, we will do good; surely (now) we are certain.”’ (as-Sajda: 12) ‘Hanging down the head’ is a reference to their evil destination. Hence, the one should keep away from disobedience, for whoever is arrogant and raises his head in pride in this worldly life, will, out of humiliation, hang it down on the Day of Resurrection. Besides, Allah Glorified is He will inflict on every disobedient in the Hereafter a punishment similar to the crime he used to commit. This is an additional meaning of the expression ‘Hanging down the head’. So, those criminals who are hanging down their heads in humility and remorse used to commit crimes in the worldly life shamelessly and blatantly.

In this worldly life, the criminals commit their crimes stealthily and manipulate justice to avert the punishment of the man-made laws. If such people were not to be punished in the Hereafter, they would be the winners, and in this way, we would encourage every vicious outlaw. But if the criminal believes that there a Lord observing him, he will recognise that even if he escapes the judgment and punishment on the earth, he will not escape them on the Day of Judgment. In this way, he adheres to the right way. The criminal who lives among us is not only known by his household but also by the people living in the same street and district. Has he ever gone to the grocery to buy something and the grocery refused to buy to him and boycotted him? Or has he greeted someone but did not respond to him? Accordingly, the whole society bears responsibility and is even more evil than the criminal himself. Besides, the crime spread in the society when the people feared the criminals, and flattered them excessively to avoid their danger. Why then should the criminal not increase in committing crimes if this is the case? For this reason, the Most Wise Lawgiver makes the family, not only the murderer, responsible for paying the blood money in case of involuntary manslaughter. Every member of the family is held responsible since they are in charge of disciplining their children and scolding the ill-mannered one. In this way, the society regains its balance.

Regarding the verse under discussion: ‘Should We treat those who submit to Us as We treat those who do evil? What is the matter with you? On what basis do you judge?’ (al-Qalam: 35-36), Allah Glorified is He employs a rhetorical question to condemn treating those who submit themselves in the same way as those who are guilty. In another topic, Allah Glorified is He says: ‘Has He chosen daughters in preference to sons? What is the matter with you? How is it that you judge?’ (as-Saffat: 153-154) He the Almighty states that He has not chosen daughters in preference to sons, and then rebukes them for lack of fair judgment. In another verse, He the Almighty says: ‘…How is it that you judge?’ (Yunus: 35) It is as if He the Almighty is saying, ‘What happened to your minds? How is it that you judge’! Once you hear ‘how is it’ you should know that it expresses a surprising incident which a sound mind does not think it may happen. This is clear in the verse under discussion: ‘…On what basis do you judge?’ (al-Qalam: 36) Surprisingly, they treat those who submit themselves as those who are guilty, which should have never happened.

Allah Glorified is He says:

أَمۡ لَكُمۡ كِتَٰبٞ فِيهِ تَدۡرُسُونَ ﴿٣٧﴾ إِنَّ لَكُمۡ فِيهِ لَمَا تَخَيَّرُونَ ﴿٣٨﴾

Do you have a Scripture that tells you [37] that you will be granted whatever you choose? [38]
(The Quran, al-Qalam: 37 - 38)

How do the disbelievers say that both the Muslims and the criminals are equal? In the previous verse, Allah the Almighty says about them: 'What is [wrong] with you? How do you make judgment?' (al-Qalam: 36) Allah Glorified is He discusses the matter with them to prove that they are following their whims, not thinking logically. That is why Allah Glorified is He is asking them: 'Or do you have a Scripture in which you learn?' (al-Qalam: 37) It is as if He the Almighty says, ‘Have you made this judgment after reading a Book that equalises between the criminal and the Muslim, the good and the bad, the corrupter and reformer? Has Allah revealed to you a Book that says that both the criminals and the Muslims are equal? Do you have a Book that states this injustice?'

In comparison to the believers at the early time of Islam, the disbelieving masters of the Quraysh were wealthy and powerful. As this was their condition in the worldly life, they mistakenly said, 'If we are to be resurrected as Muhammad and his followers claim, our condition in the so-called Hereafter would be as good as in this worldly life. Additionally, the conditions of Muhammad's followers would not be better than us; in the best case for them, they would be like us!' So, Allah the Almighty replies to them: 'Should We treat those who submit to Us as We treat those who do evil? [35] What is the matter with you? On what basis do you judge? [36]' (al-Qalam: 35-36) How can Allah Glorified is He equalise between the believers and the disbelievers? How dare they think that Allah the Almighty is unfair? He is indeed Fair, for He Glorified is He will never equalise between the two parties.

In the same vein, Allah Glorified is He says: 'Not equal are the blind and the seeing, [19] nor is the darkness and the light, [20] nor are the shade and the heat, [21] And not equal are the living and the dead…[22]' (Fatir: 19-22); He the Almighty also addresses Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him saying: 'Say, 'Not equal are the evil and the good, although the abundance of evil might impress you.' So fear Allah, O you of understanding, that you may be successful ' (al-Ma'ida: 100). Thus, the evil and the good are not equal by any means; this is an unquestionable fact – just as the blind and the seeing, and darkness and light are not equal.

Allah Glorified is He always gives us examples of well-established facts accepted by even the enemies of Islam. They know that the blind and the seeing, the shade and the heat and the darkness and the light are not equal. This Quranic style is noticed in many verses; for example, Allah the Almighty says: 'And is one who was dead and We gave him life and made for him light by which to walk among the people like one who is in darkness, never to emerge therefrom?' (al-An'am: 122) Logically, the answer to this question, for sure, is that they are not equal.

As a matter of fact, Islam is based on justice and fulfilling the rights of everyone. That is why everyone is regarded according to his or her rightful rank. Not equalising between the believers who do not go out for Jihad without acceptable excuse and those who fight in the cause of Allah the Almighty with their wealth and lives is a case in point. How can they be equal? That is why He Glorified is He says: 'Not equal are those of the believers who sit (at home), except those who are disabled, and those who strive hard and fight in the cause of Allah with their wealth and their lives,' (an-Nisa': 95).

When this verse was firstly revealed, Prophet Muhammad ordered Zayd ibn Thabit may Allah be pleased with him one of the scribes of the Quran, to write: 'Not equal are those of the believers who sit (at home) and those who strive hard and fight in the cause of Allah…' Thereupon, Ibn Umm Maktum may Allah be pleased with him who was blind, asked, 'How about those who cannot fight, O Messenger Muhammad?' This question proves his religious awareness; he thought that if this verse remained as such, he will not be equal to the believers who strive in the cause of Allah the Almighty even though he was blind. That is why he asked about those who cannot fight. At this moment, the revelation descended on Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him. Afterwards, he Allah's peace and blessings be upon him said to Zayd, 'Write: "Not equal are those of the believers who sit (at home), except those who are disabled, and those who strive hard and fight in the cause of Allah…" (an-Nisa': 95). That is to say that this exception was revealed to reassure Ibn Umm Maktum and those who are unable to fight concerning this point.

Someone may ask, 'Was the revelation of the verse in its last form depending on Ibn Umm Maktum's comment?' In fact, Allah Glorified is He wants to teach every believer when he or she hears a verse to contemplate and see how it is related to him or her. In this case, Ibn Umm Maktum teaches us how to discern our position in every verse we hear. He pondered on the aforementioned verse to see his position, and that is exactly what Allah the Almighty wants us to do. Then, Zayd ibn Thabit wrote the verse in its last form.

So, regarding the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'Not equal are those of the believers who sit (at home), except those who are disabled, and those who strive hard and fight in the cause of Allah, ' (an-Nisa': 95) it means that the two groups are not equal by any means. Here arises a question, which is, 'Was any sane person in the time of Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him thinking that the two groups are equal?' Of course not, but He the Almighty wants to state this fact by His Own saying.

Likewise, Allah Glorified is He rebuts the point that the disbelievers might have read this equalisation between the Muslims and the criminals in any of His Books. In this regard, He Glorified is He says: 'Or have We given them a book before the Quran to which they are adhering?' (az-Zukhruf: 21)

Now, why did the disbelievers equalise between the Muslims and the criminals? Were they told that by a Prophet?! Did they study and memorise a Divine Book that states that the obedient and the disobedient are both equal?!

Studying means to try to understand a text using your intellect; it is a necessary process for comprehending a text. It entails giving and taking information, exactly as when two persons exchange information together, i.e. every one of them says what s/he knows so that they can extract the rules from the text.

So, the saying of Allah Glorified is He: 'Do you have a Scripture that tells you [37] that you will be granted whatever you choose?[38]' (al-Qalam: 37-38) embodies the following question addressed to the disbelievers, 'Do you have a Divine Book that you read, study, then extract and choose rulings from it?' The Arabic verb Takhayyarun (to choose) means to pick the best of something, as if you sift it. There is a letter omitted from the beginning of this verb to show their keenness on selecting in the perfect way.

To sum up, in these two verses, Allah the Almighty asks the disbelievers, 'How can you make such a judgment?! Have your lost your mind? Or have you received a Divine Book that gives you the freedom to choose and judge by your own?'

Allah the Almighty subsequently says:

أَمۡ لَكُمۡ أَيۡمَٰنٌ عَلَيۡنَا بَٰلِغَةٌ إِلَىٰ يَوۡمِ ٱلۡقِيَٰمَةِ إِنَّ لَكُمۡ لَمَا تَحۡكُمُونَ ﴿٣٩﴾

Have you received from Us solemn oaths, binding to the Day of Resurrection, that you will get whatever you yourselves decide? [39] (The Quran, al-Qalam: 39)

The Arabic word Yamin (an oath) literally means 'the right hand'. In the past, when two persons took oaths, every one of them used to shake the right hand of the other; that is why the oath is called Yameen (the right hand). This Arabic word also denotes cooperation, that is, the people gather together and agree to do something. Further, this word refers to the 'covenant', as in the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'And in case they breach their oaths after their covenant, and discredit your religion…' (at-Tawba: 12). The oaths or covenants should be fulfilled, or else they will be useless. That is to say that the one who frequently breaks his/her oaths renders his/her oaths untrustworthy.

So, the word 'oath' refers to the covenant in the saying Allah Glorified is He: 'Have you received from Us solemn oaths…' (al-Qalam: 39). It is as if He the Almighty asks the disbelievers, 'Are We bound by solemn oath that would never end till the Day of Resurrection to not punish you? Did We take an oath to admit you into the paradise? Did you receive from us a solemn oath to have all what you want, to not be held accountable for your crimes in this worldly life and to get more than the reward of the believers in the Hereafter?!'

Afterwards, Allah the Almighty says:

سَلْهُمْ أَيُّهُم بِذَٰلِكَ زَعِيمٌ (٤٠)

Ask them [Prophet] which of them will guarantee this [40] (The Quran, al-Qalam: 40)

He the Almighty commands Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him to ask the disbelievers, 'Which one of you guarantees that the criminals will be treated like the Muslims or that they will be saved from the punishment of Allah on the Day of Judgment? Which one among you, Oh people of Quraysh, guarantees that they will get the same reward of the believers?'

Allah Glorified is He says about the guardianship of Zakaryya (Zechariah) peace be upon him over Maryam (Mary) may Allah be pleased with her: 'Then, her Lord graciously accepted her with fair acceptance, and caused her to grow a fair growth, and He made Zechariah her guardian…' (Al-'Imran: 37). The word guardianship here means to take responsibility for all the matters pertinent to bringing her up. In our daily life, the guarantor refers to the sponsor. Zakaryya (Zechariah) peace be upon him was the sponsor of Maryam (Mary) may Allah be pleased with her and was responsible for providing her with food and drink.

Thus, no one of the disbelievers can affirm that they have received a covenant from Allah the Almighty that they will have what they decide. So, what is the matter with them? On what basis do they judge?

The saying of Allah the Almighty: '…which of them…' (al-Qalam: 40) is really a miraculous expression; Allah Glorified is He puts the responsibility over their shoulders. Who among them will guarantee the fulfilment of that judgment which they issued? He the Almighty knows best that none of them will do so. Therefore, if none of them dare to announce that s/he guarantees their judgment, then why are they acting arrogantly against their Lord? Why do they falsely say about Him Glorified is He what they do not know?!

In this regard, Allah the Almighty says about the Jews: 'And they have said, 'The Fire will never touch us except a (few) numbered days.' Say, 'Have you taken to yourselves in the Providence of Allah a Covenant? So, Allah will never fail in His Covenant, or do you say against Allah that which you do not know?' (al-Baqara: 80) Thus, He Glorified is He advises the people of Mecca not to follow the example of the Jews.

Allah the Almighty then says:

أَمْ لَهُمْ شُرَكَآءُ فَلْيَأْتُوا۟ بِشُرَكَآئِهِمْ إِن كَانُوا۟ صَٰدِقِينَ ﴿٤١﴾

Do they have 'partners' [besides God]? Let them produce their 'partners', if what they say is true [41] (The Quran, al-Qalam: 41)

Allah Glorified is He draws their attention by offering a number of questions. First, He the Almighty logically asks them: 'Should We treat those who submit to Us as We treat those who do evil? [35] What is the matter with you? On what basis do you judge? [36]' (al-Qalam: 35-36) Then, Allah Glorified is He asks them if they had based their judgment on a Divine Book, saying: 'Do you have a Scripture that tells you [37] that you will be granted whatever you choose?[38]' (al-Qalam: 37-38) Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He discusses the matter of receiving oaths from Him, saying: 'Have you received from Us solemn oaths, binding to the Day of Resurrection, that you will get whatever you yourselves decide?' (al-Qalam: 39) It is as if Allah Glorified is He asks them, 'Have you been given covenants from Allah by which you guarantee being equalised with the believers and being admitted into the Paradise?!'

Now, Allah the Almighty asks them about their partners, 'Do they have partners in what they say and claim?' If so, then let them call their partners to witness for them if they are really truthful. So, let them call these witnesses to testify that the believers and the disbelievers will be equal in the Hereafter. This Quranic style aims at refuting their claims, that is, they ought not to say so. That is why He Glorified is He challenges them saying: '…if what they say is true ' (al-Qalam: 41).

The truth is the opposite of falsehood, and both of them could be relative. Unlike the falsehood, the truth means that your words are consistent with the reality. Thus, Allah the Almighty wants them to prove that their words are harmonious with the reality. If they could not, this means that they are liars. They must bring a proof for the truthfulness of what they say. In another verse, Allah Glorified is He says: '…produce your proof, if you are truthful ' (al-Baqara: 111). Allah the Almighty asks them to produce their proof if they are certain of what they say, for He Glorified is He knows for sure that they are liars.

Then, He Glorified is He says:

يَوۡمَ يُكۡشَفُ عَن سَاقٖ وَيُدۡعَوۡنَ إِلَى ٱلسُّجُودِ فَلَا يَسۡتَطِيعُونَ ﴿٤٢﴾

On the Day when matters become dire, they will be invited to prostrate themselves but will be prevented from doing so [42] (The Quran, al-Qalam: 42)

As for His saying: 'On the Day when matters become dire…' (al-Qalam: 42), it expresses the horror on the Day of Judgment when those who refused to prostrate, worship and obey Allah the Almighty in this worldly life will be called to prostrate. On that day they will not be able to do so. In this regard, 'Abdullah ibn 'Abbas may Allah be pleased with him says, 'A great matter will be revealed on that Day; the Arabs were saying that the war uncovered its shin when it becomes fierce.' So, this expression signifies the horror and the hardness of that Day. This time will be the most difficult hour on the Day of Judgment. All the people will be fearfully waiting for what will happen to them. The hardness of that Day, including the Gathering, the Account, and the Scale, will be revealed to them. So, the Arabs used to describe the war as having revealed its shin when the fighting escalates and becomes very fierce and hard. Thus, Allah the Almighty describes the horror of that Day with something that the people of Mecca were familiar with.'

The Arabic word Saq (shin) could mean the origin of something like the trunk of the tree. In this sense, the origin and reality of everything will be revealed before everyone on that Day. It is mentioned here as indefinite to show how great and horrific it is.

Allah Glorified is He tells us about the horror of that Day, saying: 'O mankind, fear your Lord. Indeed, the earthquake of the [final] Hour is a terrible thing. [1] On the Day you will see it, every suckling female will get distracted away from whatever she has suckled, and every pregnant female will abort her pregnancy, and you see mankind drunken, and in no way are they drunken, but the torment of Allah is strict. [2]' (al-Hajj: 1-2) And 'So, in case you disbelieve, how will you protect yourselves against a Day that will make the newborn hoary-headed?' (al-Muzzammil: 17) He Glorified is He describes the earthquake on that Day as 'great'. It is not 'great' according to our human standards, but rather the One Who is describing it as 'great' is Allah the Almighty. So, imagine how great it will be!

The horror of that Day will make every suckling female get distracted away from whatever she is suckling; she will get away from her main job because of the horror she will see. For example, when a servant sees a great and venerable person, he drops whatever in his hands. This distraction happens unintentionally, for the one may be distracted away from something s/he is attached to, either emotionally or instinctively. So, look how the suckling female will be distracted away from her baby and get away from him or her; how great is the horror that stops both her maternal emotion and instinct!

Further, Allah the Almighty gives us another picture of the Day of Judgment, saying: 'On the Day when a person will flee from his brother, and his mother, and his father, and his wife and his children,' ('Abasa: 34-36). Every person will have his or her own concern that makes them distracted away from knowing or thinking of the destiny of their brother, relatives, mother, father, wife, and children. The horror is much greater than thinking of others; everyone wants to save themselves.

Moreover, Allah the Almighty says about the coming of the Hour: '…and you see mankind drunken, and in no way are they drunken, but the torment of Allah is strict ' (al-Hajj: 2). The people will be moving randomly as if they are affected by wine that makes them sway to the right and to the left, and fall on the ground. This is how they will be on the Day of Judgment because of the horror and terror of that Day. This will be their state even before they see the punishment, as Allah the Almighty says: '…and you see mankind drunken, and in no way are they drunken but the torment of Allah is strict, ' (al-Hajj: 2). So, this is only the beginning of the Day that makes them lose their balance.

Then Allah Glorified is He says: '…they will be invited to prostrate themselves but will be prevented from doing so' (al-Qalam: 42). Allah Glorified is He will distinguish the believers from the hypocrites by prostration. They are described in this worldly life as: 'And when it is said to them, 'Bow [in prayer], ' they do not bow,' (al-Mursalat: 48) 'And when the Quran is recited to them, they do not prostrate [to Allah] ' (al-Inshiqaq: 21). In this worldly life, they did not respond to the call of belief; they did not bow to Allah Glorified is He except to be seen and heard of by the people; and they did not prostrate except when being forced to. They were not affected by Allah's Verses when being recited; rather, they were blind and deaf to them.

That is why they will not be able to prostrate on that Day. The following statement of Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him gives us a picture of what will happen on that Day: 'In the Day of Judgment, every people will go to what they worshiped in this life except those who worship Allah. They will then be asked, "What are you waiting for?" They will say, "We have not seen our Lord whom we were worshipping." They will be asked, "Will you know your Lord if you see Him?" They will say, "Yes." They will be asked, "How will you know Him and you have never seen Him before?" They will say, "He does not resemble anything." The cover then will be revealed, and they will see Allah and prostrate to Him. A group of people who have like cow horns in their backs will try to prostrate, but they cannot. About them Allah says: "On the Day when matters become dire, they will be invited to prostrate themselves but will be prevented from doing so" (al-Qalam: 42).

Prostration is a sign of submission and worshipful servitude, as you put the most honourable part of your body, your face, on the ground five times a day as a sign of submission to Allah Glorified is He. So, prostration is the peak of submission to your Lord.

Prostration reminds the human being that he or she is a vicegerent on the earth. All the creatures that glorified Allah the Almighty are made subservient to him or her. Thus, even the human being who is served by all these creatures –animals, plants, and inanimate objects –is putting his or her face on the earth in prostration as a sign of submission to his or her Lord.

Therefore, prostration is the sign of submission to Allah the Almighty as you put the highest part of your body, 'the head', at the level of the lowest part of it, 'the foot'. In our colloquial sayings, one may say to the other, 'Do not raise your head over me', i.e. do not be arrogant. This is because ‘raising the head’ means arrogance, while lowering it down by bowing and prostrating is an act of submission. In fact, prostrating to and worshipping Allah Glorified is He is a high form of honour because it protects you from prostrating or being a slave to any of His creation.

But those disbelievers did not submit to Allah Glorified is He in this worldly life. They neither bowed nor prostrated and they did not give up their arrogance. That is why they, on the Day of Judgment, will not be able to prostrate, as their backs will be pliable.

Prophet Muhammad Allah’s peace and blessings be upon him gave us an example for this when he saw a man eating with his left hand. He ordered him to eat with his right hand, but the man said, 'I cannot!' So, he Allah’s peace and blessings be upon him said: 'Let this be right.' Since then he could not use his right hand anymore.' He became unable to use his right hand because he arrogantly refused to obey Prophet Muhammad Allah’s peace and blessings be upon him and submit to his order.

Allah Glorified is He gives more description of the condition of those people, saying:

خَٰشِعَةً أَبۡصَٰرُهُمۡ تَرۡهَقُهُمۡ ذِلَّةٞۖ وَقَدۡ كَانُواْ يُدۡعَوۡنَ إِلَى ٱلسُّجُودِ وَهُمۡ سَٰلِمُونَ ٤٣

And their eyes will be downcast and they will be overwhelmed with shame: they were invited to prostrate themselves when they were safe [but refused] [43]

Out of horror, the disbelievers' eyes will be looking here and there. They will be looking everywhere for what may give them assurance or calm, but they will not find anything other than overwhelming horror. In this regard, Allah Glorified is He says: 'Hearts on that day shall palpitate, [8] Their eyes cast down [9]' (an-Nazi‘at: 8-9). At the end, their eyes will be cast down, knowing that there is no way out, for only those who did righteous deeds will be saved. This is similar to the clever student who trusts him or herself and his or her knowledge, and looks forward to answering the exam. On the other hand, the one who did not study will be confused.

Further, Allah the Almighty says: '…they will be overwhelmed with shame…' (al-Qalam: 43). On the Day of Judgment, their eyes will be cast down in humbleness because fear will be surrounding them from all sides. The Arabic word Al-Khushu' (humbleness) is a description related to the heart. It is found either inside the prayer or outside it and is used with the humans and other things, as Allah Glorified is He says: 'And all voices will be humbled for the Most Beneficent, and nothing shall you hear but a whisper, ' (Ta Ha: 108) and '… their eyes will be downcast and they will be overwhelmed with shame, ' (al-Qalam: 43). Here, Allah the Almighty describes the voices as being humble. Likewise, He Glorified is He describes the faces as humble, saying: '[Some] faces, that Day, will be humbled, ' (al-Ghashiya: 2).

On the Day of Judgment, the criminals will stand humbly in strict lines. Allah the Almighty describes them in this situation, saying: 'On that Day they shall follow the inviter, there is no crookedness in him, and the voices shall be low before the Beneficent so that you shall not hear aught but a soft sound, ' (Ta Ha: 108). They will follow the orders in humbleness and will not speak except by whispering to each other.

In our daily life, it is known that the noise in big gatherings cannot be controlled. How about the Gathering on that Day in which all the creatures from Adam peace be upon him till the last infant will all be gathered? However, all voices will be humble, a fact which is crystal clear in His Saying: '…and the voices shall be low before the Beneficent so that you shall not hear aught but a soft sound, ' (Ta Ha: 108). What happened to these voices that used to be loud before? Due to the greatness of the horror, the situation is different. No one dares to raise his/her voice in such a situation; everyone will be thinking of him or herself and of what will happen to him or her. They will not speak except in whisper, asking what is happening.

Furthermore, their eyes will be humble. In another verse, Allah the Almighty describes the eyes, saying: 'And you will see them being exposed to the fire, humbled from humiliation, looking from [behind] a covert glance, ' (ash-Shura: 45). They are humble to the extent that they cannot even look directly, but rather with stealthy glance. That is why when someone tells lies to you, you ask him or her to look directly at your eyes because this eye contact reveals the truth. The truthful one looks confidently, while the other's eyes will try to hide from the light of the truth which will reveal its falsehood.

The faces of the disbelievers will be covered with sadness and blackness. By contrast, the believers' faces will be white after getting up from prostration. As the disbelievers did not prostrate in the worldly life, they will not be able to prostrate in the Hereafter, and that is why their faces will turn black out of sorrow. They will bitterly regret not prostrating to Allah the Almighty in their lives, and for being arrogant over it.

That is why Allah the Almighty concludes the verse in question, saying: '…they were invited to prostrate themselves when they were safe [but refused], ' (al-Qalam: 43). When Allah Glorified is He calls them to prostrate on the Day of Judgment, it is not as a form of worship; rather, it is meant to rebuke them for not prostrating in their worldly life. They will not be able to prostrate there because they were arrogant to prostrate in their lives. So, in the Hereafter, the disbelievers: '…will be invited to prostrate themselves but will be prevented from doing so, ' (al-Qalam: 42) whereas in the worldly life: '…they were invited to prostrate themselves when they were safe [but refused] ' (al-Qalam: 43).

Qatada said, 'I was told that on the Day of Judgment the believers will be ordered to prostrate, and there will be a hypocrite between every two believers. The believers will be able to prostrate, while the hypocrites will not; their backs will not be pliable, and the prostration of the believers will be a kind of rebuke for them.'

The Arabic word Salimun (safe) shows that nothing prevented the disbelievers from prostration in their lives, as they were safe and healthy. On the Day of Judgment, however, they will be called to prostrate, while being afraid of their inevitable end. In the worldly life, they heard the caller to prayer saying, 'Come to success, ' but they did not answer the call, although they were healthy. Ka'b Al-Ahbar said, 'By Allah, this verse was not revealed except in reference to those who were not attending the Congregational Prayer.' Then, Allah Glorified is He says:

فَذَرْنِي وَمَن يُكَذِّبُ بِهَٰذَا ٱلْحَدِيثِ ۖ سَنَسْتَدْرِجُهُم مِّنْ حَيْثُ لَا يَعْلَمُونَ ﴿٤٤﴾

So [Prophet] leave those who reject this revelation to Me: We shall lead them on, step by step, in ways beyond their knowledge [44] (The Quran, al-Qalam: 44)

Here, Allah the Almighty is addressing Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him and his ummah, saying: 'So [Prophet] leave those who reject this revelation to Me…' (al-Qalam: 44). In this regard, Allah the Almighty also says: 'And leave Me and the rejecters, the possessors of ease and plenty, and respite them a little' (al-Muzzammil: 12). This means that He the Almighty will punish them Himself. Another possible interpretation is to let them, O Prophet Muhammad, do whatever they like of misdeeds so that they shall deserve the punishment. So, the Arabic verb 'Dhar' means ' leave'. It is mentioned in some other verses as in His saying: 'And leave Me with [the matter of] the deniers, those of ease, [in life]' (al-Muzzammil: 11). It is as if Allah the Almighty says, 'Leave them to Allah; He is the One Who will punish them, and Who knows how long the punishment should be postponed.'

Hence, Allah Glorified is He orders Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him to leave those deniers and not to care about them, for they will return to Him the Almighty. This is due to the fact that Prophet Muhammad's role is confined to conveying the Message to them, and then leaving them to Allah Glorified is He. Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him should not be affected with their denial, or worried about their planning against him.

In this verse, the Noble Quran is described as 'discourse'. Similarly, He the Almighty says in another verse: 'Allah has sent down fairest discourse as a Book, of similar signs (and) oft repeated…' (az-Zumar: 23). Indeed, it is the best discourse because it is Allah's Speech which is one of His Attributes. It is the perfect Book which includes the best stories, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: 'We relate to you, [O Muhammad], the best of stories in what We have revealed to you of this Quran…' (Yusuf: 3).

Denying the Noble Quran entails rejecting Allah's signs and verses and denying the truth. The disbelievers are of many kinds; first, some of them believe in neither a God nor a Messenger. Second, some believe in a God and reject the Messenger. Third, some believe in a God and one of His Messengers, but reject what was revealed to Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him.

Rejecting the Truth is unacceptable and it is the first step towards disobedience. In this regard, Allah Glorified is He says: 'And no sign comes to them from the signs of their Lord except that they turn away therefrom.[4] For they had denied the truth when it came to them, but there is going to reach them the news of what they used to ridicule [5]' (al-An'am: 4-5).

As a matter of fact, all the Prophets were faced with the rejection of their people. In this connection, He the Almighty says: 'And if they deny you, [O Muhammad] - so, before them, did the people of Noah and 'Ad and Thamud deny [their Prophets] ' (al-Hajj: 42). It is as if He Glorified is He says, 'If the people of Mecca denied you, O Muhammad, and rejected your Message, remember that you are not an exception; many Prophets before you were rejected as well. But what was the result of their denial? Did Allah leave the disbeliever or seize them with severe punishment? So do not be sad, for their destiny will be like that of the previous nations.'

The previous nations rejected the Messages and were persistent in their disbelief. So, the people of Mecca have been given the warning against the same punishment of the previous nations. In this regard, Allah Glorified is He says: 'And if you [people] deny [the Message] - already nations before you have denied. And there is not upon the Messenger except [the duty of] clear notification ' (al-'Ankabut: 18). As the disbelievers of Mecca were not the first nation to disbelieve, they must remember what happened to the disbelievers before them and avoid being exposed to the same punishment that had inflicted upon them.

Sometimes, the rejection happens intentionally, as in the case of the people of the Pharaoh. Allah Glorified is He sent upon them diseases, lesions and minor punishment, so that they believe and return to Him. Although they were sure that those signs are from Him the Almighty they refused to believe in them. That is why He Glorified is He says: 'And they rejected them, while their [inner] selves were convinced thereof, out of injustice and haughtiness. So, see how the end of the corrupters was (an-Naml: 14).

Then, Allah Glorified is He tells us how He will punish those disbelievers, saying: '…We shall lead them on, step by step, in ways beyond their knowledge,' (al-Qalam: 44). If you draw someone to something, you lead him/her gradually to unintentionally admit what he or she did. This is like when the prosecutor interrogates the criminal till he or she leads him or her to a confession.

From this Arabic word 'Istidraj' the word 'Daraj' (stairs) is derived. The stairs also give the meaning of gradualism, as in going up and down. It is impossible to go to the fifth floor, for example, directly by one step. Going up must be done step by step according to the normal movement of the human being. Similarly, the disbelievers are taken step by step. They are given one grace after another to be a proof against them. In this regard, Allah Glorified is He says: 'So when they forgot that by which they had been reminded, We opened to them the doors of every [good] thing until, when they rejoiced in that which they were given, We seized them suddenly…' (al-An'am: 44).

When He the Almighty wants to punish someone for his or her crimes against other people in this worldly life, Allah Glorified is He does not punish him or her directly once the first crime is committed, as the punishment then will be light. Rather, He gives him or her time to indulge more in his or her misdeeds so that his or her punishment becomes great.

When a person tries to gradually draw another one, the latter may intelligently notice the trap he or she would fall in. But if the One Who is drawing is Allah the All Powerful the other one will never find a way to escape.

The reason why Allah the Almighty says: '…in ways beyond their knowledge.' (al-Qalam: 44) is because the humans know the ways of drawing one another gradually. This Arabic word 'Istidraj' (drawing gradually) is also called 'Imla' (extending time). In this regard, He the Almighty says: 'And already were [other] messengers ridiculed before you, and I extended the time of those who disbelieved; then I seized them, and how [terrible] was My Penalty, ' (ar-Ra'd: 32). So, Imla' means to reprieve; it does not mean to waive the punishment completely. It means to delay it till many other sins are committed. This is like when someone makes a mistake and you leave him or her till he or she makes the second and the third, then you punish him or her in a way he or she cannot expect. If that is what happens in our worldly life, what would you think of Allah's Infinite Power? Allah Glorified is He says: '…We shall lead them on, step by step, in ways beyond their knowledge,' (al-Qalam: 44); and: '…let not the disbelievers think that Our Postponing of their punishment is good for them. We postpone the punishment only so that they may increase in sinfulness. And for them is a disgracing torment, ' (Al-'Imran: 178). This is like when someone sets a trap for his or her enemy.

The beginning of the process of 'drawing' is to open for them the doors of good things, a fact which is crystal clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'So when they forgot that by which they had been reminded, We opened to them the doors of every [good] thing until, when they rejoiced in that which they were given, We seized them suddenly, and they were [then] in despair,' (al-An'am: 44). So, Allah Glorified is He did not hastily punish them, but rather, He left them till they transgressed in sinning. When they rejoiced in what they were given of wealth, graces, and large numbers of people, the punishment befell them. When the politicians want to destroy their opponents, they let them gain high ranks and remain patient until the enemies' evil behaviour is revealed before the people.

Hence, Allah Glorified is He gives them time to take, build, enjoy, and rejoice at what they have taken. Then He opens the doors of everything against them. Opening doors 'against' them is different from opening the doors 'for' them. The former means to drag someone to a humiliating punishment, but to open 'for' him or her means to provide him or her with benefit. The second expression is used in His saying to Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him: 'Surely We have given you an evident conquest' (al-Fath: 1).

Then, Allah Glorified is He says:

وَأُمۡلِي لَهُمۡۚ إِنَّ كَيۡدِي مَتِينٌ ﴿٤٥﴾

I will allow them more time, for My plan is powerful [45] (The Quran, al-Qalam: 45)

The Arabic word Al-Imla' means to postpone and delay, Allah the Almighty does not punish the disbelievers immediately; rather, He gives them more time, and then punishes them severely. Do not think that the one who holds his or her enemy and raises him or her up is just joking! He or she raises him or her to throw them from a higher level so that they would suffer more. So, opening the doors of good for the disbelievers and the hypocrites is not for their benefit; rather, it is against them. That is why they should not be happy with that. However, when He the Almighty provides abundantly for them, they become more arrogant, and this will be the reason for their punishment.

When the corruptors do more evils in society, the good people tend to do more good. At that time, you hear the people saying, 'If it was not for belief, people would kill each other.' Then, Allah Glorified is He clarifies that as He gradually draws and postpones punishment of the disbelievers, they should know that His Plotting is powerful. Plotting here means to take them from where they do not know. It is a hidden process that harms the one who is exposed because they cannot protect themselves from it. If the humans can plot against one another secretly, what about it when Allah the Almighty does? Can anyone reveal His Plotting? This is the intended meaning of His saying: 'My plan is powerful, ' (al-Qalam: 45). The Arabic word Mateen means strong and powerful; it is derived from the word Matn (back). The back consists of a backbone and vertebras surrounded by muscles. If the backbone had consisted of bone only, it would have been broken if anything was carried on it. So, out of His Mercy, those bones are surrounded with two big muscles.

You should beware of thinking that Allah Glorified is He is unaware of what the wrongdoers do, as He Glorified is He says: 'And never think that Allah is unaware of what the wrongdoers do. He only delays them for a Day when eyes will stare [in horror] ' (Ibrahim: 42). In the worldly life, the people witness the crimes of the wrongdoers and whisper to each other, 'Has the injustice of this wrongdoer been forgotten?' Those who ask should remember this verse: 'I will allow them more time, for My Plan is powerful,' (al-Qalam: 45). Thus, He the Almighty is fully Aware of what they do, but He only delays their punishment, as He also says: '…so I prolonged enjoyment for the disbelievers; then I seized them, and how [terrible] was My Reproach, ' (al-Hajj: 44).

The disbelievers continuously plan against the believers and their religion by all means, as they will never leave them with their belief. They exert their utmost efforts to corrupt their good conditions by means of deception. Some may corrupt your life without deception, but others prefer to use deception because they do not dare to face you. So if you catch one of them, he or she says, 'I do not know.'

In this vein, we know that the plot of Satan is weak, a fact which is crystal clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty: '…surely the plotting of Satan has (always) been weak ' (an-Nisa': 76). This is because he has no power to force us to do something, and he does not have a sound argument with which to convince you. Rather, he just deceives the person to obey him. In fact, the one who resorts to deception is weak.

Plotting requires hidden planning. The Arabic word Makr (plotting) originally refers to the branches of the tree when twinned together till you do not know to which branch certain leaves belong. Then this word was used to refer to the hidden planning. The human being can plan secretly against someone like them, but you cannot do this against Allah the Almighty as He says: 'Allah is quicker to plan…' (Yunus: 21). Undoubtedly, Allah's Planning is more powerful than any human planning, as the latter may be revealed, but how can anyone know anything about Allah's Planning? This is impossible. Moreover, the human planning is new, whilst He Glorified is He knows everything before it occurs, and plans eternally for everything. That is why His Reply on their planning is swift.

In the verse in question, Allah the Almighty also describes His planning, saying: 'I will allow them more time, for My Plan is powerful, ' (al-Qalam: 45). So His plan is strong and no one can avoid it. In this connection, He Glorified is He says: 'Indeed, they are planning a plan, [15] But I am planning a plan. [16] So allow time for the disbelievers. Leave them awhile. So allow time for the disbelievers. Leave them awhile, [17]' (at-Tariq: 15-17). So, His planning can never be overcome or be revealed; that is why He says: 'But they plan, and Allah plans. And Allah is the Best of planners, ' (al-Anfal: 30).

Then, Allah Glorified is He says:

أَمۡ تَسۡـَٔلُهُمۡ أَجۡرٗا فَهُم مِّن مَّغۡرَمٖ مُّثۡقَلُونَ ﴿٤٦﴾

Do you demand some reward from them that would burden them with debt? [46] (The Quran, al-Qalam: 46)

Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him does not ask his people to pay him in return for guidance because he will get his reward from Allah Glorified is He. Likewise, He the Almighty says to him: 'And you do not ask of them for it any payment. It is not except a reminder to the worlds,' (Yusuf: 104) and 'Say, 'Whatever payment I might have asked of you - it is yours. My payment is only from Allah, ' (Saba': 47). By so doing, he Allah's peace and blessings be upon him seeks the higher reward. Instead of being paid by someone with a limited ability of paying, he Allah's peace and blessings be upon him wants to be paid by the One Whose Power is infinite. It is He the Almighty who appointed him as a Prophet to call to His Way of Guidance. Hence, no one can reward Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him except Allah the Almighty.

Thus, it is crystal clear that Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him is not asking his people to pay for him, as he will take his reward from Allah the Almighty Who clarified this fact in the Noble Quran and he Allah's peace and blessings be upon him himself told them that. That is why the verse under discussion comes in the form of a question: 'Do you demand some reward from them that would burden them with debt?' (al-Qalam: 46) Should he Allah's peace and blessings be upon him ask them for a payment they cannot pay? He does not.

Now, should they have paid for him Allah's peace and blessings be upon him? When someone does you a favour, you ought to pay him or her. So, it is as if Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him is saying here, 'I am doing you a favour that you should pay me for, but, out of my kindness, I do not want to be paid.'

The payment is something that is paid in return for work. It differs according to the difficulty of this work, how long it lasts, the skill of the worker and the dangers surrounding this work. Thus, the paid amount depends on the time, the effort, the difficulty, the dangers and the skill. If this is the case, we should think of Prophet Muhammad's mission and how beneficial it is! Look how the way of life that he is sent with brings easiness for us and our communities. It maintains your good relationship with your Lord, and protects you from the evils of your souls and of all that of the people.

Hence, Prophet Muhammad's mission was great and required extraordinary effort; if the people wanted to pay for it, they would in fact need to pay a lot! Imagine for example how much will you pay for someone to guard you at night. The Divine Way of Guidance which he Allah's peace and blessings be upon him came with protects you, your property, your dignity, and everything you have. It protects you not only from a certain group of people, but also from all people. This protection is not only in this worldly life but also in the Hereafter where there will be everlasting protection. Now, try to guess; how much should you pay for such a protection?! However, he Allah's peace and blessings be upon him does not want to be paid not because he is indifferent to the reward, but because human beings cannot estimate the value of his mission or pay for it. Only his Lord Who sent him knows best how great it is. Thus, whatever the human beings pay for it is little.

Thus, Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him does not want the people at his time to pay for him so that they can calm down and be relaxed. They should not be worried of being burdened by any payment. Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him will take his reward from Allah Glorified is He Who says in this regard: '…my reward is only from Allah, and I have been commanded to be of the Muslims,' (Yunus: 72); 'And I do not ask you for it any payment…' (ash-Shu'ara': 109) and 'Say, 'I do not ask of you for it any payment - only that whoever wills might take to his Lord a way ' (al-Furqan: 57). With regard to His saying in the last verse: '…take to his Lord a way, ' (al-Furqan: 57), it means to pursue His reward by doing the righteous deeds like fighting for His sake, giving charity, etc. Thus, Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him works hard so that you can get Allah's Reward and exerts effort for benefitting others.

Allah says:

أَمۡ عِندَهُمُ ٱلۡغَيۡبُ فَهُمۡ يَكۡتُبُونَ (٤٧)

Do they have knowledge of the unseen that enables them to write it down? [47] (The Quran, al-Qalam: 47)

Do the disbelievers have the knowledge of the unseen so that they write it for the people and tell them about it?! Do they have the knowledge recorded in the Preserved Tablet from which they know what will happen in the future and hence write it down and argue with Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him over it? Do they have the knowledge of the unseen that obliged them to disobey him?

The Preserved Tablet is where the future incidents are written. It is unseen because what is written in it is unseen to the people. So how can they write down from it the judgment they made following their whims. This is a rhetorical question because no one in the heavens or the earth knows the unseen except Allah the Almighty. Do they claim that they have the knowledge of the unseen and that they write for the people therefrom whatever they like? They know for sure that they do not know the unseen and have no ability over it. They cannot write anything in the Preserved Tablet.

What is the answer to these two questions: 'Do you demand some reward from them that would burden them with debt? [46] Do they have knowledge of the unseen that enables them to write it down? [47]' (al-Qalam: 46-47) The answer of both questions is 'No'. So, Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him did not ask them to pay for him, and they have no knowledge of the unseen. If he Allah's peace and blessings be upon him does not know the unseen, how about those who are less than him? Allah the Almighty ordered him to make this clear, saying: 'Say, [O Muhammad], 'I do not tell you that I have the depositories [containing the provision] of Allah or that I know the unseen...' (al-An'am: 50). Here, Allah Glorified is He says about the disbelievers: 'Do they have knowledge of the unseen that enables them to write it down?' (al-Qalam: 47) The answer is 'No'.

Then, Allah Glorified is He commands him Allah's peace and blessings be upon him saying:

فَٱصۡبِرۡ لِحُكۡمِ رَبِّكَ وَلَا تَكُن كَصَاحِبِ ٱلۡحُوتِ إِذۡ نَادَىٰ وَهُوَ مَكۡظُومٞ ﴿٤٨﴾

Wait patiently [Prophet] for your Lord's Judgment:
do not be like the man in the whale who called out in distress [48] (The Quran, al-Qalam: 48)

This verse aims at strengthening and relieving Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him. Allah the Almighty clarifies that they have disbelieved in Him, and rejected Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him and the light that has been revealed to him. He Allah's peace and blessings be upon him may hope that Allah Glorified is He punishes them, but Allah the Almighty has specified time for everything. He has created the heavens and the earth in six Days. In our daily life, we say to the one who is always in hurry, 'Allah has created heavens, and the earth in six Days, so do not be in a hurry.'

Allah the Almighty has been able to create them in a moment, but He has ordered them to 'Be!' and then left them to be formed in six Days. The reason behind this may be to teach us to be patient and not to rush to do things. So, Allah Glorified is He orders Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him to be patient and not to be sad, for the Day when those deniers will be punished for their bad deeds will undoubtedly come.

Patience may be easy in some situations and difficult in others, and thus requires more effort. That is why Allah Glorified is He sometimes commands us to be patient, while some other times to be extremely patient. So, what should Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him be patient about? He should patiently endure the disbelievers' accusations of being a sorcerer, a poet, a soothsayer, a madman, etc. Furthermore, they described the Noble Quran as a mixture of false dreams and tales of the ancients. That is why Allah Glorified is He commands Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him to be patient towards all of that because each of those accusations include the proof of their falsehood. So, he is commanded to leave them, to keep steadfast in his way and be patient towards their hatred, obstinacy, and enmity. Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him as well as his Companions are ordered to be patient for all of that because at the end, they will be the winners. In this connection, He the Almighty says:

'So be patient. Indeed, the promise of Allah is truth. And let them not disquiet you who are not certain [in faith], ' (ar-Rum: 60). The disbelievers should not make him lose patience or provoke him.

So, with regard to the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'Wait patiently [Prophet] for your Lord's Judgment...' (al-Qalam: 48), it is as if Allah Glorified is He says to Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him: 'Be patient, O Muhammad, till the Decision of your Lord for you and for them occurs, and do not let their rejection and harm prevent you from delivering the Message. Wait for the Judgment of your Lord which is coming for sure, for there is a piece of wisdom behind delaying your triumph over them. Just deliver the Message and bear their harm and the delaying of victory.'

Not only does Allah Glorified is He order Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him to be patient about what He ordered him to do, but He also gives him an example with one of the previous Prophets. This is meant for him and his ummah to learn a lesson from. So, He the Almighty says: '…do not be like the man in the whale who called out in distress, ' (al-Qalam: 48). Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him is commanded not to be like Prophet Yunus (Jonah) peace be upon him who was impatient with his people. He is also called Dha Nun, which means the companion of the Whale. Allah Glorified is He says: 'and [mention] the man of the whale, when he went off in anger and thought that We would not decree [anything] upon him. And he called out within the darkness, 'There is no deity except You; Exalted are You. Indeed, I have been of the wrongdoers ' (al-Anbiya': 87).So, the name of Prophet Yunus (Jonah) Allah's peace be upon him is attached to the whale that swallowed him after he left his people in anger because of their disbelief. He ought to endure their harm. Undoubtedly, rejecting the Divine Message is very painful and hard, but the Prophet should be ready to endure the hardness of delivering the Message.

We know that Prophet Yunus (Jonah) Allah's peace be upon him was sad and angry because his people rejected the Divine Message. But when they saw clouds and storms in the sky, they thought that this is the beginning of Allah's Punishment for them. Thereupon, they ran away to the wise people among them who said that this is the beginning of the punishment and that they should obey and believe in Prophet Yunus (Jonah) Allah's peace be upon him because he is a Messenger sent by Allah the Almighty. By so doing, the punishment will be waived.

All the people then believed in Allah the Almighty and went to Prophet Jonah Allah's peace be upon him to seek his satisfaction after he returned from his trial of being swallowed by the Whale. After he was satisfied with them, they began to look into the sins they have committed to the extent that one might destroy the wall of his house because he had stolen one of its bricks from his neighbour.

Prophet Yunus (Jonah) Allah's peace be upon him left his people angrily and rode a ship. Afterwards, this ship was exposed to a storm and was about to sink. The passengers threw all their goods in the sea, but this did not work. At last, they agreed to throw one of them in the sea, and thus cast lots. The one who was chosen was Prophet Yunus (Jonah) Allah's peace be upon him. This story is mentioned in the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'And Jonah was most surely of the Messengers. [139] When he ran away to a ship completely laden, [140] So he shared (with them), but was of those who are cast off. [141] So the fish swallowed him while he did that for which he blamed himself [142] But had it not been that he was of those who glorify (Us), [143] He would certainly have tarried in its belly to the day when they are raised, [144]' (as-Saffat: 139-144).

So Prophet Yunus (Jonah) Allah's peace be upon him lost the lottery and was chosen to be thrown in the sea, and the whale swallowed him, as Allah Glorified is He says: 'So the fish swallowed him while he did that for which he blamed himself, ' (as-Saffat: 142). It is as if He the Almighty said to him, 'It was not right to leave your people for being harmed by them; you ought to be patient and to endure that for the sake of Allah in order that you could deliver the Message.' It is known that you only blame the one whom you love and care for. Likewise, He Glorified is He blamed him Allah's peace be upon him for something that is not supposed to be done by a Prophet. In fact, blame could be a token of love.

Prophet Yunus (Jonah) Allah's peace be upon him could do nothing but pray to Allah Glorified is He when he was inside the whale, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: '…do not be like the man in the whale who called out in distress ' (al-Qalam: 48). The hidden prayer is the best form of supplication which is similar to that of Prophet Zakaryya (Zechariah) Allah's peace be upon him about his supplication, Allah the Almighty says: 'Kaf Ha Ya Ain Sad. [1] A mention of the mercy of your Lord to His servant Zechariah. [2] When he called upon his Lord in a low voice, [3]' (Maryam: 1-3).

The Arabic word Kazhm means to repress something. It originally means to tie the goatskin after filling it with water, thus it seems full as if it is going to explode. This is like the case of the angry person as their blood fills their veins as if they are going to explode. For example, the one who hates to have daughters, if he has a daughter his face turns to black as if he is going to explode out of anger. In this regard, Allah the Almighty says: 'And when a daughter is announced to one of them his face becomes black and he is full of wrath. [58] He hides himself from the people because of the evil of that which is announced to him. Shall he keep it with disgrace or bury it (alive) in the dust? Now surely evil is what they judge [59]' (an-Nahl: 58-59).

Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him faced many difficulties on the way of calling to Allah the Almighty; his people rejected and harmed him. He went to a city called At-Ta'if to call its people to Allah Glorified is He, but they were more cruel to him than the people of Mecca. He returned back dismissed and bleeding, invoking his Lord, 'O Allah, I appeal to You for the weakness in my strength, and my limited power, and the treatment of contempt and humiliation from people. You are the most Merciful of all the merciful ones. You are the Lord of the oppressed, and You are my Lord. Under whose care are You leaving me? To an enemy oppressing me? Or to a friend You have given control of my affair? If You are not Angry with me, I will forever be content. However, Your Blessing is vastly important for me. I seek refuge with the Glory of Your Light by which the heavens and the earth are lit, that Your Anger does not befall on me, nor Your Displeasure descends on me. To you is the supplication until you are pleased, and there is no control or power except by you.'

Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him was in trouble, so he invoked his Lord to ask for support. Was he not pelted by stones in

At-Ta'if till his feet were bleeding? Did the people of Mecca not put the intestines of a camel on his back while he was praying? Were his teeth not broken and his face bleeding during the Battle of Uhud? In fact, Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him was painfully harmed by his people's sayings and deeds. On top of that, his wife was falsely accused of a shameful deed that she had never committed.

So, it is as if Allah the Almighty says to him, 'O Muhammad, do not be like Jonah, the companion of the whale, as he went away angrily and was not patient towards his disbelieving people, and called his Lord at the peak of his anger against them.'

Then Allah Glorified is He says:

لَّوْلَآ أَن تَدَٰرَكَهُۥ نِعْمَةٌ مِّن رَّبِّهِۦ لَنُبِذَ بِٱلْعَرَآءِ وَهُوَ مَذْمُومٌ ﴿٤٩﴾

If his Lord's grace had not reached him, he would have been left, abandoned and blameworthy, on the barren shore [49] (The Quran, al-Qalam: 49)

If it was not for the Mercy of Allah the Almighty Prophet Yunus (Jonah) Allah's peace be upon him would have been thrown in a land bereft of plants. Prophet Yunus (Jonah) Allah's peace be upon him was deeply sad because of being thrown into the sea and swallowed by the whale and living inside its belly.

Being swallowed by the whale is a blessing in itself. If the whale did not swallow him, he would have been lost in the sea and could not have been able to go out of it. But Allah Glorified is He showered him with His Mercy, and made the conditions inside the belly of the whale suitable for remaining alive. Moreover, out of His Mercy, he was thrown into a land while being patient, not being blameworthy, or else he would have been thrown out of Allah's Mercy. In this connection, He the Almighty says: 'Then We cast him on to the vacant surface of the earth while he was sick. [145] And We caused to grow up for him a gourd plant, [146]' (as-Saffat: 145-146).

Being thrown in an empty land was a Divine Decree, and nobody can escape from their fate. If the human being accepts what Allah the Almighty has chosen for them, they will be rewarded and helped to overcome their difficult conditions. But if he does not accept His Predestination, it will, nevertheless, come to pass and He the Almighty will be angry with them, and will never help them overcome it. If they were sincere in accepting Allah's Decree, they will feel Allah's Kindness and Help. His Kindness protects them from what they fear, and His Help facilitates the Decree regarding them.

Prophet Yunus (Jonah) Allah's peace and blessings be upon him was thrown in an empty land, but Allah the Almighty created a tree of gourds for him. In this vein, Abu Hurayra may Allah be pleased with him said that Prophet Yunus (Jonah) was thrown in an empty land, and Allah Glorified is He made for him a tree of gourds. Allah Glorified is He sent some animals to eat from the plants and then go and feed him with their milk in the mornings and the afternoons, till he restored his health.

When Prophet Yunus (Jonah) Allah's peace be upon him was showered with the Mercy of Allah the Almighty he was chosen to be one of the righteous Prophets, as He Glorified is He says:

فَٱجۡتَبَٰهُ رَبُّهُۥ فَجَعَلَهُۥ مِنَ ٱلصَّٰلِحِينَ ﴿٥٠﴾

But his Lord chose him and made him one of the Righteous [50] (The Quran, al-Qalam: 50)

Allah the Almighty has chosen Prophet Yunus (Jonah) Allah's peace be upon him after undergoing all these trials. This selection is the greatest grace in life. Being chosen after passing throw a trial is a common incident that all the chosen Prophets went through. For example, Allah Glorified is He has chosen Adam Allah's peace be upon him to be a Prophet after passing through a trial, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: '…and Adam disobeyed his Lord, so his life became evil (to him). [121] Then his Lord chose him, so He turned to him and guided (him), [122]' (Ta Ha: 121-122). Such a trial proves that they are suitable for the prophetic mission and are able to shoulder the responsibility and fulfil what Allah Glorified is He wants from them.

We have spoken about the trial of Prophet Yunus (Johan) Allah's peace be upon him but Adam Allah's peace be upon him went through a similar trial before becoming a Prophet. Many people think that Adam's disobedience was after becoming a Prophet, and thus they ask, 'how can he disobey Allah although he is a Prophet?' We say that this happened before being a Prophet; he was still a normal human being. That is why Allah the Almighty says: '…and Adam disobeyed his Lord, so his life became evil (to him). [121] Then his Lord chose him, so He turned to him and guided (him), [122]' (Ta Ha: 121-122). Hence, the selection came after committing the sin, and so was the case with Prophet Yunus (Jonah) Allah's peace be upon him. He was chosen after the trial of going away angrily from his people; the trial of what happened in the ship and being thrown into the sea and swallowed by the whale; and the trial of being thrown by the whale on a barren shore.

The One Who has chosen Prophet Yunus (Jonah) Allah's peace be upon him is 'his Lord' Whose Mercy outweighs His Harshness. Out of His Lordship, Allah Glorified is He gives respite to the sinners and opens the doors of repentance to whoever returns to Him. It is the Lordship of the Most Gracious, the Most Merciful Who does not treat His creatures unkindly.

Allah Glorified is He has chosen Prophet Yunus (Jonah), the companion of the whale, and made him one of the righteous people. Here comes a question, 'What is the good deed that made them deserve the rank of righteousness? We say in our daily life, for example, 'This person is good, this one is good for kingship.' When the good person sees something good, they leave it as it is or makes it better. But the bad one corrupts the good thing and does not do good deeds.

Allah the Almighty has mentioned Prophet Yunus (Johan) Allah's peace be upon him among a group of righteous Prophets, saying: 'Such was the argument We gave to Abraham against his people– We raise in rank whoever We will– your Lord is all wise, all knowing. [83] We gave him Isaac and Jacob, each of whom We guided, as We had guided Noah before, and among his descendants were David, Solomon, Job, Joseph, Moses, and Aaron– in this way We reward those who do good– [84] Zechariah, John, Jesus, and Elijah– every one of them was righteous– [85] Ishmael, Elisha, Jonah, and Lot. We favoured each one of them over other people, [86] (al-An'am: 83-86). Prophethood and righteousness are Mercy from Allah the Almighty that He bestows on His Prophets. That is why He, says about Prophet Lut (Lot)

Allah's peace be upon him: 'And We admitted him to Our Mercy, truly, he was of the righteous, ' (al-Anbiya': 75).

وَإِن يَكَادُ ٱلَّذِينَ كَفَرُواْ لَيُزْلِقُونَكَ بِأَبْصَٰرِهِمْ لَمَّا سَمِعُواْ ٱلذِّكْرَ وَيَقُولُونَ إِنَّهُۥ لَمَجْنُونٌ ﴿٥١﴾

The disbelievers almost strike you down with their looks when they hear the Quran. They say, 'He must be mad!' [51]
(The Quran, al-Qalam: 51)

The disbelievers were mocking and making fun of Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him. They had a fierce enmity towards him, and they used to give him looks of pure hatred. When he read the Noble Quran, they were looking at him with enmity as if they would strike him down with their gazes.

The Arabic word 'Zalaq' means to fall. You sometimes find that the one who dislikes another gives them a look of hatred, wishing to strike them down with their eyes. It is said, 'He eats him with his eyes!'

Some scholars have said that the Arabic word 'Izlaaq' refers to the harm that is caused by the enviers' eyes. In the past, when the Arabs wanted to harm someone, they bring a man and deprive him of food for two or three days. Then, they make the sheep and camels pass in front of him. When he looks at them and says, 'I have never seen such beautiful animals, ' some of them would be found dead after a while. Similarly, the disbelievers tried to strike Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him down with their looks and brought that man to do the same thing. By observing the two opinions, you feel that the first opinion is closer to the truth because the envier looks with admiration, while the verse indicates that they look with hatred and enmity.

The disbelievers hated to hear about the Noble Quran, the one to whom it was revealed and the One Who has sent it down to him. That is why their evil gazes were directed to him Allah's peace and blessings be upon him when he was reading the Noble Quran, as He the Almighty says: 'The disbelievers almost strike you down with their looks when they hear the Quran…' (al-Qalam: 51).

The Arabic word Dhikr (Reminder) refers to the Noble Quran. This point is mentioned in many verses of the Quran, as in the saying of Allah Glorified is He:

'Surely We have revealed the Reminder and We will most surely be its guardian,' (al-Hijr: 9) '…and We have revealed to you the Reminder that you may make clear to men what has been revealed to them, and that haply they may reflect, ' (an-Nahl: 44) and 'This We recite to you of the communications and the wise reminder ' (Al-'Imran: 58).

Allah Glorified is He says to Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him: 'And most surely it is a reminder for you and your people…' (az-Zukhruf: 44). The Noble Quran is a great honour for him and his ummah; it will keep their remembrance till the Day of Judgment. Likewise, He the Almighty says: 'We have certainly sent down to you a Book in which is your mention. Then will you not reason?' (al-Anbiya': 10) So, the Noble Quran is an honour and remembrance for them. It is also a record for their history. As a matter of fact, the dignity of the ummah is derived from the Quran and its remembrance, and it will remain forever, for Allah Glorified is He says: 'S-a-d, I swear by the Quran, full of admonition, ' (Sad: 1).

When the disbelievers of Mecca heard the Noble Quran, they did not speak badly about it; rather, they insulted the one who was reciting it, i.e. Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him and accused him of being mad. This shows how stupid they are. In another verse, He the Almighty says: 'And they say: O you to whom the Reminder has been revealed! you are most surely insane ' (al-Hijr: 6). Claiming this reveals how stupid they were! If they admitted that the Noble Quran was revealed to him, how could they then accuse him of being mad? They admitted that the Quran was revealed to him and that it is not his own words. So, how could he be mad? This shows that they were liars and stupid. How can he Allah's peace and blessings be upon him be insane while none of the unreasonable actions of the insane people appeared on him? The mad person behaves without logic; they cry, laugh, and hit other people purposelessly. Undoubtedly, Prophet Muhammad's actions are in line with the reason and logic.

At the beginning of this chapter, we notice that Allah the Almighty refutes this allegation, saying: 'By the pen! By all they write! [1] Your Lord's grace does not make you [Prophet] a madman: [2] you will have a never-ending reward—[3] truly you have a strong character, [4]' (al-Hijr: 6). Then, He Glorified is He concludes the chapter with refuting the same accusation, saying: 'The disbelievers almost strike you down with their looks when they hear the Reminder. They say, ‘He must be mad!’ (al-Qalam: 51).

Allah then adds:

وَمَا هُوَ إِلَّا ذِكْرٌ لِّلْعَالَمِينَ ﴿٥٢﴾

But truly it is nothing other than a Reminder for all peoples [52] (The Quran, al-Qalam: 52)

The style here is called Qasr; it consists of a negation 'it is nothing' followed by an exception 'other than'. This style is frequent in the Noble Quran; for example, Allah the Almighty says: 'And you do not ask them for a reward for this; it is nothing but a reminder for all mankind ' (Yusuf: 104). The word 'reminder' makes you feel that the sound human natural disposition should have made the people keep remembering Allah the Almighty. However, out of the distracting incidents, He Glorified is He has revealed the Noble Quran as a reminder.

The word Al-'alamin (worlds) is the plural of the word 'Alam (the world). The worlds are everything other than Allah Glorified is He. There are: the world of the Angels, the world of the jinn, the world of the humans, the world of the animals, the world of the plants and the inanimate objects. Some of these worlds have no Messengers because they do not have the freedom of choice.

al-Haqqa

In the Name of God, the Most Merciful, the Dispenser of Mercy

The chapter of al-Haqqa(1):

ٱلۡحَآقَّةُ ﴿١﴾ مَا ٱلۡحَآقَّةُ ﴿٢﴾ وَمَآ أَدۡرَىٰكَ مَا ٱلۡحَآقَّةُ ﴿٣﴾

The Inevitable Hour! [1] What is the Inevitable Hour? [2]
What will explain to you what the Inevitable Hour is? [3]
(The Quran, al-Haqqa: 1-3)

The Arabic word al-Haqqa (the inevitable Hour) refers to the Day of Judgment. It is the reality about which there is no doubt. It is one of the names of the Last Day. It is the Day of the inevitable Event after which there is no event; the Day of the deafening Blast that deafens the ears that were incurious about it in this worldly life; the Day of the overwhelming Calamity; and the Day of Recompense and Judgment.

Allah Glorified is He says: 'And We certainly sent into every nation a Messenger, [saying], 'Worship Allah and avoid the false deities.' And among them were those whom Allah guided, and among them were those upon whom straying was [deservedly] decreed…' (an-Nahl: 36). The Arabic word Haqqat (decreed) in this verse means they fairly deserved their punishment due to their misdeeds.

Likewise, Allah Glorified is He says: 'And when We decide to destroy a town, We (first) send a definite order (to obey Allah and be righteous) to those among them who are given the good things of this life. Then, they transgress therein, and thus the word (of torment) is justified against it (them),' (al-Isra': 16).

(1) This chapter of al-Haqqa was revealed in Mecca after the chapter of al-Mulk and before that of al-Ma'arij. It consists of 52 verses and is the chapter number 77 with regard to the arrangement of the Meccan chapters in Mecca. According to the Quranic order, it is the chapter number 69. In his 'Ulum Al-Quran, Abu Qasim says, 'All its verses are clear, containing no abrogating or abrogated verses.' See Abu Qasim, 'Ulum Al-Quran, 1/18.

The punishment was justified against them, for the one who commits a sin deserves a punishment. Similarly, Allah's Decree has become justified against the disbelievers because of their ongoing disobedience and disbelief.

Al-Haqqa (The inevitable Hour) is the time when the deserved punishment for the disbelievers’ misdeeds and the deserved reward for the believers' good deeds become due. It is the reality that must be believed in, for all its events are real and will inevitably occur.

Then the question comes: 'What is the inevitable Hour?' (al-Haqqa: 2) The question in this verse shows how great and mighty it is. It is the time when everyone will get what he deserves. It urges the listener to exert his/her utmost efforts to reach to its reality. Then, Allah the Almighty says that no one knows how great and terrible the Hour is. None can reach its reality either by knowledge or imagination. It is beyond imagination.

The Arabic word Idrak (realisation) means to know everything about something. You see the sun, for example, but you cannot claim that you know everything about it. In fact, realising the existence of something is different from knowing everything about how it exists. There are many things that exist in this worldly life and fulfil their functions, but we do not realise the reality of their existence. This does not mean, however, that they do not exist.

Then Allah Glorified is He refers to the previous nations saying:

كَذَّبَتْ ثَمُودُ وَعَادٌۢ بِٱلْقَارِعَةِ ﴿٤﴾

The people of Thamud and 'Ad denied that the crashing blow would come [4] (The Quran, al-Haqqa: 4)

The people of Thamud asked Prophet Saleh Allah’s peace be upon him to bring them a she-camel out of the rock as a sign of his truthfulness. But after this miracle occurred, they disbelieved in it and that is why Allah Glorified is He punished them severely. He Glorified is He has shown them the Right Path, but they chose the wrong path of disbelief. They disbelieved in Prophet Saleh (Shelah) Allah’s peace be upon him and killed the she-camel. In this regard, He the Almighty says: 'And as to Thamud, We showed them the right way, but they chose error above guidance…' (Fussilat: 17).

Allah Glorified is He has told us the stories of the previous Prophets with their people and how they disbelieved in them and thus were seized with punishment. He Glorified is He makes mention of the stories of Prophet Nuh (Noah), Prophet Hud (Eber), Prophet Saleh (Shelah), Prophet Shu'aib (Jethro) and Prophet Lut (Lot) Allah's Peace be upon them with their people.

The remnants of the cities of the people of Prophet Saleh (Shelah) Allah's peace be upon him are still there in Saudi Arabia. The people of Prophet Saleh (Shelah) Allah's peace be upon him used to carve their homes inside the mountains. Allah Glorified is He says about their civilisation: 'And [with] Thamud, who carved out the rocks in the valley?' (al-Fajr: 9)

All the previous nations used to deny the Message, a fact which is crystal clear in the saying of Allah Glorified is He: 'Like the striving of the people of Pharaoh and those before them; they rejected Our communications, so Allah destroyed them on account of their faults; and Allah is severe in requiting (evil)' (Al-'Imran: 11). They used to disbelieve in the Message, and thus they deserved Allah's Punishment. Further, He the Almighty tells Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him that he should not be sad because of his people's disbelief, as many Prophets before him were denied. In this regard, He Glorified is He says: 'But if they reject you, so indeed were rejected before you Messengers who came with clear arguments and scriptures and the illuminating book,' (Al-'Imran: 184).

Allah Glorified is He gathered in many verses between the people of 'Ad and the people of Thamud; for example, He the Almighty says: 'But if they turn aside, then say: I have warned you of a scourge like the scourge of 'Ad and Thamud,' (Fussilat: 13). The people of 'Ad denied their Messenger, as Allah the Almighty says: 'They said: O Hud! You have not brought to us any clear argument and we are not going to desert our gods for your word, and we are not believers in you,' (Hud: 53).

'Ad and Thamud denied the Messengers and the miracles that were sent to them. They also disbelieved in the Crashing Blow, as mentioned in this verse. So what does the Arabic word Qari'a (Crashing Blow) mean? It means to strongly strike something which is quiet and motionless. From this word, the word Qar' Al-Bab (pounding on the door) is derived. There is difference between 'knocking' on the door and 'pounding' on it.

The Crushing Blow pounds on the hearts, the ears, and other senses. It strikes their hearts with its horror and terror. It also strikes Allah's enemies with punishment and overwhelms their hearts with fear. Thus, the people of ‘Ad and the people of Thamud denied the Day of Judgment, the Resurrection, and the Gathering.

When you reflect on this chapter, you find something wonderful; it starts with: 'The Inevitable Hour! [1] What is the Inevitable Hour? [2] What will explain to you what the Inevitable Hour is? [3]' (al-Haqqa: 1-3) However, when Allah the Almighty speaks about the denial of ‘Ad and Thamud, He does not say that they denied the Inevitable Hour. Rather, He says that they denied the Crushing Blow. So, He Glorified is He mentioned another name of the Day of Judgment to gather the two meanings which describe the Day of Judgment as the inevitable Hour and the Crushing Blow. That is the Day when the deserved recompense of both the believers and the disbelievers will be due. Moreover, that Day will strike the hearts and the whole universe with horror.

Then Allah Glorified is He says:

فَأَمَّا ثَمُودُ فَأُهْلِكُوا۟ بِٱلطَّاغِيَةِ ﴿٥﴾

Thamud was destroyed by a deafening blast [5]
(The Quran, al-Haqqa: 5)

Allah Glorified is He mentions first the disbelief of the people of ‘Ad and the people of Thamud in the Last Day, saying: 'The people of Thamud and ‘Ad denied that the crashing blow would come,' (al-Haqqa: 4).Their crime is the same, but their punishment is different. He the Almighty mentioned first some details about the punishment of Thamud. In this verse, He Glorified is He says that they were punished with the deafening blast. Another verse states that they were punished by a violent storm: '…on whom We sent down a violent storm…' (al-’Ankabut: 40), or they were punished by an earthquake. This punishment affected them and kept them on their positions; standing, sitting, or lying down. Yet, He the Almighty states that they were also punished by a blast: 'If they turn away, say, ‘I have warned you about a blast like the one which struck ‘Ad and Thamud,' (Fussilat: 13). All those four terms give the meaning of the overwhelming event and the inescapable punishment to the extent that they fell on their knees and faces motionlessly.

Allah Glorified is He has described their condition after sending the Blast that struck them with terror as: '…We released a single mighty blast against them and they ended up like a fence maker's dry sticks…' (al-Qamar: 31). They became like the dry branches of a tree after being smashed. The farmer uses these branches to make a fence to surround their sheep. Ultimately, they become dry, fall on the ground and the sheep smash them.

The Arabic word Taghiya means what trespasses the limits. So, the blast with which the people of Thamud were punished exceeded the limits that the human being can bear.

Then, Allah the Almighty says:

وَأَمَّا عَادٌ فَأُهْلِكُوا۟ بِرِيحٍ صَرْصَرٍ عَاتِيَةٍ ﴿٦﴾

'Ad was destroyed by a furious wind [6]
(The Quran, al-Haqqa: 6)

The Arabic word Sarsar means the strong and cold wind that has strong voice. It was also mentioned in the saying of Allah the Almighty: '…as the likeness of wind in which is intense cold…' (Al-'Imran: 117). The wind spreads the cold and makes it stronger. If it is not for the wind, the cold will remain in one area without being spread out. The wind moves the cold from one area to another, and causes more harm. It also may be disastrous.

The wind that is described as 'Sarsar' is a cold, violent wind that has a strong sound. We know in our villages that the hoarfrost may destroy some plants. Thus, the Sarsar is harmful wind.

The people of 'Ad were arrogant towards Prophet Hud (Eber) Allah's peace be upon him and those who believed in him. They felt that they were the strongest people and thus denied the signs of Allah the Almighty. So, what was their destiny? Allah Glorified is He has sent on them wind with strong sound during some horrible days to make them taste the humiliating torture. Allah Glorified is He says about the people of 'Ad*:* 'As for 'Ad, they were arrogant upon the earth without right and said, 'Who is greater than us in strength?'

Did they not consider that Allah who created them was greater than them in strength? But they were rejecting Our signs. So We sent upon them a screaming wind during days of misfortune to make them taste the punishment of disgrace in the worldly life; but the punishment of the Hereafter is more disgracing, and they will not be helped,’ (Fussilat: 16). The days are described to be that of misfortune. Thus, the wind was violent and evil, bereft of any good at all. That is why He the Almighty says afterwards:

سَخَّرَهَا عَلَيْهِمْ سَبْعَ لَيَالٍ وَثَمَٰنِيَةَ أَيَّامٍ حُسُومًا فَتَرَى
ٱلْقَوْمَ فِيهَا صَرْعَىٰ كَأَنَّهُمْ أَعْجَازُ نَخْلٍ خَاوِيَةٍ ﴿٧﴾

That God let loose against them for seven consecutive nights, eight consecutive days, so that you could have seen its people lying dead like hollow palm-trunks [7] (The Quran, al-Haqqa: 7)

Allah the Almighty says about this violent wind: '…Nay! It is what you sought to hasten on, a blast of wind in which is a painful punishment, [24] Destroying everything by the command of its Lord… [25]' (al-Ahqaf: 24-25). The Arabic word Ar-Rih (the blast of wind) expresses the destructive power of the air because when the wind blows powerfully from one direction, it becomes destructive. But if it is faced with another wind, balance is achieved.

That is why this word is only used in the Noble Quran to refer to destruction. But when Allah the Almighty speaks about the useful wind, He uses the word Riah (winds). This is because when the winds blow from different directions, the balance in this life is achieved. When He the Almighty wants the wind to be destructive, He makes it blow from one direction. The wind then will not be faced with another one from the opposite direction and that is why its power will be destructive.

This violent and destructive wind that left nothing behind was sent to destroy the people of ‘Ad. It lasted for seven successive nights and eight successive days, without stopping. Allah Glorified is He describes this wind as Husuman, that is, it did not leave anything behind. Everything had completely come to an end.

It was narrated that Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him said, 'The wind that was sent over the people of 'Ad has got out from a place at the size of a ring. It passed by the Bedouin in the desert, it carried them together with their animals and property. It made them hang between the heavens and the earth. When the people of the city saw this strong wind, they thought that it is coming with rain. At this point, the Bedouin and their animals were thrown over them.'

Allah Glorified is He describes this wind as 'Husuma' because it killed and destroyed them all. The word Hasm means cutting down. It was narrated that an old woman entered a place to escape from this wind, but the wind followed her and killed her in the eighth day. Afterwards, the torture stopped.

As the violent wind lasted unremittingly for seven successive nights and eight successive days, He the Almighty describes it in another verse, saying: ''Ad treated (the truth) as a lie, so how (great) was My Punishment and My warning! [18] Surely We sent on them a tornado in a day of bitter ill-luck, [19]' (al-Qamar: 19). It is as if the eight days with their seven nights are like one day, as the torture was continuous without stopping. They are like one horrible destructive day that lasted till it destroyed them all.

The wind was strong to that it was throwing them away together with their belongings, a fact which is crystal clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'Tearing men away as if they were the trunks of palm-trees torn up,' (al-Qamar: 20). It was uprooting them from their places and houses and throwing them away, just like the palm tree when being uprooted.

So, with regard to the saying of Allah the Almighty: '…so you would see the people therein fallen as if they were hollow trunks of palm trees,' (al-Haqqa: 7), the word 'see' is miraculous. It makes the listener or the reader feels as if looking at the punishment that fell upon those people and watching what happens to them.

Not only does Allah Glorified is He address Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him but also everyone who reads the Noble Quran. This style is used in His saying: 'And the Book shall be placed, then you will see the guilty fearing from what is in it, and they will say: Ah! Woe to us! What a book is this! It does not omit a small one or a great one…' (al-Kahf: 49).

There you see the people of ‘Ad in the seven consecutive nights and the eight consecutive days killed and thrown as if they were hollow trunks of palm trees thrown everywhere. None of them or of their offspring were left behind.

Allah the Almighty then says:

فَهَلْ تَرَىٰ لَهُم مِّنۢ بَاقِيَةٍ ﴿٨﴾

Can you see any trace of them now? [8]
(The Quran, al-Haqqa: 8)

Allah Glorified is He is still addressing Prophet Muhammad Allah’s peace and blessings be upon him. He the Almighty reveals to him the scene of this destructive storm and its impact on the people of ‘Ad. They were lying dead, just like the hollow trunks of palm trees. Can anyone see any remnants of them?! The wind of Dabur (1) destroyed them all. He the Almighty says about the punishment of the previous nations: ‘And how many have We destroyed before them of generations? Do you perceive of them anyone or hear from them a sound?’ (Maryam: 98) You can say nothing but to answer, 'No, I cannot perceive of them anyone, neither can I hear from them a sound!'

It is as if He the Almighty is saying, 'O Muhammad, can you find any remains of the people of ‘Ad? Is there one soul remaining? None of them or of their offspring were left.' In this regard, He the Almighty says: 'Destroying everything by the command of its Lord, so they became such that naught could be seen except their houses...' (al-Ahqaf: 25) and 'So We delivered him and those with him by mercy from Us, and We cut off the last of those who rejected Our communications and were not believers,’ (al-A‘raf: 72). According to the last verse, the believers were the only survivors. Further, Prophet Muhammad Allah’s peace and blessings be upon him said, 'I was granted victory with As-Saba(2) and the nation of ‘Ad was destroyed by Ad-Dabur (westerly wind).'

(1) A wind that blows from the west towards the east.

(2) A gentle wind which blows from the east

وَجَآءَ فِرۡعَوۡنُ وَمَن قَبۡلَهُۥ وَٱلۡمُؤۡتَفِكَٰتُ بِٱلۡخَاطِئَةِ ۝٩

Pharaoh, too, and those before him, and the ruined cities: these people committed grave sins [9] (The Quran, al-Haqqa: 9)

Allah Glorified is He starts the stories of the previous nations with mentioning the people of Thamud and the people of 'Ad. They all were destroyed long time ago, and none of their offspring remained, though their power was great.

Pharaoh, the nations before him and the people of the ruined cities committed grave sins. The Arabic word Al-Mu'tafikat (the ruined cities) refers to the villages of people of Prophet Lut (Lot) Allah's peace be upon him. It means something that is turned up side down. Their villages were turned up side down, a fact with is crystal clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'And the overthrown cities did He overthrow, [53] So there covered them that which covered [54]' (an-Najm: 53-54).

The Arabic word Ifk (falsehood) means also to turn something away from its reality, as the people of Prophet Hud (Eber) Allah's peace be upon him said to him: 'Have you come to us to turn us away from our gods; then bring us what you threaten us with, if you are of the truthful ones,' (al-Ahqaf: 23). Thus, those villages were turned up-side-down, as He the Almighty says: 'So when Our Decree came to pass, We turned them upside down and rained down upon them stones, of what had been decreed, one after another' (Hud: 82). They were five villages: Sadum, Dadoma, Da'ghuh, 'Amura, and Qutm. All of them were turned upside down completely.

Thus, the verse means that Pharaoh of Egypt, the nations before him, and the people of Lut (Lot) committed the grave sin. What was that sin? It is the greatest sin ever, i.e. disbelief. It also refers to other grave sins; the people of Thamud killed the she-camel, the people of 'Ad denied their Prophet Hud (Eber) Allah's peace be upon him ; Pharaoh disbelieved and claimed divinity and the people of Lut (Lot) Allah's peace be upon him committed the obscenity that no one had committed before them.

Allah the Almighty then says:

فَعَصَوْا۟ رَسُولَ رَبِّهِمْ فَأَخَذَهُمْ أَخْذَةً رَّابِيَةً ﴿١٠﴾

And disobeyed the messenger of their Lord, so He seized them with an ever- tightening grip [10] (The Quran, al-Haqqa: 10)

Each of these people disobeyed the Messenger of Allah who was sent to them. For example, the people of Pharaoh disobeyed Prophet Musa (Moses) Allah's peace be upon him; the people of Thamud disobeyed Prophet Saleh (Shelah) Allah's peace be upon him; and the people of Prophet Lut (Lot) disobeyed him Allah's peace be upon him.

Someone may ask, 'Why did He say in this verse that they disobeyed the 'Messenger', not 'Messengers'? This is because all the Messengers were sent with one Message, that is, to believe in Allah as one God and Lord, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: 'And certainly We raised in every nation a Messenger saying: Serve Allah and shun the false deities. So there were some of them whom Allah guided and there were others against whom error was due; therefore travel in the land, then see what was the end of the rejecters,' (an-Nahl: 36). The verse in question may also mean that they disbelieved in the Message of their Lord.

Then Allah Glorified is He says: '…so He seized them with an ever-tightening grip,' (al-Haqqa: 10). They were taken severely, with more power than the nations before them. That is why it was an excessive punishment. It was named Rabiya (excessive) because it increased and escalated by itself.

Then, Allah Glorified is He says:

إِنَّا لَمَّا طَغَا ٱلْمَآءُ حَمَلْنَٰكُمْ فِى ٱلْجَارِيَةِ ﴿١١﴾

But when the Flood rose high, We saved you in the floating ship [11] (The Quran, al-Haqqa: 11)

The Arabic verb Tagha means to trespass limits. Allah the Almighty has made limits that should be observed for everything in this universe. If you followed the way that He Glorified is He directed you towards, your life will be ideal. When something trespasses limits, it causes corruption in the worldly life, even if it is the water from which everything was created. Water is the main cause of life. However, if the water trespasses its limits, it floods and destroys everything. That is why He the Almighty says: 'But when the Flood rose high, We saved you in the floating ship,' (al-Haqqa: 11).

When the water trespasses the limits, this entails its refusal to be subject to the human being, for it does not serve us except by Allah's Order. The creatures, in fact, do not serve you because of yourself. If so, why can you not control them when they exceed the limits?

The water may overflow, the wind may turn into a storm, the earth may quake and the volcanoes may erupt. All of that is meant for the human being to realise that we cannot control the universe that we live in.

The water overflow is expressed in the Noble Quran with the word 'flood'. Water is the main cause for life, but it may also be a cause of destruction. The creatures do not act by themselves; rather, it is the Creator Who directs them. He Glorified is He punishes with water as He punishes with fire, though they are the opposite of each other. None can do this except the One Who created them Glorified is He.

The stories of the drowning of the people of Prophet Nuh (Noah) Allah's peace be upon him and the people of Sheba made the Arabs afraid of water. If they needed water, they would go far away to fill their goatskins. That is because they knew the inescapable danger of the flood.

The flood means that the water exceeds the needs of the people and turns from being a cause of life into a cause of death. Allah the Almighty reminds all people about His Grace, saying: 'But when the Flood rose high, We saved you in the floating ship' (al-Haqqa: 11). In this case, the water went far more than quenching thirst, to become destructive.

Allah Glorified is He says about the story of Prophet Nuh (Noah) Allah's peace be upon him and the flood: '[So it was], until when Our Command came and the oven overflowed, We said, 'Load upon the ship of each [creature] two mates and your family, except those about whom the word has preceded, and [include] whoever has believed.' But none had believed with him, except a few' (Hud: 40). He Allah's peace be upon him was ordered to carry a male and female of each plant and the animal to maintain life after being saved from the flood. Allah Glorified is He has kept the life on earth by saving everything that is needed for life on the ark. The Arabic word Jariya in this verse means the ship. The plural of this word is Jawary (ships), as mentioned in His saying: 'And His are the ships reared aloft in the sea like mountains,' (ar-Rahman: 24). It was named Al-Jariya because it runs into the sea. The ark of Prophet Nuh (Noah) Allah's peace be upon him was a titanic one; it carried a male and a female from all creatures so that the life on earth would be maintained.

Allah Glorified is He has mentioned the ships as one of His signs, saying: 'Most surely in the creation of the heavens and the earth and the alternation of the night and the day, and the ships that run in the sea with that which profits men…' (al-Baqara: 164). But how do the ships that run into the sea be one of Allah's signs? The human being knows that the buoyant nature of the water is what makes the ships able to sail above it. Before inventing the steam motors, the wind was the only thing that moved the ships, that is why He Glorified is He says: 'If He willed, He could still the wind, and they would remain motionless on its surface…' (ash-Shura: 23). If it was not for the wind, the ship would stay motionless. This was before the invention of the steam motors.

If Allah Glorified is He wills, He can stop the power that moves anything. The ship needs the wind to move, if it was not running into the river. The water of the river runs from the outflow to the inflow. If we want the ship to move in the opposite direction, we need the wind.

Allah Glorified is He has subjugated ships to the people to facilitate their travels and interests, as He the Almighty says: '…and He has made the ships subservient to you, that they might run their course in the sea by His command, and He has made the rivers subservient to you,' (Ibrahim: 32).

Someone may say, 'We do not need the wind now for moving the ships, for now they move by machines and motors.' To reply to this, we say that the wind here has a broader meaning. It does not mean the power that pushes the ships above water; rather, it means the power by which it moves, whether it is wind, steam, electricity, etc.

The word 'you' in the verse in question refers to the ancestors who were carried with Prophet Nuh (Noah) Allah's peace be upon him on the Ark. Thus, Allah Glorified is He has carried people's ancestors in the ship.

Allah Glorified is He addresses those to whom the Noble Quran was revealed, telling them that He saved their ancestors, i.e. Prophet Nuh (Noah) Allah's peace be upon him and the believers with him. Those who were addressed by this verse are their offspring. Hence, carrying the ancestors is considered carrying for their offspring as well. This is a Favour from Him the Almighty because they were the reason for their birth.

Hence, the pronoun in the saying of Allah the Almighty: '…We saved you…' (al-Haqqa: 11) refers to the ancestors, i.e. Prophet Nuh (Noah) and those who believed with him. In fact, everyone on the earth is the offspring of Prophet Nuh (Noah) Allah's peace be upon him and his three children who were with him in the ship. If the ship mentioned here refers to any ship, the pronoun 'you' in the verse then will refer to everyone.

If you reflect on the word Al-Jariya (the running ship), you find that the Ark of Noah was named Al-Fulk (ship) while it was being made, a fact which is crystal clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'And make the ark before Our eyes and (according to) Our revelation…' (Hud: 37). After being made, He the Almighty named it Safina (ark), saying: 'So We delivered him and the inmates of the ark…' (al-'Ankabut: 15). When it became ready for running into the sea, He named it Al-Jariya (the floating ship), saying: '…We saved you in the floating ship' (al-Haqqa: 11).

Allah the Almighty subsequently says:

لِنَجْعَلَهَا لَكُمْ تَذْكِرَةً وَتَعِيَهَآ أُذُنٌ وَٰعِيَةٌ ﴿١٢﴾

Making that event a reminder for you:
attentive ears may take heed [12]
(The Quran, al-Haqqa: 12)

Allah Glorified is He saved the Ark of Prophet Nuh (Noah) Allah's peace be upon him to make it a reminder, a sign and an instruction. He the Almighty says: 'Surely this is a reminder, so whoever pleases takes to his Lord a way' (al-Insan: 29). So, the annihilation of the people of Prophet Nuh (Noah) Allah's peace be upon him is an admonition for the people. We should remember their story and avoid being like them. Besides, we should heed this with attentive ears.

The attentive ear is that which keeps the instruction that it hears. Qatada ibn An-Nu'man may Allah be pleased with him said that the conscious ear is an ear that listens, understands and takes heed.

The one who has a conscious ear safeguards themselves from the punishment of the previous people by keeping away from sins. Their ear listens and their heart becomes aware and works according to what they knew. Consequently, they will be saved.

The ear also keeps what it perceives to be a lesson whose benefit will come later. It is described to be conscious although consciousness is related to the heart. That is meant to express how attentive it is. It may be also because the ear transfers what it hears to the heart that then becomes conscious of it.

Consciousness means to keep something inside your mind or heart, and to make use of what you have heard by working according to it. So, the conscious ear understands and benefits from what it has heard.

Allah the Almighty then says:

فَإِذَا نُفِخَ فِي ٱلصُّورِ نَفْخَةٌ وَٰحِدَةٌ ﴿١٣﴾

When the Trumpet is sounded a single time [13]
(The Quran, al-Haqqa: 13)

This verse turns our attention to the Last Day and its horrors, as the chapter starts with the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'The Inevitable Hour! [1] What is the Inevitable Hour? [2] What will explain to you what the Inevitable Hour is? [3]' (al-Haqqa: 1-3) The chapter starts with speaking about the Last Day, then the worldly punishment that inflicted those who rejected it, let alone the punishment that is waiting for them in the Hereafter. They were denying the Day of Judgment, but they will find themselves facing its obvious reality. It will be a surprise for them although they were warned by their Messengers against it.

Regarding the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'When the Trumpet is sounded...' (al-Haqqa: 13), it starts with the Arabic word Fa-Idha (when) which expresses the suddenness. Blowing the Horn is a sign for the beginning of something.

With the first Blow, all living things will die; and with the second blow, all the dead will be resurrected.

The second blow is a call for all the creatures to come out of their graves, a fact which is crystal clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'On the day when He will call you forth, then shall you obey Him, giving Him praise, and you will think that you tarried but a little (while)' (al-Isra': 52). When Allah Glorified is He calls them, they will get up with obedience and submission. None will be arrogant or lazy. That was in this worldly life, not in the Hereafter. This will happen after the second Blow. The first one stuns everything, while the second is the blow of resurrection. In this connection, Allah the Almighty says: 'And the trumpet shall be blown, so all those that are in the heavens and all those that are in the earth shall swoon, except such as Allah please; then it shall be blown again, then lo! They shall stand up awaiting, ' (az-Zumar: 68). The one who will blow the Horn is the Angel Israfil.

Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him once said to his Companions, 'When Allah has created heavens and earth, He has created As-Sur (the horn) and given it to Israfil. Since then, Israfil is putting it on his mouth, and looking to the Throne of Allah, waiting for His Order.' Abu Hurayra asked Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him 'What is As-Sur?' He said, 'It is the Horn.' He Allah be pleased with him asked, 'How does it look?' He Allah's peace and blessings be upon him said, 'By the One that my soul is in His Hands, it is really great.' The circle that is put on the mouth is as wide as the heavens and earth. Allah will order Israfil to blow in the horn three times; the first one is the blow of horror, the second one is the blow of death, and the third one is the blow of Resurrection.'

When the disbelievers are taken by surprise with the blow of the horn and the Hour in which they were disbelieving, they will be speechless. That is out of surprise when they see what they had disbelieved in happening before their eyes.

Allah the Almighty then says:

وَحُمِلَتِ ٱلۡأَرۡضُ وَٱلۡجِبَالُ فَدُكَّتَا دَكَّةٗ وَٰحِدَةٗ ﴿١٤﴾

When the earth and its mountains are raised high and then crushed with a single blow [14]

The earth will be carried with all that is on it; its water, trees, and all other objects. The mountains will also be carried up from their places and crushed on earth. Hence, both will be crushed. The earth will be at one level, as He the Almighty says: 'Nay! When the earth is made to crumble to pieces,' (al-Fajr: 21).

Allah the Almighty has given us an example of this crushing in this worldly life, saying: '…but when his Lord manifested His glory to the mountain He made it crumble and Moses fell down in a swoon…' (al-A'raf: 143).

Allah Glorified is He reminds us with the collapse of the mountain when Musa (Moses) Allah's peace be upon him asked to see Him the Almighty. When Allah Glorified is He appeared to the mountain, it fell down and turned to dust out of fear of Him. Similarly, the mountains and earth will be crushed and will turn to dust. Despite the hardness, strength, and stability of the mountain, it turned to dust. The Arabic word Dakka means to press the top of something to make it at the level of another thing lower than it. The righteous king Dhu Al-Qarnayn built a dam composed of iron and copper, a fact which is crystal clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'Bring me blocks of iron; until when he had filled up the space between the two mountain sides, he said: Blow, until when he had made it (as) fire, he said: Bring me molten brass which I may pour over it,' (al-Kahf: 96). It is a hard and high barrier made of molten iron and copper. Dhu Al-Qarnayn described it as a mercy, saying: 'This is a mercy from my Lord…' (al-Kahf: 98). So, no one should think that the hardness of that barrier is eternal; it will only remain in this worldly life. When the Last Hour is due, He the Almighty will make it at one level with the earth. That is for its people not to be arrogant or oppress others after being oppressed before by Gog and Magog.

Thus, not only will the mountains that consist of rocks, fall, but also the barriers that are made of iron and steel, as if they are made of paper. As for the saying of Allah the Almighty: '…' for the saying of Allah, the blow,' (al-Haqqa: 14), it means that the earth and mountains will be crushed with a single movement; it will be one thing. It is not important to know how this will happen. It will inevitably happen, whether you believed or not. Whether this will happen by the great earthquake on the Last Day, or by the violent wind that is strong enough to carry the earth and mountains, or by one of the Angels, there is no difference as the ultimate result is one. These are all Allah's Soldiers.

Someone may ask, 'Will the mountains be crushed or blasted or be like carded wool or dispersing dust or mirage, for the Noble Quran mentions all of these descriptions?' All these are different cases for the mountains. They will be first crushed, then be like carded wool, as He the Almighty says: 'The day on which men shall be as scattered moths, [4] And the mountains shall be as loosened wool, [5]' (al-Qari`a: 4-5). After being crushed, they will be on the earth like the carded wool, and then they will be like the dispersing dust when the wind disperses their dust everywhere. After this, the wind will take the dust away, as He the Almighty says: 'When the earth shall be shaken with a (severe) shaking, [4] And the mountains shall be made to crumble with (an awful) crumbling, [5] So that they shall be as scattered dust, [6]' (al-Waqi'a: 4-6).

Allah the Almighty then says:

فَيَوۡمَئِذٖ وَقَعَتِ ٱلۡوَاقِعَةُ ﴿١٥﴾ وَٱنشَقَّتِ ٱلسَّمَآءُ فَهِيَ يَوۡمَئِذٖ وَاهِيَةٞ ﴿١٦﴾

On that Day the Great Event will come to pass [15]
The sky will be torn apart on that Day, it will be so frail [16]
(The Quran, al-Haqqa: 15 - 16)

The Arabic word Waqa'at (the event) is used literally to express that something fell from a high place, and no one can stop it. This word is used when speaking about some great events. For example, Allah says: 'And when the word befalls them, We will bring forth for them a creature from the earth speaking to them, [saying] that the people were, of Our verses, not certain [in faith],' (an-Naml: 82). The word 'befall' here is not a normal falling; rather, it means returning to Allah the Almighty. It shows that they will suffer from problems and hardships.

The Arabic word Waqa' (to befall) in the Quran always comes when speaking about hardships, except in the following verse: '…and whoever emigrates for the cause of Allah will find on the earth many [alternative] locations and abundance. And whoever leaves his home as an emigrant to Allah and His Messenger and then death overtakes him - his reward has already become incumbent upon Allah…' (an-Nisa': 100). The meaning here is that Allah Glorified is He makes their reward an obligation on Himself.

Hence, the Arabic word Waqea'at is used with the inevitable events and it is one of the names of the Last Day. The Last Day has many names; each one of them shows one side of this great and horrible Day. It is named the Catastrophe, the Reality, the Striking Calamity, the Deafening Blast, and the Event. The Last Day gathers all these descriptions at the same time. It will occur certainly, and when it does, nobody can deny it, as Allah Glorified is He says: 'There is no belying its coming to pass,' (al-Waqi'a: 2).

After Allah Glorified is He mentions what will happen on the earth on that horrible Day, saying: '…when the earth and its mountains are raised high and then crushed with a single blow,' (al-Haqqa: 14), He mentions here what will happen to the sky as well. By contemplating, you find that His saying: 'On that Day the Great Event will come to pass,' (al-Haqqa: 15), came after mentioning the earth and before mentioning the sky. It is in the middle between them. It is as if He the Almighty is putting the human being between them. The earth that they live on will be destroyed, and its mountains will crash. So, they should not think that there is a way out for them because even the sky above them will split and turn to pieces. Can you imagine anything more?

The sky will not split by itself; rather, it is out of its submission to Allah's Order, as He the Almighty says: 'When the heaven bursts asunder, [1] And obeys its Lord and it must [2]' (al-Inshiqaq: 1-2). As soon as the sky listens to His Order, it obeys directly and bursts asunder. Then the time of the Account comes. As soon as the sky splits, the sun is wrapped up and the stars fall. Not only does the sky listen to Allah's Order, but it also fulfils it quickly, without delay. So, His Order is directly fulfilled.

As for the saying of Allah Glorified is He: '…it will be so frail' (al-Haqqa: 16), it means that the sky on that Day will be weak and split, as the Arabic word Wahiya means weak.

After being very firm, the sky will become weak. In this regard, Allah Glorified is He tells us about the strength of the creation of the sky, saying: 'Are you the harder to create or the heaven? He made it. [27] He raised high its height, then put it into a right good state, [28]' (an-Nazi'at: 27-28); 'I swear by the heaven full of ways' (adh-Dhariyat: 47); 'And the heaven, We raised it high with power, and most surely We are the makers of things ample' (adh-Dhariyat: 7). Its atoms are joined together, that is why you find it strong and firm. This strong building will be weak on the Last Day. It will have sides and edges. That is why He the Almighty then says:

وَٱلۡمَلَكُ عَلَىٰٓ أَرۡجَآئِهَاۚ وَيَحۡمِلُ عَرۡشَ رَبِّكَ فَوۡقَهُمۡ يَوۡمَئِذٖ ثَمَٰنِيَةٞ ١٧

The angels will be on all sides of it and, on that Day, eight of them will bear the throne of your Lord above them [17] (The Quran, al-Haqqa: 17)

The Angels will be at the edges and sides of the sky. When the Day of Judgment comes, Allah Glorified is He will order the lower sky to split; the Angels will be at its edges, then they descend to the earth and surround all what is on it.

However, some scholars said that the pronoun in His saying: '…on all sides of it...' (al-Haqqa: 17) refers to the earth. They surmise that Allah Glorified is He will order the Angels of the lower heaven to stand in lines on the edges of the earth, and then He orders the Angels of the second heaven to stand after them, and so on. Everyone from the jinn and mankind will find the earth surrounded.

He the Almighty then says: '…eight of them will bear the Throne of your Lord above them,' (al-Haqqa: 17). The Arabic word 'Arsh (Throne) is used also to refer to the thrones of kings in this worldly life. Allah's Throne is mentioned in the Noble Quran in many verses, as in His saying: '…and His Dominion (Throne) (extends) on the water…' (Hud: 7); '…glory be to Allah, the Lord of the Throne, above what they attribute (to Him),' (al-Anbiya': 22); and 'So exalted be Allah, the True King; no god is there but He, the Lord of the honorable Throne,' (al-Mu'minun: 116). Here, the Throne of Allah the Almighty is a sign that the matter has been settled and the whole universe is under His Control; nothing can disobey His Order.

Allah Glorified is He describes His Throne as great. When you hear about a great throne, you think of those great thrones that we see in this worldly life, like the throne of the Queen of Sheba which the hoopoe bird described, saying: '…she has a great throne,' (al-Mu'minun: 27). It is great according to the human standards. As for the Throne of Allah, it is beyond what humans can imagine; nothing resembles it. He the Almighty describes it, saying: '…and He is the Lord of the honorable Throne,' (at-Tawba: 129). Abu Dharr Al-Ghifari Allah be pleased with him said, 'I asked Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him about the Chair, and he said, 'O Abu Dharr, the seven heavens and the seven earths compared to the Chair are no more than a ring thrown into a vast desert. And the favour of the Throne upon the Chair is like the favour of the desert upon this ring.'

The Arabic word 'Arsh (Throne) entails the meaning of highness, that is why it refers sometimes to the ceiling and to the bed as well. In this connection, He the Almighty says: 'And he raised his parents upon the throne…' (Yusuf: 100).

Then Allah Glorified is He says:

يَوۡمَئِذٖ تُعۡرَضُونَ لَا تَخۡفَىٰ مِنكُمۡ خَافِيَةٞ ﴿١٨﴾

On that Day you will be brought to judgment and none of your secrets will remain hidden [18]
(The Quran, al-Haqqa: 18)

Nothing is hidden from Allah Glorified is He as He says in another verse: 'They conceal [their evil intentions and deeds] from the people, but they cannot conceal [them] from Allah, and He is with them [in His knowledge] when they spend the night in such as He does not accept of speech. And ever is Allah, of what they do, encompassing,' (an-Nisa': 108). The Arabic word Muhit (encompassing) means to encompass something so that it cannot escape in either the present or the future. In this sense, Allah's Knowledge encompasses everything; nothing is concealed from Him Glorified is He. Allah the Almighty is not distracted by a specific sound or sight from knowing the rest of the sounds and sights, for His sight and knowledge are All-Encompassing and Subtle. That is why the reward He gives goes in accordance with this subtle Knowledge.

Hence, you should never overlook the fact that your Lord is seeing and observing you and that nothing of what you do is concealed from Him.

Allah Glorified is He has told us about being presented before Him, saying: 'And they will be presented before your Lord in rows, [and He will say], ‘You have certainly come to Us just as We created you the first time. But you claimed that We would never make for you an appointment,’ (al-Kahf: 48). Presentation means to display all the items of the presented subject in an organised way. This is like the soldiers who display themselves to the leader in a military show, so that s/he can see every one of them standing in lines.

We will be presented in front of Allah the Almighty in a systematic way; no one can hide or escape. Every line will not hide the one that follows it, so all of them are apparent. We will return to Him the Almighty naked as we were first created; we will have nothing even to cover ourselves with, a fact which is clear in His saying: 'And they will be presented before your Lord in rows, [and He will say], ‘You have certainly come to Us just as We created you the first time…' (al-Kahf: 48). Every secret will be revealed then, for nothing is concealed from Him the Almighty.

Then Allah Glorified is He says:

فَأَمَّا مَنْ أُوتِيَ كِتَٰبَهُۥ بِيَمِينِهِۦ فَيَقُولُ هَآؤُمُ ٱقْرَءُوا۟ كِتَٰبِيَهْ ﴿١٩﴾
إِنِّى ظَنَنتُ أَنِّى مُلَٰقٍ حِسَابِيَهْ ﴿٢٠﴾ فَهُوَ فِى عِيشَةٍ رَّاضِيَةٍ ﴿٢١﴾
فِى جَنَّةٍ عَالِيَةٍ ﴿٢٢﴾ قُطُوفُهَا دَانِيَةٌ ﴿٢٣﴾
كُلُوا۟ وَٱشْرَبُوا۟ هَنِيٓـًٔۢا بِمَآ أَسْلَفْتُمْ فِى ٱلْأَيَّامِ ٱلْخَالِيَةِ ﴿٢٤﴾

Anyone who is given his Record in his right hand will say, ‘Here is my Record, read it [19] I knew I would meet my Reckoning’ [20] and so he will have a pleasant life [21] in a lofty Garden [22] with clustered fruit within his reach [23] It will be said, ‘Eat and drink to your heart’s content as a reward for what you have done in days gone by’ [24] (The Quran, al-Haqqa: 19 - 24)

Allah the Almighty is Supreme and All Powerful over all things. He will give every one of us his/her own record on the Day of Judgment. In this connection, He Glorified is He says: 'The Day every soul will find what it has done of good present [before it] and what it has done of evil, it will wish that between itself and that [evil] was a great distance…' (Al-'Imran: 30). He Glorified is He does not hold the people accountable except for their deeds written in their record which they will read themselves to be a proof against them.

The recording is not as what we imagine, for even the voices and breaths are recorded. On the Day of Judgment, everyone will find that all that they did is written and they will be ordered to read it themselves, a fact which is crystal clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'Read your book; your own self is sufficient as a reckoner against you this Day,' (al-Isra': 14). This shows that when the human being sees what was written in their record, they will recognise all of it. In our worldly life, some people record everything against their enemies so that none can deny it when they read it. It is as if Allah the Almighty leaves the account of everyone to themselves. Everything is recorded, and one's record will come to them on that Day and they will be the reckoner against themselves. Everything done in this worldly life is preserved, for the Angels are writing down all of our deeds, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: 'And most surely there are keepers over you [10] Honorable recorders, [11] They know what you do [12]' (al-Infitar: 10-11).

Some people deny the possibility of writing and recording the deeds. For those people we say, 'Look at what the human mind invented today; the people now can record pictures, voices, fingerprints, etc. These are the human abilities, what do you think then of the infinite Ability of the Creator?!'

The record in which your deeds are recorded is yours; that is why Allah the Almighty says here: 'Anyone who is given his Record in his right hand…' (al-Haqqa: 19). Taking the Record with the right hand is a glad tiding that the person will be saved from the hell and will have an easy Account. Their face will become bright. In this connection, Allah the Almighty says: '…then whoever is given his book in his right hand, these shall read their book; and they shall not be dealt with a whit unjustly,' (al-Isra': 71). After receiving this glad tiding, they will hasten to read their Record and then show it to the people and take pride in it. This is the reward of the one who followed Allah's Way of Guidance and did not blindly follow the paths of error. They will proudly show the people their Record because it contains nothing of which they are ashamed. This is like the case of the student who shows their high marks to the people.

One the other hand, the one who is given their Record in their left hand will say: ‘If only I had never been given any Record [25] and knew nothing of my Reckoning. [26] How I wish death had been the end of me. [27] My wealth has been no use to me, [28] and my power has vanished, [29]’ (al-Haqqa: 25-29). Hence, we should be careful in order not to be in that critical situation on the Day of Judgment. We will be faced with a Book that records everything, however small it is. This is a reminder for us while we still have time, so we should repent to Allah the Almighty and maintain our relationship with Him.

Regarding the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘…Here is my Record, read it,’ (al-Haqqa: 19), the last word of this verse ends with the Arabic letter Ha', which is called Ha' As-Sakt (stopping). It shows the hardness of that Day, for even the happy person stops at the end of every sentence to take breath. So, what about the other miserable people?

Then Allah Glorified is He relates that the one who is given his/her Record in his/her right hand will say: 'I knew I would meet my Reckoning,’ (al-Haqqa: 20). The Arabic word Zhann here means that they were certain, it does not mean to doubt the Reckoning, or else they would not be a believer, nor will they take their Record with their right hand. They were sure that they will be accounted, and will find their reward on the Day of Judgment. In this vein, He the Almighty says: 'Who know that they shall meet their Lord and that they shall return to Him’ (al-Baqara: 46). This verse shows that even if the one is not completely certain about meeting their Lord, they should adhere to His Way of Guidance and do righteous deeds. So, what if they are completely certain about that?

Further, Allah the Almighty says: 'The chiefs of those who disbelieved from among his people said: Most surely we see you in folly, and most surely we think you to be of the liars,’ (al-A‘raf: 66). So, the Arabic word Zhann can mean certainty, as in the verse in which He the Almighty speaks about the criminals, saying: 'And the criminals will see the Fire and will be certain that they are to fall therein. And they will not find from it a way elsewhere’ (al-Kahf: 53).

Then Allah the Almighty says: 'And so he will have a pleasant life,' (al-Haqqa: 23). They will live a satisfactory life. They will never be dissatisfied in it. This is because in paradise there is no death, poverty, illness, fear, or madness. They will be safe from any fear or poverty. Not only will they be satisfied, but paradise will also be satisfied with them and yearn for the admittance of its dwellers. It is the pleasure that makes the faces bright, as Allah the Almighty says: '(Some) faces on that day shall be bright, [22] Looking to their Lord, [23]' (al-Qiyama: 22-23); and 'You will recognise in their faces the brightness of bliss' (al-Mutaffifin: 24). The happiness appears on their faces and features and everyone can see it.

Then Allah Glorified is He tells us about the place of this pleasant life, saying: 'In a lofty Garden' (al-Haqqa: 22). The word Janna (Garden) entails the meaning of covering. It is a Garden with high trees that cover whoever walks among them. It is unlike the gardens with short flowers that only give pleasure to the eyes. It has high, dense trees that cover the people with their shadows and fruits. This Garden is sufficient for anyone, as they will not need anything else. The one who suffers insufficiency looks forward to what makes them self-sufficient, but the one who is self-sufficient is not in need of anything else.

In another verse, He the Almighty says: '(Other) faces on that day shall be happy, [8] Well-pleased because of their striving, [9] In a lofty Garden [10]' (al-Ghashiya: 8-10). It is high in status, and high in its degrees. It is mentioned sometimes in plural 'Gardens' because it has many different levels. There are the Garden of Al-Firdaws, the Garden of Eden, the Garden of the Bliss, the Garden of Eternity, the Garden of Peace, the Garden of Refuge, and the Garden of 'Illyyun, which is the highest one.

Then Allah the Almighty describes this lofty Garden, saying: 'with clustered fruit within his reach,' (al-Haqqa: 23). He Glorified is He makes the fruits near to His servant in order not to make them tired. Elsewhere He says: 'And close down upon them (shall be) its shadows and its fruits shall be made near (to them), being easy to reach,' (al-Insan: 14). The fruits will descend to where they are and they can easily reach it, whether standing, sitting, or lying down. They descend to them regardless of their position. In this vein, Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him said, 'The Paradise was presented in front of me, if I stretched my hand, I could reach its fruits.' That is because they are near to the believers, whatever was their position. Further, Al-Bara' ibn 'Azib may Allah be pleased with him said, 'One can reach the fruits while lying down.' Qatada also said, 'Neither thorns nor far distance prevent them from reaching to the fruits.' Thus, if they want to eat from the fruits, they descend down till they eat as much as they like. It reaches to their mouth directly if they like.

Then Allah the Almighty says: 'It will be said, 'Eat and drink to your heart's content as a reward for what you have done in days gone by' (al-Haqqa: 24). The beginning of this verse was repeated in many verses, as in His saying: 'Eat and drink of the provisions of Allah and do not act corruptly in the land, making mischief,' (al-Baqara: 60) and '… eat and drink until the whiteness of the day becomes distinct from the blackness of the night at dawn…' (al-Baqara: 187). These two verses speak about this worldly life. The first one orders us to eat and drink without corrupting the earth. So, eating and drinking is conditioned by not causing corruption. The second one speaks about the time for eating and drinking before Fasting: '…and eat and drink until the whiteness of the day becomes distinct from the blackness of the night at dawn…' (al-Baqara: 187).

As for the verse under discussion, it speaks about the Hereafter. Eating and drinking there are unconditional. If the worship was difficult for you, you should remember the easiness and the good reward you will get in the Hereafter. That is why Allah the Almighty says: 'Eat and drink to your heart's content as a reward for what you have done in days gone by,' (al-Haqqa: 24). The verse mentions both the deed and its reward. The deed is the good actions in this worldly life, and the reward is the eating and drinking to the heart's content in the paradise. The Day of Judgment is the time for the reward that will be ever lasting. It is a reward for what they have done. They have been exposed to oppression and torture for the sake of Allah the Almighty and thus their reward is to have ever lasting happiness in the Hereafter.

The food and drink are delicious and satisfying while eating. The food in this worldly life may be delicious, but may cause health problems. By contrast, in the paradise, they will not fear any illness or harm from food. They will eat and drink even without urination of defecation. Moreover, they will eat from the fruits of paradise, and drink from its rivers and springs. Besides, they will drink unaltered water, purified honey, and milk whose taste never changes.

Allah the Almighty describes for us the drink of the people of paradise and even the pots and cups in which it is served, saying: 'Trays of gold and cups will be passed round them, (there will be) therein all that the one's inner-selves could desire, all that the eyes could delight in, and you will abide therein,' (az-Zukhruf: 71); and 'They will be served by immortal boys, [17] With cups, and jugs, and a glass from the flowing wine[18], Wherefrom they will get neither any aching of the head, nor any intoxication, [19]' (al-Waqi'a: 17-19). They will not exert any effort; these things will be passed around to them. The drink is poured from jugs into cups, and the food is served in trays of gold. It is the utmost welfare. They are not just filling their stomachs; the mere sight of these is an enjoyment. What do you think then of the taste? They will eat whatever they desire. This is like when a dear guest visits you and you ask him/her, 'What do you like to eat?' This is because you want to serve them the best food their soul desires. The believers will receive such a great reward for what they have done in the previous days of good deeds, a fact which is crystal clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty: There shall every soul become acquainted with what it sent before…' (Yunus: 30); and 'Eat and drink pleasantly for what you did' (at-Tur: 91). In this connection, Qatada said, 'Your current days will go, but they lead to everlasting days, so work hard and do good during these days as much as you can.'

Then Allah the Glorified and Exalted tells us about the other party who is given their Record in their left hand, saying:

وَأَمَّا مَنْ أُوتِيَ كِتَٰبَهُۥ بِشِمَالِهِۦ فَيَقُولُ يَٰلَيْتَنِى لَمْ أُوتَ كِتَٰبِيَهْ ﴿٢٥﴾ وَلَمْ أَدْرِ مَا حِسَابِيَهْ ﴿٢٦﴾
يَٰلَيْتَهَا كَانَتِ ٱلْقَاضِيَةَ ﴿٢٧﴾ مَآ أَغْنَىٰ عَنِّى مَالِيَهْ ﴿٢٨﴾ هَلَكَ عَنِّى سُلْطَٰنِيَهْ ﴿٢٩﴾

But anyone who is given his Record in his left hand will say, 'If only I had never been given any Record [25] and knew nothing of my Reckoning [26] How I wish death had been the end of me [27] My wealth has been no use to me [28] and my power has vanished [29] (The Quran, al-Haqqa: 25 - 29)

The one who is given his Record in their left hand is the opposite of the one who takes it with their right hand. In this regard, Allah the Almighty says: 'And as to him who is given his book behind his back [10] He shall call for perdition, [11]' (al-Inshiqaq: 10-11) 'And the Book shall be placed, then you will see the guilty fearing from what is in it, and they will say: Ah! Woe to us! What a book is this! It does not omit a small one or a great one, but numbers them (all); and what they had done they shall find present (there); and your Lord does not deal unjustly with anyone' (al-Kahf: 49).

The one who will take their record with their right hand will be happy and proud to show it to the people because they have nothing to be ashamed of. On the contrary, the one who will take it with their left hand will be ashamed of what was written in it. Everything he did will be written, a fact which is crystal clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'On the Day that every soul shall find present what it has done of good and what it has done of evil, it shall wish that between it and that (evil) there were a long duration of time…' (Al-'Imran: 30). The will hope to be as far as possible from their bad deeds and will be trembling with fear. He the Almighty shows them how the scene will be and warns them when they still have time to rectify their actions. On that Day, their hearts will be struck with fear, then they will say in despair: '…Woe to us…' (al-Kahf: 49).

Allah Glorified is He then relates that such a miserable person will say: 'How I wish death had been the end of me' (al-Haqqa: 27). They wish to die or that there is no Resurrection after death. They wish that they were not resurrected to see their evil deeds in front of them. Thus, the worst thing they hated in this worldly life, i.e. death will be their most desired wish because it will save them from facing their punishment for their bad deeds.

In the chapter of az-Zukhruf, Allah the Almighty says: 'And they will cry: 'O Malik (Keeper of Hell)! Let your Lord make an end of us.' He will say: 'Surely you shall abide forever,' (az-Zukhruf: 77). The people of hell will ask for death to get rid of their eternal punishment. They will wish to die first when they receive their Records in order not to suffer the consequences of their bad deeds, but this does not work. They will ask for death again after being thrown into hell, but this will not work either. How can they die then? The death will be brought in a place between the Paradise and Hell, in the form of ram, and will be slaughtered in front of them all, and it will be said, 'O people of Paradise, eternity for you, and no death. O people of Hell, eternity for you and no death.' Their hope will be shattered. The disbelievers wished to die to be relieved from their punishment, but He the Almighty puts an end to their hopes by causing death itself to come to an end. Thus, no one will die, for death is dead.

As for their saying: 'My wealth has been no use to me,' (al-Haqqa: 28) it means that their great wealth will not avail them, or lessen some of their torture. It will be of no use as it will not make them exempted from suffering the consequences of their evil deeds. That is because they did not fulfil the right of Allah Glorified is He regarding it nor made use of it to establish good relations with their relatives. On the Day of Judgment, even if they offers it as a ransom, it will not be accepted, a fact which is crystal clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'Surely, those who disbelieve and die while they are unbelievers, the earth full of gold shall not be accepted from one of them, though he should offer to ransom himself with it…' (Al-'Imran: 91). Thus, He the Almighty will not accept their ransom, even if they offered the whole earth full of gold as a ransom. However, they will not find that gold because on that Day they will have nothing. In another verse, He Glorified is He says: 'And if those who did wrong had all that is in the earth entirely and the like of it with it, they would [attempt to] ransom themselves thereby from the worst of the punishment on the Day of Resurrection. And there will appear to them from Allah that which they had not taken into account' (az-Zumar: 47). They will say, 'Take from us all what we own and let us be saved,' but this will not be accepted.

Allah the Almighty then relates that they will say: 'And my power has vanished' (al-Haqqa: 29). The authority is the power that forces the person to do something. It is either the power of convincing or the power of forcing. Thus, there are two kinds of authority; convincing authority and forcing authority. The difference between them is that the former persuades you to do something, and, consequently, you become convinced of what you do. As for the forcing one, it forces you to do something without being convinced. Further, the forcing authority affects the body, while the convincing authority affects the mind and thoughts. So, the force can control the body, but it can never control the heart. You can force somebody to prostrate unwillingly; but by convincing, he will do this willingly.

Both meanings are possible in the verse in question. It could mean that their convincing argument in the worldly life has vanished, or their authority and power over people had gone and they became humiliated and despised. Now, they are alone, without excuses or power.

When we ponder over the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'But anyone who is given his Record in his left hand…' (al-Haqqa: 25), along with His saying: 'And as to him who is given his book behind his back,' (al-Inshiqaq: 10) we find something wonderful; how can this happen? Some scholars tried to understand this. Some of them said, 'They will put their left hand behind their back while receiving their record, while their right hand will be tied to their neck'.

Some others held that those who will take their Records with the left hand are the believers who had committed great sins; while those who will take the Records behind their backs are the disbelievers because the verses continue: 'He shall call for perdition, [11] And enter into burning fire. [12] Surely he was (erstwhile) joyful among his followers. [13] Surely he thought that he would never return, [14]' (al-Inshiqaq: 11-14). This is because they do not want to see their horrible misdeeds when they are given their Records. In this way the two verses are reconciled.

With regard to the verses: 'But anyone who is given his Record in his left hand will say, 'If only I had never been given any Record [25] and knew nothing of my Reckoning. [26] How I wish death had been the end of me. [27] My wealth has been no use to me, [28] and my power has vanished, [29]' (al-Haqqa: 25-29) you can feel the sad tone that shows their great sadness and regret. Nothing will stop this sad tone except the following Supreme, horrible Order:

ثُمَّ فِي سِلْسِلَةٍ ذَرْعُهَا سَبْعُونَ ذِرَاعًا فَٱسْلُكُوهُ ﴿٣٢﴾

Take him, put a collar on him [30] lead him to burn in the blazing Fire [31] and [bind him] in a chain seventy metres long [32] (The Quran, al-Haqqa: 30 - 32)

How horrible this situation is! Allah the Almighty will order the Angels to tie their hands or feet into their neck, then to drag them on their face. When they hear the Order, seventy thousand Angels will hasten to implement it. They will be tied by the heavy chains. How horrible this end is! After long waiting for Account, and for reading the Record which includes the misdeeds of disbelief and disobedience, Allah the Almighty issues this horrible verdict against them. They will hear it themselves, and see the Angels who hasten to implement it. The shackle is a piece of iron that gathers the hands to the neck to make them unable to move. This is another form of humiliation for them. In this connection He the Almighty says: 'These are they who disbelieve in their Lord, and these have chains on their necks, and they are the inmates of the fire; in it they shall abide,' (ar-Ra'd: 5). As for the word Asfad, it means the shackles of feet.

As for the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'Lead him to burn in the blazing Fire,' (al-Haqqa: 31) it means to drive them to the hellfire to taste its torture. The same meaning is repeated in His saying: 'Save him who will go to Hell,' (as-Saffat: 16) and 'None shall enter it but the most unhappy' (al-A'la: 15). The Arabic word Al-Jahim (hell) means the great fire. They were arrogant in front of people before, as they said that they lost their authority. On the Day of Judgment, they will be driven to the greatest fire so that their punishment will be from the same kind as their sin.

Then, Allah the Almighty says: 'And [bind him] in a chain seventy metres long' (al-Haqqa: 32). The chain consists of regular rings and its length is seventy cubits. Every cubit consists of seventy Ba's which is longer than the distance between Mecca and Kufa. The chain will be entered into their vent and come out from their nose so that they will not be able to stand on their feet. The chains are mentioned in many verses, as in His saying: 'Surely We have prepared for the unbelievers chains and shackles and a burning Fire,' (al-Insan: 4); and 'When the fetters and the chains shall be on their necks; they shall be dragged,' (Ghafir: 71).

Everything that is continuing after in a systematic way is said to be Musalsal (chained). The chain will surround their body from all sides so that they can never move, as if they are inside it.

إِنَّهُۥ كَانَ لَا يُؤْمِنُ بِٱللَّهِ ٱلْعَظِيمِ ﴿٣٣﴾ وَلَا يَحُضُّ عَلَىٰ طَعَامِ ٱلْمِسْكِينِ ﴿٣٤﴾

He would not believe in Almighty God [33]
he never encouraged feeding the hungry [34]
(The Quran, al-Haqqa: 33 - 34)

Such a disbeliever who will be given their Record in their left hand did not believe in the Oneness and the Greatness of Allah Glorified is He. He the Almighty does not wrong them, for they are punished because of their disbelief. He Glorified is He made injustice forbidden for Himself. It is as if He says to the keepers of hell, 'Take them to the hell as a recompense for their disbelief in Allah in the worldly life.'

These are the reasons for His Judgment, and the reasons are always mentioned after the judgment. For instance, when a judge delivers a verdict, there must be reasons for such a verdict, which represent the legal justifications for the punishment or innocence. A judge states that whereas such and such happened, then under the provisions of article such and such of such and such law, the verdict is such and such, i.e. whereas such and such happened, or did not happen, then such and such is the verdict. Hence, the reasons or the grounds of a verdict signify the judge's justifications for issuing it.

Now, regarding the one who is given their Record in their left hand, the reasons for chastising them is their disbelief in the Oneness and the Greatness of Allah the Almighty. Thus, they are punished in this way on account of their disbelief in Him Glorified is He in the worldly life.

However, why does Allah Glorified is He use His Most Beautiful Name ‘the Almighty’? Allah Glorified is He is the Almighty, and owing to His Almightiness, He bestowed some of His Attributes on His Creation. For example, the strong person has the power to help the weak, but Allah Glorified is He has the absolute Mighty Power. Moreover, Allah the Almighty grants His Creation out of His Wisdom, His Withholding, His Expansion and His Richness, but all the Beautiful Attributes belong to Him and are granted to us from Him. Unlike the human beings, His Attributes are intrinsic and eternal.

Out of His Greatness, all Grandeur belongs to Him. Knowing this, the people will not be arrogant to one another, and only the one who neglects this fact acts arrogantly. On the contrary, the one evoking the Greatness and Grandeur of Allah the Almighty is always humble and humiliates themselves at His Grandeur and feels ashamed of behaving arrogantly with other people. Had the disbelievers recalled the Greatness of their Lord, they would have believed in Him, His Oneness, His Right to be worshipped Alone and His Guidance to be followed. Their problem lies in their disbelief in Allah the Almighty and in His Existence. Even if they claimed they are Muslims, you find that they displease Him on account of disregarding His Greatness. Additionally, they do not have sympathy for the poor and the needy around them, just as they does not call the Greatness of Allah Glorified is He. The verse in question states: 'He never encouraged feeding the hungry,' (al-Haqqa: 34); and in another verse, He the Almighty describes such a people as: 'Nay! But you do not honor the orphan, [17] Nor do you urge one another to feed the poor, [18]' (al-Bayyina: 17-18). Neglecting the rights of the weak in one's money brings forth evil and bad consequences. On hearing that, the rich knew what they should do. Some people, however, said, 'We do not possess money to feed the poor.' It is as though the following verse specifically addresses them: 'Nor do you urge one another to feed the poor,' (al-Bayyina: 18). It shows them the way of giving, i.e. by urging others to give the poor. Thus, the one who does not have enough money to give the poor should urge the rich to give them. In fact, 'urging' contributes to this act of giving.

The heart of the one who does not believe in Allah the Almighty is dead, ruined, barren and devoid of faith and light. Further, it has no mercy towards the people, especially the poor people who are in a dire need for mercy. They neither pay attention to the needy people nor urge others to feed them, even though this is a social duty that the believers are commanded to do. Thus, abstaining from urging and exhorting one another to feed the poor is deemed evil and abhorrent. If the disbeliever had believed in Allah the Almighty recalled His Greatness, accepted Recompense as true, and had the reality of belief established in their heart, they would not have treated the orphan with harshness or disinclined to urge others to feed the poor.

The reality of belief in Allah Glorified is He and the Recompense is not mere lip service. Rather it changes one's heart, stimulating the person to do good to their fellow humans who are in need of care and protection. This inspires us to believe undoubtedly that feeding or urging others to feed the poor and caring for the needy are intimately related to belief in Allah, the Great, and certainty of His Oneness. They even forget that, in order that their money does not turn into a nemesis, they should feed the poor people or urge one another to feed them, since how could such money be blessed when it brings about evil on its owner.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says:

فَلَيْسَ لَهُ ٱلْيَوْمَ هَٰهُنَا حَمِيمٌ ﴿٣٥﴾ وَلَا طَعَامٌ إِلَّا مِنْ غِسْلِينٍ ﴿٣٦﴾
لَّا يَأْكُلُهُۥٓ إِلَّا ٱلْخَٰطِـُٔونَ ﴿٣٧﴾

So today he has no real friend here [35] and the only food he has is the filth [36] that only sinners eat [37]
(The Quran, al-Haqqa: 35 - 37)

Such a disbeliever neither believes in Allah the Almighty in the worldly life, nor do they urge others to feed the poor. They abandoned the people and did not help them at the time of their need. As they disbelieved in Him the Almighty how could they then find a helper? On the Day of Judgment, they will neither find Him Glorified is He on their side, nor will the people help them, even their own limbs will abandon them and bear witness against them. In the Hereafter, they will not be protected from Allah's punishment by even their intimate friend to whom they used to show affection and care and whom they protected from whatever affliction they had in the worldly life. So, they will have no friend to save them or experience the chastisement on their behalf. Therefore, they will have no good friend or relative to intercede for or benefit them, for on that Day a relative will flee from their own relative and the lover will flee from their beloved.

Even if they had a friend who used to help them and stand on their side in the worldly life, they will abandon them and be their enemies, a fact which is crystal clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'The friends shall on that day be enemies one to another, except those who guard (against evil),' (az-Zukhruf: 67). On the other hand, the righteous people spur one another to obedience and you find one of them saying to another, 'You used to encourage me to obey Allah, and you guided and reminded me when I was negligent.' So, love grows between them, whereas the disbelievers curse each other for deluding one another. When they meet, those who were friends for the sake of Allah the Almighty rejoice at each other, as they protected one another from disobedience. By contrast, the disbelievers who used to commit disobedience together curse each other. On the Day of Resurrection, they will find no one to rescue them from Allah's Chastisement, given that a relative will flee from their own relative and the lover will flee from their beloved.

Not only will they be deprived of friends and supporters, but they will also be deprived of food, except for 'the filth', as Allah Glorified is He says: 'And the only food he has is the filth,' (al-Haqqa: 36). The Arabic word Al-Ghisleen (filth) signifies the bloody rotten discharge of foul scum and filthy pus exuding from the bodies of the people of hell. They will have nothing else to feed on but this repugnant rotten waste. In this way, they will be afflicted by two calamities: having no helper and feeding on the bloody rotten discharge of foul scum and filthy pus exuding from their bodies, which is the worst and the filthiest food. Ibn 'Abbas may Allah be pleased with him said, 'Filth is what exudes from their veins and what melts from their bodies.'(1) Further, Ibn 'Abbas may Allah be pleased with him disclosed how appalling their food is, saying: 'Were a drop of this filth to fall on earth, it would spoil people's life.'(2)

In another verse, Allah the Almighty says: 'They shall have no food but of thorns [6] Which will neither fatten nor avail against hunger, [7]' (al-Ghashiya: 6-7). In the hellfire, there are trees similar to the thorns; they are more bitter than aloe and more rotten than a corpse. This is the most evil and the most repugnant food. Moreover, when they have to eat it, it chokes them, as stated in His saying: 'Surely, with Us are heavy fetters and a flaming Fire, [12] And food that chokes and a painful punishment, [13]' (al-Muzzammil: 12-13). Hence, whether this food is filth, thorn or Zaqqum, it can barely be swallowed; it chokes and blocks their throats. This is because such food is extremely repulsive and revolting, even to the animals, so how can a human being eat it? Then, Allah Glorified is He says: ‘That only sinners eat,’ (al-Haqqa: 37). This food is especially prepared for and restricted to the sinners who used to commit sins intentionally. Those who deliberately commit sins and acts of disobedience will not be showered with Allah’s Mercy and Forgiveness because they used to commit such misdeeds openly and blatantly. In this regard, Prophet Muhammad Allah’s peace and blessings be upon him said, ‘Every one of my followers will be forgiven except those who expose (openly) their wrongdoings.’(1) The wrongdoers are also those who disbelieved in Allah the Almighty and ascribed partners to Him.

(1) In his Tafsir, As-Samarqandi relates this narration on the authority of Ibn 'Abbas Allah be pleased with him. See As-Samarqandi, Bahr Al-'Ulum, 3/491.

(2) In his Tafsir, Al-Wahidi narrates this narration on the authority of Mujahid ibn Jabr. See Al-Wahidi An-Naysaburi, Al-Wasit Fi Tafsir Al-Quran Al-Majid, 4/348.

The Arabic word Khahti’ (wrongdoer) is an active participle of the verb ‘to do wrong’ which means to do something wrong deliberately, whereas the Mukhti’ (mistaken) is the one who intends to do the good but does evil unintentionally. This can be inferred from the saying of Allah the Almighty: '…and there is no blame on you concerning that in which you made a mistake…' (al-Ahzab: 5). This verse shows that there is no blame on one concerning that in which they made a mistake unintentionally, while their true intention was to do good. However, the wrongdoers rebel against Allah Glorified is He, reject His Way of Guidance and place obstacles in the way of applying His Shari’a. Therefore, they turn away from Truth. He Glorified is He describes those rebellious people, saying: 'Pharaoh, too, and those before him, and the ruined cities: these people committed grave sins’ (al-Haqqa: 9). This means that they committed sins and acts of disobedience or that they were evil.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says:

(1) In his book, Al-Bazzar (d. 292) narrates this Hadith on the authority of Abu Hurayra with the ending: '...and an example of such disclosure is one who commits a sin in secret, then publicises it.' It is also narrated by Al-Khara’iti on the authority of Ibn 'Umar Allah be pleased with him with a slightly different wording. See Al-Bazzar, Musnad, Hadith no. 8096; and Al-Khara'iti, Makarim Al-Akhlaq, Hadith no. 403.

فَلَآ أُقۡسِمُ بِمَا تُبۡصِرُونَ ﴿٣٨﴾ وَمَا لَا تُبۡصِرُونَ ﴿٣٩﴾

So I swear by what you can see [38] and by what you cannot see [39]
(The Quran, al-Haqqa: 38 - 39)

Allah Glorified is He swears by the seen as well as the unseen things which are veiled from us. Allah Glorified is He swears by that which we can see of His excellent and perfect creation as an evidence of His Absolute Omnipotence, Greatness and Perfection. The Arabic word La (no) in this verse does not denote negation; rather, it affirms the oath. That this fact is so lucidly clear that it needs no oath, but if He the Almighty were to take an oath, He would swear by such and such. The oath here encompasses what we see and what we do not see. What we can see refers to the worldly life, while what we cannot see refers to the Hereafter. It could also mean all what is visible and invisible in the heavens and the earth. Another possible interpretation is that the seen things refer to the physical beings and the unseen ones refer to the spirits. Further, what we can see may refer to the human beings and what we do not see are the Jinn and the Angels. Allah states:

إِنَّهُۥ لَقَوۡلُ رَسُولٖ كَرِيمٖ ﴿٤٠﴾ وَمَا هُوَ بِقَوۡلِ شَاعِرٖۚ قَلِيلٗا مَّا تُؤۡمِنُونَ ﴿٤١﴾
وَلَا بِقَوۡلِ كَاهِنٖۚ قَلِيلٗا مَّا تَذَكَّرُونَ ﴿٤٢﴾

This [Quran] is the speech of an honoured messenger [40] not the words of a poet – how little you believe! [41]
nor the words of a soothsayer – how little you reflect! [42]
(The Quran, al-Haqqa: 40 - 42)

The saying of Allah the Almighty: 'This [Quran] is the speech of an honoured messenger,' (al-Haqqa: 40), is mentioned twice in the Quran: in the chapter in question, referring to Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him and in the chapter of at-Takwir: 'This is the speech of a noble messenger, [19] who possesses great strength and is held in honour by the Lord of the Throne [20] he is obeyed there and worthy of trust, [21]' (at-Takwir: 19-21) in which the word 'messenger' refers to the Archangel Jibril (Gabriel) Allah's peace be upon him. Thus, the Messenger is sometimes from mankind, and at other times from the Angels, and in both cases his duty is but to clearly convey the Message, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: '…and nothing rests on the Messenger but clear delivering (of the Message)' (an-Nur: 54). Neither did the Archangel Jibril (Gabriel) Allah's peace be upon him nor Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him contrive the Quran. Rather, it was revealed from Allah the Almighty with truth, without their interfering in it. So, Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him recited and conveyed the Quran from Allah the Almighty but has absolutely no hand in it.

Hence, this Quran is the Divine Speech brought by a messenger honoured by Allah, i.e. Jibril (Gabriel). However, when it is said that it is the word of an honoured Messenger, then it refers to Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him. The honoured messenger is the one worthy of regard with Allah the Almighty. His saying: 'This [Quran] is the speech of an honoured Messenger,' (al-Haqqa: 40) represents a response to the oath in His saying: 'So I swear by what you can see [38] and by what you cannot see [39]' (al-Haqqa: 38-39).

Regarding the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'Not the words of a poet…' (al-Jathiya: 41), they claimed that Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him was a poet. Had such a claim been leveled by others who do not know him Allah's peace and blessings be upon him or by those who are not acquainted with eloquence and rhetoric, it would have been acceptable, given that the people of Mecca knew poetry, prose, oratory and writing. This is why we find some of them, with a fairly pure nature, saying that it can never be the word of a poet. Surprisingly, the disbelievers of Mecca accused him Allah's peace and blessings be upon him of being a poet, for they were people of eloquence, oratory and rhetoric. They were highly experienced in distinguishing the good styles with rhythmic patterns that they used to assign markets solely for poetry, such as Dhu Al-Majaz, Dhu Al-Majanna and 'Ukazh, and hung the best of their poems on the curtains of Ka'ba, yet they could not distinguish between poetry and the Quranic style!

In fact, they knew the difference very well, but they labeled him as a poet for a certain purpose stated in the following verse: 'Or do they say: A poet, we wait for him the evil accidents of time,' (al-Jathiya: 30). With 'poetry', they meant the sweet words which attract attention and arouse emotions. Allah Glorified is He decided on this matter, saying: 'And We have not taught him poetry, nor is it meet for him; it is nothing but a reminder and a plain Quran,' (Ya Sin: 69). He Glorified is He did not teach Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him poetry, nor should he have learnt it. But what is the reason for this? This is because the Arabs know that the best of poetry is the most filled with lies. So, He the Almighty wants to inform the people that even though he Allah's peace and blessings be upon him is not experienced in rhetoric and literary styles, he surprises the entire world with the best of all rhetorical styles, declaring it to be from Allah Glorified is He.

Further, he Allah's peace and blessings be upon him lived among them for a long period, but no one had ever heard him composing poetry. Therefore, everything he brought was revealed from Allah the Almighty and should not be attributed to him Allah's peace and blessings be upon him.

Regarding His saying: 'And We have not taught him poetry, nor is it meet for him; it is nothing but a reminder and a plain Quran,' (Ya Sin: 69) it means that learning poetry is not befitting for him Allah's peace and blessings be upon him though he was qualified to do so, and Allah Glorified is He could have taught him poetry and rhetoric styles. For this reason, when some people alleged that the Quran is Prophet Muhammad's own words, Allah Glorified is He tells him to reply to them, saying: 'Indeed I have lived a lifetime among you before it; do you not then understand?' (Yunus: 16) He Allah's peace and blessings be upon him lived among the people of Mecca for forty years during which he did not compose a single verse of poetry.

Furthermore, Allah Glorified is He did not want him Allah's peace and blessings be upon him to be a poet. In this regard, we should note that there is a distinction between negating one's ability to do a certain action and negating the fact that it is befitting for them. When Allah Glorified is He affirms that he Allah's peace and blessings be upon him is not a poet and is not intended to be so, one may think that he Allah's peace and blessings be upon him cannot compose poetry due to lacking the required tools, such as the linguistic skills, sensibility, etc. However, Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him can compose it, but it is not befitting for him to do so. As poetry is based on imagination, Allah Glorified is He kept him Allah's peace and blessings be upon him from it in order for people not to think that what was revealed to him was merely poetic imaginations. Yet, his nature was not too respectable to compose it; rather, he was extremely delicate and sensitive.

Regarding the saying of Allah the Almighty: '…how little you believe,' (al-Haqqa: 41), it means that they did not believe at all, for this style is used in Arabic to indicate that something does not happen at all. Another possible interpretation is that they swiftly go back to disbelief after embracing Islam. Little do they believe in the Quran and its Divine Authorship! The Arabic particle Ma in the verse is, perhaps, used to utterly negate their faith. However, it may be a verbal noun describing their faith as little.

Then, Allah Glorified is He states: 'Nor the words of a soothsayer– how little you reflect!' (al-Haqqa: 42) The Quran is neither the words of a poet nor that of a soothsayer. This is because the devils inspire the soothsayers to be evil and misleading, whilst Allah the Almighty has purified and guarded the Quran against soothsaying. So, Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him is neither a soothsayer, nor is the Quran inspired from soothsaying. A soothsayer is the one who forges lies and alleges that he can foresee the future. It is the astrologer who tells the people about certain things which are mostly untrue and claims to be able to guide the people to their lost properties and unseen things; they are paid for that. They claim to be informed by the Jinn, and may resort to astrology, the zodiac or astronomical calculations.

The Glorious Quran has nothing to do with soothsaying composed in a rhymed prose which the people of Mecca were familiar with. We should also note that Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him forbade such rhymed prose.(1) 'Utba ibn Rabi'a may Allah be pleased with him said, 'By Allah, I heard the soothsaying, poetry and eloquent speeches, but found nothing comparable to the Quran.' In addition, Allah the Almighty states in another verse: 'Therefore continue to remind, for by the grace of your Lord, you are not a soothsayer or a madman' (at-Tur: 29). So, Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him has nothing to do with soothsaying, which entails fortune-telling and claiming to know the unseen. It used to allure people with the little of truth and the much of falsehood which they forged to mislead them thereby. They were highly influential and the people used to consult them in all their religious and mundane affairs.

(1) Saj' Al-Kuhhan refers to highly structured and alliterated styles of language intended to attract attention. See Al-Qamus Al-Fiqhi, 1/326.

As for the saying of Allah the Almighty: '…how little you reflect,' (al-Haqqa: 42), it means that they hardly mind or receive admonition. This Quranic phrase is mentioned in many verses in the Quran. For example, He the Almighty says: 'Follow what has been revealed to you from your Lord and do not follow guardians besides Him, how little do you mind,' (al-A'raf: 3); and 'Or, Who answers the distressed one when he calls upon Him and removes the evil, and He will make you successors in the earth. Is there a god with Allah? Little is it that you mind!' (an-Naml: 62) If they thought and reflected, they would know that Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him is neither a poet nor a soothsayer, and that what he brought from Allah the Almighty is not poetry nor the rhymed prose of the soothsayers, but rather, it is as what Allah the Almighty says afterwards:

تَنزِيلٌ مِّن رَّبِّ ٱلْعَٰلَمِينَ ﴿٤٣﴾

This [Quran] is a message sent down from the Lord of the Worlds [43] (The Quran, al-Haqqa: 43)

In fact, the Quran is a revelation from the Almighty, the All Wise. 'Sending down' here denotes consecutive revelation of parts of the Quran. This is because it was sent down in its entirety to the lower heaven, and then was revealed gradually by the Angel Jibril (Gabriel) Allah's peace be upon him to Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him. Allah Glorified is He revealed it consecutively, verse after verse, so that one of its noble verses may be received by a pure heart, and then instills belief in it. Not only the Quran but also all the previous Scripture were revealed from Allah, the Lord of the worlds. These previous Scriptures brought forth the laws of a specific Messenger, but they were not the miracles attesting to the truth of what they communicated from Allah the Almighty. By contrast, the Quran is the Way of Guidance as well as the miracle of Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him. All the Arabic derivatives of the word 'sending down' suggest that it came from a higher to a lower place, as though you receive something from a higher authority, and that is why no one should seek any other authority.

In this verse, Allah the Almighty says: 'This [Quran] is a message sent down from the Lord of the Worlds,' (al-Haqqa: 43). As Allah Glorified is He is the Lord of the worlds, the entire universe belongs to Him and nothing goes beyond His Control, so let the people be assured in this worldly life that their Lord has not created them in vain, nor has He left them without aim, since He sent down to them a guidance to lead them to the Path of Truth.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He states:

وَلَوۡ تَقَوَّلَ عَلَيۡنَا بَعۡضَ ٱلۡأَقَاوِيلِ ﴿٤٤﴾ لَأَخَذۡنَا مِنۡهُ بِٱلۡيَمِينِ ﴿٤٥﴾
ثُمَّ لَقَطَعۡنَا مِنۡهُ ٱلۡوَتِينَ ﴿٤٦﴾ فَمَا مِنكُم مِّنۡ أَحَدٍ عَنۡهُ حَٰجِزِينَ ﴿٤٧﴾

If [the Prophet] had attributed some fabrication to Us [44]
We would certainly have seized his right hand [45] and cut off his lifeblood [46] and none of you could have defended him [47] (The Quran, al-Haqqa: 44 - 47)

This is a threat and a warning to Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him. Had the Quran been made up by him, he would not have included this verse. Yet, it is a revelation from Allah Glorified is He and he Allah's peace and blessings be upon him did not conceal a single letter thereof, as it is sent down from the Lord of the Worlds. He Allah's peace and blessings be upon him was endowed with absolute honesty and truthfulness, and that is why he did not conceal anything of the revelation. His people should have thought of this aspect of his character and reflected upon his truthfulness when he told them about personal matters which they did not know. Is this not a conclusive proof of his truthfulness?

Therefore, be assured that the Book within your hands is the Words of Allah the Almighty revealed from the Preserved Tablet which Allah Glorified is He describes as: '…a book that is protected [78] None shall touch it save the purified ones, [79]' (at-Talaq: 78-79). Then, the Trustworthy Spirit, i.e. Jibril (Gabriel), brought it down. As he is trustworthy, he made no changes in it.

Afterwards, it was brought down upon the heart of Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him about whom, He Glorified is He says here: 'If [the Prophet] had attributed some fabrication to Us, [44] We would certainly have seized his right hand [45]' (al-Haqqa: 44-45).

Hence, the Quran is guarded in the Preserved Tablet, was preserved through the honesty of the Archangel Jibril (Gabriel) Allah's peace be upon him who brought it down from heaven, and through Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him. So, no one has the right to question the authenticity of the Quran because it has been divinely preserved in all possible ways. Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him could have concealed the verses wherein Allah the Almighty admonishes him, such as His saying: 'O Prophet! Why do you forbid (yourself) that which Allah has made lawful for you; you seek to please your wives; and Allah is All Forgiving, All Merciful,' (at-Tahrim: 1) and 'Allah pardon you! Why did you give them leave…' (at-Tawba: 43). Nevertheless, he was honest in communicating what was revealed to him. Thus, the Quran we have today is the same as it was revealed from Allah the Almighty and not a single letter of it has been changed. It will remain preserved under Allah's Care until the Day of Judgment.

As for the saying of Allah Glorified is He: 'If [the Prophet] had attributed some fabrication to Us,' (al-Haqqa: 44), 'to fabricate' means for him Allah's peace and blessings be upon him to bring something from his own accord which was not revealed to him, nor was he permitted to communicate, something which never happened. Had he made up a single word from himself which was not revealed to him, Allah the Almighty would have seized him by the Right Hand, i.e. with Power and Might, as the 'right hand' for Arabs is stronger than the left one. However, both of the Hands of my Lord are Right and Blessed, but He gave this symbol to help us understand the meaning. 'Fabrications' refer to the forged lies which cannot be anything more than untruthful sayings. In the chapter of at-Tur, Allah Glorified is He states: 'Or do they say: He has forged it. Nay! They do not believe' (at-Tur: 33).

The disbelievers accused Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him of forging and making up the Quran. But if he had forged it, why did they not bring an announcement like it? If it were poetry, then they were more knowledgeable and experienced in composing it, and if it were soothsaying, then they knew it as well! Thus, Allah Glorified is He challenges them, saying: 'Then let them bring an announcement like it if they are truthful' (at-Tur: 34). They should know then that he Allah's peace and blessings be upon him cannot make up anything that was not revealed to him in the Quran; otherwise Allah Glorified is He would have rightfully taken him with power and might, that is, taking revenge from him.

As for the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'And cut off his lifeblood,' (al-Haqqa: 46) it means that no one would be able to defend Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him should He the Almighty want to seize him with power or cut off his lifeblood because this is not within the ability of anyone. One may ask, 'Why is it that Allah Glorified is He says: 'None of you…' (al-Haqqa: 47), in the singular, then follows it by the plural form: '…could have defended him,' (al-Haqqa: 47)? We answer, 'He the Almighty says: '…could have defended him,' (al-Haqqa: 47) in the plural form because it is a description of 'none,' considering the general meaning, that is, if there are many individuals, since 'none' in Arabic refers to singular, dual and plural.' In fact, there is no one, however powerful or mighty they are, that could have withheld or prevented Him the Almighty from punishing him Allah's peace and blessings be upon him if he had forged anything in the Quran. The word 'none' here indicates affirmation, i.e. not any one person, whoever they are.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He states:

وَإِنَّهُۥ لَتَذْكِرَةٌ لِّلْمُتَّقِينَ ﴿٤٨﴾ وَإِنَّا لَنَعْلَمُ أَنَّ مِنكُم مُّكَذِّبِينَ ﴿٤٩﴾
وَإِنَّهُۥ لَحَسْرَةٌ عَلَى ٱلْكَٰفِرِينَ ﴿٥٠﴾ وَإِنَّهُۥ لَحَقُّ ٱلْيَقِينِ ﴿٥١﴾

This [Quran] is a reminder for those who are aware of God [48] We know that some of you consider it to be lies [49] this will be a source of bitter regret for the disbelievers [50] but it is in fact the certain Truth [51] (The Quran, al-Haqqa: 48 - 51)

The Noble Quran is neither poetry nor the words of soothsaying; it is rather: '…a message sent down from the Lord of the Worlds' (al-Haqqa: 43). It was not revealed purposelessly or just for recitation or narratives; rather, it is surely a reminder. That is why Allah Glorified is He says: 'This [Quran] is a reminder for those who are aware of Allah' (al-Haqqa: 48). 'Nay! It is surely an admonition. [54] So whoever pleases may mind it, [55]' (al-Muddaththir: 54-55) and 'We have not revealed the Quran to you that you may be unsuccessful. [2] Nay, it is a reminder to him who fears [3]' (Ta Ha: 2-3).

This guides us to the purpose and wisdom behind the revelation of the Quran. Allah Glorified is He did not send it down to Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him to distress him; rather, He revealed it as a reminder and admonition for those are fearful and mindful of Him Glorified is He. Hence, the Quran is a reminder for the pious people. He Glorified is He affirms this fact using the particle Inna and the letter Lam, both of which denote emphatic affirmation. It is a reminder for the pious people who stand in awe of their Lord and fear His chastisement. Whether it is a glad tiding or a warning, the admonition affects them and they respond to it; that is why He the Almighty says: 'And continue to remind, for surely the reminder profits the believers' (adh-Dhariyat: 55). Reminders and admonitions remind the pious people who safeguard themselves against His punishment by observing the obligations and abstaining from the prohibitions. Thus, they protect themselves from Allah's punishment by being obedient to Him.

As for the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'We know that some of you consider it to be lies,' (al-Haqqa: 49). Allah Glorified is He uses again the particle Inna and the letter lam, both of which denote emphatic affirmation. He the Almighty does not only know those who disbelieve publicly and blatantly, but also those who harbour disbelief and rejection secretly in their hearts. They disbelieved in Allah Glorified is He and in the Hereafter; otherwise they would have believed and followed Allah's Guidance. This is a threat and a warning to the disbelievers that He Glorified is He knows those who reject the Quran despite being miraculous, calling it poetry, soothsaying and legends of the former peoples; such are the ones who lie about Him the Almighty. Some scholars maintain that the phrase '…some of you…' (al-Haqqa: 49), in the verse under discussion: 'We know that some of you consider it to be lies,' (al-Haqqa: 49), refers to the Muslims, suggesting that those rejecters were among them, namely, the hypocrites. However, the chapter of al-Haqqa was revealed before Hijra, and there were no hypocrites at that time. Thus, the phrase: '…some of you…' (al-Haqqa: 49) does not imply that they were among the believers or the pious, but it refers to the people of Mecca.

As for the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'This will be a source of bitter regret for the disbelievers,' (al-Haqqa: 50) the word 'this' refers to their disbelief inferred from the previous verse. However, the demonstrative pronoun 'this' in His saying: 'This [Quran] is a reminder for those who are aware of Allah,' (al-Haqqa: 48) refers to the Quran revealed to Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him from Allah, the Lord of the worlds. In the verse in question, He the Almighty uses the same linguistic tools for emphatic affirmation. 'Regret' signifies pain in one's heart that one only feels when a misfortune, from which there is no deliverance, befalls him/her, as He Glorified is He says: 'And those who followed shall say: Had there been for us a return, then we would renounce them as they have renounced us. Thus will Allah show them their deeds to be intense regret to them, and they shall not come forth from the Fire,' (al-Baqara: 67).

The one who loses his/her worldly life and the Hereafter by disbelieving in Allah the Almighty and rejecting Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him and the Noble Quran, lives in grief and pain for what they have lost in the worldly life. Moreover, on seeing the punishment in the Hereafter, it will be their greatest grief and their bitterest regret, but it will be too late for them to repent. In this regard, He Glorified is He states: 'They are losers indeed who reject the meeting of Allah; until when the hour comes upon them all of a sudden they shall say: O our grief for our neglecting it! And they shall bear their burdens on their backs; now surely evil is that which they bear' (al-A'raf: 31). Unable to stifle their grief, they say, 'O our grief for our negligence, heedlessness and extravagance in our affairs.' Therefore, disbelief in Allah Glorified is He and the Quran, revealed to Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him will be a source of bitter regret to the disbelievers because they will find what they rejected right before their eyes, and He the Almighty will punish them for their rejection and disbelief.

Then, Allah Glorified is He states: 'But it is in fact the certain Truth' (al-Haqqa: 51). The certain Truth will come to pass when the disbeliever enters the hellfire and feels its heat, as He the Almighty says: 'And if he is one of the rejecters, the erring ones, [92] He shall have an entertainment of boiling water, [93] And burning in Hell. [94] Most surely this is the certain Truth. [95] Therefore glorify the name of your Lord, the Great [96]' (at-Talaq: 92-96). Additionally, we have the 'certain knowledge', i.e. perceiving the abstract image of hellfire, and the 'eye of certainty' in the Hereafter when we pass on the Sirat (bridge set over hellfire) and see hellfire with our own eyes. As for the ‘certain truth’, it comes when the disbelievers are thrown into hellfire, experience it and taste its heat and flames. The ‘certain truth’ is that which entertains no doubt. The word 'certain' is a modifier of the word 'truth' and denotes emphatic affirmation. There is no doubt that the Quran is revealed from Allah the Almighty; this is certainly true.

At the end of the chapter, Allah Glorified is He says:

فَسَبِّحۡ بِٱسۡمِ رَبِّكَ ٱلۡعَظِيمِ ﴿٥٢﴾

So [Prophet] glorify the name of your Lord, the Almighty [52] (The Quran, al-Haqqa: 52)

Glorify and highly exalt Him the Almighty above having a partner in the affairs of creation and for being the Great in His Omnipotence, His Mercy, His Wisdom, His Self-subsistence, His Rewards and His Recompense.

al-Ma'arij

In the Name of God, the Most Merciful, the Dispenser of Mercy

The chapter of al-Ma'arij (1).

Allah Glorified is He states:

سَأَلَ سَآئِلُۢ بِعَذَابٖ وَاقِعٖ ۝١ لِّلۡكَٰفِرِينَ لَيۡسَ لَهُۥ دَافِعٞ ۝٢

A man [mockingly] demanded the punishment [1]
It will fall on the disbelievers — none can deflect it [2]

An-Nadr ibn Al-Harith, one of the disbelievers of Mecca, demanded that a chastisement befall him and his people. When Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him warned them against Allah's punishment, he, i.e. An-Nadr ibn Al-Harith said with ridicule and mockery: 'O Allah! If this is the truth from You, then rain upon us stones from heaven or inflict on us a painful punishment' (al-Anfal: 32). Completely failing and incapacitated, they said, 'If the Quran is the truth from you, then rain upon us stones from heaven or inflict on us a painful punishment.' Is this demand not a clear proof of their stupidity?! Had they had good understanding, logic and intellect, they would have asked for guidance, instead of foolishly invoking death and punishment. Such is the supplication of a brainless, for if they had reason, they would have said, 'O Lord, if this is the truth from You, then guide us to it or let us believe in it.' Due to their excessive grudge and misguidance, they wished for punishment rather than belief in the Truth, and this reveals how brainless they are. Had Allah Glorified is He responded to their supplication, it would have brought about bad consequences. Among those who uttered this supplication were: Al-'As ibn Wa'il As-Sahmi, Al-Aswad ibn 'Abd Al-Muttalib and Al-Aswad ibn ‘Abd Yahud. They were firstly confused when they accused him Allah’s peace be upon him of being a sorcerer, and again when they said that the Quran is mere poetry, whereas it is not. Additionally, they tried to accuse him Allah’s peace and blessings be upon him of insanity to discredit the Quran, and thereby reject it. Moreover, they accused him of being a soothsayer, but this was also of no avail. Consequently, with disturbed minds, they invoked Allah the Almighty to inflict His Chastisement upon them, saying: ‘O our Lord! Hasten on to us our portion before the Day of Reckoning,’ (Sad: 16). This portion is the recompense for the deeds, i.e. they said with ridicule and mockery, ‘O our Lord! Hasten on to us our portion of chastisement with which you threaten us, and do not defer it until the Day of Reckoning.’

(1) The chapter of al-Ma'arij is the seventieth, according to the order of the chapters in the Mushaf, with 44 verses. It was revealed after the chapter of al-Haqqa in Mecca, and thereby it is agreed on that it is a Meccan chapter. See Al-Qurtubi*, Jame' Ahkam Al-Quran, 18/278.*

Regarding the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘It will fall on the disbelievers– none can deflect it,’ (al-Ma’arij: 1) it means that a chastisement will inevitably befall them. It is a punishment which is especially prepared for the disbelievers, and will not affect the believers. The letter lam prefixed to the Arabic word Kafirin (disbelievers) conveys the meaning of the preposition ‘on’ which denotes that the chastisement will be inflicted on the disbelievers. Further, no one will be able to prevent or ward it off, and no one from them will avert it.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He states:

مِّنَ ٱللَّهِ ذِى ٱلْمَعَارِجِ ﴿٣﴾ تَعْرُجُ ٱلْمَلَٰٓئِكَةُ
وَٱلرُّوحُ إِلَيْهِ فِى يَوْمٍ كَانَ مِقْدَارُهُۥ خَمْسِينَ أَلْفَ سَنَةٍ ﴿٤﴾

From God, the Lord of the Ways of Ascent [3] by which the angels and the Spirit ascend to Him, on a Day whose length is fifty thousand years [4] (The Quran, al-Ma’arij: 3 - 4)

This chastisement is to be inflicted on the disbelievers by Allah, the Lord of the Ways of Ascent, which are the stairways through which the Angels rise from one heaven to another. So, they are ascents through which the Angels move between the heavens. This is like the verse wherein Allah Glorified is He says: ‘…and the stairs by which they ascend,’ (az-Zukhruf: 33). His saying here: ‘From Allah, the Lord of the Ways of Ascent, [3] by which the Angels and the Spirit ascend to Him...[4]’ (al-Ma’arij: 3-4), arouses fear and awe in the hearts of the disbelievers, since all the creatures are under His Control, and among these creatures are the Angels who ascend to Him by the Ways of Ascent.

The saying of Allah the Almighty: '…and the Spirit…' (al-Ma'arij: 4) refers to the Archangel Jibril (Gabriel) Allah's peace be upon him. Allah Glorified is He mentions him specifically after the Angels because mentioning the specific after the general gives it more significance and distinction.

We should note that the Angels ascend to Him Glorified is He in the same way as the souls of the humans ascend to Him at the time of death. The pronoun Ha' (Him) suffixed to the Arabic word Ilayhi (to Him) refers to Allah Glorified is He. Some exegetes, however, believe this pronoun refers to the place where none has dominion except Him the Almighty so He made their ascension to this place as if it is ascension to Him. Similarly, Prophet Ibrahim (Abraham) Allah's peace be upon him said: 'I will go [where I am ordered by] my Lord' (as-Saffat: 99); this means that he Allah's peace be upon him will go to the place ordained by his Lord.

To know what is intended by the word 'Day' in the verse: 'By which the Angels and the Spirit ascend to Him, on a Day whose length is fifty thousand years,' (al-Ma'arij: 4), we should pay attention to the other verse where Allah Glorified is He says: 'And they ask you to hasten on the punishment, and Allah will by no means fail in His promise, and surely a day with your Lord is as a thousand years of what you can number' (al-Hajj: 47). He Glorified is He is the Creator of time, therefore He can create a day with a span of only one hour, a day with a span of twenty four hours such as the days of this worldly life, a day with a span of a thousand years, a day with a span of fifty thousand years and a day with a span of million years because everything is subject to Allah's Will. Time is multiple and variable, and differs according to the unit of measurement, and changes from one planet to another. Thus, what Allah the Almighty reveals about time in the Quran suggests difference rather than contradiction.

When speaking of ascension, Allah Glorified is He explains that it is on a Day whose measure is fifty thousand years, but He Glorified is He may shorten this period to a Day whose measure is a thousand years, as in His saying: 'He regulates the affair from the heaven to the earth; then shall it ascend to Him in a day the measure of which is a thousand years of what you count,' (as-Sajda: 5).

This is because the time on the Day of Judgment slows down so that the disbelievers find it extremely prolonged and fatiguing, to the extent that they wish to leave it even if they would go to hellfire.

Similarly, living in luxury shortens time that one feels it passing in the blink of an eye. When asked about the span of the Day in the verse: 'To Him ascend the angels and the Spirit in a day the measure of which is fifty thousand years,' (al-Ma'arij: 4) Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him said, 'By Him in Whose Hand my soul is! It is lightened to the believer until it becomes shorter than the time during which he used to perform prescribed prayer in the worldly life.'(1)

As for the believer, the Day of Judgment is lighter than performing a prescribed prayer in the worldly life, as if it is a quarter of an hour. By contrast, it is as fifty thousand years for the disbeliever. One may ask, 'Do the Angels need fifty thousand years to ascend to their Lord?' Scholars said that this period of time is considered one day according to the Angelic counting, whereas it is as long as fifty thousand years of what we count. In other words, it takes the humans fifty thousand years to do what the Angels do in one day.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He states:

فَٱصْبِرْ صَبْرًا جَمِيلًا ﴿٥﴾ إِنَّهُمْ يَرَوْنَهُۥ بَعِيدًا ﴿٦﴾ وَنَرَىٰهُ قَرِيبًا ﴿٧﴾

So be patient, [Prophet], as befits you [5]
The disbelievers think it is distant [6]
but We know it to be close [7]
(The Quran, al-Ma'arij: 5 - 7)

Allah Glorified is He orders Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him to be graciously patient and endure what the disbelievers inflict on him of harm, and not to let it divert or inhibit him from conveying the

(1) This Hadith is narrated on the authority of Abu Sa'id Al-Khudri Allah be pleased with him. In his Tafsir, Ibn Kathir narrates it from the narration of Imam Ahmad on the authority of Abu Sa'id Al-Khudri as well. In his Tafsir, As-Suyuti attributes it to Ahmad, Abu Y'ala, Ibn Jarir, Ibn Hibban and Al-Baihaqi in Al-Ba'th Wa An-Nushur, all on the authority of Abu Sa'id Al-Khudri. See Ath-Tha'labi, Al-Kashf Wa Al-Bayan, 10/36; Ibn Kathir, Tafsir Al-Quran Al-'Azhim, 6/107; and As-Suyuti, Ad-Durr Al-Manthur, 8/280.

Message of his Lord. It is as if He the Almighty says to him, 'Be patient, as befits you; do not rush or hasten. You should also endure their mocking and stubborn demand of the chastisement which will for sure befall them.' Their demand indicates that they deem the Day of Judgment and the punishment befalling them therein far-fetched. Hence, He the Almighty says: 'It will fall on the disbelievers--none can deflect it,' (al-Ma'arij: 2).

It is He the Almighty Who will inflict them with this chastisement on a severe Day prolonged to the disbelievers. 'Gracious patience' is also mentioned when speaking of Prophet Jacob Allah's peace be upon him as he said to his sons: 'Nay, your souls have made the matter light for you, but patience is good…' (Yusuf: 18). However, patience is always painful, so how could it be good? It is so when it is devoid of complaining and impatience. There is also gracious avoidance which entails no backbiting, gossip or dispute, as stated in Allah's saying: 'And bear patiently what they say and avoid them with a becoming avoidance,' (al-Muddaththir: 10).

Allah Glorified is He orders Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him to be patient with his people in many verses, as in His saying: 'Bear then patiently what they say, and glorify your Lord by the praising of Him before the rising of the sun and before its setting…' (Ta Ha: 130); and 'Bear patiently what they say, and remember Our servant David, the possessor of power; surely he was frequent returning (to Allah)' (Sad: 17). He Allah's peace and blessings be upon him is ordered to be patient and to glorify Allah Glorified is He as though his exaltation and glorification of Allah the Almighty make his patience gracious because when he glorifies Allah Glorified is He, he does not regard their rejection and false accusations, but only considers Allah, thereby glorifying and exalting Him.

Then, Allah Glorified is He speaks of the Day of Judgment and the punishment befalling the disbelievers, which they mockingly demanded and could not wait for because they thought it to be far off. This does not mean that they believe it will happen in the distant future; rather, they deemed it implausible and unlikely to take place. So, the verse indicates their disbelief and outright rejection from the outset. Accordingly, He the Almighty says: 'The disbelievers think it is distant, [6] but We know it to be close, [7]' (al-Ma'arij: 6-7). It will happen and take place without doubt. They deem it unbelievable, whilst He the Almighty sees it impending, and therefore it is soon to come. On the other hand, those who reject it find it as far as possible, but the true believers should firmly believe it will be near.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He tells us of the horrors of the Day of Judgment, stating:

وَلَا يَسْـَٔلُ حَمِيمٌ حَمِيمًا ﴿١٠﴾

On a Day when the heavens will be like molten brass [8] and the mountains like tufts of wool [9] when no friend will ask about his friend [10] (The Quran, al-Ma'arij: 8 - 10)

As for the saying of Allah Glorified is He: 'On a Day when the heavens will be like molten brass,' (al-Ma'arij: 8), it means that, on the Day of Judgment, the heaven will burst and split asunder, with its colour changing from blue to red. The Arabic word Al-Muhl (molten brass) refers to the murky oil at the bottom of its container, or the molten metal such as copper, lead and iron. The Quran affirms that these major universal events will occur on that Day extending for fifty thousand years. Due to these events, the settings of the planets, stars and galaxies as well as their rings will be displaced.

Regarding the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'And the mountains like tufts of wool, (al-Ma'arij: 9) it means that the mountains will be like carded wool, as stated in His saying: 'And the mountains shall be as loosened wool' (al-Qari`a: 5). They will be blasted and scattered as carded wool. After being hard and mighty, they will turn into this condition on the Day of Judgment, as though they have not existed.

As for the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'When no friend will ask about his friend,' (al-Ma'arij: 10), it means that one will have no friends or relatives to defend or feel sorry for them. Rather, they will flee and turn away from them, being defenceless themselves. Everyone will be only concerned with them; no one will ask about their friend or relative, even if they see them in the worst condition. They cannot even utter a single word to ask about their conditions owing to the horror and severity of that Day. Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He states:

يُبَصَّرُونَهُمْ ۚ يَوَدُّ ٱلْمُجْرِمُ لَوْ يَفْتَدِى مِنْ عَذَابِ يَوْمِئِذٍۭ بِبَنِيهِ ﴿١١﴾
وَصَٰحِبَتِهِۦ وَأَخِيهِ ﴿١٢﴾ وَفَصِيلَتِهِ ٱلَّتِى تُـْٔوِيهِ ﴿١٣﴾ وَمَن فِى ٱلْأَرْضِ جَمِيعًا ثُمَّ يُنجِيهِ ﴿١٤﴾

Even when they are within sight of one another. The guilty person will wish he could save himself from the suffering of that Day by sacrificing his sons [11] his spouse, his brother [12] the kinsfolk who gave him shelter [13] and everyone on earth, if it could save him [14] (The Quran, al-Ma'arij: 11-14)

Regarding the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'Even when they are within sight of one another…' (al-Ma'arij: 11), it means that they see and know each other, but for being occupied with themselves they do not ask about each other because they find this pointless. This is the case with the unjust transgressing sinner who went beyond the limits, disbelieved in Allah the Almighty and was too proud to worship Him. Therefore, He the Almighty says '…the guilty person will wish he could save himself from the suffering of that Day by sacrificing his sons. [11] His spouse, his brother, [12] the kinsfolk who gave him shelter, [13] and everyone on earth, if it could save him [14]' (al-Ma'arij: 11). As they were a polytheist and guilty, they want to be delivered from Allah's punishment inflicted on them, to the extent that they wish to be ransomed by their own children, whom they invoked Allah the Almighty to give in the worldly life, or by their spouse who shared their life, and even by their brother, family, relatives, kin and whoever is on earth entirely. They are willing to sacrifice everyone else so that they could redeem themselves from Allah's chastisement. They desire that they could own and have them under their control so as to offer them as a sacrifice for themselves, thinking that in doing so, they will be saved from the punishment. However, Allah Glorified is He shatters the hope of the disbelievers, polytheists, oppressors and the guilty regarding escaping His punishment by offering sacrifices, as He Glorified is He states in another verse: 'Surely, those who disbelieve and die while they are unbelievers, the earth full of gold shall not be accepted from one of them, though he should offer to ransom himself with it, these it is who shall have a painful chastisement, and they shall have no helpers' (Al-'Imran: 91).

Likewise, He the Almighty says in this chapter:

كَلَّآ إِنَّهَا لَظَىٰ ﴿١٥﴾ نَزَّاعَةً لِّلشَّوَىٰ ﴿١٦﴾ تَدْعُواْ مَنْ أَدْبَرَ وَتَوَلَّىٰ ﴿١٧﴾ وَجَمَعَ فَأَوْعَىٰ ﴿١٨﴾

But no! There is a raging flame [15] that strips away the skin [16] and it will claim everyone who rejects the truth, turns away [17] amasses wealth and hoards it [18] (The Quran, al-Ma'arij: 15-18)

This is truth uttered through the verse: 'But no! There is a raging flame,' (al-Ma'arij: 15). Thus, the possibility of their salvation is a false assumption; no way could they possibly escape punishment. In answer to the supplicant's demand for punishment, Allah Glorified is He states: 'But no! There is a raging flame,' (al-Ma'arij: 15). The Arabic word Kalla (But no) indicates deterrence and reproof to the guilty or the disbeliever that they should not wish for it; the sacrifice will neither avail nor redeem them from the chastisement. It is hellfire with its blazing flames 'that strips away the skin,' (al-Ma'arij: 16). It chastises and tortures the disbelievers and the sinners severely and mercilessly. It scalds them with its flames and blazes so that they burn in it. Further, He the Almighty says: '(As for) those who disbelieve in Our communications, We shall make them enter fire; so oft as their skins are thoroughly burned, We will change them for other skins, that they may taste the chastisement; surely Allah is Mighty, Wise,' (an-Nisa': 56).

The Arabic word Lazha (flaming Fire) is one of the names of the hellfire, which has flames set ablaze. Allah the Almighty describes it elsewhere, saying: 'Walk on to the covering having three branches, [30] neither having the coolness of the shade nor availing against the flame [31]' (an-Nazi'at: 56). These branches of hellfire signify the flames that, as it burns fiercely, it gets divided into three branches, As for His saying: 'That strips away the skin,' (al-Ma'arij: 16), it means that the hellfire takes away the limbs such as the hands and legs leaving no flesh or skin without burning it. The Arabic word Shawa refers to the limbs such as hands, legs, finger tips and head skin. It is the most severe punishment, with flames melting the head and the flesh of the legs, whereas their heart is alive, feeling the pain and torment. Their head, skin and limbs are melted by the blazing flames in hellfire while they are alive, feeling that painful punishment.

Then Allah the Almighty says about the hellfire: 'And it will claim everyone who rejects the truth, turns away, [17] amasses wealth and hoards it' (al-Ma'arij: 17-18). This is a further report about hellfire; in addition to having blazing flames, it invites those who turned away from the Truth and obedience. Its invitation is metaphorical, as in His saying: 'Until the war lays down its burden' (Muhammad: 4). It is not the war which shall lay down its burden in reality, but the warriors who fight in it.

Likewise, hellfire invites the disbelievers and the guilty who attempted to flee from it. Further, it claims the rich who used to hoard gold and silver and did not spend it in the Way of Allah the Almighty preventing the right of the poor. Some scholars are of the opinion that hellfire invites and calls those who rejected belief and truth with their own names, saying, 'Come to me O disbeliever. Come to me O hypocrite!'

Ibn 'Abbas may Allah be pleased with him said, 'It calls the disbelievers and the hypocrites pronouncing their own names with a fluent tongue, then picks them up just as a bird picks up a food-grain.'(1) So, who are those who will be called and invited by hellfire? It calls upon: '…everyone who rejects the truth' (al-Ma'arij: 17-18). It calls those who turned their back on faith and disbelieved in the Prophets' call to worship Allah the Almighty Alone. Further, it invites and calls whosoever turned their back on truth, rejected obedience to Him and went away from belief in the Scriptures and the Prophets.

On what then did they spend their time in the worldly life? They rejected the truth because they preferred the worldly life to the Hereafter; therefore they: 'amasses wealth and hoards it' (al-Ma'arij: 18). In addition to their disbelief, transgression and hypocrisy, they collect money from all possible sources, and then hoard it. While doing so, they earn money through lawful and unlawful means, and do not give Allah's Right in it. He Glorified is He states elsewhere: 'Who amasses wealth and considers it a provision (against mishap); [2] He thinks that his wealth will make him immortal [3]' (al-Humaza: 2-3). Their money and wealth made them transgress that they looked with contempt and disdain to the poor, thinking that their wealth will grant them immorality. However, their money will not avail them, nor will hoarding wealth deliver them from the punishment, a fact which is clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'Nay! He shall most certainly be hurled into the crushing disaster, [4] And what will make you realize what the crushing disaster is? [5] It is the fire kindled by Allah, [6] which rises above the hearts. [7] Surely it shall be closed over upon them, [8] In extended columns [9]' (al-Humaza: 4-9). Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He states:

In his Tafsir, Ibn Abu Hatim narrates that Qatada narrated, through a Mursal narration, that Ka'b used to say, 'Some of the fire will come out in the shape of a long neck on the Day of Judgment. It will say, 'I have been left in charge of three: the honoured and the noble, every obstinate oppressor and everyone who called upon a deity besides Allah, then it picks them up just as a bird picks up a food-grain.' Al-Khazen, Lubab At-Ta'wil, 4/341; and Ibn Abu Hatim, Tafsir, 17774.*

إِنَّ ٱلۡإِنسَٰنَ خُلِقَ هَلُوعًا ﴿١٩﴾ إِذَا مَسَّهُ ٱلشَّرُّ جَزُوعٗا ﴿٢٠﴾
وَإِذَا مَسَّهُ ٱلۡخَيۡرُ مَنُوعًا ﴿٢١﴾

Man was truly created anxious [19] he is fretful when misfortune touches him [20] but tight-fisted when good fortune comes his way [21] (The Quran, al-Ma'arij: 19 - 21)

The Arabic word Hal'u (anxious) is an exaggeration form indicating intense caution and lack of patience; therefore the human being is bored and volatile, seeking only their whims and lusts. It also denotes impatience when affected by evil or fear of something. In addition to their anxiety and greed, they are miserly and stingy; when Allah the Almighty provides them with wealth, they withhold it. If they are short of money and suffer from poverty, they become impatient. When they obtain money and wealth, they withhold it and become miserly in spending out in the Way of Allah. Further, they do not give the right of the poor.

'Man' here refers to the human beings in general, and in reference to their attributes, Allah the Almighty states in another verse: 'And if We make man taste mercy from Us, then take it off from him, most surely he is despairing, ungrateful,' (Hud: 9). When He Glorified is He wills to bestow a blessing on the human being and then it is taken away from them, they become worried, disappointed, exasperated and impatient. However little the blessing is, it appeals to the human being, but if it is withdrawn from them, they become despairing and ungrateful. This despairing ungrateful person is the same one who is excessively anxious, impatient and miserly. All these attributes are referring to the one who is intensely impatient and niggardly, vehement in their disbelief in Allah the Almighty and despairing of His Mercy and Blessings.

Reflecting on this verse, we will find that the word Massahu (to touch him) is used, whereas in the chapter of Hud the word Adhaqna (to make him taste) is used. ‘To taste something’ means to perceive its flavour, not to eat it. When you buy fruits, the buyer may ask you to taste one to perceive its flavour. Tasting something could be by letting your tongue touch it to test its quality. This is the meaning of touching, i.e. getting closer to something gradually to touch it. This perception may last for only one second.

This impatient person, lacking faith which could have provided them with tranquility, peace of mind and acceptance of the inconstancy of life, becomes swiftly impatient, anxious and frightened at the very moment they get afflicted by poverty, need, calamity or evil. Moreover, when they are granted a blessing, whether small or great, they deny Allah’s Favour and Provision, withholding the good that has from people. Therefore, they do not give Allah’s Right upon them because they do not believe in Him.For this reason, Allah Glorified is He states in the following verses:

إِلَّا ٱلۡمُصَلِّينَ ﴿٢٢﴾ ٱلَّذِينَ هُمۡ عَلَىٰ صَلَاتِهِمۡ دَآئِمُونَ ﴿٢٣﴾
وَٱلَّذِينَ فِيٓ أَمۡوَٰلِهِمۡ حَقّٞ مَّعۡلُومٞ ﴿٢٤﴾ لِّلسَّآئِلِ وَٱلۡمَحۡرُومِ ﴿٢٥﴾

Not so those who pray [22] and are constant in their prayers [23] who give a due share of their wealth [24] to beggars and the deprived [25] (The Quran, al-Ma’arij: 22-25)

In the aforementioned three verses, Allah Glorified is He says: ‘Man was truly created anxious: [19] he is fretful when misfortune touches him, [20] but tight-fisted when good fortune comes his way [21]’ (al-Ma’arij: 19-21). However, He Glorified is He makes an exception here saying: ‘Not so those who pray’ (al-Ma’arij: 22). When we read the Noble Quran carefully, we find that every account about the human being, as isolated from Allah’s Guidance, denotes evil, as in His saying: ‘I swear by the time, [1] Most surely man is in loss [2]’ (al-’Asr: 1-2). The human beings, generally, are in loss. So, who among them will be delivered from loss? Here comes the answer: ‘Except those who believe and do good, and enjoin on each other truth, and enjoin on each other patience' (al-'Asr: 3). Every Quranic account of the human being, in the absolute sense, speaks about and warns against the evil aspect, yet what is it that saves them? It is Allah's Way of Guidance.

He Glorified is He lays down His Guidance starting from His saying: 'Not so those who pray,' (al-Ma'arij: 22) until the verse reading: 'And are steadfast in their prayers' (al-Ma'arij: 34). The first element of this Divine Guidance is: 'Not so those who pray [22] and are constant in their prayers [23]' (al-Ma'arij: 22-23). Observing the prayer that He the Almighty made obligatory comes first. Prayer only emanates from belief in Him, Messenger Muhammad and His Book. Therefore, there was no need to mention faith. Besides, He Glorified is He specifies the elements of the applicable Way of Guidance, whereas faith is a doctrinal matter that should do with the heart.

So, the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'Not so those who pray [22] and are constant in their prayers, [23]' (al-Ma'arij: 22-23) refers to those who observe prayer in its prescribed times, leaving no prescribed prayer at night or at daytime; rather, they perform it once it is called for. Further, they perform it duly and rightfully, not turning to the right or to the left; they do not turn their faces from the direction of the prayer. They are constant in their rayer, and establish it carefully without wasting or getting distracted from it. This constancy depicts stability and continuity, as their prayer is not interrupted by squandering or negligence. In this regard, we should note that the acts most pleasing to Allah Glorified is He were the most regular, constant ones, given the fact that constancy indicates stability in one's relation with Him Glorified is He.

Then, Allah Glorified is He gives us another attribute and pillar of His Guidance, stating: 'Who give a due share of their wealth' (al-Ma'arij: 24). Allah Glorified is He speaks here of the believers who believed in Him and His Book, and thus He says: '…a due share…' (al-Ma'arij: 24). This due share in the wealth of the believers is the zakat. As regards Ihsan which signifies a higher rank than faith, this share is not specified, as He the Almighty says: 'And in their property was a portion due to him who begs and to him who is denied (good)' (adh-Dhariyat: 19). Thus, with regard to those who reached the rank of Ihsan, it is in the interest of the poor that there is no specific portion to be paid out. This is because a believer, who reached the rank of faith, may give away according to or a bit more than the specified portion of the zakat. However, there is no limit to what they give in the Way of Allah the Almighty if they have reached the rank of Ihsan.

Allah Glorified is He wants to unleash people's faithful potentials, so whoever gives in abundance, they will have their reward with Him the Almighty. If we contemplate His saying: '…of their wealth,' (al-Ma'arij: 23) we will find it wondrous; Allah Glorified is He attributes wealth to the people, whilst He is the Owner of wealth and gives it to anyone He wills. That is why Allah the Almighty has the right to prescribe a fixed portion in it. Likewise, He Glorified is He, says: 'Take alms out of their property, you would cleanse them and purify them thereby, and pray for them; surely your prayer is a relief to them; and Allah is Hearing, Knowing' (at-Tawba: 103). The phrase 'their wealth,' with the third person pronoun, is mentioned thirty-one times in the Quran, whereas the word 'your wealth,' with the second person pronoun, is mentioned fourteen times. This is to mean that the ownership of the wealth is attributed to them, for the mere fact that He Glorified is He states so, but it is not theirs in reality because Allah Glorified is He can take it away if He wills and they will have no means to prevent that.

Given that wealth belongs to Allah the Almighty in reality, then He has the right to prescribe a due share in it. But does the 'due share' in this verse refer to the prescribed zakat with its fixed portions? We say, 'No, because this verse was revealed in Mecca, whereas the zakat was prescribed in Medina.' Accordingly, what is intended here is the specific portion the believers obligated upon themselves to draw near to Allah Glorified is He. It is something that a person obligates upon themselves, to give in the Way of Allah at certain times as a recommended action. Consequently, He the Almighty does not mention here those who deserve the zakat, who are mentioned in His saying: 'Alms are only for the poor and the needy, and the officials (appointed) over them, and those whose hearts are made to incline (to truth) and the (ransoming of) captives and those in debts and in the way of Allah and the wayfarer; an ordinance from Allah; and Allah is knowing, Wise' (at-Tawba: 60). Thus, the zakat was made obligatory in Medina after the state of Islam was established and gained strength. Following that, some receivers of zakat, other than the poor and the needy, were specified including the officials appointed over it, and those whose hearts are made to incline to truth, the ransoming of captives, those in debts and in the Way of Allah.

As for the due share in the chapter of al-Ma'arij, it was prescribed by the person upon themselves out of feeling sympathy and compassion to the poor. So, they allocate a portion of their money to benefit them and satisfy their need.

When Ibn 'Umar may Allah be pleased with him was asked as to whether it is the zakat which is intended in this verse: 'Who give a due share of their wealth [24] to beggars and the deprived, [25]' (al-Ma'arij: 24-25) he answered, 'You have other obligations than it.' Ibn 'Abbas, the scholar of the ummah and the interpreter of the Noble Quran, said, 'It is a right other than the zakat with which one maintains good relations with kin, generously serves a guest, bears people's burden or helps one who is deprived.' For this reason, Allah Glorified is He states: 'Who give a due share of their wealth [24] to beggars and the deprived [25]' (al-Ma'arij: 24-25).

Two categories of people deserve this right: the beggars and the deprived. The beggar is the one who begs people, whereas the deprived is the one who is poor yet abstains from begging to the extent that people think them to be rich. Thereby, they do not give them despite their dire financial need. Allah Glorified is He recommends giving the beggar, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: 'And as for him who asks, do not chide (him),' (ad-Duha: 10).

Other denotations were inferred from the word 'the deprived', apart from the poor who abstains from begging. Some scholars suggest that 'the deprived' is the one whose wealth does not grow, their business remains slack or perishes or they do not earn what meets their needs. So, they live in straits and are not able to earn in the way that makes their life better. Others said that 'the deprived' is the one whose wealth is perished; their plants and fruits are destroyed with blight or calamity; their cattle and birds catch a fatal disease; or their car by which they earn a living gets stolen. In other words, they had a blessing of which they were deprived on account of a calamity affecting it. In the same vein, upon seeing it burnt, the owners of the garden said: 'We must have lost our way! [26] No– we are ruined! [27]' (al-Haqqa: 27) One may ask, ‘Does the phrase ‘their wealth,’ (al-Ma’arij: 24) refer to money, gold or silver only? We say, ‘No, the wealth can be in the form of plants, cattle or food, i.e. it is everything that could be a medium of exchange, but we use the word to refer to something which could be used to obtain any property, i.e. money.’ This is the common use of the word, but the original meaning encompasses everything that could be used as a medium of exchange.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He mentions other attributes of those whom He excepted from the punishment, stating:

وَٱلَّذِينَ يُصَدِّقُونَ بِيَوۡمِ ٱلدِّينِ ﴿٢٦﴾ وَٱلَّذِينَ هُم مِّنۡ عَذَابِ رَبِّهِم مُّشۡفِقُونَ ﴿٢٧﴾
إِنَّ عَذَابَ رَبِّهِمۡ غَيۡرُ مَأۡمُونٖ ﴿٢٨﴾

Who believe in the Day of Judgment [26] and fear the punishment of their Lord [27]
none may feel wholly secure from it [28]
(The Quran, al-Ma’arij: 26 - 28)

Belief in the Day of Judgment is the cornerstone of religion, given the fact that the one who does not believe in it does whatever they like, bearing in mind that there will be no Hereafter, or Reckoning. So, what should they be afraid of then? Why should they restrict their freedom in life? Religion, with its entire acts of obedience and guidance, is based on the concept of Reckoning in the Hereafter, and the belief that we will stand before Allah Glorified is He one Day so that Allah Glorified is He will punish the disobedient and reward the obedient. This is the criteria of our faithful conduct.

If there were no Judgment Day, the unjust people would be the most fortunate ones. Given the fact that they caused mischief in the land, they may escape the punishment in this worldly life. However, they will not escape Allah’s Justice. The Day of Judgment is the Day of Recompense for acts of obedience and disobedience. In the verse under discussion, He the Almighty does not say: ‘Those who believe in the Judgment Day,’ but rather states: ‘Who accept the truth of the Judgment Day’ (al-Ma’arij: 26). This means that they firmly and wholeheartedly believe in it; this is a higher rank than mere belief. Further, Prophet Muhammad Allah’s peace and blessings be upon him said, ‘Faith is what takes root in the heart and shows in one’s actions.’(1) They confirm their belief by their deeds, exert themselves and spend their money on the beggars and the deprived, hoping to get the reward in the Hereafter.

So, the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘Those who accept the truth of the Judgment Day,’ (al-Ma’arij: 26) means that they wholeheartedly believe in the Last Day, Reckoning and Recompense, and then they do good hoping for rewards and fearing punishment. Even though belief with one’s heart and declaration to it with their tongue delivers them from eternally abiding in hellfire, their belief must be confirmed by deeds. In fact, the believer gradually gets firmer in their belief until they become one of the truthful. Abu Bakr may Allah be pleased with him is a case in point; he used to deeply believe in everything Prophet Muhammad Allah’s peace and blessings be upon him said. The disbelievers said to him, ‘Your friend (i.e. Prophet Muhammad) claims that he went to the Al-Aqsa Mosque and came back in one night, whereas we travel long distances taking months to reach it.’ Thereupon, Abu Bakr may Allah be pleased with him said, ‘If he has said it, then he has spoken the truth.’(2) His sole reason for belief was the mere fact that ‘Prophet Muhammad Allah’s peace and blessings be upon him said that.’ This is the true believer, whenever he Allah’s peace and blessings be upon him uttered a word, Abu Bakr may Allah be pleased with him hastened to believe in it and did not wait for revelation to come down confirming what he said. Once he Allah’s peace and blessings be upon him declared that he was a Messenger, Abu Bakr may Allah be pleased with him believed and affirmed what he said, and thereby was a firm believer in the truth.

(1) Al-Hasan Al-Basri said, 'Faith is not by wishful thinking nor by appearance, it is what takes root in the heart and shows in one's actions.' See Ibn Taymiyya, Kitab Al-Iman, 1/230.

(2) 'Aisha Allah be pleased with her said, ‘When Prophet Muhammad Allah’s peace and blessings be upon him was taken by night to the Al-Aqsa Mosque, he awoke and spoke to the people about it. Some of those who had faith in him and believed him renounced it. They sought Abu Bakr and said, 'Have you heard your friend’s claim that he was taken by night to the Al-Aqsa Mosque?' Abu Bakr said, 'Did he say that?' They said 'Yes.' Abu Bakr said, 'If he has said it, then he has spoken the truth.' They said, 'Do you believe he went by night to Al-Aqsa Mosque and he returned before morning?' He said, 'Yes. Indeed, I believe him for what is even more astonishing than that. I believe he has received news from Heaven for everything he does.' For this reason, Abu Bakr was named 'the truthful.' Al-Hakim graded this Hadith as authentic. See Al-Bayhaqi, Dala’il An-Nubuwwa, 2/361; and Al-Hakim, Mustadrak, 3/62.

Accepting the truth of the Judgment Day comes as a result of the following attribute: 'And fear the punishment of their Lord,' (al-Ma'arij: 27). In spite of establishing prayer constantly and paying a fixed portion from their wealth for the beggars and the deprived, and despite their fervent belief in the Last Day, they are fearful of Allah's Chastisement.

The believers fear and stand in awe of Allah the Almighty. Moreover, the Arabic word Ishfaq (fear), as mentioned in the verse, denotes that fearing Him is accompanied by caution and awe. Likewise, the believers' fear of the Hour is accompanied by caution that it may come before being fully prepared for it in a way that makes them happy with His Reward when they meet with Him.

They are fearful of Allah's Punishment, and the reason is declared in His saying: 'None may feel wholly secure from it' (al-Ma'arij: 28). No one can say for sure that they fulfilled their obligations perfectly or abstained from prohibitions completely, for they must have had shortcomings in either aspect. Moreover, no one feels wholly secure from His punishment except those who are deluded by wishful thinking that their deeds will rescue them, whilst Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him said, 'None amongst you will enter paradise because of his deeds alone. They said, 'Allah's Messenger, not even you?' Thereupon he said, 'Not even I.'(1) The human being's sins in this worldly life are many; they may be unjust when they judge, have bad thoughts of people, tell lies and stray from truth if they are called for witness and backbite others.

As a matter of fact, no one among us can attribute perfection to themselves, even those who exert themselves in obedience do not reach perfection, given the fact that perfection belongs to Allah Glorified is He Alone. In this regard, Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him said, 'All the sons of Adam are sinners, but the best of sinners are those who repent often.'(2)

(1) Abu Hurayra Allah be pleased with him narrated that Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him said, 'Observe moderation in deeds (and if it is not possible, try to be near moderation) and understand that none amongst you can attain salvation because of his deeds alone. They said. 'Allah's Messenger, not even you?' Thereupon he said, 'Not even I, but that Allah should wrap me in His Mercy and Grace.' See Al-Bukhari, Sahih, Hadith no. 43 and 1151; Muslim, Sahih, Hadith no. 785; Ibn Maja, Sunnan, Hadith no. 4238; and At-Tirmidhi, Sunnan, Hadith no. 3037.

(2) This Hadith is narrated on the authority of Anas ibn Malik Allah be pleased with him. See Ibn Maja, Sunnan, Hadith no. 4251; Abu Mohamed Al-Kashi, Al-Muntakhab, Hadith no. 1197; Al-Bazzar, Musnad, Hadith no. 7236; and Ar-Ruyani, Musnad, Hadith no. 1366.

Further, Allah Glorified is He states: ‘But none feels secure from Allah’s Plan except the people who shall perish’ (al-A‘raf: 99). ‘To feel secure’ is to be assured of an issue in a way which does not arouse fear or troubles. The one who feels secure of Allah’s Plan is the loser. In addition, one should not feel secure of the punishment in hellfire, which is why they should not underestimate the matter since no one can guarantee anything.

Then, Allah Glorified is He clarifies another attribute, stating:

وَٱلَّذِينَ هُمۡ لِفُرُوجِهِمۡ حَٰفِظُونَ (٢٩) إِلَّا عَلَىٰٓ أَزۡوَٰجِهِمۡ أَوۡ مَا مَلَكَتۡ أَيۡمَٰنُهُمۡ
فَإِنَّهُمۡ غَيۡرُ مَلُومِينَ (٣٠) فَمَنِ ٱبۡتَغَىٰ وَرَآءَ ذَٰلِكَ فَأُوْلَٰٓئِكَ هُمُ ٱلۡعَادُونَ (٣١)

Who guard their chastity [29] from all but their spouses or their slave-girls — there is no blame attached to [relations with] these [30] but those whose desires exceed this limit are truly transgressors [31] (The Quran, al-Ma’arij: 29 - 31)

Allah Glorified is He orders us to keep our private parts to the purpose for which they are created, and one is supposed to adhere only to what He the Almighty made lawful in this regard. He Glorified is He does not want a man and a woman to be together except in accordance with His Guidance and Shari'a because He is the Creator of mankind, and He knows best what reforms them. They should be together according to His Shari'a openly and overtly, and not to meet secretly in the darkness of sin to commit the forbidden matter (i.e. adultery) causing confusion of lineage and dissolution of the society.

Regarding the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘Who guard their chastity,’ (al-Ma’arij: 29) the Arabic word Hafizhun indicates guarding and protection, and it comes in the form of the active participle which denotes constancy and continuity. To find out the distinctive denotation of this form of the word, we should look into the verse related to prayer in which He Glorified is He states: ‘And are steadfast in their prayers’ (al-Ma’arij: 34). In this verse, another form of this word is used but is less in denoting constancy and continuity since one may perform prayers but defer them from due time or may not pray in the mosque sometimes due to emergent circumstances. However, guarding and protecting private parts from committing indecent crimes, like adultery, must be a constant attribute, however alluring the temptations is. This is because it is a matter that should do with people's honor, and hence this guarding of the private parts shall include everyone except for two categories of women, mentioned in His saying: 'From all but their spouses or their slave-girls—there is no blame attached to [relations with] these' (al-Ma'arij: 30-31). This verse means that the command of guarding the private parts does not include the wives made lawful in marriage. This entails the prohibition of temporary marriage, for in this case the woman is neither a wife nor a slave-girl.

Here arises a question, which is 'Why does Allah Glorified is He use the preposition 'Ala (on) instead of 'An (from), although 'An is more appropriate for the general meaning of the verse?' We say, 'The preposition 'Ala here conveys the meaning of 'An, and it is possibly related to an omitted part that befits the general meaning.'

Two exceptions are made here: the wives and the slave-girls. Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him said, 'Guard your private parts except from your wife.'(1) It is obligatory that one must guard his private parts except from his wife and slave girl, and it is not allowed to take in marriage two sisters or a woman and her paternal or maternal aunt simultaneously. This verse and its counterpart in the chapter of al-Mu'minun are concerned with men, for women are not allowed to have sexual relationships with their male slaves. It happened at the time of 'Umar may Allah be pleased with him that a woman had intimacy with her male slave. When this was mentioned to 'Umar, he asked her, 'Why did you do it?' She answered, 'I thought that I am allowed to do it the same as men with their slave girls.' Whereupon, he consulted with the Companions of Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him who said, 'She interpreted the Book of Allah in the wrong way, thereby no prescribed punishment is to be inflicted upon her.' This is because wrong interpretation waives the punishment. Consequently, 'Umar may Allah be pleased with him forbade her from marrying a freeman and ordered the slave not to approach her.

(1) This Hadith is narrated on the authority of Bahz ibn Hakim who said that his father told him on the authority of his grandfather that he said to Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him 'O Messenger of Allah, from whom should we conceal our private parts and to whom can we show? He replied, 'Conceal your private parts except from your wife and slave-girls.' See Abu Dawud, Sunnan, Hadith no. 4017; Ibn Maja, Sunnan, Hadith no. 1920; and Ahmad, Musnad, Hadith no. 20034 and 20040.

Thus, one is ordered to guard his chastity, apart from his wife (or wives) and slave-girls who were made lawful. Yet, slavery no longer exists since there is no slavery anymore, unlike the case before the advent of Islam. Hence, this is a suspended ruling having no sphere of application. There is a distinction, however, between suspending a ruling due to the absence of its sphere of application and abolishing a ruling. The ruling related to slave girls is not abolished; it is present, but its subject is absent; thus it comes into effect once its subject exists in practice. Some people attempt to arouse doubts about Islam and the Quran, saying: 'If Islam really wanted to free the human being from slavery and bondage, why does the Quran mention slavery in some verses and does not abrogate them as was the case with other verses addressing other issues?' We say, 'Islam fought slavery and bondage and came to free slaves by laying down the rulings of expiation for committing sins by way of freeing slaves. For instance, a slave must be freed as expiation for killing a believer by mistake, a fact which is clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty: '…and whoever kills a believer by mistake, he should free a believing slave, and blood-money should be paid to his people…' (an-Nisa': 92).

Breaking a deliberate oath can be expiated by freeing a slave, as Allah the Almighty says: '…so its expiation is the feeding of ten poor men out of the middling (food) you feed your families with, or their clothing, or the freeing of a neck…' (al-Ma'ida: 89). Likewise, freeing a slave is one of the means of expiation for someone who says to his wife, 'You are as forbidden to me as (the back of) my mother,' as He Glorified is He states: 'And (as for) those who put away their wives by likening their backs to the backs of their mothers then would recall what they said, they should free a captive before they touch each other...' (al-Mujadala: 3).

Accordingly, Islam handled the issue of slavery and bondage, even by the permissibility of having slave-girls, as it was a solution to the phenomenon of bondage, for it honours the women who used to be taken as captives in wars. Before the advent of Islam, the captive women had no rights and were taken by the victorious warriors who did whatever they liked to them, such as raping or even gang raping and then killing them in the end. In Islam, however, a woman taken as a captive during wars used to be entrusted to someone to provide food, drink and attire for her in return for her service to him. If she conceived after intimacy with him, she would become a mother of a son, and would be freed for giving birth to him. For this reason, he had to make sure at first that she had not been pregnant.

Taking women as captives were subject to the law of the warriors at that time, so Shari'a Law was laid down to confront this deep-rooted tradition. It may be enforced at other times which we do not know, therefore there must be a law regulating this matter. This shows the greatness of the Noble Quran and its eternity until the Hour is established. Accordingly, the way Islam addresses slavery should be regarded as one of its merits, not the other way around.

Back to the verse in question, Allah Glorified is He states: '…there is no blame attached to [relations with] these' (al-Ma'arij: 30). This means that they are not to be blamed for not guarding their private parts with their wives and slave-girls, but they are to be blamed in other cases. In addition, mentioning the word denoting pudendum at the beginning of the verse indicates that such blame is to be placed on that person who has anal intercourse with his wife; not in the normal place created and prepared for intercourse and giving birth to children. However, they are not blameworthy or sinners for doing what Allah the Almighty made lawful. Rather, they are blamed for transgressing the limits and committing what is forbidden.

Accordingly, Allah Glorified is He states in the following verse: 'But those whose desires exceed this limit are truly transgressors' (al-Ma'arij: 31). The Arabic word Ibtagha (to desire) has the meaning of seeking something persistently, and this is possibly because it goes beyond the normal limits. In this case, such a people are striving to commit what He the Almighty made unlawful by seducing a woman who is neither his wife nor a slave girl. The Arabic word Wara' (beyond) is used in the Quran with different meanings; however, it here means 'beyond,' with a more profound denotation. Although a man may have a wife or wives and slave-girls under his possession, he may seek what is beyond that, i.e. goes after what is made forbidden despite having what is made lawful. Likewise, he may have anal intercourse with his wife though it is not the organ prepared for that matter. So, the word Wara' (beyond) has two meanings here: 'beyond' and 'above.' Describing those seeking what is beyond the limits, He Glorified is He states: 'But those whose desires exceed this limit are truly transgressors' (al-Ma'arij: 31). This means that these are the adulterers who transgress the limits of what He the Almighty permitted or forbade and who turn from the lawful matters to the unlawful ones.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He states:

وَٱلَّذِينَ هُمۡ لِأَمَٰنَٰتِهِمۡ وَعَهۡدِهِمۡ رَٰعُونَ ﴿٣٢﴾

Who are faithful to their trusts and their pledges [32] (The Quran, al-Ma'arij: 32)

Trust represents whatever you are entrusted with, and the first thing you were entrusted with is the covenant of faith taken upon you, while you were in Adam's back. One should be faithful to the trust belonging to Allah Glorified is He as well as to those belonging to the people that should be paid back to their owners perfectly and faithfully. As for the word 'Ahd (pledge), it refers to what the human being takes upon themselves to do, and is obligatory on them to fulfil so long as it is not an act of disobedience. This is because when you make a covenant with someone, their activities in life depend on fulfilling your promise to them. If you break your covenant and promise to them, you free yourself and behave as you please while restraining them, wasting their interests and spoiling their day, and hence Islam affirms that one should keep their promise.

Trust also denotes what you are entrusted with regarding people's rights, which you have to pay back, but you can deny having it if you wish. For example, one might say, 'I entrusted so and so with a trust.' But if there is a check or witnesses to it, then it is not called 'trust.' On this basis, 'trust' means to put something into the care of someone and leave their conscience determines whether to acknowledge it on your demand or to deny it. In this regard, Allah Glorified is He says: 'Surely We offered the trust to the heavens and the earth and the mountains, but they refused to be unfaithful to it and feared from it, and man has turned unfaithful to it; surely he is unjust, ignorant,' (al-Ahzab: 72) and 'Surely Allah commands you to make over trusts to their owners…' (an-Nisa': 58). Moreover, Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him said, 'Pay the trust to him who deposited it with you, and do not betray him who betrays you.'(1)

Paying the trusts back to their owners is one of the best acts of obedience that brings one closer to Allah the Almighty. Therefore, one should keep the trusts and protect them until they give them back to their owners. Further, they must not contrive a plot to appropriate them or consume them unjustly. Such plots corrupt the covenants and trusts, and in this way no one will trust another regarding deposits, promises and covenants, leading to the disturbance of the society and the lack of confidence among its members. It is noted that He Glorified is He attributes the trusts and covenants to those entrusted with them, stating: 'Who are faithful to their trusts and their pledges' (al-Ma'arij: 32). This means that so long as the person takes the responsibility for bearing a trust, then they are bound to pay it back completely undiminished when requested or becomes due. It is as though Allah Glorified is He says to them, 'It is your duty to fulfill them even if there is no proof or document obliging you to do so.' Furthermore, He Glorified is He describes them as keepers of His Covenant and of people's trusts, fulfilling their covenants and appropriating nothing of the people's rights.

If we reflect on this verse: 'Who are faithful to their trusts and their pledges,' (al-Ma'arij: 32), and the preceding ones: 'Who guard their chastity [29] from all but their spouses or their slave-girls–there is no blame attached to [relations with] these, [30] but those whose desires exceed this limit are truly transgressors, [31]' (al-Ma'arij: 29-31) we can find them intimately related since the private parts, the covenants and the trusts should be properly kept guarded, and anyone who does not keep the trusts and the covenants is as guilty as the one who does not guard their private parts. Furthermore, whoever seeks the illicit sexual intercourse is a transgressor as is the one betraying trusts and breaking covenants and promises.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He states:

(1) This Hadith is narrated on the authority of Abu Hurayra Allah be pleased with him. See Abu Dawud, Sunnan, Hadith no. 3535; Al-Bazzar, Musnad, Hadith no. 9002; At-Tabarani, Al-Mu'jam Al-Awsat, Hadith no. 3595; and Al-Hakim, Mustadrak Hadith no. 2296.

وَٱلَّذِينَ هُم بِشَهَٰدَٰتِهِمۡ قَآئِمُونَ ﴿٣٣﴾

Who give honest testimony [33]
(The Quran, al-Ma'arij: 33)

The verses clarifying Allah's Way of Guidance begin with those who are constant in their prayer, those pious people who neglect no prescribed prayer but rather offer supererogatory prayers and night prayers. Further, they observe all the acts of worship which show that they reached the rank of Ihsan. They also feel sympathetic and affectionate towards the poor and the needy beggars and the deprived people by giving them charity and allocating a portion of their wealth to them, only out of fearing Allah the Almighty keeping away from hellfire and being fearful of His Chastisement. They also guard their private parts, preserve their chastity, shun the forbidden matters, and keep their private parts except from their wives and slave girls-under their possession. In addition, they protect the property entrusted to them and fulfil the covenants they take upon themselves.

Such attributes turn one into a sincere worshipper, having the feature of the true believers. But what is more important is the practical application of Allah's Guidance, namely, saying the truth and bearing witness to it, as Allah Glorified is He states: 'Who give honest testimony' (al-Ma'arij: 33). Bearing witness entails getting engaged in society to see and know what happens. As for giving witness, it means to tell what you have seen. The judge asks the witnesses because they saw the incident while it occurred, so they relate what they have witnessed. In fact, when someone gives testimony on an incident they witnessed, it is as though they let the people who did not see it witness what happened. But the one giving false testimony changes the reality of the situation despite the fact that Allah Glorified is He says: 'You who believe! Be maintainers of justice, bearers of witness of Allah's sake, though it may be against your own selves or (your) parents or near relatives; if he be rich or poor, Allah is nearer to them both in compassion; therefore do not follow (your) low desires, lest you deviate; and if you swerve or turn aside, then surely Allah is aware of what you do' (an-Nisa': 135).

When you give honest and just testimonies, no unjust person will go to excess in their injustice, for what encourages them to go too far in their injustice is those who manipulate justice, conceal their defects and deceive the people. If one finds those who guide them to the way of justice, they will not commit injustice. However, the unjust one likes those who conceal and give false testimony about their crimes. This unjust person says to themselves, 'So and so committed the same crime with impunity.'

Thus, false testimonies lead to disturbance in society, but if the people in society give upright and just testimonies, everyone will be deterred from committing injustice, and the unjust ones will be punished and made an example for others to be deterred as well. A believer is required to stand out firmly for Allah the Almighty by reforming themselves, and they are also required to give just and upright testimonies to reform others. Allah Glorified is He orders us to establish testimonies exceedingly, i.e. we should leave no chance of giving upright and just testimonies so that everyone takes their rights. By so doing, the strong will not oppress the weak as they will be supported by people's just testimonies.

To establish testimony means to bear witness to the truth with no transgression or injustice, and to deliver it properly and justly. Just testimony requires two things: first, the presence of the witness at the time the incident occurred; second, delivering the testimony truly and honestly. Accordingly, no one should give witness to something they did not witness or attend, but if someone saw something, they should relate it truly and honestly without changing it; for the false testimony causes the rightful owner to lose their right and interest. Moreover, no one should refrain from it if called for witness, for the heart of the one who conceals it is surely sinful. Thus, if you are called as a witness, you should give it truly and honestly in such a way that pleases Allah Glorified is He.

As a matter of fact, giving false testimonies is one of the main reasons of corruption in all societies, because it makes the people worried about their rights. It incorporates the causes of doing injustice and destroys the value of truth in society. Additionally, giving false testimonies changes the reality and harms the society since it causes the rights to be taken from their rightful owners and be given to others, leading to disturbance of the proceedings of life and rendering the people insecure of the fruit of their effort. Thus, this hinders the people from working and striving, considering that it, i.e. work will be in vain due to false testimonies. It is narrated that Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him said, 'Should I not inform you about the most grievous of the grave sins? They are associating partners with Allah, disobedience to parents and false testimony. He was reclining, then he sat up, and repeated it so many times that we wished that he should become silent.’(1)

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He states:

وَٱلَّذِينَ هُمۡ عَلَىٰ صَلَاتِهِمۡ يُحَافِظُونَ ٣٤

And are steadfast in their prayers [34]

The verses speaking of Allah’s Guidance start with mentioning prayer: ‘Not so those who pray [22] and are constant in their prayers, [23]’ (al-Ma’arij: 22-23) and end with prayer as well: ‘And are steadfast in their prayers’ (al-Ma’arij: 34). This is meant to highlight its significance as a declaration of faith performed five times a day. Through prayer, which is the foundation and cornerstone of religion, we leave everything in this worldly life and direct ourselves to Allah the Almighty. It is the main pillar of Islam, comprising all other pillars and represents a permanent loyalty of worship to Him Glorified is He. It grants assurance to the believers, and constitutes a token of humiliation to Him Glorified is He. Further, it makes the believer in conformity with His Way of Guidance, and prevents them from transgressing and defying Him. On the other hand, neglecting prayer signifies defiance against the declaration of worship and loyalty to Him the Almighty.

‘To be steadfast’ in prayer means to perform it at its due time; to perfect ablution, bowing down and prostration; to fulfil its conditions and complete its obligatory and recommended acts. This is different from being constant in prayer which means not to neglect it until its due time passes, as mentioned in the Hadith wherein Prophet Muhammad Allah’s peace and blessings be upon him said, ‘When you see a man frequenting the mosque, testify that he is a believer.’(2)

(2) This Hadith is narrated on the authority of Abu Sa'id Al-Khudari Allah be pleased with him. See Ibn Maja, Sunnan, Hadith no. 802; Al-Haythami, Mawarid Ath-Tham’an, Hadith no. 310; and Al-Bayhaqi, Shu’ab Al-Iman, Hadith no. 2680 and also As-Sunnan Al-Kubra, Hadith no. 4988.

Allah states:

أُوْلَٰٓئِكَ فِي جَنَّٰتٖ مُّكۡرَمُونَ ٣٥

They will be honoured in Gardens of bliss [35]
(The Quran, al-Ma'arij: 35)

The pronoun 'they' here refers to the believers who are constant in their prayer, give charity, accept the truth of the Judgment Day, fear Allah's chastisement, guard their private parts except in the case of their wives or slave-girls, fulfil their trusts and covenants, give upright testimonies and keep guard of their prayer. All those believers '…will be honoured in Gardens of bliss' (al-Ma'arij: 35). Allah's saying: '…in Gardens…' (al-Ma'arij: 35) is a predicate informing that they will be in Gardens, and '…honoured…' (al-Ma'arij: 35) is a second predicate. But it may be that His saying: '…in Gardens…' (al-Ma'arij: 35) is an adverb of place for the word 'honoured,' denoting that the place where they are honoured will be the Gardens of Bliss and the word 'honoured' is the predicate. In this way, the verse would mean that they will be honoured in Gardens. The word 'honoured' is mentioned thrice in the Quran; on one occasion it refers to the Angels, as Allah Glorified is He states: 'And they say: The Beneficent has taken to Himself a son. Glory be to Him. Nay! They are honoured servants [26] They do not precede Him in speech and (only) according to His commandment do they act [27]' (al-Anbiya': 26-27). This means that the Angels are honoured for the purity of their worship to their Lord, their sincerity and absolute obedience to Him.

The word 'honoured' is also mentioned twice to refer to those whom He the Almighty deservedly honoured, as He the Almighty states: 'Save the servants of Allah, the purified ones. [41] For them is a known sustenance, [42] Fruits, and they shall be highly honoured, [42] In gardens of pleasure, [43]' (as-Saffat: 40-43); and 'They will be honoured in Gardens of bliss' (al-Ma'arij: 35). Is there more honour for the believers than resembling the Angels in that they are honoured with their faces full of radiance of pleasure, where no blackness or humiliation will cover them?!

Allah Glorified is He expounds on the aspects of honouring and rewarding, saying: 'On thrones, facing each other. [44] A bowl shall be made to go round them from water running out of springs, [45] White, delicious to those who drink. [46] There shall be no trouble in it, nor shall they be exhausted therewith. [47] And with them shall be those who restrain the eyes, having beautiful eyes. [48] As if they were eggs carefully protected, [49]' (as-Saffat: 44-49). Honouring them is not confined to this, it rather extends to encompass 'bounties which no eye has seen, no ear has heard and no human heart has ever perceived.'(1)

Not only will the believer be equal to the Angels if they conform to the Guidance of their Lord, but they may also be better than them. This is because they, i.e. the Angels are made subservient, whilst the human being is endowed with the freedom of choice, so they will be better than the Angels if they prefer to keep to the Divine Way of Guidance. Consequently, the believers will have an honourable entrance into paradise wherein an honourable reward has been prepared for them. The honourable entrance should be befitting to the one who grants it; how could it be then when it is granted by Allah the Almighty? Allah Glorified is He is All Generous in His Rewards, and it is He, the Generous Lord, Who prepared it. Moreover, describing the reward itself as honourable and generous indicates that Allah Glorified is He honoured it Himself that it becomes honoured. The reward and high rank in paradise are confined to the followers of His Way of Guidance. So, what about those who disbelieved in Allah the Almighty Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him and the Quran? The answer is given in the following saying of Allah the Almighty

(1) This Hadith is narrated on the authority of Abu Hurayra who narrated that Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him said, 'He who would get into paradise (would be made to enjoy such an everlasting) bliss that he would neither become destitute, nor would his clothes wear out, nor his youth would decline. There will be bounties which no eye has seen, no ear has heard and no human heart has ever perceived.' See Ahmad, Musnad, Hadith no. 8827; Ibn Hibban, Sahih, Hadith no. 369; and At-Tabarani, Al-Mu'jam Al-Awsat, Hadith no. 200.

What is wrong with the disbelievers? Why do they rush to peer at you [Prophet] [36] from right and left, in crowds? [37] (The Quran, al-Ma’arij: 36 - 37)

The Arabic word Muhtia‘ refers to the one who hastens exceedingly that their neck seems longer than normal, so the word signifies a tall person. The general meaning would be that the disbelievers hastened away from Prophet Muhammad Allah’s peace and blessings be upon him and turned their backs on his call in rejection and denial. In this connection, Allah the Almighty says: ‘What is then the matter with them that they turn away from the admonition?’ (al-Muddaththir: 49)

Here, Allah Glorified is He gives us an account of how the disbelievers were dealing with Prophet Muhammad Allah’s peace and blessings be upon him. This verse was revealed concerning a group of them who used to gather around him Allah’s peace and blessings be upon him listen to his speech, and then mock and call him a liar. So, in the two verses in question, He the Almighty describes their deeds and position regarding Prophet Muhammad Allah’s peace and blessings be upon him. Those disbelievers turned away from Prophet Muhammad Allah’s peace and blessings be upon him and yet used to gather around him in circles and separate groups, not facing him, but rather some sitting on his right, while others on his left. All what they did was to stretch their necks towards Prophet Muhammad Allah’s peace and blessings be upon him to mock and scoff at him instead of listening to him. It is as if they were saying, ‘What does this man say?’ They did not hasten to listen to what he Allah’s peace and blessings be upon him said, nor did they rush to follow guidance, but it was only to look in surprise and then turn away in separate groups on his right and left hands.

Then Allah the Almighty says:

أَيَطْمَعُ كُلُّ ٱمْرِيٍٕ مِّنْهُمْ أَن يُدْخَلَ جَنَّةَ نَعِيمٍ ﴿٣٨﴾
كَلَّآ إِنَّا خَلَقْنَٰهُم مِّمَّا يَعْلَمُونَ ﴿٣٩﴾

Does every one of them expect to enter a Garden of bliss? [38]
No! We created them from the substance they know [39]
(The Quran, al-Ma'arij: 38 - 39)

Every one of the disbelievers falsely hopes that they will be admitted to the paradise at the end. However, how could it happen when they did not believe in Allah the Almighty, Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him and the Noble Quran? Further, they did not abide by the Divine Way of Guidance, for they rejected and defied Allah's Commands. What is it then they hope for? In this regard, Allah Glorified is He states: '(This) shall not be in accordance with your vain desires nor in accordance with the vain desires of the followers of the Book; whoever does evil, he shall be requited with it, and besides Allah he will find for himself neither a guardian nor a helper' (an-Nisa': 123). Vain desires signify the human being's ambition to have something joyful but without pursuing it. In the case of the disbelievers, what good deeds and faith did they offer to have the paradise as their reward?

The Arabic word Tama' (wished) means to expect to have something transcending, even the vain desires, as in the case of the one about whom Allah the Almighty says: 'Leave Me and him whom I created alone, [11] And give him vast riches, [12] And sons dwelling in his presence, [13] And I adjusted affairs for him adjustably; [14] And yet he desires that I should add more! [15]' (al-Muddaththir: 11-15) Allah Glorified is He gave him everything; after creating him lonely and penniless; He Glorified is He granted him abundant wealth and as many children as he wanted. They used to attend the gatherings of his people with him and to run his business. Despite all these bounties, he desired for more blessings, power and wealth.

One hoping for something necessarily needs to have qualifications to gain it, for how could they desire or wish for something without employing the means to obtain it or having what makes them worthy of it? Allah Glorified is He mentions the hopes of some believers, stating that they used to say: 'Surely, we hope that our Lord will forgive us our wrongs' (ash-Shu'ara': 51). They further clarify the reason for such hope as to be: '…because we are the first of the believers' (ash-Shu'ara': 51). As for those who were obstinate and persisted in their disbelief, they vainly desire to be admitted to the Garden of Bliss. It is noteworthy that the Arabic verb Yudkhal (to be admitted into) in the verse under discussion is used in the passive form to indicate that they knew for sure that they did not offer anything rendering them worthy of entering paradise, so they want someone to let them enter it.

Then, Allah the Almighty says: 'No! We created them from the substance they know' (al-Ma'arij: 39). So, the disbelievers mocked at Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him and scoffed at the Quran saying mockingly that if there were a paradise, they would enter it along with those who believed. No, they should have no hope to enter the paradise since they will have no share in it, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: 'Surely (as for) those who reject Our Communications and turn away from them haughtily, the doors of heaven shall not be opened for them, nor shall they enter the garden until the camel pass through the eye of the needle; and thus do We reward the guilty' (al-A'raf: 40). Therefore, what is it that they mock and scoff at when they were created from what they know, i.e. from contemptible water, as He Glorified is He says: 'Was he not a small seed in the seminal elements' (al-Qiyama: 37)? Further, Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him spat in his palm and said, 'Allah Glorified is He says, 'Do you think you can escape from My Punishment, O son of Adam, when I have created you from something like this?'(1)

Furthermore, Allah Glorified is He states: 'Did We not create you from contemptible water?' (al-Insan: 20) As they know what they were created from, there is no way of denying the Creator who created them, as Qatada said regarding this verse, ‘You were created from filth, O son of Adam, so fear Allah.’(1) Man is created from contemptible water, so why do they then behave arrogantly and turn away from Guidance? Further, He the Almighty says: ‘Were they created from nothing or are they the creators of themselves’ (at-Tur: 35). Neither could they say that they were created out of nothing, nor would they say that they are the creators of themselves. For this reason, He Glorified is He poses a third question for them, saying: ‘Have you considered the seed? [58] Is it you that created it or are we the creators? [59]’ (at-Talaq: 58-59) They could not also claim to be the creators of that.

(1) Al-Baghawi narrated through the chain of narrators of Ath-Tha'labi on the authority of Yusr ibn Jahhash who narrated that Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him spat in his palm then pointed to it with his finger and said, 'Allah Glorified is He says, 'Do you think you can escape from My Punishment, O son of Adam, when I have created you from something like this, and when I have fashioned you perfectly and made you complete, you walk wearing your two garments and the earth makes a sound (beneath your feet). You collected money but do not give away in the Way of Allah; then when your soul reaches the throat, you say, 'I want to give in charity, ' but it is too late for charity. See Al-Khazen, Tafsir, 4/342; Ibn Maja, Sunnan, Hadith no. 2707; and Ahmad, Musnad, Hadith no. 17842.

How could the disbelievers claim that they will enter the Garden of Bliss, that they will surpass the true believers and that they will be gathered with them in paradise? In this way, they, in fact, do not show respect to Allah the Almighty accusing Him of injustice, for how can He the Almighty assemble them as well as the believers in paradise while they are not equal?

Then, He Glorified is He says:

فَلَآ أُقۡسِمُ بِرَبِّ ٱلۡمَشَٰرِقِ وَٱلۡمَغَٰرِبِ إِنَّا لَقَٰدِرُونَ ﴿٤٠﴾
عَلَىٰٓ أَن نُّبَدِّلَ خَيۡرٗا مِّنۡهُمۡ وَمَا نَحۡنُ بِمَسۡبُوقِينَ ﴿٤١﴾

And, by the Lord of every sunrise and sunset, We have the power [40] to substitute for them others better than they are – nothing can prevent Us from doing this [41]
(The Quran, al-Ma’arij: 40 - 41)

Every place on the earth has a sunrise and a sunset; when the sun rises in a place, it sets in another and vice versa. So with every sunrise, there is sunset and accordingly there are two sunrises and two sunsets. Thus, Allah the Almighty says: ‘He is Lord of the two risings and Lord of the two settings’ (ar-Rahman: 17). Furthermore, the sunrise and the sunset differ from one day to another, and there is a sunrise and a sunset every second. Hence, He Glorified is He swears with Himself as Being the Lord of every sunrise and sunset, as they differ over the year.

(1) This narration is narrated on the authority of Bishr ibn Yazid, who narrated it from Sai'd. See ‘Abd Ar-Razzaq, Tafsir, 3332; At-Tabari, Jame' Al-Bayan, 23/621; and Al-Karmani, Gharai'b At-Tafsir, 2/1245.

Thus, the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'And, by the Lord of every sunrise and sunset, We have the power,' (al-Ma'arij: 40) is a reference to the different settings of the sun and its daily motion in addition to the benefits of the sunrise and sunset to mankind and the living beings. Some scholars expanded on this issue; Al Baghawi(1), for example, said, 'Allah Glorified is He added that He created three hundred and sixty skylights in the East and sixty skylights in the West which is the number of days a year. The sun rises and sets in each skylight on a particular day and does not rise or set from this skylight until it is the same day of the following year. This refers to the sunrises and sunsets.'(2)

With regard to His saying: 'And, by the Lord of every sunrise and sunset, We have the power,' (al-Ma'arij: 40) there are emphatic linguistic devices employed to further affirm the meaning. Here, the pronoun 'We' refers to Allah Glorified is He and indicates His Greatness. The general meaning of the verse is that He the Almighty is fully Able to destroy them and bring forth people who are better, more obedient and more pleasing to Him than them.

As for the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'We have the power [40] to substitute for them others better than they are, [41]' (al-Ma'arij: 40-41) it gives rise to a question, which is, 'Did Allah Glorified is He bring people better than them?' Some Scholars state that He the Almighty substituted for them Al-Ansar (The Helpers) and Al-Muhajirin (The Emigrants), and others maintain that He Glorified is He replaced some of the disbelievers by turning them into believers. However, the other scholars hold that Allah the Almighty did not bring others instead of them, as this only happens by way of destruction. It was just a threat for them to believe.

(1) Al Baghawi is Abu Mohamed Al-Husayn ibn Mas'ud Al-Farra' or Ibn Al-Farra'. He was dubbed Muhyi As-Sunnah (the one reviving the Sunna). He was a jurist, a Hadith scholar and an exegete. He was attributed to Bagha, a village in Khurasan located between Herat and Marw. He was born in 436 A.H. and passed away in 510 A.H. at the age of 74. His books include At-Tahdhib in Shaf'i Fiqh, Sharh As-Sunna in Hadith and Lubab At-Ta'wil Fi Ma'ani At-Tanzil in Quranic exegesis. See Az-Zirikli, Al-A'lam, 2/259.

(2) See At-Tabari, Jame' Al-Bayan, 23/283; see also Ath-Th'alabi, Al-Kashf Wa Al-Bayan, 8/139; and Al-Baghawi, Lubab At-Ta'wil, 4/26.

Similarly, Allah Glorified is He threatens those who turn away from giving in charity, saying: '…and if you turn back He will bring in your place another people, then they will not be like you' (Muhammad: 38). He Glorified is He is Self-sufficient and has Absolute Omnipotence to replace those miserly people with others who are generous in giving out in His Way out of what He provided for them. As a matter of fact, the one refraining from giving only deprives themselves of mercy. Moreover, the one committing apostasy will be replaced, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: 'O you who believe! Whoever from among you turns back from his religion, then Allah will bring a people, He shall love them and they shall love Him, lowly before the believers, mighty against the unbelievers…' (al-Ma'ida: 54). Thus, those who renounce Islam will be replaced by good people unlike them.

Nevertheless, this does not mean that the one withholding money from charity or the apostate will be destroyed; rather, they may have more wealth, power, publicity and followers. Replacement here means that they were expulsed from Allah's Mercy and there is no hope that they will return to the Way of Guidance. This is like the case of someone you advised many times, but they insist on seeking the wrong path. So, someone else says to you, 'Leave them alone.' 'Abdullah ibn 'Amr ibn Al-'As may Allah be pleased with him narrated that he heard Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him saying, 'If you see my ummah were afraid to confront an oppressor and tell him, 'You are an oppressor', then it is finished.'(1)

Regarding the saying of Allah the Almighty: '…nothing can prevent Us from doing this,' (al-Ma'arij: 41) it means that He Glorified is He could be neither unable nor overpowered, for nothing He wants shall be unfulfilled, nor can anyone be protected from Him. Allah the Almighty is fully Able to replace the disbelievers with others unlike them. No one can go beyond His Will or prevent it from pursuing its aim since He Glorified is He is the Lord of every sunrise and sunset. This is not only confined to the earth on which we live, as it represents only one of nine planets in the solar system, and there are millions of other solar systems in the galaxies of this vast cosmos. Every solar system has a sun rising and setting, and Allah Glorified is He is the Lord of the entire universe, not only the Lord our planet and solar system. Accordingly, He is the Omnipotent Whom nothing can overcome and: '…the Lord of every sunrise and sunset…' (al-Ma'arij: 41). Then, Allah the Almighty says:

(1) This Hadith is narrated on the authority of 'Abdullah ibn 'Amr ibn Al-'As may Allah be pleased with him. See Ahmad, Musnad, Hadith no. 6521 and 67842; Al-Bazzar, Musnad, Hadith no. 2374 and 2375; and At-Tabarani, Al-Mu'jam Al-Kabir, Hadith no. 14314 and 14351.

فَذَرۡهُمۡ يَخُوضُواْ وَيَلۡعَبُواْ حَتَّىٰ يُلَٰقُواْ يَوۡمَهُمُ ٱلَّذِى يُوعَدُونَ ﴿٤٢﴾

So leave them to wallow in idle talk, until they come face to face with their promised Day [42]
(The Quran, al-Ma'arij: 42)

This verse conveys an order to leave them alone, and the Arabic verb Dhar (to leave) is used in the present form, and was used in the past form only once in the Hadith wherein Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him said, 'Leave the Yemenis so long as they leave you.' Da' (leave) is another verb with the same meaning, and it is alleged that the Arabs neglected the past form of this verb as well as the verb Dhar except in the verse reading: 'Your Lord has not forsaken you, nor has He become displeased' (ad-Duha: 3). It is as if Allah the Almighty says to Prophet Muhammad, 'Leave them to Me so that I punish them and do what I please with them.' The meaning could be to let them do whatever they like to deserve the punishment and have the chastisement inflicted on them.

Regarding His saying: 'So leave them to wallow in idle talk…' (al-Ma'arij: 42) the Arabic word Yakhud (to wallow) gives a clear physical meaning because it literally means to get into a liquid, such as getting into water or mud. This word gives the feeling of entering deep water which covers what is beneath the feet of the one entering it so that they do not know where their feet are taking him, and they may fall into a hole. By contrast, the way of the one who is not walking in water is clear before them and they know where to step, without getting any harm.

The Arabic word Tal'abu means to engage in something useless. So the disbelievers' efforts cannot stand in the face of the Call to Islam since it is going on in its way and they will never overcome it. This is because all what they do is idle talks and amusement that have no effect in reality; it is only a matter of amusement. Likewise, Allah the Almighty says: 'What! Do the people of the towns feel secure from Our Punishment coming to them in the morning while they play?' (al-A'raf: 98) Their daytime is marked with futile, profitless motion that is none but a play in this worldly life and their night is marked with lacking motion or indulging into obscenity, depravity and perversion. In fact, anyone not following Allah's Way of Guidance spends their night asleep, distracted or committing acts of disobedience, and gets involved in play during their daytime. So, He Glorified is He states: 'What! Do the people of the towns feel secure from Our Punishment coming to them in the morning while they play?' (al-A'raf: 98) This means that they neither pay attention to Him nor show regard for Him. They did that intentionally, recommending and even urging one another to do it.

Afterwards, He the Almighty says: '…until they come face to face with their promised Day' (al-Ma'arij: 42). This means to leave them in their amusement, negligence and blindness until they encounter the promised Judgment Day. We can note that He Glorified is He says: '…come face to face with…' (al-Ma'arij: 42) which means that it is they who seek to see that Day despite their hatred, denial and running away from it. In addition, in His saying: '…with their promised Day,' (al-Ma'arij: 42), we note that the Day is attributed to them. So, they cannot escape or flee from it; it is waiting for them to be punished for their disbelief, and they inevitably will come to their destination. They were warned by all the Prophets of that Day of Reckoning and Recompense. Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He states:

يَوۡمَ يَخۡرُجُونَ مِنَ ٱلۡأَجۡدَاثِ سِرَاعٗا كَأَنَّهُمۡ إِلَىٰ نُصُبٖ يُوفِضُونَ ﴿٤٣﴾
خَٰشِعَةً أَبۡصَٰرُهُمۡ تَرۡهَقُهُمۡ ذِلَّةٞۚ ذَٰلِكَ ٱلۡيَوۡمُ ٱلَّذِى كَانُواْ يُوعَدُونَ ﴿٤٤﴾

The Day they will rush out of their graves as if rallying to a flag [43] eyes downcast and covered in shame: that is the Day of which they were warned [44] (The Quran, al-Ma'arij: 43 - 44)

What will occur on that promised Day against which they are warned? Allah the Almighty provides the answer, saying: 'The Day they will rush out of their graves' (al-Ma'arij: 43). In this Day, the trumpet will be blown for the second time so that all people come out of their graves. Likewise, He the Almighty says: 'And the trumpet shall be blown, when lo! From their graves they shall hasten on to their Lord' (Ya Sin: 51). Consider how magnificent the Quranic description of that scene is, as stated: 'And the trumpet shall be blown, when lo! From their graves they shall hasten on to their Lord. [51] They shall say: O woe to us! Who has raised us up from our sleeping-place? This is what the Beneficent promised and the Messenger told the truth. [52] There would be naught but a single cry, when lo! They shall all be brought before Us [53]' (Ya Sin: 51-53). This is the truth which the disbelievers always belied until they died and were buried with the certainty that they would not be raised. They believed that there would be no Day when they shall raise up from their graves and get back to life again. Then, all of a sudden, their graves are laid open to find themselves alive against their will, and they will start screaming and invoking woe against themselves, since it is vividly clear that they were in falsehood. Once they say: 'O woe to us! Who has raised us up from our sleeping-place?' (Ya Sin: 52) Allah the Almighty or the Angels reply to them, saying: '…this is what the Beneficent Allah promised and the Messengers told the truth' (Ya Sin: 52).

You can observe how great the might of bringing them forth against their will is by reflecting on His saying: 'There would be naught but a single cry, when lo! They shall all be brought before Us' (Ya Sin: 53). The verb 'be brought' is used in the passive form to indicate that they will be forced to be present and to stand before Allah Glorified is He and no one will escape since He the Almighty says: '…they shall all be brought before Us' (Ya Sin: 53). Allah Glorified is He describes their coming forth from graves as unraveling cloth because they come out very swiftly.

Then, He Glorified is He adds another account to make the description clearer, stating: '…as if rallying to a flag,' (al-Ma'arij: 43). The Arabic word Nusub refers to something erected, and it occurs in the Quran as singular and as plural. It originally signifies stones erected around the Ka'ba where the polytheists used to slaughter animals as sacrifices to their false gods. So, it refers to an erected flag to which the worshippers hasten. This is like their hastening and coming forth from graves, which entails their worry and concern regarding their final destination. But do they hasten on happily and cheerfully with delighted faces that they will meet with their Lord in Whom they believed?! No, they were not among the believers; rather, they disbelieved in Him Glorified is He rejected His commands and denied and rebelled against His Way of Guidance. Furthermore, they stood against the believers, and killed the prophets and their heirs, i.e. scholars and callers to Allah the Almighty. In this regard, Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him said, 'The scholars are the heirs of the Prophets.'

At the outset, they come out terrified with their eyes growing wild out of fear and turning to discover the place around them, still not believing that they were raised from their graves. They are in a horrible situation; billions of corpses come out from graves and no one knows what their destination will be. Such are the moments regarding which Allah Glorified is He states: '…they fear a day, in which the hearts and eyes shall turn about' (an-Nur: 37). This indicates that their hearts tremble with fear, disturbed beats and high pounding. Similarly, their eyes turn around here and there, seeing the horror which frightens them so that they overturn seeking something that gives assurance or relieves the pain they experience. But they will even undergo more grievous and dreadful horror when they get assured of their fateful destination.

Then, you find them humiliated and disgraced, and here comes their description in His saying: 'Eyes downcast and covered in shame…' (al-Ma'arij: 43-44). The disbelievers' eyes are downcast in humiliation since there is no escape or way out for them. Further, shame and ignominy will cover their faces when they become assured of the punishment befalling them. Allah Glorified is He says about these people: 'These are they who have lost their souls, and what they forged is gone from them' (Hud: 21).

Then, Allah Glorified is He ends the chapter of al-Ma'arij with His saying: '…that is the Day of which they were warned' (al-Ma'arij: 44). He the Almighty repeats that the Day of Judgment is the one against which they were warned by His Prophets, from Adam Allah's peace be upon him until Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him the last of the Messengers. Consequently, the disbelievers have no excuse since they were warned against that Day and that situation, but they did not respond to such threats, nor did they believe in the Divine Revelation, thereby they wronged themselves. Here, they are now on the Day of Judgment encountering what they used to deny and reject.

Nuh

In the Name of God, the Most Merciful, the Dispenser of Mercy

The chapter of Nuh(1).

Allah Glorified is He states:

إِنَّآ أَرۡسَلۡنَا نُوحًا إِلَىٰ قَوۡمِهِۦٓ أَنۡ أَنذِرۡ قَوۡمَكَ
مِن قَبۡلِ أَن يَأۡتِيَهُمۡ عَذَابٌ أَلِيمٞ ١

We sent Noah to his people: ‘Warn your people, before a painful punishment comes to them’ [1]
(The Quran, Nuh: 1)

The story of Prophet Nuh (Noah) Allah’s peace be upon him is mentioned frequently in the Quran, as is the case with the story of Prophet Musa (Moses) Allah’s peace be upon him. Astonishingly, the scenes of this story occur in many Quranic chapters, whereas the chapter under discussion, named after Prophet Nuh (Noah) Allah’s peace be upon him does not contain many of the main incidents of the story; rather, it deals with other scenes. It is mainly concerned with his persistence on calling his people, and that he did not fall short in admonishing them day and night, in secret and in public. However, whenever Prophet Nuh (Noah) Allah’s peace be upon him admonishes them, they turned away from him. The story of the Ark and the flood are not mentioned in this chapter as well, though they are the main incidents in his story. Likewise, his story with his son which is mentioned in the chapter of Hud is not related here.

Accordingly, every scene of the story is placed for a certain purpose, and thus we find that the chapter of Nuh does not encompass important elements of the story which are explained in the chapters of Hud and al-A'raf. Allah

(1) The chapter of Nuh is the seventy-first according to the order of chapters in the Mushaf, and it was revealed in Mecca, i.e. before Hijra, and contains no abrogated or abrogating verses. It is composed of 28 verses, and it was revealed after the chapter of an-Nahl and before the chapter of Ibrahim.

Glorified is He ends the chapter of al-Ma'arij, which precedes the chapter of Nuh under discussion, affirming that He Glorified is He has threatened and warned the people against the Day of Judgment, and that it will undoubtedly come. Given that warning, He Glorified is He introduces this chapter with an example of such warning, conveyed by one of His Prophets and Messengers, i.e. Prophet Nuh (Noah) Allah's peace be upon him. Thereby, He the Almighty dedicates a chapter for him Allah's peace be upon him.

Allah Glorified is He commences this chapter by emphasising the fact that He sent Prophet Nuh (Noah) Allah's peace be upon him to his people to warn and alert them before a painful chastisement befell them. This punishment could be the flood that occurred in this worldly life, or it is possibly the punishment of the Judgment Day on which all people will be assembled. Regarding His saying: 'We sent Noah to his people…' (Nuh: 1) it indicates that the Message of Prophet Nuh (Noah) Allah's peace be upon him was directed only to his people, as were the Messages of other Prophets, like Ibrahim (Abraham) Lut (Lot), Shu'aib (Jethro) and Saleh (Shelah) Allah's peace be upon them. All these Messages were meant to be practiced at particular times until the Noble Quran comes to encompass the comprehensive Guidance of Allah Glorified is He.

Monotheism was revealed to Prophet Nuh (Noah) and all Prophets, a fact which is crystal clear in the saying of Allah Glorified is He: 'We have sent revelation to you [Prophet] as We did to Noah and the prophets after him, to Abraham, Ishmael, Isaac, Jacob, and the Tribes, to Jesus, Job, Jonah, Aaron, and Solomon– to David We gave the book [of Psalms] ' (an-Nisa': 163).

As for the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'Warn your people, before a painful punishment comes to them,' (Nuh: 1) it means that Prophet Nuh (Noah) Allah's peace be upon him was commanded to warn his people and alert them before a painful torment would be inflicted upon them; either it is an immediate one such as the flood which afflicted them, or a deferred one, which is the chastisement of the Hereafter inflicted upon those who die without repenting from disbelief and returning to Allah the Almighty. However, why is he ordered 'to warn' them in this verse? We say that Prophet Nuh (Noah) Allah's peace be upon him lived among his people for nine hundred and fifty years calling them to Allah the Almighty until he came to a dead-end, and there were only thirteen men and a woman who believed in him after these long years. His people reached the pinnacle of denial, rejection, obstinacy and misguidance in such a way that makes warning the most befitting term to summarise his Message.

He even went so far as to invoke Allah the Almighty against his people, as mentioned at the end of this chapter, saying: 'Lord, do not leave any of the disbelievers on the earth ' (Nuh: 26). Thus, Prophet Nuh (Noah) Allah's peace be upon him invoked Him the Almighty to destroy the disbelievers completely. The most acceptable view is that the painful chastisement here refers to the flood and drowning water because He the Almighty used the phrase 'come to them', which properly refers to the flood. But when speaking of the punishment of the Judgment Day, He the Almighty states in the chapter of al-Ma'arij: 'So leave them to wallow in idle talk until they come face to face with their promised Day' (al-Ma'arij: 42). The disbelievers will 'encounter' the chastisement of the Hereafter; it will not 'come to them', whilst the flood comes to them, enters their houses and drowns them and their lands, taking down whatever comes in its way of their cattle and wealth except what Prophet Nuh (Noah) Allah's peace be upon him took with him on the board of the Ark. It is a painful punishment for them, as it caused them to lose everything; their souls, wealth, children, cattle and land.

Then, Allah Glorified is He states:

قَالَ يَٰقَوۡمِ إِنِّي لَكُمۡ نَذِيرٞ مُّبِينٌ ۝٢ أَنِ ٱعۡبُدُواْ ٱللَّهَ وَٱتَّقُوهُ وَأَطِيعُونِ ۝٣

And so he said, 'My people, I am here to warn you plainly [2]
Serve God, be mindful of Him and obey me [3]
(The Quran, Nuh: 2-3)

Allah Glorified is He assigned Prophet Nuh (Noah) Allah's peace be upon him to communicate the Message and to warn his people, so he called them, as did other Prophets, saying, 'O my people.' The Arabic word Qawm (people) refers to a particular community and conveys the meaning of standing which is the most active condition of the human being. 'People,' as used in the verse, refers to a group of persons, especially men because they take upon themselves to perform tasks, and whenever this word is mentioned in the Quran, it signifies a group of persons bound together. It also signifies men in particular because they are the ones receiving the Message at first hand, unlike women who stay at home and the Message passes to them from a father, a brother or a husband.

Further, it is stated in the Quran: ‘O you who believe! Let not to a people ridicule [another] people; perhaps they may be better than them; nor let women ridicule [other] women; perhaps they may be better than them,’ (al-Hujurat: 11). In the verse in question, the women are not included under the word ‘people’, since it refers to those confronting any Messenger and who cause troubles, reject the Message and typically wage war against the Prophet and his followers.

Addressing his people, Prophet Nuh (Noah) Allah’s peace be upon him said: ‘My people, I am here to warn you plainly. [2] Serve Allah, be mindful of Him and obey me,’ (Nuh: 2-3). He started with giving a warning, whereas in the chapter of al-A'raf he started with the objectives of his Message then warned them, as Allah Glorified is He says: 'Certainly We sent Noah to his people, so he said: O my people! Serve Allah, you have no god other than Him; surely I fear for you the chastisement of a grievous day, ' (al-A‘raf: 59).

Thus, Prophet Nuh (Noah) Allah’s peace be upon him wanted to draw the attention of his people to the significance of what he delivers to them, saying: ‘My people, I am here to warn you plainly’ (Nuh: 2). According to one of the recitations of this verse in question, the letter Hamza has the diacritical mark Kasra and in another recitation it has Fatha; in the recitation where the Kasra is used the meaning is that Prophet Nuh (Noah) Allah’s peace be upon him came with the Message and communicated it to his people, saying: ‘My people, I am here to warn you plainly’ (Nuh: 2). However, in the recitation where the Fatha is used, the meaning is that the content of the Message is that he is a plain warner to them, as though the first recitation implies a narration of how he conveyed the Message, but the second defines its content, namely, that he was a plain warner to them.

We have previously explained that a warner tells of something evil whose time has not come yet so that the listener gets ready for it. It is directed to the disobedient or the disbeliever, while a believer is given good news to get prepared for it and receive it with a reassured soul. Then, Allah the Almighty relates that Prophet Nuh (Noah) Allah's peace be upon him said to his people: 'Serve Allah, be mindful of Him and obey me' (Nuh: 2). Thus, his Message comprised three issues: offering worship to Allah, piety and obeying His Commands. The command of offering worship to Allah the Almighty follows the explanatory particle Anna as in His saying: 'We revealed to the mother of Moses…' (al-Qasas: 7). But what is it that which was revealed? It is: '…suckle him…' (al-Qasas: 7).

Worship signifies obedience to Allah Glorified is He by performing what He commands and abstaining from what He prohibits. So, it means abiding by His Commands. Hence, if someone claims divinity without having a way of worship, we will ask him, 'How could we worship you? Where is your way of guidance? What are your commands and what are your prohibitions?' The people of Prophet Nuh (Noah) Allah's peace be upon him used to worship idols instead of Allah Glorified is He. The names of these idols were: Wadd, Suwa', Yaghuth, Ya'uq and Nasr, who had been righteous people, but when they died, people made idols of them to remember their righteousness whenever they saw them. Yet, with the progress of the times, they worshiped them instead of Allah Glorified is He.

Therefore, the Message of Prophet Nuh (Noah) Allah's peace be upon him was to: 'Serve Allah, be mindful of Him and obey me' (Nuh: 3). This means to worship Him the Almighty Alone, not to associate partners to Him and to fear Him and His punishment; this is the meaning of piety. Accordingly, he Allah's peace be upon him said to them: '…be mindful of Him...' (Nuh: 3). This entails fearing Him the Almighty avoiding His punishment and recompense and taking faith as a protection and salvation from His chastisement. Prophet Nuh (Noah) Allah's peace be upon him then said: '…and obey me,' (Nuh: 3). He did not say 'obey Him,' since their obedience to him Allah's peace be upon him is obedience to Allah the Almighty. So, he said 'obey me' because he warned them against Allah's Punishment and wished them all the good. That is why they should obey him in order that Allah's Punishment would not befall them.

All the Prophets addressed their people with the same speech; for example, Prophet Hud (Eber) Allah's peace be upon him said to his people: 'Surely I am a faithful apostle to you; [107] Therefore guard against (the punishment of)

Allah and obey me [108]' (ash-Shu'ara': 107-108). Prophet Saleh (Shelah) said the same to his people, as did Prophet Lut (Lot) and Prophet Shu'aib (Jethro) Allah's peace be upon them all.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He states:

يَغْفِرْ لَكُم مِّن ذُنُوبِكُمْ وَيُؤَخِّرْكُمْ إِلَىٰٓ أَجَلٍ مُّسَمًّىۚ إِنَّ
أَجَلَ ٱللَّهِ إِذَا جَآءَ لَا يُؤَخَّرُۚ لَوْ كُنتُمْ تَعْلَمُونَ ﴿٤﴾

He will forgive you your sins and spare you until your appointed time — when God's appointed time arrives it cannot be postponed. If only you understood! [4]
(The Quran, Nuh: 4)

The saying of Allah the Almighty: 'He will forgive you your sins…' (Nuh: 4) is the result and the fruit of worshipping Him Alone, observing piety and obedience to Him. This verse, with this word order, is repeated in other verses, as in His saying: 'Their Messenger said: Is there doubt about Allah, the Maker of the heavens and the earth? He invites you to forgive you your faults and to respite you till an appointed term ' (ar-Ra'd: 10). Addressing the disbelievers, Allah Glorified is He does not say, 'forgive your sins,' whilst He addresses the believers, saying: 'O you who believe! Shall I lead you to a merchandise which may deliver you from a painful chastisement?[10] You shall believe in Allah and His Messenger, and struggle hard in Allah's way with your property and your lives; that is better for you, did you but know?[11] He will forgive you your faults… [12]' (as-Saff: 10-12). So, He Glorified is He addresses the believers in a way which is different from that of the disbelievers.

Regarding His saying: '…and spare you until your appointed time…' (Nuh: 4), the appointed time refers to the Judgment Day which indicates the end of this worldly life and the beginning of the Hereafter. So, He the Almighty then says: '…when Allah's appointed time arrives, it cannot be postponed. If only you understood!' (Nuh: 4) This fact is affirmed by the particle Inna of emphasis. The Arabic word Ajal (appointed time) is mentioned in many verses, as in His saying: 'And for every nation there is a doom, so when their doom is come, they shall not remain behind the least while, nor shall they go before, ' (al-A'raf: 34); and '…when Allah's appointed time arrives, it cannot be postponed…' (Nuh: 4). However, the two appointed times are different regarding man's presence in this worldly life; the first appointed time refers to the end of one's life while the second refers to bringing one to life again to meet with Allah the Almighty in the Hereafter. So, they are somehow related.

The term appointed by Allah the Almighty be it that which ends life or brings it back, could not be postponed from its due time. So, the term appointed by Allah is recorded in the Preserved Tablet and will not be delayed if its due time comes, that is, none can defer it. As for His saying: '…if only you understand' (Nuh: 4), it means 'if they could know how regretful they would be when their term is over, they would believe and hasten on to worship Allah the Almighty and observe piety and obedience to Him.'

Due to his people's rejection, Prophet Noah Allah's peace be upon him directed his speech to Allah Glorified is He saying:

قَالَ رَبِّ إِنِّي دَعَوْتُ قَوْمِي لَيْلًا وَنَهَارًا ﴿٥﴾ فَلَمْ يَزِدْهُمْ دُعَاءِيَ إِلَّا فِرَارًا ﴿٦﴾

He said, 'My Lord, I have called my people night and day [5] but the more I call them, the further they run away [6]
(The Quran, Nuh: 5 - 6)

Prophet Nuh (Noah) Allah's peace be upon him constantly admonished his people day and night, and was not neglectful in that. He did not conceal guidance and advice from them, but they did not respond, so here he invokes his Lord, saying, 'I have conveyed the Message and I directed myself to You and I am clear of that which they do. I have invited them night and day to monotheism and to worship You and warned them against Your Might and Power.'

Then, Allah the Almighty relates that Prophet Nuh (Noah) Allah's peace be upon him said: 'But the more I call them, the further they run away, ' (Nuh: 6). Allah Glorified is He uses the letter Fa' indicating consecutiveness and insistence, for Prophet Nuh (Noah) Allah's peace be upon him kept calling his people night and day, in secret and in public for about a thousand years, but they used to turn away from faith. Hence, He Glorified is He employs the letter Fa' denoting consecutiveness, whereas his nine hundred and fifty years of consecutive admonition increased them but in disbelief, obstinacy and turning away from faith.

Allah Glorified is He then states:

وَإِنِّي كُلَّمَا دَعَوْتُهُمْ لِتَغْفِرَ لَهُمْ جَعَلُوٓا۟ أَصَٰبِعَهُمْ فِىٓ ءَاذَانِهِمْ
وَٱسْتَغْشَوْا۟ ثِيَابَهُمْ وَأَصَرُّوا۟ وَٱسْتَكْبَرُوا۟ ٱسْتِكْبَارًا ٧

Every time I call them, so that You may forgive them, they thrust their fingers into their ears, cover their heads with their garments, persist in their rejection, and grow more insolent and arrogant [7] (The Quran, Nuh: 7)

Prophet Nuh (Noah) Allah's peace be upon him continues complaining to his Lord that whenever he called his people to worship and fear Him the Almighty Alone, they used to respond in a way indicating the intensity of their rejection of his call and insistence on disbelief. He the Almighty says that: '…they thrust their fingers into their ears…' (Nuh: 7). It is axiomatically known that the whole finger cannot enter one's ears, but it is only the fingertip which blocks the auditory opening. The Quran described it by way of exaggeration to reveal their evil and bad attitude towards Prophet Nuh (Noah) Allah's peace be upon him. Every one of them wanted to put their whole finger in their ears in order to block out any call. This is a proof of their hatred and a testimony against them since they do not understand that their hearts may soften if they listen to him. This is always the case with the people of falsehood; they do not like to listen to the truth, and the first thing they would do is to block their ears from hearing it or to prevent the people of truth from disseminating their Message or even to kill them.

It once happened that the people of Quraysh urged one another not to listen to the Quran, saying: 'Do not listen to this Quran and make noise therein, perhaps you may overcome' (Fussilat: 26). They did so because they believed that if the Quran reached one's ears, it might influence them. So, if the Quran was false, why then did they fear hearing it? Putting their fingers in their ears was not enough! Therefore, they also '…cover their heads with their garments, persist in their rejection, and grow more insolent and arrogant' (Nuh: 7). Not only did they want to ignore Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace be upon him by blocking their ears, but also by not seeing him. So, they '…thrust their fingers into their ears…' (Nuh: 7) so as not to listen to him; and they: '…cover their heads with their garments…' (Nuh: 7) so as not to see him.

Allah Glorified is He depicts an image related to this context to clarify how the people of Prophet Nuh (Noah) Allah's peace be upon him turned away from his admonition and rejected it, using the word 'their fingers' to imply their rejection and how it was unreasonably exaggerated in their attempt to put their whole fingers into their ears. In addition to this outright rejection by means of blocking their ears, Allah Glorified is He shows their rejection to see while talking to them, saying: '…cover their heads with their garments…' (Nuh: 7). Yet, they insisted on their rejection to his call as stated: '…and grow more insolent and arrogant ' (Nuh: 7). Prophet Nuh (Noah) Allah's peace be upon him used to come to their idols at night and shout at the top of his voice saying, 'There is no god but Allah and I am Noah His Messenger ' so that their idols got inverted so they would beat him fiercely and step on his belly until blood came out of his nose and ears.(1)

When one of them was about to die, they would instruct their children and take a covenant upon them not to believe in Prophet Nuh (Noah) Allah's peace be upon him saying, 'O my son, look at this man, my father carried me to him and warned me against believing in him so beware of him not to let you renounce your belief, for he is a magician and a liar.' This happened consecutively over the centuries, for every generation would instruct the following one not to believe in him and to beware of him; grandfathers instructing fathers who in turn instruct their sons and so on. They did insist on their disbelief despite the earnest attempts made by Prophet Nuh (Noah) Allah's peace be upon him to urge them to believe or even to give themselves a chance to listen to him. However, they: '…grow more insolent and arrogant' (Nuh: 7). So, they deserved Allah's chastisement because they denied, were obstinate and took pride in their sins. With such pride they wanted to flee from the commitment to the Guidance brought forth by Prophet Nuh (Noah) Allah's peace be upon him. The Arabic word Takabar (grow more arrogant) indicates that this arrogance was extrinsic; it would swiftly vanish and go away. They were not only proud but they were also excessively arrogant. Thus, this arrogance exceeded the limits and imagination, and thereby they deserved a punishment not inflicted on anyone before or after them, i.e. the flood. Further, Prophet Nuh (Noah) Allah's peace be upon him stayed among them for nine hundred and fifty years calling them to Allah the Almighty, and yet they did not believe. Accordingly, they were worthy of his invocation to eradicate and wipe them out, and He Glorified is He responded to his invocation.

Prophet Nuh (Noah) Allah's peace be upon him only invited them to worship Allah the Almighty Alone, to forgive them, saying: 'Every time I call them so that You may forgive them…' (Nuh: 7). He did not invite them to do him a personal benefit, but only to be forgiven for their disbelief and denial. In this way, their belief would be for their own good, as they receive Allah's Forgiveness and Mercy, evade His punishment and get many of His Blessings bestowed on the believers.

Allah Glorified is He states:

ثُمَّ إِنِّي دَعَوْتُهُمْ جِهَارًا ﴿٨﴾ ثُمَّ إِنِّي أَعْلَنتُ لَهُمْ وَأَسْرَرْتُ لَهُمْ إِسْرَارًا ﴿٩﴾
فَقُلْتُ اسْتَغْفِرُوا رَبَّكُمْ إِنَّهُ كَانَ غَفَّارًا ﴿١٠﴾

I have tried calling them openly [8] I have tried preaching to them in public and speaking to them in private [9] I said, "Ask forgiveness of your Lord: He is ever forgiving [10]
(The Quran, Nuh: 8 - 10)

Prophet Nuh (Noah) Allah's peace be upon him clears himself of committing shortcomings in calling his people or of having neglected what Allah the Almighty commanded him to convey. So, despite their rejection and putting their fingers in their ears so that they do not hear him and covering themselves with their garments so as not to watch him, and in spite of their excessive insolence and arrogance, he went on with his calling, as he says: 'I have tried calling them openly,' (Nuh: 8). This shows that Prophet Nuh (Noah) Allah's peace be upon him invited them publicly in their markets and roads, not fearing their mockery or aggression. The word 'openly' means calling and announcing to them loudly and clearly to the top of his voice, not lowering it or murmuring. Rather, he was shouting with the warnings supposed to be delivered to them, given the fact that Allah Glorified is He sent him Allah's peace be upon him to warn his people and he declared this Message and delivered it to them loudly and publicly. In this regard, He the Almighty says: 'We sent Noah to his people: 'Warn your people, before a painful punishment comes to them' (Nuh: 1).

As for the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'I have tried preaching to them in public and speaking to them in private. 'Then surely I spoke to them in public and I spoke to them in secret' (Nuh: 9), it shows that Prophet Nuh (Noah) Allah's peace be upon him tried with them all possible means and ways of calling the notable people publicly and the individuals secretly. The Arabic word Israr (in secret) is a verbal noun indicating emphasis, and the Arabic word Lahum (to them) draws our attention to the fact that Prophet Nuh (Noah) Allah's peace be upon him desired and was very cautious that his people would believe. So, this word is repeated to denote his insistence on attracting them to belief, for he had them in mind all the time. Prophet Nuh (Noah) Allah's peace be upon him even went beyond that as to wish for them to be forgiven, so he enticed them to ask Allah Glorified is He for forgiveness. But how could it happen when they did not believe in Him the Almighty as the only God worthy of worship, and ascribed to him idols which neither benefit nor harm, and which neither hear nor see?

As for the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'I said, 'Ask forgiveness of your Lord: He is ever forgiving,' (Nuh: 10) it shows how merciful Prophet Nuh (Noah) Allah's peace be upon him was towards his people, as he encouraged them to ask for forgiveness, which signifies repentance and admitting one's bad deeds. If Allah Glorified is He did not legislate repentance and forgiveness, the one who committed a sin would get expelled from His Mercy. So, what would the attitude of such a sinner in the society be? They would inflict all evil on the society out of losing hope in themselves and then they become more aggressive and increases in committing sins and evil deeds. Thus, forgiveness represents confession of one's sins and shortcomings, and the moment you ask for forgiveness from Him Glorified is He, this expresses your declaration of faith and acknowledgement that His obligations are the true ones. Having asked for forgiveness, the repentant should never commit the sin again, and should be cautious to keep away from acts of disobedience and sins. We should consider that we ask for forgiveness from ‘our Lord’ Who created and brought us into and He nourishes us with His Provision and Care. Therefore, if you ask Him for forgiveness, He will not let you down.

Regarding His saying: '…He is ever forgiving, ' (Nuh: 10) the Arabic word for Ghaffar (ever forgiving) represents the highest form of exaggeration, for it is mentioned in the active participle form elsewhere in His saying: 'The Forgiver of the faults and the Acceptor of repentance…' (Ghafir: 3). Allah’s most beautiful Attributes include both forms, namely Ghafir (Forgiver) and Ghafour (forgiving). The exaggerated form may also be used to denote the recurrence of the act, i.e. Allah Glorified is He forgives His servants many times for their numerous sins. So, Allah the Almighty is Forgiver in the case of one sin, and He is permanently Ever-Forgiving at all times and for all sins, however many they are. In Arabic, the verse: '…He is ever forgiving, ' (Nuh: 10) is put in the past tense to indicate that He is most Forgiving even before there was anyone in need of forgiveness since Allah Glorified is He is not confined to the boundaries of time. So, no one should mistakenly think that the past tense is employed to indicate that it happened in the past and no longer in the present.

Allah states:

يُرْسِلِ ٱلسَّمَآءَ عَلَيْكُم مِّدْرَارًا ⑪
وَيُمْدِدْكُم بِأَمْوَٰلٍ وَبَنِينَ وَيَجْعَل لَّكُمْ جَنَّٰتٍ وَيَجْعَل لَّكُمْ أَنْهَٰرًا ⑫

He will send down abundant rain from the sky for you [11]
He will give you wealth and sons; He will provide you with gardens and rivers [12] (The Quran, Nuh: 11-12)

In fact, asking for forgiveness and repentance to Allah the Almighty opens the doors of heaven with rain, as He says here: ‘He will send down abundant rain from the sky for you’ (Nuh: 11). This means that despite their disbelief in Him Glorified is He He will not deprive them of His Bestowal of Lordship especially if they ask for forgiveness and repentance. The Arabic word Irsal (sending) denotes that sending down the rain from heaven is constant, whereas ‘sending down,’ as mentioned in other verses, indicates that rain would fall only once. For this reason, He Glorified is He states: '…We send down pure water from the cloud ' (al-Furqan: 48). This is because rain does not fall all the time, whereas sending implies continuity. Moreover, He Glorified is He states: 'And We send the winds fertilizing…' (al-Hijr: 22). So when continuity is intended, He Glorified is He uses the Arabic word Irsal 'sending,' and the evidence is that as He describes the coming of the flood, stating: 'Therefore We sent upon them the flood…' (al-A'raf: 133).

In this vein, when Prophet Hud (Eber) Allah's peace be upon him wanted to encourage the people of 'Ad, to ask for forgiveness, repent and renounce disbelief and disobedience, he said to them: 'And, O my people! Ask forgiveness of your Lord, then turn to Him; He will send on you clouds pouring down abundance of rain…' (Hud: 52). Allah Glorified is He makes sending rain dependent on their asking for forgiveness, and this is also the case with the people of Prophet Nuh (Noah) Allah's peace be upon him a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: 'I said, 'Ask forgiveness of your Lord: He is ever forgiving. [10] He will send down abundant rain from the sky for you [11]' (Nuh: 10-11). Someone may ask, 'How can asking forgiveness be related to a universal phenomenon such as rain?' We say, 'The universe has a Sovereign Who possesses everything in it, its inanimate things, plants and animals. He, the Omnipotent, is fully Able to change the nature of the created beings. For example, if there is a cloud and it is likely to rain, He the Almighty can prevent its falling, as He Glorified is He states elsewhere: 'So when they saw it as a cloud appearing in the sky advancing towards their valleys, they said: This is a cloud which will give us rain. Nay! It is what you sought to hasten on, a blast of wind in which is a painful punishment ' (al-Ahqaf: 24). Therefore, we should not think that things occur randomly; rather, there is a Lord Who manages the affairs of everything and Who orders that a thing should or should not happen. Likewise, Allah the Almighty may order the sky to withhold its rain so that land gets dry and barren with no plants in it, and in turn there will be no animals, and consequently mankind will find no plant or meat to consume.

In the verse in question, the abundant rain is that which pours down in abundance without causing harm, as it may fall in a way that causes damage and destruction, whereas the 'abundant rain' here does not harm. Rather, it brings about benefits. When the rain falls in such benefitting and continuous way, the land will be full of greenery and befitting for living and will increase our power.

In fact, water is the most essential element for people's lives and strength, and thereby Allah Glorified is He says: 'He will give you wealth and sons; He will provide you with gardens and rivers' (Nuh: 12). Here, four things, which constitute a source of power, come down from heaven following asking for forgiveness and repentance: wealth, children, gardens and rivers. Provisions are one of Allah's Blessings, along with bringing us into existence and enjoining obligations. Thus, if you love Him the Almighty for His Blessings of bringing us into existence and granting us provisions, you should also love Him for the Blessing of enjoining obligations. In fact, Allah Glorified is He is fully Able to bring into existence and to provide, and He brought the people into existence and gave them the provision of wealth and children which keep increasing.

Regarding His saying: '…He will provide you with gardens and rivers,' (Nuh: 12) this verse has unlimited meanings since it is Divinely structured by the most Wise, the Omniscient with such beauty and eloquence that if one ponders over it, they will conclude that it can never be produced or imitated by a human being. Here, arises a question which is, 'Why does Allah Glorified is He mention the rivers before the gardens, in spite of the latter being a cause to the former?' We say, 'The answer to this question reveals the greatness of the Quranic structure. In the preceding verse, Allah the Almighty states: 'He will send down abundant rain from the sky for you' (Nuh: 11). So it is more suitable to mention the gardens after it which grow naturally on rain water.'

Allah Glorified is He says about the heavens: 'Who created the seven heavens one `above another; you see no incongruity in the creation of the Beneficent; then look again, can you see any disorder?' (al-Mulk: 3) The word 'heaven' generally refers to whatever covers you; however, does heaven signify the sun, the moon or the stars, all of which is over us? Or does it refer to the planets? This is all untrue, for the planets were made to adorn the heaven, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: 'Surely, We have adorned the nearest heaven with an adornment, the stars ' (as-Saffat: 6). Allah Glorified is He also created the sun to enlighten the earth at daytime, and the moon to do the same at night when it is full, i.e. in the middle of the lunar month. As for the stars, they are also made to adorn the heaven and to serve as landmarks guiding people in deserts and seas, as He the Almighty says: 'And He it is Who has made the stars for you that you might follow the right way thereby in the darkness of the land and the sea….' (al-An'am: 97) Accordingly, the heaven is much greater than all these celestial bodies. He the Almighty does not tell us that He created only one heaven, but rather seven heavens, each of which is above the other. In the creation of the heavens, there is greatness in making, fashioning and maintenance as befits Allah's Omnipotence. He created them one above another, as He says in another verse: 'That you shall most certainly enter one state after another ' (al-Inshiqaq: 19). This may also mean that they are made into identical states above one another.

Then, Allah the Almighty says:

مَّا لَكُمۡ لَا تَرۡجُونَ لِلَّهِ وَقَارٗا ﴿١٣﴾ وَقَدۡ خَلَقَكُمۡ أَطۡوَارًا ﴿١٤﴾
أَلَمۡ تَرَوۡاْ كَيۡفَ خَلَقَ ٱللَّهُ سَبۡعَ سَمَٰوَٰتٖ طِبَاقٗا ﴿١٥﴾
وَجَعَلَ ٱلۡقَمَرَ فِيهِنَّ نُورٗا وَجَعَلَ ٱلشَّمۡسَ سِرَاجٗا ﴿١٦﴾

What is the matter with you? Why will you not fear God's majesty [13] When He has created you stage by stage? [14] Have you ever wondered how God created seven heavens, one above the other [15] Placed the moon as a light in them and the sun as a lamp [16] (The Quran, Nuh: 13 - 16)

Here, Prophet Nuh (Noah) Allah's peace be upon him draws the attention of his people to contemplate what is in the heavens, saying about his Lord: '[He] placed the moon as a light in them and the sun as a lamp' (Nuh: 16). Prophet Nuh (Noah) Allah's peace be upon him draws their attention to the moon and the sun. Here, Allah Glorified is He mentions the moon first, then the sun, but reverses their order in the chapter of Yunus, saying: 'He it is who made the sun a shining brightness and the moon a light…' (Yunus: 5). The sun is referred to as a lamp and a shining light, whilst in both chapters the moon is depicted as a light. The difference between light and lamp lies in the fact that a lamp produces heat and warmth, so you may need a shade to protect you from its heat. But for a light, one needs no such shade because it does not emanate heat, which is only produced when the source of the light is self-lightened such as the sun. Concerning the moon, its light is not intrinsic, as it is mere reflection of the sun rays, as when you direct light on a mirror, it reflects it back. Thus, Allah Glorified is He describes the sun as a lamp which gives light and heat such as the lamp which we turn on to give self-produced heat and light.

Allah states:

وَٱللَّهُ أَنۢبَتَكُم مِّنَ ٱلۡأَرۡضِ نَبَاتٗا ﴿١٧﴾ ثُمَّ يُعِيدُكُمۡ فِيهَا وَيُخۡرِجُكُمۡ إِخۡرَاجٗا ﴿١٨﴾
وَٱللَّهُ جَعَلَ لَكُمُ ٱلۡأَرۡضَ بِسَاطٗا ﴿١٩﴾ لِّتَسۡلُكُواْ مِنۡهَا سُبُلٗا فِجَاجٗا ﴿٢٠﴾

God made you spring forth from the earth like a plant [17]
how He will return you into it and then bring you out again [18] and how He has spread the Earth out for you [19] to walk along its spacious paths? [20] (The Quran, Nuh: 17-20)

Regarding His saying: ‘How Allah made you spring forth from the earth like a plant,’ (Nuh: 17), it explains the process of planting. The land produces plants, but is not in itself the cause of it. Allah Glorified is He may use the verb form and then use the verbal noun form intending the name of it. The phrase ‘made you spring forth’ denotes that He brings plants for us out of the land. Planting may be used with the meaning of bringing into being, as in His saying: 'And He it is Who has brought you into being from a single soul…' (al-An‘am: 98). Bringing into being means to create something without help or using other created objects, as stated in His saying: '…He brought you into being from the earth, and made you dwell in it…' (Hud: 61).

Allah the Almighty brings the human beings into existence through sexual intercourse between the husband and the wife. However, if we trace this creation back to its primary beginning, i.e. Adam, we will find that He Glorified is He created him out of the same substance of the earth which is also one of His creatures. The husband's semen and the wife's ovum are composed of the extract of blood produced from the food which in turn comes from the earth. Hence, everything is traced back to the earth whether you refer to the creation of Adam from the earth or the reproduction of the human beings.

The confirmed fact that Allah the Almighty originates the human being from the earth points to the unity of the origins of life on the earth and shows that the creation of the human being is like that of the plant. It starts as a seed sowed in the soil and then irrigated, and it needs light, heat and the nutrient that passes from the ground to the leaves through the roots and stems. Thus, the human being consists of the original elements of earth and feeds on them to grow. In this sense, s/he is regarded as a plant.

Then, Allah the Almighty says: ‘How He will return you into it and then bring you out again.’ (Nuh: 18) As we were created from the earth, we will return into it when we die. The dead person's body blends with the earth and its atoms merge with those of the earth. So, no one should question the fact that Allah Glorified is He will resurrect the human beings, as their atoms exist in the earth. In this regard, He the Almighty says: ‘Did We fail in the first creation? But they are in confusion over a new creation.’ (Qaf: 15) Thus, He the Almighty mentions the first creation as evidence for the possibility of the second creation, i.e. the Resurrection after death. Hence, if you wonder at the fact that you will be raised from the dead, you should call to mind that He Glorified is He has originated your bodily parts, atoms and specifications in the first creation out of nothing. So, if He the Almighty has created you out of nothing, how can He be unable to re-create you out of something?

The saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘How He will return you into it and then bring you out again’ (Nuh: 18) means that He Glorified is He returns the human beings into the earth—from which they were created and in which their bodies decay. Afterwards, He Glorified is He brings them out of the earth and resurrect them. He the Almighty emphasizes this fact with the verbal noun Ikhraja (bringing out), that is, He will undoubtedly resurrect the people buried in the earth ‘And how He has spread the Earth out for you [19] to walk along its spacious paths’ (Nuh: 19-20).

Here, Allah the Almighty describes the earth as an expanse or a well-prepared bed. Similarly, He Glorified is He says: ‘[He] who made for you the earth a bed [spread out]’ (al-Baqara: 22); and ‘[It is He] who has made for you the earth as a bed [spread out]’ (Ta Ha: 53). Here the Almighty reminds the people of Nuh (Noah) about His Favours and Blessings upon them and all other creatures. Allah Glorified is He spread out the earth for them so that they settle on it and exploit its leveled ways. This is meant for the benefit of all the creation. If the earth were not so, the people would not meet their needs or make use of it. As it is leveled land, we can travel from a place to another. If the earth was not flattened or paved, the human beings could not live on it comfortably and easily; the life would be difficult as is the case with mountain dwellers. For this reason, the great majority of people live in the leveled land like the valleys and around the rivers. Thus, Allah the Almighty reminds the people of Nuh about leveling and facilitating the earth as a Blessing in order that they move freely and easily. That is why He the Almighty then says: ‘To walk along its spacious paths’ (Nuh: 20). Out of His Grace and Wisdom, Allah the Almighty made for us pathways on the earth to follow and tread through. If mountains were mere blocks filling the earth, the earth would not be suitable for living and movement. In another verse, He the Almighty says: ‘And We placed within the earth firmly set mountains, lest it should shift with them, and We made therein [mountain] passes [as] roads that they might be guided.’ (al-Anbiya’: 31) Here, 'the spacious paths' refer to the wide paths and roadways. In the aforementioned verse, the adverb 'therein' refers to the earth or the mountains because both contain pathways through which the people walk. These pathways exist in mountains in the shape of defiles.

In fact, the wording of the Quran is precise and marvelous; it here says: ‘To walk along…?’ (Nuh: 20), employing the preposition Min (along) instead of Fi (in). This is because using the preposition 'in' connotes entering deep inside the earth, while the preposition 'along' connotes taking roads and routes on the surface of the earth which may be tortuous. However, Allah Glorified is He uses the preposition 'in' in His saying: ‘It is He] who has made for you the earth as a bed [spread out] and inserted therein for your roadways.’ (Ta Ha: 53) These roadways are well-prepared and leveled so that we can smoothly and easily reach our destinations.

The verb Salak (walk through) can be transitive, as when it is said, 'So-and-so followed the road.' Similarly, Allah Glorified is He says: ‘[And asking them], 'What put you into Saqar?’ (al-Muddaththir: 42) And ‘Insert your hand into the opening of your garment.’ (al-Qasas: 32) The earth contains wide pathways and thus one of the early Arabs described the universe, saying, ‘A sky with stars and an earth with pathways.’ The Arabic word Fijaj (wide pathways) is also mentioned in His saying: ‘And proclaims to the people the Hajj [pilgrimage]; they will come to you on foot and on every lean camel; they will come from every distant pass.’ (al-Hajj: 27) The Arabic word Fajj (a path) refers to a road that is as wide as what we now call 'an expressway'. In the previous verse, it means that the pilgrims come from all directions and places. This word also refers to the mountain passes and pathways.

Then Allah the Almighty says about Prophet Nuh peace be upon him:

قَالَ نُوحٞ رَّبِّ إِنَّهُمۡ عَصَوۡنِي وَٱتَّبَعُواْ مَن لَّمۡ يَزِدۡهُ مَالُهُۥ وَوَلَدُهُۥٓ إِلَّا خَسَارٗا ٢١

Noah said, ‘My Lord, they have disobeyed me and followed those whose riches and children only increase their ruin [21]
(The Quran, Nuh: 21)

Here, Prophet Nuh peace be upon him addresses His Lord and tells Him that his people disobeyed him, though he peace be upon him knows for certain that Allah the Almighty is fully Aware of what he and his people do even before being sent as a Prophet. He peace be upon him was sent to a people who worshipped idols like Wadd, Suwa', Yaghuth, Ya'uq and Nasr besides Allah Glorified is He. As long as he peace be upon him is sent by his Lord as a Prophet, he is to inform Him of the outcome of his Message to clear himself of falling short in fulfill his responsibility for notifying his people. He said, 'My Lord! I have imparted your Message.' Regarding the Message that Prophet Nuh peace be upon him was assigned to deliver to his people, He the Almighty says: ‘And We had certainly sent Nuh to his people, and he said, “O my people, worship Allah; you have no deity other than Him; then will you not fear Him?”’ (al-Mu’minun: 23) The people of Nuh rejected his Call and saw him as a mere human who craved leadership and mastery, a fact which is clear in His saying: ‘But the eminent among those who disbelieved from his people said, “This is not but a man like yourselves who wishes to take precedence over you.”’ (al-Mu’minun: 24)

So, the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘Nuh said, “My Lord, they have disobeyed me and followed those whose riches and children only increase their ruin.”’

(Nuh: 21) means that Prophet Nuh peace be upon him states that his people disobeyed him and denied his Call to the right Guidance and Monotheism. Further, the riffraff and the weak followed their leaders and chieftains who possessed wealth and had a lot of children, which made them powerful and influential enough to stand in the way of his Call.

Allah the Almighty endowed them with wealth and children, yet their disbelief, wealth and children made them increase in their error and loss in this worldly life and led to their ruin in the Hereafter. As for the weak and riffraff, they followed in the footsteps of their leaders who were deluded by their wealth and children, and that is why they increased their loss in the Hereafter. Being short-sighted, the riffraff followed the wealthy and influential leaders and were dazzled by power and wealth. In fact, this is a common phenomenon, as He the Almighty says about Qarun: 'Indeed, Qarun was from the people of Musa, but he tyrannized them. And We gave him of treasures whose keys would burden a band of strong men; thereupon his people said to him, "Do not exult. Indeed, Allah does not like the exultant."' (al-Qasas: 76)

However, Qarun did not listen to his people's advice and was beguiled by his wealth and Allah's Favours. Thereupon, He the Almighty says: 'So he came out before his people in his adornment. Those who desired the worldly life said, 'Oh, would that we had like what was given to Qarun. Indeed, he is one of great fortune.' (al-Qasas: 79) Those who craved the worldly life are those who: '…followed those whose riches and children only increase their ruin.' (Nuh: 21)

Both the misleading leaders of the people of Nuh and their followers were drowned by the flood. As regards Qarun, Allah Glorified is He caused the ground to swallow him along with his mansion. None backed him or protected him against Allah's Punishment, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: 'And those who had wished for his position the previous day began to say, "Oh, how Allah extends provision to whom He wills of His servants and restricts it! If not that Allah had conferred favor on us, He would have caused it to swallow us. Oh, how the disbelievers do not succeed!' (al-Qasas: 82) Those who worship deities besides Allah Glorified is He reaped nothing but loss and this is the greatest disappointment for them. Their disbelief and denial lead to loss which begins suddenly when the Day of Judgment comes.

The disbelievers among the people of Nuh lost in this worldly life as they were drowned by the flood and will surely lose in the Hereafter as they will go to hell. This loss is irreparable and eternal as there is no room for repentance in its wake.

Allah the Almighty clarifies for us what the misguiding leaders, who led their followers astray, did, saying:

وَمَكَرُوا۟ مَكْرًا كُبَّارًا ﴿٢٢﴾ وَقَالُوا۟ لَا تَذَرُنَّ ءَالِهَتَكُمْ وَلَا تَذَرُنَّ وَدًّا
وَلَا سُوَاعًا وَلَا يَغُوثَ وَيَعُوقَ وَنَسْرًا ﴿٢٣﴾

Who have made a grand plan [22] saying, “Do not renounce your gods! Do not renounce Wadd, Suwa′, Yaghuth, Ya′uq, or Nasr!” [23] (The Quran, Nuh: 22 - 23)

The Arabic word Makr (plotting) originally refers to the trees whose small trunks and branches mix together that no one can distinguish each tree. Likewise, to plot means to scheme against your opponent secretly. A person who prevaricates is the one who makes an artifice. If plotting is not for the purpose of harm, it is called a trick, ploy, and stratagem and so on. If it is for the purpose of harm, it is called an evil plot. Plotting is based on premeditation and needs intelligence and experience. Thus, plotting is a token of weakness as the powerful person prefers confrontation to scheming.

Allah the Almighty says: ‘And they had planned their plan, but with Allah is [recorded] their plan, even if their plan had been [sufficient] to do away with the mountains.’ (Ibrahim: 46) The wrongdoers' plot which is powerful and intense enough to demolish the mountains, fails when it is faced by Allah's Plan Who protects His Prophets and righteous servants. He Glorified is He discloses the wrongdoers' plots by which they tried to confront the Religion.

In the verse in question, Allah the Almighty describes their plotting as immense, and this means that it was great and extraordinary. The plotting was massive because the disbelievers among the people of Nuh plotted to put an end to Allah's Call, to hinder it and to tempt others into disbelief and error. Their plotting to resist the Call of Allah could be verbal or practical and individual or collective. In our modern life, we notice that the mass media are involved in this immense conspiracy to turn people away from Allah's Call by all possible means, making the believers confused about their Religion.

The people of Nuh used to take their young children to him and warn them, saying, 'Beware of following this man, for he is deviant and deceptive.' This was part of their schemes against Prophet Nuh peace be upon him who spent nine centuries and a half preaching to his people. However, the successive generations throughout this period of time were in the habit of advising one anther not to believe in him and his Message.

Allah Glorified is He refers to the fact that the people of Nuh used to advise one another not to renounce their idolatry, saying: '… "Do not renounce your gods! Do not renounce Wadd, Suwa', Yaghuth, Ya'uq, or Nasr!"' (Nuh: 23) They advised one another not to abandon their deities and to keep on worshipping them. Here, the word 'gods' refers to their idols whose names were Wadd, Suwa', Yaghuth, Ya'uq and Nasr. These names belong to some righteous men who had followers. When these righteous men died, their followers said, 'If we sculpt statues for them, this will be better for our worship.' They indeed carved sculptures of these righteous men, and after these followers died and others came, the Satan suggested to them, 'They [your ancestors] worshipped them [these idols] and invoked them for rain.' In this respect, Qatada ibn An-Nu'man points out that the names 'Wadd, Suwa', Yaghuth, Ya'uq and Nasr' belonged to the idols that the people of Nuh worshipped. Afterwards, the early Arabs worshipped them; Wadd was the idol of Kalb tribe at Dumat Al-Jandal, Suwa' was worshipped by Hudhayl tribe, Yaghuth was worshipped by Banu Ghutayf, Ya'uq was worshipped by Hamadan tribe and Nasr was worshipped by Dhu Al-Kala' at Hemyar.

The disbelievers among all the nations invited their followers to the worship of their alleged deities, be they idols, humans or planets. This was common among all peoples, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: 'And the eminent among them went forth, [saying], "Continue, and be patient over [the defense of] your gods. Indeed, this is a thing intended."' (Sad: 6) Here, patience is blameworthy because it is a kind of persistence in polytheism and disbelief. Therefore, He the Almighty warns them, saying: 'So [even] if they are patient, the Fire is a residence for them.' (Fussilat: 24) So, if the disbelievers persist in idolatry, hell will be their eternal abode.

Afterwards, Allah the Almighty says:

وَقَدۡ أَضَلُّواْ كَثِيرٗاۖ وَلَا تَزِدِ ٱلظَّٰلِمِينَ إِلَّا ضَلَٰلٗا ٢٤

They have led many astray. Lord, bring nothing but destruction down on the evildoers! [24]
(The Quran, Nuh: 24)

The idols and false gods have led a lot of people astray and they made wrongdoers increase in error because they wronged themselves by powerless idols that neither hear nor see. The saying of Allah the Almighty: '…Lord, bring nothing but destruction down on the evildoers!' (Nuh: 24) mighty have been said by Prophet Nuh peace be upon him himself as the verb 'Tazid ' (increase) is an imperfect tense in the jussive mood. So, he peace be upon him invoked his Lord to increase his people in error and loss, as they were wrongdoers and transgressors.

Their idols, made out of stones or wood, led them astray because of their thoughtlessness. This also happened in the case of the people of Ibrahim who said about the idols: 'My Lord, indeed they have led astray many among the people.' (Ibrahim: 36) We should note that He the Almighty says here in the chapter of Nuh: 'They have led many astray…' (Nuh: 24) and says in the chapter of Ibrahim: '…indeed they have led astray many…' (Ibrahim: 36), using the feminine plural pronoun.. The subject pronoun in the verse in question may refer to the leaders and eminent people who misled a lot of people. However, it may also refer to the idols, but this requires, saying, 'Adlalna, i.e. the form of the verb should be consistent with the feminine plural pronoun. Nevertheless, the idols did not do so in reality, for it was the dignitaries and the leaders who mislead many people. Likewise, Allah the Almighty says: 'And how many a city was insolent toward the command of its Lord...' (at-Talaq: 8). Here, the actions of the city dwellers are attributed to the city itself.

With regard to the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'They have led many astray…' (Nuh: 24), it means that the leaders and eminent people led a lot of people astray to the extent that only a few people believed in Nuh peace be upon him throughout nine centuries, a fact which is clear in His saying: '…but none had believed with him, except a few.’ (Hud: 40) Hence, on the day when the people of Nuh were drowned, only eighty believers (1) were on board the ship with him. This was after nine centuries he peace be upon him spent inviting his people to belief. Undoubtedly, some people believed in him and died during this long period before the coming of the flood.

Concerning the reason behind inflicting punishment on the people of Nuh, Allah Glorified is He says:

مِّمَّا خَطِيٓـَٔـٰتِهِمۡ أُغۡرِقُواْ فَأُدۡخِلُواْ نَارٗا فَلَمۡ يَجِدُواْ
لَهُم مِّن دُونِ ٱللَّهِ أَنصَارٗا ٢٥

They were drowned and sent to Hell for their evildoings:
they found no one to help them against God [25]
(The Quran, Nuh: 25)

The people of Nuh were drowned on account of their sins and disbelief. Here, the Quran joins the suffix Ma to the preposition Min (for) because the Arabs use it to speak about a result of an action, as in their words, 'Wherever you are, I will be; wherever you sit, I will sit.'

As for the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘…and sent to Hell for their evildoings...’ (Nuh: 25), it means that the people of Nuh were thrown into the fire in the Hereafter. Their bodies decayed and vanished in the wake of drowning, while their spirits went to hell. Further, He the Almighty says: ‘…they found no one to help them against Allah.’ (Nuh: 25) Thus, they did not find supporters to protect them from drowning and entering hell in the Hereafter. Their idols proved unable to prevent Allah's Punishment.

Afterwards, Allah the Almighty says:

(1) In his Tafsir, Ibn Abu Hatim narrates on the authority of Zayd ibn Aslam that eighty believers were aboard the ship with Nuh on the day when his people were drowned. Ka'ab Al-Ahbar is narrated to have said, 'Believers were at this time seventy two. Allah caused rain to fall heavily from the sky and the earth burst with springs.' See Ibn Abu Hatim, Tafsir, 10878 and 10879.

وَقَالَ نُوحٌ رَّبِّ لَا تَذَرْ عَلَى ٱلْأَرْضِ مِنَ ٱلْكَٰفِرِينَ دَيَّارًا ﴿٢٦﴾
إِنَّكَ إِن تَذَرْهُمْ يُضِلُّوا۟ عِبَادَكَ وَلَا يَلِدُوٓا۟ إِلَّا فَاجِرًا كَفَّارًا ﴿٢٧﴾

And Noah said, 'Lord, do not leave any of the disbelievers on the earth – [26] if you leave them they will lead Your servants astray and beget only sinners and disbelievers [27] (The Quran, Nuh: 26 - 27)

Prophet Nuh peace be upon him reached the utmost degree in his Call to his people, as He the Almighty says: 'He said, "My Lord, I have called my people night and day, [5] but the more I call them, the further they run away: [6] every time I call them, so that You may forgive them, they thrust their fingers into their ears, cover their heads with their garments, persist in their rejection, and grow more insolent and arrogant. [7] I have tried calling them openly. [8] I have tried preaching to them in public and speaking to them in private. [9]"' (Nuh: 5-9) He peace be upon him spared no effort in calling his people to belief and guidance. However, they stubbornly and strongly disbelieved in Allah the Almighty and in what he peace be upon him came with. He peace be upon him invoked Him Glorified is He against his people after he exerted his strenuous efforts and they unbearably harmed and derided him. The grandfathers among his people advised the fathers not to believe in him and so did the fathers with the sons.

It is not only Prophet Nuh peace be upon him who invoked Allah Glorified is He against his people, but Prophet Musa peace be upon him also invoked Him against Pharaoh and his people, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: 'And Musa said, "Our Lord, indeed You have given Pharaoh and his establishment splendor and wealth in the worldly life, our Lord, that they may lead [men] astray from Your way. Our Lord, obliterate their wealth and harden their hearts so that they will not believe until they see the painful punishment."' (Yunus: 88)

The Arabic word Tams (obliteration) means to remove the physical characteristics of something, as in the saying of Allah Glorified is He: '…before We obliterate faces and turn them toward their backs.' (an-Nisa': 47)

Obliteration here means removing the facial features making it one piece without a forehead, eyebrows, eyes, nose, lips or chin. As for the obliteration of wealth, it means changing its substance. Those who owned ingots of gold found that they turned into pieces of stone; and those who owned precious stones such as diamonds found they became pieces of glass. Hence, wealth was a means of misguidance for them. Prophet Musa peace be upon him invoked Allah the Almighty to harden the heart of Pharaoh and his people so that they would not abandon disbelief or become believers till they experienced the painful punishment.

Likewise, Prophet Nuh peace be upon him invoked Allah the Almighty against his people not to leave one of the disbelievers walking on the earth, saying: ‘Lord, do not leave any of the disbelievers on the earth.’ (Nuh: 26) The Arabic word Dayyar refers to the man who walks about a lot and a house dweller. So, he peace be upon him invoked Him the Almighty to destroy every house dweller of the disbelievers on the earth. Thus, all of the disbelievers among his people were destroyed.

Then Allah the Almighty relates that Prophet Nuh peace be upon him said: ‘If you leave them they will lead Your servants astray and beget only sinners and disbelievers.’ (Nuh: 27) It is as if he peace be upon him said, 'If You leave those disbelievers who deviated from the Right Path and rejected the True Call, they will lead astray Your servants whom You guided to belief, and have children who will be transgressors and disbelievers.' In this regard, the fathers used to take their children to Prophet Nuh peace be upon him and say to them, 'Beware of this man. He is a liar. My father warned me against him.' Thus, the fathers died while they were disbelievers and their young children followed their advice.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He concludes the chapter of Nuh with the supplication of Prophet Nuh (Noah) peace be upon him which reads:

رَّبِّ ٱغْفِرْ لِى وَلِوَٰلِدَىَّ وَلِمَن دَخَلَ بَيْتِىَ مُؤْمِنًا وَلِلْمُؤْمِنِينَ
وَٱلْمُؤْمِنَٰتِ وَلَا تَزِدِ ٱلظَّٰلِمِينَ إِلَّا تَبَارًۢا ﴿٢٨﴾

Lord, forgive me, my parents, and whoever enters my house as a believer. Forgive believing men and women but bring nothing but ruin down on the evildoers! [28] (The Quran, Nuh: 28)

This verse refers to what is specific and what is general. How often are parents included in this verse? They are included in Allah's saying: '…forgive me and my parents…' (Nuh: 28); '…and whoever enters my house as a believer…' (Nuh: 28); and '…believing men and women...' (Nuh: 28). So, they are included three times in this verse because this is suitable for their position. Prophet Ibrahim peace be upon him made a similar supplication saying: 'Our Lord, forgive me and my parents and the believers the Day the account is established.' (Ibrahim: 41) We note that asking for forgiveness includes the parents and the believers.

As we know, the human being's original existence is traced back to Adam while his/her direct existence is attributed to his/her parents. As the parents are the cause of one's coming into being in this life, one should invoke Allah Glorified is He to forgive them. The same is true in case they are one's direct role models. Further, one should invoke Him the Almighty to pardon the believers because they are his/her coreligionists and good exemplars. They enjoined each other to follow the truth and to be patient. Nuh peace be upon him used to supplicate, 'My Lord! Pardon me, efface my sins and forgive my parents.'

The saying of Allah the Almighty: '…and whoever enters my house as a believer. Forgive believing men and women…' (Nuh: 28) refers to those who enter Prophet Nuh's house of worship as a worshipper and also the believing men and believing women. After he peace be upon him invoked Him Glorified is He to forgive him, his parents, those who entered his house as believers and all the believers, males and females, he invoked Him the Almighty saying: '…bring nothing but ruin down on the evildoers!' (Nuh: 28) The Arabic word Tabara (ruin) refers to all the different kinds of destruction and punishment befalling those who disbelieved in the Messengers. In the case of the people of Nuh, they were destroyed by the flood.

al-Jinn

In the Name of God, the Most Merciful, the Dispenser of Mercy

The chapter of al-Jinn[1] (Demons).

قُلۡ أُوحِيَ إِلَيَّ أَنَّهُ ٱسۡتَمَعَ نَفَرٞ مِّنَ ٱلۡجِنِّ فَقَالُوٓاْ إِنَّا سَمِعۡنَا قُرۡءَانًا عَجَبٗا ﴿١﴾
يَهۡدِيٓ إِلَى ٱلرُّشۡدِ فَـَٔامَنَّا بِهِۦۖ وَلَن نُّشۡرِكَ بِرَبِّنَآ أَحَدٗا ﴿٢﴾

Say [Prophet], ‘It has been revealed to me that a group of jinn once listened in and said, “We have heard a wondrous Quran [1] that gives guidance to the right path, and we have come to believe it – We shall never set up partners with our Lord [2]
(The Quran, al-Jinn: 1-2)

Allah the Almighty revealed a whole chapter of the Quran and called it the chapter of al-Jinn. He Glorified is He also mentioned the Angels in a chapter called Fatir. Some scholars even call it the chapter of al-Mala'ika, as it starts with: ‘[All] praise is [due] to Allah, Creator of the heavens and the earth, [who] made the angels messengers having wings, two or three or four. He increases in creation what He wills. Indeed, Allah is over all things competent.’ (Fatir: 1)

The creatures of Allah the Almighty who are destined to dwell on the earth and in the heavens are the humans, the Jinn and Angels. Each type of these creatures has characteristics and features that distinguish it from other types. The humans are visible to the Jinn and the Angels, while the humans cannot see them. Regarding the Jinn, He Glorified is He says: ‘Indeed, he sees you, he and his tribe, from where you do not see them.’ (al-A‘raf: 27) By contrast, the Jinn are invisible to us. From the Arabic word Jinn, the word Janna (Garden) is derived. This is because it makes a person invisible to others by means of its trees and allows him/her to enjoy its pleasures freely.

(1) The chapter of al-Jinn is the seventy second chapter according to the order of the Noble Quran; it consists of 28 verses. In his book, Abu Qasim Hibat Allah writes, 'This chapter was revealed in Mecca and it contains neither abrogating verses nor abrogated ones. It is called the chapter of al-Jinn because it talks about the Jinn. It was revealed after the chapter of al-A'raf when Prophet Muhammad peace be upon him returned from At-Ta'if, in the tenth year of his mission. This was before the Night Journey and the Hijra.' See Qasim Hibat Allah, An-Nasikh Wa Al-Mansukh, 1/185.

The Jinn are characterised by nimbleness and swiftness and are divided into believers and disbelievers; the believers among them are divided into obedient and disobedient. As for the disbelievers among them, they are the devils who rebel against Allah's Way of Guidance. Anyone who rebels against this Divine Way is called a devil, be he of the Jinn or the humans. The Jinn, as a community, are required to adopt the same Divine Messages sent to the humans. There are no Prophets or Messengers who were sent from among the Jinn, and they are divided into Muslims and disbelievers.

The saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘Say [Prophet], “It has been revealed to me…’ (al-Jinn: 1) is directed to Messenger Muhammad peace be upon him. The Divine Revelations which he peace be upon him used to receive came through the Archangel Gabriel, the Trustee of the Divine Revelations. Whenever it came to him peace be upon him he would suffer greatly to the point that he sweated profusely on cold nights.

With regard to the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘Say [Prophet], “It has been revealed to me that a group of jinn once listened in…’ (al-Jinn: 1), the verb 'to listen' refers to hearing attentively. As for the verb 'to hear' refers to perceiving a sound by chance. For example, while you are walking, you can hear a lot of speech whether it matters to you or not. Unlike eyelids, there is no covering on the ears to impede your hearing. So you hear anything reaching your ears unwillingly. By contrast, the verb 'to listen' means to pay attention to what you hear and the speaker has the option between speaking on and stopping speaking. The same verb connotes preparing one's bodily parts and senses for hearing. Even if one hears with his/her ears, there are other senses that can be distracted from attention. We use the eyes to see, the nose to smell and the tongues to speak. So one should employ all of his/her senses to hear carefully, understand what she/he hears and carry out what s/he is ordered to do. For example, if you speak to your friend and find him/her paying no attention to you, you say to him/her, 'It seems that you are not with me.' This is because such a person's organs are distracted from hearing you. When a company of the Jinn heard Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him reciting the Quran, they dedicated their hearing and all their senses to listening to his recitation.

The whole account is as follows: 'Once Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and a group of his Companions headed for the market of 'Ukazh, after the devils had been prevented from listening secretly to the heavenly Revelations and shooting stars had been set against them. The devils returned to their leaders and told them that they could not listen to the heavenly Revelations and shooting stars attacked them. The leaders said to them, 'What prevented you from listening secretly to the heavenly Revelations was a serious thing that happened. Go everywhere and find out what kept you away from the heavenly revelations.' These devils indeed set out for Tuhama and found Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him leading his Companions in Dawn Prayer and heard him reciting some Quranic verses. The devils listened carefully to the Quran and said to one another, 'This is what prevented us from listening to the Divine Revelations.' Ongoing back to their leaders, they said: ‘We have heard a wondrous Quran, [2] that gives guidance to the right path, and we have come to believe it—We shall never set up partners with our Lord. [3]’ (al-Jinn: 1-2) Thereupon, Allah revealed to him peace and blessings be upon him the verse reading: ‘Say [Prophet], “It has been revealed to me that a group of jinn once listened in and said…’ (al-Jinn: 1)(1). The aforementioned Hadith shows clearly the difference between 'hearing' and 'listening'; when the Jinn heard the Quran, they listened to it attentively. In the same vein, Allah the Almighty says: ‘And I have chosen you, so listen to what is revealed [to you].’ (Ta Ha: 13) This is a Divine Command directed to Prophet Musa peace be upon him to receive the Revelations with all his senses.

(1) This Hadith is narrated on the authority of Ibn 'Abbas Allah be pleased with him. See Ahmad, Musnad, Hadith no. 2271; Al-Bukhari, Sahih, Hadith no. 773 and 4921; Abu 'Awana, Mustakhraj, Hadith no. 3794; At-Tabarani, Al-Mu'jam Al-Kabir, Hadith no.12449; and Al-Bayhaqi, As-Sunnan Al-Kubra, Hadith no.3068.

The Arabic word Nafar (a group) refers to a group of people whose number ranges from three to nine, and in the verse in question the jinn were nine. Whatever their number, they listened attentively to the Quran directly from Messenger Muhammad's mouth. As soon as they returned to their tribes, they said to them: ‘We have heard a wondrous Quran.’ (al-Jinn: 1) Someone may ask, 'Why did the jinn not say, 'We listened?' The answer is that the verb 'heard' and the phrase 'wondrous Quran' that follows it gives the meaning of listening, since they realised that what they heard was a Book revealed to a Messenger who came after Musa peace be upon him. What is more, they describe the Quran as 'wondrous' and this adjective occurs in a number of verses, as the following ones: ‘Have the people been amazed that We revealed [revelation] to a man from among them, [saying], “Warn mankind…’ (Yunus: 2); ‘Or have you thought that the companions of the cave and the inscription were, among Our signs, a wonder?’ (al-Kahf: 9); and ‘And it took its course into the sea amazingly.’ (al-Kahf: 63)

Some scholars said that amazement is a mental state that happens to a person when s/he does not know what the reason for something. A thing that evokes astonishment is called 'a wonder' while a thing that is extraordinary is said to be 'bizarre and weird.' The wondrous thing is that which is too fantastic for a person to grasp, as in the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘And [mention, O Muhammad], when We directed to you a few of the jinn, listening to the Quran. And when they attended it, they said, “Listen quietly.” And when it was concluded, they went back to their people as warners. They said, “O our people, indeed we have heard a [recited] Book revealed after Musa confirming what was before it which guides to the truth and to a straight path.”’ (al-Ahqaf: 29-30) With regard to the Quran, it is wondrous because it is noble and matchless regarding its eloquence, veracity, and unique style and composition.

As for His saying: ‘That gives guidance to the right path, and we have come to believe it—We shall never set up partners with our Lord’ (al-Jinn: 2), the Right Path is the way to Salvation. In fact, the Quran guides to Salvation while error leads to destruction. Shedding more light on the Right Path and error, He Glorified is He says: ‘I will turn away from my signs those who are arrogant upon the earth without right; and if they should see every sign, they will not believe in it. And if they see the way of consciousness, they will not adopt it as a way; but if they see the way of error, they will adopt it as a way. That is because they have denied our signs and they were heedless of them.’ (al-A‘raf: 146)

The arrogant people do not like adopting the Right Path because it constrains their physical pleasures and personal inclinations and prohibits the misdeeds. As they were enslaved by their physical pleasures, they cannot curb them. As for the erroneous way, it gives free rein to their pleasures and desires. The Quran leads to the Right Path and whoever believes in it becomes rightly guided. On the other hand, those who deny it fall prey to error. Anyone who judges according to it is fair in his/her judgment; any haughty tyrant who renounces it will be annihilated by Allah Glorified is He; and anyone who seeks guidance in another source will be misguided. Further, it is the firm Rope of Allah, the clear Light and the wise Remembrance. People's whims cannot distort it; it does not lead to contradictory opinions; the scholars never get bored with it; it does not become dull from reciting it repetitively; and its wonders do not come to an end. Whoever learns it is successful; whoever speaks according to it is truthful; whoever acts upon it is rewarded; and whoever calls to it is guided to the Straight Path.(1)

The jinn believed in the Right Path and thus they said: ‘…We shall never set up partners with our Lord.’ (al-Jinn: 2) They understood from their listening to the Quran that the prerequisite of their belief was monotheism, which is the common denominator of all the heavenly Messages. In this verse, the Arabic word Ahada (anyone) leaves no room for polytheism and it alludes to the Christ, the son of Mary. They said: ‘O our people, indeed we have heard a [recited] Book revealed after Musa…’ (al-Ahqaf: 29) because Prophet

(1) 'Ali ibn Abu Taleb Allah be pleased with him said, 'I heard Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him saying, 'Indeed there comes a Fitnah' So I said, 'What is the way out from it, O Messenger of Allah?' He said, 'Allah's Book. In it is news for what happened before you, and information about what comes after you, and the judgment for what happens between you. It is the Criterion (between right and wrong) without jest. Whoever among the oppressive abandons it, Allah crushes him, and whoever seeks guidance from other than it, then Allah leaves him to stray. See Al-Bizzar, Musnad, Hadith no. 836.

Musa peace be upon him came with a Divine Law while Prophet ‘Isa peace be upon him came without a Divine Law to be followed. Some Christians worship Prophet ‘Isa as a god apart from Allah the Almighty; others worship him along with Allah; and some others claim that ‘Isa is the third of three. Thus, the jinn declare they do not set up any partner with Allah Glorified is He and hold Him in great awe, saying:

وَأَنَّهُۥ تَعَٰلَىٰ جَدُّ رَبِّنَا مَا ٱتَّخَذَ صَٰحِبَةً وَلَا وَلَدًا ٣

And that He — exalted be the glory of our Lord! — has neither spouse nor child [3] (The Quran, al-Jinn: 3)

The saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘And that He—exalted be the glory of our Lord...’ (al-Jinn: 3) is attributed to the Divine Revelations if the particle Anna (that) is considered. According to another recitation, this saying is attributed to the Jinn as they exalt and glorify Allah Glorified is He. To Him belong the Grandeur, Majesty, Command and Power. How can a person allege that He Glorified is He has a wife and children? Indeed, He the Almighty did not choose from His creatures a wife or a child. He also reassures us, saying: ‘And that He—exalted be the glory of our Lord!—has neither spouse nor child.’ (al-Jinn: 3) It is as if He is saying, 'Be reassured that your Lord has neither a wife that influences Him nor a child to be favoured by Him. The wife and children can be a point of weakness that affects the legislation. Hence all the creatures are equal in the sight of Allah Glorified is He and they all are His servants; He does not unjustly favour someone over another.

Afterwards, Allah the Almighty relates that the jinn said:

وَأَنَّهُۥ كَانَ يَقُولُ سَفِيهُنَا عَلَى ٱللَّهِ شَطَطًا ٤

Outrageous things have been said about God by the foolish among us [4] (The Quran, al-Jinn: 4)

The foolish one of the jinn is the Satan who objected to the Command of Allah Glorified is He and disobeyed His Order to prostrate himself to Adam. In this regard, Satan said: ‘…should I prostrate to one you created from clay?’ (al-Isra’: 61) Satan considered his view to be better than Allah's and thus Satan is considered a foolish. But this does not mean that he is the only foolish one, for he is a symbol of every fool who disobeys Allah's Commands, and does not hold Him in due awe. Thus, this bad trait is attributed to anyone who acts foolishly, and that is why some scholars said this attribute refers to the disbelieving jinn.

With regard to the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘Outrageous things have been said about Allah by the foolish among us.’ (al-Jinn: 4), the Arabic word Shatat (outrageous) means transgressing the limits in a statement. It primarily means overstepping the proper limits, but it here denotes a statement that contradicts truth and exceeds the bounds of right.

وَأَنَّا ظَنَنَّآ أَن لَّن تَقُولَ ٱلْإِنسُ وَٱلْجِنُّ عَلَى ٱللَّهِ كَذِبًا ٥
وَأَنَّهُۥ كَانَ رِجَالٌ مِّنَ ٱلْإِنسِ يَعُوذُونَ بِرِجَالٍ مِّنَ ٱلْجِنِّ فَزَادُوهُمْ رَهَقًا ٦

Although we had thought that no man or jinn would [dare to] tell a lie about Him [5] Men have sought refuge with the jinn in the past, but they only misguided them further [6]
(The Quran, al-Jinn: 5 - 6)

Here, the verb 'thought' means to doubt. So, these groups of Jinn had doubted the fact that mankind and the jinn would dare to tell lies and baseless allegation about Allah the Almighty. When they ascertained that this allegation was false, they feared that they should hold it and that the Right Path would be ambiguous to them. Thus, they wandered through the earth in the hope of finding the one who could guide them to the Right Path. Then, they found Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and heard him reciting the Quran. According to the verse in question, this group of jinn had believed that Allah the Almighty had a wife and children as they heard other jinn and humans claim that. They had deemed this true till they discovered that this allegation was unfounded and those who made such an allegation were untruthful, whereupon they dissociated themselves from them. This proves that the jinn were polytheists till the moment they listened to Messenger Muhammad's recitation.

Allah Glorified is He then says: ‘Men have sought refuge with the jinn in the past, but they only misguided them further.’ (al-Jinn: 6) In fact, those who exploit the jinn suffer from burdens and distress. He the Almighty tells us that the devils have close contact with a lot of humans. The men intended in this verse are the sorcerers who seek the jinn's help to break spells and bewitch their opponents. Such people live miserably all their lifetimes. It is true that the sorcerers are able to bewitch other humans, but this overtires them. They die poverty-stricken and unsightly and their children are spoiled. This is because such people exploited a special chance to do much harm to other people unjustifiably. Their facial features carry the marks of sins and anger and they provoke the aversion of anyone who sees them. They lead uncomfortable lives, for even if they earn a lot of money, they live as beggars. Eventually, they die as disbelievers and deprive themselves of Allah's Mercy. As regards their children, they suffer misfortune in their lives.

The Arabic word Ar-Rahq denotes 'aberration, error and guilt'. So, the male jinn made male humans increase in sin and error. It is worth noting that Allah the Almighty refers to the jinn as men as He does to humankind. This suggests that there are men among the jinn and that they reproduce as the humans do.

Afterwards, Allah the Almighty says:

وَأَنَّهُمْ ظَنُّوا۟ كَمَا ظَنَنتُمْ أَن لَّن يَبْعَثَ ٱللَّهُ أَحَدًا ﴿٧﴾ وَأَنَّا لَمَسْنَا ٱلسَّمَآءَ
فَوَجَدْنَٰهَا مُلِئَتْ حَرَسًا شَدِيدًا وَشُهُبًا ﴿٨﴾ وَأَنَّا كُنَّا نَقْعُدُ مِنْهَا مَقَٰعِدَ
لِلسَّمْعِ ۖ فَمَن يَسْتَمِعِ ٱلْـَٔانَ يَجِدْ لَهُۥ شِهَابًا رَّصَدًا ﴿٩﴾

They thought, as you did, that God would never raise anyone from the dead [7] We tried to reach heaven, but discovered it to be full of stern guards and shooting stars [8] we used to sit in places there, listening, but anyone trying to listen now will find a shooting star lying in wait for him [9]

The jinn used to think that there would be no Messenger after Jesus, the son of Mary, and so did the humans. Both believed that Allah Glorified is He would not send a Messenger to His creatures to invite them to monotheism. He the Almighty makes this clear in His saying: ‘And they wonder that there has come to them a warner from among themselves. And the disbelievers say, “This is a magician and a liar. [4] Has he made the gods [only] one God? Indeed, this is a curious thing.” [5] And the eminent among them went forth, [saying], “Continue, and be patient over [the defense of] your gods. Indeed, this is a thing intended. [6] We have not heard of this in the latest religion. This is not but a fabrication. [7] Has the message been revealed to him out of [all of] us?” Rather, they are in doubt about my message. Rather, they have not yet tasted my punishment. [8]’ (Sad: 4-8)

The disbelievers of Quraysh found Jews claiming that ‘Uzayr (Ezra) is the son of Allah and the Christians alleging that ‘Isa is the son of Allah and that Allah is the third of three. Moreover, the disbelievers of Mecca said, 'We have never heard of monotheism in the latest faiths.' Some of the jinn imitated the Jews; others followed the example of the Christians; and some others were idolaters as the disbelievers of Mecca. They held the belief that Allah Glorified is He would not send a Messenger to demolish all these fallacies, saying: ‘…Allah would never send anyone [as a messenger].’ (al-Jinn: 7)

The Jinn go on to say: ‘We tried to reach heaven, but discovered it to be full of stern guards and shooting stars.’ (al-Jinn: 8) Before revealing the Quran, the devils used to listen secretly to the news of the heavens. But after sending Messenger Muhammad peace be upon him as a Prophet, the devils were deterred from doing this. Thereupon, they concluded that a new Prophet would be sent. The devils were prevented from reaching the news of the heavens because Allah Glorified is He did not will them to insert their fallacies into His Way of Guidance. We should ponder on the accurate Quranic expression that reads: ‘We tried to reach heaven…’ (al-Jinn: 8). This indicates that the jinn tried to ascend to the nearest sky to the degree that it was very close to them as if they were about to touch it.

The Arabic word Al-Lams (Touching) is also used to denote searching for something or trying to reach something. The devils tried to reach the sky to listen secretly to the news, commands and Divine Revelations coming down from it in addition to any future events, but they failed. They say: ‘We tried to reach heaven, but discovered it to be full of stern guards and shooting stars.’ (al-Jinn: 8)

Thus, the Jinn tried to eavesdrop on the news of the heaven, but they: '…discovered it to be full of stern guards and shooting stars.' (al-Jinn: 8) The stern guards are from the Angels who guard the sky from all directions. They prevent the jinn from reaching any spot of the sky or even approaching it. So the sky is guarded against the jinn and devils so that they cannot listen secretly to the Quranic verses being sent down upon Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him.

Not only is the sky guarded, but it is also full of shooting stars that are known as meteors. So, the jinn found the sky filled with strong Angels and burning meteors that lie in wait for any devil or jinn coming near the sky. These falling, burning stars burn the devils whenever they seek to eavesdrop on whatever comes down from the heaven. Concerning the sky, Allah Glorified is He says: 'And we have protected it from every devil expelled [from the mercy of Allah]; except one who steals a hearing and is pursued by a clear burning flame.' (al-Hijr: 17-18)

Before the emergence of Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him the rebellious jinn used to eavesdrop on the Divine Revelations descending upon the previous Prophets. After the advent of Prophet Muhammad's Message, things became different, for Allah the Almighty willed that the sky should be guarded and that penetrating, burning stars should pursue any devil wanting to approach the sky. The Arabic word Ash-Shihab (burning flame) refers to something like a piece of coal that is ablaze.

Allah the Almighty then relates that the Jinn said: 'We used to sit in places there, listening, but anyone trying to listen now will find a shooting star lying in wait for him.' (al-Jinn: 9) The devils had certain positions to sit therein for eavesdropping on what came down from the heaven. They used to pick up some words from heavenly Revelations and add to them hundreds of lies of their own accord. However, When Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him was sent with the Message of Islam, the jinn were expelled from these positions. Concerning these jinn and devils who had certain positions for eavesdropping, Allah Glorified is He says: 'Indeed they, from [its] hearing, are removed.' (ash-Shu'ara': 212) So, they are banned from eavesdropping by means of shooting stars and meteors. Further, they were prevented from eavesdropping on the Divine Revelations and the Angels' discussions on the future events that would take place on the earth like the cases of death and the rainfalls.

Allah the Almighty then says: '…but anyone trying to listen now will find a shooting star lying in wait for him.' (al-Jinn: 9) According to this verse, some of the jinn tried to eavesdrop on the heavenly realm, but they were confronted with meteors and flaming stars. So, the devils' attempted secret listening to the heavenly news was a kind of eavesdropping and snatches, as Allah the Almighty says: 'Except one who snatches [some words] by theft, but they are pursued by a burning flame, piercing [in brightness].' (as-Saffat: 10)

Even if the rebellious jinn should manage to snatch some pieces of the heavenly news, they cannot flee with them and communicate them to their allies. This is because: '…they are pursued by a burning flame, piercing [in brightness].' (as-Saffat: 10) This means that the flaming stars pounce upon these devils and pierce through space till they hit their targets as quickly and accurately as possible.

Someone may ask, 'Why are the devils not banned from eavesdropping from the beginning?' The scholars say that there is a distinction between preventing the jinn from eavesdropping from the start and letting them snatch some heavenly news without fleeing with and benefitting from them. Allah Glorified is He enables them to eavesdrop on some pieces of heavenly news, but meteors attack them immediately from all directions, leading to their distress and sorrow. They suffer unbearably from eavesdropping and they get bitterly sorry for not taking advantage of what they heard.

Allah says:

وَأَنَّا لَا نَدْرِىٓ أَشَرٌّ أُرِيدَ بِمَن فِى ٱلْأَرْضِ أَمْ أَرَادَ بِهِمْ رَبُّهُمْ رَشَدًا ﴿١٠﴾
وَأَنَّا مِنَّا ٱلصَّٰلِحُونَ وَمِنَّا دُونَ ذَٰلِكَ ۖ كُنَّا طَرَآئِقَ قِدَدًا ﴿١١﴾

[so now] we do not know whether those who live on earth are due for misfortune, or whether their Lord intends to guide them [10] Some of us are righteous and others less so: we follow different paths [11] (The Quran, al-Jinn: 10 - 11)

The two abovementioned verses are among the words said by the jinn. They do not know why the sky is guarded by powerful Angels and why the meteors prevent them from listening secretly to the heavenly Revelations. They wondered, 'Is this something evil for the dwellers of the earth so that they will not know what happens on the earth? Or does Allah will them to be rightly guided?' The devils were confused as they were kept from eavesdropping. Thus, they did not know whether what was sent down from the heaven was good or bad. They do not know the rationale behind guarding the sky and whether this is bad or good for mankind. Evil here can be a punishment inflicted upon the inhabitants of the earth.

As for the Right Guidance here, it refers to sending Prophets from among the humans to guide them to the Truth. But is this evil based on what comes down from the sky or its results? They know that whoever believes in the Messenger and seeks Guidance from him will be on the Right Path. While whoever despise the Messenger and rejects his Guidance will be severely punished. The jinn are undecided whether or not to believe in the Prophet. They describe themselves, saying: ‘Some of us are righteous and others less so: we follow different paths.’ (al-Jinn: 11) As the jinn were hesitant about believing or denying Prophets, they divided: some of them became believers and others split into groups and sects.

Like mankind, there are believers, sinners and pious worshippers among the jinn. Among them are also good individuals who promote righteousness and virtue and those who are righteous but do not encourage others to follow virtue. As regards the rebels among the jinn, they are the devils and demons.

With regard to the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘…we follow different paths’ (al-Jinn: 11), it means that they belong to different and various faiths. Among them are the believers, disbelievers, Jews and Christians. The Arabic word Tara'iq means a way or a school of thought. As for the Arabic word Qidad, it refers to varieties and different classes. Thus, the jinn were of different classes and groups. In this regard, As Suddi said, 'The jinn are like you [humans]; among them are the Qadaris, Murji'ites, Rafidis and Shiites.'(1) This proves that there are among the jinn those who practice reasoning regarding the Quranic verses as well as those who are unable to understand the allegorical verses of the Quran. Thus, they are different sects.

وَأَنَّا ظَنَنَّآ أَن لَّن نُّعۡجِزَ ٱللَّهَ فِي ٱلۡأَرۡضِ وَلَن نُّعۡجِزَهُۥ هَرَبٗا ١٢

We know we can never frustrate God on earth; we can never escape Him [12] (The Quran, al-Jinn: 12)

The jinn express their certainty and conviction that they can never frustrate Allah on earth. The Arabic word Mu'jiz (an imitable thing) refers to that which proves the defeat of one's opponent. To say 'I did something unrivaled to so-and-so' means that so-and-so was unable to do something like it. The jinn believe firmly that they cannot escape from Allah's Punishment and that they are not beyond His Power. What gives the same meaning is the verse reading: ‘Never think that the disbelievers are causing failure [to Allah] upon the earth…’ (an-Nur: 57). The jinn are not able to slip from the reach of Allah the Almighty; if He wills to punish them anywhere and anytime, He is fully Able to do so without any impediments or obstacles.

The jinn say: ‘We know we can never frustrate Allah on earth...’ (al-Jinn: 12). They acknowledge that they are powerless to protect themselves against the His punishment whether they inhabit the depths of the earth or its surface.

وَأَنَّا لَمَّا سَمِعۡنَا ٱلۡهُدَىٰٓ ءَامَنَّا بِهِۦۖ فَمَن يُؤۡمِنۢ بِرَبِّهِۦ فَلَا يَخَافُ بَخۡسٗا وَلَا رَهَقٗا ١٣

When we heard the guidance we came to believe: whoever believes in his Lord need fear no loss nor injustice [13] (The Quran, al-Jinn: 13)

The word 'guidance' here refers to the Quran that the jinn listened to carefully. They regard it as such because it directs to the Right Path. That is why Allah Glorified is He says in another verse: ‘And what prevented the people from believing when guidance came to them except that they said, “Has Allah sent a human messenger?”’ (al-Isra’: 94) Guidance means showing the road that leads to your intended destination. For example, the road signs show travelers their roads and help them reach their destinations. Describing the Quran, He the Almighty says: ‘This is the Book about which there is no doubt, guidance for those conscious of Allah.’ (al-Baqara: 2) Undoubtedly, the Glorious Quran is the Right Path of Allah which embodies the spiritual Guidance for those who desire to safeguard themselves from His punishment. It is worth noting that instead of saying 'and when we heard the Quran, ' the Jinn say: ‘When we heard the guidance...’ (al-Jinn: 13) describing it directly as such and using the definite article 'the' which distinguishes the Quran from other sacred Books.

Then, Allah the Almighty says: ‘…whoever believes in his Lord need fear no loss, nor injustice.’ (al-Jinn: 13) Believing in the Quran means that one believes in the Divine Guidance, and this, at the same time, entails one's belief in the One Who revealed the Quran to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him.

Your belief in your Lord brings good results, as He the Almighty says: ‘…whoever believes in his Lord need fear no loss, nor injustice.’ (al-Jinn: 13) The human being fears being deprived of his/her due and being put to burden and hardship. So if one desires not to expose him/herself to either case, s/he must believe in Allah Glorified is He.

So, what do the Arabic words Al-Bakhs (loss) and Al-Rahaq (injustice) mean here? Al-Bakhs means depriving a person of his/her rights or giving him/her less than his/her due. Concerning Prophet Yusuf (Joseph) Allah’s Peace be upon him Allah Glorified is He says: ‘And they sold him for a reduced price - a few dirhams - and they were, concerning him, of those content with little.’ (Yusuf: 20); ‘And do not deprive people of their due.’ (ash-Shu'ara’: 183) Depriving others of their due is a sinful act and so is denying someone else's whole right or handling it without his/her permission or in a way unacceptable to him/her.

As a matter of fact, Allah Glorified is He does not deprive people of their due in any way as He says: ‘But he who does of righteous deeds while he is a believer - he will neither fear injustice nor deprivation.’ (Ta Ha: 112) As for the Arabic word Al-Hadm (deprivation), it means diminishing reward and good recompense. The wronged person is s/he who is subjected to this action. He Glorified is He never wrongs anyone even by a hair's breadth as He says: ‘Indeed, Allah does not do injustice, [even] as much as an atom's weight; while if there is a good deed, He multiplies it and gives from Himself a great reward.’ (an-Nisa’: 40)

As regards Ar-Rahq, it is here a type of punishment. A person who believes in Allah the Almighty does not fear to be deprived of his/her reward for good deeds wholly or partly. Likewise, s/he does not fear to be overburdened with others' sins and errors.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says:

وَأَنَّا مِنَّا ٱلْمُسْلِمُونَ وَمِنَّا ٱلْقَـٰسِطُونَ ۖ فَمَنْ أَسْلَمَ فَأُو۟لَـٰٓئِكَ تَحَرَّوْا۟ رَشَدًا ﴿١٤﴾
وَأَمَّا ٱلْقَـٰسِطُونَ فَكَانُوا۟ لِجَهَنَّمَ حَطَبًا ﴿١٥﴾

Some of us submit to Him and others go the wrong way:
those who submit to God have found wise guidance [14]
but those who go wrong will be fuel for Hellfire [15]
(The Quran, al-Jinn: 14 - 15)

The first of the two aforementioned verses indicates that among the jinn are those who are believers and those who are disbelievers. Allah the Almighty says about those who go wrong: ‘[they] will be fuel for Hellfire.’ (al-Jinn: 15) So, the unjust people, who deny others their rights, will go to the fire. Here, those who go wrong are the opposites of the Muslims. They wrong themselves by deviating from the worship of Allah the Almighty the Right Path and Islam. By contrast, the Muslims are those who submit to Allah Glorified is He by obedience to Him.

So, His saying: ‘…those who submit to Allah have found wise guidance.’ (al-Jinn: 14) means that those who submit and yield to Allah the Almighty by obedience seek the Right Path and aspire to reward. As for the unjust: ‘…[they] will be fuel for Hellfire.’ (al-Jinn: 15) The unjust are designed as the firewood of hell so that a believer considers their position and enjoys the bliss in paradise more strongly. For example, a healthy person enjoys his/her well-being more and more when s/he sees someone else who is ill.

وَأَلَّوِ ٱسۡتَقَٰمُواْ عَلَى ٱلطَّرِيقَةِ لَأَسۡقَيۡنَٰهُم مَّآءً غَدَقٗا ١٦
لِّنَفۡتِنَهُمۡ فِيهِۚ وَمَن يُعۡرِضۡ عَن ذِكۡرِ رَبِّهِۦ يَسۡلُكۡهُ عَذَابٗا صَعَدٗا ١٧

If they had taken to the right way, We would have given them abundant water to drink [16] a test for them — but anyone who turns away from his Lord's Revelation will be sent by Him to spiraling torment [17] (The Quran, al-Jinn: 16 - 17)

Allah Glorified is He then directs His Discourse to the disbelievers of Mecca, saying: 'If they had taken to the right way, We would have given them abundant water to drink.' (al-Jinn: 16) If the disbelievers of Mecca became believers and followed the Right Path, He Glorified is He would confer upon them abundant sustenance.

Al-Hanifiyya is the Straight Path about which Allah says: 'Ibrahim was neither a Jew nor a Christian, but he was one inclining toward truth, a Muslim [submitting to Allah]. And he was not of the polytheists.' (Al-'Imran: 67) What makes a person who follows the Right Path deviate from it and thus distress him/herself? If a person intends to achieve the desired goal directly, s/he must be on the Right Path. As for a person who strays from that Path, s/he does not reach the desired end. As regards a person who adopts the Right Path and the ordained Way, Allah Glorified is He says: 'Then We put you, [O Muhammad], on an ordained way concerning the matter [of religion]; so follow it and do not follow the inclinations of those who do not know.' (al-Jathiya: 18)

In the verse in question, the 'abundant water' denotes rain or the great property, as Allah Glorified is He says: 'A test for them —but anyone who turns away from his Lord's Revelation will be sent by Him to spiraling torment.' (al-Jinn: 17) He Glorified is He grants the people abundant sustenance to test. In this respect 'Umar Allah be pleased with him says, 'There are trials and temptations wherever water and wealth exist.'(1) So, the material possessions are but trials and tests. If one is enslaved and seduced by his wealth, high rank or women, he will surely lose and bring down upon himself sheer evil.

(1) See At-Tabari, Jame' Al-Bayan, 23/663; Ath-Tha'labi, Al-Kashf Wa Al-Bayan, 10/53; Jame' Ahkam Al-Quran, 19/18.

Allah Glorified is He then says: '…but anyone who turns away from his Lord's Revelation will be sent by Him to spiraling torment.' (al-Jinn: 17) In the previous verse, He Glorified is He says: 'If they had taken to the right way, We would have given them abundant water to drink.' (al-Jinn: 16) This is the reward obtainable by those who believe and adopt Allah's Way of Guidance. As for those who reject and turn away from it, He Glorified is He will place them into intense, escalating and permanent punishment. He the Almighty gives us an example of this intense, unbearable punishment, saying: 'I will cover him with arduous torment.' (al-Muddaththir: 17) This verse means He the Almighty will force him/her to climb a burning rock with holes that emit blazing wind that make his/her flesh fall off his/her body.

Then, Allah the Almighty reminds us about a fact that we must keep in mind, saying:

وَأَنَّ ٱلۡمَسَٰجِدَ لِلَّهِ فَلَا تَدۡعُواْ مَعَ ٱللَّهِ أَحَدٗا ١٨

Places of worship are for God alone – so do not pray to anyone other than God [18]
(The Quran, al-Jinn: 18)

The Arabic word Al-Masjid (the house of worship) is the place designed for worshipping and prostrating to Allah the Almighty Alone. So when you enter the mosque for the purpose of worship, you get nearer to Allah Glorified is He to invoke Him and be under His Care. So, the worshipper should not enter to it while concerning about the worldly matters. One of the Companions of Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'We used to forget about our mundane matters the moment we took off our shoes and immediately before entering the mosque.' One should forget about his/her standing when s/he enters the mosque and take into account the extent of his/her belief in Allah Glorified is He. Further, one should show his/her devotion and submission towards Him and sit at an unoccupied spot. The worshipper should not pass through the people. Moreover, the one should intend to perform I'tikaf at the mosque and should not converse about any worldly matters.

The mosques are the places where the Divine Blessings shower the worshippers and whoever wants to receive Spiritual Light should go there.

One should go to the mosque to perform the prayer and meet his/her Lord and that is why we should not talk about our mundane matters in the mosque. Are the long hours of discussing the mundane affairs outside the mosque not enough so that we cannot dedicate some numbered minutes for our prayer in the mosques?! Thus, we should not drag our worldly affairs into the mosque. Although the whole earth is suitable for performing prayer, when you enter the mosque, you awaken your devotion to Allah the Almighty and dedicate all your actions and feelings to Him Alone.

The mosques are for Allah the Almighty Who says: '…so do not pray to anyone other than Allah.' (al-Jinn: 18) To pray here means to worship.(1) So you must not worship anyone besides Him Glorified is He; rather, we should worship Him Alone. Some exegetes state that the mosques refer to the seven bodily parts on which a person prostrates him/herself to Him the Almighty: the forehead, the nose, the hands, the knees. These bodily parts are created for Him Glorified is He. So, we must not prostrate upon them to anyone other than Him.

Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him is narrated to have said, 'I was ordered to prostrate myself with seven bodily parts: the forehead, the nose, the hands and the knees.'(2) In fact, the Arabic word 'masjid' may refer to the places designed for prayer or the bodily parts used for prostration. Concerning the mosques, Allah Glorified is He says: 'The mosques of Allah are only to be maintained by those who believe in Allah and the Last Day and establish prayer and give zakat and do not fear except Allah, for it is expected that those will be of the [rightly] guided.' (at-Tawba: 18) His saying: '…and do not fear except Allah…' (at-Tawba: 18) indicates that discussing the matters that concern the Muslims and criticising things far removed from the Way of Allah in the mosques do not contradict with the fact that the mosques are intended for worship. So, His saying: '…and do not fear except Allah…' (at-Tawba: 18) refers to those who fear none except for Him Glorified is He, speak the truth in public, fulfill the requirements of their belief in Allah the Almighty and in the Day of Judgment and worship Him Alone. In fact, believing in Him Glorified is He entails fearing Him.

Allah the Almighty then says:

وَأَنَّهُۥ لَمَّا قَامَ عَبۡدُ ٱللَّهِ يَدۡعُوهُ كَادُواْ يَكُونُونَ عَلَيۡهِ لِبَدٗا ﴿١٩﴾

Yet when God's Servant stood up to pray to Him, they pressed in on him [19] (The Quran, al-Jinn: 19)

When Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him was performing prayer and reciting the Quran, the jinn gathered to listen to the Quran. Here, 'Allah's Servant' refers to him peace and blessings be upon him when he was praying and reciting the Quran at a place called Nakhla, between Mecca and At-Ta'if. Due to their great admiration for the Quranic verses, the jinn overlaid one another to the degree that they were about to fall over him peace and blessings be upon him. They swarmed in order to listen to the Quran and formed into a compacted mass. The Arabs call the locusts that overlay one another 'Lubda, ' that is, an overlapping swarm of locusts. This word also refers to the matted hair.

قُلۡ إِنَّمَآ أَدۡعُواْ رَبِّي وَلَآ أُشۡرِكُ بِهِۦٓ أَحَدٗا ﴿٢٠﴾ قُلۡ إِنِّي لَآ أَمۡلِكُ لَكُمۡ ضَرّٗا وَلَا رَشَدٗا ﴿٢١﴾
قُلۡ إِنِّي لَن يُجِيرَنِي مِنَ ٱللَّهِ أَحَدٞ وَلَنۡ أَجِدَ مِن دُونِهِۦ مُلۡتَحَدًا ﴿٢٢﴾

Say, 'I pray to my Lord alone; I set up no partner with Him.' [20] Say, 'I have no control over any harm or good that may befall you.' [21] Say, 'No one can protect me from God: I have no refuge except in Him' [22]
(The Quran, al-Jinn: 20 - 22)

Here, Allah the Almighty orders Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him to say: 'I pray to my Lord alone; I set up no partner with Him.' (al-Jinn: 20) The jinn searched for the true heavenly Message and found the sky filled with strong guards of the Angels. Thus, approaching the sky became destructive for them. So, Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him announces to them his Message clearly and openly: 'I pray to my Lord alone;

I set up no partner with Him.' (al-Jinn: 20) This verse means that he worships Allah Glorified is He Alone, and this is the Message of monotheism. Nothing should be worshipped besides Him, be it idols, humans, stars or animals, for Allah Glorified is He is the only One God.

On the other hand, some exegetes hold the view that the three verses in question respond to the disbelievers of Mecca when they asked Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him to renounce his Call. So, he peace and blessings be upon him replied to them by the saying of Allah: 'I pray to my Lord alone; I set up no partner with Him.' (al-Jinn: 20)(1)

Then Allah the Almighty says: 'I have no control over any harm or good that may befall you.' (al-Jinn: 21) In the chapter in question, we note that He the Almighty repeats the word 'Rashad' (the Right Path) four times. We find this in the verses reading: 'That gives guidance to the right path…[2]' (al-Jinn: 2); '…or whether their Lord intends to guide them' (al-Jinn: 10); '…have found wise guidance' (al-Jinn: 14); and 'I have no control over any harm or good that may befall you.' (al-Jinn: 21) Someone may ask, 'Why does He Glorified is He not say, "Say, Indeed, I do not possess for you [the power of] harm or benefit"?' The jinn who listened to the Quran and said: 'We have heard a wondrous Quran, [1] that gives guidance to the right path… [2]' (al-Jinn: 2) did not strive after any worldly benefits. Rather, they sought the Spiritual Guidance and the Right Path. The word 'guidance' is contrary to the word 'error'.

If we say the same verses in question refer to the disbelievers of Mecca, then Allah Glorified is He commands Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him to say to the polytheists of the Arabs, 'I am in no position to cause you any harm regarding your religion or worldly life or bring you benefit as it is Allah Alone who is in position to do all that.'

Allah Glorified is He then says: 'Say, "No one can protect me from Allah."' (al-Jinn: 22) None gives protection except Him Glorified is He and no one can be helped against Him. In this regard, He the Almighty says: 'Say, [O

(1) See Al-Khazin, Lubab At-Ta'wil Fi Ma'ani At-Tanzil, 4/352; Al-Baghawi, Tafsir, 5/163; and Ash-Shawkani, Fath Al-Qadir, 5/371.

Muhammad], "Have you considered: whether Allah should cause my death and those with me or have mercy upon us, who can protect the disbelievers from a painful punishment?"' (al-Mulk: 28) and 'Say, "In whose hand is the realm of all things - and He protects while none can protect against Him - if you should know?' (al-Mu'minun: 88)

In this regard, Allah Glorified is He relates that Satan said to the disbelievers: '…and indeed, I am your protector.' (al-Anfal: 48) A person seeks the protection of someone else who is powerful only when s/he is unable to protect him/herself.

It is as if Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'If I swerve from what Allah sent to me, none can protect me against Him and prevent His punishment. Then he said: 'I have no refuge except in Him.' (al-Kahf: 27) The Arabic word 'Multahada' (refuge) is mentioned twice in the Quran. It occurs in the aforementioned verse and in the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'And recite, [O Muhammad], what has been revealed to you of the Book of your Lord. There is no changer of His words, and never will you find in other than Him a refuge.' (al-Kahf: 27) It is as if Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'I will not find any refuge in other than Allah if I do not follow what I came with. It is also said that the word 'Multahad' means a passageway that looks like a vault. The same word is derived from 'Lahd' which is a rectangular crevice on the side of a grave facing the Qibla in which a dead person is buried.

إِلَّا بَلَٰغًا مِّنَ ٱللَّهِ وَرِسَٰلَٰتِهِۦۚ وَمَن يَعْصِ ٱللَّهَ وَرَسُولَهُۥ فَإِنَّ لَهُۥ
نَارَ جَهَنَّمَ خَٰلِدِينَ فِيهَآ أَبَدًا ﴿٢٣﴾

I only deliver [what I receive] from God – only His messages.' Whoever disobeys God and His Messenger will have Hell's Fire as his permanent home [23]
(The Quran, al-Jinn: 23)

What safeguards Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him from the Punishment of Allah is only conveying the Message revealed to him. That is all what he should do; he is no in the position to harm or bring benefit to his people, for Guidance and misguidance depends on Allah the Almighty Alone.

Some exegetes say that the Arabic word Ella consists of two particles: En and la (unless). Thus, the meaning is that none can protect him Allah's peace and blessings be upon him against Allah Glorified is He if he does not impart His Messages. He peace and blessings be upon him is responsible for delivering the Divine Messenge. So, when the disbelievers of Mecca tried to make a compromise with him, he said to his paternal uncle Abu Taleb, 'My uncle, by Allah, if they put the sun in my right hand and the moon in my left one (as a compromise) to renounce such a matter, I would never waive it till Allah has made it predominate or caused me to perish in its cause.'(1)

Allah the Almighty mentions the word 'message' in the plural form, as in His saying in which He praises those who convey His Messages: ‘Those who deliver the messages of Allah and fear Him, and do not fear anyone but Allah; and Allah is sufficient to take account’ (al-Ahzab: 39); ‘And he turned away from them and said, “O my people, I had certainly conveyed to you the messages of my Lord and advised you.”’ (al-A‘raf: 93) The plural word 'messages' denotes the commands, prohibitions, laws and obligations which constitute the Divine Message.

Then Allah the Almighty says: ‘Whoever disobeys Allah and His Messenger will have Hell’s Fire as his permanent home.’ (al-Jinn: 23) Disobedience here does not denote committing sins. It means the lack of belief in Allah, His Scriptures, Messages and Prophets. Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him was narrated to have said, 'All [the members of] my ummah except for those who refuse.' The Companions asked, 'Who will refuse, Allah's Messenger?' He said, 'Whoever obeys me will enter paradise, while those who disobey me will refuse.'(2)

(1) See Ibn Hisham, As-Sira An-Nabawiyya, 1/266; Al-Bayhaqi, Dala'il An-Nubuwwa, Hadith no. 66; As-Suhayli, Ar-Rawd Al-Unuf, 3/10; and Ibn Sayyid An-Nas, 'Uyun Al-Athar, 1/118.

(2) This Hadith is narrated on the authority of Abu Hurayra Allah be pleased with him. See Al-Bukhari, Sahih, Hadith no. 7280; and Al-Muhallib, Al-Mukhtasar Al-Sahih, Hadith no. 7280.

Therefore, whoever disobeys Allah Glorified is He and Messenger Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him concerning monotheism: '…will have Hell's Fire as his permanent home.' (al-Jinn: 23) This means that those who disobey Him regarding His commands and prohibitions, and disbelieve in Him and in Messenger Muhammad and deny His Messages will abide in hell forever.

In this connection, He the Almighty says: 'Indeed, those who disbelieve and die, while they are disbelievers - upon them will be the curse of Allah and of the angels and the people, all together. They will abide eternally therein. The punishment will not be lightened for them, nor will they be reprieved.' (al-Baqara: 161-162)

Here, Allah the Almighty talks about the disbelievers' punishment in hell. This very punishment is eternal and unceasing. Eternal residence in hell is emphasized only in the verse reading: 'Whoever disobeys Allah and His Messenger will have Hell's Fire as his permanent home.' (al-Jinn: 23). The adjective 'permanent' gives more meaning than the verb 'abide'. The Quran is the literal Words of Allah Glorified is He and every Word therein is exact and meaningful; there is no redundancy or repetition what so ever in the Quran. Thus, the adjective 'permanent' means that abiding in hell is endless.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says:

حَتَّىٰٓ إِذَا رَأَوۡاْ مَا يُوعَدُونَ فَسَيَعۡلَمُونَ مَنۡ أَضۡعَفُ نَاصِرٗا وَأَقَلُّ عَدَدٗا ٢٤

When they are confronted by what they have been warned about, they will realize who has the weaker protector and the smaller number [24] (The Quran, al-Jinn: 24)

Allah Glorified is He asserts in this verse that the disbelievers will see hell. In another verse, He the Almighty says: 'And the criminals will see the Fire and will be certain that they are to fall therein.' (al-Kahf: 53) However, in another verse He the Almighty says: '…and we will gather them on the Day of Resurrection [fallen] on their faces – blind.' (al-Isra': 97) The one who ponders on these verses finds that blindness occurs once the disbelievers are resurrected from their graves so that they will be humiliated and confused. Afterwards, they regain their eyesight to experience the forms of punishment ordained for them. Thus, He the Almighty humiliates the disbelievers in the case of their eyesight and blindness. He Glorified is He says in another verse: '…until, when they see that which they were promised - either punishment [in this world] or the Hour [of resurrection] - they will come to know who is worst in position and weaker in soldiers.' (Maryam: 75)

In the verse in question, Allah the Almighty warns the disbelievers against hellfire. When He the Almighty makes a threat, He is fully Able to carry it out and nothing can impede its fulfillment, a fact which is clear in His saying: 'Indeed, what you are promised is coming, and you will not cause failure [to Allah].' (al-An'am: 134) Thus, none is able to prevent Him Glorified is He from fulfilling His Promise or carrying out His threat. No one can overpower Him, for He is the Omnipotent.

With regard to the saying of Allah the Almighty: '…they will realize who has the weaker protector and the smaller number' (al-Jinn: 24), it means that they will know who has the weaker helpers; are they the disbelievers of Mecca or the believers? Further, the smaller number means that they have no supporters in the Hereafter. It is worth mentioning that the polytheists used to taunt Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and the believers with the lack of helpers and their small number. So, He the Almighty says: '…they will realize who has the weaker protector and the smaller number.' (al-Jinn: 24) This is an explicit threat aimed at those who know about the Message of Islam and reject it.

The polytheists compare their might with that of Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and rely upon it greatly. In this regard, Allah Glorified is He says: 'Close friends, that Day, will be enemies to each other, except for the righteous.' (az-Zukhruf: 67) So, on the Day of Judgment, the close friends will be enemies to one another and dissociate from one another except for the righteous. In the same connection, Allah Glorified is He says: '[And they should consider that] when those who have been followed disassociate themselves from those who followed [them], and they [all] see the punishment, and cut off from them are the ties [of relationship], [166] Those who followed will say, "If only we had another turn [at worldly life] so we could disassociate ourselves from them as they have disassociated themselves from us.” Thus will Allah show them their deeds as regrets upon them. And they are never to emerge from the Fire. [167]’ (al-Baqara: 166-167)

Afterwards, Allah the Almighty says:

قُلْ إِنْ أَدْرِيٓ أَقَرِيبٌ مَّا تُوعَدُونَ أَمْ يَجْعَلُ لَهُۥ رَبِّيٓ أَمَدًا ﴿٢٥﴾

Say, ‘I do not know whether what you have been warned about is near, or whether a distant time has been appointed for it by my Lord’ [25] (The Quran, al-Jinn: 25)

Here, the Arabic particle en denotes negation, so the meaning is that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him does not know whether the eternal punishment against which Allah the Almighty warns is imminent or distant.

With regard to His saying: ‘…or whether a distant time has been appointed for it by my Lord’ (al-Jinn: 25), the Arabic word Amad means a distant time. It occurs in the Quran four times, as in the verse reading: ‘…and a long period passed over them, so their hearts hardened’ (al-Hadid: 16); and ‘On the Day that every soul shall find present what it has done of good and what it has done of evil, it shall wish that between it and that (evil) there were a long duration of time…’ (Al-‘Imran: 30).

Then, Allah Glorified is He says:

عَٰلِمُ ٱلْغَيْبِ فَلَا يُظْهِرُ عَلَىٰ غَيْبِهِۦٓ أَحَدًا ﴿٢٦﴾

He is the One who knows what is hidden [26]
(The Quran, al-Jinn: 26)

The unseen is all that is known by Allah Glorified is He Alone. He is the Knower of the unseen and He only informs those whom He selects from mankind about it. In this vein, He the Almighty says: ‘And with Him are the keys of the unseen; none knows them except Him. And He knows what is on the land and in the sea. Not a leaf falls but that He knows it. And no grain is there within the darkness of the earth and no moist or dry [thing] but that it is [written] in a clear record.’ (al-An‘am: 59)

Allah Glorified is He does not grant the key of the unseen to any of His creatures. The absolute unseen is what all creatures do not know. As regards the mysteries of the universe, they are not classified as unseen because even if they are hidden from some people, they are known to others. The saying of Allah Glorified is He: '…and He does not disclose His [knowledge of the] unseen to anyone' (al-Jinn: 26) means that He Glorified is He does not let any of His creatures know about the unseen. In this connection, He the Almighty says: '…and when she informed [another] of it and Allah showed it to him, he made known part of it and ignored a part.' (at-Tahrim: 3) This verse means that He the Almighty informed Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him that Hafsa Allah be pleased with her told 'Aisha Allah be pleased with her about the secret which he confided to her.

Afterwards, Allah the Almighty excepts specific creatures of His from not knowing the unseen, saying:

إِلَّا مَنِ ٱرۡتَضَىٰ مِن رَّسُولٖ فَإِنَّهُۥ يَسۡلُكُ مِنۢ بَيۡنِ يَدَيۡهِ وَمِنۡ خَلۡفِهِۦ رَصَدٗا ﴿٢٧﴾

He does not disclose it except to a messenger of His choosing.
He sends watchers to go in front and behind [27]
(The Quran, al-Jinn: 27)

According to this verse, Allah Glorified is He excludes His selected Messengers from not knowing some unseen matters. They did not know about the unseen by themselves; rather, He the Almighty informed them of special, unseen things which could function as miracles for them and their followers. So, He the Almighty allows His Prophets to know about some unseen things and preserve them with Angels who, in turn, protect these unseen matters from devilish whispers and confusions.

Allah the Almighty protects the heavenly Revelations He sends down upon His Prophets from the jinn for two reasons: to prevent the jinn from eavesdropping on the Divine Revelations and conveying them to soothsayers, and to enable the Prophets to communicate these Revelations to people free from the satanic tampering and confusion.

Thus, Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him is informed about the unseen, but not a knower of the unseen, as Allah Glorified is He says: ‘Say, [O Muhammad], “I do not tell you that I have the depositories [containing the provision] of Allah or that I know the unseen, nor do I tell you that I am an angel. I only follow what is revealed to me.”’ (al-An‘am: 50) So, he peace and blessings be upon him disproves his knowledge of the unseen.

Someone may ask, 'What about the future matters and events that he peace and blessings be upon him told us about?' The answer is that this is not a form of knowing the unseen, as it is He the Almighty Who told him peace and blessings be upon him about these future events. An example of this is His saying: ‘That is from the news of the unseen which We reveal to you, [O Muhammad]. And you were not with them when they cast their pens as to which of them should be responsible for Mary. Nor were you with them when they disputed.’ (Al-‘Imran: 44) Hence, it is He Glorified is He Who informed him peace and blessings be upon him of these stories which were among the unseen. This constitutes a penetration into the knowledge of the past. As regards future events, they are hidden from you through the barrier of the future.

Allah Glorified is He endows some of His creatures with knowledge about some unseen things. The Quran contains a lot of unseen things that later came true. He the Almighty bestowed upon Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him some of the unseen knowledge and specified those who could learn about some unseen things, saying: ‘He does not disclose it except to a messenger of His choosing…’ (al-Jinn: 27).

However, this blessing is not exclusive to Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him because he is a role model and whoever imitates him will have some of these Divine blessings. When the people notice this, they will know that when a person models him/herself on him peace and blessings be upon him Allah the Almighty grants him/her special endowments.

Allah the Almighty says: ‘And with Him are the keys of the unseen; none knows them except Him...’ (al-An‘am: 59). He Glorified is He did not give the keys of the unseen to anyone. As for the pious people, they receive their special endowments from Him, but they do not have the keys of the unseen.

Although Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him told us about unseen things, we should not say that he knows the unseen because it is Allah the Almighty who informed him about the unseen things. So, no one knows the unseen of his/her own accord.

As for the absolute unseen is what is known by Allah Glorified is He Alone. In this regard, once Messenger of Allah peace and blessings be upon him was asked about the appointed time of the Hour, he said, 'The one who is asked about it has no idea like the enquirer.'(1)

Allah the Almighty then says: '…He sends watchers to go in front and behind him.' (al-Jinn: 27) He Glorified is He protected Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him from the jinn's attempted eavesdropping on the Divine Revelations. The object pronoun 'him' here refers to Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. Now, why does He Glorified is He mention the front and back directions in particular? The answer is that mentioning some of these directions implies the remaining ones. It is said that whenever He the Almighty sent a Prophet, Satan used to come to that Prophet in the form of an Angel to make some satanic suggestions to him, whereupon He Glorified is He sent a group of the Angels as guards to protect that Prophet from devils and the jinn. Allah Glorified is He is in charge of preserving the Quran by guarding the sky with the Angels who used to deter devils from listening secretly to the Divine Revelations.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He concludes the chapter of al-Jinn, saying:

لِّيَعْلَمَ أَن قَدْ أَبْلَغُوا۟ رِسَـٰلَـٰتِ رَبِّهِمْ وَأَحَاطَ بِمَا لَدَيْهِمْ وَأَحْصَىٰ كُلَّ شَىْءٍ عَدَدًۢا ﴿٢٨﴾

To ensure that each of His messengers delivers his Lord's message: He knows all about them, and He takes account of everything [28] (The Quran, al-Jinn: 28)

This verse means that sending watchers is in order for Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him to know that the previous Prophets communicated the Messages of their Lord and that Jibril (Gabriel) conveyed to him the

(1) This Hadith is narrated on the authority of Abu Hurayra Allah be pleased with him. See Al-Bukhari, Sahih, Hadith no. 50 and 4777; and Muslim, Sahih, Hadith no. 8, 9 and 10.

Messages of his Lord as well. But for the guarding Angels, who repelled devils and jinn, they would divulge the Divine Revelations to the soothsayers, and there would be no distinction between them and the Prophets. In this way, the Prophets would not have the advantage of miracles and none would accept their Calls. Thus, the heavenly Messages were conveyed and protected against additions and decreases.

The verse in question is interpreted in many ways. It is said that it means that in order for Satan to know that the Prophets conveyed Allah's Messages protected from his whispers and the insertions of the jinn. Further, the attempts at eavesdropping failed as Allah Glorified is He says: '…He knows all about them…' (al-Jinn: 28). The jinn have no way out to escape from Allah the Almighty. This Attribute of All-encompassing requires Allah's Knowledge and Control over the jinn and devils.

He the Almighty knows best all the affairs of the Prophets and nothing concerning them is hidden from Him. His Knowledge encompasses all what is related to the Prophets, Angels and all the creatures. It encompasses the Ordinances and Laws with which the Prophets came with.

As for His saying: '…and He takes account of everything.' (al-Jinn: 28), it means that Allah the Almighty has enumerated His creatures and knows what He has created. His Knowledge covers even the weights of atoms and mustards and everything is enumerated by Him.

The Arabic word 'Adada' is put in the accusative as a circumstantial expression or as a cognate accusative. Hence, nothing is hidden from Allah, be it much, little, big or small. He the Almighty knows the numbers of the drops of water, grains of sand, tree leaves and the foam of seas. At this point, the chapter of al-Jinn comes to an end. It shakes feelings and hearts and talks about the invisible world. We do not care much about the realm of Angels as we can feel secure regarding them. By contrast, we are apprehensive about the world of the jinn. As the chapter illustrates, the jinn search for the True Religion and find it in the Quran which they listen to directly from Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. They immediately become Preachers for their fellow jinn.

al-Muzzammil

In the Name of God, the Most Merciful, the Dispenser of Mercy

The chapter of al-Muzzammil (1).

Allah Glorified is He says:

يَٰٓأَيُّهَا ٱلۡمُزَّمِّلُ ﴿١﴾ قُمِ ٱلَّيۡلَ إِلَّا قَلِيلٗا ﴿٢﴾
نِّصۡفَهُۥٓ أَوِ ٱنقُصۡ مِنۡهُ قَلِيلًا ﴿٣﴾ أَوۡ زِدۡ عَلَيۡهِ وَرَتِّلِ ٱلۡقُرۡءَانَ تَرۡتِيلًا ﴿٤﴾

You [Prophet], enfolded in your cloak! [1] stay up throughout the night, all but a small part of it [2] half, or a little less [3] or a little more; recite the Quran slowly and distinctly [4] (The Quran, al-Muzzammil: 1 - 4)

Allah the Almighty addresses Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him to get him nearer to Him. A worshipper should stand before Him Glorified is He and invoke Him humbly and submissively. But here it is He the Almighty Who orders him peace and blessings be upon him to spend some period of the night performing acts of worship. In another verse, He the Almighty says: ‘And from [part of] the night, pray with it as additional [worship] for you; it is expected that your Lord will resurrect you to a praised station.’ (al-Isra’: 79)

The Arabic word Hujud means 'sleep', and the verb 'Tahajad' means to stay awake at night. The obligation of performing the late-night acts of worship is peculiar to the Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him, but it is not a religious obligation imposed on the ummah. Though this peculiarity concerning him is regarded as an additional religious duty imposed upon him, he had the option of performing it at any time during the night. What is important is that he performs this act of worship.

(1) The chapter of al-Muzzammil is the chapter seventy three according to the order of the Mushaf and it was revealed in Mecca. According to Ibn 'Abbas and 'Ata', the last verse of this chapter was revealed in Medina. Its verses number 20, and it was revealed after the chapter of al-Qalam.

In this regard, Allah the Almighty says: ‘And those who spend [part of] the night to their Lord prostrating and standing [in prayer].’ (al-Furqan: 64) When a person takes refuge in his/her house after a day of hard work and remembers the bestowals of Allah Glorified is He upon him/her, s/he turns to Him by giving Him due thanks and prostrating in prayer during the night.

It does not mean that one must spend the whole night performing acts of worship. Rather, one should devote part of the night to the acts of worship when s/he has enough energy to perform them. In this regard, Ibn 'Abbas is narrated to have said, 'Whoever observes two units of prayer or more after the Evening Prayer is like the one who has spent the night prostrating to Allah in prayer.' Allah the Almighty wills you to praise and glorify Him before you sleep and contemplate His Favours upon you, thereby you thank Him.

The Arabic word Al-Muzzammil refers to the one who wraps himself in clothing. In this regard, Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him wrapped himself in clothing and said, 'Wrap me,' when he met Jibril (Gabriel) for the first time.(1) The word 'Al muzzammil' also refers to the one who carries the banner of Prophethood. It is as if Allah the Almighty says to him peace and blessings be upon him 'You, who carry the responsibility of the Islamic Call, fulfill it, for it is a great matter.' He the Almighty does not address him Allah’s peace and blessings be upon him here saying, 'O Prophet!' because the address in the verse in question was at the start of the Divine Revelations. Afterwards, he was addressed as a Prophet and a Messenger.

Concerning the reason behind the revelation of this chapter in question, it is related that the people of Quraysh met at their gathering place to plot against Messenger Muhammad Allah’s peace and blessings be upon him. He heard of their plot and grieved greatly. Then he wrapped himself up with a sheet and slept, whereupon Gabriel came to him with the saying of Allah: ‘You

(1) Jabir ibn ‘Abdullah Allah be pleased with him narrated that Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'While I was walking down, I heard a voice coming from the horizon, whereupon I raised my head upwards and noticed the Angel who came to me in the cave of Hira’ sitting on a throne between the heaven and the earth. I was so frightened and returned home saying, 'Wrap me up! Wrap me up.' They covered me with a sheet.' See Al-Khazin, Lubab At-Ta'wil, 4/355; Ibn Al-Jawzi, Zad Al-Masir, 4/352; and At-Tabari, Jame' Al-Bayan, 23/400.

[Prophet], enfolded in your cloak! [1] Stay up throughout the night, all but a small part of it, [2] half, or a little less, [3] or a little more; recite the Quran slowly and distinctly. [4]' (al-Muzzammil: 1-4) It is as if He the Almighty says to him, 'Do not grieve. You will find solace in your spiritual closeness to Me. Rise and perform prayer to eliminate your sorrow and troubles.'

Therefore, Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him used to say to Bilal, 'Soothe us with it [prayer].' He peace and blessings be upon him always found comfort in prayer which used to relieve him of his worries and hardships. Due to his indescribable love for Allah, obedience and devotions became desirable and favourable for him. Those who perform prayer lovingly and with pleasure get rid of their concerns and problems. To have a strong affection for your religious obligations, means that you have tasted the pleasure of your obedience.

Allah the Almighty says: 'You [Prophet], enfolded in your cloak! [1] Stay up throughout the night, all but a small part of it, [2]' (al-Muzzammil: 1-2). Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him was in the habit of offering late-night supererogatory prayers to the point that his feet were swollen. When he was asked why he was doing this though Allah Glorified is He forgave him his past and future sins completely, he accounted for this saying, 'Should I not be a grateful servant?'

So, He the Almighty asked him to spend part of the night performing prayer and other acts of worship. It is as if He Glorified is He said to him peace and blessings be upon him 'Leave your bed and your wrapping. Rise, stand before Me, spend two thirds of the night offering supererogatory prayer and sleep for the remaining third.' Here arises a question, which is, 'Is this directive aimed at the Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him alone? Or does it include the Muslim Ummah as well?' The directive includes the ummah as well.

'Aisha was narrated to have said, 'I used to make a mat for Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him in order for him to observe prayer on it during the night. This became on people's lips. People gathered at Messenger Muhammad's house and he got out angrily to meet them. He was merciful towards them and feared that late-night prayer should be prescribed upon them. He said, 'People, do of the acts of worship according to your abilities. Allah never gets weary of reward so that you feel bored with good deeds. The best deeds are those which last longer.' At this moment, Allah the Almighty revealed the verses reading: ‘You [Prophet], enfolded in your cloak! [1] Stay up throughout the night, all but a small part of it, [2] half, or a little less, [3] or a little more; recite the Quran slowly and distinctly. [4]’ (al-Muzzammil: 1-4) People were in the habit of performing night prayer to the degree that a man used to tie a rope and take hold of it. They continued this way for eight months. As people were sincere in their pursuit to gain the pleasure of Allah, He had Mercy on them, kept obligatory prayers mandatory and made late-night prayer optional.'(1)

He the Almighty then says: ‘Half, or a little less, [3] or a little more; recite the Quran slowly and distinctly. [4]’ (al-Muzzammil: 3-4) He Glorified is He orders Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him to perform supererogatory prayer for half the night, for one third of it or for two thirds of it. So, He the Almighty grants him peace and blessings be upon him three options: performing night prayer for half the night, doing so for one third of it or for two thirds of it. He peace and blessings be upon him had the choice of adopting either of these options.

Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and a group of Muslims used to offer late-night prayer according to these options. This caused them some difficulty to the point that a Muslim sometimes were not aware of how many units of prayer he observed or how much time remained of the night period. They used to spend the whole night performing optional prayer till Allah Glorified is He facilitated this act of worship at the end of the chapter in question. Once 'Aisha was asked about Messenger Muhammad's late-night prayer, she said, 'Do you not recite the chapter reading: ‘You [Prophet], enfolded in your cloak!’ (al-Muzzammil: 1)? The enquirer replied, 'Yes.' 'Aisha said, 'Allah imposed night-late prayer at the beginning of this chapter. Messenger Muhammad and his Companions kept offering late-night prayer [according to the chapter] for a whole year. At the conclusion, this act of worship was reduced and late-night prayer became voluntary.'(2)

(1) This Hadith is narrated on the authority of 'Aisha Allah be pleased with her. See Ibn Abu Hatim, Tafsir, 19010; At-Tabari, Jame' Al-Bayan, 23/359; and Al-Qasimi, Mahasin At-Ta'wil, 9/345.

(2) See Al-Wahid, At-Tafsir Al-Wasit, 1250; Al-Qurtubi, Jame' Ahkam Al-Quran, 19/34; As-Suyuti, Ad-Durr Al-Mathur, 8/312; Ahmad, Musnad, Hadith no. 24269; and Muslim, Sahih, Hadith no. 746.

As for the saying of Allah the Almighty: '…recite the Quran slowly and distinctly.' (al-Muzzammil: 4), it is a command to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him to spend the night performing acts of worship and reciting the Quran slowly and distinctly. It is as if He the Almighty is saying to him, 'Have presence of mind and heart while you are performing prayer and reciting the Quran. Meditate on the truths and meanings of the Quran. Reflect over the promises of reward and paradise made to the believers, the warning against the hell and the bad destination directed to the disbelievers and the stories of the previous Prophets and nations.' So, the purpose of the slow, measured recitation of the Quran is the presence of mind and heart at the recitation of the Quran.

When 'Anas ibn Malik Allah be pleased with him was asked, 'How did Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him recite the Quran?' he said, 'He used to elongate the sounds.' Then 'Anas recited [elongating the sounds] Allah's saying: 'In the Name of Allah, the Lord of Mercy, the Giver of Mercy.' (al-Fatiha: 1)(1)

The Quran is not only revealed to be recited, but it is also revealed to endure and remain till the Day of Judgment. It was also revealed so that we understand and comply with its rules, and fulfill our duties towards Allah the Almighty and people's duties and rights. The Quran is revealed in order for us to act according to it, heed its warnings, learn its lessons and follow its dos and donots. All of this materializes by contemplating and reciting it in a measured, rhythmic manner. We should recite it leisurely and articulate the sounds distinctly so that listeners can enumerate these sounds. The slow, modulated recitation of the Quran is a must. It is sinful for a person to desist from it.

So, contemplating the Quran is realized by reciting it leisurely and rhythmically. In this regard, Allah the Almighty says: 'Then do they not reflect upon the Quran, or are there locks upon [their] hearts?' (Muhammad: 24) '[This is] a blessed Book which we have revealed to you, [O Muhammad], that they might reflect upon its verses and that those of understanding would be reminded.' (Sad: 29) Therefore, one must comprehend and reflect on the Quran.

Allah Glorified is He then says:

إِنَّا سَنُلۡقِي عَلَيۡكَ قَوۡلٗا ثَقِيلًا ﴿٥﴾ إِنَّ نَاشِئَةَ ٱلَّيۡلِ هِيَ أَشَدُّ وَطۡـٔٗا وَأَقۡوَمُ قِيلًا ﴿٦﴾
إِنَّ لَكَ فِي ٱلنَّهَارِ سَبۡحٗا طَوِيلٗا ﴿٧﴾

We shall send a momentous message down to you [5] Night prayer makes a deeper impression and sharpens words [6] you are kept busy for long periods of the day [7]
(The Quran, al-Muzzammil: 5 - 7)

Allah Glorified is He prepared Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him for this major mission, namely, bearing the Message of Islam. He the Almighty readied him for carrying the banner of Islam by the performance of late-night optional prayer and spiritual closeness. Spending part of the night in optional prayer provided him peace and blessings be upon him with the necessary energy to shoulder his great responsibility, namely, the Divine Way of Guidance and notifying people about it. The phrase 'a momentous message' refers to the Divine Revelations. He Glorified is He does not say, 'We will reveal to you a momentous message'; rather, He says: ‘We will send…’ (al-Muzzammil: 5) because the verb 'sent' matches the word 'momentous message' and connotes hardship and strength.

Receiving the Divine Revelations was so difficult for Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. Sometimes his forehead sweated profusely owing to his reactions.(1) Once the revelation departs, these symptoms end. One of the Companions related that he once was sitting beside Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and placing his knee over his. Thereupon, the Divine Revelations came down upon him peace and blessings be upon him and the Companion felt as if his knee was as heavy as a mountain. Even when the Divine Revelations came while he peace and blessings be upon him was riding his camel, the camel would kneel down.(2)

(1) 'Aisha was narrated to have said, 'Sometimes I noticed [divine revelations] being sent down upon him (Messenger Muhammad) while his forehead was sweating heavily.' See Al-Jawhari, Sharh Al-Muwat', Hadith no. 743; Al-Baghawi, Sharh As-Sunna, 3737.

(2) Asma' Bint Yazid was narrated to have said, 'While I was holding the rein of Al-'Adba, the she-camel of Messenger Muhammad, the chapter of al-Ma'ida was revealed to him all at once. It was so unbearable for the she-camel that its neck was about to bruise.' See Ahmad, Musnad, 6/455; and Ibn Rahawayh, Musnad, Hadith no. 2298.

Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him used to get so exhausted after receiving the Divine Revelations. So when he received it for the first time, he returned quickly to Lady Khadija and said to her, 'Wrap me up. Wrap me up,' as if he had a fever.

Since The Divine Revelations were exhausting and difficult for him peace and blessings be upon him they stop temporarily in order for him to have some rest and regain his energy. After he became relaxed and found pleasure in the Divine Revelations he received, he longed for more fresh Divine Revelations.

Allah the Almighty says: ‘Did we not expand for you, [O Muhammad], your breast? And we removed from you your burden which had weighed upon your back.’ (ash-Sharh: 1-3) The word 'burden' here refers to the burden which Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him used to bear when he received the Divine Revelations. He Glorified is He willed to drive away this burden and to comfort him peace and blessings be upon him. So, the Divine Revelations stopped temporarily till his nerves were calmed. Afterwards, he used to long for more fresh Divine Revelations after he found solace and pleasure in what he received. Your yearning for something makes you overlook any difficulties in the way of getting it.

The fact that Divine Revelations ceased for some time prompted the polytheists to say, 'Muhammad has been abandoned by his Lord.' So, in the case of the intermission of the Revelation, the polytheists recognized that Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him had a God while in case of receiving it they claimed that he was a liar and a poet. Thereupon the chapter of ad-Duha was revealed. It reads: ‘By the morning brightness [1] and [by] the night when it covers with darkness, [2] Your Lord has not taken leave of you, [O Muhammad], nor has He detested [you]. [3] And the Hereafter is better for you than the first [life]. [4] And your Lord is going to give you, and you will be satisfied. [5]’ (ad-Duha: 1-5)

The saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘And the Hereafter is better for you than the first [life]’ (ad-Duha: 4) could mean that the resumption of the Divine Revelations will be better than their beginning. It is as if He Glorified is He says to Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him, 'This is because you received them for the first time and was exhausted and overburdened by them. Afterwards you will call for and wait for them longingly. You will be ready for receiving them and able to endure them.' So, when he peace and blessings be upon him received Divine Revelations again, his forehead did not sweat profusely as it happened the first time because his longing for them overcame fatigue and stress. The saying of Allah: ‘We shall send a momentous message down to you.’ (ad-Duha: 5) indicates that the Divine Revelations which Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him received need his strenuous efforts to notify, teach and put them into practice. Likewise, He Glorified is He describes the Day of Judgment, saying: ‘Indeed, these [disbelievers] love the immediate and leave behind them a grave Day.’ (al-Insan: 27) The Day of Judgment will be a serious Day on grounds of the tremendous events that will occur on it.

Muslim exegetes have other views concerning the meaning of Allah’s saying: ‘…a momentous message...’ (ad-Duha: 5). They said it is heavy because it contains religious obligations and rules. It is heavy in the Balance on the Day of Resurrection. It is imposing, sublime and sober, not mentioning the trivial matters.

He the Almighty then says: ‘Night prayer makes a deeper impression and sharpens words.’ (ad-Duha: 6) Here, He the Almighty commands Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him to supplicate to Him to receive His Blessings and Mercy at the time when people sleep and rest. Unlike the one who does not wake up to perform late-night prayer, whoever stays awake during the night and imitates him peace and blessings be upon him will receive His Blessings and Mercy. So, late-night prayer epitomizes strength of faith and spiritual energy. As Prophet Muhammad's task surpassed all people's tasks, his portion of worship in the late-night prayer was greater. As his burdens were numerous, he was always in dire need for Allah's Help and Care.

The phrase Nash'at Al-Layl denotes the night period. Each hour of the night is called Nashi'a (an ensuing hour) as it ensues from the one preceding it. Any optional prayer a person performs after the Evening Prayer is called Nash'at Al-Layl, that is, the prayer observed during the night.'(1) This phrase is said to refer to the person who performs optional prayer during the night because s/he does so at any time during the night. Thus, Allah Glorified is He gives such a person three options, saying: ‘You [Prophet], enfolded in your cloak! [1] Stay up throughout the night, all but a small part of it, [2] half, or a little less, [3] or a little more; recite the Quran slowly and distinctly. [4]’ (al-Muzzammil: 1-4) So the person can choose the optimal and more suitable time to observe late-night prayer. Here, Allah the Almighty says: ‘Night prayer makes a deeper impression…’ (ad-Duha: 6). Unlike the daytime, the night period is an opportune time to offer optional prayer and invoking Allah Glorified is He. At night, the hearts become purer and serener enough to understand and contemplate the Quran and so are other senses like hearing and eyesight. The Arabic word Wat' may mean onerous, burdensome, arduous and so on. In this sense, the late-night prayer is tiring as the night is a time of repose for people.

(1) In his Tafsir, Mujahid ibn Jabr relates that Al-Hasan said, 'Any optional prayer a person performs after the Evening Prayer is called Nash'at Al-Layl.' See Mujahid, Tafsir, 1/679.

The saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘…and sharpens words.’ (ad-Duha: 6) means that reciting the Quran in a measured, rhythmic way during the night is better and more effective because of the quietness and silence at that time. Besides, you recite the Quran in a correct way and away from the prying eyes of other people, which helps you avoid showing off.

When you invoke Allah the Almighty and recite the Quran during the night, you do so effectively and emotionally as it is calm and there is nothing that occupies you. So any act of worship you perform during the night is more energetic, more sincere and more prosperous than any other act of worship you observe in the daytime. As regards daytime, He Glorified is He says: ‘You are kept busy for long periods of the day.’ (al-Muzzammil: 7)

Daytime is a long period when you can meet your needs and do your daily routines. The Arabic word Sabh primarily denotes running and rotation. It also means swimming, sleep, lying down and stretching. So, the saying of Allah Glorified is He: ‘You are kept busy for long periods of the day’ (al-Muzzammil: 7) means that the person has a protracted daytime period in which s/he can take some rest or sleep. So, s/he should assign the night period to the voluntary acts of worship.

The main daytime task of Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him included conveying the Divine Message, teaching Muslims and fighting against the enemies. Thus, Allah Glorified is He prepared him for receiving the imposing Words and carrying the tremendous burden, namely, performing the late-night prayer and carrying his mission in the daytime. So, with regard to Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him the daytime should be dedicated to doing the daily routines, but a great part of the night should be dedicated to prayer, the praising of Allah the Almighty and the measured recitation of the Quran.

Allah Glorified is He then says:

وَٱذۡكُرِ ٱسۡمَ رَبِّكَ وَتَبَتَّلۡ إِلَيۡهِ تَبۡتِيلٗا ﴿٨﴾
رَّبُّ ٱلۡمَشۡرِقِ وَٱلۡمَغۡرِبِ لَآ إِلَٰهَ إِلَّا هُوَ فَٱتَّخِذۡهُ وَكِيلٗا ﴿٩﴾

So celebrate the name of your Lord and devote yourself wholeheartedly to Him [8] He is Lord of the east and west, there is no god but Him, so take Him as your Protector [9]
(The Quran, al-Muzzammil: 8 - 9)

Here, Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him is commanded to glorify and praise his Lord Who legislated for you and helped you. In this regard, He the Almighty says, ‘And remember your Lord within yourself in humility and in fear…’ (al-A‘raf: 205); and ‘…remember Allah with much remembrance.’ (al-Ahzab: 41) There is a difference between Allah’s saying: ‘And remember your Lord much’ (Al-‘Imran: 41) and ‘remember Allah with much remembrance.’ The imperative 'remember Allah' denotes religious obligations because He the Almighty is the only God whose Commands and Prohibitions are to be followed. As regards the imperative 'And remember your Lord', it reminds a person about the innumerable favours and bestowals which He Glorified is He confers upon him/her. So, everyone should glorify Him, for even if you do not love Him through your religious obligations, you have loved Him for His favours bestowed on you.

Glorifying Allah the Almighty is in two ways: glorify Him with humility and in awe. This is because you can remember someone else haughtily, but when it comes to Him the Almighty you have to glorify Him as a Creator and Benefactor with submission to His Lordship. Second, we should glorify Him with awe because the more humility you show towards Him, the more honourable you will become. Thus, slavery to anyone other than Him the Almighty is detestable by the humans because it connotes enslavement and subjugation. Also a person who enslaves others is loathed because subjugating others is unfair and cruel. A slave's benefits go to his human master while slavery to Allah the Almighty enables you to get favours from Him. Therefore, when you perform late-night prayer, glorify your Lord and Creator and stand before Him humbly, sincerely and submissively.

Allah the Almighty then says: '…and devote yourself wholeheartedly to Him.' (al-Muzzammil: 8) The Arabic word At-Tabatul means abstention from physical pleasures and seeking the favours of Allah. So, one should sincerely and devotedly worship Him the Almighty without paying attention to the mundane affairs. Therefore, the word Tabatul primarily means dedication and refrainment. In this sense, Maryam (Mary) is called Al-Batul, that is, 'the one who dedicated herself to Allah.'

So, Allah's saying: '…and devote yourself wholeheartedly to Him.' (al-Muzzammil: 8) is a command to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him to devote himself to the worship of Allah through abstention from physical gratifications. So, it seems that devotion follows abstention from physical pleasures, which needs self-restrain and self-discipline.

The Arabic word Tabtil (devotion) is a verbal noun put in the place of the verbal noun Tabattul (abstention). One devotes him/herself to Allah the Almighty when s/he has a thorough grasp of the fact that He Glorified is He is the Lord of the heavens and earth and He is the Owner of everything. Thus, He says afterwards: 'He is Lord of the east and west, there is no god but Him, so take Him as your Protector.' (al-Muzzammil: 9)

Allah Glorified is He is the Lord of the east and west. The recent scientific advancements help us understand the abovementioned verse more profoundly. As we know, every place on the earth has an east and west. We also know that when the sun rises in an area, it sets in another and vice versa. Each sunrise is followed by sunset and each sunset is accompanied by sunrise. Thus, we have two sunrises and two sunsets. More interestingly, every day, the sun has a rise and setting that differ incessantly. In addition, a sunrise and sunset take place in every moment.

Allah Glorified is He is the Lord of the east and west and the Lord of night and day. This fact suits the previous verses reading: ‘Night prayer makes a deeper impression and sharpens words−[6] you are kept busy for long periods of the day [7]’ (al-Muzzammil: 6-7). In fact, sunrise and sunset have specific functions in the universe and they are the cause of the existence of the night and day. He the Almighty prescribed special tasks in the daytime that differ from that of the nighttime. So, we must act according to the Will of Allah the Almighty in this regard.

The verse reading: ‘He is Lord of the east and west...’ (al-Muzzammil: 9) recognizes the Lordship of Allah Glorified is He. Then comes His saying: ‘…there is no god but Him...' (al-Muzzammil: 9) to confirm His Oneness. There is no deity worthy of worship but Him. He is the Only God who deserves Lordship, Godhood and devoted worship. So, we should devote ourselves to Him entirely.

As Allah the Almighty is the Lord of sunrise and sunset which control the lives of the people and He is the Only One God who is worthy of worship, you have no choice but to take Him as a protector, as He says: ‘…so take Him as your Protector.’ (al-Muzzammil: 9) ‘And rely upon Allah. And sufficient is Allah as Disposer of affairs.' (an-Nisa’: 81) Whatever capabilities and means you have, they are nothing if compared with that of Allah the Almighty. So you must rely upon Him Glorified is He Alone and take Him as a protector. By doing so, you should not be worried because He the Almighty protects you. So, you should leave the worldly life and: ‘…celebrate the name of your Lord and devote yourself wholeheartedly to Him.’ (al-Muzzammil: 8) He the Almighty is the best Disposer of affairs. He is the Lord, the provider and the protector of all creatures, so you should take Him as your protector. You should rely upon Him Glorified is He Alone, and when you find yourself unable to accomplish something yourself, the Lord of the east and the west acts on your behalf.

Allah the Almighty then says:

وَٱصۡبِرۡ عَلَىٰ مَا يَقُولُونَ وَٱهۡجُرۡهُمۡ هَجۡرٗا جَمِيلٗا ﴿١٠﴾

Patiently endure what they say, ignore them politely [10] (The Quran, al-Muzzammil: 10)

Allah Glorified is He prepares Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him for a great mission, namely, inviting his people to the embracement of Islam. He the Almighty knows that they will do much harm to him peace and blessings be upon him and thus He wills to prepare him Himself.

The Messenger is required to be a servant of Allah the Almighty Alone and to worship Him only. He is required to stay awake at night to perform prayer and invoke Him while other people are sleeping. Further, he is obliged to glorify his Lord and devote himself entirely to Him, recognizing that He is the Lord of the east and west and that there is no god but Him. Moreover, he peace and blessings be upon him and his ummah must rely upon Him as a disposer of their affairs.

Since Allah Glorified is He knows that the Messenger Muhammad's people will reject his Call as did the previous nations, He says to him: ‘Patienly endure...’ (al-Muzzammil: 10). He peace and blessings be upon him should endure their disbelief and offenses. So, when the Muslims were limited in number and powerless, they were ordered to be patient and tolerant. However, when they became powerful, they were commanded to fight and resist aggression. But the permission of fight does not abrogate the command of pardon and forgiveness. Rather, it is based on the principle that rulings can change according to their changing rationales. A ruling depends upon the presence and absence of its rationale.

So, Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him is commanded to endure the disbelief of his people and their allegation that he is a sorcerer, poet, madman and soothsayer. In this regard, Allah the Almighty says: ‘And indeed, they do not call you untruthful, but it is the verses of Allah that the wrongdoers reject.’ (al-An‘am: 33) As his people deny that he is a Prophet sent from Allah the Almighty and that he receives the Divine Revelations, the previous Prophets met the same fate. This is supported by the verse reading: ‘Then if they deny you, [O Muhammad] - so were messengers denied before you, who brought clear proofs and written ordinances and the enlightening Scripture.' (Al-'Imran: 184)

The previous Prophets came to their peoples with miracles and sacred Books that proved their truthfulness, yet these peoples denied all of this and persisted in their disbelief and denial. Hence, Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him is commanded to be patient and not to be sad because of their allegations, slander and ridicule. Further, he is commanded to go on preaching to them and not to stop that whatever happens. In this connection, He the Almighty says: 'And certainly were Messengers denied before you, but they were patient over [the effects of] denial, and they were harmed until Our victory came to them. And none can alter the words of Allah. And there has certainly come to you some information about the [previous] Messengers.' (al-An'am: 34) The previous Prophets who were sent to specific peoples and in definite periods of time were received with denial and disbelief. As Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him is the final Messenger whom Allah sent to all mankind and for all times, he will be confronted with the same denial and disbelief. Thus, he peace and blessings be upon him should be patient as He the Almighty chooses him to fulfill this huge mission and knows well that he is competent to carry it out. His people made serious accusations against him such as their allegation that he was a sorcerer, a soothsayer, a madman, a poet or a liar. He should not pay heed to these allegations.

Then Allah the Almighty says: '…ignore them politely.' (al-Muzzammil: 10) It is as if He Glorified is He says to him, 'If patience is hard on you, let it be gracious and let your avoidance of them be harmless.' The Arabic word Hajr means avoidance and separation. It connotes one's dislike for what causes severance of good relations between Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and his people. It also means that a person passes from a place to another and from a state to another. But here Allah the Almighty describes avoidance as 'polite', i.e. he should separate himself from them in a peaceful and harmless way despite their persecutions and harassments.

So, the polite avoidance which Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him is to adopt as a policy towards his people at the start of the Islamic Call means to continue being tolerant towards them, not to invoke Allah against them and to persist in preaching them. The books of Prophet Muhammad's biography assert that he peace and blessings be upon him suffered at the hands of his people, yet he said, 'O Allah! Guide my people [to the right path], for they do not know [the consequences of their error].'(1)

It is narrated that Jibril (Gabriel) peace be upon him came to Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and said to him, 'Allah has heard what your people said to you and their response. He has sent you the Angel of Mountains who waits for you to order him to punish them as you like.' The Angel of Mountains called and greeted me and then said, 'Muhammad, Allah has heard the words of your people. I am the Angel of Mountains. Your Lord has sent me in order that you command me to do whatever you like. If you would like me to make the two mountains collapse over them, I will do so.' Thereupon he peace and blessings be upon him said, 'No, I hope that Allah will beget from them those who worship Allah and set up no partner with Him.'(2)

This stance is a remarkable token of Messenger Muhammad's mercy towards his people and the whole world, as Allah the Almighty says: ‘And We have not sent you, [O Muhammad], except as a mercy to the worlds.’ (al-Anbiya’: 107) His people need his perfect manners, unbounded modesty, lovely behaviour, warm smiles and comforting looks. He peace and blessings be upon him should overlook the mistakes of his opponents and not to let himself be provoked by their foolish behaviours.

Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him was deeply affected by the disbelief of his people as he strained every nerve to guide them to the straightway. Thus, Allah the Almighty says to him: ‘So do not let yourself perish over them in regret. Indeed, Allah knows of what they do.’ (Fatir: 8)

(1) After Messenger Muhammad's right lower front tooth was broken and had a face wound at the battle of Uhud, the Companions were outraged and said, 'What about invoking Allah against them [the disbelievers of Mecca]?' Thereupon, Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'I am not sent so as to curse others, but I am sent as a Caller and mercy. O Allah! Guide my people, for they do not know.' See Al-Bayhaqi, Shu'ab Al-Iman, Hadith no.1375.

Allah the Almighty then says:

وَذَرۡنِي وَٱلۡمُكَذِّبِينَ أُوْلِي ٱلنَّعۡمَةِ وَمَهِّلۡهُمۡ قَلِيلًا ﴿١١﴾

And leave to Me those who deny the truth and live in luxury. Bear with them for a little while [11]
(The Quran, al-Muzzammil: 11)

Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him is commanded to leave the disbelievers of Mecca to Allah the Almighty. It is up to Him to punish them. It is He the Almighty Who know the deadline set for respiting and the appointed time for punishment. In a similar verse, He the Almighty says: ‘Let them eat and enjoy themselves and be diverted by [false] hope, for they are going to know.’ (al-Hijr: 3) The present form of the imperative dhar (leave) is Yadhar (to leave). Another verb that is used in the same way is Da' (leave), but it is said that Arabs no longer use the past form of both of these verbs except in one of the recitation of the verse reading: ‘Your Lord has not forsaken you, nor has He become displeased.’ (ad-Duha: 3)

So, the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘And leave to Me those who deny the truth and live in luxury. Bear with them for a little while’ (al-Muzzammil: 11) means that it is up to Him the Almighty to deal with the disbelievers who lead a life of ease. Very often those who live in luxury and comfort pose a big obstacle in the way of the Islamic Call and the implementation of Shari'a. But what is the reason for this? This is because the Way of Allah places restrictions on their immoral lifestyles, and thus they fight relentlessly the preachers and those who call for adherence to the religious teachings. Those who lead comfortable lives are always engaged in disbelief and preventing other people from following Allah's Path. This is corroborated by His saying: ‘And thus We have placed within every city the greatest of its criminals to conspire therein…’ (al-An‘am: 123).

Crime sometimes motivates a person to appropriate everything. That is why the powerful, habitual criminals try hard to inflict harm and commit immoralities. Furthermore, they diffuse vices throughout society simply because they cannot live except in milieu of corruption, bribery and wrongdoing. In this respect, Allah Glorified is He says: ‘And We did not send into a city any warner except that its affluent said, “Indeed we, in that with which you were sent, are disbelievers.”’ (Saba’: 24)

Exegetes hold three different views regarding the meaning of: ‘… [those who] live in luxury…’ (al-Muzzammil: 11). It may refer to the people of Quraysh who vowed to feed the fighters who took part in the battle of Badr; the children of Al-Mughira ibn 'Abdullah; or the notables of the people of Quraysh who used to deride Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him.

Those disbelievers who live luxuriously and disbelieve in the Prophets are the sinful people who commit all forms of corruption. Allah Glorified is He threatens them saying: ‘And leave to Me those who deny the truth and live in luxury. Bear with them for a little while.’ (al-Muzzammil: 11) This is a fateful, strong threat made against the affluent elite of the people of Quraysh. This is because the opulent elite were behind the frenzied, deviant campaign that was waged against Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and his Call.

He the Almighty says here: ‘…Bear with them for a little while.’ (al-Muzzammil: 11) Respiting the disbelievers does not mean neglecting and ignoring them. It means that He the Almighty gives some time to them and suddenly inflicts the Punishment on them, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: ‘And for how many a city did I prolong enjoyment while it was committing wrong. Then I seized it, and to Me is the [final] destination.’ (al-Hajj: 48) Thus, He Glorified is He respites disbelievers and then punishes them. The verb 'seized' in the last verse suits Allah's Power, Might and Avenge. Imagine how grave the Avenge of Allah is. Also, the same verb 'seized' connotes severity, vehemence and subdual. In this connection, He the Almighty says: ‘But those who deny Our signs - We will progressively lead them [to destruction] from where they do not know. [182] And I will give them time. Indeed, my plan is firm. [183]’ (al-A‘raf: 182-183) The Arabic word Al-Imla' means 'respiting' and this indicates that He Glorified is He does not punish the wicked people once they commit a sin. We see them cause a great deal of mischief and depravity in society and He the Almighty gives them time to be involved in more wrongdoing. Thus, the moment He decrees that they should be punished, they face an exemplary punishment.

Concerning the saying of Allah: '…Bear with them for a little while' (al-Muzzammil: 11), some exegetes say that the respite mentioned here expired at the Battle of Badr because some of the eminent disbelievers of Mecca lived for a short time after this threat and were killed in this battle. Other exegetes state that the disbelievers' respite lasts throughout their lifetime because it is too little, just like an hour of the daytime, if compared with the Day of Judgment. This interpretation is well-founded as Allah the Almighty says afterwards:

إِنَّ لَدَيْنَآ أَنكَالًا وَجَحِيمًا ﴿١٢﴾ وَطَعَامًا ذَا غُصَّةٍ وَعَذَابًا أَلِيمًا ﴿١٣﴾

We have fetters, a blazing fire [12] food that chokes, and agonizing torment in store for them [13]
(The Quran, al-Muzzammil: 12 - 13)

Although Allah the Almighty granted disbelievers respite in this worldly life and then inflicted upon them punishment, like that which they faced at the battle of Badr, the severest punishment awaits them in the Hereafter in return for their denial of the Prophets and their Messages.

Here, He the Almighty shows to us the forms of punishment He prepared for disbelievers, saying: 'We have fetters…' (al-Muzzammil: 12). These fetters are the big, heavy shackles that keep tight. The shackles and fetters are a form of psychological punishment and humiliation for the shackled person. Those who disbelieved in Allah's verses stood in the way of His Religion and combated believers were given respite in the worldly life. But in the Hereafter, they are shackled and chained. They cannot free or save themselves. Hence, He the Almighty points out that those chained in hell used to live in ease and comfort in worldly life. But they will be dragged with shackles and chains as a punishment for them.

Allah Glorified is He says: 'We have fetters, a blazing fire.' (al-Muzzammil: 12) The Arabic word Al-Jahim is one of the names of hell. It is derived from the word Al-Jumuh (excessiveness) and refers to the fire which is extremely flaming that it devoured anything it reached. In this connection, Allah the Almighty says: 'But those who disbelieve and deny Our signs - those are the companions of Hellfire.' (al-Ma'ida: 10) The moment we read this verse we get very shocked by this kind of company that all of us hate. Company here means that the disbelievers and hell cannot separate from each other.

Allah Glorified is He then says: 'We have… food that chokes.' (al-Muzzammil: 13) Food is among the things that Allah prepared for disbelievers, but it is food that chokes them. Such food is not easy to swallow or force out like Az-Zaqqum and Ad-Dari' (a poisonous, thorny plant). This food fills with thorns that stick to the throat and are difficult to swallow because it is bitter, rotten and not tasty. Its eater can neither swallow it nor spit it out; rather, it sticks to the throat.

The Followers and the generation that came after them used to be scared of such verses. Khalid ibn Hasan Al-Hajari said, 'One day Al-Hasan was fasting. When the food was brought for him to break his fast, he remembered the verse reading: 'We have fetters, a blazing fire, [12] food that chokes, and agonizing torment in store for them.' (al-Muzzammil: 12-13) Thereupon, he withdrew his hand from the food and said, 'Take this food away.' The food was removed and the next day he fasted on. When the food was brought for him and he remembered the same two verses, he refused to eat. On the third day the son of Al-Hasan went to Thabit Al-Banani, Yazid Ad-Dabbi, Yahya Al-Bakka' and others. He said, 'Save my father. He did not eat for three days. Whenever we brought him the food, he remembered the verse reading: 'We have fetters, a blazing fire.' (al-Muzzammil: 12) and refused to eat.' They went to him and forced him to drink a mouthful of Sawiq (a food made out of fine wheat flour).'(1)

Allah the Almighty mentions three types of the food of the dwellers of hell: Az-Zaqqum, Ad-Dari' and Ghislin (The discharge of wounds). Az-Zaqqum is a tree that springs out of the bottom of hell. To illustrate its nature, He the Almighty says: 'Is Paradise a better accommodation or the tree of zaqqum? [62] Indeed, We have made it a torment for the wrongdoers. [63] Indeed, it is a tree issuing from the bottom of the Hellfire, [64] Its emerging fruit as if it was heads of the devils. [65]' (as-Saffat: 62-65); and 'Indeed, the tree of zaqqum [43] is food for the sinful. [44] Like murky oil, it boils within bellies [45] Like the boiling of scalding water. [46]' (ad-Dukhan: 43-46) So it is the food that the disbelievers eat and suffer from at the same time in hell. It is a form of torment designed for the sinful and disbelievers. As regards Ad-Dar', Allah the Almighty says: 'For them there will be no food except from a poisonous, thorny plant.' (al-Ghashiya: 6) It is a thorny, sessile plant which the people of Quraysh used to call it Shabraq. When it turned yellow, they called it Dari'. It is the worst and most hideous food. Concerning it, Ibn 'Abbas Allah be pleased with him says, 'Ad-Dari' is a thorny plant in hell; it is more bitter than cactuses, smellier than carrion and hotter than fire.'(1) It is food, but it does not serve its purpose; that is why Allah the Almighty says about it: 'Which neither nourishes nor avails against hunger.' (al-Ghashiya: 7) One who eats this food finds it unsavory, and thus s/he remains hungry and has no choice but to eat Az-zaqqum or Ad-Dari'. As for Ghislin, Allah the Almighty says: 'Therefore he has not here today a true friend, [35] nor any food except refuse [36]' (al-Haqqa: 35-36). It is the puss that comes out of the dwellers of hell. It looks as if it is the wash liquid of their wounds. It is also said that Ghislin is a tree from which the denizens of hell eat. In this respect, Ibn 'Abbas says, 'If a drop of Ghislin fell over the earth, it would spoil the lives of the people.'(2)

In the verse in question, Allah Glorified is He says: '…and agonizing torment in store for them.' (al-Muzzammil: 13) So, He the Almighty prepared fetters, burning fire, and food that makes its eaters choke. What is more, He aggravates the disbelievers' suffering by a painful punishment. So, all the aforementioned forms of punishment have nothing to do with their painful, unburnable punishment. Hence, He the Almighty will inflict upon the disbelievers punishment that is painful, hideous and humiliating. Sometimes a person who receives painful punishment shrieks in agony. At times there are those who try to endure pains just because their conceit prevents them from screaming. In this case, their punishment will be debasing. The word agonizing means 'painful, aching, tormenting and grievous.'

The mountains will become a heap of loose sand [14]

The saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘On the Day when the earth and the mountains will shake...’ (al-Muzzammil: 14) means that the earth will quake, as in His saying: ‘On the Day the blast [of the Horn] will convulse [creation] [6], there will follow it the subsequent [one]. Hearts that Day will tremble [7]’ (an-Nazi‘at: 6-7). So, His saying: ‘On the Day when the earth...’ (al-Muzzammil: 14) refers to the first Blast into the Horn while the second one is meant in His saying: ‘There will follow it the subsequent [one].’ (an-Nazi‘at: 7) So, the earth we live on will quake so violently on the Day of Resurrection, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: 'When the earth is shaken with its [final] earthquake. [1] And the earth discharges its burdens [2]' (az-Zalzala: 1-2); and 'Indeed, the convulsion of the [final] Hour is a terrible thing.' (al-Hajj: 1) The convulsion means the intense earthquake that displaces things. He the Almighty uses the word Rajj (a violent jolt) to refer to the violent shaking of the earth.

This quake that will take place on the Day of Judgment is not like the earthquakes that destroy buildings or annihilates complete villages in this worldly life. Earthquakes that we see are but a minimized picture of what will happen in the Hereafter and draw our attention to the major quake that will take place.

This quake is not general. It is exclusive to the earth by the command of Allah the Almighty. So, He describes the convulsion of the Day of Resurrection as 'a terrible thing'. It will be a terrible quake according to His Standard, not our human standards. The horribleness of this quake is unimaginable. The earth shakes with everything on it, including mountains which He the Almighty created to make the earth steady. In this regard, He the Almighty says: ‘And He has cast into the earth firmly set mountains, lest it shift with you...’ (an-Nahl: 15). He Glorified is He placed mountains on the earth so that it would not shake. If the earth were created immovable, there would be no need for firmly set mountains to keep it motionless. But the earth is movable and is prone to shake violently.

On the Day of Judgment, everything will differ. Mountains will be blown up, whereupon the earth will quake. Thus, Allah Glorified is He mentions the mountains side by side with the earth and their disappearance means that they will not perform its function of stabilizing the earth.

Allah the Almighty says: '…the mountains will become a heap of loose sand.' (al-Muzzammil: 14) So, the mountains which contain solid rocks will turn into shifting sand. They will become loose sand dunes. Although mountains are the steadiest and hardest objects in this worldly life, they will change into moving sand. In another verse, He Glorified is He tells us that mountains will turn into '…dispersed dust' (al-Furqan: 23); and '…wool which fluffed up.' (al-Qari`a: 5) These are the stages of the disappearance of mountains; they first are blown up and turn into shifting sand, then resemble fluffed up wool and then turn into dispersed dust. If this is the state of the mountains on the Day of Judgment, what about the humans who are powerless? What will happen to them?

Allah the Almighty then says:

إِنَّآ أَرۡسَلۡنَآ إِلَيۡكُمۡ رَسُولٗا شَٰهِدًا عَلَيۡكُمۡ كَمَآ أَرۡسَلۡنَآ إِلَىٰ فِرۡعَوۡنَ رَسُولٗا ﴿١٥﴾

We have sent a messenger to you [people] to be your witness, just as We sent a messenger to Pharaoh [15]
(The Quran, al-Muzzammil: 15)

Here, Allah the Almighty addresses the people of Mecca who disbelieved in Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him did great harm to him and turned others away from following his Message. He the Almighty says to them: 'We have sent a Messenger to you [people]...' (al-Muzzammil: 15). He Glorified is He sent him peace and blessings be upon him to convey the heavenly Way of Guidance to them and sent down upon him the Quran, His inimitable Words.

Although he peace and blessings be upon him was illiterate, they asked him about specific events that occurred in the past. Thereupon, he peace and blessings be upon him received the Revelations that included the details about these events. As for the Quran, it challenges mankind regarding the future events and the secrets of the human soul. This would be enough for them to believe if they employed their intellectual capabilities properly. But they remained obstinate, and whenever they received a clear sign, they denied it and blatantly asked for another.

Allah the Almighty addresses Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him saying: ‘Indeed, We have sent you, [O Muhammad], with the truth as a bringer of good tidings and a warner, and you will not be asked about the companions of Hellfire.’ (al-Baqara: 119) So, he was sent by Allah the Almighty with the truth that remains unchanged. Out of His Mercy, He Glorified is He sends Messengers to help the people know the Right Path from the wrong one. He the Almighty also says: ‘There has certainly come to you a Messenger from among yourselves. Grievous to him is what you suffer; [he is] concerned over you and to the believers is kind and merciful.’ (at-Tawba: 128) Thus, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him loves his ummah and it pains him to see it suffering. He was always concerned about it.

Here in the chapter in question, Allah Glorified is He mentions another characteristic of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him that is, he is a witness upon the people. In another verse, He the Almighty says: ‘O Prophet, indeed We have sent you as a witness and a bringer of good tidings and a warner. And one who invites to Allah, by His permission, and an illuminating lamp.’ (al-Ahzab: 45) It is as if He Glorified is He says, 'We sent you, Muhammad, as a witness over your ummah and the previous Prophets to testify that they delivered their Messages.'

He peace and blessings be upon him will bear witness that he conveyed to the people the Message of Allah, whereupon some of them believed and some other disbelievers. Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him is also described as a witness in the verse reading: ‘…and in this [revelation] that the Messenger may be a witness over you and you may be witnesses over the people.’ (al-Hajj: 78) It is as if each one of the Muslim Ummah is a caller and a messenger. As he Allah’s peace and blessings be upon him will testify that he communicated the Message of Islam, each Caller will do the same. Hence, the aforementioned verse highlights Messenger Muhammad's testimony and that of the Muslim Ummah.

He peace and blessings be upon him will attest to what the disbelievers of Mecca said and what they did to him and his Companions. This includes their harm, barring the people from adopting the Way of Allah and their attempted assassination of him.

Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him was not the first Messenger to be disbelieved and opposed by his people. Allah Glorified is He sent him to the people as a Messenger as He sent to Pharaoh a Messenger. He the Almighty sent Musa (Moses) peace be upon him as a Prophet to the Pharaoh of ancient Egypt. Here arises a question, which is, 'Why does Allah mention Pharaoh and Prophet Musa in particular?' This is because Pharaoh disdained Musa on the grounds that he was brought up at his palace. Would it make sense for Pharaoh to follow his fosterling? So, he said to Musa peace be upon him: ‘Did we not raise you among us as a child, and you remained among us for years of your life?’ (ash-Shu'ara': 18) Pharaoh reminds Musa peace be upon him of bringing him up at his palace. However, he peace be upon him did not flatter Pharaoh regarding the truth because it was Allah the Almighty who took care of him, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: ‘…and I cast down upon you love from Me, and that you might be brought up before My eyes.’ (Ta Ha: 39)

The fact that Pharaoh brought up Musa Allah's peace be upon him was worthless in the balance of truth. Despite that, he blamed him peace be upon him for taking a hostile stand towards him. So, he peace be upon him replied to him: ‘And is this a favour of which you remind me - that you have enslaved the Children of Israel?’ (ash-Shu'ara': 22) It is as if he peace be upon him said to him, 'Do you remind me of a favour that means nothing, compared with your enslaving and persecuting of the Children of Israel and killing their sons?'

Likewise, Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him was rejected by his people on the basis that they envied him his receiving of the Divine Revelations while he was, from their own point of view, not one of their dignitaries. So, they argued: ‘And they said, “Why was this Quran not sent down upon a great man from [one of] the two cities?’ (az-Zukhruf: 31) They meant Al Walid ibn Al Mughira or 'Urwa ibn Mas'ud Ath-Thaqafi. So, Allah Glorified is He replies to them: ‘Do they distribute the mercy of your Lord? It is We who have apportioned among them their livelihood in the life of this world and have raised some of them above others in degrees [of rank]...’ (az-Zukhruf: 32).

Allah Glorified is He delivered, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him from the conspiracies of the disbelievers by ordering him to immigrate to Medina. Similarly, He the Almighty Allah rescued Prophet Musa peace be upon him from Pharaoh who led a huge army to capture him and his followers. Thereupon, He the Almighty split the sea in order for Musa peace be upon him and his followers to cross it then let it close in on Pharaoh and his soldiers and then drowned them. This represented a crushing defeat against the disbelievers and the tyrants. Likewise, at the battle of Badr, the disbelievers of Quraysh suffered a disastrous defeat that humiliated the leaders and notables of Mecca.

Afterwards, Allah the Almighty says:

فَعَصَىٰ فِرْعَوْنُ ٱلرَّسُولَ فَأَخَذْنَٰهُ أَخْذًا وَبِيلًا ﴿١٦﴾

But Pharaoh disobeyed the messenger and so We inflicted a heavy punishment on him [16]
(The Quran, al-Muzzammil: 16)

Allah the Almighty warns the disbelievers of Mecca against the bad consequences of their disbelief in this worldly life. He quotes the example of Pharaoh who opposed and disbelieved in Prophet Musa and his brother Harun (Aaron) peace be upon them.

The word 'Pharaoh' is a proper noun that refers to a title of a position of authority. Each ruler of the ancient Egypt was called a Pharaoh. Besides, we learn from history that dynasties succeeded one another and among them were the kings and top officials who oppressed the believers. Each Pharaonic successor used to mistreat the believers more ferociously than his predecessor. Allah Glorified is He sent Musa and Harun p*eace be upon them* to Pharaoh and said to them: ‘Go, both of you, to Pharaoh. Indeed, he has transgressed. [43] And speak to him with gentle speech that perhaps he may be reminded or fear [Allah]. [44]’ (Ta Ha: 43-44) ‘So go to him and say, “Indeed, we are Messengers of your Lord, so send with us the Children of Israel and do not torment them. We have come to you with a sign from your Lord. And peace will be upon he who follows the guidance. [47] Indeed, it has been revealed to us that the punishment will be upon whoever denies and turns away. [48]’ (Ta Ha: 47-48)

Allah Glorified is He then says:

فَكَيْفَ تَتَّقُونَ إِن كَفَرْتُمْ يَوْمًا يَجْعَلُ ٱلْوِلْدَٰنَ شِيبًا ﴿١٧﴾

So if you disbelieve, how can you guard yourselves against a Day that will turn children's hair grey [17] (The Quran, al-Muzzammil: 17)

We must take our proper precautions of the Day of Resurrection because it is a mighty Day as He the Almighty says: 'O mankind, fear your Lord. Indeed, the convulsion of the [final] Hour is a terrible thing. On the Day you see it every nursing mother will be distracted from that [child] she was nursing, and every pregnant woman will abort her pregnancy, and you will see the people [appearing] intoxicated while they are not intoxicated; but the punishment of Allah is severe.' (al-Hajj: 1-2)

How can the disbelievers protect themselves against such a terrible Day which is sure to come, while they persist in their disbelief in Allah the Almighty Messenger Muhammad and the Quran? How will they safeguard themselves from the punishment of this Day? In fact, the disbelievers do not dread this Day as they deny it altogether. If they believed in it, they would fear its horrible events and punishment and thus avoid sins.

Allah Glorified is He describes this Day, saying: '…a Day that will turn children's hair grey.' (al-Muzzammil: 17) Grey hair often exists in old people, not in young children. The grave and terrifying events of this very Day will make young children white-haired.

This day will make young children go grey the moment Adam is ordered to bring forth the group of (the denizens of) hell. He (Adam) will say, 'Who are the denizens of Hell?' It will be said, 'They are out of every thousand nine hundred and ninety-nine.'(1) He (Prophet Muhammad) said, 'It is at this juncture that every child would become white-haired and every pregnant woman would abort and you would see people in a state of intoxication, and they would not be in fact intoxicated but grievous will be the torment of Allah.'

(1) Abu Sa'id Al-Khudri Allah be pleased with him narrated that Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'Allah Glorified is He would say, 'O Adam!' and he would say, 'At Your service, at Your Beck and Call, O Lord, and the good is in Your Hand.' Allah would say, 'Bring forth the group of (the denizens of) Fire.' He (Adam) would say, 'Who are the denizens of Hell?' It would be said, 'They are out of every thousand nine hundred and ninety-nine.' He (Prophet Muhammad) said, 'It is at this juncture that every=

Allah the Almighty says: '…a Day that will turn children's hair grey.' (al-Muzzammil: 17) The Arabic word Shiban (white-haired people) is the plural of Shai'b (a grey-haired person). Young children do not turn grey on that Day because of old age. Grey hair appears in this worldly life at old age, as Prophet Zakaryya (Zechariah) Allah be pleased with him said: 'My Lord, indeed my bones have weakened, and my head has filled with white.' (Maryam: 4) The white hair of Prophet Zakaryya peace be upon him was due to his old age and weakness. He Glorified is He also says: 'Allah is the one who created you from weakness, then made after weakness strength, then made after strength weakness and white hair. He creates what He wills, and He is the Knowing, the Competent.' (ar-Rum: 54) Hence, white grey is a stage of the age of a person in this worldly life. Any person's life goes through these stages: weakness, youthful vigor and weakness caused by old age.

On the Day of Judgment, however, grey hair is not an effect of old age. Rather, young children will go grey despite their young age.

Allah Glorified is He then says:

ٱلسَّمَآءُ مُنفَطِرٌۢ بِهِۦ ۚ كَانَ وَعْدُهُۥ مَفْعُولًا ﴿١٨﴾

A Day when the sky will be torn apart?
God's promise will certainly be fulfilled [18]
(The Quran, al-Muzzammil: 18)

The sky, in spite of its tremendousness, will split and crack on the Day of Judgment. So, what do we think will happen to other creatures? Allah Glorified is He = child would become white-haired and every pregnant woman would abort and you would see people in a state of intoxication, and they would not be in fact intoxicated but grievous will be the torment of Allah.' He (the narrator) said, 'This had a very depressing effect upon them (upon the Companions of the Prophet Muhammad) and they said, 'Messenger of Allah, who amongst us would be (that unfortunate) person (who would be doomed to Hell)?' He said, 'Good tidings for you, Gog and Magog would be those thousands (who would be the denizens of Hell) and a person (selected for Paradise) would be amongst you.' See Al-Bukhari, Sahih, Hadith no. 3348 and 6530; and Muslim, Sahih, Hadith no. 379.

informs us that on this horrible Day the sky will split into small parts and stars will fall down.

In this regard, He the Almighty says: ‘When the sky breaks apart…’ (al-Infitar: 1). Despite its sturdiness, the sky will fall into small pieces. Here, He the Almighty says: ‘A Day when the sky will be torn apart’ (al-Muzzammil: 18). This verse means that the sky will break apart by Allah's Command. We note that He the Almighty uses a masculine form to refer to the splitting of the sky. This is despite the fact that the word sky in Arabic grammar is a figuratively feminine noun. It is put in the masculine form on grounds of the meaning, for it denotes a ceiling as in the His saying: ‘And We made the sky a protected ceiling...’ (al-Anbiya’: 32).

Further, Allah Glorified is He points to the split of the sky in His saying: ‘And [mention] the Day when the heaven will split open with [emerging] clouds, and the Angels will be sent down in successive descent.’ (al-Furqan: 25) Some exegetes say that the sky will split open with emerging clouds and the Angels will descend from its cracks. The clouds are also mentioned in the verse reading: ‘They do not wait aught but that Allah should come to them in the shadows of the clouds along with the angels, and the matter has (already) been decided…’ (al-Baqara: 210).

The Arabic word Al-Infitar (being torn apart) means disordered splitting. With regard to Allah’s saying: ‘Day when the sky will be torn apart...’ (al-Muzzammil: 18), it means that the sky will break apart on the Day of Resurrection by Allah's Command. As for His saying: ‘…Allah's Promise will certainly be fulfilled’ (al-Muzzammil: 18), it means that His Promise will inevitably come to pass as He is the Omnipotent Who has all the Attributes of Grandeur and Perfection, and He always fulfills His Promises.

Unlike Allah's Promises and Threats, people's promises and threats may not be fulfilled. You may promise someone something good, but you may find yourself unable to keep your promise. Likewise, you may make a threat against somebody, but you are unable to carry it out. As far as Allah the Almighty is concerned, nothing hinders the fulfillment of His Promises or Threats. His Promises are definitely fulfilled, while He may not carry out His Threat out of His Benevolence and Grace, unless it has something to do with polytheism.

This is a reminder. Let whoever wishes take the way to his Lord [19] (The Quran, al-Muzzammil: 19)

This verse occurs literally in the chapter in question and the chapter of al-Insan, verse number 29. Both come after referring to the terrible Day of Judgment. Here in the chapter of al-Muzzammil, Allah the Almighty says: ‘So if you disbelieve, how can you guard yourselves against a Day that will turn children’s hair grey, [17] a Day when the sky will be torn apart? Allah's Promise will certainly be fulfilled.’ (al-Jinn: 17-18) In the chapter of al-Insan He the Almighty says: ‘Indeed, these [disbelievers] love the immediate and leave behind them a grave Day. [27] We have created them and strengthened their forms, and when We will, We can change their likenesses with [complete] alteration. [28]’ (al-Insan: 27-28) This is a reminder offered to the people so that they will consider Allah’s sayings, fear Him, keep away from wrongdoing and protect themselves against His wrath and punishment.

So, the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘This is a reminder. Let whoever wishes take the way to his Lord’ (al-Muzzammil: 19) serves as a reminder of the Day of Judgment and its related events. Whoever desires to be saved on the Day of Judgment must take a Path to His Lord through belief and obedience. It is worth mentioning here that the Qadaris quote this verse to back up their belief that everything is based on man's free will and choice. But in the chapter of al-Insan, Allah the Almighty associates the will of the man with His Divine Will, saying: ‘And you will not do except that Allah wills.’ (al-Insan: 30) One's will entirely depends upon the Will of Allah the Almighty for all matters are referred to Him. Whatever a person does, it is done by His Will. This does not mean the absence of the human being's free will. Whoever desires to follow a Path to Allah and enjoy what He the Almighty promises him/her in the Hereafter should adhere to obedience and acts of worship. At this point, a person will gain His Mercy and Reward. But if a person does not take a way towards Him and disobeys Him, s/he will inevitably be punished.

The aforementioned verses contain the forms of guidance and right direction. So, whoever wills to believe and follow a path towards Allah's Pleasure and Mercy must put the content of these verses into practice. The path is the way leading to the desired destination. In this vein, Allah the Almighty says: ‘I will turn away from My signs those who are arrogant upon the earth without right; and if they should see every sign, they will not believe in it. And if they see the way of consciousness, they will not adopt it as a way; but if they see the way of error, they will adopt it as a way. That is because they have denied Our signs and they were heedless of them.’ (al-A‘raf: 146)

The Way of Righteousness and Guidance controls and suppresses the physical pleasures and personal inclinations and helps one to shun wrongdoing. But those who are wrongdoers are not able to curb their physical pleasures, as they are enslaved by them. As for the way of error, it gives free rein to physical pleasures. This happens when a person deprives him/herself of belief, which in fact drives him/her to forgo something in return for more precious and greater things.

Afterwards, Allah the Almighty concludes the chapter of al-Muzzammil, saying:

إِنَّ رَبَّكَ يَعۡلَمُ أَنَّكَ تَقُومُ أَدۡنَىٰ مِن ثُلُثَيِ ٱلَّيۡلِ وَنِصۡفَهُۥ وَثُلُثَهُۥ وَطَآئِفَةٞ مِّنَ ٱلَّذِينَ مَعَكَۚ
وَٱللَّهُ يُقَدِّرُ ٱلَّيۡلَ وَٱلنَّهَارَۚ عَلِمَ أَن لَّن تُحۡصُوهُ فَتَابَ عَلَيۡكُمۡۖ فَٱقۡرَءُواْ مَا تَيَسَّرَ مِنَ
ٱلۡقُرۡءَانِۚ عَلِمَ أَن سَيَكُونُ مِنكُم مَّرۡضَىٰ وَءَاخَرُونَ يَضۡرِبُونَ فِي ٱلۡأَرۡضِ يَبۡتَغُونَ مِن
فَضۡلِ ٱللَّهِ وَءَاخَرُونَ يُقَٰتِلُونَ فِي سَبِيلِ ٱللَّهِۖ فَٱقۡرَءُواْ مَا تَيَسَّرَ مِنۡهُۚ وَأَقِيمُواْ ٱلصَّلَوٰةَ
وَءَاتُواْ ٱلزَّكَوٰةَ وَأَقۡرِضُواْ ٱللَّهَ قَرۡضًا حَسَنٗاۚ وَمَا تُقَدِّمُواْ لِأَنفُسِكُم مِّنۡ خَيۡرٖ تَجِدُوهُ عِندَ ٱللَّهِ
هُوَ خَيۡرٗا وَأَعۡظَمَ أَجۡرٗاۚ وَٱسۡتَغۡفِرُواْ ٱللَّهَۖ إِنَّ ٱللَّهَ غَفُورٞ رَّحِيمُۢ ﴿٢٠﴾

[Prophet], your Lord is well aware that you sometimes spend nearly two-thirds of the night at prayer — sometimes half, sometimes a third — as do some of your followers. God determines the division of night and day. He knows that you will not be able to keep a measure of it and He has relented towards all of you, so recite as much of the Quran as is easy for you. He knows that some of you will be sick, some of you travelling through the land seeking God’s bounty, some of you fighting in God’s way: recite as much as is easy for you, keep up the prayer, pay the prescribed alms, and make

God a good loan. Whatever good you store up for yourselves will be improved and increased for you. Ask God for His forgiveness, He is most forgiving, most merciful [20]

Here, Allah the Almighty addresses Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him regarding late-night prayer. The law of reform that He Glorified is He set for the lives of the people is based on two foundations: travelling through the land to satisfy our daily needs and fighting for the purpose of the survival of the Call and the Way of Allah the Almighty. The first foundation is related to our material needs while the second one is connected with values and virtues.

If the Muslim Ummah neglects or desists from either of these two foundations, it will endanger itself and become a coveted object of its enemies. That is why we see that underdeveloped countries are poor and live on the aids of rich countries. This is because such underdeveloped countries did not seek to extract the favour and bounties of Allah Glorified is He and desisted from constructing and exploiting the earth.

At the beginning of Islam, Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and believers used to spend half the night performing supererogatory prayer before the five daily prayers were prescribed by Allah. They continued offering late-night prayer for a whole year, which caused them great hardship. Finally, He Glorified is He waived this religious obligation. At the beginning of the chapter in question, He the Almighty says: 'You [Prophet], enfolded in your cloak! [1] Stay up throughout the night, all but a small part of it, [2] half, or a little less, [3] or a little more; recite the Quran slowly and distinctly.' [4] (al-Muzzammil: 1-4) This obligation was too hard for Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and believers to observe. Thus, He the Almighty lighten this obligation in the last verse of the same chapter, saying: '[Prophet], your Lord is well aware that you sometimes spend nearly two-thirds of the night at prayer–sometimes half, sometimes a third–as do some of your followers...' (al-Muzzammil: 20)

Allah Glorified is He knows that they would not be able to keep up the late-night prayer. So, He the Almighty relented towards all of them, that is, He pardoned and relieved them by commanding them only to recite as much of the Quran as is easy for them. He Glorified is He has not prescribed for them a special time or measure of the late-night prayer; rather, He the Almighty made it according to one's capacity.

The period between the revelation of the first part of the chapter of al-Muzzammil and the last part thereof was one year. During that period the five daily prayers and the zakat were prescribed. That is why Allah Glorified is He commands the believers in the verse in question, saying: '…keep up the prayer, pay the prescribed alms…' (al-Muzzammil: 20).

The style of the Quran is miraculous, He Glorified is He uses the Arabic word Adna (nearly) three times with the two-thirds, the half and the third of the night. Here, it means that a worshipper should perform the acts of worship during nearly the third, the half or the two-thirds of the night according to his/her ability to pray or recite the Quran during that time.

Allah Glorified is He says here: '…Allah determines the division of night and day…' (al-Muzzammil: 20). This means that He the Almighty knows their measures, parts and hours. Thus, nothing of what the people do escapes His Knowledge; He the Almighty knows how much time they spend at night praying or reciting the Quran as well as the time they spend sleeping during that time.

In fact no one but Allah Glorified is He is able to determine the division of day and night, to know their hours and to organize them. For this reason, the subject 'Allah' here is fore grounded in the Quranic arrangement of the words to indicate that the determination of the division of the day and night is confined to Him Glorified is He.

He Glorified is He then says: '…He knows that you will not be able to keep a measure of it and He has relented towards all of you…' (al-Muzzammil: 20) He the Almighty knows that the believers will not be able to keep a measure of the night or to spend half, third or two-thirds thereof praying or reciting the Quran. One of them used to pray the whole night lest he cannot perfectly fulfill Allah's Command related to performing the late-night prayer.

Here, the Arabic word Al-Ihsa' refers to the ability to do something and to adhere to it. For example, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'If a Muslim persists in two actions, he will enter the Garden. They are easy, but those who do them are few. That you say "Allahu Akbar" (Allah is the greatest) ten times, "Al-hamdu lillah" (All praise is due to Allah) ten times, and "Subhana'llah" (Exalted is Allah) ten times after every rayer.' He also said in a Hadith regarding the lofty Names of Allah, 'Allah has ninety-nine Names, i.e. one-hundred minus one, and whoever knows them will go to paradise.'

Linguistically, the Arabic word Al-Ihsa' has two meanings: first, to have comprehensive knowledge of the number and measure of something, as in Allah's saying: '…He has taken account of everything.' (al-Jinn: 28); second, to have the ability to do something, as in His saying here: '…He knows that you will not be able to keep a measure of it…' (al-Muzzammil: 20). This means that the Muslims would not be able to continue performing the late-night prayer. Therefore, He Glorified is He says: '…He has relented towards all of you…' (al-Muzzammil: 20). He the Almighty pardoned them by directing their attention towards the obligatory acts of worship and relieving them from doing this supererogatory act, i.e. performing the late-night prayer. They were given the option to do or not to do that.

The Arabic word Taba (to relent) has many meanings here. It means that Allah Glorified is He has pardoned the believers, which indicates that some of them had left some of what they had been commanded to do. It also means that He Glorified is He has relented towards them by not obligating the late-night prayer on them, as they were unable to perform them steadfastly. The Arabic word Tawba (repentance) originally means to return. They had been commanded to keep account of the time of the late-night acts of worship through measuring and inquiring into them. Then, Allah Glorified is He relieved them because He the Almighty knows that they would not be able to keep the measure properly as they had been commanded.

Then, He Glorified is He says: '…so recite as much of the Quran as is easy for you…' (al-Muzzammil: 20). This means that they should recite of Quran during the late-night Prayer according to their abilities. Therefore, He Glorified is He has given them the choice to pray optionally at the night whenever they want, without considering certain times or parts thereof. This was a form of alleviation for them because they had been keeping up the late-night prayer for one year that their feet and shins swelled.

Allah Glorified is He then says: '…He knows that some of you will be sick, some of you travelling through the land seeking Allah's bounty, some of you fighting in Allah's way…' (al-Muzzammil: 20). So, three kinds of people were the reason for that alleviation: the sick people, those who travel through the land seeking their livelihood out of Allah's Bounty and those who fight in His Way. The sick person cannot perform late-night prayer so Allah Glorified is He relieved him/her because of his/her weakness and inability. He the Almighty knows that some of the Muslims would have illnesses that make them too weak to pray at night.

Other people were unable to do so for setting out for trade and moving through the lands for gaining provision. It may be hard for them to pray at night as this will make it difficult for them to seek their provision and livelihood by traveling through the land during the daytime. The Arabic word Al-Darb (hitting) means to place one of the limbs on something violently and powerfully. Using this word to refer to seeking provision indicates that life is all about moving and interacting. Allah Glorified is He has placed all the provision of the people in the earth. So, when they want to extract its bounties, they should provoke it by ploughing it then sowing the seeds and irrigating it. Thus, every movement in the pursuit of seeking provision needs strength and toil. As long as seeking the provision requires traveling through the land, then it needs determination and strength. That is why it is said, 'The earth likes whoever ploughs it.' Therefore, the more powerful the movement of the person in the land is, the more it gives him/her of its bounties.

Those who fight in the Way of Allah Glorified is He are the third kind of people who were the reason for the abrogation of the ruling that obligates performing late-night prayer for specific times – the half, the third and the two-thirds of the night. This is because fighting entails suffering, hardship, lying in wait and expecting the enemy's attack. Accordingly, performing the late-night prayer could be a hardship and a burden over the fighters who guard the borderlines of Islamic territories. For this reason, Allah Glorified is He has made the matter easier for them by commanding them to pray at night what they can easily offer.

Then, Allah Glorified is He commands them to do what He has already obligated on them, saying: '…keep up prayer, give prescribed alms…' (al-Jinn: 20). He the Almighty has combined between prayer and the prescribed alms in many verses of the Quran. Prayer is the Islamic pillar that can never be waived. So, the person should pay attention to his/her Lord's Call for Prayer when the muedhin loudly says, 'Allahu Akbar (Allah is the greatest).' This is an invitation to come to Him the Almighty at a specific time to stand before Him, in His Presence, and receive His Support.

Making mention of the command of keeping up prayer and giving the prescribed alms after mentioning traveling through the land for seeking Allah's Bounties and fighting in His Way indicates that they should praise Him Glorified is He for the bounties and the provision that He has bestowed on them. This also indicates that they should give the prescribed alms out of what He the Almighty has bestowed of them to purify their property and spread among the members of the society the virtues of solidarity, cooperation and benevolence towards the poor. Fighting in His Way also requires equipping the fighters with ammunition and weapons. Further, the fighters need to be close to Him Glorified is He by keeping up the prayer.

After commanding them to pay the prescribed alms, Allah Glorified is He commands them, saying: '…and make Allah a good loan...' (al-Muzzammil: 20). The loan is something other than the prescribed or optional alms; your expenditure in His Way is not limited to what He Glorified is He prescribed on you or what you optionally give as a charity. Rather He the Almighty also commands you to make Him a good loan. Undoubtedly, He Glorified is He does not need any loan from you, for your loan in reality goes to the needy. Although the loan goes to such needy people and not to Allah the Almighty He commands you to give the loan to Him. In this regard, He the Almighty says: 'Who is it that will offer of Allah a goodly gift, so He will multiply it to him manifold, and Allah straitens and amplifies, and you shall be returned to Him.' (al-Baqara: 245)

Linguistically, the Arabic word Al-Qard (loan) means to bite something with the canine tooth, alluding to holding strictly to something. This indicates that Allah Glorified is He measures the reward in proportion to the difficulty of giving a loan. It is a sum of money you give while expecting to take it back. He the Almighty reassures the giver of the loan that He will accept and repay it for you. This reward will not be in proportion to the loan; rather, it will be in a profitable and multiplied form. The original money is preserved and invested to be increased many times according to Allah's Measure, not that of the human beings'.

You will lose nothing of what you store up with Allah Glorified is He for yourself. The believer should be contented with the fact that his/her movement in life is considered and He Glorified is He will reward him/her for it. Everything you do according to His Way of Guidance will be rewarded. However, this reward is not equal to the good deed; rather, it is multiplied many times. He Glorified is He says in another verse: '…what you have runs out but [what] He has endures.' (an-Nahl: 96) This verse shows that what He the Almighty possesses lasts forever, as His Treasuries are full and never run out. What He Glorified is He has is not trivial; it is a great Reward.

Allah Glorified is He says: '…Ask Allah for His forgiveness, He is most forgiving, most merciful.' (al-Jinn: 20) He the Almighty knows that the children of Adam cannot preserve His Rights as they should be preserved. Inevitably, they will fall short in certain obligations. Thus, He, their Creator, has commanded the believers to ask Him for forgiveness that they may have their sins wiped out. Showing His Mercy and Forgiveness for them indicates that they have committed sins, but He was All-Merciful and All-Forgiving to them when they asked Him for forgiveness. He is All-Merciful towards them as He the Almighty does not hastily punish them out of His Compassion for them and desiring that they repent to Him. Thus, He Glorified is He is All-Forgiving and All-Merciful even toward the one who falls short and commits sins so that s/he may attain to faith and make up what s/he has lost.

Allah the Almighty forgives what the servant has done if the latter tries to make amendments. Further, He Glorified is He is All-Forgiving and All-Merciful even before the existence of anyone. The Attributes of Mercy and Forgiveness in their absolute sense belong only to Him Glorified is He. They are clearly manifested in accepting the repentance of the offender and having mercy towards his/her victim. He Glorified is He has the Absolute Power to forgive and to show Mercy, so beware of saying that so and so does not deserve His Forgiveness and Mercy, for He is the Owner of the heavens and the earth Who gives the human beings what they deserve according to the right of showing mercy to His creation that He obligated on Himself.

al-Muddaththir

In the Name of God, the Most Merciful, the Dispenser of Mercy

The chapter of al-Muddaththir (1).

Allah Glorified is He says:

يَٰٓأَيُّهَا ٱلۡمُدَّثِّرُ (١) قُمۡ فَأَنذِرۡ (٢) وَرَبَّكَ فَكَبِّرۡ (٣) وَثِيَابَكَ فَطَهِّرۡ (٤)
وَٱلرُّجۡزَ فَٱهۡجُرۡ (٥) وَلَا تَمۡنُن تَسۡتَكۡثِرُ (٦) وَلِرَبِّكَ فَٱصۡبِرۡ (٧)

You, wrapped in your cloak [1] arise and give warning! [2]
Proclaim the greatness of your Lord [3] cleanse yourself [4] keep away from all filth [5] do not be overwhelmed and weaken [6] be steadfast in your Lord's cause [7]
(The Quran, al-Muddaththir: 1-7)

Allah Glorified is He addresses Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him saying: 'You, wrapped in your cloak' (al-Muddaththir: 1), and in the previous chapter of al-Muzzammil, He Glorified is He addresses him, saying: 'You [Prophet], enfolded in your cloak!' (al-Muzzammil: 1) When he peace and blessings be upon him was taking about the time of revelation, he said, 'While I was walking, I heard a voice from the sky. I looked up towards the sky, and behold! I saw the same Angel who came to me in the Cave of Hira', sitting on a chair between the sky and the earth, I was so terrified by him that I fell down on the ground. Then I went to my wife and said, 'Wrap me in garments! Wrap me in garments!' They wrapped me, and then Allah has revealed: ‘You, wrapped in your cloak, [1] arise and give warning! [2] Proclaim the greatness of your Lord; [3] cleanse yourself. [4]’ (al-Muddaththir: 1-4)

(1) The chapter of al-Muddaththir is number 74 in the order of the noble Mushaf. The number of its verses is 56. It was revealed in Mecca after the chapter of al-Muzzammil. It is a clear chapter and the claim that the verse: 'Leave Me to deal with the one I created helpless.' (al-Muddaththir: 11) is abrogated by the verse of the sword is false as this verse in question bears a warning for Al-Walid ibn Al-Mughira and so there is no reason for abrogation. Further, Al-Walid perished before the revelation of the verse of the sword.

It is as if Allah Glorified is He addresses Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him saying, ‘You, wrapped in your cloak during his sleep.’ The Arabic word Al-Muddaththir is the one who wraps himself in his cloak when he sleeps, and Addethar is the cloak that the person wears on Ash-She’ar, which is the garment worn next to the skin of the body. Being wrapped in the cloak could be taken literally, that is, he peace and blessings be upon him was wrapped in his cloak and blanket. The verse, however, may have another interpretation; wrapping is not meant to be with a material cloak, but with an abstract one, namely, the cloak of Prophethood and Mission. So, the verse means that he is endowed with great knowledge, noble conduct and complete mercy. He is commanded to arise with determination and steadfastness from his bed to do the mission that Allah Glorified is He has sent him to accomplish. The Arabic word Qiyam (Arising) could be used for standing with earnestness and determination or just arising to be upright.

Allah Glorified is He commands Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him to give a warning to the people of Mecca about His punishment and how it befell the previous peoples and how powerful His revenge would be if they did not believe. Likewise, He Glorified is He commanded him, saying: ‘And warn your nearest kinsfolk.’ (ash-Shu'ara’: 214) After he peace and blessings be upon him used to be occupied with worshipping Him Glorified is He in the cave of Hira’ for many nights, he was commanded to arise and proclaim warning. This command was an instruction for him to end his worship in the cave of Hira’ and to fulfill the Mission which was assigned to him, namely, warning and conveying the Message.

Then, Allah Glorified is He says: ‘Proclaim the greatness of your Lord.’ (al-Muddaththir: 3) He the Almighty commands Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him to proclaim the greatness of his Lord over what the idolaters were saying about Him. He is commanded not to be worried about the oppression and tyranny of the disbelievers of Mecca, for He Glorified is He is the All Great. Therefore, when he peace and blessings be upon him got up from his bed, he said, ‘Allah is the All Great!’ So, Khadija also proclaimed the Greatness of Allah Glorified is He and knew that he peace and blessings be upon him had received the Revelation.(1)

Surely, what is meant by glorifying Allah the Almighty is not just proclaiming His Greatness by the tongue; rather, glorifying and exalting Him should also be by the heart, for His Greatness in the heart of the believers is greater than anything or anyone. For this reason, Allah Akbar (Allah is the Greatest) is the slogan for calling to prayer and starting it. Therefore, you should proclaim His Greatness and make Him greater that anything prone to change. He Glorified is He is Greater than any person and that is why you should proclaim His Greatness by prioritizing His commands and prohibitions over any other command or prohibition. By so doing, you will strengthen yourself by His Power which He only gives to those who sincerely worship Him.

Allah the Almighty then says: ‘Cleanse yourself.’ (al-Muddaththir: 4) ‘To cleanse your garment’ means to purify it from dirties and impurities. This does not mean that the garment of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him was dirty or impure, for he is a good person from a good lineage. The intended meaning is not to wear a too long garment out of pride like what the leaders of Quraysh used to do. Rather, he should cut its end to avoid the impurities of the ground. Therefore, you should purify yourself, your deeds by sincerity, you are thinking by having good thoughts and your heart by eliminating any feeling of animosity and envy. Thus, what is meant is purifying the soul, the garment and the body. At that time, he peace and blessings be upon him was about to call for the Message of Monotheism which requires the purity of the heart from polytheism and the purity of the soul from the impurities. The Arabs used to describe the one who is honest in his dealing, saying: ‘He has a pure garment.’ We also describe the modest person, saying: ‘He has a pure garment, not touched by any impurity.’

Then, Allah Glorified is He says: ‘Keep away from all filth.’ (al-Muddaththir: 4) This means to abandon all the sins and the misdeeds in order to be saved from the punishment.(1) He Glorified is He also says: ‘We sent them a punishment from heaven for their wrongdoing.’ (al-A‘raf: 162) Thus, the command in this verse means to keep away from the idols. Even if the addressee here is Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him, the command is for all Muslims to avoid the worship of idols as in the saying of Prophet Ibrahim (Abraham) peace be upon Him: ‘I will leave you, and the idols that you worship besides Allah.’ (Maryam: 48) The Arabic word Al-‘I’tizal means to leave your companions seeking better ones. He peace be upon him did not leave them for seeking provision or abundant livelihood, but rather for the sake of Allah Glorified is He and the religious principle for which he was calling.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says: ‘And do not confer favor to acquire more.’ (al-Muddaththir: 5) This means that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him is forbidden from asking for more than what he was given. In other words, he should not give something to be rewarded with something better. So the person should not give some of his/her money hoping to get more from the pleasures of the worldly life; rather, s/he should seek the reward of the Hereafter. Therefore, you should not give something with the intention to be given more; you should spend money charitably for the sake of Allah Glorified is He – not to get the pleasures of the worldly life or more than what you have been given.

This command is different from Allah’s saying to Prophet Sulaiman (Solomon) peace be upon him: ‘This is our gift, so give or withhold as you wish without account.’ (Sad: 39) Here, He Glorified is He tells him peace be upon him to give or withhold as he wished without being held accountable for what he has given or withheld. In this verse of the chapter of Sad, He Glorified is He talks about giving and bestowing with abundance, given the fact that He the Almighty gave Sulaiman peace be upon him a dominion that He has not given to anyone else.

When Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him arose to warn his people and persisted in avoiding the worship of idols and deities, he was faced with stubbornness, rejection, harming, mocking and many attempts of humiliation. For this reason, Allah Glorified is He advised him to be steadfast in His cause. So, he peace and blessings be upon him should be patient regarding His commands and prohibitions to get His Reward. He should also endure patiently the harm he gets, as he has shouldered the responsibility for a great Mission which requires him to endure people's attacks on the Call of Allah Glorified is He. Moreover, he peace and blessings be upon him should endure their harming without retaliating against them as He Glorified is He is All Sufficient for him as against them. This command indicates that he peace and blessings be upon him was about to face very difficult events in which he would be confronted by his people's harming and rejection.

(1) ‘Rigs’ is the punishment or the plague. Ibn 'Abbas said that any reference to Rigs in the Book of Allah means the punishment. See At-Tabari, Jame' Al-Bayan, 2/118; and Ibn Abu Hatim, Tafsir, 592.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says:

فَإِذَا نُقِرَ فِي ٱلنَّاقُورِ ﴿٨﴾ فَذَٰلِكَ يَوْمَئِذٍ يَوْمٌ عَسِيرٌ ﴿٩﴾ عَلَى ٱلْكَٰفِرِينَ غَيْرُ يَسِيرٍ ﴿١٠﴾

When the Trumpet sounds [8] that will be a Day of anguish for the disbelievers [9] They will have no ease [10] (The Quran, al-Muddaththir: 8 - 10)

The Arabic word An-Naqur is the Trumpet in which Israfil will blow. He will blow twice and what is meant in this verse is the second Blow. Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'How can I be comfortable when the one with the horn is holding it to his lip, his ears listening for when he will be ordered to blow, so he can blow.' It was as if that was very hard upon the Companions of the Prophet Muhammad, so he said to them, 'Say: "Allah is sufficient for us and what a good Protector He is, and upon Allah we rely."'(1)

The Arabic word Naqar means to blow the Trumpet. This verse affects the emotions and the hearts as when Zurara ibn Abu 'Awfa prayed with this saying of Allah the Almighty: 'When the Trumpet sounds.' (al-Muddaththir: 8), he fell down unconscious.(2) Allah Glorified is He informs the people about the matters of the Hereafter by using what they see in this worldly life as they used to blow the trumpet in their travels and wars. Blowing the Trumpet causes fear and panic as if it is saying to the dead people, ‘Arise from your death for the time of Resurrection and Account has come.’ He Glorified is He says in another verse: ‘His Word is the truth and all control on the Day the Trumpet is blown belongs to Him.’ (al-An‘am: 73)

---

(1) This Hadith is narrated on the authority of Abu Sa'id Al-Khudri Allah be pleased be upon him. See Ahmad, Musnad, Hadith no. 3008, 11039 and 19345; At-Tirmidhi, Sunnan, Hadith no. 2431 and 3243; and Ibn Maja, Sunnan, Hadith no. 4273.

Blowing the Trumpet signifies the coming of something; after the first Blow, all the living creatures die; and after the second Blow, all the dead creatures rise from their death. In this connection, Allah Glorified is He says: ‘The Trumpet will be sounded, and everyone in the heavens and earth will fall down senseless except those Allah spares. It will be sounded once again and they will be on their feet, looking on.’ (az-Zumar: 68)

Blowing the Trumpet is a great and fearful call for the dead to get out of their graves as He Glorified is He says elsewhere: ‘It will be the Day when He calls you, and you answer by praising Him, and you think you have stayed [on earth] only a little while.’ (al-Isra’: 52) His saying: ‘…when Allah calls you…’ (al-Isra’: 52) refers to the time of the second Blow when He Glorified is He commands the people to get out of the graves. Thereupon, they will praise Him, as a sign of obeying His Command and submitting to Him without disdain, negligence or arrogance.

Allah Glorified is He says: ‘It will be a Day of anguish.’ (al-Muddaththir: 9) The Day of the Blow, which is the Day of Judgment, is very hard and difficult. Describing that Day as a difficult one does not mean that it is so for all people; it is hard for a group of people and easy for others. He Glorified is He then says: ‘They will have no ease.’ (al-Muddaththir: 10) It will not be an easy Day for the disbelievers, for the punishment will befall them, and that is why it was called a difficult Day. Although it is hard for a group of people, it is easy for others. Part of its hardness, nevertheless, befalls all the creatures and all the people, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: ‘You will think people are drunk when they are not, so severe will be Allah’s Torment.’ (Ta Ha: 2) The word ‘people’ here includes everyone. Afterwards, the believers will be relieved from the hardships by receiving Allah’s Glad Tidings and Bounties. Then, the hardships remain for the rest of the people of the hellfire. So, the Day of blowing the Trumpet will be difficult for the disbelievers but yet easy for the believers – as easy for the believer as the shortest of his/her prayers. In this regard, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, ‘The Day of Judgment will be made easy for the believer until it becomes easier than one of his prescribed prayers in the worldly life.’(1)

Then, Allah Glorified is He says:

ذَرْنِي وَمَنْ خَلَقْتُ وَحِيدًا ﴿١١﴾ وَجَعَلْتُ لَهُۥ مَالًا مَّمْدُودًا ﴿١٢﴾
وَبَنِينَ شُهُودًا ﴿١٣﴾ وَمَهَّدتُّ لَهُۥ تَمْهِيدًا ﴿١٤﴾ ثُمَّ يَطْمَعُ أَنْ أَزِيدَ ﴿١٥﴾

[Prophet], leave Me to deal with the one I created helpless [11]
then gave vast wealth [12] and sons by his side [13] making everything easy for him [14] yet he still hopes I will give him more [15] (The Quran, al-Muddaththir: 11-15)

It is as if Allah the Almighty says, ‘Leave Me, Prophet Muhammad, to deal with the one I have created in the womb of his mother alone without having any property or children. Leave him to Me and I am Sufficient for you as against him.’ This verse was revealed in reference to Al-Walid ibn Al-Mughira(2) who was tilted the ‘unrivalled’ among his people. So, it is as if He the Almighty says, ‘Leave Me alone, Prophet Muhammad, with the one whom I have created alone without any partner as I have created everything Alone. I will punish him on the Day of Judgment Alone just as I have created him Alone.’ This is a frightening and fearful threat. It is as if He the Almighty also says, ‘After I have created him, I have not left him in this life without care; rather, I have supported him with provision.’ That is why He Glorified is He says about him: ‘Then give vast wealth.’ (al-Muddaththir: 12)

All the blessings, pertinent to the bestowals of Allah’s Lordship, are bestowed on all His creatures as He is the Lord of all, the obedient and the disobedient alike. He the Almighty has created all the creation, believers and disbelievers, and so long as He has created them and brought them into existence, He was not to abandon them. He Glorified is He has created the human being and made other creatures subjected to him/her. He the Almighty has not created the universe for the believers only; rather, for the believers and the disbelievers. This is because He the Almighty confers two kinds of bestowals on them: the bestowal of Lordship and that of Divinity. The bestowal of His Lordship is for all people, as He the Almighty is the Lord Who brought both the believer and the disbeliever into the universe and subjected all the means of sustenance to them. The sun, for instance, rises on the believer and the disbeliever. Such bestowals can be given to all the human beings, the believers and the disbelievers alike. As for the bestowal of Divinity, it is represented in ‘do and ‘do not’, that is, following the commandments and refraining from the Prohibitions. It is restricted to the followers of His Way of Guidance.

(1) This Hadith is narrated on the authority of Abu Sa'id Al-Khudri Allah be pleased with him. See Ahmad, Musnad, Hadith no. 11717; Ibn Hibban, Sahih, Hadith no. 7334; Abu Ya'la, Musnad, Hadith no. 1290; and Al-Baghawi, Sharh As-Sunna, Hadith no. 4318.

(2) Al-Walid ibn Al-Mughira is one of the leaders of Quraysh in the pre-Islamic era. He is the father of Khalid ibn Al-Walid. The people of Quraysh called him 'the unrivalled' in Mecca. He was one or the richest of the people of Mecca whose trade was equal to one hundred camels.

With regard to the verses under discussion, Al-Walid ibn Al-Mughira was the person whom Allah Glorified is He created and gave a vast wealth that never runs out, as some forms of his wealth always support the other. He had farming lands, milking cattle, trade and a garden whose fruits never end in either the winter or the summer. The Arabic phrase Mal Manduda (vast wealth) is similar to Allah’s saying: ‘With spreading shade.’ (al-Hashr: 30) This means that the shade never ceases. In this connection, Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, ‘There is a tree in paradise (which is so big and huge that) if a rider travels in its shade for one hundred years, he would not be able to cross it.’(1) It has a lasting shade that never ends when the sun sets, as is the case with the shade we have in the worldly life.

Thus, Allah Glorified is He has bestowed on Al-Walid a vast wealth that continuously increases. That is why it was uncountable and its profits do not stop. All what has a value is considered a property which is divided into two kinds, as follows: what can be used directly like food, drinks, clothes, etc. The one who has any of these makes use of them directly. The second kind of property is the money which ca not be of direct benefit; rather, the person uses it to bring what is directly useful. Thus, the property is divided into a direct and indirect provision.

(1) This Hadith is narrated on the authority of Sahl Ibn Sa'd As-Sa'idi Allah be pleased with him. See Al-Bukhari, Sahih, Hadith no. 3251, 3252 and 4881; and Muslim, Sahih, Hadith no. 3837.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says that not only has He given Al-Walid vast wealth but also sons. In this regard, He Glorified is He says: ‘And sons by his side.’ (al-Muddaththir: 13); and ‘Wealth and children are the attractions of this worldly life.’ (al-Kahf: 46) He the Almighty gave Al-Walid a vast wealth that never runs out and also ten sons who stood by his side and were present with him in the gatherings. The Arabic phrase Banina Shouhuda (sons by his side) means that they never become absent in a trade or any other activity because they had abundant wealth in Mecca, so he was not obliged to disperse his sons in the lands to accumulate and gather wealth. Rather, he easily gained wealth without any toil and without undergoing the means of accumulating it. Thus, He Glorified is He has made Al-Walid enjoy seeing his sons by his side, given the fact that the father’s enjoyment of seeing his children around him is incomparable with anything, especially if they are men who provide him with support.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says: ‘I have made everything easy for him.’ (al-Muddaththir: 14) This means that He Glorified is He has provided Al-Walid with abundant provision and a long lifetime. Moreover He the Almighty has provided him with a supreme power and mastery over his people. Thus, He Glorified is He has made the ways easy for him to lead a luxurious life by giving him the wealth and the power apparently manifested in his ten sons so that he could manage his affairs. His sons were with him wherever he went and they were an adornment for him in the gatherings and a support for him in managing his affairs.

Allah Glorified is He shows His Bounty on His servants, saying: ‘And it is Allah Who has given you spouses from amongst yourselves and through them He has given you children and grandchildren and provided you with good things.’ (an-Nahl: 72) The children are the first circle for the continuation of life and the grandchildren are the second circle. For this reason, many people among us love the male children who will be a continuation for the lineage of their fathers.

Despite all of that – the vast wealth, the sons by his side, the empowerment, the power and dignity – he still longs for more, as Allah Glorified is He says:

'Yet he still hopes I will give him more.' (al-Muddaththir: 14) Al-Walid hopes for more wealth, sons and empowerment even though He Glorified is He has given him a wealth more than what He the Almighty has given to any one of Quraysh, to the extent that he used to say, 'If I distributed my wealth among the tribe of Quraysh, it would not run out as long as I am alive, so how can you, Muhammad, promise me to be inflicted with poverty?' So, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said: 'By Allah, the One Who has given you that wealth can take it back.' This statement affected the heart of Al-Walid, so he decided to count all his wealth; he counted the gold, the silver, the gardens and slaves that he possessed.(1) Despite all that wealth, he still hopes to get more property, sons, power and dignity. But He Glorified is He shatters his hope, saying:

كَلَّآ إِنَّهُۥ كَانَ لِءَايَٰتِنَا عَنِيدًا ١٦ سَأُرۡهِقُهُۥ صَعُودًا ١٧

No! He has been stubbornly hostile to Our revelation [16]
I will inflict a spiraling torment on him [17]
(The Quran, al-Muddaththir: 16 - 17)

Allah Glorified is He has decisively ended the hope of Al-Walid who rejected His Verses and underestimated His Bounties. He will not be given more wealth or sons over what He the Almighty had previously given him. After the revelation of this verse, Al-Walid's position deteriorated as his wealth started to decrease, and he lost his power and authority with the death of some of his sons and the conversion of two of them to Islam, namely, Khalid and Hisham. Thus, his wealth and sons decreased after the revelation of this verse until he perished.

Allah Glorified is He uses the particle Kalla (No) which decisively indicates that Al-Walid ibn Al-Mughira, who was stubbornly hostile to His Revelation, was not an ordinary denier of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and the Quran. He was not just like any disbeliever who rejects the faith; rather, he was stubbornly hostile to His Revelation. He persistently rejected all the signs of monotheism, Allah's Power, the Resurrection and Prophethood. Some scholars hold that Al-Walid's stubborn disbelief was due to the fact that he did not believe in the truth of Resurrection or that the Quran is a Divine Revelation, not a fabrication of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. Here, the Arabic word 'Anida (stubborn) gives us the indication that the disbelief of Al-Walid was just out of stubbornness, which confirms Allah's saying: 'We know indeed that what they say certainly grieves you, but surely they do not call you a liar; but the unjust deny the communications of Allah.' (al-An'am: 33)

The disbelievers knew for certain that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him never tells lies, as they used to call him the truthful and the honest. Undoubtedly, they recognized his truthfulness and the veracity of his Message. However, their whims and desires enticed them to persist in going astray in order that they could cling to the temporal power of this worldly life. In this vein, we find that he peace and blessings be upon him left 'Ali Allah be pleased with him in Mecca to return the properties that they entrusted to him peace and blessings be upon him.

The Arabic word Al-Juhud (Rejection) means that the tongue refuses to utter the word of truth. Allah Glorified is He knows eternally that some of them inwardly are certain about the truth of the Faith, but they rejected it outwardly. They acknowledged the truth of the Faith but stubbornly and arrogantly rejected it. Al-Walid ibn Al-Mughira himself said about the Quran, 'It indeed overflows with sweet clarity; it is fruitful at its lowest and prodigious at its highest, and it is not the words of the humans.'(1) Thus, he was stubbornly hostile to Allah's signs.

The Arabic word 'Ayat (signs) refers to the proof of one's truthfulness. Allah Glorified is He will not give Al-Walid more than which He has already given him; rather, what he possesses will decrease, for He Glorified is He will seize what He has previously given him. Accordingly, some of his sons died, his wealth decreased and he lost his power and position.

Moreover, Allah Glorified is He has promised Al-Walid to be inflicted with a spiraling torment, as He says: 'I will inflict a spiraling torment on him.' (al-Muddaththir: 17) This means that He the Almighty will inflict him with a severe punishment with no relaxation. Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him described this punishment saying, ‘As-Sa’ud is a mountain in the hellfire which the disbeliever climbs for seventy years and then falls from it for another seventy years. He remains forever in that state.(1) Abu Sa’id Al-Khudari Allah be pleased with him said, ‘As-Sa’ud is a rock in the hellfire. When they put their hands on it, they melt, and when they take them off, they return as normal. Also, if they put their feet, they melt, and if they take them off, they return as normal.’ In another verse, He Glorified is He says: ‘But anyone who turns away from his Lord’s Revelation will be sent by Him to spiraling torment.’ (al-Jinn: 17) The disbelievers will suffer the torment of climbing a mountain of fire that they barely can climb with great difficultly. When they reach its summit, they fall from it. This punishment recurs eternally and there is no relaxation or relief from it.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says:

إِنَّهُۥ فَكَّرَ وَقَدَّرَ ﴿١٨﴾ فَقُتِلَ كَيۡفَ قَدَّرَ ﴿١٩﴾ ثُمَّ قُتِلَ كَيۡفَ قَدَّرَ ﴿٢٠﴾
ثُمَّ نَظَرَ ﴿٢١﴾ ثُمَّ عَبَسَ وَبَسَرَ ﴿٢٢﴾ ثُمَّ أَدۡبَرَ وَٱسۡتَكۡبَرَ ﴿٢٣﴾

He planned and plotted [18] devilishly he plotted! [19] ferociously he plotted! [20] and looked [21] and frowned and scowled [22] and turned away and behaved arrogantly [23]
(The Quran, al-Muddaththir: 18 - 23)

With regard to the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘He planned and plotted’ (al-Muddaththir: 18), this means that Al-Walid thought, reflected and pondered upon the matter and then arranged and prepared a speech in his mind. This refers to an incident when He Glorified is He revealed to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him His saying: ‘Ha Mim. [1] This Scripture is sent down from Allah the Almighty the All Knowing [2] ... to Him is the ultimate return. [3]’ (Ghafir: 1-3) When he peace and blessings be upon him stood to pray in the mosque, Al-Walid ibn Al-Mughira was close to him listening to his recitation. He peace and blessings be upon him knew that Al-Walid was listening, so he repeated the aforementioned verses. Thereupon, Al-Walid went to the gathering of his people, Banu Makhzum, and said, ‘By Allah, I listened to a speech from Muhammad that is neither the word of mankind nor the jinn. It overflows with sweet clarity; it is fruitful at its lowest and prodigious at its highest.’ After he went to his home, the people of Quraysh said, ‘By Allah Al-Walid converted to Islam and all the people of Quraysh will do the same.’ He went to the gathering of his people and said, ‘You claim that Muhammad is a madman, but have you ever seen him seized by a bout of madness?’ They answered, ‘No.’ Then he said, ‘You claim that Muhammad is a soothsayer, but have you even seen him soothsaying?’ They replied, ‘No, by Allah.’ Then he asked them, ‘You claim that he is a liar, but has he ever lied to you about anything?’ They answered, ‘No, by Allah.’ In passing, we should note that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him because of his truthfulness, was called the honest among them, even before the advent of his Prophethood.(1) The people of Quraysh asked, ‘So what is he?’ Al-Walid thought deeply and this incident is referred to in these verses under discussion: ‘He planned and plotted– [18] devilishly he plotted! [19] Ferociously he plotted!— [20] and looked [21] and frowned and scowled. [22]’ (al-Muddaththir: 18-22)

---

(1) In his Tafsir, Al-Khazin ascribes this narration to At-Tirmidhi in a Hadith narrated on the authority of Abu Sa'id Al-Khudari Allah be pleased with him. See Al-Khazin, Lubab At-Ta'wil, 4/364.

Their allegations that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him is a madman, a soothsayer or a poet have been proven to be false, so Al-Walid kept thinking deeply and planned and plotted devilishly. He thought about the Quran that Allah Glorified is He has revealed to him peace and blessings be upon him and planned what to say about him peace and blessings be upon him. As for His saying: ‘Ferociously he plotted’ (al-Muddaththir: 20), it means that he, i.e. Al-Walid was cursed and deprived of Allah’s Mercy because of what he thought about him peace and blessings be upon him and what he has plotted.

With regard to the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘And looked [21] and frowned and scowled 22]’ (al-Muddaththir: 21-22), it means that Al-Walid was thinking deeply until his heart became so straitened that he frowned and scowled. After thinking, planning, pondering, frowning and scowling, he said: ‘This is just old sorcery.’ (al-Muddaththir: 24) This was the outcome of his thinking! Then, He the Almighty says about him: ‘He turned away and behaved arrogantly.’ (al-Muddaththir: 23) He arrogantly refused and rejected the Faith and considered himself a great person, while he did not have the qualities of greatness. He behaved arrogantly by attributing to himself abilities greater than his real ones, for everyone has limited abilities.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says:

فَقَالَ إِنْ هَٰذَآ إِلَّا سِحْرٌ يُؤْثَرُ ﴿٢٤﴾ إِنْ هَٰذَآ إِلَّا قَوْلُ ٱلْبَشَرِ ﴿٢٥﴾

And said, ‘This is just old sorcery [24] just the talk of a mortal! [25] (The Quran, al-Muddaththir: 24 -25)

Al-Walid ibn Al-Mughira ultimately concluded, after deep thinking, that the Quran is just a matter of sorcery. He thought that what Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said and recited is only old sorcery that he related from someone else. Allah Glorified is He inserts the cohesive tie Fa’ before the verb Qal (said) in order for us to know that when Al-Walid turned away and behaved arrogantly, he immediately mentioned this misconception, that is, the Quran is sorcery which separates between the husband and his wife, the father and his son and the two brothers.

Claiming that the Quran is old sorcery means that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him took it from someone before him. This could have another interpretation, which is that the Quran influences the people with its sweetness as if it is sorcery, thus shows falsehood in the form of truth. Thus, all the disbelievers of Mecca called him peace and blessings be upon him a sorcerer, which was very severe to him. They did not find any argument against the Quran so they called him peace and blessings be upon him a sorcerer. But does the bewitched have any will against the sorcerer? That is to say that if he peace and blessings be upon him was a sorcerer, why did not he bewitch all the people of Quryash?! Their persistence in a state of stubborn disbelief is evidence that he is not a sorcerer and that their claim is false. If what he peace and blessings be upon him brought was sorcery and he was a sorcerer who bewitched the slaves and the weak people and made them convert to Islam by his sorcery, then why did he not bewitch those who rejected Islam as well?!

Al-Walid ibn Al-Mughira did not only describe the Quran as sorcery, but he also said: ‘Just the talk of the mortal.’ (al-Muddaththir: 25) The mortal that he means here is Yasar Abu Fukayh. Al-Walid claimed that Yasar brought and dictated the Quran to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him from Musaylama Al-Kadhdhab. But the disbelievers forget, or claimed to forget, that if the Quran was the speech of the mortal, they could bring something similar to it! So, why were they unable to do that?!

Allah Glorified is He challenged them to bring something similar to the Quran, or ten of its verses, saying: ‘Bring then ten chapters forged, like unto it.’ (Hud: 13) When they failed, He challenged them to bring only one chapter thereof. Accordingly, He Glorified is He reduced the difficulty of the challenge, saying: ‘…then produce a chapter like it…’ (al-Baqara: 23). Then He Glorified is He conclusively and decisively settled the matter, saying: ‘Say, “Even if all mankind and jinn came together to produce something like this Quran, they could not produce anything like it, however much they helped each other.’ (al-Isra’: 88) Thus, how can they say that the Quran is the talk of the mortal?!

Allah says:

سَأُصۡلِيهِ سَقَرَ ﴿٢٦﴾ وَمَآ أَدۡرَىٰكَ مَا سَقَرُ ﴿٢٧﴾ لَا تُبۡقِي وَلَا تَذَرُ ﴿٢٨﴾
لَوَّاحَةٞ لِّلۡبَشَرِ ﴿٢٩﴾ عَلَيۡهَا تِسۡعَةَ عَشَرَ ﴿٣٠﴾

I will throw him into the scorching Fire [26] What will explain to you what the scorching Fire is? [27] It spares nothing and leaves nothing [28] it scorches the flesh of humans [29] there are nineteen in charge of it [30]
(The Quran, al-Muddaththir: 26 - 30)

Allah the Almighty says: ‘I will throw him into the scorching Fire.’ (al-Muddaththir: 26) This means that He the Almighty will throw Al-Walid in one of the gates of the hellfire called Saqar. It can also be one of its various levels. He the Almighty says about this fire: ‘And neither you nor what you worship can lure away from Allah [162] any except those who will burn in Hell [163]’ (as-Saffat: 161-162); and ‘Therefore I warn you of the fire that flames [14] in which none but the wicked one will burn. [15]’ (al-Layl: 14-15)

Allah the Almighty then says: ‘What will explain to you what the scorching Fire is?’ (al-Muddaththir: 27) It is as if He the Almighty says, ‘How can you know, O Prophet Muhammad, what Saqar is,’ that is, how great its difficulty, hardship and earnestness are! The Arabic word Saqar comes from the root Saqarat which refers to the sun when it burns the skin of someone’s face.

Then Allah the Almighty says about Saqar: ‘It spares nothing and leaves nothing.’ (al-Muddaththir: 28) It does not leave anyone who deserves the punishment except that it seizes him/her and leaves nothing of the flesh until it burns and ruins it. It neither leaves those who are inside it to live peacefully nor to die; rather, whenever their bodies are burned, they will be renewed and returned back.

The fire of Saqar also scorches the flesh, as Allah the Almighty says: ‘It scorches the flesh of humans.’ (al-Muddaththir: 29) It burns the skins of the tortured people and blackens their colour. It scorches the skin and leaves it blacker than the darkness of the night.

Afterwards, Allah the Almighty says: ‘There are nineteen in charge of it.’ (al-Muddaththir: 30) There are nineteen Angels, Malik and eighteen other Angels, who are in charge of the Fire of Saqar; they are its keepers. It has been narrated that Ibn ‘Abbas, the interpreter of the Quran, said that the keepers of the hellfire have a countless number of assistants. He also said that six of these keepers lead the disbelievers to the hellfire and another six beat them with iron whips and fire. Malik is the greatest keeper who orders them according to what Allah Glorified is He commands him.(1) He Glorified is He describes these Angels in another verse as: ‘Stern and strong angels who never disobey Allah’s Commands to them, but do as they are ordered.’ (at-Tahrim: 6) Thus, they are very stern, powerful and strong over the people of the hellfire. One of these Angels can throw with one push seventy thousands to the hellfire from among those whom He Glorified is He has not shown Mercy.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says:

وَمَا جَعَلْنَآ أَصْحَـٰبَ ٱلنَّارِ إِلَّا مَلَـٰٓئِكَةًۙ وَمَا جَعَلْنَا عِدَّتَهُمْ إِلَّا فِتْنَةً لِّلَّذِينَ كَفَرُوا۟ لِيَسْتَيْقِنَ
ٱلَّذِينَ أُوتُوا۟ ٱلْكِتَـٰبَ وَيَزْدَادَ ٱلَّذِينَ ءَامَنُوٓا۟ إِيمَـٰنًاۙ وَلَا يَرْتَابَ ٱلَّذِينَ أُوتُوا۟ ٱلْكِتَـٰبَ وَٱلْمُؤْمِنُونَۙ
وَلِيَقُولَ ٱلَّذِينَ فِى قُلُوبِهِم مَّرَضٌ وَٱلْكَـٰفِرُونَ مَاذَآ أَرَادَ ٱللَّهُ بِهَـٰذَا مَثَلًاۚ كَذَٰلِكَ يُضِلُّ ٱللَّهُ مَن يَشَآءُ
وَيَهْدِى مَن يَشَآءُۚ وَمَا يَعْلَمُ جُنُودَ رَبِّكَ إِلَّا هُوَۚ وَمَا هِىَ إِلَّا ذِكْرَىٰ لِلْبَشَرِ ﴿٣١﴾

none other than angels appointed by Us to guard Hellfire–and We have made their number a test for the disbelievers. So those who have been given the Scripture will be certain and those who believe will have their faith increased: neither those who have been given the Scripture nor the believers will have any doubts, but the sick at heart and the disbelievers will say, 'What could God mean by this description?' God leaves whoever He will to stray and guides whoever He will – no one knows your Lord's forces except Him – this [description] is a warning to mortals [31] (The Quran, al-Muddaththir: 31)

Allah Glorified is He says: 'None other than angels appointed by us to guard Hellfire.' (al-Muddaththir: 31) The companion is the one who has affection towards his companion, and loves to sit and spend his best times with him. Here, the companions of the hellfire are not meant for those who are tortured in it; rather, it refers to its nineteen keepers because they never leave it unguarded. He Glorified is He attributes the hellfire to them as if they are its owners who are entitled to choose who goes to the hellfire.

Some of the people of the hellfire will beg Malik, its keeper, saying: 'Ask your Lord to lessen our suffering for one day.' (Ghafir: 49) Those who are being punished in the hellfire will ask its keepers to call Him Glorified is He for them to lessen the suffering for one day, but it will be said to them: 'Did your messengers not come to you with clear evidence of the truth?' They will say, 'Yes they did,' and the keeper will say, 'you can plead, then, but the pleas of disbelievers will always be in vain.' (Ghafir: 50) Thus, He Glorified is He has appointed Angels, not human beings, to guard the hellfire. As the keepers are not from the species of the tortured, they will show no kindness or mercy towards them.

Allah Glorified is He then says: '…and We have made their number a test for the disbelievers. So those who have been given the Scripture will be certain and those who believe will have their faith increased…' (al-Muddaththir: 31). He Glorified is He has not made the number of the keepers of the hellfire, which is very few in the disbelievers' opinion, except as a test and a trial to lead them astray, as they said, 'How can this few number torture all those who are in the hellfire?!' Even Abu Jahl said, 'Muhammad has only nineteen soldiers! Can each ten of you not defeat one of them?' Then he called the tribe of Quraysh and mocked at Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him saying: 'O people of Quraysh, Muhammad claims that the soldiers of Allah who will torture and imprison you in the hellfire are nineteen and you are more in number. So, can each one hundred among you not defeat one of them?!'(1) Thereupon, He Glorified is He revealed His saying: 'None other than angels appointed by us to guard Hellfire and we have made their number a test for the disbelievers.' (al-Muddaththir: 31) The number of the Angels was a test that led them astray because they did not believe in Allah's Power and Greatness. On the contrary, the one, who truly believed, reflected on His signs and thus increased in Faith.

Then Allah the Almighty says: '…So those who have been given the Scripture will be certain…' (al-Muddaththir: 31). The people of the Book who converted to Islam are certain about their belief because they found in their Book that Malik is the master of the other eighteen Angels guarding hellfire. So, it has become clear to them that what Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said comes from a Divine Revelation. As for the saying of Allah the Almighty: '…and those who believe will have their faith increased…' (al-Muddaththir: 31), it means that they will increase in their belief in Allah Glorified is He and what He has revealed to Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. The people of the Book will have their original faith and belief increased when they find that what he peace and blessings be upon him told them about the number of the keepers of the hellfire is in conformity with their Book.

(1) This narration is narrated by Ibn Abu Hatim on the authority of Mohamed Ibn Ishaq. See Ibn Abu Hatim, Tafsir, p. 15196; see also Ibn Hisham, As-Sira An-Nabawiyya, 1/313; and As-Suhayli, Al-Rawd Al-Unuf, 3/106.

Allah the Almighty then says: '…neither those who have been given the Scripture nor the believers will have any doubts.' (al-Muddaththir: 31) The place of doubt is the heart as He Glorified is He says in another verse about the hypocrites: '…and their hearts are in doubt, so in their doubt do they waver...' (at-Tawba: 45). Their faith wavers between the mind and the heart. The Arabic word Al-'irtiyab does not mean just having doubt, but it is a doubt with an accusation: '…but the sick at heart and the disbelievers will say, "What could Allah mean by this description?"' (al-Muddaththir: 31)

Actually, those who are sick at heart have weak faith; they are Muslims in the time of ease but renege in the time of hardship. They are not hypocrites, but they are weak in their faith as Allah Glorified is He makes a distinction between them, saying: 'The hypocrites and those who have sickness in their hearts said, "These people [the believers] must be deluded by their religion."' (al-Anfal: 49) Further, He Glorified is He differentiates here between those who are sick at heart and the disbelievers, even they both said, 'What could Allah Glorified is He mean by this description?' This saying is similar to their words in the following verse: 'Allah does not shy from drawing comparisons even with something as small as a gnat, or larger: the believers know it is the truth from their Lord, but the disbelievers say, 'What does Allah mean by such a comparison?' Through it He makes many go astray and leads many to the right path. But it is only the rebels He makes go astray.' (al-Baqara: 26) The disbelievers deny the parable and thereby increased their error, while the believers believed in the parable and recognised that it is the truth.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says: '…Allah leaves whoever He will to stray and guides whoever He will…' (al-Muddaththir: 31). He the Almighty has shown us the Way of Guidance and the way of error. Thus, one can choose either ways: to believe and receive the Guidance, or to follow the way of disbelief and wrongdoing, and thus deprives him/her of the Guidance. If someone argues with you and said that He Glorified is He says: '…Allah leaves whoever He will to stray and guides whoever He will…' (al-Muddaththir: 31), you should say, 'Allah Glorified is He has explained the way of those He wills to be guided and the way of those whom He leaves astray. Therefore, it is up to the person to follow either of the two ways.'

We have said previously that there are two kinds of Guidance. The first is common for all the people while the second is especially for the believers, which Allah Glorified is He clarifies in His saying: ‘Allah has increased the guidance of those who follow the right path, and given them their awareness [of Him].’ (Muhammad: 15) This means that He Glorified is He will help the believers to follow His Way of Guidance as He makes it easy for them to obey Him and make it difficult for them to disobey. If the believer adhered to His Way of Guidance and obeyed Him the Almighty, He will expand his/her heart and make the obedience dearer to his/her heart, and thus s/he will increase his/her obedience. Besides, when s/he is about to commit a misdeed, He Glorified is He will cause him/her to dislike it and to be difficult for him/her until s/he abandons that sin.

Allah the Almighty then says: ‘…No one knows your Lord’s Forces except Him…’ (al-Muddaththir: 31). So, you should not only rely on your power and measure how proportional it is to your enemy. You should leave these measures and just do your best in pursuing the means and the worldly causes and then leave the matter for the heavenly causes. It is as if He the Almighty says, ‘The least Force of your Lord, O Muhammad, is to strike panic into your enemies’ hearts, which is sufficient for you.’ It is narrated that during one of the Islamic battles, the smell of the Muslims’ mouths changed and they felt a bitter taste due to the long period of fighting. So, they cleaned their teeth and purified their mouths with their Siwaks. Upon seeing them doing so, the disbelievers said, ‘They are sharpening their teeth to eat us.’ Thus, He Glorified is He stuck panic in their hearts from an unexpected source.

Then, He the Almighty says: ‘…this is a warning to mortals.’ (al-Muddaththir: 31) The administrative pronoun here refers to the fire, that is, it is a warning for the mortals and an admonition to the people. The fire of Saqar is referred to in His saying: ‘I will throw him into the scorching Fire. [26] What will explain to you what the scorching Fire is? [27]’ (al-Muddaththir: 26-27) It is the fire guarded by nineteen stern and powerful Angels whose number is a test for the disbelievers. The disbelievers, the people of the Book, the believers and those who are sick at heart all differed about this fire. Every group has a different stance about it and about the number of the Angels guarding it.

Some exegetes, however, maintained that it is the Quran here which is meant to be the warning and the admonition for the people, not the fire. The context, nevertheless, gives precedence to the view that it is the fire which is the warning for the people.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says:

كَلَّا وَٱلْقَمَرِ ﴿٣٢﴾ وَٱلَّيْلِ إِذْ أَدْبَرَ ﴿٣٣﴾ وَٱلصُّبْحِ إِذَآ أَسْفَرَ ﴿٣٤﴾

Yes — by the moon! [32] By the departing night! [33] By the shining dawn! [34]
(The Quran, al-Muddaththir: 32-34)

Allah Glorified is He says that the disbelievers mistakenly think that they can defeat the Angels of the Fire, for they, being deceived by their ignorance, think that the number of these Angels is only nineteen. They forget that these Angels are just the keepers of the hellfire who control it. They are not of the guards of the hellfire who are numbered in thousands and who get the orders from the nineteen keepers. All of them do what they are ordered and they never disobey Him the Almighty or favour anyone. So no one will escape the punishment ordained by Him Glorified is He.

Afterwards, He the Almighty swears by the moon, the night and the morning, saying: ‘No — by the moon! [32] By the departing night! [33] By the shining dawn!’ [34] (al-Muddaththir: 32-34) It is He the Almighty Who created these creatures and they belong to Him. So, He the Almighty swears by whatever He wants about whatever He wants. He once swears, saying: ‘By the morning brightness [1] and by the night when it grows still. [2]’ (ad-Duha: 1-2) Further, He the Almighty swears by the wind, the brightness of morning, the night and the Angels; He Glorified is He even swears by the life of Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him saying: ‘By your life [Prophet], they wandered on in their wild intoxication.’ (al-Hijr: 72) Moreover, He the Almighty swears by the star when it sets. He the Almighty is the Great Creator Who knows best what He has created and how great His creation is. He the Almighty also knows the function of every creature He has created. He commanded us, however, not to swear except by Him because we are ignorant about the complete truth of the things.

In these verses, Allah Glorified is He swears by what is watched by the people like the moon and the night. After the night, the day comes, but He Glorified is He swears by the early time of the day, the dawn because it has some features not shared by other times of the daytime. Allah Glorified is He swears in another verse, saying: ‘By the dawn that softly breathes.’ (at-Takwir: 18) Here, He the Almighty swears by the shining dawn. The shining of the dawn comes after the end and the departure of the night. The Arabic word Isfar refers to the time when the light appears after the darkness of the night. It is used to refer to the woman who unveils her face. When the dawn shines with light, you find serenity and fresh air. In another verse, He Glorified is He metaphorically portrays the dawn as having a breath like the human beings, saying: ‘By the dawn that softly breathes.’ (at-Takwir: 18) Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, ‘Pray the dawn for its reward is great.’ This means to pray the dawn until the light appears in the sky. Al-‘isfar of the dawn, therefore, is its shining.

Subsequently, Allah Glorified is He says:

إِنَّهَا لَإِحْدَى ٱلْكُبَرِ ﴿٣٥﴾ نَذِيرًا لِّلْبَشَرِ ﴿٣٦﴾
لِمَن شَآءَ مِنكُمْ أَن يَتَقَدَّمَ أَوْ يَتَأَخَّرَ ﴿٣٧﴾

It is one of the mightiest things [35] a warning to all mortals [36] to those of you who choose to go ahead and those who lag behind [37]
(The Quran, al-Muddaththir: 35 - 37)

The Arabic word Al-Kubar (the mighty) is the plural of Kubra, as is clear in the saying of Allah: ‘A revelation from the One Who created the earth and the high heaven.’ (Ta Ha: 5) In this verse, we find the word Al-‘Ula (high) which is the plural of U‘lia. Thus, the fire of Saqar is one of the mightiest punishments. The torment in the hellfire has many forms and Saqar (The scorching Fire) is one of the seven levels that the hellfire has. These levels are The Hell, the flaming Fire, the Crusher, the Burning Fire, the Scorching Fire, the Hellfire and the Abyss. The saying of Allah: ‘It is one of the mightiest things…’ (al-Muddaththir: 35) is the predicate of His Swear: ‘By the moon.’ (al-Muddaththir: 32)

Allah the Almighty says about the hellfire that it is: ‘A warning to all mortals.’ (al-Muddaththir: 36) In this regard, Al-Hasan Al-Basri said, ‘Allah has never warned by something more difficult than the hellfire.’(1) The mention of the hellfire here alludes to its levels, punishment, keepers and guards; all of these are a warning for the mortals. Some scholars interpret this verse as referring to Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him as He Glorified is He commands him at the beginning of this chapter, saying: ‘Arise and proclaim warning.’ (al-Muddaththir: 2) It is as if He the Almighty says to him, ‘You, Prophet Muhammad, is the warner for the humans against Allah’s Punishment, which is the burning fire.’ Thus, he peace and blessings be upon him is a warner for all people.

Afterwards, Allah the Almighty says: ‘To those of you who choose to go ahead and those who lag behind.’ (al-Muddaththir: 37) The one has the choice to go ahead, by excelling someone else in doing good deeds and obeying Allah’s Commands, or to lag behind. Going ahead or lagging behind can be pertinent to the matter of obedience and disobedience, the good and the evil or entering the paradise and the hellfire. This is similar to His saying: ‘Say, “Now the truth has come from your Lord: let those who wish to believe in it do so, and let those who wish to reject it do so.”’ (al-Kahf: 29) You have the choice to believe or disbelieve, but the benefit of belief will be for you. Indeed, He Glorified is He neither benefits from one’s belief nor is harmed by his/her disbelief.

Subsequently, Allah Glorified is He says:

كُلُّ نَفْسٍۭ بِمَا كَسَبَتْ رَهِينَةٌ ﴿٣٨﴾ إِلَّآ أَصْحَٰبَ ٱلْيَمِينِ ﴿٣٩﴾
فِى جَنَّٰتٍ يَتَسَآءَلُونَ ﴿٤٠﴾ عَنِ ٱلْمُجْرِمِينَ ﴿٤١﴾

Every soul is held in pledge for its deeds [38]
but the Companions of the Right will stay [39]
in Gardens and ask [40] about the guilty [41]
(The Quran, al-Muddaththir: 38 - 41)

All the souls of the disbelievers are held in the fire wherein they will be punished for their misdeeds. Every disbeliever is imprisoned in the hellfire for his/her sins. Linguistically, the Arabic word Al-Rahn (Pledge) refers to the fixation, continuation and holding of something. Thus, they are held in the fire for their misdeeds and sins as every soul will be held accountable for its deeds on the Day of Judgment. Everyone is held in pledge for his/her deeds, and no one bears the sins of anyone else, whether a father or a son. The human being will only have the reward of what s/he has done of god deeds. Thus, the disbelievers will be imprisoned eternally in the Fire of Saqar and no intercession will be useful for them. Everyone will be concerned with him/herself and the consequences of his/her deeds. Everyone has the choice to go forward or lag behind, to dignify his/her soul or to humiliate it, for the soul is held in pledge for its deeds.

Allah Glorified is He excludes the Companions of the Right from those imprisoned in the hellfire for their misdeeds and sins, saying: ‘But the Companions of the Right…’ (al-Muddaththir: 39). They, i.e. the Companions of the Right will not be imprisoned for their sins in the hellfire, as He Glorified is He will forgive their sins. They released themselves by their good deeds as when the mortgagor releases his/her mortgage by repaying what s/he has borrowed. The Companions of the Right are those ‘…given their Records with their right hands.’ (al-Haqqa: 19) Thus, He Glorified is He has excluded them from those held in prison in the hellfire, which is why ‘Ali ibn Abu Taleb Allah be pleased with him thought that the Companions of the Right are the children of the Muslims.

Allah the Almighty then says: ‘[They] will stay in Gardens and ask [40] about the guilty. [41]’ (al-Muddaththir: 40-41) The Companions of the Right will ask about the guilty people whom they saw in the worldly life and suffered their criminality and wrongdoing, or they will ask about their sinful companions’ destination. In this regard, He the Almighty says: ‘They will turn to one another with questions: [50] one will say, “I had a close companion [51] on earth who used to ask me, ‘Do you really believe [52] that after we die and become dust and bone, we shall be brought for judgment?’ [53] Then he will say, ‘Shall we look for him?”’ [54] He will look down and see him in the midst of the Fire [55]’ (as-Saffat: 50-55) meaning that they, i.e. the Companions of the Right used to turn to one another to ask about this sinful person’s destination, and they will find him/her in the midst of the fire in the Hereafter.

Subsequently, Allah Glorified is He says:

مَا سَلَكَكُمۡ فِي سَقَرَ ﴿٤٢﴾ قَالُواْ لَمۡ نَكُ مِنَ ٱلۡمُصَلِّينَ ﴿٤٣﴾ وَلَمۡ نَكُ نُطۡعِمُ ٱلۡمِسۡكِينَ ﴿٤٤﴾
وَكُنَّا نَخُوضُ مَعَ ٱلۡخَآئِضِينَ ﴿٤٥﴾ وَكُنَّا نُكَذِّبُ بِيَوۡمِ ٱلدِّينِ ﴿٤٦﴾ حَتَّىٰٓ أَتَىٰنَا ٱلۡيَقِينُ ﴿٤٧﴾

'What drove you to the Scorching Fire?' [42] [they will ask] and they will answer, 'We did not pray [43] we did not feed the poor [44] we indulged with others [in mocking the believers] [45] we denied the Day of Judgment [46] until the Certain End came upon us [47] (The Quran, al-Muddaththir: 42 - 47)

The Companions of the Right will reproachfully ask the guilty, 'What drove you to the Scorching Fire?' (al-Muddaththir: 42) They asked them about the reason for entering the Fire of Saqar which is one of the levels of the hellfire. They will answer, 'We did not pray.' (al-Muddaththir: 43) This entails that they were disbelievers. Someone may ask, 'How can they pray while they are disbelievers?!' Their saying that they did not pray is meant to be a confession that they are disbelievers, not praying to Allah Glorified is He. Driving them into the Fire of Saqar means casting them into it like when the thread passes through the eye of the needle. Thus, the disbelievers admit that they were not praying to Him Glorified is He in the worldly life.

Allah the Almighty then relates that the guilty will say: 'We did not feed the poor.' (al-Muddaththir: 44) They will also admit that they did not feed the needy or give charity to the poor. But does refraining from giving charity alone entail getting into the Fire of Saqar? Of course not! They neither believed in the prayer nor performed it, and they neither believed in the prescribed alms nor in the right of the needy in their properties. So, they did not give the prescribed alms to them.

The guilty will also say: 'We indulged with others in mocking the believers.' (al-Muddaththir: 45) They used to indulge in falsehood with those who mocked Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him the Muslims and the Quran. In this regard, Allah Glorified is He says: 'As He has already revealed to you [believers] in the Scripture, if you hear people denying and ridiculing Allah's revelation, do not sit with them unless they start to talk of other things, or else you yourselves will become like them: Allah will gather all the hypocrites and the disbelievers together into the hell.' (an-Nisa': 140) The Arabic word Nakhud (to indulge) gives a clear allegorical meaning, as the root of the word Khawd (indulgence) means to dip into a liquid such as water or mud. When you go through a liquid, it does not disperse and let the way open for you to go; rather, once you walk into it, the liquid mixes once again and it will be impossible to have a clear way for yourself. Here, this word means to indulge in falsehood or fruitless talk. Indulging in such talks makes you unable to distinguish between the good and the bad matters, as is the case with indulging in falsehood or aimless playing. Those guilty people used to indulge with others in mocking the Messengers, the Books of Allah and the believers, and that is why they deserved being punished in the Fire of Saqar.

The guilty people will also say: ‘We denied the Day of Judgment.’ (al-Muddaththir: 46) They denied the Day of Recompense when the people will be held accountable and get rewarded or punished for their deeds. They did not believe in the reward, the punishment or the Account until the certain end came upon them. Moreover, they did not try to repent or to seek and follow the truth. Instead, they denied what the Messengers came with from Allah Glorified is He and stubbornly kept on disbelieving until death seized them.

The Arabic word Al-Yaqin (certainty) is the fixed matter that is firmly rooted in the reality so that it is not open for change or reconsideration. In fact, nothing is more certain in the reality than death which everyone sees and recognizes. The people may disagree about the Existence of Allah Glorified is He, but they cannot disagree about the inevitability of the human being’s death. Thus, those guilty people did not pray or give the prescribed alms yet kept on disbelieving and denying the Day of Judgment until death suddenly overtook them before repenting to Allah Glorified is He.

Subsequently, He Glorified is He says:

فَمَا تَنفَعُهُمْ شَفَٰعَةُ ٱلشَّٰفِعِينَ ﴿٤٨﴾ فَمَا لَهُمْ عَنِ ٱلتَّذْكِرَةِ مُعْرِضِينَ ﴿٤٩﴾

No intercessor’s plea will benefit them now [48] What is the matter with them? Why do they turn away from the warning [49] (The Quran, al-Muddaththir: 48 - 49)

The Intercession of any intercessor will not be useful for the guilty people. The Arabic word Al-Shafe’un (The intercessors) is the plural of Shafe’ or

Shafi' (Intercessor). In this vein, Allah the Almighty says: ‘Guard yourselves against a Day when no soul will stand in place of another, no Intercession will be accepted for it, nor any ransom; nor will they be helped.’ (al-Baqara: 48) And ‘Beware of a Day when no soul can stand in for another. No compensation will be accepted from it, nor Intercession will be of use to it, nor will anyone be helped.’ (al-Baqara: 123) The intercession requires the presence of an intercessor, someone to intercede with, another one to be interceded on behalf and the subject of the intercession. These are the four elements in that process of intercession. The one interceded with is Allah Glorified is He and the subject of the intercession is the sins. He Glorified is He does not accept the intercession from anyone, for He accepts it from the one He approves his/her speech, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: ‘That Day, intercession will be useless except from those to whom the Lord of Mercy has granted permission and whose words He approves.’ (Ta Ha: 109)

As for His saying: ‘What is the matter with them? Why do they turn away from the warning?’ (al-Muddaththir: 49), it is similar to the verse reading: ‘So why do they not believe?’ (al-Inshiqaq: 20) Logically, they should have believed instead of rejecting the admonition. They should have dealt with the matter wisely by giving prevalence to what they should do. But their poor thinking about the consequences of their deeds indicates that they are unwise people. In the same connection, He the Almighty says: ‘We have given them Our signs, but they turned their back.’ (al-Hijr: 81) They arrogantly rejected Allah’s Way of Guidance with which the Messengers came. Here, the Arabic word Al-I‘rad means to turn your back on something, get away from it and not to move forward towards it. If they have moved forward to faith, they would have found that good for them.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says:

كَأَنَّهُمْ حُمُرٌ مُّسْتَنفِرَةٌ ﴿٥٠﴾ فَرَّتْ مِن قَسْوَرَةٍ ﴿٥١﴾

Like frightened asses [50] fleeing from a lion? [51]
(The Quran, al-Muddaththir: 50 - 51)

Here, the plural of the Arabic word Hemar (Ass) is Humur (Asses). In this verse, they are described as frightened asses escaping from the powerful hunters. The Arabs called all what is big and powerful Qaswara; it can also refer to the lion from which the frightened asses try to escape. Thus, the asses are either escaping from the archers and the hunters or from a lion. How fast they will then run to escape! Therefore, you should be wondering how those guilty people are fleeing from following the Call, the Religion and the Messengers of Allah Glorified is He as if they were asses fleeing from the hunters in the wild land.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says:

بَلْ يُرِيدُ كُلُّ ٱمْرِيٍٕ مِّنْهُمْ أَن يُؤْتَىٰ صُحُفًا مُّنَشَّرَةً ﴿٥٢﴾
كَلَّا ۖ بَل لَّا يَخَافُونَ ٱلْـَٔاخِرَةَ ﴿٥٣﴾

Each one of them demands that a scripture be sent down to him and unrolled before his very eyes [52] No! Truly they have no fear of the life to come [53] (The Quran, al-Muddaththir: 52 - 53)

Every one of those disbelievers and polytheists asked for unrolled Scripture from Allah Glorified is He to be beside him/her when s/he gets up in the morning. That is to say that they demanded to be sent a scripture that states that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him is the Messenger of Allah whom they should follow. They used to say, ‘When a man of the children of Israel sins, he finds his sins and its expiation written beside him in the morning. So, can you [Muhammad] show us the like of these signs if you are truly a Messenger as you claim?!’ Gabriel said, ‘If you [Muhammad] wanted, we could have done to them like what we have done to the Children of Israel, and charged them with what we have charged the Children of Israel.’ But he peace and blessings be upon him disliked that.(1) Surprisingly, they demanded the revelation of a special Scripture to each one of them, to command them to believe in Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him while they do not believe in Allah the Almighty.

(1) See Muqatil ibn Sulaiman, Tafsir, 4/500; Al-Khazin, Lubad At-Tanzil, 4/268; and Al-Baghawi, Tafsir, 5/180.

Afterwards, He the Almighty says: ‘No! Truly they have no fear of the life to come.’ (al-Muddaththir: 3) As far as the disbelievers are concerned, they do not really want a Scripture or scrolls to be sent down, for if they were sent down to them, they would not believe, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: ‘Even if We had sent down to you [Prophet] a book inscribed on parchment, and they had touched it with their own hands, the disbelievers would still say, ‘This is nothing but blatant sorcery.’ (al-An‘am: 7) So, they, under no circumstances, will believe. These are just lame excuses which they make, so that they do not believe. Even if what they demanded was fulfilled, they would not also believe because they want to flee from the Resurrection, the Account and the Last Day. They do not want to adhere to any Way of Guidance, commands or prohibitions.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says:

كَلَّآ إِنَّهُۥ تَذۡكِرَةٞ (٥٤) فَمَن شَآءَ ذَكَرَهُۥ (٥٥)
وَمَا يَذۡكُرُونَ إِلَّآ أَن يَشَآءَ ٱللَّهُۚ هُوَ أَهۡلُ ٱلتَّقۡوَىٰ وَأَهۡلُ ٱلۡمَغۡفِرَةِ (٥٦)

But truly this is a reminder [54] Let whoever wishes to take heed do so [55] they will only take heed if God so wishes. He is the Lord who should be heeded, the Lord of forgiveness [56] (The Quran, al-Muddaththir: 54 - 56)

In the texts of the Quran, you find something wonderful; for example, two similar texts differ in meaning according to the context of each. Here, Allah Glorified is He says: ‘But truly this is a reminder. Let whoever wishes to take heed do so.’ In another verse, He says: ‘No indeed! This [Quran] is a lesson from which those who wish to be taught should learn.’ (’Abasa: 11, 12) And ‘This is a reminder. Let whoever wishes, take the way to his Lord.’ (al-Insan: 29) This is one kind of similarity between the verses of the Quran and that is why He Glorified is He says: ‘When We have recited it, repeat the recitation.’ (al-Qiyama: 18) Therefore, the similarity between the verses is not just a matter of fixed forms or mechanical processes, for it is the words of the All Wise Lord. The Quran is a reminder and a great admonition. It is not old sorcery or the talk of the mortals, as the disbelievers claim; rather, it is a reminder from Him Glorified is He for His Creation.

He the Almighty says: ‘Let whoever wishes to take heed do so.’ (al-Muddaththir: 55) The one who wishes to be admonished will be rewarded for his/her action. So you should comply with Allah’s Commands and Prohibitions, which are found in His Book. No one is prevented from or forced to do anything, for the human being has free will. So anyone who is heedless of the admonition is responsible for the consequences of his/her action as s/he preferred something over the Quran and turned away from its admonition.

Then Allah Glorified is He says: ‘they will only take heed if Allah so wishes. He is the Lord who should be heeded, the Lord of forgiveness.’ (al-Muddaththir: 56) If He Glorified is He wishes guidance for them, they will take heed and be admonished, for no one is able to do anything except with Allah’s Predestination and with the power He bestowed on him/her. He Glorified is He concludes the chapter of al-Muddaththir by praising Himself, for He deserves to be held in awe by His servants. They should fear His punishment, believe in Him and obey Him as He is fully able to forgive their previous disbelief and sins. Anas ibn Malik narrated that Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said regarding this verse, ‘Allah Glorified is He said, ‘I deserve to be held in awe and I will forgive whoever fears Me provided that s/he does not associate any deity with Me.’(1)

al-Qiyama

In the Name of God, the Most Merciful, the Dispenser of Mercy

The chapter of al-Qiyama (1) (The Final Judgment Day).

Allah Glorified is He says:

لَآ أُقۡسِمُ بِيَوۡمِ ٱلۡقِيَٰمَةِ ١ وَلَآ أُقۡسِمُ بِٱلنَّفۡسِ ٱللَّوَّامَةِ ٢

By the Day of Resurrection [1] and by the self-reproaching soul! [2]
(The Quran, al-Qiyama: 1-2)

Here, He Glorified is He literally says ‘I do not swear’ as He wants to make it clear that the disbelievers have no right to deny the Day of Resurrection; so it is not proper that He swears in order to affirm this reality, but if He were to swear, He would swear by so and so. Thus, the meaning of ‘I do not swear’ is that the matter is very plain and clear that He the Almighty is not in need to swear, but if He were to swear, He would swear by the Day of Resurrection. He Glorified is He only swears by something great, given the fact that the person swears by what s/he appreciates. So, what do you think about the greatness of the Day of Resurrection if the One Who swears by it is Allah Glorified is He Himself?!

Then, Allah Glorified is He swears another time by the self-reproaching soul which stimulates the person, by virtue of its goodness, to do good after committing something evil. It whispers to the person when s/he commits something wrong, saying, ‘Allah has not commanded you to do that.’ Thereupon, s/he returns to the right course by repenting and seeking His Forgiveness.

(1) The chapter of al-Qiyama is number 75 in the order of the Mushaf. It was revealed after the chapter of al-Qari'a and before al-Humaza. Its order according to the revelation is 30. It was revealed in Mecca, i.e. before the Hijra, and its verses are 40.

The person may commit a sin, but his/her soul regains its awareness of Allah's Way of Guidance because s/he has the cell of faithful immunity inside him/her. He Glorified is He has divided the human souls into three kinds: self-reproaching, evil-inciting and the peaceful soul. The mission of the self-reproaching soul is to confront what the evil soul commands the human being to do. But if the self-reproaching soul does not do its part, the evil soul will keep on inciting evil and nothing will deter it.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says:

أَيَحْسَبُ ٱلْإِنسَٰنُ أَلَّن نَّجْمَعَ عِظَامَهُۥ ﴿٣﴾ بَلَىٰ قَٰدِرِينَ عَلَىٰٓ أَن نُّسَوِّىَ بَنَانَهُۥ ﴿٤﴾

Does man think We shall not put his bones back together? [3] In fact, We can reshape his very fingertips [4] (The Quran, al-Qiyama: 3 - 4)

Does the disbeliever think that Allah Glorified is He will not put his/her bones back together even after they disjoined each other, decayed and mixed with dust which the wind blows far away?! The Arabic verb Hasiba (to think) is in the present form and indicates something that will happen in the future. It here refers to the Second Blow in the Trumpet. This verb is mentioned in the past tense in His saying: ‘Do people think they will be left alone after saying ‘We believe’ without being put to the test?’ (al-’Ankabut: 2) So, do the people think that they can just say, ‘We believe’ without being tested? In fact, they have already been put to the test.

Al-Akhnas ibn Shurayq Al-Thaqafi said to Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him ‘O Muhammad, tell me about the Day of Resurrection and how it will be like.’ When he peace and blessings be upon him told him, 'Uday ibn Rabi'a, the ally of Banu Zuhrah and the relative of Al-Akhnas said: ‘Even if I saw that Day, I would believe neither in you nor in your Message. How can Allah put the bones back together?!’ Thereupon Allah Glorified is He revealed His saying: ‘Does man think We shall not put his bones back together? [3] In fact, We can reshape his very fingertips. [4]’ (al-Qiyama: 3-4) He Glorified is He is fully Able to put the bones back together and to shape them as He has formed them in the first time. Moreover, He is fully Able to do what is greater than this, namely, to reshape people's very fingertips.

However, some of the exegetes said that the Arabic word 'Nusawwi' means flattening the fingers with the palm until they become like the hoof of the camel so that such a person who denied resurrection cannot make use of his/her hands for the rest of his/her life. Qatada said, 'If Allah has willed, He could have made his fingers like the hoof of the cow or the cattle. So he would not be able to eat except with his mouth like the rest of the cattle. This is a punishment for denying the Resurrecting.' He Glorified is He has made the fingers of the human beings separated, so that s/he can eat with his/her hand and be able to withhold or stretch it as s/he wishes.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says:

بَلۡ يُرِيدُ ٱلۡإِنسَٰنُ لِيَفۡجُرَ أَمَامَهُۥ (٥) يَسۡـَٔلُ أَيَّانَ يَوۡمُ ٱلۡقِيَٰمَةِ (٦)

Yet man wants to deny what is ahead of him [5]
he says, 'So, when will this Day of Resurrection be?' [6]
(The Quran, al-Qiyama: 5 - 6)

This person who denied and disbelieved in the Resurrection wants no one to command him/her to do the right and not to do the wrong. S/he just wants to freely disobey Allah the Almighty and to commit sins and terrible misdeeds. However, if s/he believed in the Resurrection, s/he would be obliged obey Him Glorified is He. S/he commits the sin and delays the repentance daily, saying, 'I will repent tomorrow,' but s/he never does that. His/her soul does not let him/her repent until s/he dies while committing the evil deeds. S/he stubbornly keeps on sinning and transgressing without being deterred; rather, s/he always seeks the worldly life and forgets death. It is as if He Glorified is He says, 'Do not pay heed to the words of someone who denies the Resurrection as s/he only does so in order to live in this worldly life without a Way of Guidance prescribing what to do and what not to do.' In the same vein, Allah the Almighty says: 'He asks, "When will this Day of Resurrection be?"' (al-Qiyama: 6); and: 'They ask you [Prophet] about the Hour, "When will it happen?"' (al-A'raf: 187) This disbelieving person asks about the time of the Day of Resurrection with a tone of denial.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says:

فَإِذَا بَرِقَ ٱلۡبَصَرُ ﴿٧﴾ وَخَسَفَ ٱلۡقَمَرُ ﴿٨﴾ وَجُمِعَ ٱلشَّمۡسُ وَٱلۡقَمَرُ ﴿٩﴾
يَقُولُ ٱلۡإِنسَٰنُ يَوۡمَئِذٍ أَيۡنَ ٱلۡمَفَرُّ ﴿١٠﴾

When eyes are dazzled [7] and the moon eclipsed [8]
when the sun and the moon are brought together [9] on that Day man will say, 'Where can I escape?' [10]
(The Quran, al-Qiyama: 7-10)

In this worldly life, the disbeliever questions the coming of the Day of Resurrection, but in the Hereafter, when the Day of Resurrection overtakes him/her, s/he will come to know for certain that s/he has wasted his/her lifetime in denying the Truth. When his/her eyes are dazzled due to the hardship of the Day of Resurrection, s/he will know that s/he has made a fatal mistake.

As for the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'When the eyes are dazzled.' (al-Qiyama: 7), it means when his/her eyes are widely-opened for being dazzled with panic, shock and fear from what s/he sees. This is similar to His saying: 'He only gives them respite until a Day when their eyes will stare in terror' (Ibrahim: 42), and 'When the True Promise draws near, the disbelievers' eyes will stare in terror' (al-Anbiya': 97) meaning that their eyes will stare in terror without turning right or left for the calamities they are watching. When someone gets into a panic and fear, you see how his/her facial expressions change. Thus, on the Day of Resurrection, fear will overwhelm the people that they do not turn away from that frightening scene.

Allah the Almighty then says: 'And the moon eclipsed.' (al-Qiyama: 7-10) A lunar eclipse takes place and the moon's light goes out. When the moon eclipses, it loses its light and the darkness befalls. Here, the verb 'eclipse' is used in the passive voice. The sun and the moon will be brought together when they lose their lights and He Glorified is He will make them shrouded in darkness. Therefore, the sun will join the moon, after being separated from each other, and the precise system of the universe will consequently collapse.

In the midst of all this – the eclipse of the moon, the shrouded sun, the universal darkness and the unlimited panic – you will find the arrogant and haughty person saying, 'Where can I escape?' (al-Qiyama: 10) Can you imagine how fearful and frightened s/he is?! S/he cannot return to the worldly life, nor does s/he have any refuge, friend or helper. S/he feels that s/he is besieged, so s/he will say: ‘Where can I escape?’ (al-Qiyama: 10) Such a people, mentioned in the chapter of al-Muddaththir, used to flee from the admonition and the reminding in this worldly life, as He the Almighty says: ‘Why do they turn away from the warning, [49] like frightened asses [50] fleeing from a lion? [51]’ (al-Muddaththir: 49-51) In the chapter under discussion, when they face the event of the Day of Judgment and become certain about its truth which they refused to admit, they will say, ‘Where can We escape?’ (al-Qiyama: 10) He Glorified is He decisively ends their hope of finding a way out, saying: ‘Where will they go?’ (at-Takwir: 26)

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says:

كَلَّا لَا وَزَرَ ﴿١١﴾ إِلَىٰ رَبِّكَ يَوْمَئِذٍ ٱلْمُسْتَقَرُّ ﴿١٢﴾

Truly, there is no refuge [11] they will all return to your Lord on that Day [12]
(The Quran, al-Qiyama: 11-12)

When Allah Glorified is He wants to frighten the people from the Hereafter, He says: ‘Truly, there is no refuge: [11] they will all return to your Lord on that Day. [12]’ (al-Qiyama: 11-12) On that Day, there is no refuge or helper except Him Glorified is He. As for the disbelievers, He the Almighty states that there is no helper or supporter for them. They will all return to Him in the Hereafter which will last forever. The Arabic word Al-Mustaqar (return) is the place wherein you stay. In fact, the ultimate stay, returning and destination will be in the Hereafter. Therefore, the return of all the creatures will be to Him the Almighty. In this connection, ‘Abdullah ibn Mas‘ud said, ‘To Allah is the return and the destination.’ They will return to their Lord to stay eternally in either the Paradise or the Hellfire.

Subsequently, Allah Glorified is He says:

يُنَبَّؤُا۟ ٱلْإِنسَٰنُ يَوْمَئِذٍۭ بِمَا قَدَّمَ وَأَخَّرَ ﴿١٣﴾ بَلِ ٱلْإِنسَٰنُ عَلَىٰ نَفْسِهِۦ بَصِيرَةٌ ﴿١٤﴾
وَلَوْ أَلْقَىٰ مَعَاذِيرَهُۥ ﴿١٥﴾

On that Day, man will be told what he put first and what he put last [13] Truly, man is a clear witness against himself [14] Despite all the excuses he may put forward [15] (The Quran, al-Qiyama: 13 - 15)

On the Day of Resurrection, when the sun and the moon will be brought together and shrouded, the human being will be informed about what s/he has put first and what s/he has put last. This is similar to the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'We shall bring out a record for each of them, which they will find spread wide open, [13] Read your record. Today your own soul is enough to calculate your account. [14]' (al-Isra': 13-14) The human being will be told about what s/he has done of good and bad deeds as well as his/her good or bad practices that the people followed after his/her death. Allah Glorified is He will inform him/her about the good deeds s/he has done and also about what s/he has not done.

Then He the Almighty says: 'Truly, man is a clear witness against himself. [15]' (al-Qiyama: 14) There are witnesses against the human within him/herself; they actually witness and watch what s/he does. These witnesses are his/her hearing, sight and limbs. The word Basira (witness) implicitly indicates that the human being is a clear witness against him/herself, as you see nothing better than yourself. This confirms His saying: 'Today your own soul is enough to calculate your account.' (al-Isra': 14) This means that your soul is enough to witness against you. He Glorified is He has made a clear witness within the human against him/herself as when you say to someone, 'You are the evidence against yourself.'

He the Almighty says: 'Truly, man is a clear witness against himself, [14] despite all the excuses he may put forward [15]' (al-Qiyama: 14-15). Even if the human being puts forward all the excuses and argued for him/herself, this will not benefit him/her as a witness from within him/herself bore witness against him/her. Allah Glorified is He clarifies some of their excuses, saying: 'By Allah, our Lord, we have not set up partners beside Him' (al-An'am: 23), and 'On the Day Allah raises them all from the dead, they will swear before Him as they swear before you now.' (al-Mujadala: 18)

Subsequently, Allah Glorified is He says:

لَا تُحَرِّكْ بِهِۦ لِسَانَكَ لِتَعْجَلَ بِهِۦٓ ﴿١٦﴾ إِنَّ عَلَيْنَا جَمْعَهُۥ وَقُرْءَانَهُۥ ﴿١٧﴾
فَإِذَا قَرَأْنَٰهُ فَٱتَّبِعْ قُرْءَانَهُۥ ﴿١٨﴾ ثُمَّ إِنَّ عَلَيْنَا بَيَانَهُۥ ﴿١٩﴾

[Prophet], do not rush your tongue in an attempt to hasten [your memorization of] the Revelation [16] We shall make sure of its safe collection and recitation [17] When We have recited it, repeat the recitation [18] And We shall make it clear [19] (The Quran, al-Qiyama: 16 - 19)

Allah Glorified is He reassures Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him that the Quran will be preserved because when the revelation was sent down to him, he used to repeat it word for word, lest he forgets anything thereof. For instance, when the saying of Allah: ‘Say [Prophet], ‘It has been revealed to me…’ (al-Jinn: 1) was revealed to him, he used to repeat that inwardly after Gabriel lest he forgets it. This was out of his carefulness and eagerness to preserve the Quran. Accordingly, He Glorified is He prohibits him from rushing, saying: ‘[Prophet], do not rush to recite before the revelation is fully complete.’ (Ta Ha: 114) This means that he should not rush or pre-occupy himself with repeating and rehearsing for nothing of what he is assigned to memorise will escape his memory. In another verse, He the Almighty says: ‘[Prophet], We shall teach you [the Quran] and you will not forget.’ (al-A‘la: 6) In the verse under discussion, Allah Glorified is He prohibits him peace and blessings be upon him from rushing to recite it, that is, when Jibril (Gabriel) completes the recitation of the verses, he peace and blessings be upon him can recite them as he wishes.

Some quarters or even complete chapter used to be sent down all at once to Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. When the revelation departs him, he repeats them exactly as they have been revealed. If the chapter is completely revealed all at once, it would be easier than being revealed in separated verses. One of the wonders of the Quran is that he peace and blessings be upon him was able to repeat the recitation of a whole chapter dictated to him, while no one of us can repeat his verbatim words after talking for five minutes, for instance. Thus, Allah Glorified is He reassures him peace and blessings be upon him that he will not forget anything from the Quran. He should wait until the recitation of the verse ends, and then he can repeat it without missing one letter.

He the Almighty says: ‘We shall make sure of its safe collection and recitation. [17] When We have recited it, repeat the recitation.’ (al-Qiyama: 17-18) He the Almighty causes the Quran to be collected in Prophet Muhammad's chest that he forgets nothing from it. Afterwards, he peace and blessings be upon him should apply its commands and prohibitions. He should listen first and then recite it as Gabriel dictated to him. Then, it is upon Him Glorified is He to clarify, explain and interpret it. It is as if He the Almighty says: ‘After you, Prophet Muhammad, memorise and recite it as We have taught you, We will explain and clarify its meaning and interpretation. We will illustrate the lawful and the unlawful that the Quran contains.’

He Glorified is He addresses Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him in another verse, saying: ‘We have revealed to you the Reminder that you may make clear to men what has been revealed to them...’ (an-Nahl: 44). Thus, He Glorified is He has clarified the Quran to him peace and blessings be upon him and he, in his turn, clarified it to the people. So, it is upon Him the Almighty to make clear what is lawful and unlawful and to illustrate the Quranic injunctions and rulings. The Arabic word 'Alayna (upon us) gives the indication that He Glorified is He has obliged Himself to collect the Quran in Prophet Muhammad's chest and to clarify its general rulings, be they obligatory acts, norms or Islamic Pillars.

Subsequently, He Glorified is He says:

كَلَّا بَلْ تُحِبُّونَ ٱلْعَاجِلَةَ ﴿٢٠﴾ وَتَذَرُونَ ٱلْآخِرَةَ ﴿٢١﴾

Truly you [people] love this fleeting world [20] and neglect the life to come [21]
(The Quran, al-Qiyama: 20 - 21)

The people love the fleeting worldly life, a fact which is crystal clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘If anyone desires [only] the fleeting life, We speed up whatever We will in it, for whoever We wish; in the end We have prepared hell for him in which to burn, disgraced and rejected.’ (al-Isra’: 18)

And if '…anyone strives for the rewards of this world, We will give him some of them. If anyone strives for the rewards of the Hereafter, We will give him some of them: We will reward the grateful.' (Al-'Imran: 145) Thus, the one who wants the rewards of this worldly life gets the reward of his/her work even if s/he is a disbeliever. The disbelievers take the rewards of the fleeting worldly life, while the believers receive the endless reward of the Hereafter.

The reward of the fleeting world is its bounties, pleasures, gratifications, luxury and prosperity. So whoever wants the reward of this fleeting world, Allah Glorified is He will give him/her such pleasures. They love the fleeting world, as Allah Glorified is He says: 'Do you [Believers] prefer this world to the life to come?' (at-Tawba: 38) and 'Those who love this world's life more than the Hereafter...' (Ibrahim: 3). The Arabic word Istahabba (preferred) means that their love for the worldly life transcended the natural limit. However, if someone loves it because it helps him/her to achieve the religious duties and to get the reward of the Hereafter, this will benefit him/her in the Hereafter. This is a pursuit of the worldly life for the sake of the Hereafter.

In the verse under discussion, we do not find those who love the worldly life for the sake of the Hereafter; rather, we find those who prefer the worldly life to the Hereafter. They hasten to achieve the worldly pleasures by every possible way, even if it is unlawful. They turn others from Allah's Way and do not adhere to it, mistakenly thinking that there is no accountability in the Hereafter. For this reason, they neglect the Hereafter; they do not believe in its truth and thus abandon working for its sake. Instead, they, as most of the people do, prefer the worldly life to the Hereafter. This verse addresses the disbelievers for they were working for the sake of the worldly life and not for the Hereafter. Their violent love for the fleeting worldly life stimulated them to deny the Day of Resurrection and disbelieve in what Allah Glorified is He has revealed to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. They are going astray in this worldly life and are distracted from the Hereafter.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says:

وُجُوهٌ يَوْمَئِذٍ نَّاضِرَةٌ ﴿٢٢﴾ إِلَىٰ رَبِّهَا نَاظِرَةٌ ﴿٢٣﴾

On that Day there will be radiant faces [22]
looking towards their Lord [23]

The Arabic word Al-Nadara means beauty, whiteness and radiance. On the Day of Judgment, the believers' faces will be as bright as light. Their faces will be beautiful and manifest their happiness due to the pleasure they enjoy in the Hereafter. This word also means smoothness and exultation. Thus, Allah Glorified is He describes their faces as radiant with happiness out of what He has bestowed on them, as He the Almighty says: ‘You will recognize on their faces the radiance of bliss.’ (al-Mutaffifin: 24) In this regard, Al-Suddi said, ‘When the people of the paradise are admitted to it, they will find a tree by its door. The trunk of the tree is two fountains. When they drink from one of them, the hatred will be taken away from their chests; this is the Pure Drink. When they bathe by the other fountain, the radiance of bliss will appear on their faces so they will never become ugly.’(1) Thus, the radiance of the bliss will be on their skins and they will enjoy various kinds of pleasure.

With these radiant faces, they will look towards their Lord Who has bestowed His Blessings on them, as He the Almighty says: ‘On that Day there will be radiant faces, [22] looking towards their Lord. [23]’ (al-Qiyama: 22-23) The measures on the Day of Resurrection are different from that we have in this worldly life. In this life, your laws and body cannot make it possible for you to see Allah Glorified is He. In the Hereafter, however, your constitution and body will make it possible for you to see Him Glorified is He. This is the utmost bliss in the Hereafter. In this worldly life, you live with Allah's Omnipotence, but in the Hereafter, the believers will lead the life of the one who looks towards Him Glorified is He.

The believer will enjoy the greatest pleasure of Allah Glorified is He that is, seeing his/her Lord. Al-Hasan Al-Basri said, ‘Allah will beautify the faces that look at Him. These faces must become radiant while they are looking to their Lord Glorified is He.'(1) This is the greatest Pleasure that He Glorified is He bestows on them. However, the believers' sight cannot encompass Him because He is the Greatest Who encompasses them, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: 'No vision can take Him in, but He takes in all vision. He is the All Subtle, the All Aware.' (al-An'am: 103) Besides, Prophet Muhammad said, 'You will see your Lord with your eyes as you see the moon.'(2)

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says:

وَوُجُوهٌ يَوْمَئِذٍ بَاسِرَةٌ ﴿٢٤﴾ تَظُنُّ أَن يُفْعَلَ بِهَا فَاقِرَةٌ ﴿٢٥﴾

And on that Day there will be the sad and despairing faces [24] of those who realize that a great calamity is about to befall them [25] (The Quran, al-Qiyama: 24 - 25)

While the faces of the believers will be radiant and smooth, expressing the bliss of the paradise, the disbelievers' faces will be frown, sad and black. They are devoid of any trace of bliss or happiness. Allah Glorified is He says in another verse about Al-Walid ibn Al-Mughira: 'and frowned and scowled.' (al-Muddaththir: 22) The verb Basara means that his face frowned and scowled for the concerns he has. Therefore, the disbelievers' faces will be frowned, despairing, dark and dust-stained as stated in His words: 'but some faces will be dust-stained [40] and covered in darkness: [41] those are the disbelievers, the licentious. [42]' ('Abasa: 40-42) So, their faces will be dust-stained and covered in darkness. The Arabic word Al-Qatar is the air full with the smoke of roasted meat. A good smell may waft from it, but it blackens the colour of the one who exposes him/herself to it.

Then Allah the Almighty says: 'Those who realize that a great calamity is about to befall them.' (al-Qiyama: 25) At that time, the disbelievers will have certitude that a great punishment will befall them. As for the Arabic word

(1) See Mujahid ibn Jabr, Tafsir, 687; Al-Tabari, Jame' Al-Bayan, 34/72; and Al-Baghawi, Tafsir, 8/284.

(2) This Hadith is narrated on the authority of Jarir ibn 'Abdullah Al-Bajli. See Al-Humaydi, Musnad, Hadith no. 817; Ahmad, Musnad, Hadith no. 19190; Ibn Maja, Sunnan, Hadith no. 177; and Abu 'Uwana, Mustakhraj, Hadith no. 1112.

Al-Faqira, it refers to the great calamity and the serious matter. It is said that it refers to entering the fire, or it means that their faces will not see Allah Glorified is He. Other exegetes interpreted it as the kinds of punishments they will suffer in the fire. Al-Kalbi said, 'Al-Faqira is that the faces will be prevented from seeing their Lord and will not look at Him.'(1)

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says:

كَلَّآ إِذَا بَلَغَتِ ٱلتَّرَاقِىَ ﴿٢٦﴾ وَقِيلَ مَنْۜ رَاقٍ ﴿٢٧﴾ وَظَنَّ أَنَّهُ ٱلْفِرَاقُ ﴿٢٨﴾

Truly, when the soul reaches the collarbone [26]
when it is said, 'Could any charm-healer save him now?' [27] when he knows it is the final parting [28]
(The Quran, al-Qiyama: 26 - 28)

The Arabic word Al-Taraqi refers to the bones between the air gap of the collar and the neck wherein the sound is produced. These verses refer to the state when the Spirit comes up to the throat. The veins of the neck are also called At-Taraqi. So, reaching Al-Taraqi is the time when the soul reaches the collarbone which is at the front of the throat above the chest. The soul ascends to it at the time when the death rattle happens. The Spirit of the human being is taken from the feet's toes, then from the ankles, then the two legs and thereupon the shins cool down after the Spirit goes through them up to the thighs and then up to the collarbone. Thereupon, death rattle is heard and it only takes moments until s/he dies. The sight will follow the Spirit after its departure.

Meanwhile, the dying person's family members are around him. They will mistakenly think they can save his/her life and say to each other, 'Could any charm-healer save him now?' (al-Qiyama: 29) Some will say, 'Call a physician to treat him/her and save him/her from what befell him/her.' They called for the healers, but they can do nothing for him/her against Allah's Decree. It is said that the Angels who witness the death of someone say to each other, 'Who will ascend with his/her Spirit when it comes out?' Then, either the Angels of mercy or punishment ascends with it.

(1) Al-Sa'ib, like Al-Kalbi, said that the word Faqira means that the faces of the disbelievers will be prevented from seeing their Lord. See Ar-Razi, Mafatih Al-Ghaib, 30/733.

Allah the Almighty then says: ‘When he knows it is the final parting.’ (al-Qiyama: 28) The dying person knows for sure that it is the time of his/her departure when s/he leaves his/her children, friends and those who love him/her. Further, s/he leaves what s/he has earned in his/her worldly life, be it money or real estate. At this point, death is certain. Death entails leaving the worldly life, the property, the family and the children.

When s/he becomes certain that inevitably s/he will leave the worldly life and die, the doctor can do nothing for him/her. At that time, s/he despairs of the worldly life and its people; s/he is about to depart from this life and to pay farewell to his family and friends. Afterwards, s/he moves to the world of graves. S/he leaves everything s/he kept in his/her worldly life, including his/her position, prestigious life, car, spouse, children, family and beloved ones. In other words, s/he will leave the worldly life and all what it has. It is the moment of departure when the human being's life and story on earth, with all its events, end. It is a moment in which the eyes of the true lovers shed tears for the one who suffers the agony of death. On the contrary, it is a moment when his/her enemies, who dislike him/her and wish him/her death, are happy.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says:

وَٱلۡتَفَّتِ ٱلسَّاقُ بِٱلسَّاقِ ﴿٢٩﴾ إِلَىٰ رَبِّكَ يَوۡمَئِذٍ ٱلۡمَسَاقُ ﴿٣٠﴾

When his legs are brought together [29] on that day he will be driven towards your Lord [30]
(The Quran, al-Qiyama: 29 - 30)

The one who ponders over these verses and thinks about this moment of death finds that this human being leaves the worldly life with all what it has to go to another life where s/he does not know what will happen to him/her. The person performing the ritual bathing to the dead person turns him/her to the right or the left. In order to avoid the falling of the dead person's legs, s/he puts the right leg over the left and brings the two legs together. Some interpreted this verse to refer to the state when the hardship of the death comes together with that of the Hereafter, as the day of one's death is the last day in his/her worldly life and the first in the Hereafter. It is said, ‘No person dies except that his/her legs are brought together because of the hardship of the death s/he is suffering from.’ Thus, the hardships and the agony of the death are combined with that of the Day of Judgment. S/he moves from the calamity of death into another one in the Hereafter if s/he was not an obedient believer in Allah Glorified is He. Expressing the difficulty of something, the Arab people used the idiom 'Ala Saq which is used in the verse under discussion. Similarly, ‘to express the difficulty of the war’, the Arabs said, ‘The war among us was fierce.’ The hardship of departing the worldly life itself is compounded with the hardship of leaving the household, the children, the property and the position. When someone dies, his/her legs become rigid and stick to each other.

Allah the Almighty then says: ‘On that day he will be driven towards your Lord.’ (al-Qiyama: 30) On the Day of Judgment, the slaves will return to Allah Glorified is He and will be driven towards Him in order that He judges between them. So, no one should think that s/he will return to anyone else. The Angels will drive his/her spirit to where He Glorified is He has ordered them, either to the paradise or the hellfire. When you find the Arabic word Yawma'idhin (On that day), you should know that there is an ellipsis which is more than one sentence; it is: when the Day of Judgment comes, they will be driven to their destination.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says:

فَلَا صَدَّقَ وَلَا صَلَّىٰ ﴿٣١﴾ وَلَٰكِن كَذَّبَ وَتَوَلَّىٰ ﴿٣٢﴾ ثُمَّ ذَهَبَ إِلَىٰٓ أَهْلِهِۦ يَتَمَطَّىٰٓ ﴿٣٣﴾

He neither believed nor prayed [31] but denied the truth and turned away [32] walking back to his people with a conceited swagger [33]
(The Quran, al-Qiyama: 31- 33)

Some people of Quraysh did not believe in Allah Glorified is He, but rather rejected the Faith and denied Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. This is what the leaders of the tribes of Quraysh, like Abu Jahl, Abu Lahb and Al-Walid ibn Al-Mughira, had done. Accordingly, the exegetes maintained that this verse refers to Abu Jahl and other disbelieving leaders of Quraysh. These scholars said, ‘Abu Jahl neither believed in the Quran nor prayed to Allah Glorified is He. He believed neither in what has come from Allah nor in the truthfulness of Messenger Muhammad.'(1)

However, neither Abu Jahl nor Al-Walid is meant by this verse, but rather the human beings in general, as the beginning of the chapter confirms: 'Does man think We shall not put his bones back together?' (al-Qiyama: 3) Thus, the word 'man' here is a generic, used to refer to all people. Such people did not believe in Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him the Quran or the Resurrection. Further, they did not pray but rather denied the truth and turned away from obedience.

The Arabic word Saddaq (to believe) can mean Tasadaqa (To give alms) which is the root of sadaqa (charity). So the meaning could be that such people did not give alms to the poor and did not feed the needy. They did not worship Allah Glorified is He by doing any good deed, but rather denied the Resurrection, the Quran and Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him. Further, they turned away from them.

Afterwards, He the Almighty says: 'Walking back to his people with a conceited swagger.' (al-Qiyama: 33) Such a disbeliever walked back to his/her people with a conceited swagger and strut. In this regard, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said: 'The hostility would provoke between my ummah if they walked with strut and served the children of the Persian and the Romans.'

Thus, after his/her denial, s/he turned away and walked with a swagger, strut and arrogance. The Arabic word Yatamatta means stretching the back; the word Al-Matiyya refers to the camels which can be ridden upon. This word wonderfully indicates the relation between the sound of the letters and the image that Allah Glorified is He wants to portray. We can imagine the image of the one who stretches his/her muscles by considering the strength of the letter Ta' followed by letter Alif with its long sound. It exemplifies the stretching of the limbs with swagger and strut.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says:

أَوْلَىٰ لَكَ فَأَوْلَىٰ ﴿٣٤﴾ ثُمَّ أَوْلَىٰ لَكَ فَأَوْلَىٰ ﴿٣٥﴾

Closer and closer it comes to you [34] Closer and closer still [35] (The Quran, al-Qiyama: 34 - 35)

The cause of the revelation of this verse is that Abu Jahl threatened to kill Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him saying, ‘Go away from me, for neither you nor your Lord can do anything to do. The people of Quraysh know that I am the most honourable and respected person. So how can you threaten me, Ibn Abu Kabsha, [Prophet Muhammad]?’ Afterwards, Abu Jahl went to his home and Allah Glorified is He has referred to this incident, saying: ‘He walked back to his people with a conceited swagger. [33] Closer and closer it comes to you. [34] Closer and closer still. [35]’ (al-Ahzab: 33-35) Thereupon, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him seized him by the throat and hit him on his chest and said, ‘Closer and closer it comes to you; Closer and closer still.’ This statement is said to the one who is about to be inflicted with a calamity or has already been inflicted with it. Subsequently, Abu Jahl said, ‘How can Muhammad threaten me even though no one living between the two mountains of Mecca is more honourable and respected than me?!' Accordingly, He Glorified is He revealed His saying: ‘Taste this, you powerful, respected man!’ (ad-Dukhan: 49)

Someone may ask, ‘Why does Allah Glorified is He repeat the verse: “Closer and closer it comes?” (al-Qiyama: 34)’ The answer is that the punishment could be twice; one in the worldly life by getting killed and cursed and the other when he dies. There will be a punishment for him when he is resurrected and when he enters the hellfire. For this reason, Allah Glorified is He uses the cohesive tie thumma (Then) to indicate that there is a long period between the two punishments. The Arabic particle Fa', on the contrary, indicates that the second action shortly follows the first. An example for the usage of the cohesive tie thumma (Then) is found in the saying of Allah Glorified is He: ‘Even if they come out to fight you, they will soon turn tail; then they will get no help.’ (Al-‘Imran: 111) When we look closely to the literal understanding of this verse, someone may think that it should be formed in a different way; that is to say that after they turn tail, they will get no help. If the particle Al-Fa' were used, this would indicate that they will not defeat the Muslims at the early time of the Message. But using the cohesive tie thumma in the verse means that they will not defeat the believers even if they prepared an army once again after a while for another battle. Thus, the particle thumma, unlike Al-Fa', is used to connect two actions separated by a long period of time. An illustrative example for Al-Fa' is the saying of Allah: ‘Then He causes him to die and be buried.’ (’Abasa: 21) Thus, if there is a long period between the two actions, the particle thumma is used, but if the second action shortly takes place after the first, the particle Fa' is used. Thus, Abu Jahl will suffer two punishments, one in this worldly life and another in the Hereafter.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says:

أَيَحْسَبُ ٱلْإِنسَٰنُ أَن يُتْرَكَ سُدًى ﴿٣٦﴾

Does man think he will be left alone? [36]
(The Quran, al-Qiyama: 36)

Does this disbelieving person think that Allah Glorified is He has created him/her in vain, and will leave him/her without holding him/her accountable and punishing him/her?! Indeed, every action the human being does in this worldly life is recorded and s/he will be held accountable for it on the Day of Judgment. Thus, no one should think that s/he will escape from Allah the Almighty, or His punishment in the Hereafter. No one should mistakenly think s/he will be left alone, for He the Almighty says: ‘Did you think We have created you in vain, and that you would not be brought back to Us?’ (al-Mu’minun: 115)

Had Allah the Almighty left us without any account, the deviant people who availed themselves of the gratifications of this worldly life would be more fortunate than those who adhered to the Straight Path. Everything is created for a purpose, not in vain. The Arabic word Al-'Abath (Vain) is the purposeless and fruitless action; people say to the one who is doing something fruitless, ‘What are you doing?' The opposite of the Arabic word Al-'Abath (vain) is purposefulness. Thus, He the Almighty negates the purposelessness of creation because He has created the creatures for a planned objective, and laid down for them the Law they should follow to reach that objective. No one other than the Creator should set that Law. Thus, He Glorified is He has not created the human being to be left alone without being commanded, prohibited, assigned with religious obligations in this worldly life, and held accountable in the Hereafter. Some scholars interpreted this verse, saying, 'Does the human being think that s/he will be left in his/her grave forever and will not be resurrected?' No one thinks so except the disbeliever who does not believe in the Resurrection after death, the Account, the Reward, the Paradise and the Hellfire.'

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says:

أَلَمْ يَكُ نُطْفَةً مِّن مَّنِيٍّ يُمْنَىٰ ﴿٣٧﴾ ثُمَّ كَانَ عَلَقَةً فَخَلَقَ فَسَوَّىٰ ﴿٣٨﴾
فَجَعَلَ مِنْهُ ٱلزَّوْجَيْنِ ٱلذَّكَرَ وَٱلْأُنثَىٰٓ ﴿٣٩﴾

Was he not just a drop of spilt-out sperm [37] which became a clinging form, which God shaped in due proportion [38]
fashioning from it the two sexes, male and female? [39]
(The Quran, al-Qiyama: 37 - 39)

The Arabic word An-Nutfa (sperm-drop) originally means the drop of sweet water and the quintessence of something. The process of burning and destructive metabolism happens continuously in the body, leading to the discharge of wastes. Thus, the urine, the excrement, the sweat, the tears and the wax of the ears are the wastes caused by the burning of the food inside the body so that it can extract its nourishment and turn it into the blood. Out of this extraction, the sperm-drop, by which the pregnancy happens and the fetus is formed, is taken. It is as if Allah the Almighty has clarified and purified the sperm because it will be the essence of the most honourable creature, the human being. He the Almighty has created Adam from clay and made his descendants from the sperm he placed in Eve. In this way, all the human beings were produced. It is as though everyone of us has an iota from his/her greatest father, Adam. This iota is in the sperm which descended to the person through his/her father and it is the purest thing that lies in the man.

The sperm, lying in the semen, is the essence of man's creation, and that is why He the Almighty says: 'Was he not just a drop of spilt-out sperm?' (al-Qiyama: 37) An-Nutfa is the sperm which joins the female ovum in the womb to produce the Al-'Alaqa (the clinging form). As a matter of fact, one drop of the man's semen may contain enough sperms to create millions of people. The eye cannot see one sperm due to its extreme subtlety. Allah Glorified is He wills that only the strongest sperm joins the ovum to emphasize the fact that the most suitable shall remain. Thus, if the sperm carries the genetic qualities of a female, the fetus will be a female. Similarly, if the genetic qualities are that of a male, the foetus will be a male. The scientists call the sperm the XXY. The sperm of the man carries the qualities of both the male and the female. In another verse, He the Almighty describes the sperm as a spurting fluid: ‘Man should reflect on what he was created from. [5] He is created from spurting fluid, [6] then he emerges from between the backbone and breastbone.’ (at-Tariq: 5-7)

Was this denier of Allah's Omnipotence to resurrect the dead not a drop of sperm in a man's backbone?! S/he was just an underrated sperm that the man puts in his wife’s vulva, such as the water that he discharges when he urinates. In this regard, Allah the Almighty describes the sperm as: ‘Underrated fluid.’ (al-Mursalat: 20) Despite that, the human being, honoured by Allah, is brought to existence by it. Creating the human being from the sperm spurted in the woman's womb indicates his/her lower status as s/he was created from the impure sperm discharged from the same source of the urine. Thus, it is not proper for him/her to rebel against obedience to Allah the Almighty.

Allah Glorified is He then says: ‘Which became a clinging form, which Allah shaped in due proportion.’ (al-Qiyama: 38) The very Arabic word Al-'Alaqa (clinging form) indicates its mission which is to cling to the uterine wall as modern science has confirmed. He Glorified is He also says: ‘…We made the clot a lump of flesh, then We made (in) the lump of flesh bones…’ (al-Mu’minun: 14). The scientists say that the sperm turns into a clinging form after forty days. They call this clinging form ‘zaygote’ which refers to the fertilized ovum that starts to take its nourishment from it.

Allah Glorified is He says: ‘…which Allah shaped in due proportion.’ (al-Qiyama: 38) This means that He Glorified is He has created, shaped and proportioned the human being. Then He has blown the Spirit into him/her, perfected his/her limbs and made him/her able to listen, see and speak. He the Almighty also made him/her symmetric and upright. Thus, He the Almighty made him/her a human being who can walk, move, speak, hear, see and think after s/he was just a fluid in his/her father and mother, and then became a clinging form that sticks to the uterine wall, and then s/he became a piece of flesh. Afterwards, He Glorified is He shaped his/her limbs in his/her mother's womb and brought him/her into life.

Allah Glorified is He then says that He fashions from the sperm the two sexes, male and female. Al-Zawjayn here means the two sexes, as the woman can bear a male or a female only, two males and one female, two females and one male or other than that according to Allah's Decree.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says:

أَلَيۡسَ ذَٰلِكَ بِقَٰدِرٍ عَلَىٰٓ أَن يُحۡـِۧيَ ٱلۡمَوۡتَىٰ ﴿٤٠﴾

Does He who can do this not have the power to bring the dead back to life? [40]
(The Quran, al-Qiyama: 40)

This chapter is called al-Qiyama (The Resurrection) and it revolves around proving the Resurrection and the Judgment Day. It started with: ‘By the Day of Resurrection [1] and by the self-reproaching soul! [2] Does man think We shall not put his bones back together? [3]’ (al-Muddaththir: 1-3)

Then, Allah the Almighty mentions the events of the Day of Judgment: ‘When eyes are dazzled and the moon eclipsed, when the sun and the moon are brought together.’ (al-Muddaththir: 7-9) Then the chapter clarifies that the one who neither believed nor prayed will inevitably die, as He the Almighty says: ‘Truly, when the soul reaches the collarbone; when it is said, ‘Could any charm-healer save him now?’ When he knows it is the final parting, when his legs are brought together.’ (al-Muddaththir: 26-29)

Further, this chapter tells us that the human being should beware of thinking that Allah Glorified is He has created him/her in vain and that He will leave him/her alone without commanding, prohibiting, rewarding or punishing?. Then it directs our attention to the fact that the human being was only a sperm that one's father placed in his/her mother's womb, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: ‘Was he not just a drop of spilt-out sperm which became a clinging form, which Allah shaped in due proportion, fashioning from it the two sexes, male and female?' (al-Muddaththir: 37-39) For this reason, one should not disdain the command of his/her Lord. Then He the Almighty concludes the chapter, saying: 'Does He who can do this not have the power to bring the dead back to life?' (al-Muddaththir: 40)

Those who deny the Resurrection said: 'What? When we have disappeared into the earth, shall we really be created anew?' (as-Sajda: 10) They do not believe that the One Who formed them in the first time is fully able to bring them back. For this reason, Allah the Almighty says: 'Does He Who can do this not have the power to bring the dead back to life?' (al-Muddaththir: 40).

al-Insan

In the Name of God, the Most Merciful, the Dispenser of Mercy

The chapter of al-Insan (1).

Allah Glorified is He says:

هَلۡ أَتَىٰ عَلَى ٱلۡإِنسَٰنِ حِينٞ مِّنَ ٱلدَّهۡرِ لَمۡ يَكُن شَيۡـٔٗا مَّذۡكُورًا ١

Was there not a period of time when man was nothing to speak of? [1] (The Quran, al-Insan: 1)

Allah the Almighty has created the universe, its worlds and all what it contains. He mentions in detail all these worlds, as He Glorified is He says: ‘We have missed nothing out of the Book.’ (al-An‘am: 38) As He the Almighty mentions the man in this chapter and even names it al-Insan (man), He mentions the jinn in another chapter and calls it al-Jinn (Jinn). Further, He Glorified is He mentions the Angels in the chapter of Fatir wherein He the Almighty says: ‘Praise be to Allah, Creator of the heavens and earth, who made angels messengers with two, three, four [pairs of] wings. He adds to creation as He wills: Allah has power over everything.’ (Fatir: 1)

As He the Almighty mentions these three worlds – mankind, the jinn and the angels– He mentions what is in the universe wherein the human being lives, including the earth, the heaven, the mountains and the rivers. For example, He the Almighty mentions the sun, the moon and the stars and dedicated complete chapters to speak about, ash-Shams (The sun), al-Qamar (The moon) and an-Najm (The star), respectively.

(1) The chapter of al-Insan is called Ad-Dahr (Time) for it is mentioned in this chapter: ‘Was there not a period of time when man was nothing to speak of?' (al-Qiyama: 1) Some scholars held that it was revealed in Mecca (i.e. before Hijra), while others maintained it was revealed in Medina (after Hijra). The number of its verses is 31. It was also called the chapter of Hal Ata. In his A‘lam Ad-Din, As-Sakhawi said that there are no abrogated verses in it; it was revealed after the chapter of al-Qiyama and before that of al-Mursalat. See As-Sakhawi, Jamal Al-Qurra' Wa Kamal Al-'Ighra', 1/492.

He Glorified is He dedicated a complete chapter to speak about man, to give us an account about him/her from his/her origin and beginning up to his/her ultimate destination. This chapter tells us about that creature whom He Glorified is He has created to be His Vicegerent on earth and whom He has placed in a universe prepared for him/her. He the Almighty had prepared for the human beings the requirements of life even before the creation of Adam, the first man ever; He had prepared for them the earth, the heaven, the water, the air, and the provisions hidden and stored in the earth that never end until the Day of Judgment. He Glorified is He has created these blessings, and then the human being came to a perfectly and completely prepared universe which has all the requirements for his/her living and continuation.

In this vein, there is no distinction between the believer and the disbeliever because the latter exactly as the former is created by Allah Glorified is He; He Glorified is He has brought him/her to the world after preparing their places therein. Thus, before the creation of the human being, He Glorified is He had prepared for him/her the universe wherein s/he will live. He the Almighty has prepared the earth, the sun, the moon, the heaven, the planets and the stars, and then the human being came to the universe to find everything prepared and subjected to serve him/her. That is why you will find no species that refuse to serve the human being. The land, for example, does not refuse to grow crops if it was farmed, nor do the animals refuse to serve man.

Allah Glorified is He has created the heavens and earth for us and decreed the provisions before creating us. If you reflect on your creation, you find that the macrocosm is reduced in you, as He Glorified is He says: ‘And in yourselves too, do you not see?’ (adh-Dhariyat: 21) One should ponder on his/her life as a fetus in the womb of his/her mother wherein He the Almighty has prepared his/her special life for him/her. He the Almighty has prepared for him/her the umbilical cord which supports him/her with nourishment from the sustenance that his/her mother eats and thus turns into blood full of all the required nutritional elements. During that time, the fetus is not in need to seek provision or to chew and swallow the food; rather, it receives its nourishment through the umbilical cord.

Even after it comes into existence, a new world, which Allah the Almighty has prepared for it, receives it with happiness. Therefore, He Glorified is He has brought the human being to the earth which He has prepared before man's getting down to it. He the Almighty has prepared rivers of sweat water sprung out from beneath the mountains and the valleys where the human beings live. Also, He the Almighty has prepared fruits and crops and taught him/her how to make use of what surrounds him/her.

Further, Allah Glorified is He has created things which benefit the human being without being subjected to him/her. These Blessings are provided by Allah Glorified is He for him/her effortlessly. One of His Blessings for which He the Almighty should be praised is that He Glorified is He had bestowed His Blessings on the human being before his/her existence, given that these blessings were already existent when the human being was created. Before the creation of Adam, the father of all the humans, the paradise was already created, so he lived therein without tiredness or misery. He found what he eats, drinks, enjoys and keeps his life already existent and prepared before him. Afterwards, when Adam and Eve got down to the earth, the blessings preceded them, so they found what they eat, drink and keep their lives. If the blessings had not preceded man's existence and were created after him, he would have perished while waiting for their coming.

Thus, the universe existed before man's existence, when he was nothing to speak of. For this reason, Allah Glorified is He asks a question while knowing that neither the believer nor the disbeliever can answer except in the affirmative form. Yes, there was a period of time when the human being was nothing to speak of. Allah Glorified is He does not only say: ‘Was there not a period of time when man was nothing?’ (al-Insan: 1) but rather adds: ‘…nothing to speak of?’ (al-Insan: 1) This is because the human being was something, yet a valueless thing; he was a mixture of dust and water. Although He Glorified is He has created the first man, Adam, from water and dust which turned into clay, He has created his descendants from underrated fluid, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: ‘He has begun the creation of man from clay.’ (as-Sajda: 6) Afterwards, He the Almighty brought Adam's descendants into being through reproduction and multiplication. For this reason, He Glorified is He says: ‘Then He made his progeny of an extract of water held in light estimation.’ (as-Sajda: 8) Thus, Allah Glorified is He has created the human from clay; then He Glorified is He prescribed marriage for the reproduction of the man and the woman.

Allah Glorified is He has created Adam from the best elements and kinds of clay which are the quintessence of mud. If you hold a handful of mud and pressed it with your fingers, the quintessence, which is the best kind of clay, escapes and only the remnants of sand and rough objects remain. Allah Glorified is He created man's descendants from the sperm of the man and the ovum of the woman, which later forms the clinging form. This sperm is the underrated fluid that the man spurts from his sexual organ into that of his wife. So how can a man created by such process be arrogant?!

Some scholars maintain that the word ‘man’ in the verse in question refers to Adam peace be upon him. Accordingly, the verse in question means that a period of time has come when Adam was nothing spoken of. This period was forty years when he was in the form of clay. Anas ibn Malik narrated that Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, ‘When Allah fashioned Adam in paradise, He left him for a period of time He determined. Then Satan kept roaming round and looking at him. When he found him hollow from within, he recognized that he can easily be seduced.' Some scholars narrated that Adam remained as mud for forty years and then remained as altered clay for another forty years and then became clay like that used for pottery for another forty years. Thus, He has completed his creation in one hundred and twenty years. He remained during that period as a creature that was unspoken of, that is, his name and purpose were unknown. Only Allah Glorified is He knows the purpose of the human being's creation.

The Arabic word Al-Dahr (The long period of time) attracts our attention and indicates that Adam remained as clay for a long time that can really reach one hundred and twenty years. One of the names of this chapter is Al-Dahr (Time) and also Hal Ata. Adam was not something spoken of either in the heavens or the earth. He was thrown out clay before blowing the Spirit into him.

Subsequently, Allah Glorified is He says:

إِنَّا خَلَقْنَا ٱلْإِنسَٰنَ مِن نُّطْفَةٍ أَمْشَاجٍ نَّبْتَلِيهِ فَجَعَلْنَٰهُ سَمِيعًۢا بَصِيرًا ٢

We created man from a drop of mingled fluid to put him to the test; We gave him hearing and sight [2]
(The Quran, al-Insan: 2)

When Allah the Almighty takes about an action that needs all His Prefect Attributes, He uses the pronoun ‘We’. So, when He the Almighty uses the pronoun ‘We’ concerning any action He has done, we should understand that this action was not undertaken by only His Power, Knowledge, Wisdom or Mercy; rather, such Action is undertaken with all His Perfect Attributes. The use of the pronoun ‘We’ attracts our attention to this fact to clarify the perfectness of His Attributes, as the person may be powerful but lacks knowledge or vice versa. Also, someone may be knowledgeable but lacks the attribute of wisdom. Thus, the integration of the attributes is required. Every Action done by Allah Glorified is He entails a set of Attributes: the Knowledge, the Will, the Power, the Wisdom, Withholding, Giving, Honoring, Humiliating, Subjecting and Mercy. Here, He the Almighty glorifies Himself because He brought the universe into existence and sustains it, which required a set of Perfect Attributes. For this reason, He Glorified is He uses the pronoun ‘We’.

Allah the Almighty has created the human beings, who are the descendants of Adam, from a drop of the male's semen which is combined with that of the female in the womb of the female. Man's sperm is thick and white as they form the muscles, bones and power. The water of the woman, however, is fine and yellow and forms the flesh, the blood, the hair and nails. Both of the two fluids are combined together. Some maintained that the word Amshaj are the veins which exist within the sperm. Al-Mashj also means mixing the two fluids of the man and woman to form the clinging form.

Allah the Almighty has created the human from a sperm which is the mixture of the semen of the man and the woman in order to test and examine him/her afterwards when s/he attains puberty. 'Amshaj may refer to the formation of the fetus from the semen of the male and the ovum of the female after fertilization. It may also refer to the genes that lie in the sperm which carry the distinguishing characteristic of the human species in general and the genetic characteristics of the family of the fetus in particular. These mixed genetic characteristics are what make the human being distinguished in his/her conduct, behavior and way of thinking. His/her reaction gathers between the sadness and happiness, laughing and crying, and sanity and insanity.

Although Allah the Almighty starts the chapter in question with focusing on a material matter, He then turns our attention to the spiritual side. He Glorified is He says: ‘Was there not a period of time when man was nothing to speak of.’ (al-Insan: 1) He begins with the material matter of creating the human being of a drop of mingled fluid; the fluids of the man and woman mingle to be a clinging form which follows certain stages until the human being is totally formed. Allah, however, says afterwards: ‘We created man from a drop of mingled fluid to put him to the test…' (al-Insan: 2). Thus, after discussing a materialistic matter related to the creation, He the Almighty draws our attention to a spiritual matter, that is, examination and testing. He the Almighty has not created the human being vainly, purposelessly or for amusement; rather, He brought him/her into existence to be put to test when s/he is prepared for it.

As Allah the Almighty puts him/her to test, He gives him/her the hearing and sight. Thus, the human is put to test after being given the means to perceive the material things. The most important of these perceptive means are hearing and seeing. He Glorified is He shows His Favour on the human being who was dust mixed with water and then became clay and remain in that state for a long time during which he was not something spoken of. He Glorified is He has bestowed His Favour on this new creature by giving him/her some of His Attributes: The Hearing and Seeing. Had not He Glorified is He willed to give him/her the hearing and sight, s/he would have remained deaf and blind clay, not perceiving anything around him/her. S/he would have been a valueless thing which never becomes valuable. By giving Adam the hearing and sight, He Glorified is He has taught him all the names and made him able to hear and see. Thus, Adam and Eve realized each other's existence and from them all the human beings came into existence. This is the story of the man who was nothing spoken of.

By using the hearing and sight, the information is acquired and stored in the human being's mind. His/her means of perceiving knowledge are the hearing, sight, tasting, touching and smelling. They give knowledge to the one who was ignorant, as Allah Glorified is He says: ‘It is Allah who has brought you out of your mothers’ wombs knowing nothing, and has given you hearing and sight and minds so that you might be thankful.’ (an-Nahl: 78) In fact, the ear, the eye and all the organs are means of perception. Everyone has numerous faculties, be they perceptive or psychical ones. The perceptive faculties are that which perceive the sensuous matters, like the hearing, sight, smelling and tasting. All of these are means for sensuous perception by which the abstract notions are formed to become, in their turn, creeds. The means of perception receive the pieces information given by the sensuous world and then store them in the mind of the human being so that s/he behaves accordingly. The perceived information constitutes what s/he knows.

Allah the Almighty has given the human being the hearing and the sight and has not left them to be guided or misguided, to believe or disbelieve, or to know his/her Lord or not, as He the Almighty says:

إِنَّا هَدَيْنَٰهُ ٱلسَّبِيلَ إِمَّا شَاكِرًا وَإِمَّا كَفُورًا ﴿٣﴾

We guided him to the right path, whether he was grateful or not [3] (The Quran, al-Insan: 3)

The Arabic word Al-Sabil means the way and path. The Straight Path of Allah Glorified is He is to worship Him Alone. He the Almighty guides the people to that Straight Path, saying: ‘This is My Path, leading straight, so follow it, and do not follow other ways: they will lead you away from it —‘This is what He commands you to do, so that you may refrain from wrongdoing.’ (al-An‘am: 153)

As long as there is a path for every aim, then we should define that aim first. Defining the aim leads to clarifying its path before the person who follows it, to reach his/her aim. The Path of Allah Glorified is He is the Straight One. Any curved path lengthens the distance for the person, as the straight line is the shortest one to reach the destination. The word ‘Way’ and ‘Path’ are sensuous objects which we see and perceive, and He Glorified is He uses them to clarify the abstract creeds. When there is a cross road and you want to reach a certain destination, but deviated by one millimeter from the beginning of the road, you will go far away from that destination; the more you walk, the wider the distance becomes. He Glorified is He has only one Way of Guidance and whoever deviates from it will be the loser as He the Almighty says about him/her: '…We shall leave him on his chosen path and burn him in Hell.' (an-Nisa': 115) For this reason, 'going astray' means to take a path that does not lead to the aim and takes you far away from it.

The Guidance in this verse means guiding the human being to the path leading to the paradise. It is not the guidance of support as Allah Glorified is He says afterwards: '…whether he was grateful or not...' (al-Insan: 3). He Glorified is He has bestowed His Blessings on the human being by creating them out of nothing and preparing the universe to receive them. He the Almighty also prepared the means of provision that are beyond our control. All of these blessings deserve out gratefulness and thankfulness. Out of His Mercy upon us, He Glorified is He has made thanking Him simply done by uttering two words: Al-Hamdu Lillah (All Praise be to Allah). Even teaching us this formula is one of the manifestations of His Mercy, for if He had not specified the formula of praising Him, it would have been difficult for the people to find a suitable formula to praise Him for His Divine Perfection. Even if some people are eloquent and have the ability of expression, they will not be able to find the formula of praising, which suits the Supremacy of the All Giver Who deserves to be praised for both His Giving and Depriving. Also, His Existence and His Entity deserve our praising. Expressing one's gratitude to Him Glorified is He takes away his/her conceit and thus s/he cannot be deluded by the worldly means. Moreover, the servant of Allah Glorified is He should thank Him for the Blessings of teaching him/her and putting him/her to trial.

The believers knew that Allah Glorified is He deserves their thankfulness for His Blessings. He Glorified is He links between thankfulness and belief, saying: 'Why should He make you suffer torment if you are thankful and believe in Him?' (an-Nisa': 147) So what is the relation between thankfulness and belief? To answer this question, we should know first what Thankfulness means. It signifies expressing gratitude to the Giver by the one who received His Blessings. It is to say to someone who has done you a favour, 'Thank you'. As for belief, it is to have certitude that He Glorified is He is One God. He the Almighty shows the human being the Straight Path, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: ‘We guided him to the right path, whether he was grateful or not.’ (al-Insan: 3) Thus, if the human being believes that He Glorified is He guides him/her to the Right Way, and so s/he believes in His Books and Messengers, then s/he has thanked Him Glorified is He for His Blessings. Thankfulness comes first and then belief follows as the former is a general gratefulness and the latter is a particular one. Thankfulness is relating to the blessings, while belief is relating to the Entity that gives the blessings. Thus, the human should believe in and thank the Giver of the Blessings.

If the people had understood that, they would have thanked the Prophets and Messengers for the Way of Guidance that they conveyed from Allah Glorified is He as it guides them to manage their worldly life perfectly and, more importantly, guides them to the paradise. Allah Glorified is He mentions disbelief as the opposite of Thankfulness, saying: ‘If you are thankful, I will give you more, but if you are thankless, My punishment is terrible indeed.’ (Ibrahim: 7) He Glorified is He wills to give the people the choice to thank Him or not; He has not coerced them to express gratitude to Him.

He the Almighty describes Prophet Nuh (Noah) peace be upon him saying: ‘…he was of the thankful servants.' (al-Isra’: 3) The Arabic word Shakur (Thankful) indicates hyperbola. Here, Allah Glorified is He does not use the word Shakir as it means thanking for only one time, but Shakur refers to the one who habitually and continuously thanks Him Glorified is He. As there are grateful people, there are also ungrateful ones. The Arabic word Kafur (ungrateful) also expresses hyperbola because such ungrateful people disbelieved and incited other people to disbelieve. Further, they always show ungratefulness.

Subsequently, Allah Glorified is He says:

إِنَّآ أَعۡتَدۡنَا لِلۡكَٰفِرِينَ سَلَٰسِلَاْ وَأَغۡلَٰلٗا وَسَعِيرًا ﴿٤﴾

We have prepared chains, iron collars, and blazing Fire for the disbelievers, but [4] (The Quran, al-Insan: 4)

Allah the Almighty has already prepared the paradise and it is already existent. Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said when he was talking about the paradise, ' The paradise was presented to me and I stretched my hand to pick some of its fruits.' So, it is already existent and is not under preparation. It is He the Almighty Who has prepared it with His Power and Omnipotence. In another verse, He the Almighty says: ‘We have prepared a Fire for the wrongdoers that will envelop them from all sides.’ (al-Kahf: 29) So, the matter has been previously settled as the Paradise and Hellfire are already prepared; they will be prepared in the future. This is the Preparation of the Omnipotent, Wise Lord. He has prepared the paradise to include all the believers and also prepared the hellfire to include all the disbelieving people. If some of the people believed and others disbelieved, the believers spared their room in the hellfire and the disbeliever spared their room in the paradise.

Allah the Almighty mentions some details about what He has prepared for the disbelievers, saying: ‘We have prepared chains, iron collars and blazing fire for the disbelievers.’ (al-Insan: 4) He Glorified is He clarifies here three means of punishing the disbelievers and the wrongdoers: the chains, iron collars and blazing fire. They will be tied up by chains in the hellfire and their hands will be tied to their necks. They will be driven to the hellfire with the chains in their hands and they will be tied up with iron collars.

The Arabic word As-Salasil (Chains) is the plural of Silsila which is a series of metal rings joined together. As for Al-Aghlal, it is the plural of Ghil which is the iron collar that brings the hands and the neck together to impede the movement. One side of the iron collar is tied to the hand and another one is tied to the neck to impede the movement of the hand as a kind of additional humiliation. As for Al-Asfad (fetters), it is the plural of Safad, as in Allah’s saying: ‘You [Prophet] will see the guilty on that Day, bound together in fetters.’ (Ibrahim: 49) It is the fetter that is put around the feet like the anklet. So, fetters will be put around their feet, and their hands and necks will be tied up with chains. Thus, the disbelievers will be punished by fetters, chains, shackles and iron collars in the blazing and burning Fire. As-Sa'eer is the name of the blazing fire that burns all what is thrown into it.

Afterwards, Allah the Almighty mentions the opposite of disbelievers who are the believers in Allah, His Books and Messengers. He Glorified is He describes them as the righteous and mentions what He has prepared for them, saying:

إِنَّ ٱلْأَبْرَارَ يَشْرَبُونَ مِن كَأْسٍ كَانَ مِزَاجُهَا كَافُورًا ٥

The righteous will have a drink mixed with kafur [5]
(The Quran, al-Insan: 5)

The righteous people are the opposite of the transgressors as Allah the Almighty says: ‘The good will live in bliss, [13] and the wicked will burn in the Fire. [14]’ (al-Infitar: 13-14) Just as Allah Glorified is He mentions the punishment of the wicked, He clarifies the happy destination and the reward of those who are pleased with their faith. Combining the two opposites increases the believer's happiness and the disbeliever's sorrow and grief. The righteous are the Prophets and the true believers who obey their Lord by doing the obligations and avoiding the prohibitions.

The reward of those righteous, pious believers is to have drinks mixed with Kafur, which is the name of a fountain in the paradise. In fact, paradise only shares the names of the things with the worldly life. Even if the fountain were really of camphor, it is not like the camphor of the worldly life; rather, it is a sweet one. The Arabic word Al-Ka's means a cup filled with a drink. Here, Allah Glorified is He mentions the cups and how it is filled with a drink mixed with Kafur without specifying the drink itself, as He says: ‘The righteous will have a drink mixed with kafur.’ (al-Insan: 5) Afterwards, He Glorified is He says: ‘And they will be given a drink infused with ginger.’ (al-Insan: 17) Every cup mentioned in the Quran is that of wine, but the wine in the paradise will not intoxicate the minds and has no bad effects like the wine of this worldly life, as He the Almighty says about it: ‘…a delight for those who drink it.’ (as-Saffat: 46) It will be sweet like Kafur or bitter like ginger. A container of a drink only called Ka's (cup) when it is filled otherwise it is called a glass or pitcher.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says:

عَيْنًا يَشْرَبُ بِهَا عِبَادُ ٱللَّهِ يُفَجِّرُونَهَا تَفْجِيرًا ﴿٦﴾

A spring for God's servants, which flows abundantly at their wish [6] (The Quran, al-Insan: 6)

Some scholars said that His saying: 'A spring for Allah's servants…' (al-Insan: 6) means that the righteous people drink from the spring of Kafur in the paradise. In the chapter of al-Mutaffifin, Allah the Almighty also says: 'A spring from which those brought near will drink.' (al-Mutaffifin: 28) There is secret in using the Arabic preposition Ba' (By) instead of Min (From) as Allah Glorified is He could have said that His servants drink from, not by, that spring. In the previous verse, He Glorified is He says that the righteous people drink from a cup, but when He mentions the spring, He says that they drink by it. This could mean that they drink the wine mixed with Kafur, whether its substance or fragrance. Some other scholars said that Ba' is added to the object pronoun so the meaning is that the servants of Allah Glorified is He will drink 'from' that spring.

Allah Glorified is He describes those who drink from that spring mixed with Kafur as His servants, saying: '…a spring for Allah's servants…' (al-Insan: 6). So, who Are Allah's servants? They are those who submitted their choice and will to the Will of their Lord; they sacrificed their choices to achieve the obligation that He the Almighty wants from them. For this reason, He Glorified is He differentiates between the word Al-'Ibad (servants) and Al-'Abid (slaves), saying: 'The servants of the Lord of Mercy are those who walk humbly on the earth, and who, when the foolish address them, reply, 'Peace'; [63] those who spend the night bowed down or standing, worshipping their Lord, [64] who plead, 'Our Lord, turn away from us the suffering of Hell, for it is a dreadful torment to suffer! [65]' (al-Furqan: 63-65)

In these verses, Allah the Almighty gives the descriptions of the believers and called them 'servants', but when He talks about all the human beings in general, He uses the word 'slaves'. There is a difference between the slaves and the servants as the former submit to Allah Glorified is He in any element of their lives and cannot enforce their choice against what He Glorified is He forcibly decrees on them. As for the servants, they are those who submit their right to choose and are satisfied with what He Glorified is He has commanded them to do or not to do. Thus, the slaves are subjected to Him Glorified is He in what He decrees on them, but the servants are those who are satisfied with what He Glorified is He decrees and their choice complies with what He the Almighty is pleased with. They willingly submit themselves to Him Glorified is He, while the slaves are subservient to Him forcibly.

Allah the Almighty says: ‘A spring for Allah's servants, which flows abundantly at their wish.’ (al-Insan: 6) This verse describes what the righteous people who drink from that spring do. They spring it out easily wherever they wish in their dwellings. Some narration state that this spring is in Messenger Muhammad's dwelling in the paradise and it springs out to the dwellings of the Prophets.

Afterwards, Allah the Almighty describes His servants, saying:

يُوفُونَ بِٱلنَّذْرِ وَيَخَافُونَ يَوْمًا كَانَ شَرُّهُۥ مُسْتَطِيرًا ﴿٧﴾

They fulfil their vows; they fear a day of widespread woes[7] (The Quran, al-Insan: 7)

The Arabic word Al-Nadhr (vow) means to obligate yourself to do some acts of worship that are beyond the obligatory ones prescribed by Allah the Almighty. For example, if you vowed to pray a certain number of units of prayer, then it is a vow to do something subcategorized under what He Glorified is He has legislated, given the fact that He Glorified is He has legislated prayer and made it obligatory five times a day. When you vow to do more than what is obligatory, this is what is called Al-Nadhr. It is a proof that the worshipper has loved and felt the sweetness of the worship. It proves that s/he almost recognizes the greatness of His Lord and that He the Almighty deserves to be worshipped by more than what He has obligated.

Allah Glorified is He shows His Mercy towards us through what He has obligated on us, for if He had obligated us to worship Him as He deserves, no one would have been able to fulfil this obligation. Therefore, when the believing servant vows to obey Allah, s/he obligates him/herself to do more than the obligatory acts of worship. You have the choice to take that vow or not, but if you take it, you should keep it, as it is you who obligated it on yourself. In this regard, the pious people say to the one who breaks his/her vow, 'Have you tried your Lord and found Him unworthy of your love to Him?' No one dares to do that because He Glorified is He deserves the strongest of our love. Thus, it is better for the person to think deeply before taking a vow.

Those righteous believers necessarily fulfil their vows that they have obliged themselves to do. The formula of the vow is to say, 'For the sake of Allah, I oblige myself to give charity, pray, fast, perform the minor or major pilgrimage or any other act of worship on condition that Allah, for example, heals my patient or that my absent relative returns.' But if s/he vowed to do a sin, s/he should not fulfil this vow. 'Aisha Allah be pleased with her narrated that Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'The one who vows to obey Allah should fulfil his vow.'(1) As fulfilling the vow is obligatory, the person should fulfil it on behalf of his father or mother if they died before fulfilling it. In this regard, Ibn 'Abbas narrated that Sa'd ibn 'Ubada asked Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him about a vow that his mother took, but then died before fulfilling it. He ordered him to fulfil it on her behalf.(2)

Thus, Allah the Almighty says: ‘They fulfil their vows; they fear a day of widespread woes.’ (al-Insan: 7) The believing servants of Allah fear this great Day and they firmly believe that it will come. As Allah the Almighty mentions the fear and sorrow of the disbelievers on the Day of Judgment, He also mentions the fear of the believers. The difference is that the believers fear the Day of Judgment, while they are still in the worldly life, doing good deeds and fearing that He the Almighty will not accept their good deeds or their repentance from the sins. On the contrary, the disbelievers are heedless of the Hereafter and when they realize the reality of the punishment, they will be struck with panic and fear. In this regard, He the Almighty says: ‘You will see the evildoers fearful because of what they have done: punishment is bound to fall on them’ (ash-Shura: 22). They will be fearful when they see the punishment with their eyes, but the believers are fearful in the worldly life, as He the Almighty says: ‘When we were still with our families on earth we used to live in fear.’ (at-Tur: 22) The believers fear a Day of widespread woes that spread like the fire and the light of the day when it spread in the sky.

Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'Neither the Adhan of Bilal nor the whiteness (of the pillar) of dawn should make you think that the Dawn has come. It is not the whiteness of the true dawn, but that of the false one which is vertical like a pillar. You can eat food till the streaks of whiteness spread like it.' The difference between the true and the false dawn is that the false one's whiteness appears in the horizon but then fades away. Then, the true dawn appears and spread in the horizon.

On the Day of Judgment, the fear will overwhelm the people of the heavens and earth. It spreads in the heavens which will be ripped apart. The stars will be scattered, the Angels will be in a panic, the sun and the moon will be shrouded in darkness, the mountains will be torn apart, the water will go down and everything on earth – including the mountains, the buildings and trees – will be destroyed. Thus, the woe of that Day will spread to include the heavens and earth.

Subsequently, Allah Glorified is He says:

وَيُطْعِمُونَ ٱلطَّعَامَ عَلَىٰ حُبِّهِۦ مِسْكِينًا وَيَتِيمًا وَأَسِيرًا ﴿٨﴾

They give food to the poor, the orphan, and the captive, though they love it themselves [8]
(The Quran, al-Insan: 8)

Thus, the servants of Allah Glorified is He used to fulfil their vows perfectly without any falling short and to give the food, though they love it themselves, to the poor, the orphan and the captive. Despite their love for his/her food, property and provision earned by the sweat of his/her brow, the righteous servant gives them in charity for the sake of Allah Glorified is He. He Glorified is He describes Al-Birr (Goodness), saying: 'Goodness does not consist in turning your face towards East or West. The truly good are those who believe in Allah and the Last Day, in the angels, the Scripture, and the prophets; who give away some of their wealth, however much they cherish it, to their relatives, to orphans, the needy, travelers and beggars, and to liberate those in bondage…' (al-Baqara: 177). This verse means that Goodness does not mean to dispute about changing the Qibla; there should be no problem with the matter of changing the Qibla to the direction of the Ka'ba, the Sacred House, the east or the west. The true Goodness is to believe in Allah, the Last Day, the Angels, the Scripture, and the Prophets; all of these are creedal issues.

Afterwards, Allah the Almighty follows them by mentioning practical Commands related to people's life and the society they live in, saying: '…who give away some of their wealth, however much they cherish it.' (al-Baqara: 177) Giving wealth entails spending in many ways; it can be optional charity, prescribed alms or a good loan. The Arabic expression 'Ala Hubihi (however much he cherishes it) can have many meanings. We can understand it to mean giving the wealth that s/he loves or that s/he gives it because s/he loves to give the part of the wealth he cherishes to apply the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'None of you will attain true piety unless you give out of what you cherish.' (Al-'Imran: 92) We can elevate the meaning to be giving away the wealth because s/he loves and is satisfied with giving away of his/her wealth, as Allah the Almighty says: 'None of you will attain true piety unless you give out of what you cherish.' (Al-'Imran: 92)

The servants of Allah the Almighty give food to the poor, the orphan and the captive. These are the three kinds of people that He Glorified is He mentions out of caring for them. This is due to the fact that they are the weakest kinds of people and need food and help more than others. As for the poor, s/he is not the one who does not possess anything at all to sustain his/her life, as He Glorified is He says: 'The boat belonged to some needy people who made their living from the sea.' (al-Kahf: 79) He the Almighty tells us that the poor person has some possessions, but does not have all what suffices him/her. For this reason, He Glorified is He has prescribed a rightful share in the zakat for both the needy and the poor.

The Arabic word miskeen (the poor) refers to any needy person. The wayfarer, for example, is considered a needy person because he is a stranger and may not have a provision to sustain his life. In his country, he might have been rich, but the distance he travelled separated him from his property and possessions. Besides, his money could be stolen during his travel, and therefore, he needs people's help. Such a person becomes similar to the needy and the poor who deserve charity.

You should beware of saying that you have nothing to do with the needy. You should know that being in need is something circumstantial and may happen to you as well. So, you should not think you will always give the needy; rather, you should think you may be inflicted with a calamity that makes you in need of people's charity. Taking care of those who are weak and unable to work—who are not lazy and do not taking begging as a job —is the responsibility for believers as Allah Glorified is He makes the strong person responsible for and required to help the weak one.

The righteous also give food to an orphan who lost his father who was responsible for his maintenance and protection. He becomes broken-hearted because he lost his father and became without a helper. If members of a Muslim society take care of an orphan as his father, no one will be anxious about his children if he were to die and leave them. The care of the society for an orphan guarantees that his rights are protected. If an orphan is rich, some people will lust for his property as he is not strong enough to protect it. Furthermore, the social solidarity eliminates the grudge between members of a society and makes every father reassured about his children.

An orphan who possesses property should have an executor to manage his affairs. Allah the Exalted commands us to give of the wealth we love to orphans themselves and not to anyone related to them. This is because there could be some orphans who do not have property that necessitates guardianship. Therefore, to have the qualities of the righteous, we should give of our wealth to the orphans or to their executors to spend on them.

The matter of giving wealth to an orphan is not only related to his need for sustenance, for he also needs to be compensated through the religious solidarity for the loss of his father. This solidarity will prevent him from harboring a grudge against children whose fathers are still alive. When an orphan finds that all believers treat him like his father, he will experience the solidarity that compensates him for the lost fatherly kindness. Moreover, he will not give looks of hate to his peers whose fathers are still alive. Thus, solidarity eliminates the grudge and envy from his heart.

So, you should feed an orphan and preserve his property if it is entrusted to you. You should not consume it, for the one who consumes the property of an orphan is as if he fills his belly with fire. That is to say that what he has consumed will lead him to the fire. This punishment could happen in the worldly life because the one who consumes the properties of orphans could be inflicted with diseases in his belly that burn his bowels. As for the Day of Judgment, believers will see the traces of consuming the properties of orphans on their consumers, given that smoke will come out of their mouths.

Those who fear to die and leave helpless offspring should be benevolent to orphans. If an orphan is dealt with benevolently in a paternalistic and religious atmosphere, anyone of us will not be anxious about leaving his little child if he were to die. Furthermore, since he will realize that the society is full of goodness, he will receive Allah's Decree, namely death with a satisfied heart and without any anxiety. Hence, He the Most High says: 'Let those who would fear for the future of their own helpless children, if they were to die, show the same concern [for orphans]; let them be mindful of Allah and speak out for justice.' (an-Nisa': 9)

Thus, if one sees the members of the society taking care of other people's orphans, he will be reassured that they will take care of his children if he were to die. Such a person will not preoccupy himself with thinking about the matter of death. On the other hand, if someone sees a neglected orphan, he will cling to the means of life and desire to bring the whole worldly pleasures to his child. So, one should work for the sake of his children by giving for the sake of Allah the Exalted what he wants to save for them, for the Creator is more worthy of trust than the created beings.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He mentions that righteous people give food to the captive. The captive's movement is restricted after being taken captive in a war which entails fighting and confronting the enemy. In a battle, each one of the two camps wants to kill his enemy. It is as though Allah Glorified is He wants to protect the people from the truculence of their souls during the fight. This is why He the Most High commands believers to take their enemies captives and not to kill them except in the case of necessity. This is in the interest of believers because they will take the ransom from captives. Moreover, this is one of the His merciful Legislations, for if taking captives had not been permissible, each of the two fighters would have had to kill his enemy in the battle. Therefore, Allah Glorified is He commands believers to take captives unless their existence constitutes a danger to a believers' life.

Anyone who criticizes Islam for the issue of the captives should know that the one taken captive in a battle could have been killed after being seized by believers if the Divine Legislation had not intervened to make a captive a slave to a believer. It prevented bloodshed and achieved a benefit for a believer when the family of a captive pays his ransom or when the captive serves him. Allah Glorified is He prevented believers from shedding the blood of captives or humiliating them. In this regard, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'Your slaves are your brothers. Allah has placed them under your authority. He who has his brother under him should feed him from whatever he eats, dress him with whatever he wears and do not burden them (assign burdensome task to them) beyond their capacity, and if you burden them. Then help them.'(1) How kindly Islam deals with the captive! It prevented shedding his blood, honored him as a brother, respected his humanity and treated him well. Furthermore, Islam opened the doors of releasing a captive. If there is only one way for having slaves in Islam, there are many ways for freeing them. For example, expiation for one's sins is one way of freeing slaves. Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says:

إِنَّمَا نُطْعِمُكُمْ لِوَجْهِ ٱللَّهِ لَا نُرِيدُ مِنكُمْ جَزَآءً وَلَا شُكُورًا ﴿٩﴾ saying, 'We feed you for the sake of God alone:

We seek neither recompense nor thanks from you [9]
(The Quran, al-Insan: 9)

Those who give food to the poor, the orphans and the captives did not say, 'We feed you for the sake of Allah alone. We seek neither recompense nor thanks from you' (al-Insan: 9) when they did such charitable acts. Rather, Allah the Exalted knows what is in their hearts, so He praises them for their sincerity and good intentions. That is why He the Most High mentions their good deeds.

Righteous people have given the food while knowing that those who received such charity can neither recompense nor thank them, for they will not be able to repay what they have given them. It is said that the verse under discussion was revealed in reference to a man from Al-'Ansar called Abu Ad-Dehdah. He was fasting on one day and when the time of breakfast came, a poor person, an orphan and a captive came to him. Thereupon, he fed them three loaves and only one loaf was left for him and his household.

Giving food should be for the sake of pleasing Allah Glorified is He. For this reason, we should put the sincerity first before doing any action. Two people may do the same action before people, yet one of them is rewarded while the other is punished, given the fact that what is important is to do the action sincerely for the sake of Allah Glorified is He. Someone may say, 'Sincerity lies in the heart, and as long as the person does not hurt anyone or commit evil deeds, it is not necessary for him to pray.' We reply, 'The matter is not all about intentions, for actions are necessary as well. In this connection, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'Actions are but by intentions.'(1) Thus, the good intentions should be accompanied by righteous actions.

The benefit of one's intention is confined to him, whereas the benefit of his good actions extends to people. Let us offer an example to illustrate this point; if you intend to give alms and you actually do so, the poor will benefit from your money. However, if you do not have the intention to do something good, yet you do it for seeking reputation or for pleasing someone, the poor will benefit from your money, but you will not get the reward of giving alms. Allah the Almighty wants your action to be accompanied by sincere intention. A good action is an activity in life, and intention is the criterion for being given and deprived of the reward thereof.

(1) This hadith is narrated on the authority of 'Umar ibn Al-Khattab Allah be pleased with him. See Al-Bukhari, Sahih, Hadith no. 1; Al-Bayhaqi, Sunnan, Hadith no. 181 and 1013; and Ibn Majah, Sunnan, Hadith no. 4227.

Sincerity means to purify the creedal issues and the outward actions from what corrupts and renders them insincere and imperfect. Sincerity is an inward action. However hard the person tries to be sincere in his actions and do them for the sake of Allah Glorified is He he should not be reassured that they will not be stained with showing off and reputation. Prophet Muhammad, the infallible, said, 'O Allah, I seek Your Forgiveness for every action I have done for Your sake, but something else mixed with it.'(1) An accepted good deed is what is done sincerely for the sake of Allah the Exalted and its reward is in proportion to the degree of sincerity.

Righteous people seek neither recompense nor thanks from those whom they have given food. The Arabic word Al-Mujaza is the recompense for what they have given, whereas Ash-Shukr (thanks) means to be praised for that. Thus, a righteous people seek neither the need's recompense in the worldly life nor their reward in the Hereafter. Ash-Shukur (thanks) is an infinitive like Al-Qu'ud (sitting), Ad-Dukhul (entering) and Al-Khuruj (getting out). Thus, the righteous people seek neither the needy's recompense nor their thanks to them before the people.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says:

إِنَّا نَخَافُ مِن رَّبِّنَا يَوۡمًا عَبُوسًا قَمۡطَرِيرًا ﴿١٠﴾

We fear the Day of our Lord — a woefully grim Day [10] (The Quran, al-Insan: 10)

Thus, righteous servants give food to a poor person, an orphan and a captive for the sake of Allah Glorified is He and not to be recompensed, praised or thanked. In fact, they only do that for Allah's Pleasure and fearing a Day of woeful grim.

(1) Ibn 'Umar narrated that Prophet Muhammad used to say to them, 'O, my Companions, what prevents you from having your sins forgiven by uttering simple words?' They asked, 'O, Messenger of Allah, what are these words?' He replied, 'Say like the words of my brother, Al-Khidr.' We asked, 'What did he say?' He replied, 'He used to say, "O, Allah, I seek Your Forgiveness for the sin from which I repented to You, but I then returned to it. I also seek Your Forgiveness for what I have dedicated to You, but I did not fulfill it."' See Ad-Daylami, Kanz Al-'Umal, 2/701.

On that Day, disbelievers will frown and scowl due to the hardship they suffer; they will be neither happy nor delighted. Their faces will be darkened as Allah Glorified is He says: 'On the Day of Resurrection, you [Prophet] will see those who told lies against Allah with darkened faces. Is there not ample punishment for the arrogant in Hell?' (az-Zumar: 60) In addition to their blackened faces, disbelievers will frown out of anger. Ibn 'Abbas Allah be pleased with him said, 'On that Day, a disbeliever will frown until something like the pitch flows (1) from between his eyes.' Frowning can be attributed to the Day itself; it will frown like the man because it is a grim and pitch dark Day. Allah Glorified is He describes it according to the hardship that people suffer.

So, righteous people fear the punishment on a Day when the faces of disbelievers will frown because of its hardship and prolonged calamities. The Arabic word Al-Qamtarir (distressfulness) refers to what is hard and difficult. Therefore, the calamities of disbelievers on that Day will be very difficult and lingering. For them, it is a long woeful Day. They will show their frowns with their lips, forehead and eyebrows.

Subsequently, Allah Glorified is He says:

فَوَقَىٰهُمُ ٱللَّهُ شَرَّ ذَٰلِكَ ٱلْيَوْمِ وَلَقَّىٰهُمْ نَضْرَةً وَسُرُورًا ١١

So God will save them from the woes of that Day, give them radiance and gladness [11]
(The Quran, al-Insan: 11)

Thus, Allah the Almighty will save righteous people from the Day of woeful grim about which they are fearful and anxious. He the Most High will keep them safe from its difficulty and guard them against its woes. They used to invoke Him the Almighty to save them from the punishment, the woe, the long standing and the Account of that Day. They said in the worldly life, 'Our Lord! You have not created all this without purpose—You are far above that!—so protect us from the torment of the Fire.' (Al-'Imran: 191) They invoked Him to deliver them from the torment of the fire and when they endured patiently, gave alms, devoted themselves to the worship and spent in His Way, they deserved to be safeguarded from that fire and from a woefully grim Day.

---

(1) See At-Tabari, Jame' Al-Bayan, 23/547; Ath-Tha'libi, Al-Kashf Wa Al-Bayan, 10/97; and Al-Qurtubi, Jame' Ahkam Al-Quran, 19/125.

The demonstrative pronoun 'that' in the verse in question refers to the Day mentioned in two previous verses where Allah Glorified is He says: 'They fulfil their vows; they fear a day of widespread woes' (al-Insan: 7), and 'We fear the Day of our Lord—a woefully grim Day.' (al-Insan: 10) If we ponder on the verse under discussion, we find that the word 'Day' in employed the singular form. So, how long is that Day? He the Most High provides the answer, by saying: 'By which the angels and the Spirit ascend to Him, on a Day whose length is fifty thousand years.' (al-Ma'arij: 4) He the Almighty is the Creator of time, so He can create a day whose span is one hour or twenty-four hours like the days of our worldly life. Furthermore, He can create a day whose span is one thousand, fifty thousand and one million years, as all of that is subjected to His Will.

The times are numerous and vary according to the reckoning and the planets. Thus, in one verse Allah Glorified is He states that the Day of Judgment is one thousand years: 'He runs everything, from the heavens to the earth, and everything will ascend to Him in the end, on a Day that will measure a thousand years in your reckoning.' (as-Sajda: 5); or it is fifty thousand years: 'By which the angels and the Spirit ascend to Him, on a Day whose length is fifty thousand years.' (al-Ma'arij: 4) Therefore, that Day is different from our days as He the Almighty measures the days of this worldly life and the Day of the Hereafter differently.

The Day on which the people will be judged is long and difficult, but Allah Glorified is He will save the righteous people from that woeful, difficult Day and will give them radiance and gladness, a fact which is ever so clear in His saying: 'So Allah will save them from the woes of that Day, give them radiance and gladness.' (al-Insan: 11)

The Arabic word laqqahum (give them) originally entails an encounter between two people, but it is used metaphorically to give the meaning of receiving good or evil. The righteous will be given radiance in their faces and gladness in their hearts. Instead of the frown and sadness of the transgressors, Allah the Almighty will give them radiance and gladness. Thus, radiance will be in the face of the righteous, while the faces of disbelievers will be sad and despairing, a fact which is quite clear in His saying: 'On that Day there will be radiant faces.' (al-Qiyama: 22), and 'on that Day there will be the sad and despairing faces.' (al-Qiyama: 24)

As a matter of fact, what is inside the soul appears on the body. A black man, for example, may have a radiant face which manifests gladness, illumination, brightness and charisma. On the contrary, a man may have a white face, yet his soul is dark. Gladness means the satisfaction of the heart when the faculties are satisfied and the soul is peaceful. In fact, one's reactions and feelings appear on his face. So, if he is sad, the frown and the signs of sadness appear on his face. Likewise, if he feels happy, the gladness and happiness appear on his face. So, the face reflects the sentiments of the soul whether they are stemming from happiness, gladness and brightness or stemming from unhappiness, resulting in a frown and scowl. Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says:

وَجَزَىٰهُم بِمَا صَبَرُوا۟ جَنَّةً وَحَرِيرًا ﴿١٢﴾

And reward them, for their steadfastness, with a Garden and silken robes [12]
(The Quran, al-Insan: 12)

The righteous will receive their reward from Allah the Most High with a Garden and silken robes. Therefore, the subject of the Arabic verb jaza (to reward) is Allah the Almighty. He rewards them for their steadfastness in obedience and keeping away from disobedience. Thus, they are rewarded with a Garden to dwell in and silken robes to wear and spread out.

When Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him was asked about steadfastness, he replied, 'Steadfastness is of four kinds: steadfastness at the first stroke of a calamity, steadfastness in regard to performing an obligatory act, steadfastness in regard to avoiding a prohibition of Allah and steadfastness in regard to an affliction.'(1)

(1) See Ath-Tha'bibi, Al-Kashf Wa Al-Bayan, 10/97; Al-Qurtubi, Jame' Ahkam Al-Quran, 19/136; and Az-Zuhayli, At-Tafsir Al-Munir, 29/293.

Allah Glorified is He rewards them with a Garden which has all what they desire of food and drinks that their eyes have never seen and their ears have never heard. He the Most High informs us about the drinks of the people of the paradise by saying: 'The righteous will have a drink mixed with kafur.' (al-Insan: 5) He the Almighty mentions afterwards another mixed drink, saying: 'And they will be given a drink infused with ginger.' (al-Insan: 5)

Allah Glorified is He mentions one kind of the robes of the people of the Garden, namely silken robes. He the Almighty particularly mentions silken robes because He talks about their steadfastness, which includes their steadfastness regarding prohibitions. One of these prohibitions is wearing the silken robes with regard to the Muslim men who follow Prophet Muhammad's saying, 'Whoever wears silk (clothes) in this life will not wear them in the Hereafter.' Thus, steadfastness in abstaining from wearing silken robes in the worldly life is rewarded with wearing them in paradise.

Wearing silken clothes manifests the pleasure and the luxurious life that the dwellers of paradise lead, given that silk is the smoothest kind of textiles. In the chapter of al-Hajj, Allah Glorified is He says: '… there they will have silken garments ...' (al-Hajj: 23). They did not wear the silk clothes in this worldly life, so they wear it in the Hereafter. This is because they adhered to the Limits that Allah Glorified is He has set and to the order of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him who said, 'Do not drink in silver or gold utensils, and do not eat in plates of such metals, for such things are for them (disbelievers) in this worldly life and for you in the Hereafter.'(1) Since righteous believers did not wear silk in this worldly life, they were rewarded with silken robes in paradise.

Subsequently, Allah Glorified is He says:

(1) This Hadith is narrated on the authority of Hudhayfa ibn Al-Yaman Allah be pleased with him. See Abu 'Uwana, Mustakhraj, Hadith no. 8446; Al-Bukhari, Sahih, Hadith no. 5426; and Muslim, Sahih, Hadith no. 2067 and 2069.

مُّتَّكِـِٔينَ فِيهَا عَلَى ٱلۡأَرَآئِكِۖ لَا يَرَوۡنَ فِيهَا شَمۡسٗا وَلَا زَمۡهَرِيرٗا ﴿١٣﴾

They will sit on couches, feeling neither scorching heat nor biting cold [13] (The Quran, al-Insan: 13)

The Arabic word Al-'Ittika' means to sit relaxingly. As for the couches, they are the beds adorned with some ornaments like, for instance, the mosquito net. In order to understand the meaning Al-'Ittika' and how it indicates luxury and pleasure, we should consider the case of someone who stands for a long time without rest. You will see him disturbed and bothered. For this reason, sitting on couches is one of the manifestations of luxury and pleasure in both this worldly life and the Hereafter, as in the saying of Allah Glorified is He regarding Zulaykha, the governor's wife: 'She prepared a banquet for them.' (Yusuf: 13). Thus, sitting on couches is one of the means of relaxation.

Allah Glorified is He mentions the couches of the people of paradise in another verse by saying: 'So today [the Day of Judgment] believers are laughing at the disbelievers as they sit on couches, gazing around. Have disbelievers [not] been repaid for their deeds?' (al-Mutaffifin: 34-36) Believers will sit and rest on the couches of paradise while waiting to see the destination of disbelievers. They will ask, 'Have the disbelievers [not] been repaid for their deeds?' (al-Mutaffifin: 35) In another verse, Allah Glorified is He describes how they are occupied by saying: 'The people of paradise today are happily occupied—they and their spouses—seated on couches in the shade. There they have fruit and whatever they ask for. "Peace", a word from the Lord of Mercy.' (Ya Sin: 55-58) This is the pleasure that the Lord of Might has promised the pious for their steadfastness. So, the Arabic word Al-'Areeka refers to a bed located in a tent and covered with clothes brocaded with pearls and rubies. Therefore, the righteous will be rewarded with a Garden that contains their food and drinks. Furthermore, they will wear the smoothest, silken robes. Moreover, they will have high tents with curtains inside which they sit on couches.

The bliss of paradise is not only confined to the aforementioned pleasures as they will also feel neither scorching heat nor biting cold. It is Allah Glorified is He Who has prepared their homes so that they live luxuriously, feeling neither heat nor cold. They will not feel a scorching sun whose heat hurts them and makes them sweat. Therefore, they will be neither harmed by the heat of the sun nor the biting cold which would force them to leave their couches to enter their homes. Rather, they will be sitting on such couches without being bothered by anything.

Allah the Almighty says: 'They will sit on couches, feeling neither scorching heat nor biting cold.' (al-Insan: 13) The one who ponders on this verse finds something wonderful. Does feeling no scorching sun mean that there is no sun at all in paradise? Or is there a sun whose heat does not hurt whoever exposes himself to it? Some scholars said that paradise is illuminated without a sun or a moon so they interpreted the word Zamharira as referring to the moon and so did Az-Zamakhshari. The verse can either mean that they will not feel a scorching sun or that they will have no suns at all, as paradise is self-illuminated and needs neither a sun nor a moon that used to illuminate the worldly life.

When we put this verse side by side with Allah's saying in another verse, 'But the companions in the Garden will have a better home on that Day and a fairer place to rest,' (al-Furqan: 24) we should ask, 'How is there a qaylola (resting time) in paradise, while there is no heat, cold or moon?' The Arabic word Al-Maqil is the time of resting when the weather is very hot. Thus, how could there be a resting time in paradise, while there is no heat? We reply to this question by stating that the Arabic word Al-Qayloola means the time of rest as Allah Glorified is He has made it one of the times for which the permission to come in must be sought. He the Most High says: '… and when you lay your garments aside in the midday heat …' (an-Nur: 58). So, the children are commanded to ask for permission at that time because it is one of the times of privacy, resting and relaxation. It is a special time when you lay your garments and free yourself from formalities.

Regarding paradise, there is neither scorching heat nor biting cold. Its shady branches spread above its people. For this reason.

Allah Glorified is He says:

وَدَانِيَةً عَلَيْهِمْ ظِلَالُهَا وَذُلِّلَتْ قُطُوفُهَا تَذْلِيلًا ﴿١٤﴾

With shady [branches] spread above them and clusters of fruit hanging close at hand [14]
(The Quran, al-Insan: 14)

Allah Glorified is He rewards believers for their steadfastness with a Garden whose shades spread over them. They will feel neither scorching heat nor biting cold. The branches of the trees of paradise are so close to their people that their shades cover them. This proves that there is a sun in paradise which only illuminates it, as He removes its heat so that no one in paradise feels it.

The Arabic word Az-Zhill (shade) originally means to be covered from the sun. In this regard, Allah Glorified is He says: '… We shall admit them into cool refreshing shade.' (an-Nisa': 57) Therefore, the heat and the hot simooms cannot penetrate that shade which protects from both heat and winds. This means that the trees of the Garden have piled up branches that no heat or simooms can pass through.

The one who reflects on this verse will realize the meaning of the previous verse where Allah the Almighty says: 'They will sit on couches, feeling neither scorching heat nor biting cold.' (al-Insan: 13) This verse made some scholars maintain that there is no sun or moon in paradise. The one who reflects on these two verses and puts them side by side with the saying of Allah Glorified is He 'We shall admit them into cool refreshing shade' (an-Nisa': 57), will realize that the people of paradise will neither see the sun nor feel its effect. They will enjoy the cool refreshing shade of the trees' branches and leaves that cover them from the sun as if it is not existent. The cool refreshing shade does not leave a space or a hole through which hot or cold air can pass to the one who sits under it.

The shady trees of paradise do not only shade from the sun, but they are also fruitful. So, they do not force the one sitting on the couches to exert any effort to get fruits from other trees. For this reason, Allah Glorified is He then says: '… clusters of fruit hanging close at hand.' (al-Insan: 13) He the Almighty wants to relieve His believing servant who was steadfast in his faith in the worldly life in spite of all the hardships and the temptation to commit sins.

Besides, He wants to give rest to him for his steadfastness in obedience and refraining from disobedience. Thus, the servant will receive a doubled reward.

Even after mentioning all these kinds of pleasure in the previous verses, Allah Glorified is He mentions another kind of pleasure appreciated by anyone thinks deeply about it. He makes fruit closer to a believer so that he does not feel tired while trying to get them, as He the Almighty says: 'With clustered fruit within his reach' (al-Haqqa: 23) and 'Clusters of fruit hanging close at hand.' (al-Insan: 13) These verses mean that the clusters of fruit hang near them. The fruit will descend to wherever a believer is, whether he is standing or sitting, as the fruit is at hand. Furthermore, if he were lying, the clusters of fruit will get closer to him so that he can eat at any time or position. The Arabic word Al-Edna' (closeness) means to make something closer to another, as in the verse where He the Almighty describes of the fruit of paradise by saying: 'With clustered fruit within his reach.' (al-Haqqa: 23) Thus, the fruits are closer to the people of paradise, and they can easily pick them.

Allah the Almighty mentions that the closeness is confined to the shades of the trees, while the subjecting is related to the clusters of fruit as if they are subservient to a believer by saying, 'Pick us.' It is as though he lives between the fruit and finds them at hand at all times. It is worth mentioning that the fragrance of these fruits is incomparable with that of the worldly life.

There is another meaning we can comprehend from the word dhullilat (to be subjected); it is as if the fruit gets closer and hang in subjection, waiting for the moment when a believer stretches his hand to pick them. Allah the Exalted subjects the fruit to His believing servant as if He says to them, 'You are specially prepared for My servant.' Thus, they keep hanging in subjection, waiting for the one who believed in Him and strove in His Way to pick them. Therefore, paradise as well as its fruit longs for believers.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He directs our attention to another kind of pleasure in paradise by saying:

وَيُطَافُ عَلَيْهِم بِـَٔانِيَةٍ مِّن فِضَّةٍ وَأَكْوَابٍ كَانَتْ قَوَارِيرَا۠ (١٥)
قَوَارِيرَا۠ مِن فِضَّةٍ قَدَّرُوهَا تَقْدِيرًا (١٦)

They will be served with silver plates [15] and gleaming silver goblets according to their fancy [16] (The Quran, al-Insan: 15 - 16)

These verses mention other pleasures and gratifications of paradise. Allah the Almighty will not abandon the believers; rather, He the Almighty provides them with everlasting youths to serve them with silver plates and goblets. They are filled with drinks that delight the eyes, the tongues and the mouths. The vessels in which the drinks are served are goblets and cups without handles to hold them with because believers will not need them. A person in this worldly life needs the handle to avoid the heat of the hot drinks. In paradise, nevertheless, they will not find what bothers them or anything to take precaution against. Therefore, goblets and cups are without handles in paradise.

Interestingly, these goblets gather between two qualities; they are made of silver, yet they are as pure as glass that one can see the drink in the goblet if it is far away from him. So, while the goblets of the worldly life are made of glass, which is made of sand, the goblets of paradise are made of silver. However, they are as pure as glass, and this is why one should not fear that they will break or harm him. Thus, the jugs and the goblets are pure and transparent even though they are made of silver. However, is there a difference between the jugs and the goblets? We say, 'Yes, the jugs are large containers of the drinks which are poured into the goblets.' Allah Glorified is He makes a distinction between them by saying: 'They will be served with silver jugs and gleaming silver goblets according to their fancy.' (al-Insan: 15-16)

However, does this mean that the jugs are made of silver so they are not transparent, while the goblets are as pure and transparent as glass through which one can see the drink inside them? This is something possible, and accordingly, only the goblets are similar to glass in its transparency even though they are made of silver. If we reflected on that matter, we will realize a beautiful meaning. When one sees the jug which is not transparent, he will long to know what kind of drink it contains and when it is poured into the transparent goblet, he will be much happier. Even the structure of these verses is exciting as Allah the Almighty says: 'They will be served with silver plates and gleaming silver goblets according to their fancy.' (al-Insan: 15-16) Thus, one will be much surprised about goblets of glass made of silver and not of sand.

Furthermore, one will also wonder that those who pour the drink in his own goblet will pour an amount exactly in proportion to what he needs to quench his thirst. The drink in the goblet will neither be less than one's need, so he would not ask for more, nor will it be more than his need so that he would be puzzled where to put the remnants of the drink. How did the one who pour the drink know exactly one's need? Did they measure the goblets or the drinks in the goblets? If they measured the goblets, this means that everyone has a special goblet or goblets according to what quenches his thirst. However, if the drinks are measured, this means that they will be poured into the goblet in proportion to what quenches one's thirst and satisfy his need. Interestingly, the one who pours the drink knows exactly the measure that quenches the thirst of everyone in paradise. Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him spoke the truth when he narrated in a Sacred Hadith that the Lord of Might said, 'I have prepared for My pious worshipers such things as no eye has ever seen, no ear has ever heard of and nobody has ever thought of.'(1)

So, what are the kinds of drink that the jugs and the goblets contain? Allah Glorified is He provides the answer in the following verses by saying:

وَيُسْقَوْنَ فِيهَا كَأْسًا كَانَ مِزَاجُهَا زَنجَبِيلًا ﴿١٧﴾ عَيْنًا فِيهَا تُسَمَّىٰ سَلْسَبِيلًا ﴿١٨﴾

And they will be given a drink infused with ginger [17] from a spring called Salsabil [18]
(The Quran, al-Insan: 17-18)

We notice that Allah the Almighty also uses the passive voice in this verse. He the Most High says in a previous verse that the fruits will be made near to the dwellers of the paradise, while He could have said that He made the fruits near to them. This is to say that He could have used the active voice instead of the passive one. He also says: 'They will be served with silver plates' (al-Insan: 15); 'And they will be given a drink ...' (al-Insan: 17). In the verse under discussion, He the Almighty could have used the active voice saying that He gives them a drink. However, He wants to say to the human being by whose name this chapter is titled that paradise is different from the worldly life in which he has endured patiently its sufferings and hardships. The worldly life was tiring for him because it confronted him for his steadfastness in belief and obedience to Allah Glorified is He. So, He has prepared paradise to serve such a human being and subjected it completely to do what he desires even before he asks for it. Thus, the good human being should not be concerned about or grieve for what he suffers in this worldly life as the outcome is for the righteous.

(1) This Hadith is narrated on the authority of Abu Hurayra Allah be pleased with him. See Al-Bukhari, Sahih, Hadith no. 3244; and Muslim, Sahih, Hadith no. 2824.

Allah Glorified is He addresses the human being according to his desires and hopes. If he desires an eternal life of pleasure, he should only believe in and obey Him and be steadfast in obedience and in refraining from disobedience. Accordingly, He the Most High will reward him for his steadfastness with a blissful life in paradise in which everything obeys his commands.

In this verse, Allah the Almighty says: 'They will be given a drink infused with ginger.' (al-Insan: 17) Thus, the people of paradise will not prepare what they desire by themselves; rather, the drinks will be prepared and given to them without any intervention on their part. In this verse, it is not important to know the one who serves the drinks to them but to know what they are drinking. For this reason, He the Almighty uses the passive voice by saying: 'They will be given a drink infused with ginger.' (al-Insan: 17)

They will be given a drink infused with ginger. Any goblet in the Quran refers to that of wine. However, it is not like the wine in this worldly life which intoxicates the minds and makes the person unconscious about what he is doing. The wine in the Hereafter will be infused with many things, and this verse mentions that it is infused with ginger. Another verse in this chapter states that it is mixed with Kafur: 'The righteous will have a drink mixed with kafur.' (al-Insan: 5) The tastes of these drinks in paradise are different, and the flavours are numerous even if the drink is the same. The wine will be infused with only little ginger because everyone knows the bitterness of ginger in this worldly life. However, ginger in the Hereafter is different.

Allah the Almighty then says: 'from a spring called Salsabil.' (al-Insan: 18) The drink will be from a spring in paradise called Salsabil. This drink will be infused with ginger. Ibn Al-A'rabi said, 'I did not hear the word Salsabil except in the Quran. It is a spring from which this drink easily spurts, and it will flow in a riverbed without banks.' The word As-Salsabil means the good taste and delicious flavour. Its drink moves smoothly and easily to the pharynx, and both the pharynx and the tongue will find its taste sweet. The sweet water of this spring will easily flow to believers' perpetual Gardens. Thus, the word Salsabil could be the name of that spring or a description of its water. Some scholars maintained that the word Salsabil is not one word; rather, it is a sentence consisted of two words: sal (ask) and sabil (way). The first word sal is an imperative means to ask. The subject of the verb is implicit and it could be the pronoun 'you' or Muhammad. The second word sabil is the object.

وَيَطُوفُ عَلَيۡهِمۡ وِلۡدَٰنٞ مُّخَلَّدُونَ إِذَا رَأَيۡتَهُمۡ حَسِبۡتَهُمۡ لُؤۡلُؤٗا مَّنثُورٗا ١٩

Everlasting youths will attend them — if you could see them, you would think they were scattered pearls [19] (The Quran, al-Insan: 19)

In this verse, Allah Glorified is He uses the active voice by saying: 'Everlasting youths will attend them ...' (al-Insan: 19). In a previous verse, He the Almighty tells us about the drinks that will be served for the righteous people, but here He tells us those who serve and attend them with the jugs by saying: 'Everlasting youths will attend them ...' (al-Insan: 19). These everlasting youths never age or grow old, for they will remain in the same state without changing or aging. They all have the same age. We notice that Allah Glorified is He says they are wildan (young boys), but He says in another verse: 'The Day [of Judgment] will turn children’s hair grey.' (al-Muzzammil: 17) It is known that going grey due to the calamities of the Day of Judgment will not only inflict young boys but also young girls. The Arabic word Al-Wildan refers to those who are close to the time of their delivery, namely the one who was born recently. This word includes boys and girls, a male and a female.

Likewise, in the verses discussing the rules of inheritance, Allah Glorified is He says: 'Parents inherit a sixth each if the deceased leaves children; if he leaves no children and his parents are his sole heirs, his mother has a third.' (an-Nisa': 11) Although the meaning of 'youths' may include a male and a female, another verse limits its meaning to the boys: 'Devoted boys like hidden pearls wait on them.' (at-Tur: 24) Therefore, the word 'youths' in the verse under discussion refers only to boys, given that only the boy is called 'ghulam'.

Allah Glorified is He describes these youths as everlasting even though immortality is not a special quality for them as all the people of paradise are immortal, and they neither go grey nor age. For this reason, some exegetes said that mukhalladun in His saying: 'Everlasting youths will attend them ...' (al-Insan: 19) means that they wear earrings or wristlets as a manifestation of pleasure and luxury. The Arab people call the earing which is worn in the ears Qirt or kildah (earing). So, according to this interpretation, He says that these youths are wearing earrings.

Allah Glorified is He then says: '… if you could see them [the youths], you would think they were scattered pearls.' (al-Insan: 19) This verse is one of the wonders of the Quran. The scattered pearls are the hidden pearls with which Allah Glorified is He describes the boys, saying: 'Devoted boys like hidden pearls wait on them.' (at-Tur: 17) The hidden pearls are those concealed and preserved in a certain place. Allah the Exalted even describes the beautiful-eyed maidens in paradise as 'Beautiful companions like hidden pearls.' (al-Waqi'a: 22-23) They are like the pearls preserved in the seashell so no one can take them. In this regard, Ibn Jubayr said, 'Nothing but the beautiful, expensive and precious things are preserved, hidden and saved.' That is why the pearls are preserved and not touch by any trifler.

The saying of Allah the Almighty 'Devoted boys like hidden pearls wait on them' (at-Tur: 17), and 'Everlasting youths will attend them ...' (al-Insan: 19) emphasizes the fact that the boys serving the people of paradise are exclusive to them. They do not generally serve everyone there. Thus, every one of the people of paradise has serving boys exclusive to him. Besides, there are boys who generally serve food and drinks.

If we understand this matter, we can realize the difference between the boys mentioned in the chapter of at-Tur and the youths mentioned in the chapter of al-Insan. In the chapter of at-Tur, Allah the Almighty describes them by saying: 'Like hidden pearls.' (at-Tur: 24). However, here in the chapter of al-Insan, He says: 'If you could see them, you would think they were scattered pearls.' (al-Insan: 19) The scattered pearls shine everywhere as if these youths are serving generally, so they are scattered everywhere. The verse of the chapter of at-Tur gives a familial atmosphere for those youths, and that is why they are hidden and preserved. He the Most High says: 'They are comfortably seated on couches arranged in rows; ‘We pair them with beautiful-eyed maidens. We unite believers with their offspring who followed them in faith.’(at-Tur: 20-21) As long as He mentions the beautiful-eyed maidens and that the offspring of believers will follow them, then it is a familial atmosphere that requires private boys for each family. The matter here in the chapter of al-Insan, however, is different. The verses are talking about the public gatherings of believers where boys will be waiting on in a general manner like the endlessly scattered pearls. For this reason, they are not exclusive to anyone.

You can see the verses from another angle; there is no discrepancy between the hidden and the scattered pearls. We notice that Allah Glorified is He says in the verse under discussion: 'If you could see them, you would think they were scattered pearls.' (al-Insan: 19) According to another interpretation, it is as if He the Almighty commands you to see the view of the people of paradise while they are enjoying its pleasures. One would see believers sitting and resting on their couches in high tents. Furthermore, he would see them living under shady trees with fruits hanging near, from which they eat as they desire. A believer will have his offspring and beautiful-eyed maidens with him. Furthermore, boys or youths will wait on him with kinds of drinks and food. If you could look at these high tents, which are exclusive to believers, you will imagine that these youths who are waiting on them are like the scattered, shining pearls. One would see their shining, brightness and illumination while each one, in reality, is hidden in the tent, serving one of the believers. So, He the Almighty says: 'If you could see them, you would think they were scattered pearls.' (al-Insan: 19) In reality, they are hidden pearls.

One may ask, 'Why does Allah Glorified is He especially mention pearls.' This is because the pearl is precious and clear like the rubies and corals in their brightness and preciousness. Since pearls have a white colour, He the Most High describes these youths and boys as pearls for the whiteness of their faces.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says:

وَإِذَا رَأَيْتَ ثَمَّ رَأَيْتَ نَعِيمًا وَمُلْكًا كَبِيرًا ﴿٢٠﴾

And if you were to look around, you would see bliss and great wealth [20] (The Quran, al-Insan: 20)

As a matter of fact, the pleasure in this worldly life is proportional to the abilities of the people. On the contrary, the pleasure in the Hereafter is proportional to the Omnipotence of Allah Glorified is He. In other words, the measures in this life are different from those in the life of the Hereafter. In this worldly life, one cannot see Allah the Exalted with his constitution and body. In the Hereafter, however, one's constitution and body will make it possible for him to see Allah the Almighty. This is the climax of pleasure in the Hereafter. In this worldly life, you are living in the traces of Allah's Omnipotence, but in the Hereafter you will enjoy seeing Him.

There are many kinds of pleasures and gratifications in this worldly life, but they are limited and come to an end as a person will not also live forever to enjoy them. His potentialities to enjoy the worldly pleasures are limited. By contrast, the potentialities of the pleasure of the Hereafter are proportional to the Omnipotence of the Creator Who provides by His absolute Power and vast Mercy. The pleasure in the Hereafter is endless; no one can prevent or stop. On one hand, the pleasure of the worldly life is imperfect as the changing circumstances of this life will inevitably disturb a person. On the other hand, the reward of those believing in Allah Glorified is He is the everlasting pleasure and the great reward.

Allah Glorified is He says: 'Their Lord gives them the good news of His Mercy and Pleasure, Gardens where they will have lasting bliss.' (at-Tawba: 21) Ar-Ridwan (Pleasure) is a reward greater than any other bliss the people of paradise will have. However, why is the 'lasting bliss' mentioned after the Gardens? Does the bliss not exist in the Gardens? The Garden was only brought into existence to be the blissful reward of a human being. Its pleasure is eternal and everlasting, so it does not come to an end. Furthermore, one will not stop enjoying that pleasure by perishing or death. It is as if the bliss in paradise is greater than one's ability. For this reason, Allah Glorified is He says: 'And if you were to look around, you would see bliss and great wealth.' (al-Insan: 20) This means that if you were to see what is there in paradise, you would see bliss and great wealth.

Arabs sometimes omit the relative pronouns like 'which', 'that', 'who' and 'what' and only mention their relative clauses. The saying of Allah Glorified is He 'This is where you and I part company' (al-Kahf: 78), is a case in point. This verse means that this is the departure which is between them. Another illustrative example is His saying: 'All the bonds between you have been severed.' (al-An'am: 94) This verse shows that all that which bonds between them have been severed. Thus, it is as if He the Almighty says in the verse in question, 'If you, Prophet Muhammad, were to see and glance what righteous people have been given of bliss in paradise, you would see pleasure and great dominion.'

This verse mentions the bliss and then the great dominion. Thus, bliss is something other than a great dominion. Allah Glorified is He tells us about that bliss by saying: 'And reward them, for their steadfastness, with a Garden and silken robes. They will sit on couches, feeling neither scorching heat nor biting cold, with shady [branches] spread above them and clusters of fruit hanging close at hand. They will be served with silver plates and gleaming silver goblets according to their fancy, and they will be given a drink infused with ginger from a spring called Salsabil. Everlasting youths will attend them—if you could see them, you would think they were scattered pearls.' (al-Insan: 12-19) All of these are the elements of bliss which the righteous will enjoy. It is the everlasting and eternal bliss that never ends, never changes or ceases to exist. Allah Glorified is He mentions the word 'bliss' as an indefinite noun because this bliss is innumerable and countless and no one except Him knows it. How can we know it, while within each kind of bliss there are many forms of pleasures?

What is more than all this bliss? Allah Glorified is He then mentions the great dominion which is to own all this bliss forever. Neither one's life nor his bliss will come to an end. We should note that there is a difference between Al-Maalik (owner) and Al-Malik (king). An owner is the one who possesses a garment, a house, etc., but a king owns and controls owners and their possessions. Thus, the real bliss lies in having a dominion. If we ponder on that issue, we understand Allah’s saying: 'And if you were to look around, you would see bliss and great wealth.' (al-Insan: 20) Thus, if one is deprived of having a dominion in this worldly life, he will have it in the Hereafter. One will have the dominion over the pleasures around him and also over the boys, youths and beautiful-eyed maidens.

So, a believer will have dominion in paradise. Someone may live amidst pleasure, abundant provision and luxury, but he does not have dominion over those who serve him. In paradise, however, the righteous will have a dominion, high position and power to the extent that angels will seek their permission to come into their places to greet them. How great this bounty is! Al-Kalbi said, 'The great dominion means that one of angels comes as a messenger from Allah with a bounty like clothes, food and drinks to one of the righteous. The angel seeks his permission to come into his home that Allah has prepared for him.' Is there a greater bliss and dominion than that? The Arabic word Al-Mulk (dominion) may also refer to the vastness of the dominion of every pious and righteous believer inside paradise as it was narrated that the lowest of the people of paradise in position will explore his dominion in one thousand-year journey.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says:

عَٰلِيَهُمْ ثِيَابُ سُندُسٍ خُضْرٌ وَإِسْتَبْرَقٌ ۖ وَحُلُّوٓا۟ أَسَاوِرَ
مِن فِضَّةٍ وَسَقَىٰهُمْ رَبُّهُمْ شَرَابًا طَهُورًا ﴿٢١﴾

They will wear garments of green silk and brocade;
they will be adorned with silver bracelets; their Lord will give them a pure drink [21] (The Quran, al-Insan: 21)

The word 'Allyahum indicates highness and supremacy as the garments of the faithful are that of richness, dignity, supremacy, glory and splendour. Whether the splendid garments are those of the people of paradise themselves or of those who serve them, these garments are included in the great dominion. Some scholars maintained that the word 'Allyahum means that the garments are on their bodies and touch them, but this is not necessarily applicable. Let us ponder on Allah's sayings: 'Do they not see the birds above them spreading their wings? (al-Mulk: 19); and 'We made the mountain tower high above them.' (an-Nisa': 154) So, the word fawqahum (above them*)* does not entail touching; rather, it means highness. The letter Alif in the word 'Allyahum gives an additional meaning of supremacy. It is an adverb for the place covered with garments, curtains and robes. Some other scholars maintained that the word 'Allyahum is an adverb modifying the word 'youths'. So, the garments of green silk and brocade are theirs. It indicates the great dominion whether it is an adverbial modifier for the word youths, the people of paradise or a description of the silk garments which are placed on their tents and couches.

The Arabic word As-Sundus (silk) is the fine, smooth silk, while Al-Istabraq (brocade) is the thick and rough kind of silk. As-Sundus may be weaved with golden threads. Allah Glorified is He mentions both smooth and rough silk by saying: 'They will sit on beds upholstered with brocade, the fruit of both gardens within easy reach.' (ar-Rahman: 54) Thus, as the inner covering of the beds are of brocade, the couches on which the people of paradise recline is covered with fine silk.

The first part of this verse discusses the garments of the people of paradise, so what about their adornments? Allah Glorified is He says: '… they will be adorned with silver bracelets.' (al-Insan: 21) 'There they will be adorned with bracelets of gold (al-Kahf: 31), and '… they shall be made to wear therein bracelets of gold and pearls, and their dress therein shall be silk.' (Fatir: 33) Thus, the bracelets are either of gold, silver or pearls. We notice that Allah Glorified is He uses the passive voice by saying: '… they will be adorned …' (al-Insan: 21) in the three verses of the chapters of al-Insan, al-Kahf and Fatir. This means that the people of paradise will not adorn themselves; rather, others will adorn them after they wear the garments themselves. In this regard, He the Almighty says: 'There they will wear green garments of fine silk and brocade.' (al-Kahf: 31) He uses the active voice because the action of wearing their garments is attributed to them.

The bracelets are worn around the wrist. The adornment is an extra pleasure that the people of paradise enjoy. An example of the adornments in this worldly life is the man who prepares his daughter for her marriage. He brings the requirements of life and then brings some luxuries and adornments like the carpets, the chandeliers, etc.

After the righteous wear their garments and are adorned with bracelets of gold, silver and pearls, Allah Glorified is He mentions their drinks, saying: '…Their Lord will give them a pure drink.' (al-Insan: 21) He the Most High immediately gives them their drinks. Since it is He Who gives them this drink, it deserves to be described as a pure one. Unlike the wine of the worldly life, the wine of paradise is free from all impurities, and neither touched by hands nor defiled by legs. Out of the purity of that drink, it does not turn into impure urine; rather, it comes out of their bodies as perspiration.

When Suhayl ibn ‘Abdullah was praying Al-'Isha' Prayer, he recited the saying of Allah Glorified is He: 'Their Lord will give them a pure drink.' (al-Insan: 21) He kept moving his mouth as if he was sucking something. When he finished his prayer, he was asked, 'Were you drinking or reciting?' He replied, 'By Allah, if I did not find the sweetness of the drink when I recite the verse mentioning it, I would not have recited it.'

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says:

إِنَّ هَٰذَا كَانَ لَكُمْ جَزَآءً وَكَانَ سَعْيُكُم مَّشْكُورًا ﴿٢٢﴾

[It will be said], ‘This is your reward.
Your endeavours are appreciated’ [22]

The reward of the righteous is the unlimited bliss and the great dominion for what they have done in days gone by. When one does an act of obedience, it could be difficult for him. Thus, one should remember the recompense he gets for such good deeds, namely the eternal relaxation and the good reward. He the Almighty says: 'This is the way Allah rewards the righteous people.' (an-Nahl: 31) It is an everlasting and eternal reward for believers who suffered in the cause of their faith and were oppressed and tortured. So, they deserve Allah's eternal happiness in the Hereafter. They also deserve to be thanked by Him, as He the Almighty says to them: 'Your endeavours are appreciated.' (al-Insan: 22) This is Allah's discourse to those who deserved His reward and recompense. The endeavour is the movement leading to the objective. Every creature in the universe has a distinctive endeavour, as Allah Glorified is He says: 'The ways you take differs greatly.' (al-Layl: 4) So, people's endeavours are different because everyone has his mission, way and movement.

We should note that the endeavour can be praiseworthy or blameworthy. An example of the blameworthy one is that mentioned in Allah’s saying: 'Who could be more wicked than those who prohibit the mention of Allah’s Name in His places of worship and strive to have them deserted?' (al-Baqara: 114) This verse shows that it is a blameworthy endeavour to prevent the mention of Allah the Exalted in His mosques and to strive to have it deserted in every possible way. These ways of destroying the mosques include taking some procedures to make them deserted by its people by the following: neglecting them, setting restriction on those who come to them, striving to destroy and burn them and making them purposeless and without any relation to the people.

Another example of a blameworthy endeavour is found in the saying of Allah Glorified is He: 'When he leaves, he sets out to spread corruption in the land, destroying crops and livestock. Allah does not like corruption.' (al-Baqara: 205) Therefore, his movement, endeavour, effort and time were aimed at causing mischief in the land and destroying crops and livestock.

As for the praiseworthy endeavour, whose goodness cannot be denied, it is like the endeavour of a father to feed and maintain his children. Likewise, it is a praiseworthy endeavour to seek the Hereafter and not the worldly life, taking the latter a means to get the reward in the former. The worldly life with all its endeavours, tiredness and effort is not the objective after which a person should strive. Rather, a person should strive to get the pleasure in the Hereafter which is far more superior to the worldly life.

One has the choice to go to the house of worship or to go to the gatherings of drinking intoxication and corruption as Allah Glorified is He has made a human being's limbs subjected to His Will in this worldly life. They do not disobey him regarding something good or evil. He has the choice to transgress or to spend money on the needy.

Thus, seeking the Hereafter is an endeavour and whoever strives after it will have his endeavour appreciated. Regarding this, Allah Glorified is He says: 'If anyone desires the life to come and strives after it as he should, as a true believer, his striving will be thanked.' (al-Isra': 19) It is known than thanking Allah the Almighty entails getting more blessings, as He says: 'If you are thankful, I will give you more.' (Ibrahim: 7) So, what do you think if the One Who thanks the servant for his obedience is Allah the Almighty?

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He directs our attention to the Quran by saying:

إِنَّا نَحۡنُ نَزَّلۡنَا عَلَيۡكَ ٱلۡقُرۡءَانَ تَنزِيلٗا ٢٣
فَٱصۡبِرۡ لِحُكۡمِ رَبِّكَ وَلَا تُطِعۡ مِنۡهُمۡ ءَاثِمًا أَوۡ كَفُورٗا ٢٤

We Our self have sent down this Quran to you [Prophet] in gradual revelation [23] Await your Lord's Judgment with patience; do not yield to any of these sinners or disbelievers [24]
(The Quran, al-Insan: 23-24)

In this verse, Allah the Exalted talks about an action that requires His perfect Attributes. Similarly, He the Almighty says: 'We have sent down the Quran, and We will guard it.' (al-Hijr: 9) However, when He speaks only about His Divinity or worshipping Him alone, He uses the singular pronoun as in His saying: 'I am Allah; there is no god but Me. So worship Me.' (Ta Ha: 14) The revelation of the Quran was not undertaken by only Allah's Omnipotence, Knowledge, Wisdom or Mercy; rather, this Action was done by all His perfect Attributes. Thus, the revelation of the Quran is a great action because it is sent down with Allah's Attributes of Wisdom, Knowledge, Sight, Lordship, Withholding and Giving.

The Arabic word nazzalna indicates the continuous and successive revelation of the Quran. It was revealed at once from the Preserved Tablet and then revealed gradually according to incidents. Accordingly, Allah Glorified is He says: 'It is a recitation that We have revealed in parts so that you can recite it to people at intervals; We have sent it down little by little' (al-Isra': 106) and 'We gave it to you in gradual revelation.' (al-Furqan: 32) The Quran was revealed in parts and gradually; it is a set of verses used to be revealed successively. This gradual way of revelation made it easy for the companions to memorise, understand and apply the Quranic verses.

In the same respect, Allah Glorified is He says: 'The disbelievers said, "Why was the Quran not sent down to him all at once?" We sent it in this way to strengthen your heart [Prophet]; we gave it to you in gradual revelation.' (al-Furqan: 32) He the Almighty has revealed the Quran in this way in order to strengthen the heart of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and that of believers. If it were revealed at once, it would only bear a fixed set of obligations despite the fact that the events of the Call of Islam are numerous and believers need to have their heart strengthened at all times. For this reason, He Glorified is He revealed the Quran gradually to strengthen the heart of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and that of believers.

Allah Glorified is He commands Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him by saying: 'Await your Lord's Judgment with patience …' (al-Insan: 24). Everyone adheres to the Quran will inevitably be inflicted with calamities that require great patience. He the Almighty commands him peace and blessings be upon him to be steadfast regarding His Decree of revealing the Quran to him. This Command indicates that the Prophet peace and blessings be upon him will be inflicted with what requires steadfastness and patience.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He prohibits Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him from yielding to any of disbelievers and sinners, saying: '…do not yield to any of these sinners or disbelievers.' (al-Insan: 24) 'Utba ibn Rabe'a and Al-Walid ibn Al-Mughira both said to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him 'If you have done that (calling to Islam) for gaining women and wealth, then abjure this matter.' 'Utba then said, 'I will give you (Muhammad) my daughter in marriage without a bride-gift.' Al-Walid also said, 'If you abjured such matter, I will give you money from my wealth till you are satisfied.' Thereupon, Allah Glorified is He revealed the verse under discussion.

Although Allah's Prohibitions of yielding to sinners and disbelievers was revealed in reference to the disbelievers of Mecca, the verse is not exclusive to them. We have to consider the generality of the wording and not the specificity of the cause of revelation. Even if the address is directed towards Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him the ummah (the followers of Islam) is included in this address. So, all the Muslims should not yield to any sinner or disbeliever.

A sinner is a disobedient person who commits sins and misdeeds. This does not necessarily mean that he is a disbeliever. As for a disbeliever, he is a sinful one who commits the major sin of disbelieving as well as the minor sins and misdeeds. This disbeliever has no discipline to control his behaviour as he does not believe in any Book, any Messenger or in the Day of Judgment. If he does not believe in these issues, why should he adhere to the Straight Path? Thus, Allah Glorified is He makes a distinction in the verse in question between a sinner and a disbeliever with the particle 'or', i.e. one should not obey a sinner or a disbeliever whether singly or in pairs.

The Arabic word Al-Kafur (disbeliever) expresses hyperbola and refers to the stern kind of disbelief. Such a disbeliever stubbornly adheres to his disbelief; he denies and rejects anything related to faith. He stubbornly disbelieves, calls other people to disbelief and bars them from the Way of Allah Glorified is He. A normal disbeliever is one who disbelieves but neither calls others to disbelief nor bars them from the Way of Allah Glorified is He. He may disbelieve in something and believe in another, but a stern disbeliever is the one whose disbelief transcends the limits.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says:

وَٱذۡكُرِ ٱسۡمَ رَبِّكَ بُكۡرَةٗ وَأَصِيلٗا ﴿٢٥﴾

Remember the name of your Lord at dawn and in the evening [25] (The Quran, al-Insan: 25)

Remembering Allah Glorified is He means glorifying and exalting Him, as He the Almighty says: '[Prophet], glorify the name of your Lord the Most High Who created [all things] in due proportion, Who determined their destinies and guided them.' (al-A'la: 1-3) How does a human being, who is a master in this universe, not glorify Him Glorified is He while all other created beings in the universe do so? He should be ashamed that all the created beings in the universe glorify Him, while he does not. So, he should add his glorification of Allah Glorified is He to that of all these created beings. One should remember his Lord so that He the Almighty remembers him in the exalted assembly of angels, as He Glorified is He says: 'So remember Me; I will remember you.' (al-Baqara: 152)

Thus, Allah Glorified is He wants His servants to remember Him often, and the more they remember and thank Him, the more He thanks them and gives them of His Bounties. He the Most High says in a Sacred Hadith: 'I am as my slave expects me to be, and I am with him when he remembers Me. If he remembers Me inwardly, I will remember him inwardly, and if he remembers Me in an assembly, I will remember him in a better assembly (i.e., in the assembly of angels).'

So, the meaning of His saying: 'And remember the name of your Lord …' (al-Insan: 25) is that one should remember Him for everything: His Bounties, Bestowals, covering up one's faults, Mercy and accepting repentance. This verse is a reminder about the Creator's Bounties bestowed on us. He the Almighty raises you up and gives you of His innumerable and countless Blessings. Therefore, you should remember the Name of your Lord, for if you do not love Him for His religious Obligations, you have already loved Him for the bounties He has given you.

In this verse, Allah the Almighty says: 'And remember the name of your Lord at dawn and in the evening.' (al-Insan: 25) In another verse, He the Most High says: 'Believers, remember Allah often and glorify Him morning and evening.' (al-Ahzab: 41-42) It is as though He wants us to remember and glorify Him by uttering His Name during the night, at the beginning of the day and at its end.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says:

وَمِنَ ٱلَّيْلِ فَٱسْجُدْ لَهُۥ وَسَبِّحْهُ لَيْلًا طَوِيلًا ﴿٢٦﴾

Bow down before Him, and glorify Him at length by night [26] (The Quran, al-Insan: 26)

Allah the Exalted does not want to overburden believers by assigning to them what they cannot bear. Thus, He the Almighty does not command them to spend all the night worshipping, bowing and prostrating to Him. Rather, He commands them to spend only some part of the night praying to Him. In another verse, He says: 'And during the night wake up and pray, as an extra offering of your own.' (al-Isra': 79) Thus, He does not command believers to pray all the night, and He the Almighty even does not command Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him to do so. In this regard, He the Almighty says: 'You [Prophet], enfolded in your cloak! Stay up throughout the night, all but a small part of it, half, or a little less, or a little more; recite the Quran slowly and distinctly.' (al-Muzzammil: 1-4) In this verse, Allah Glorified is He commands him to pray throughout the night except for a small part thereof.

Bowing down to Allah the Almighty is the sign of submission and servitude to Him because you put the most honourable part of your body, namely your face, on the ground. This is a manifestation of your submission and humbleness. Thus, bowing down is the ultimate sign of submission, and it is an honour for a believer by which he elevates his position. Such a believer does not bow down to his peer or another creature; rather, he bows down to his Creator the Almighty.

Then, Allah Glorified is He commands Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him saying: '... and glorify Him at length by night.' (al-Insan: 26) Glorification means to exalt Him over what does not befit Him. Therefore, glorification should be a continuous action that never ceases. You find something wonderful in this verse. In the beginning of this verse, He commands believers to bow down and pray to Him only a part of the night, not all of it. However, when He commands them to glorify Him, He the Almighty says: 'And glorify Him at length by night.' (al-Insan: 26) Thus, one's glorification should not cease.

In fact, the entire universe is glorifying Allah the Exalted so you should not delay reaching the procession of the glorifiers. The chapter we are discussing is called al-Insan (man). It clarifies the way of a human being's success in the Hereafter. He Glorified is He says in another verse: 'Celebrate the praise of your Lord when you rise. Glorify Him at night and at the fading of the stars.' (at-Tur: 48-49) This is a command to keep glorifying Him until one rises to pray at night, saying, 'Subhan Allah (Glory is to Allah), Al-Hamdu lillah (Praise is to Allah) and Allahu Akbar (Allah is the Greatest).'

When Lady 'Aisha Allah be pleased with her was asked about the words by which Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him would begin his supererogatory prayer at night, she replied, 'You ask me about a thing of which no one asked me before you. When he stood up, he uttered the Takbir (Allah is the Greatest) ten times, and uttered 'Praise be to Allah' ten times, and uttered 'Glory be to Allah' ten times, and uttered 'There is no god but Allah' ten times, and sought forgiveness ten times and said, 'O Allah, forgive me, guide me, give me sustenance and keep me well.' He sought refuge in Allah from the hardship of standing before Allah on the Day of Judgment.'

After doing so, one should '… glorify Him at night and at the fading of the stars.' (at-Tur: 49) So it should be a lasting and continuous glorification you utter with your tongue until the stars fade away, the night ends and the signs of the dawn come. Afterwards, you pray the dawn prayer and remember and praise Allah the Exalted until sunrise.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says:

إِنَّ هَٰٓؤُلَآءِ يُحِبُّونَ ٱلۡعَاجِلَةَ وَيَذَرُونَ وَرَآءَهُمۡ يَوۡمٗا ثَقِيلٗا ﴿٢٧﴾

These people love the fleeting life. They put aside [all thoughts of] a Heavy Day [27]
(The Quran, al-Insan: 27)

The demonstrative pronoun 'these' in this verse refers to disbelievers about whom Allah Glorified is He says at the beginning of this chapter: 'We guided him to the right path, whether he was grateful or not. We have prepared chains, iron collars, and blazing Fire for the disbelievers.' (al-Insan: 3-4) We notice that He the Most High does not mention them after the fourth verse. Instead, He the Almighty mentions the righteous people's deeds and their reward. Then, in the verse number twenty-four, He the Almighty says: 'Await your Lord's Judgment with patience; do not yield to any of these sinners or disbelievers.' (al-Insan: 24) Thus, the word 'these' in the verse in question refers to either sinners or disbelievers.

Allah Glorified is He describes these disbelievers and sinners by saying: 'These people love the fleeting life.' (al-Insan: 27) He the Almighty describes the worldly life as fleeting because its pleasure is fleeting and short. These disbelievers love and strive for this fleeting worldly life that will come to an end instead of striving after the Hereafter. Therefore, a human being should not only think about his fleeting life in this world and its desires, but he should also prepare himself for the coming events of the Hereafter. If one loves the fleeting worldly life and does not think about the life to come, he does a great wrong to himself. What is the benefit of a fleeting and limited pleasure if compared with the unlimited punishment in the Hereafter? The problem does not lie in those who want to enjoy this worldly life lawfully; rather, it lies in those who want to enjoy it unlawfully. They love the fleeting pleasure and forget about the life to come. In this regard, He Glorified is He says: 'Seek the life to come by means of what Allah has granted you, but do not neglect your rightful share in this world.' (al-Qasas: 77)

Allah Glorified is He gives you innumerable blessings and provides you according to your share in this worldly life. So, if you seek this worldly life by what He the Almighty has provided you, this provision will run out. However, if you take it with you to the Hereafter, it will last as an eternal pleasure that never ceases to exist. When you love, embrace and cling to the pleasure of this worldly life, you should know that your pleasure will not last forever. Either you will leave it when you depart the whole worldly life or it will cease, rendering you a needy person. If you love and adore the wealth, for instance, and you want to have it forever, you should take it with you to the eternal life to be a lasting pleasure that never departs you. So, you should hastily try to make it precede you to the Hereafter.

Although Allah Glorified is He advises us to seek the Hereafter, this does not mean that we neglect our shares in this worldly life. Your share in this life constitutes the good deeds that will benefit you in the Hereafter. It is as if your share in this worldly life benefits your share in the Hereafter. In other words, one's worldly life serves his life to come.

The problem is that disbelievers, transgressors and evildoers mistakenly think that there is no punishment or Account. They do not think about Allah's Punishment and that is why you find them putting aside and neglecting to think of a heavy, difficult Day. They do not believe in that Day and are not concern about its coming; they totally neglect it. The Day of Judgment is very heavy upon disbelievers. It is the Day when they will be gathered to stand for the Account. Polytheists love living for a long time in the worldly life while neglecting to work for the Hereafter to be saved from the punishment. Therefore, they neither believe nor work for the Day of Judgment.

Someone may ask, 'Why does Allah say that disbelievers put behind them the Day of Judgment, while it will come in the future?' Some scholars said that they put aside working for that heavy Day and neglect to do good deeds for the Hereafter. The Arabic word wara means the hardship which occurs in the past or the future. The Day of Judgment is pursuing them even if they lived for a long time. They neglect that Day and do not work for it, whereas it pursues them, and they will not escape from it. It will inevitably seize them when they find it before them to be held accountable and punished.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says:

نَّحۡنُ خَلَقۡنَٰهُمۡ وَشَدَدۡنَآ أَسۡرَهُمۡۖ وَإِذَا شِئۡنَا بَدَّلۡنَآ أَمۡثَٰلَهُمۡ تَبۡدِيلًا ﴿٢٨﴾

Yet We created them; We strengthened their constitution;
if We please, We can replace such people completely [28]
(The Quran, al-Insan: 28)

In this verse, Allah Glorified is He mentions the manifestations of His Omnipotence to disbelievers and deniers by saying: 'Yet, We created them; We strengthened their constitution ...' (al-Insan: 28). Their strong joints and power are included in their strengthened constitution. He the Most High has created them precisely and has given them the senses of sight, hearing, taste and smell. He the Almighty has enabled them to move their hands and legs and given them living hearts and working systems inside their bodies. Furthermore, He the Almighty has given them skin that enables them to feel and nerves that transmit the feeling of desire or pain to the mind. Then, it perceives all that and orders the limbs to do certain actions. Allah Glorified is He has strengthened their joints with nerves, veins and skin so that their joints are not harmed during movement. Moreover, He the Almighty has strengthened their private parts so that their excrement and urine do not flow except when they want to relieve themselves or when they are inflicted with a disease.

Then Allah the Almighty says: '… if We please, We can replace such people completely.' (al-Insan: 28) If He the Exalted pleases, He can cause disbelievers to perish and replace them with other people who would be different in their deeds. They would not neglect the Day of Judgment and would work for it.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says:

إِنَّ هَٰذِهِۦ تَذۡكِرَةٞۖ فَمَن شَآءَ ٱتَّخَذَ إِلَىٰ رَبِّهِۦ سَبِيلٗا ﴿٢٩﴾

This is a reminder. Let whoever wishes, take the way to his Lord [29] (The Quran, al-Insan: 29)

Allah Glorified is He says in another verse: 'It was not to distress you [Prophet] that We sent down the Quran to you but as a reminder for those who hold Allah in awe.' (Ta Ha: 2-3). Thus, He has sent down the Quran as a reminder to those who fear Him out of glorifying Him.

In this verse, Allah the Almighty says: '… Let whoever wishes take the way to his Lord' (al-Insan: 29). This verse means that whoever wants to benefit from that reminder should take a way that leads him to his objective, namely receiving guidance through the verses of the Quran. Defining the objective is meant to clarify the way before a human being to take the right way leading to the objective. When you ponder on this verse, you find that He the Exalted mentions 'the way' as an indefinite pronoun because the ways of goodness are numerous like praying, fasting, paying the prescribed alms or helping the needy. As long as you have followed the Way of belief in Allah the Almighty and Prophet Muhammad, you should take the way of goodness and obedience. In fact, the Way of Allah the Most High is safer and easier than the ways leading to the punishment of the hellfire.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says:

وَمَا تَشَآءُونَ إِلَّآ أَن يَشَآءَ ٱللَّهُۚ إِنَّ ٱللَّهَ كَانَ عَلِيمًا حَكِيمٗا ﴿٣٠﴾

But you will only wish to do so if God wills – God is all knowing, all wise [30] (The Quran, al-Insan: 30)

As Allah Glorified is He affirms the free will of a human being, saying: 'Let whoever wishes take the way to his Lord.' (al-Insan: 29) He the Almighty affirms in this verse that human will is dependent on His Divine Will. So, if

He the Most High does not will something to happen, we cannot will it, as He the Almighty says: 'But you will only wish to do so if Allah wills …' (al-Insan: 30). Therefore, no one can go against His Will, and every action belongs to Him as He the Almighty is the Creator of people's will. Only what Allah Glorified is He wishes takes place in the universe. Thus, a disbeliever's choice to disbelieve was not made against Allah's Will, for He the Almighty has created this choice for him.

In fact, a human being is coerced to do certain actions and free in others. So, neither the poor can become rich, nor the sick can be healed except by Allah's Will. Also, the weak cannot become stronger against His Will. For this reason, Allah Glorified is He says: 'Do not say of anything, "I will do that tomorrow", without adding, "Allah willing."' (al-Kahf: 23-24) So, you should beware of saying, 'I will do something', without referring it to the Will of Allah the Exalted as you do nothing except by His Will. Thus, you should not promise someone except with saying, 'Allah willing.'

Allah the Almighty affirms that He is eternally All Knowing, All Wise. He is unchangeable, and as long as He is All Knowing and All Wise from eternity, He will remain so forever. If any of His Attributes was preceded by the linking verb 'to be' in the past form was, you should not think that it is a description of something happened in the past; rather, we should say that He was and still is All Knowing and All Wise. This is because He the Almighty is All Knowing from eternity before the existence of something to be known. Likewise, He the Exalted is All Wise before the existence of anything needing Wisdom. A wise person is necessarily knowledgeable; otherwise, how can he wisely manage what he does not know?

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He concludes the chapter by saying:

يُدْخِلُ مَن يَشَآءُ فِى رَحْمَتِهِۦ ۚ وَٱلظَّٰلِمِينَ أَعَدَّ لَهُمْ عَذَابًا أَلِيمًۢا ﴿٣١﴾

He admits whoever He will into His Mercy and has prepared a painful torment for the disbelievers [31] (The Quran, al-Insan: 31)

Allah Glorified is He admits whomever He wishes into His Mercy, which is His Religion or His paradise. Embracing His religion entails getting His paradise according to His Will. Thus, there is no contradiction between interpreting His Mercy here as embracing His religion or entering His paradise. Believers enter paradise only by His Mercy and Will, not only by their deeds. Thus, entering paradise is due to His Benevolence and Grace, not due to believers' deeds.

The matter is dependent on the Will of Allah Glorified is He. He the Most High has not wished to admit to His Mercy the one whom He knows he would choose the way of misguidance. On the contrary, He the Almighty has wished to admit to His Mercy whom He knows would choose the Way of Guidance.

Allah Glorified is He says: '…and has prepared a painful torment for disbelievers.' (al-Insan: 31) He the Almighty has prepared a painful and severe punishment in the hellfire for those who wronged themselves by their disbelief and polytheism. He the Almighty details this punishment in the verses of the chapter of al-Insan. It is He Who has prepared a painful punishment for them. Every action derives its strength from that of its doer. Therefore, if an act of punishing is attributed to Allah Glorified is He with His absolute Power and Omnipotence, then the punishment will be unbearable and the wrongdoer will not find a deterrent against it.

al-Mursalat

In the Name of God,(1) the Most Merciful, the Dispenser of Mercy

The chapter of al-Mursalat.

Allah Glorified is He says:

وَٱلۡمُرۡسَلَٰتِ عُرۡفٗا ﴿١﴾ فَٱلۡعَٰصِفَٰتِ عَصۡفٗا ﴿٢﴾ وَٱلنَّٰشِرَٰتِ نَشۡرٗا ﴿٣﴾
فَٱلۡفَٰرِقَٰتِ فَرۡقٗا ﴿٤﴾ فَٱلۡمُلۡقِيَٰتِ ذِكۡرًا ﴿٥﴾ عُذۡرًا أَوۡ نُذۡرًا ﴿٦﴾

By the [winds] sent forth in swift succession [1] violently storming [2] scattering far and wide [3] separating forcefully [4] delivering a reminder [5]
as a proof or a warning [6] (The Quran, al-Mursalat: 1-6)

In this verse, Allah Glorified is He swears by the wind, saying: 'By the [winds] sent forth in swift succession' (al-Mursalat: 1). He the Almighty sends it successively like the mane of the horse. Sometimes it is sent as a mercy to bring about prosperity and welfare to the people, as He the Most High says: 'It is Allah Who sends the winds, bearing good news of His coming Grace, and when they have gathered up the heavy (2) clouds, We drive them to a dead land where We cause rain to fall, bringing out all kinds of crops.' (al-A'raf: 57) This is the wind which comes with prosperity and good news about Allah's Grace.

(1) The Islamic conception of 'Allah' is not the same as the Christian and Jewish conception of 'God'. However, the word 'Allah' does not refer to a tribal god or God of only Muslims, it refers to the Creator of the whole world, the One God (who has no son). We prefer, however, to use 'Allah' rather than 'God' as it has a unique character: it cannot be used to refer to any false gods and does not have any derivatives like goddess, gods, etc. It is a unique word used solely to describe the One God of this universe.

(2) The Arabic word Ath-Thiqal means the clouds full with abundant water. We find their colour grey because of the water they carry. See Al-Qamus Al-Qawim 1/108.

As for the wind coming with evil, Allah the Almighty describes them as violent storms which blow very strongly and violently. These storms are not like the light and gentle winds; rather, they are strong ones beating what confronts them. We see the like of these storms in desert roads. When a storm blows there, it covers the roads with sands and impedes the transportation until this layer of sand is removed from the road. If it blows on an ocean, it causes a tsunami in which the waves get very high, and the storm beats the big ships. Subsequently, ports are closed, and the movement of the ships and hunting are prevented.

Allah Glorified is He also swears by saying: 'scattering far and wide' (al-Mursalat: 3). It is a wind that spreads the heavy clouds to bring rain. Scattering is the opposite of folding. Some recited the word nashran (far and wide) as bishra (good news). Their argument is that the winds bear the good news as in the saying of Allah: 'Another of His signs is that He sends out the winds bearing good news.' (ar-Rum: 46) Thus, the winds bring the glad tiding of the falling of the rain.

The winds of mercy are of three kinds: first, the one that scatters the wind far and wide; second, the wind that bears good news; third, the wind of mercy that blows to everything in the world.

Allah the Almighty then says: 'separating forcefully' (al-Mursalat: 4). These winds forcefully disperse the clouds so each part goes to a different side of the horizon. Thus, these storms are very strong that they uproot trees and destroy homes. Meanwhile, people feel great awe in their hearts and take refuge with Allah Glorified is He. As this storm made them remember Him, then it is as if they have delivered a reminder to the hearts.

Therefore, winds illustrate the bounties of Allah Glorified is He. They drive these bounties, presented in the clouds carrying water to a people whose land had dried. Thereupon, they cause welfare and prosperity, and thus, they remember the Grace of Allah bestowed on them. In this regard, He the Most High says: 'It is Allah Who sends the winds, bearing good news of His coming Grace, and when they have gathered up the heavy clouds, We drive them to a dead land where We cause rain to fall, bringing out all kinds of crops.' (al-A'raf: 57)

We notice that Allah Glorified is He mentions some descriptions in the verses of al-Mursalat that can be an argument for those who maintained that these verses refer to the wind. These descriptive words are sending which refers to the wind: bearing good news, according to one of the recitations, along with calling for reflection and delivering a reminder. Thus, wind affects the one who reflects on it as a sign of Allah Glorified is He and thereupon he mentions and praises Him for His Grace.

Allah the Almighty then says: 'as a proof or a warning.' (al-Mursalat: 6) Thus, these winds are a form of Allah's establishment of argument against the people. The Arabic word 'izar means wiping out the faults. Its root comes from giving excuses in order to be free from a sin as in Allah's saying: 'They said, "In order to be free from your Lord's blame."' (al-A'raf: 164) Here, the callers admonished them in order to be free from Allah's blame after they had delivered the Message. Then, no one has an excuse that it had not reached him. These winds are sent as a warning and a proof as the reminder includes both of them.

We have contextualized these verses as descriptions for the winds sent by Allah Glorified is He. This is because they are beating violating, scattering and dispersing the clouds in every direction to reach far countries. Also, they remind about the graces and the calamities ordained by Him the Most High. If the wind is a good one, it blows with graces, but if it is an evil one, it blows with calamities.

Although all these descriptions are related to the wind, some scholars interpret all these verses differently as referring to angels. Other scholars maintained that some verses refer to the wind and the rest of them refer to angels. Some other scholars also said that these verses refer to prophets. Some others still believed that they refer to the Quran as its verses which are sent down successively and violently strike the hearts with its reminder. It also spreads the light of guidance and knowledge to the hearts of believers. Furthermore, the verses of the Quran differentiate between the truth and falsehood. Moreover, they deliver faith, light and love of obedience to the heart of the believers as a proof and argument against Allah's servants.

After these verses by which Allah the Almighty swears, He mentions what He swears about by saying:

إِنَّمَا تُوعَدُونَ لَوَٰقِعٌ ﴿٧﴾

What you are promised will come to pass [7]
(The Quran, al-Mursalat: 7)

Allah Glorified is He says in another verse: 'What you are promised is sure to come …' (al- An'am: 134). What He promises to come to pass will inevitably happen and be a reality. It will take place in the real world, and people will see it themselves. Moreover, in another verse, He Glorified is He says: 'What you [people] are promised is true.' (adh-Dhariyat: 5) Thus, what He has promised the people is true and will occur. Whether He the Almighty swears by the wind, prophets, Quran or angels, swearing by all of these verses indicates the mightiness of the Day of Judgment about which He has sworn. We should take into account that He only swears by what is great about something great.

The Arabic word waqi' (will come to pass) has a strong impact on the ears and the hearts and causes the hearts to tremble. For this reason, the Day of Judgment is called Al-Waqi'a (The coming Hour), which is also the name of one of the Quranic chapters. Al-Hasan Al-Basri stated, 'When 'Umar ibn Al-Khattab Allah be pleased with him recited: '[Prophet] your Lord's punishment is coming—it cannot be put off.' (at-Tur: 7-8), he fell ill for twenty days during which the visitors came to see him.(1)

Subsequently, Allah Glorified is He says:

فَإِذَا ٱلنُّجُومُ طُمِسَتۡ ﴿٨﴾ وَإِذَا ٱلسَّمَآءُ فُرِجَتۡ ﴿٩﴾ وَإِذَا ٱلۡجِبَالُ نُسِفَتۡ ﴿١٠﴾

When the stars are dimmed [8] and the sky is torn apart [9]
when the mountains are turned to dust [10]
(The Quran, al-Mursalat: 8 - 10)

The first thing that happens of the events of the Day of Judgment is the dimming of the stars which adorn and illuminate the sky. Then, the world will darken and be in a pitch of darkness. Dimming of the stars means that their light and illumination ceased to exist. When someone wants to strike fear in the hearts of people, he makes the place dark so that they cannot see what is around them. This would be difficult for them as they do not know where to go. Similarly, Allah Glorified is He says: 'If it had been Our Will, We could have taken away their sight. They would have struggled to find the way, but how could they have seen.' (Ya Sin: 66) So, the first thing that will happen to them is that Allah Glorified is He will take away their sight so they will not see anything. Afterwards, they will struggle to find the way like blind people who collide with each other and do not know where to go. Thus, the dimming of the stars is the first scene of the Day of Judgment when the sky and the earth will be in a pitch of darkness.

As for the sky, Allah the Almighty says: 'and the sky is torn apart' (al-Mursalat: 9). This means that the sky will split apart. Another possible interpretation is that the sky will be opened for the coming down of angels. This second meaning is referred to in the next chapter an-Naba', where He the Almighty says: 'The sky will open up like wide portals.' (an-Naba': 19) Thus, the opening up of the sky is meant for the coming down of angels for the Account. They will go down and surround the earth which will be turned into another earth. So, when the sky is torn apart, angels will surround the earth from all its sides, a fact which is quite clear in His saying: 'On that Day the Great Event will come to pass. The sky will be torn apart on that Day, it will be so frail. The angels will be on all sides of it and, on that Day.' (al-Haqqa: 15-17)

Afterwards, Allah the Almighty says: 'when the mountains are turned to dust.' (al-Mursalat: 10) We notice that He the Almighty mentions the mountains which are the most powerful and firm manifestations in the world. Otherwise, there are many other powerful and firm things like high buildings and skyscrapers. Therefore, if He will turn the mountains to dust and will eliminate them from the surface of the earth, other things will necessarily be eliminated. A human being looks at the mountains with awe and magnification out of their power and firmness. People also talk about the power, the height and the firmness of the Alps, the Himalaya, Atlas and Taurus.

These mountains will turn into dust and the earth we are living on will be destabilized. So what will human beings do? Where will they go? The sky above us will be torn apart and opened up for angels to get down in order to fulfil the Promise and the Warning of Allah Glorified is He. Now, how can a human bring disbelieve? The mountains will turn to dust and will be like the tufts of wool. They will be like scattered grains of dust that the winds blow.

Subsequently, Allah Glorified is He says:

وَإِذَا ٱلرُّسُلُ أُقِّتَتۡ ١١ لِأَيِّ يَوۡمٍ أُجِّلَتۡ ١٢
لِيَوۡمِ ٱلۡفَصۡلِ ١٣ وَمَآ أَدۡرَىٰكَ مَا يَوۡمُ ٱلۡفَصۡلِ ١٤

And the messengers given their appointed time [11] for what Day has all this been set? [12]
The Day of Decision [13] What will explain to you what the Day of Decision is? [14] (The Quran, al-Mursalat: 11-14)

Allah the Almighty says: 'And the messengers given their appointed time.' (al-Mursalat: 11) Messengers will be given an appointed time that no one knows except Allah Glorified is He. It is the appointment of Resurrection, the Gathering, the Account and the Punishment. The Arabic word Uqqitat is derived from Al-Miqat (appointment) and Waqt (time). In this connection, Allah Glorified is He says: 'Say [Prophet], "The earliest and latest generations will all be gathered on a predetermined Day."' (al-Waqi'a: 49-50) Thus, all the earliest and latest generations will be gathered on the Day of Judgment.

Whoever ponders on the Quran will find wonders. In the verse of the chapter of al-Waqi'a, Allah Glorified is He talks about the Day of Judgment by saying: 'The earliest and latest generations will all be gathered on a predetermined Day.' (al-Waqi'a: 49-50) However, regarding the gathering of the sorcerers of Pharaoh, He Glorified is He says: 'The sorcerers were [to be] assembled at the appointed time on a certain day.' (ash-Shu'ara': 38) In the first verse, He says: 'Ila Miqat' (on a predetermined Day) but in the second He says: 'Limiqat' (to the appointed time). Regarding the assembly of the sorcerers of Pharaoh, He the Exalted uses the proposition Al-Lam (at) to indicate that the assembly will take place shortly. As for the Day of Judgment—promised to come from the beginning of the creation—He the Almighty uses the preposition Ila (to) which indicates that it will take a long time to happen. In fact, the increase in the wording entails an increase in the meaning. Although the Day of Judgment will happen after a long time, it will inevitably come to pass, as He the Almighty says: 'What you are promised will come to pass.' (al-Mursalat: 7)

Then Allah Glorified is He asks a question that He certainly knows its answer: 'for what Day has all this been set?' (al-Mursalat: 12) This is a question about the time until which the Day of Judgment or the Hour has been postponed. It is meant to show the greatness of that Day in which the judgment and the reward will take place. The Day in this verse refers to the appointed time.

Allah the Almighty then says: 'The Day of Decision.' (al-Mursalat: 13) This is the Day on which He the Almighty will judge between the differing and disputing people. He is fully able to judge fairly between them. When will this time of Decision or Judgment happen? Is it in this worldly life? No. This is because the worldly life is not prepared for the Account, Recompense and Judging on the issues of faith. The Judgment between the people will be on the Day of Resurrection which all the people will attend.

In this connection, He Glorified is He says: 'Allah will judge between them on the Day of Resurrection concerning their differences.' (al-Baqara: 113) Thus, it is Allah the Exalted Who will judge between the people. He the Almighty does not have any interest or desire to incline towards a certain person in His Judgment. In fact, the judgment between people should be devoid of any inclination. The fair judgment is to stand in the middle without any inclination or prejudice.

Allah Glorified is He emphasizes the greatness of the Day of Judgment by saying: 'What will explain to you what the Day of Decision is?' (al-Mursalat: 14) One does not really comprehend the might and the calamities of the Day of Judgment. How could he know the mightiness of that Day while it is incomparable in its difficulty and greatness? Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him is the most honourable creature, but he does not fully comprehend the difficulties of that Day. He peace and blessings be upon him does not know the details of its hardships even if he knows them in general.

Subsequently, Allah Glorified is He says:

وَيْلٌ يَوْمَئِذٍ لِّلْمُكَذِّبِينَ ﴿١٥﴾

Woe, on that Day, to those who denied the truth! [15] (The Quran, al-Mursalat: 15)

This verse is mentioned ten times in this chapter, starting from this verse in question. This entire chapter is a strong warning and threat to deniers of the Day of Judgment. The Arabic word wayl (woe) means the perdition and punishment. It is also used when human beings show regret for neglecting the punishment as in Allah's saying: 'They said, "Woe to us! What a record this is! It does not leave any deed, small or large, unaccounted for!"' (al-Kahf: 49) and 'Woe to us! We were not aware of this at all. We were wrong.' (al-Anbiya': 97) These woes express their regret when they see the punishment. It is said that Al-Wayl is a valley in the hellfire in which human being falls for forty years—we take refuge with Allah Glorified is He.

When you see the word yawma'idhin (on that Day), you should know that it compensates for an omitted phrase which is the following: when the Day of Judgment comes. On that Day, 'those who disbelieved and disobeyed the Prophet will wish that the earth could swallow them up; they will not be able to hide anything from Allah.' (an-Nisa': 42) Thus, it is a mighty Day when everyone will stand before the Lord of the Worlds. Allah Glorified is He calls that Day a dreadful Day, saying: 'What suffering will come to those who obscure the truth when a dreadful Day arrives! (Maryam: 37)

It will be witnessed by all people unlike the punishment in this worldly life, which is only seen by those who are present, and no one from the earlier or later generations witnesses it. The punishment of the Hereafter, on the contrary, will be the dreadful scene seen by all people. Allah Glorified is He says about those who denied the truth: 'But if he is one of those who denied the truth and went astray, he will be welcomed with scalding water. He will burn in Hell. This is the certain truth.' (al-Waqi'a: 92-95)

Every denier who is going astray will be inflicted with scalding water, be burnt in the Hell and suffer its punishment; this is the certain truth. When they suffer the punishment for their denial of the truth, they will say: 'If only we could be sent back, we would not reject the revelations of our Lord, but be amongst the believers.' (al-A'raf: 27)

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says:

أَلَمْ نُهْلِكِ ٱلْأَوَّلِينَ ﴿١٦﴾ ثُمَّ نُتْبِعُهُمُ ٱلْآخِرِينَ ﴿١٧﴾
كَذَٰلِكَ نَفْعَلُ بِٱلْمُجْرِمِينَ ﴿١٨﴾ وَيْلٌ يَوْمَئِذٍ لِّلْمُكَذِّبِينَ ﴿١٩﴾

Did We not destroy the first [of them]? [16]
We shall make the last follow them [17] this is how We deal with the guilty. [18] Woe, on that Day, to those who denied the truth! [19] (The Quran, al-Mursalat: 16 - 19)

The Arabic word Al-Awalun (the early generations) are the previous nations that denied Allah's Faith, the Books and the Messengers. In this verse, He the Most High asks the people of Mecca who did not believe in Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him: 'Did we not destroy the first [of them]?' They had known about the punishment of the previous nations and what happened to them because of their denial and disbelief in the truth. He the Almighty has destroyed them after denying His messengers: some by the shriek, causing the land to swallow them or defaming them. The early generations are the people of Nuh (Noah), 'Ad and Thamud who are the ancient nations. As for the latter nations, they are the people of Pharaoh, Lut (Lot) and others who are closer to the time of Prophet Muhammad's Mission.

Allah the Almighty then says: 'this is how We deal with the guilty.' (al-Mursalat: 18) He the Most High could inflict the same punishment on the disbelievers of Quraysh who denied Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him disbelieved in Allah Glorified is He and barred others from believing in Him. Their disbelief and denial of the truth are the major crimes they committed besides other minor legal and religious crimes. As long as one disbelieves and denies Allah's Way of Guidance, you can expect that he will do all the major sins like murder, adultery and theft. So, he leads his life to satisfy his desires and lusts. For this reason, He Glorified is He warns such disbelievers and wrongdoers against the woes by saying 'Woe, on that Day, to those who denied the truth!' (al-Mursalat: 19)

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He reminds them that He has created and brought them into existence by saying:

أَلَمۡ نَخۡلُقكُّم مِّن مَّآءٖ مَّهِينٖ ﴿٢٠﴾ فَجَعَلۡنَٰهُ فِي قَرَارٖ مَّكِينٍ ﴿٢١﴾ إِلَىٰ قَدَرٖ مَّعۡلُومٖ ﴿٢٢﴾
فَقَدَرۡنَا فَنِعۡمَ ٱلۡقَٰدِرُونَ ﴿٢٣﴾ وَيۡلٞ يَوۡمَئِذٖ لِّلۡمُكَذِّبِينَ ﴿٢٤﴾

Did We not make you from an underrated fluid [20] which We housed in a safe lodging [21] for a determined period? [22] We determine [it]: how excellently We determine! [23] Woe, on that Day, to those who denied the truth! [24] (The Quran, al-Mursalat: 20 - 24)

Why does the person disbelieve and behave arrogantly with Allah Glorified is He? Why does he deny His messengers, while He has created him from underrated fluid? Here, He describes the fluid by which He has created human beings as underrated because it flows in the channel of the urine and goes to the same end if it was not placed in the womb. The sperm is also described as weak. Despite the weakness of the origin of a human being, He has given him the hearing, sight, mind and ability to think. He the Almighty has strengthened him, his muscles, nerves and bones. In this regard, He the Almighty says: 'Yet, We created them. We strengthened their constitution; if We please, We can replace such people completely.' (al-Insan: 28)

Allah Glorified is He says: 'which We housed in a safe lodging.' (al-Mursalat: 21) He the Almighty has housed this underrated fluid, which is the sperm, in a safe lodging by paving a way for it to get to the womb. This realizes His Will to create a human being. He Glorified is He calls the womb 'safe lodging' because the sperm of the man stays therein for nine months or less after the fertilization of the ovum. It is a safe lodging that He Glorified is He has made suitable for the dwelling of the sperm in order to be a clinging form and then a piece of flesh which later becomes bones garmented with flesh. Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He will make him into another form by giving him the hearing and sight. Thus, the sperm is preserved in a lodging place which is the womb that Allah Glorified is He created in a special form and protected by the bones of the pelvic. This made it suitable to receive the sperm and preserve it.

Allah the Almighty then says: 'for a determined period' (al-Mursalat: 22). The sperm stays in the womb for a determined period which is the period of pregnancy when a woman bears her fetus in her womb. It is a well-known period after which a woman delivers a baby at the time determined by Allah Glorified is He. In this verse, the Arabic word Al-Qadr is the place and time appointed to something.

Allah Glorified is He then says: 'We determine [it]: how excellently We determine!' (al-Mursalat: 23) He the Almighty is fully able to create a human being perfectly. He has made him upright, not walking on four legs like cattle. Furthermore, He the Almighty has made His creation suitable for living in any environment as you can see one living in a hut, a tent, a cave or even a skyscraper. Some recited the word qadarna (to be able to) as qaddarna (to determine), as in the saying of Allah Glorified is He: 'We have determined phases for the moon until finally it becomes like an old date-stalk.' (Ya Sin: 39) Some other scholars preferred the recitation of qadarna as Allah Glorified is He then says 'Na'ma Al-Qadirun' (How Powerful we are) and does not say Al-Muqadirun. Both of these interpretations are possible because the One Who is fully able to create something in good form is truly great in His Power, Determination and Knowledge.

Allah the Almighty then says: 'Woe on that Day to those who denied the truth!' (al-Mursalat: 24) If He the Almighty is eternally able to create a human being from an underrated, weak fluid—which He houses, when it spurts out of the man, in a safe lodging until a time determined by Him—why do disbelievers deny the truth?

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He reminds them about the earth they are living on by saying:

أَلَمۡ نَجۡعَلِ ٱلۡأَرۡضَ كِفَاتًا ﴿٢٥﴾ أَحۡيَآءٗ وَأَمۡوَٰتٗا ﴿٢٦﴾ وَجَعَلۡنَا فِيهَا رَوَٰسِيَ
شَٰمِخَٰتٖ وَأَسۡقَيۡنَٰكُم مَّآءٗ فُرَاتٗا ﴿٢٧﴾ وَيۡلٞ يَوۡمَئِذٖ لِّلۡمُكَذِّبِينَ ﴿٢٨﴾

Did We not make the earth a home [25] for the living and the dead? [26] Did We not place firm, lofty mountains on it and provide you with sweet water? [27] Woe, on that Day, to those who denied the truth! [28] (The Quran, al-Mursalat: 25 - 28)

Allah Glorified is He has assigned the earth to contain and include people whether they are alive or dead. It contains living beings when they live on its surface, and it contains the dead in its belly. The one who ponders the meaning of the word kaft (to contain) will find it wonderful. The workers use the bricks to build their homes. They stick bricks together with cement and use trees to make the roofs of their homes. All these materials come from the earth.

In this verse, we can note a point alluding to the gravity of the earth. The earth includes human beings and does not leave them. It is as if they are connected to it; if they fall down, it will embrace them, and they never get out of it. The earth also contains the dead in their graves and does not abandon them except on the Day of Resurrection as Allah Glorified is He says: 'When graves turn inside out' (al-Infitar: 4) and 'Does he not know that when the contents of graves burst forth?' (al-'Adiyat: 9)

Allah Glorified is He then says: 'Did We not place firm, lofty mountains on it [the earth]?' (al-Mursalat: 27). He the Almighty has preserved the earth for created beings by placing mountains that stabilize it and do not make it shake or shift with them. Regarding this, He the Almighty says: 'He has made mountains stand firm on the earth to prevent it shaking under you.' (an-Nahl: 15) If the earth had been created in a firm form, we would not have needed firm mountains to stabilize it. However, the earth was created as moveable being which is exposed to shaking. So, if the mountains had not existed, the earth would not have lasted.

The Arabic word Al-Shamikhat refers to the high, lofty mountains. Every high thing is called shamikh (lofty). We notice that Allah the Exalted describes mountains with one of their descriptions, namely their loftiness. Thus, while any human being is created from the sperm of the man which is placed in the woman's womb, He has created the mountains which are bigger, higher and loftier than him. They have been created in order that human beings live on the stable earth.

Allah Glorified is He then says: '… and provide you with sweet water?' (al-Mursalat: 27) This verse raises a question, which is, 'Why does Allah Glorified is He mention the sweet water after the mountains?' The reason is that the heavy rains fall on the summits of the high, lofty mountains and then descend on the surface of the earth to flow in the rivers. All the rivers come through this way. The Nile River, for example, comes from the summits of the mountains of Abyssinia from which water descends and gathers together to form the Nile River. The Arabic word Al-Furat refers to the sweet and palatable water that man, cattle and plants use to quench their thirst. He Glorified is He says about such water: 'The two bodies of water are not alike: one is palatable, sweet and pleasant to drink, while the other salty and bitter.' (Fatir: 12) Someone may ask, 'Are there sweet water or rivers in the Arabian Peninsula?' Of course not! However, they are around the Arabian Peninsula in Iraq, Syria and Egypt. The people of Mecca knew these rivers, but they were bringing the water from wells.

Allah the Almighty then says: 'Woe, on that Day, to those who denied the truth!' (al-Mursalat: 28) Are disbelievers still denying, disbelieving and rejecting the truth? One should know that the earth will turn into another earth, the mountains will turn to dust and the sweet and palatable water will become salty and bitter. Thus, He the Almighty says: 'Woe, on that Day, to those who denied the truth!' (al-Mursalat: 28)

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says:

ٱنطَلِقُوٓا۟ إِلَىٰ مَا كُنتُم بِهِۦ تُكَذِّبُونَ ﴿٢٩﴾ ٱنطَلِقُوٓا۟ إِلَىٰ ظِلٍّ ذِى ثَلَـٰثِ شُعَبٍ ﴿٣٠﴾
لَّا ظَلِيلٍ وَلَا يُغْنِى مِنَ ٱللَّهَبِ ﴿٣١﴾ إِنَّهَا تَرْمِى بِشَرَرٍ كَٱلْقَصْرِ ﴿٣٢﴾
كَأَنَّهُۥ جِمَـٰلَتٌ صُفْرٌ ﴿٣٣﴾ وَيْلٌ يَوْمَئِذٍ لِّلْمُكَذِّبِينَ ﴿٣٤﴾

They will be told, ‘Go to that which you used to deny! [29] Go to a shadow of smoke!’ It rises in three columns; [30] no shade does it give, nor relief from the flame; [31] it shoots out sparks as large as tree- trunks [32] and as bright as copper. [33] Woe, on that Day, to those who denied the truth! [34] (The Quran, al-Mursalat: 29 - 34)

Despite disbelievers' denial of the Resurrection, the Account and the Punishment, they will face them as a reality and a truth; their denial will not negate that truth. Allah the Almighty has warned them and affirmed this matter to them, but they did not believe in it. On the Day of Judgment, they will face what they used to deny and mistakenly think it will not come to pass. Regarding this, He the Almighty says: 'They will be told, "Go to that which you used to deny!'" (al-Mursalat: 29) They will rush out of their graves, as He the Almighty says: 'On the Day when the earth will be torn apart, letting them rush out.' (Qaf: 44) So, they will be commanded to go to what they used to deny. The Arabic word Al-'Intilaq in this verse means to run fast like when the horse is released from its bond.

Allah Glorified is He then says: 'Go to a shadow of smoke!' (al-Mursalat: 30) This is a command for disbelievers to go to a shadow of black smoke and burning fire. When the smoke of hellfire grows up, it will be divided into three columns. They will be commanded to go to one of them until the end of the Account. On the contrary, the righteous will be under the shade of Allah's Throne. It has been said that a spark will get out of the fire and will be divided into three columns: one before the disbelievers, the second on their right and the third on their left.

It is the scorching and hot shadow of smoke. It is called a shadow sarcastically because 'no shade does it give, nor relief from the flame.' (al-Mursalat: 31) It is not a real shadow as it neither protects from the heat of the fire nor relieves from its flame. On the other hand, Allah the Almighty gives the people of paradise a cool and refreshing shadow. It is not a normal shadow; rather, it covers those who sit under it from the sun, the air, the heat and cold. By contrast, the shade in hellfire is not shady as it does not relieve from the flames. This is why the heat of the fire will reach the faces of disbelievers and burn them. Thus, what do we think about their sufferings in the fire when they are cast into it?

Allah the Almighty then says: 'The Fire shoots out sparks as large as tree trunks.' (al-Mursalat: 32) Let us imagine that situation when a denier will see the fire burning and sparkling to the extent that some parts thereof are burning the others. He will be standing in the shade that he mistakenly thinks will protect from the flames. Then the fire will shoot out sparks which strike those waiting to be thrown into it. These sparks will be as large as the trees trunks. It is a mighty spark like the palace in its greatness and big size. What is meant here by the Arabic word Al-Qasr is the trunks of the trees that exist in the desert. When winter comes, the branches of these trees are cut, and their trunks remain. They will look like the camel when it sits in the desert. The verse could possibly refer to the well-known great palaces.

The fire shoots out sparks as bright as copper as Allah the Almighty says: 'and as bright as copper.' (al-Mursalat: 33) The sparks will be like the big yellow camels scattered in the desert. Some interpreted Sufr as black, but the sparks are yellow like the pieces of copper that spark when they are burnt. However, some maintained that due to the blackness and darkness of the fire, its sparks will be black and yellowish.

Allah the Almighty then says: 'Woe, on that Day, to those who denied the truth!' (al-Mursalat: 34) Whatever the colour of the spark is, it is a burning flame. So why do disbelievers deny the truth and land themselves in trouble? Why are they exposing themselves to be thrown into this bottomless valley in the fire called Wayl?

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says:

هَٰذَا يَوْمُ لَا يَنطِقُونَ ﴿٣٥﴾ وَلَا يُؤْذَنُ لَهُمْ فَيَعْتَذِرُونَ ﴿٣٦﴾ وَيْلٌ يَوْمَئِذٍ لِّلْمُكَذِّبِينَ ﴿٣٧﴾

On that Day they will be speechless, [35] and they will be given no chance to offer any excuses. [36] Woe, on that Day, to those who denied the truth! [37] (The Quran, al-Mursalat: 35 - 37)

On that mighty Day, they will recognize that they had denied the truth in the worldly life. This is why they will not say anything beneficial to them. Moreover, Allah Glorified is He will not grant them the permission to offer any excuses or apologies. They will be unable to say anything to help them regarding the punishment waiting for them. They will not say anything that benefits them in their difficult position; rather, they will only blame each other and disown themselves from the rest. However, this will not be useful.

In this regard, Allah Glorified is He says: 'On the Day when every soul will come pleading for itself.' (an-Nahl: 111) He the Almighty also says in another position: 'And halt them for questioning.' (as-Saffat: 24) Some people may mistakenly think that these verses are contradictory as there are verses which show that they will be allowed to speak, and others negate their ability to speak. We should understand that the kind of speech that wicked people will be unable to speak is the beneficial one. Some of them will utter sophistic and useless speech like blaming each other. He Glorified is He mentions some of their useless speech in His saying: 'The disbelievers will say, "Our Lord, show us the jinns and men who misled us, and we shall trample them underfoot so that they may be amongst the lowest of the low."' (Fussilat: 29) This kind of speech is of no avail for the one who utters it. Thus, the forbidden speech for the wicked is the beneficial speech.

Moreover, the conditions on the Day of Judgment are different. Sometimes they can speak, and other times they become speechless. Therefore, in the verses under discussion, disbelievers become speechless after the sentence was issued against them. They are not in the position of the accountability where they are allowed to speak; rather, they are being gathered to be cast into the fire. So, what would they say? The matter has been settled, and they will not be given the permission to offer any excuse or apology, for this will not benefit them. They have said everything when they were held accountable. Thus, when the sentence that they are the people of the fire is issued, no speech or apology will be allowed.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He says:

هَٰذَا يَوْمُ ٱلْفَصْلِ ۖ جَمَعْنَٰكُمْ وَٱلْأَوَّلِينَ ﴿٣٨﴾ فَإِن كَانَ لَكُمْ كَيْدٌ فَكِيدُونِ ﴿٣٩﴾
وَيْلٌ يَوْمَئِذٍ لِّلْمُكَذِّبِينَ ﴿٤٠﴾

[They will be told], 'This is the Day of Decision: We have gathered you and earlier generations. [38] If you have any plots against Me, try them now' [39] Woe, on that Day, to those who denied the truth! [40] (The Quran, al-Mursalat: 38 - 40)

The Day of Judgment is the Day that Allah Glorified is He has appointed for the Resurrection, Gathering and Account. It is the Day on which wrongdoers will be recompensed for their disbelief and denial of Allah's messengers and Books. He Glorified is He says about this Day: 'And the messengers given their appointed time, for what Day has all this been set? The Day of Decision.' (al-Mursalat: 11-13) In the verse in question, Allah Glorified is He says: 'This is the Day of Decision. We have gathered you and earlier generations.' (al-Mursalat: 38) The Arabic word Al-Hashr means gathering disbelievers along with the very early generations. No one will be absent from amongst them as He Glorified is He promised to bring them all on the Day that they used to deny and disbelieve in.

Allah the Almighty then says: 'If you have any plots against Me, try them now.' (al-Mursalat: 39) If disbelievers schemed against righteous believers and harmed them, let them try all their schemes against Allah Glorified is He on the Day of Judgment. If they have a plan to save themselves from His punishment, let them try it, for all their schemes will fail. Thus, they will surrender and become speechless.

Afterwards, Allah Glorified is He describes the reward that the people will get if they believe, have piety and do not deny the truth.

إِنَّ ٱلْمُتَّقِينَ فِى ظِلَـٰلٍ وَعُيُونٍ ﴿٤١﴾ وَفَوَٰكِهَ مِمَّا يَشْتَهُونَ ﴿٤٢﴾
كُلُوا۟ وَٱشْرَبُوا۟ هَنِيٓـًٔۢا بِمَا كُنتُمْ تَعْمَلُونَ ﴿٤٣﴾ إِنَّا كَذَٰلِكَ نَجْزِى ٱلْمُحْسِنِينَ ﴿٤٤﴾

But those who took heed of God will enjoy cool shade, springs, [41] and any fruit they desire; [42] [they will be told], 'Eat and drink to your hearts' content as a reward for your deeds [43] this is how We reward those who do good'[44] (The Quran, al-Mursalat: 41 - 44)

Allah Glorified is He has given the human being the choice between the opposite stances: belief or disbelief, piety or transgression, guidance or misguidance, pleasure or punishment and Paradise or Hellfire. For this reason, He the Almighty mentions the punishment and the recompense of disbelievers and deniers, and then He mentions the reward of the pious who believed in the truth. He says that those who take heed of Him will enjoy cool shade and springs. They will have leafy shades in beautiful Gardens, unlike the shadows of the smoke that do not relieve from the flame of the fire. They will not only have shades in paradise but also springs, rivers and pleasures. These springs, from which the water flows, are not wells; rather, they are holes like the fountains from which the water springs forth. This is more delightful for them.

We call the streams in which the water of the springs used to flow Majra Al-'Uyun. In this regard, Allah Glorified is He says: 'Be mindful of Him Who has provided you with everything you know. He has given you livestock, sons, gardens and springs.' (ash-Shu'ara': 132-134) Thus, even though the people of 'Ad used to have flowing springs, they were buried under the ground.

The righteous will also have any fruit they desire. Allah the Exalted does not give them any kind of food or drink; rather, He the Almighty bestows upon them the fruits that they desire. They will be given the fruits that delight them, fearing no harms from eating them. They will have all kind of fruits which He the Most High describes as: 'And abundant fruit, neither intercepted nor forbidden.' (al-Waqi'a: 32-33) He the Almighty negates all the defects of the worldly fruits from that of paradise. The fruits in this worldly life come only at a certain season and are forbidden until you pay their price. Furthermore, unlike the fruits of paradise, the fruits of this worldly life have many defects.

Allah the Almighty then says: 'they will be told, "Eat and drink to your hearts' content as a reward for your deeds."' (al-Mursalat: 43) In this verse, there are actions along with their recompense. The actions here are the righteous deeds that pious believers had done in the days gone by. The recompense is the reward of having good food and drinks in the Hereafter. This verse is similar to His saying: 'Eat and drink to your heart's content as a reward for what you have done in days gone by.' (al-Haqqa: 24) The reason for their pleasure is that they suffered and were oppressed and tortured many times in the worldly life. Thus, the reward for their torture in the worldly life is to be delighted in the Hereafter. They will eat and drink to their hearts' content without being harmed or resorting to the medicine of digestion. The food and drinks are delicious, and they will enjoy it. They will get all that reward because of what they have done in the worldly life.

The Arabic word 'amila (to do) is different from sana' and fa'ala though they all can mean doing something. The Arabic word Al-'Amal includes the action of the limbs like the hand, the leg, the eye, etc. It also includes the action of the heart like belief, sincerity and tolerance. Thus, they will be rewarded for all what they have done. No one should think that his reward will be only for the actions of his heart, for He the Exalted will also reward him in the Hereafter for the actions of his limbs. Such people will be told to: 'Eat and drink to your heart's content as a reward for what you used to do.' (al-Mursalat: 43)

Allah the Almighty then says: 'This is how We reward those who do good.' (al-Mursalat: 44) So, if someone does good deeds and believes in Allah, His Books and messengers, Allah will reward him benevolently. This reward includes the best shades, springs and fruits as well as delightful food and drink.

The verses then direct our attention to what is waiting for the deniers of truth. Allah Glorified is He says:

وَيْلٌ يَوْمَئِذٍ لِّلْمُكَذِّبِينَ ﴿٤٥﴾ كُلُوا وَتَمَتَّعُوا قَلِيلًا إِنَّكُم مُّجْرِمُونَ ﴿٤٦﴾
وَيْلٌ يَوْمَئِذٍ لِّلْمُكَذِّبِينَ ﴿٤٧﴾

Woe, on that Day, to those who denied the truth! [45] [You may] eat and enjoy yourselves for a short while, evildoers that you are. [46] Woe, on that Day, to those who denied the truth! [47] (The Quran, al-Mursalat: 45 - 47)

Allah Glorified is He tells us that the deniers of truth eat and enjoy themselves in this worldly life until the end of their lifetime. They have disbelieved in Him and denied His messengers, the Resurrection, Paradise and Hellfire. He the Most High nevertheless, is their Creator Who has not deprived them of the Bestowal of His Lordship. Despite their disbelief, He the Almighty took it upon Himself to provide them with sustenance in the worldly life.

Disbelievers eat and drink in this worldly life like the cattle as Allah Glorified is He says: 'Disbelievers may take their fill of pleasure in this world, and eat as cattle do, but the Fire will be their home.' (Muhammad: 12) Their pleasures and gratifications in this worldly life are little, and they will leave it by death or when the pleasure runs out. Thereupon, they will become poor, weak and ill after being rich, strong and healthy.

Allah Glorified is He describes them as evildoers. In fact, He has assigned to every heavenly Message an enemy which is the evildoers. He the Almighty does not intervene until the evildoing becomes irresistible. Likewise, He the Exalted has assigned to every prophet an enemy, namely evildoers who seduce the people. The weak incline towards them, mistakenly thinking that these evildoers will be the victorious. They do not know that evildoers' apparent victory is temporal because they will be inflicted with a woe on the Day of Resurrection. Since they used to deny that Day, they will be punished for their denial. Subsequently, Allah the Almighty says:

وَإِذَا قِيلَ لَهُمُ ٱرْكَعُوا۟ لَا يَرْكَعُونَ ﴿٤٨﴾ وَيْلٌ يَوْمَئِذٍ لِّلْمُكَذِّبِينَ ﴿٤٩﴾
فَبِأَيِّ حَدِيثٍۭ بَعْدَهُۥ يُؤْمِنُونَ ﴿٥٠﴾

When they are told, 'Bow down in prayer,' they do not do so [48]
Woe, on that Day, to those who denied the truth! [49]
In what revelation, after this, will they believe? [50]
(The Quran, al-Mursalat: 48 - 50)

Disbelievers were evildoers and deviated from the Path of Islam and Faith. When they were ordered to bow down in prayer to Allah the Almighty they refused to bow down to their Creator Who has bestowed His Grace upon them. In fact, prayer is the sign of submission and humbleness to Him the Exalted. However, some scholars like Ibn 'Abbas said, '[Ordering them to bow down] will be said on the Day of Judgment when they are called to bow down, but they would not be able' to do so. In this regard, He the Almighty says: 'They will be invited to prostrate themselves but will be prevented from doing so, and their eyes will be downcast and they will be overwhelmed with shame; they were invited to prostrate themselves when they were safe [but refused].' (al-Qalam: 42-43) So, if disbelievers who denied the truth refuse to prostrate, bow, pray and worship Him the Almighty then 'Woe, on that Day, to those who denied the truth!' (al-Mursalat: 49)

Allah the Almighty says: 'In what revelation, after this, will they believe?' (al-Mursalat: 50) The Arabic word ba'dahu (after it) refers to the Quran, the Book of Allah. Therefore, in what revelation after the Quran and its verses will they believe? This is similar to His saying: 'If they deny Allah and His revelations, what Message will they believe in?' (al-Jathiya: 6) In this respect, when Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him recited: "In what revelation, after this, will they believe?' (al-Mursalat: 50), he said, 'I believed in Allah and what He has sent down.'(1)

There is no revelation more truthful and eloquent than the Quran, the last Revelation. Thus, believing in the Quran is the last chance they have. They should believe in it before the coming of the Day of Resurrection that they had denied and disbelieved in. If they believed, they should do the actions that save them from the mighty Day of Judgment. For this reason, it is suitable that the chapter of an-Naba' follows the chapter in question. He Glorified is He says: 'In the name of Allah, the Lord of Mercy and the Giver of Mercy. What are they asking about? The momentous announcement about which they differ, they will find out. In the end they will find out' (an-Naba': 1-5).

In the Name of God, the Most Merciful, the Dispenser of Mercy

The chapter of an-Naba' (1).

Allah Glorified is He says:

عَمَّ يَتَسَآءَلُونَ ١ عَنِ ٱلنَّبَإِ ٱلْعَظِيمِ ٢ ٱلَّذِى هُمْ فِيهِ مُخْتَلِفُونَ ٣

What are they asking about? [1] The momentous announcement [2] about which they [3]
(The Quran, an-Naba': 1-3)

We are meeting today to derive some lessons from the Quran and to explain some of my reflections on Juz' 'Amma. I invoke Allah the Almighty to make you attentive to these reflections and to bestow success on us in everything we do or abstain from. My brothers have suggested dedicating our reflections today to interpreting Juz' 'Amma, the last Juz' in the Quran. It is an acceptable suggestion because this Juz' includes the short chapters that people repeatedly recite in their prayers. Moreover, many people start their memorization of the glorious Quran with these chapters. Thus, if we explain our reflections on this Juz', we will, undoubtedly, be shedding light on all the objectives of the Quran.

Allah the Almighty has ordered His Words in the Quran and made Juz' 'Amma the last one in order that the last part of the Quran would pay the listener and the reader's attention to all the Islamic fundamental creeds, rules and objectives.

(1) The chapter of an-Naba' is the chapter number 78 in the Quranic order. It was revealed in Mecca. Its verses are 40 in number. Its main topic is the Resurrection on the Day of Judgment and it is the last chapter to be revealed in Mecca before the Hijra, as Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him migrated on the day following its revelation. It is a clear chapter, containing no abrogating or abrogated verses. Some scholars called it the chapter of at-Tasau'l. It is also called 'Amma and al-Mu'sirat. It was revealed after the chapter of al-Mursalat.

There is a semantic and contextual correlation between the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'What are they asking about?' (an-Naba': 1) in this chapter in question and the chapter of al-Mursalat, which precedes it and which starts with the saying of Allah Glorified is He, 'By the [winds] sent forth in swift succession, [1] violently storming, [2] scattering far and wide, [3] separating forcefully, [4] delivering a reminder, [5] as a proof or a warning: [6] what you are promised will come to pass. [7]' (al-Mursalat: 1-7) It is crystal clear from these verses, that this chapter of al-Mursalat begins with many Divine Oaths regarding the coming of the Last Day that the polytheists disbelieved in. In response, He the Almighty clearly states: 'What you are promised will come to pass.' (al-Mursalat: 7)

Afterwards, Allah the Almighty mentions, also in the chapter of al-Mursalat, the signs of the coming of the Day of Judgment, saying: 'When the stars are dimmed [8] and the sky is torn apart, [9] when the mountains are turned to dust [10] and the messengers given their appointed time —[11] for what Day has all this been set? [12] The Day of Decision. [13] What will explain to you what the Day of Decision is? [14] Woe, on that Day, to those who denied the truth! [15]' (al-Mursalat: 8-15) It is natural then that the chapter following al-Mursalat should explain the Day of Decision. It is the momentous, mighty event that we should be heedful of and prepared for.

Furthermore, we should reflect on the consistency between the styles of both chapters. For example, the exclamatory interrogation indicates hyperbole in both the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'What will explain to you what the Day of Decision is?' (al-Mursalat: 15); and 'What are they asking about? [1] The momentous announcement. [2]' (an-Naba': 1-2)

When He the Almighty says to Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him: 'What will explain to you what the Day of Decision is?' (al-Mursalat: 15), He Glorified is He explains to him peace and blessings be upon him that he has no knowledge of that Day because he had not yet received any revelation about it; however, he would later receive some revelations in that regard. So, when He the Almighty says to him peace and blessings be upon him: 'What will explain to you what the Day of Decision is?' (al-Mursalat: 15), this indicates that He the Almighty would explain to him peace and blessings be upon him the matter in a coming revelation.

Another aspect of harmony between the chapter of al-Mursalat and that of an-Naba' is that both chapters discuss universal matters and some phenomena relating to the human being. In this regard, Allah the Almighty says: 'Did We not destroy the first [of them]?' (al-Mursalat: 16); 'Did We not make you from an underrated fluid.' (al-Mursalat: 20); 'Did We not make the earth a home' (al-Mursalat: 25) and 'Did We not make the earth smooth, [6] and make the mountains to keep it stable? [7]' (an-Naba': 6-7) Thus, the two chapters share the same context.

Moreover, we find a wonderful harmony between the chapter of al-Mursalat and the chapter of al-Insan, which is also called Ad-Dahr (the Time). Allah the Almighty says: 'Was there not a period of time when man was nothing to speak of?' (al-Insan: 1) The chapter of Ad-Dahr mentions in detail many kinds of pleasures that the righteous people will enjoy in the paradise. By contrast, it does not expound on the punishment of the disbelievers; it makes only a passing reference, stating: 'We have prepared chains, iron collars, and blazing fire for the disbelievers.' (al-Insan: 4) Afterwards, He the Almighty mentions the kinds of pleasures awaiting the believers, saying: 'The righteous will have a drink mixed with Kafur.' (al-Insan: 5) By contrast, the chapter of al-Mursalat makes mention of many kinds of punishments that He the Almighty has prepared for the disbelievers in the Hereafter. With regard to the reward of the righteous people, it mentions only one kind of the pleasures that they will enjoy, stating: 'But those who took heed of Allah will enjoy cool shade, springs.' (al-Insan: 41) The chapter of al-Mursalat is followed by the chapter of an-Naba' that mentions in detail the recompense of both the believers and the disbelievers, as we will see.

Allah the Almighty says: 'What are they asking about?' (an-Naba': 1) This question indicates that what they are asking about is a great and mighty event. That is why He the Almighty then says: 'The momentous announcement.' (an-Naba': 2) This quick answer means that the matter about which the disbelievers ask and are doubtful is: 'The momentous announcement.' (an-Naba': 2) We should note that the Arabic word an-Naba' (announcement) is different from Al-Khabar (a piece of news) because the former refers to only the important news. Besides, this announcement is described here as 'momentous'. As human beings, we describe things as 'great' according to our understanding of greatness. So what would we think about an announcement described by Allah the Almighty as 'momentous'?! This description is in proportion to His Divine Omniscience.

Allah the Almighty expresses the greatness of the Day of Judgment by using the Arabic particle Ma; by calling it 'announcement', not an ordinary piece of news; and by describing it as 'momentous'. There is no doubt that all the objectives of the religion depend on believing in that Day because it is the ultimate destination where we will find the outcome of our deeds. It is the Day on which every human being will be held accountable for everything s/he has done, be it good or evil. Thus, it is the greatest event in the life of the human being. That is why it is not acceptable that s/he forgets that Day or be heedless of it. This explains the reason why the question in the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'What are they asking about?' (an-Naba': 1) carries the meaning of condemnation. It is as if He Glorified is He says, 'The matter of the Day of Judgment is so clear that no one should ask about it or question its coming, for all the rational and logic proofs confirm it.'

The problem lies in the disbelievers' way of thinking; they wanted to discuss secondary creedal issues, while no wise person would do that before discussing the main pillar of the Islamic creed, that is, belief in Allah the Almighty. That is to say that we did not believe in the Day of Judgment and then believed in Allah the Almighty; rather, our belief in Him Glorified is He came first. Consequently, when He the Almighty told us about the Day of Judgment, we believed in it. Thus, the discussion should not be about the coming of the Day of Judgment and whether it is possible or not. Rather, it should be about the main pillar of the Islamic creed, that is, belief in Allah the Almighty. If one believes in Him Glorified is He s/he should believe in what He says; however, it is not important to believe in what He the Almighty says if the person does not believe in Him Glorified is He in the first place.

Moreover, belief in the Angels, the Heavenly-revealed Books, the Messengers, the Last Day and the Pre-destination, be it good or evil, entails having faith in unseen matters. No one can believe in them unless a truthful person tells him/her about them. So, if one's mind does not comprehend the reality of the Day of Judgment, this does not mean that it will not come to pass.

In the story of Prophet Ibrahim (Abraham) peace be upon him, we have explained the difference between the occurrence of an event and how it will take place. In this regard, Allah the Almighty says: 'And when Ibrahim said, "My Lord, show me how You give life to the dead," He said, "Do you not believe, then?" "Yes," said Ibrahim, "but just to put my heart at rest…' (al-Baqara: 260). He peace be upon him does not question Allah's Ability to give life to the dead, as he peace be upon him firmly believes in that. Rather, he asks about the way of giving life to the dead. That is why he peace be upon him did not say, 'My Lord, do you give life to the dead?!' but rather said: 'My Lord, show me how You give life to the dead…' (al-Baqara: 260).

When Allah Glorified is He asks Ibrahim peace be upon him: '…Do you not believe, then?' (al-Baqara: 60), he said, '…Yes…' (al-Baqara: 60). As a religious obligation, every servant of Allah is required to give this answer. That is to say, we all should believe that He the Almighty gives life to the dead. As for the way of bringing the dead back to life, the servant is not required to know it. After all, you may make use of something without comprehending its reality and essence. Let us give an example to illustrate this point; the illiterate, the Bedouin and the farmer may benefit from electricity without comprehending its reality.

The Arabic verb Tasa'la (asked one another) is different from the verb Yas'alu, which means that only one party poses the questions. As for the verb Tasa'la, it means that two parties of the conversation exchange questions. It was the deniers of the Resurrection who posed the following questions: 'When will this threat come about, if you are truthful' (Yunus: 48), and 'What! Does he threaten you that when you are dead and become dust and bones that you shall then be brought forth?' (al-Mu'minun: 35) The disbelievers exchanged these questions among themselves or posed them to Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and the believers.

When we say, ''Amr and Zayd asked each other,' this means that both of them participate in the action. However, we call one of them a subject and the other an object, even though both of them can be simultaneously called a subject and an object. For example, a poet said,

The snakes made peace with his foot;
They bite it not, nor does it trample over them.

The snakes and the foot are both the subject and the object. The Arabic word Hayyat (snakes) is in the nominative state because it is considered the subject whose object is the word Qadam (foot). The meaning is that the snakes did not bite the foot, nor did the foot trample on them.

Undoubtedly, the disbelievers' questions about the momentous announcement were a means to express their rejection to the Day of Judgment and to make it an object of ridicule. Every one of them posed a question indicating his/her disbelief in that Day. Here arises a question, which is, 'If all of them actually disbelieve in the Day of Resurrection, why does the Quran state that they differ about it?!' This difference is recorded in the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'About which they differ.' (an-Naba': 3) So, what is the aspect of their difference if they all deny the Resurrection?! Scholars said that they differed with respect to the degree of their disbelief in the Day of Judgment- some categorically denied it; others doubted it; and still some others were ambivalent about it. Another possible interpretation is that the different stance was between Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him and the believers on one side and the disbelievers on the other side; the former group believes in the Resurrection, while the latter denies it.

Allah the Almighty then responds to the disbelievers' questions, saying:

كَلَّا سَيَعْلَمُونَ ﴿٤﴾ ثُمَّ كَلَّا سَيَعْلَمُونَ ﴿٥﴾

They will find out [4] In the end they will find out [5]
(The Quran, an-Naba': 4 - 5)

The Arabic word Kalla (Nay) is a particle used for reproaching. It is as if Allah the Almighty says to the disbelievers, 'Watch your words and stop denying the clear truth. Your denial will be of no avail, and it is better for you to refrain from it.' In fact, the disbelievers do believe in the main pillar of faith, that is, they acknowledge that Allah the Almighty is the Creator, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: ‘And if you ask them who created the heavens and the earth, they will certainly say: Allah…’ (Luqman: 25); and ‘And if you should ask them who created them, they would certainly say: Allah…’ (az-Zukhruf: 87). If this is the case, how do they deny a secondary creedal matter, i.e. the Resurrection?!

Moreover, the Quran records the disbelievers’ belief that Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him is a Messenger sent by Allah the Almighty. In this connection, He the Almighty says: ‘We know indeed that what they say certainly grieves you, but surely they do not call you a liar; but the unjust deny the communications of Allah.’ (al-An‘am: 33) They alleged that the Quran is sorcery, poetry or soothsaying; however, they contradicted themselves, saying: ‘…Why was this Quran not revealed to a man of importance in the two towns?’ (az-Zukhruf: 31) Thus, the disbelievers recognized that the Quran is flawless, but they objected that it was revealed to a poor man, not to a man of importance in Mecca and Medina.

Likewise, they made contradictory statements, saying: ‘…If we follow the guidance with you, we shall be carried off from our country…’ (al-Qasas: 57). So, they acknowledged that Messenger Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him came with guidance, but they feared that the people would sweep them from their land. Consequently, Allah the Almighty responds to their statement with simple words: ‘…Have we not established for them a safe sanctuary to which are brought the fruits of all things as provision from Us?’ (al-Qasas: 57)

The disbelievers are doubtful and ambivalent about the Day of Judgment, which is an unsound action on their part. Therefore, Allah the Almighty says: ‘They will find out.’ (an-Naba’: 4) This verse means that on the Day of Judgment the disbelievers will know for sure that they were mistaken, as all the facts will be clear to them. With regard to the repetition in the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘They will find out. [4] In the end they will find out. [5]’ (an-Naba’: 4-5), the exegetes state that it is meant for emphasis. However, I firmly believe that there is no repetition in the verses, as the ‘literal emphasis’ usually comes without a conjunction separating the two statements. As for the two verses in question, they are separated by the Arabic conjunction Thumma, and thus the two statements imply that there are two ways by which the disbelievers will find out the truth that they rejected.

We have explained that there are three ranks of knowledge: the certain knowledge, the eye of certainty and the true certainty. One has certain knowledge of something when a truthful person tells him/her about it. When s/he sees it with his/her eyes, this is called the eye of certainty; and when s/he interacts with it, this is called the true certainty. Let us give an example to illustrate this point; our knowledge about paradise is now at the rank of certain knowledge; when we see it, this will be the eye of certainty; and when we enter it and taste its pleasures, it becomes the true certainty. The second and the third ranks are mentioned in the chapter of at-Takathur wherein Allah the Almighty says: 'Striving for more distracts you [1] until you go into your graves. [2]No indeed! You will come to know. No indeed! In the end you will come to know. [4] No indeed! If only you knew for certain. [5] You will most definitely see Hellfire, [6] you will see it with the eye of certainty. [7] On that Day, you will be asked about your pleasures. [8]' (at-Takathur: 1-8) As for the rank of the true certainty, it is mentioned in His saying: 'And if he is one of the rejecters, the erring ones, [92] He shall have an entertainment of boiling water, [93] And burning in hell. [94] Most surely this is the true certainty. [95]' (al-Waqi'a: 92-95) The last verse mentions the rank of the true certainty because such evil people, described in these verses, have already been thrown in the hell and tasted its burning fire.

Thus, the saying of Allah Glorified is He: 'They will find out. [4] In the end they will find out [5]' (an-Naba': 4-5) means that the disbelievers will find out that the Resurrection, which they denied, is true while they are still in the worldly life. They will realise this fact in stages. The first stage is when the agonies of death overtake them at the dying moment, when they are about to move to the Hereafter that they denied. During these difficult times, a part of the truth will be unveiled to them. That is why He the Almighty says: 'You paid no attention to this [Day]; but today We have removed your veil and your sight is sharp.' (Qaf: 22) This verse means that what was invisible to the person became visible. At the moment of death, some of the affairs of the heavenly world appear to the dying person. The traces of seeing such affairs appear on the dying person's face. Some people, at the time of death, see some kinds of the pleasures of the paradise, while others see the punishment of the hellfire. It is claimed that these affairs are fictitious, but this is not right, for the facial expressions of the dying person indicate what s/he really sees. This is the first stage in which the deniers of the Day of Judgment will realize the truth. After being resurrected in the Hereafter, they reach the rank of the true certainty.

Another possible interpretation of the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘They will find out. [4] In the end they will find out [5]’ (an-Naba’: 4-5) is that the believer and the disbeliever hold different stances on Resurrection, and thus both of them will find out his/her position in the Hereafter and that of the other party. When we compare between their positions, we will find that the disbeliever experiences deep regret, while the believer is filled with great happiness. The disbeliever suffers the painful punishment and his/her suffering increases when s/he sees the believer enjoying the pleasures of the paradise. Conversely, when the believer sees the disbeliever suffering the punishment in the Hereafter, his/her happiness for being saved from such a punishment increases

The Quranic context then turns our attention from the momentous announcement to some universals signs. A quick thinking about this fact may conclude that talking about these signs takes us away from the momentous announcement. However, when we reflect on these universal signs which call for belief in the Creator Glorified is He and what He the Almighty told us about, we, consequently, believe in the momentous announcement. Thus, the Quranic context here does not take us away from the main topic of the chapter, that is, the momentous announcement, for the universal signs constitute the proof of its coming.

As a matter of fact, the unseen issues are naturally controversial. So, how does Allah the Almighty present such issues? He the Almighty brings an indisputable issue and uses it as a basis for proving the controversial one. This is a common way in the glorious Quran. We have previously given an example by the issue of life and how it has begun when He Glorified is He brought the creation into existence. Unquestionably, we have not seen that matter, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: ‘I did not make them witnesses of the creation of the heavens and the earth, nor of the creation of their own souls; nor could I take those who lead (others) astray for aiders.' (al-Kahf: 51) Indeed, no one has seen that event, and we came to know about it through what Allah Glorified is He had told us. In fact, the human mind stands disabled before this matter, for there is no empirical evidence to prove it. One should not follow the ignorant people who overburden their minds to think about this matter which is beyond reason. Such people should have listened attentively to the Words of Allah the Almighty that tell them how the creation was brought into existence.

Allah the Almighty did not make us witness the creation, but He Glorified is He made us witness the matter of death. In this way, He the Almighty uses a tangible proof to substantiate the truthfulness of an unseen matter. It is well known that death is antithetical to life and that destruction is antithetical to construction. What has been constructed firstly will be the last thing to be destructed, and what has been constructed lastly will be the first thing to be destructed.

The last stage in the creation of the human being was breathing the Spirit into him. As we see in our worldly life, this will be the first thing to be destructed. Afterwards, the body stiffens, changes, goes rotten, decomposes and then turns into dust. So, when Allah the Almighty tells us that He Glorified is He created man out of dust, an altered black mud and clay like that of pottery, and then breathed the Spirit into him, we have, on the basis of the process of destruction of life that we witness, to believe in that. In this connection, He the Almighty says: 'Exalted is He who holds all control in His hands; who has power over all things; [1] who created death and life...[2]' (al-Mulk: 1-2). He Glorified is He mentions death first because it is the perceivable sign that guides us to believe in the unseen matter of creation. Likewise, He the Almighty speaks in the chapter in question about the momentous announcement, which is unseen to us. Therefore, He Glorified is He mentions some perceivable universal signs as a proof of the unseen matters.

Consequently, He the Almighty says:

أَلَمۡ نَجۡعَلِ ٱلۡأَرۡضَ مِهَٰدٗا ﴿٦﴾ وَٱلۡجِبَالَ أَوۡتَادٗا ﴿٧﴾ وَخَلَقۡنَٰكُمۡ أَزۡوَٰجٗا ﴿٨﴾
وَجَعَلۡنَا نَوۡمَكُمۡ سُبَاتٗا ﴿٩﴾ وَجَعَلۡنَا ٱلَّيۡلَ لِبَاسٗا ﴿١٠﴾ وَجَعَلۡنَا ٱلنَّهَارَ مَعَاشٗا ﴿١١﴾

Did We not make the earth smooth [6] and make the mountains to keep it stable? [7] Did We not create you in pairs [8] give you sleep for rest [9] the night as a cover [10] and the day for your livelihood? [11] (The Quran, an-Naba’: 6 - 11)

In these verses in question, Allah the Almighty makes mention of tangible matters in the universe that are related to the human being and his/her livelihood on the earth. ‘Making the earth smooth’ means that it is even and prepared for living on it, like a bed prepared for a baby. Afterwards, the verses mention the loftiness of the mountains. It is as if their loftiness completes the smoothness of the earth, given the fact that they, i.e. mountains stabilize the earth.

The Arabic word Awtad (stakes) indicates that the earth continuously moves, and that the mountains were created only to stabilize it. This is supported by the fact that Allah the Almighty after mentioning the earth, said: ‘And the mountains as stakes?’ (an-Naba’: 7); ‘And He has cast great mountains in the earth lest it might be convulsed with you…’ (an-Nahl: 15). If the earth had been created in a motionless state, there would have been no need for mountains. The earth, however, is prone to convulse and shake.

In the verse in question, Allah Glorified is He gives the Arabs an example from their surroundings, as they used to live in tents, which need stakes to stabilize them. Therefore, the Arab person who receives the Quran is familiar with the similitude mentioned in the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘And the mountains as stakes’ (an-Naba’: 7). Here, the mountains are described as stakes despite the fact that the former is lofty and great, while the latter is small and low. In the same connection, one of the proverbs of the Arabs reads, ‘So-and-so is lower (in rank) than a stake.’ Here arises a question: ‘Why does He Glorified is He liken a great thing to a small one, while it should be the other way around?!’ This similitude draws our attention to the reality of the stakes used to stabilize a tent. So, the question to be asked here is: ‘Were the mountains created to stabilize the earth or to fasten something on it?’ The stakes cannot stabilize the tent on their own, which is why the tent poles are also needed to fulfil this task. Likewise, the mountains do not stabilize the earth on their own. So, what is the thing that the mountains fasten on the earth and helps, in turn, to stabilize the earth thereby? In order to have a complete similitude between the mountains and the stakes, we should search in the universe for something comparable to the tent poles. The scientific advancement made it easy to find out that thing. The findings of modern sciences concluded that the atmosphere, which surrounds the earth, is the first component needed for sustaining the life on the surface of the earth. For this reason, Allah the Almighty says about the earth: 'Say, 'Travel through the land…' (al-An'am: 11). He Glorified is He does not say, 'Travel on the land.' This is due to the fact that the atmosphere in which we live, and the airplanes fly is a complementary part of the earth. In actuality, if this atmosphere had not encompassed the earth and protected it from the harmful rays, the living beings would have perished.

Now, what is that force which makes this aeriform mass attached to the earth? There must be a force that attracts the air to the earth. So, what is that force? It is the force of gravity; the mass of the earth attracts the mass of the air. The bigger the mass of the earth is, the stronger it attracts the air to it. Thus, the massive mass of the mountains increases the gravity of the earth which, in turn, increases the force of attracting the atmosphere. Thus, we can say that 'gravity' is comparable to the tent poles, yet it is an invisible force. In this way, drawing a similitude between the mountains and the stakes is understandable. Moreover, this helps us understand the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'It is Allah who raised up the heavens with no visible supports…' (ar-Ra'd: 2).

The Quran did not discuss these scientific matters in details because it was revealed among an illiterate people. Their culture did not enable them to comprehend such matters. The Quran, however, calls for the intellectual activity and the scientific research. This is due to the fact that to whatever extent the human mind advances, the Book of Allah will be in line with it; the Quran will neither contradict nor hinder the sound mind. We have said that the bestowals of the Quran will extend to the coming of the Hour. This explains why Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him did not interpret the Quran, because his interpretation, if done, would not have been in line with the intellectual abilities of the people who witnessed its revelation. Such an interpretation would have also fixed the understanding of the Quran at a certain level that accepts no additional contributions and prevents the minds from engaging in a deeper understanding of the Quran. If this had happened, the validity of the Quran for every place and time would have been lost. As for the necessary Quranic rulings, Prophet Muhammad Allah's peace and blessings be upon him explained them because every Muslim from his Allah's peace and blessings be upon him time up to the coming of the Hour needs them. The universal signs which are subjected to the mental activity and deduction were generally discussed in the Quran in order that every people would make use of them according to the scientific development it has achieved. Thus, the Quran explains everything and its reader benefits from it according to his/her intellectual abilities.

There is another remark in the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'Did We not make the earth smooth?' (an-Naba': 6) In this aforementioned verse, the negative interrogation is employed instead of the normal declarative sentence, that is, we made the earth smooth. This is due to the fact that confirming the facts with the negative interrogation is more eloquent than using a declarative sentence. It is as if He the Almighty entrusted the answer to that question to us because the correct answer undoubtedly affirms that it is He the Almighty Who made the earth smooth. This style is employed because He the Almighty wants to say to the people, 'If you acknowledge that it is Me Who made the earth smooth, why do you not believe in Me?!'

Moreover, the negative interrogation in the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'Did We not make the earth smooth?' (an-Naba': 6) is meaningful; if the interrogation is employed, the question may carry the answer to the questioned person. For example, when you say to a child, 'I gave you such and such, did I not?' you implicitly tell him/her to answer affirmatively. By contrast, when you say to him/her, 'I did not give you such and such,' and s/he answers affirmatively. In such a way, it is as if Allah the Almighty wants us to answer affirmatively by employing the negative interrogation. When He the Almighty says: 'Did We not make the earth smooth, [6] and make the mountains to keep it stable? [7]' (an-Naba': 6-7), He Glorified is He tells us that it would have been reasonably acceptable to deny the Resurrection if He the Almighty had not actually made such great actions. However, as He Glorified is He had already made them, provided us with the necessary elements of life and showed us the signs of His Creative Power, we must believe in His Omnipotence, All-Profound Wisdom and Infinite Mercy. In other words, as He the Almighty is Omnipotent, All-Wise and All-Merciful, we should believe everything He Glorified is He tells us about.

As for the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘Did We not create you in pairs?’ (an-Naba’: 8), it means that He Glorified is He has created us as males and females so that each two spouses would feel mutual kindness, tranquility and mercy to each other. This is a miraculous aspect of the creation. Surprisingly, some philosophers claim that man was created by chance. Monnet, the French philosopher, refuted their claim, saying, ‘They were heedless of the fact that the routine is one of the antitheses of chance.’ In other words, it is not a coincidence to daily meet someone at the same time and place. This encounter depends on one’s daily routine, while chance depends on the law of possibility. Some scholars opine that the ratio of the possibility of the creation by chance is one to two hundred million. For example, the ratio of the possibility that a random usage of a typewriter composes a book of verses written by Shakespeare is one to two hundred million. Monnet added, ‘The claim that the universe was created by chance is impossible. If chance created man, it would be inconceivable that the same chance created a female, sharing the same genus and differing in the gender in a way that if they have sexual intercourse with each other, they produce another male or female. Chance cannot do that.’

Thus, the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘Did We not create you in pairs?’ (an-Naba’: 8) indicates that the creation came into existence purposefully and precisely. So, we thank Monnet for drawing our attention to one of the verses of the Quran, which is: ‘And one of His Signs is that He created mates for you from yourselves that you may find rest in them…’ (ar-Rum: 21).

After Allah Glorified is He had created the earth and prepared it for the life of the human beings, He Glorified is He created them all from a male and a female. He the Almighty made the human being reproducible in order to settle in the earth and reform it. This life needs some basic elements in order to be sustained. These elements are explained in the saying of Allah the Almighty:

'Did we not give you sleep for rest, [9] the night as a cover, [10] and the day for your livelihood? [11]' (an-Naba': 9-11) People's bodies restore their energy after working hard through restful sleep. Sleeping should be during the night because it covers the people with its darkness. By contrast, the daytime is the time of working and seeking provision. Therefore, the basic elements of life are not food and drink, as some people wrongly think. Rather, sleep for resting is the first basic element of life.

In fact, sleeping puzzled the scientists and the philosophers; they could not recognize its reality or cause. How does it overtake the human being? Why cannot s/he resist it? The scientists carried out many experiments in this regard. They concluded that sleeping is a self-deterrent for the human being. This is due to the fact that the human being may work hard until s/he gets tired and try, though, to bear this tiredness to continue work until s/he uses up all his/her energy. Sleep, however, overtakes him/her after s/he gets tired. Sleeping is important to such a person to regain his/her energy and continue his/her work with more power. Thus, sleeping is a restful process. If we get tired out of work and did not sleep for a couple of hours to regain our energy, we would not be able to continue our work. Consequently, sleeping is one of Allah's signs in the creation of the human being. It is also one of His great Blessings as it is a necessary daily process. That is why He the Almighty says about sleeping: 'And one of His signs is your sleeping by night and (by) day…' (ar-Rum: 23); and 'Say: Tell me, if Allah were to make the night to continue incessantly on you till the day of resurrection, who is the god besides Allah that could bring you light? Do you not then hear? [71] Say: Tell me, if Allah were to make the day to continue incessantly on you till the day of resurrection, who is the god besides Allah that could bring you the night in which you take rest? Do you not then see? [72]' (al-Qasas: 71-72)

Sleeping is called Subat (disconnection) because it disconnects the sleeping person from the course of life. Allah the Almighty also considers sleeping a kind of death, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: 'Allah takes the souls at the time of their death, and those that do not die [He takes] during their sleep.' (az-Zumar: 42) The disconnection with the worldly life during sleep ends after waking up. In the case of death, however, one's connection to the worldly life ends permanently. Losing our consciousness during sleeping is one of Allah’s Bounties. When someone suffers the pain of a wound, s/he does not feel such a pain during his/her sleep; but once s/he wakes up, s/he feels it again. So, it is the soul that feels the pain and not the wounded organ. Thus, sleep is a manifestation of Allah’s Mercy towards us.

As one loses his/her own consciousness during sleep, s/he may move in a way or another. That is why Allah the Almighty covered us during sleep with the darkness of the night. In this regard, He Glorified is He says: ‘Did We not make the night as a cover?’ (an-Naba’: 10) So, sleeping is covered by the darkness of the night. As for the daytime, it is dedicated to seeking livelihood, as He the Almighty says afterwards: ‘[Did We not make the day for your livelihood?’ (an-Naba’: 11) Therefore, the day is the time of movement and activity after having a restful sleep at night.

No one has ever opposed the facts that Allah the Almighty presents in the verses under discussion. Thus, as no one has claimed that s/he is the owner of the bestowals mentioned in these verses, it is a well-established fact that He Glorified is He is the Owner of these bestowals and bounties. This categorically refutes the divinity of any deity except Allah the Almighty. This is due to the fact that He the Almighty is the One Who created the creatures and made the earth smooth and the mountains as stakes. Moreover, He Glorified is He created us in pairs and gave us sleep for rest, the night as a cover and the day for our livelihood. If a deity, other than Allah the Almighty did all of these actions, would s/he let someone else claim these actions?! Would s/he keep silent to such claims?! Would s/he not defend him/herself?! We have previously explained that the action is attributed to the one who claims it if no one else opposed that. As Allah the Almighty told us that He Glorified is He has done all the aforementioned actions and no one objected to that, then He the Almighty must have been the true God, and we must totally accept His Truthful Words.

In the verses in question, Allah the Almighty gives us tangible examples of some phenomena which are unquestionably attributed to Him. It is as if He Glorified is He says to us, ‘If We had not given you such and such blessings, it would have been reasonable that you do not believe Me, but We have already given you such blessings which confirms our Omniscience and Infinite Mercy towards you. The creation of these blessings is unprecedented. Thus, when We tell you about the Last Day, the Recompense and the Resurrection, you should believe Us especially so because the Resurrection is easier than the creation.' In this regard, He the Almighty says: 'And it is He who begins creation; then He repeats it, and that is [even] easier for Him…' (ar-Rum: 27).

Had there been no Last Day, standing for the Account and Recompense, the sinful and lustful people- who wronged other people, appropriated their properties and violated their honour- would have been fortunate. Likewise, the loss would have been for the obedient, righteous people- who followed the Straight Path in the worldly life- if that had been the case. This case is logically and reasonably, let alone religiously and legally, unacceptable. Even if there had not been a Day of Judgment and Allah the Almighty had not told us about it, the just and wise people would have called for its implementation in this worldly life. How would the people be left without returning to a destination where the good people are rewarded for their good deeds and the evil ones are punished for their misdeeds?

It is noted that the chapter under discussion presented one of the ways of proving the truth which can be established by either a proof, or a testimony or an oath. In this regard, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, 'The burden of proof is upon the plaintiff and the taking of oath is upon the defendant.'(1) Allah Glorified is He claimed the creation of all the creatures and provided the proof in His saying: 'Did We not make the earth smooth, [6] And the mountains as stakes? [7] Did We not create you in pairs, [8] give you sleep for rest, [9] the night as a cover, [10] and the day for your livelihood? [11]' (an-Naba': 6-11) These verses produce the proof that He Glorified is He is the Creator Who fashioned the creatures wonderfully with His Power and organized them wisely so that every creature perfectly accomplishes its function for which it was created.

He the Almighty also proved this fact by bearing witness to it, as He the Almighty says: 'Allah witnesses that there is no deity except Him, and [so do] the angels and those of knowledge - [that He is] maintaining [creation] in justice…' (Al-'Imran: 28). Furthermore, He Glorified is He proved it by taking an oath, saying: 'Then by the Lord of the heaven and earth, indeed, it is truth - just as [sure as] it is that you are speaking.' (adh-Dhariyat: 23) Thus, He Glorified is He used all the ways of proving the truthfulness of His Divinity. So, is there an excuse for anyone who denies this fact?

(1) This Hadith is narrated on the authority of 'Abdullah ibn 'Amr ibn Al-'As Allah be pleased with them. See Ibn Muqri' Al-Asbahani, Mu'jam, Hadith no. 616; and Al-Bayhaqi, As-Sunnan As-Sughra, Hadith no. 3103. It is also narrated on the authority of Ibn 'Abbas and Abu Hurayra Allah be pleased with them. See Al-Bayhaqi, Ma'rifat As-Sunnan, Hadith no. 20253; and Ad-Daraqutni, Sunnan, Hadith no. 3190.

Allah the Almighty then says:

وَبَنَيۡنَا فَوۡقَكُمۡ سَبۡعٗا شِدَادٗا ﴿١٢﴾ وَجَعَلۡنَا سِرَاجٗا وَهَّاجٗا ﴿١٣﴾ وَأَنزَلۡنَا مِنَ
ٱلۡمُعۡصِرَٰتِ مَآءٗ ثَجَّاجٗا ﴿١٤﴾ لِّنُخۡرِجَ بِهِۦ حَبّٗا وَنَبَاتٗا ﴿١٥﴾ وَجَنَّٰتٍ أَلۡفَافًا ﴿١٦﴾

Did We not build seven strong [heavens] above you [12] and make a blazing lamp? [13] Did We not send water pouring down from the clouds [14] to bring forth with it grain, plants [15] and luxuriant gardens? [16]
(The Quran, an-Naba': 12 - 16)

So many verses of the Quran indicate clearly that the 'seven strong' are nothing but the seven heavens which are created as layers, one upon the other. In fact, people cannot comprehend or realize the essence of the heaven and its massive body. Some people, however, tried to express the meaning of the heaven with perceivable qualities, especially after the emergence of many impressive scientific theories.

Those who sincerely wanted to draw the religion of Islam closer to the realities of life tried hard to make the religious matters, especially the unseen ones, easily perceivable by the people. In the modern age, Sheikh Mohamed 'Abdu(1) may Allah be merciful to him was a prominent example of such people. He was the leader of the rationalistic school of thought which tried to draw the unseen matters of the religion closer to people's minds. This shows their zealousness for Allah's Religion. The harm of this approach, however, overweighs its benefit. This is due to the fact that the unseen matters should be believed in as such; it is not necessary to fully comprehend them.

(1) Imam Mohamed 'Abdu ibn Hasan Khayr Allah, belonging to At-Turkumani, was the Mufti of Egypt and one of the figures of reform and renewal in Islam. He was born in Shanra, one of the villages of Al-Gharbiyya governorate, in 1849. He grew up in Mahillat Nasr in Al-Buhyra governorate. He supported the' Urabi Revolution and died in 1905 at the age of 56.

We have said that there is a main pillar of faith, which is to believe in Allah the Almighty. If we willingly believed in Him the Almighty we had consequently to believe in everything He Glorified is He tells us about the unseen matters, be it reasonable or beyond our reason. Besides, the tangible matters, which we perceive, confirm the truthfulness of the unseen matters. A lot of things were unperceivable by our means of perception, but, with the scientific advancement, we became able to perceive them. Let us give an example to illustrate this point; in the past, the human being did not know about or see the microbes and some other tangible matters like the stars. However, with the scientific development and the invention of the microscope and the telescope, we could see them. Thus, if some matters are unperceivable to your means of perception, this does not necessarily mean that they do not exist. So, the mind should not hesitate to believe in the unseen matters especially so because it is Allah Glorified is He Who told us about them. Moreover, science keeps unveiling what was previously unperceivable. Thus, we should use the tangible matters as a proof of the unseen ones.

Furthermore, believing in the unseen as such is one of the distinctive qualities of the believer, as Allah the Almighty describes the believers, saying: 'Who believe in the unseen…' (al-Baqara: 3). After all, believing in the perceived matters is not a privilege, for both the believers and the disbelievers are equal in this regard. It is normal to believe in the perceivable matters that convince the mind and are perceived by the means of perception.

When the rationalists saw that the essence of the heavens is not subjected to perception or experiment, they hold that 'the heaven' refers to everything over you. Accordingly, the planets, the stars, the sun and the moon constitute the heaven. During their time, only seven planets were discovered, so they claimed that these planets are the seven heavens. Afterwards, it was discovered that the planets are more than seven. When Imam Mohamed 'Abdu interpreted the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'And [by] the earth and He who spread it.' (ash-Shams: 5); and 'Did We not build seven strong [heavens] above you?' (an-Naba': 12), he said, 'To build means to make something firm and solid.'

In the process of construction, for example, we put a brick on another and use cement to stick them together. So, how can we imagine the construction of the heaven if it consists of the planets, the starts, the sun and the moon? Mohamed ‘Abdu answered, ‘Allah made these heavenly bodies solid that they do not fall on each other or run off their orbit. They are controlled by the law of gravity discovered by Newton in the seventh century. The Quran is compatible with the scientific facts and does not contradict them.’

However, we say to Imam Mohamed ‘Abdu, ‘The Quran should not be interpreted as separate verses; rather, its verses explain each other.’ For example, Allah the Almighty says: ‘When the stars are dimmed [8] and the sky is torn apart. [9]’ (al-Mursalat: 8-9), these verses show that the heaven is not the stars. Moreover, in the chapter of al-Infitar, He the Almighty says: ‘When the sky breaks apart [1] and when the stars fall, scattering. [2]’ (al-Infitar: 1-2) It is thus crystal clear that the heaven is different from the planets. Likewise, the heaven is not the sun or the moon, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: ‘Do you not consider how Allah has created seven heavens in layers [15] And made the moon therein a [reflected] light and made the sun a burning lamp? [16]’ (Nuh: 15-16) Therefore, the Quran precisely mentions these heavenly bodies and makes it clear that they are different from the heaven and its body. This fact is amply illustrated by mentioning the heaven along with these heavenly bodies.

Furthermore, the Quran distinguished between the star and the planet; the former’s light is intrinsic, while the latter’s light is derived from an external source. For this reason, Allah the Almighty says: ‘Indeed, We have adorned the nearest heaven with an adornment of stars.’ (as-Saffat: 6); ‘And We have certainly beautified the nearest heaven with lamps…’ (al-Mulk: 5). Both the stars and the lamps are the adornment of the heaven, but they are not the heaven itself. Now, is there anything other than the sun, the moon, the stars and the seven planets in the heaven? Yes, of course. The scientists have discovered other planets in our galaxy, like Neptune and Pluto.

Therefore, we can note that Imam Mohamed ‘Abdu, with his rationalistic school of thought, imagined that the whole universe is confined to the solar system. However, this solar system is a tiny thing in the creation of Allah

Glorified is He. In this regard, scientists believe that the sun light takes eight light minutes to reach the earth. Sirius, which gives light and heat estimated by twenty-six-fold that of the sun, is fourteen light years away from the earth. Thus, how can we confine Allah's vast universe to that which we perceive of it? We should not say that the earth is the centre of the universe, as the Greek did. The earth is so tiny to be the center of a universe about which He the Almighty says: 'And the heaven, We raised it high with power, and most surely We are the makers of things ample.' (adh-Dhariyat: 47)

Therefore, the universe is so massive that no one can fully conceive it. As for those who claim that the heaven is the sun, the moon and the stars, and that gravity holds its structure, we advise them to reflect on the Quran and the way it expresses the construction of the heaven. When Allah the Almighty talks about the heaven, He Glorified is He uses the Arabic word Bina' (construction), whereas the word Bunyan (building) is used for the constructions established on the earth. In this connection, He Glorified is He says: 'they said: Build for him a furnace, then cast him into the burning fire.' (as-Saffat: 97); 'Is he, therefore, better who lays his foundation on fear of Allah and (His) good pleasure, or he who lays his foundation on the edge of a cracking hollowed bank, so it broke down with him into the fire of hell...' (at-Tawba: 109); and 'The building which they have built will ever continue to be a source of disquiet in their hearts…' (at-Tawba: 110). In the verse in question, He the Almighty says: 'Did We not build seven strong [heavens] above you.' (an-Naba': 12) There is a great difference between the process of building on the earth and building of the heaven. Unlike the heaven, we build on the earth by sticking bricks together and we can still be able to distinguish each one from the other. With regard to the creation of the heaven, He the Almighty says: '…then look again, can you see any disorder?' (al-Mulk: 3) This verse means that there are no flaws in the heaven because it is a solid, precise construction that no one sees any cracks in it. Afterwards, He Glorified is He says: 'Then turn back the eye again and again; your look shall come back to you confused while it is fatigued.' (al-Mulk: 4) This clearly indicates that the sight cannot penetrate into the heaven; when we look at it, we see it one solid construction. By contrast, one can see something like stains in the sun and the moon.

Moreover, how can we accept the rationalistic school's interpretation of Allah's saying: '…seven strong [heavens]' (an-Naba': 12) as referring to the planets, the stars, the sun and the moon? This is totally unacceptable, especially if we referred to the Night Journey and Ascension, which we firmly believe in. We know that the Archangel Jibril (Gabriel) ascended along with Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him to the nearest heaven. When he requested for the gate to be opened, it was opened. They kept ascending until they reached the seventh heaven. Thus, these seven heavens are different from the sun, the moon, the planets and the stars.

We agree with the rationalistic school on the fact that Islam does not contradict science, yet, what kind of science does Islam not oppose? It is the correct science that mounts to/tells the truth. After all, Allah Glorified is He is the One Who revealed the Quran and created the universe. So, how can there be a contradiction between them? The problem is with some people who hastily connect the new scientific theories with the unseen matters mentioned in the Quran before even studying and examining the veracity of such theories. Indeed, such people are sincere in their endeavour to serve Allah's Religion, but their hasty actions may prove harmful to the Islamic Da'awa (Call).

It is not important to rationalize all the religious matters so that the human mind fully understands them. What is really important is that the religion raises the mind to its proper level. As we have said previously, the unseen matters should be believed in as it is; it is not important to know their essence; they are beneficial to us even if we do not fully comprehend them.

Furthermore, what would the mind of the twentieth century leave for the mind of the thirtieth or the fortieth century to discover? So, we should not hastily follow the scientific theories or overstep the natural development of the human mind. In fact, Allah the Almighty does not bestow the secrets of the universe on us all at once; everyday He Glorified is He gives us some of such bestowals and unveils to us some of the secrets. In this connection, He the Almighty says: 'We will soon show them Our signs in the universe and in their own souls until it will become quite clear to them that it is the truth…' (Fussilat: 53). New signs will be unveiled until the Day of Judgment. This is one of Allah's Universal Laws. There is no need for hastiness to convince the contemporary minds that the Quran is compatible with the scientific theories. What would we do if we connected the Quran with a scientific theory, claiming that the Quran discovered it first, and then we find out that the theory is wrong? There are many incidents in which scientists prove some theories wrong after being thought correct.

To recap, the seven strong heavens are in layers over us. The heaven is not the planets, nor the stars, nor the sun nor the moon; all of these bodies are different from the lower heaven and have nothing to do with it. When we find out the distance between the earth and the lower heaven, we then might think of knowing and realizing its reality.

Allah the Almighty then says: 'And make a blazing lamp?' (an-Naba': 13) He Glorified is He tells us about the sun, the blazing lamp, which illuminates the earth. The Arabic word Wahhaj (blazing) refers to the bright thing that twinkles and is full of heat. Thus, the sun intrinsically gives us light and heat. That is why its light has bright rays, while the light of the moon is pure. This is due to the fact that the light of the moon is extrinsic; it is derived from the sun and that it is why it is a pure, tranquil light. Thus, the sun gives us both light and heat.

As for the saying of Allah Glorified is He: 'Did We not send water pouring down from the clouds?' (an-Naba': 14), the Arabic word Al-Mu'sirat refers to the clouds which pour down abundant water. When we reflect on the relation between the blazing lamp, the sun, and the falling of water from the clouds, we firmly believe that it is Allah the Almighty Who revealed these verses. He Glorified is He created the universe and organized its affairs perfectly on the basis of the cause and the effect law. We have explained this relation, saying, 'The heat of the sun makes the sea water evaporate forming thereby clouds filled with fresh water which will later fall on a certain country to be used for drinking and irrigation.' In this regard, He Glorified is He says: '…then send down water from the cloud so We give it to you to drink of…' (al-Hijr: 22).

Linguistically, the Arabic word Al-Mu'sirat (clouds) refers to the girl that has just begun her first menstruation period, so she can give birth to children. In this regard, a poet said,

I was protected from my fears

By disguising among three young girls (two full breasted female companions and one adult female)

Likewise, a cloud is called Mu'sir if it is filled with fresh water. Then, its water pours down once it passes over a cool area, especially over the summits of the lofty mountains which are extremely cold. In this regard, Allah Glorified is He says: 'Did We not make the earth a home [25] for the living and the dead? [26] Did We not place firm, lofty mountains on it and provide you with sweet water? [27]' (al-Mursalat: 25-27) Thus, the sweat water is connected, with regard to its fall, with lofty mountains. A scientist called vit Jim produced an Encyclopedia on the Snow Line in which he discussed the places where the snow remains during the whole year. He noted that this line starts from the equator up to the tropic of Cancer and ends with the equator and the sea level. He found out that the highest summit in the equatorial region is 16 to 17 thousand feet (from the sea level); 13 thousand feet in the tropic of Cancer at 23°, 6 thousand feet at latitude 50; 4 thousand feet at latitude 60; and at latitude 70, the snow line reaches the sea level. Thus, the further the snow line is from the hot regions, the lower it gets. We know that the summits of the mountains are covered with snow in sub-zero temperatures. Once it is above zero by a quarter or a half of a degree, the snow melts and descends down from the mountains.

As for the wind, it passes by the snow line region and drops the water it carries at zero degrees therein. Afterwards, it blows on the other regions without water. This means that the regions not belonging to the snow line receive no rain.

Allah the Almighty explains this process of sending down the rain, saying: 'Do you not see that Allah drives along the clouds, then gathers them together, then piles them up so that you see the rain coming forth from their midst?...' (an-Nur: 43) We may ask, 'Do all the clouds carry water?' Scientist replied, 'No,' because the clouds need positive and negative electric charges. When they meet together, they produce rain. We used to interpret the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'And We send the winds fertilizing…' (al-Hijr: 22), saying that the winds are used in fertilizing the plants. With the advancement of science, however, we discovered that the winds fertilize each other.

Afterwards, Allah the Almighty describes the function of rain, which is poured down abundantly, saying: ‘To bring forth with it grain, plants, [15] and luxuriant gardens [16]’ (an-Naba’: 15-16), we should ponder on how these verses are precisely expressed. This precision can only be attributed to Allah Glorified is He Who is fully Aware of His creation. The grain is the source out of which the plants grow, whereas the latter forms the gardens. Thus, He the Almighty advises those who want to see His signs in the creation, saying: ‘Say: Travel in the earth, then see…’ (an-Naml: 69). ‘The earth’ here refers to the lands which are farmed by Allah’s Power, without any human intervention. The true nature of these lands remains as long as they are away from the human intervention. In such lands, one finds many of Allah’s signs in creation, including: trees, plants and fruits. Who planted them? The human being makes use of what s/he had seen in nature by growing the like of these plants and trees.

Thus, the grains give us the plants and trees, and when the trees grow in size and in number, they constitute the luxuriant gardens the branches of which intermingle due to the fertility of the soil. In Arabic, it is called Janna (a garden) because it covers the one walking inside it.

After telling us about some of the manifestations of Allah’s Power, Wisdom and Creativity, the Quran draws our attention to the main topic and objective of the chapter, that is, the Day of Judgment or the momentous announcement that the disbelievers deny and differ about.

Allah the Almighty says:

إِنَّ يَوۡمَ ٱلۡفَصۡلِ كَانَ مِيقَٰتٗا ﴿١٧﴾ يَوۡمَ يُنفَخُ فِي ٱلصُّورِ فَتَأۡتُونَ أَفۡوَاجٗا ﴿١٨﴾
وَفُتِحَتِ ٱلسَّمَآءُ فَكَانَتۡ أَبۡوَٰبٗا ﴿١٩﴾ وَسُيِّرَتِ ٱلۡجِبَالُ فَكَانَتۡ سَرَابًا ﴿٢٠﴾

A time has been appointed for the Day of Decision: [17] a Day when the Trumpet will sound and you will come forward in crowds [18] when the sky will open up like wide portals [19] when the mountains will vanish like a mirage [20]
(The Quran, an-Naba’: 17 - 20)

Allah Glorified is He mentions the Day of Decision after the perceivable universal signs to say to the disbelievers, ‘You should not have denied the Day of Judgment after witnessing these universal signs which you clearly acknowledge that they are attributed to Allah Alone. How will you then meet Him Glorified is He on that Day of Decision? What will you say to Him the Almighty after denying and opposing His Way of Guidance?'

The Day of Judgment is called 'the Day of Decision' because Allah the Almighty judges among His servants on it. This word 'decision' indicates that the two parties are disputing about certain issues. In the worldly life, the people differ about the truth and the falsehood; some people are wrongdoers, while others are wronged. Everyone is fully convinced of his/her point of view and argues for it until Allah Glorified is He judges between the people on the Day of Judgment, for all the disputing people will be gathered together before Him the Almighty.

The saying of Allah the Almighty: 'A time has been appointed…' (an-Naba': 17) means that the time of the Day of Judgment is precisely set; it will neither come earlier or later. Being an appointed time, it is clear why Allah Glorified is He does not respond to the calls of those who want Him the Almighty to bring it earlier than its due time. Such people asked: 'When will this threat come about, if you are truthful?' (Yunus: 48) He the Almighty is not subjected to the will of His creation because He Glorified is He is Unchangeable; no one can reject His Command or repel His Decree. Moreover, He Glorified is He is not subjected to the hastiness that overtakes the human beings because they are imperfect, with limited intellectual abilities. By contrast, He Glorified is He is Perfect; His Anger with the disbelievers and the disobedient people does not make Him hasten to hold them accountable before the due time set for that.

Allah the Almighty says: 'A Day when the Trumpet will sound and you will come forward in crowds.' (an-Naba': 18) This is because the Day of Judgment starts with blowing the Trumpet. This verb Yunfakhu (to be blown) is in the passive voice; it does not show the one who will blow the Trumpet. Scholars believe that Israfil will blow the Trumpet for the first time to resurrect the people, and that he will do it again to gather them (for accountability).

The saying of Allah the Almighty: '…you will come forward in crowds.' (an-Naba': 18) means that the people will come in groups according to their religious state in the worldly life, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying:

'(And remember) the Day when We shall call together all human beings with their (respective) Imam…' (al-Isra': 71). Thus, there will be a leader for those who devoured usury, the adulterous, those who devour what is unlawful, etc. The people with similar sins will be gathered together.

With regard to the saying of Allah: 'A Day when the Trumpet will sound and you will come forward in crowds' (an-Naba': 18), there is a Hadith(1) narrated by Ibn Mardawayh on the authority of Mu'adh ibn Jabal Allah be pleased with him in which he, i.e. Mu'adh asked Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him about this verse, whereupon he said, 'You have asked about a great matter. After looking at the sky, he Allah's peace and blessings be upon him said, 'Allah Glorified is He distinguished ten kinds of people from the Muslim Ummah and changed their images; some would be in the images of apes, while others would be in the images of pigs. Some would hang down their heads with their legs over their heads; they would be dragged on their heads. Some people would be blind, deaf or dumb. Some others would chew their tongues which would hang down to their chests; the pus would issue from their mouth like saliva, which would disgust the gathered people. The hands and legs of some others would be cut off. Some others would be crucified on trunks of fire. Others' smell would be worse than that of a corpse, disgusting all the people. Another kind of people would wear cloaks made of pitch, attaching to their bodies.'

Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him then explained these kinds of people. As for those who have the image of apes, they are the backbiters who go about with calumnies among the people to arouse hostilities. With regard to those in the images of pigs, they are the ones who devour what is unlawful and earn their provision illegally. As for those who will hang down their heads with their legs over their heads and who will be dragged on their heads, they are the ones who devour usury. As for the blind people, they are the unjust rulers. As for the deaf people who do not have a sound mentality, they are the conceited people who boast about their deeds. We said that some people will chew their tongues and the pus will issue from their mouth as saliva; those are the evil scholars who say what they do not do. As for those whose hands and legs are cut off, they are the ones who harm their neighbours. With regard to those who will be crucified on trunks of fire, they are the ones who expose other people to the ruler. As for those whose smell is worse than that of the corpse, they are the followers of their whims and lusts. With regard to the people who will wear cloaks made of pitch, attaching to their bodies, they are the self-conceited and arrogant people.

(1) This Hadith is narrated on the authority of Mu'adh ibn Jabal Allah be pleased with him. In his Tafsir, As-Suyuti attributes it to Ibn Mardawayh while Ath-Tha'labi attributes it to Ibn Fanjawayh on the authority of Al-Bara' ibn A'zib. See As-Suyuti, Ad-Durr Al-Manthur, 8/393; Ath-Tha'labi, Al-Kashf Wa Al-Bayan, 10/115; and Az-Zamakhshari, Al-Kashshaf, 4/687.

This is how Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him interpreted the word Afwaj (in crowds). However, scholars who scrutinize the authenticity of the Hadiths opine that the context indicates that the Hadith is about those who deny the Resurrection, yet the text of the Hadith refers to a group of the Muslims, which is why Ibn Hajar said, ‘I think this Hadith is not quoted in the right context or it is fabricated.’

With regard to the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘When the sky will open up like wide portals’ (an-Naba’: 19), we said that the heaven is constructed perfectly; one cannot see any flaws or cracks in its construction. By contrast, in the Hereafter, the heaven will be torn apart and will open up like wide portals, after being a perfect construction.

Both the heaven and the earth will be affected by the coming of the Hereafter, a fact which is crystal clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘On the day when the earth shall be changed into a different earth and the heavens (as well)…’ (Ibrahim: 48). Thus, the earth and the heaven of this worldly life are qualified for humans’ living, but the earth and the heaven of the Hereafter are undoubtedly different. The earth in the worldly life depends on causes and effects, whereas that of the Hereafter depends on the Ultimate Causer Glorified is He Alone.

Allah the Almighty explained the meaning of His saying: ‘When the sky will open up like wide portals.’ (an-Naba’: 19) in other verses, saying: ‘When the heaven becomes cleft asunder’ (al-Infitar: 1); and ‘On the Day when the heaven shall move from side to side.’ (at-Tur: 9) All of this leads to the perishing of the worldly heaven so that the new heaven of the Hereafter replaces it.

Allah the Almighty then adds: 'When the mountains will vanish like a mirage.' (an-Naba': 20) This is another scene on the Day of Judgment. The mountains which are the most firm and solid phenomena will vanish on the Day of Judgment. They will crack, break up and vanish like a mirage.

The topic of the destruction of the mountains was discussed at length in the Quran. The state of the mountains is mentioned in twenty-nine verses in twenty-nine chapters of the Quran, like the verse in question. In this regard, Allah the Almighty says in the chapter of at-Takwir: 'When the sun is covered, [1] And when the stars darken, [2] And when the mountains are made to pass away. [3]' (at-Takwir: 1-3) In the chapter of al-Kahf, He the Almighty says: 'And the day on which We will cause the mountains to pass away…' (al-Kahf: 47); in the chapter of at-Tur: 'On the Day when the heaven shall move from side to side [9] And the mountains shall pass away passing away (altogether) [10]' (at-Tur: 9-10); and in the chapter in question: 'When the mountains will vanish like a mirage.' (an-Naba': 20) These are four positions mentioning the removal of the mountains, but three of them do not mention what happens to them afterwards. In the chapter in question, however, He the Almighty says: 'When the mountains will vanish like a mirage.' (an-Naba': 20) Thus, the mountains will be like a mirage. First, they will move and turn into very tiny fragments. For this reason, He the Almighty says: 'When the mountains are turned to dust.' (al-Mursalat: 10) This verse means that they will no longer exist.

In the chapter of al-Muzzammil, Allah the Almighty gives us another picture of the destruction of the mountains; they are described as heaps of sand: 'On the day when the earth and the mountains shall quake and the mountains shall become (as) heaps of sand let loose.' (al-Muzzammil: 14) The Arabic word Katheeb refers to the fine sand which broke up after being solid. This is one of the stages of the destruction of the mountains where they will turn into heaps of sand. Likewise, He the Almighty says in the chapter of al-Waqi'a: 'When the earth shall be shaken with a (severe) shaking, [4] And the mountains shall be made to crumble with (an awful) crumbling, [5] So that they shall be as scattered dust. [6]' (al-Waqi'a: 4-6) These aforementioned verses collectively tell us that the removal of the mountains is synonymous with its vanishing. Ultimately, they will cease to exist.

In the same connection, Allah the Almighty says in the chapter of al-Ma‘arij: ‘On the day when the heaven shall be as molten copper [8] And the mountains shall be as tufts of wool. [9]’ (al-Ma’arij: 8-9); and in the chapter of al-Qari‘a, He Glorified is He says: ‘And the mountains shall be as loosened wool.’ (al-Qari`a: 5) Thus, the mountains will vanish, and then break up and turn into heaps of sand. Afterwards, they will turn into a mirage and then totally vanish, for there is no function for them anymore. Their function was to stabilize the earth, but in the Hereafter the earth has changed into another one.

Then Allah the Almighty then says:

إِنَّ جَهَنَّمَ كَانَتْ مِرْصَادًا ﴿٢١﴾ لِّلطَّٰغِينَ مَـَٔابًا ﴿٢٢﴾ لَّٰبِثِينَ فِيهَآ أَحْقَابًا ﴿٢٣﴾
لَّا يَذُوقُونَ فِيهَا بَرْدًا وَلَا شَرَابًا ﴿٢٤﴾ إِلَّا حَمِيمًا وَغَسَّاقًا ﴿٢٥﴾ جَزَآءً وِفَاقًا ﴿٢٦﴾

Hell lies in wait [21] a home for oppressors [22] to stay in for a long, long time [23] where they will taste no coolness nor drink [24] except one that is scalding and dark [25] a fitting requital [26] (The Quran, an-Naba’: 21-26)

These verses mention the ultimate destination of the deniers of Resurrection: ‘Hell lies in wait.’ (an-Naba’: 21) First, Allah the Almighty threatens them, saying: ‘They will find out. [4] In the end they will find out. [5]’ (an-Naba’: 4-5) Then, He Glorified is He asserted that the Day they denied will come to pass, saying: ‘A time has been appointed for the Day of Decision.’ (an-Naba’: 17) Afterwards, He the Almighty gives them some descriptions of what will happen in the universe on the Day of Judgment including the collapse of many universal phenomena. So, what then? It is the Recompense according to the deeds, be they good or evil.

Now, Allah the Almighty tells us about the punishment awaiting the disbelievers and the deniers who oppose His Way of Guidance. Then He Glorified is He shows us the reward of the pious believers, saying: ‘For those who were aware of Allah there is supreme fulfilment.’ (an-Naba’: 31) In this way, He the Almighty gives us a complete account about the destination of both groups in order that we might draw an effective comparison between them.

Allah the Almighty says: ‘Hell lies in wait.’ (an-Naba’: 21) This means that the hellfire expects and lies in wait for the disbelievers to grab them inside it. So, it is not heedless of them; rather, it yearns for them, like a person lying in wait to seize his/her opponent. Elsewhere in the Quran, He the Almighty says: ‘Almost bursting for fury…’ (al-Mulk: 8). So, the fire is filled with anger against the disbelievers. Not only the hellfire but also the whole universe hates the disbelievers who violate Allah’s Way of Guidance. All the creatures yearn for a chance to revenge against the disbelievers. For this reason, the hellfire calls for more of them to be burned inside it, a fact which is clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘On the day that We will say to hell: Are you filled up? And it will say: Are there any more?’ (Qaf: 30) With regard to the attitude of the inanimate objects towards the disbelievers, He the Almighty says: ‘So the heaven and the earth did not weep for them, nor were they respited.’ (ad-Dukhan: 29) This is due to the fact that the whole universe is subjected to Allah the Almighty and glorifies Him. It fulfils its function as prescribed by Him the Almighty and feels angry at the human being if s/he violates the Divine Way of Guidance. In the same connection, we mentioned the Sacred Hadith which reads, ‘The oceans say, ‘My Lord, give me the permission to drown the son of Adam.’ The earth says, ‘My Lord, give me the permission to swallow the son of Adam…’. Thus, the whole universe, including the heaven and the earth, is angry at the man who violates Allah’s Way of Guidance. Surprisingly, the human being is the only creature that may disobey Him the Almighty. The human beings are divided into believers and disbelievers; obedient people and disobedient ones. It suffices here to cite the following verse: ‘Do you not see that Allah is He, Whom obeys whoever is in the heavens and whoever is in the earth, and the sun and the moon and the stars, and the mountains and the trees, and the animals…’ (al-Hajj: 18). This means that the creatures mentioned in the previous verse unanimously worship Allah the Almighty. As for the human being, the master of the universe, s/he breaks this rule, as is clear in the saying of Allah: ‘…and many of the people; and many there are against whom chastisement has become necessary…’ (al-Hajj: 18).

Thus, the hellfire is correctly acting when it lies in wait for the disbelievers and yearns to punish them. He the Almighty then says: ‘A home for oppressors.’

(an-Naba': 22) This means that the hellfire is the ultimate destination of the oppressors. How evil that destination is!

The Arabic word Ma'aba (returning home) implies that someone will return to a place after leaving it. Here arises a question, which is, 'How can the hellfire be the Ma'ab (home) of the disbelievers while they had not been thrown into it before?!' Scholars opine that the human being during his/her presence in the worldly life enjoys freedom of choice between two states of subjection; the first one is that s/he was created out of nothing and then given the ability to choose. Accordingly, the disbelievers will be forced to dwell in the hellfire. In other words, they will have no choice to decide on this matter, exactly as they had no choice to decide on the time of their birth or death or their morals, etc.

Moreover, the last destination of the disbelievers will grow worse because it is permanent and endless, a fact which is crystal clear in the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'To stay in for a long, long time.' (an-Naba': 23) The singular form of the Arabic word Ahqaba is Hiqba, which, according to the exegetes of the Quran, refers to a period of time estimated by eighty years. As these periods of time are eternally consecutive, then the disbelievers will dwell in the hellfire forever. With regard to the disbelievers, staying for a long, long time in the hellfire does not indicate that they will get out after the end of that time. In fact, their stay in it is endless, as He the Almighty says elsewhere: '…they will abide therein forever.' (al-Jinn: 23)

Here arises a question, which is, 'Why does Allah the Almighty say that the disbelievers will stay for a long time in the hellfire, while they will abide eternally therein?!' Some scholars opine that He the Almighty wants to add another kind of punishment for the disbelievers. After torturing them for a particular period of time, He Glorified is He will command the Angels to get them out of the hellfire and to take them to the direction of the paradise, a matter that will consequently raise the disbelievers' hopes to be, at least, saved from the hellfire. However, the Angels will be commanded to take them back to the hellfire, which will humiliate and torture the disbelievers' souls because it shatters all their hopes of salvation. Furthermore, it increases the amount of punishment which they already suffer from, for if the torment were continuous, it would be easier. A poet(1) once portrayed shattering one’s hope, saying,

Like a rainy cloud (that) appears to a thirsty people
But once they see it, it vanishes

Another poet (2) also says,

Now I have become deprived of Layla
As if I was holding water with my fingers

Shattering the hopes along with its consequent disappointment is a kind of punishment still employed even in today’s prisons. For example, the jailer makes the prisoner grow thirsty, and when the former draws water nigh to the latter’s mouth, s/he spills it before allowing him/her to drink. In this way, the jailer gives the prisoner the hope of quenching his/her thirst, but then shatters that hope completely. This punishment tortures the soul; after being in a state of happiness, the prisoner turns into the antithetical state.

In this connection, there are many descriptions of the punishment prepared for the disbelievers. It is described as great, severe, painful, humiliating, and so on. Every kind of these punishments is prepared for a particular group of sinful people. May Allah the Almighty protect us from His punishment and from the evil of His servants!

The verses continue to describe the hellfire and its punishment. Allah the Almighty says: ‘Where they will taste neither coolness nor drink [24] except one that is scalding and dark. [25]’ (an-Naba’: 24-25) These verses clearly show another kind of punishment for the disbelievers; Allah the Almighty actually mocks at them, for they will taste no coolness in the hellfire, and thus its heat will not be dissipated, nor will they have any drink by which they could quench their thirst.

(1) He is Kuthayyir A‘zza Al-Khuza‘i, Abu Sakhr. He was a poet of the people of Medina, but stayed for a long time in Egypt. He was extremely short and ugly. Using poetry, he was the best defender of Islam at his time, which is why people preferred no other poet to him in this regard. He died in Medina in 105 A.H. See Az-Zirikli, Al-A‘lam, 5/219.

(2) Majnun Layla is Qays ibn Al-Mulawwah Al-‘Amiri; he was from Najd. He was not mad but was called so for his overwhelming love for Layla Bint Sa‘d. They grew up together, and when she became mature, her father prevented him from seeing her. So, Qays became deeply sad; he used to be seen sometimes in Ash-Sham and other times in Najd until he was found dead among some stones. His body was taken to his people in 68 A.H. See Az-Zirikli, Al-A‘lam, 5/208.

The word ‘except’ raises the hope of the disbelievers. They will wrongly think that what follows is good for them. However, it is followed by nothing but another kind of more painful punishment: ‘Except one that is scalding and dark.’ (an-Naba’: 25) The Arabic word Hamima refers to the extremely hot water. As for the Arabic word ‘Ghassaq’, it is the pus issued from the bodies of people of hellfire. This is actually the drink they will get in the hellfire. For this reason, some Companions of Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him believe that this verse is the most difficult one in the Book of Allah.(1) As such, the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘Where they will taste neither coolness nor drink [24] except one that is scalding and dark. [25]’ (an-Naba’: 24-25) tells us about some kinds of punishment prepared for the disbelievers. The word ‘except’ could indicate that there is a hope of alleviation for the disbelievers; however, the punishment that follows it is severer than what precedes it.

As for the saying of Allah Glorified is He: ‘A fitting requital’ (an-Naba’: 26), it means that He the Almighty neither wronged the disbelievers nor exceeded the fitting requital. Thus, their punishment is in proportion to their crimes, sins and violations of His Way of Guidance. In the same connection, He the Almighty says: ‘…and We did them no injustice, but they were unjust to themselves.’ (an-Nahl: 118)

By contrast, He Glorified is He says afterwards about the reward of the righteous people: ‘A reward from your Lord, a fitting gift.’ (an-Naba’: 36) Therefore, the reward of the righteous people is not in proportion to their deeds; rather, it is greatly increased out of Allah’s Benevolence. On the other hand, the punishment for an evil deed is in proportion to it, a fact which is crystal clear in His saying: ‘And the recompense of evil is punishment like it, but whoever forgives and amends, he shall have his reward from Allah…’ (ash-Shura: 40). So, concluding the verses in question with His saying: ‘A fitting requital’ (an-Naba’: 26) prevents the foolish sympathy that overtakes some people when they listen to the verses describing the punishment of the oppressors. Out of this so-called sympathy, some even go far to describe Allah’s Requital as severe, not fitting the disbeliever’s crimes. As such, it is as if He Glorified is He responds to those people, saying, ‘There is no severity, injustice or transgression in the requital prepared for the disbelievers. This is the punishment they deserve for their evil deeds and crimes.’ Afterwards, He the Almighty mentions the reasons why the people should believe that His Requital is fair and befitting, saying:

(1) In their books of Tafsir, Al-Khazin and Ath-Tha‘labi mention that the severest verse in the Quran is the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘Taste this: all you will get from Us is more torment.’ (an-Naba’: 30) This is according to a Hadith narrated on the authority of Abu Barza Al-‘Aslami. See Al-Khazin, Lubab At-Ta’wil, 2/263; Ath-Tha’labi, Al-Kash Wa Al-Bayan, 10/117; Al-Qurtubi, Jame‘ Ahkam Al-Quran;19/182 and Ibn Kathir, Tafsir Al-Quran Al-‘Azhim, 8/311.

إِنَّهُمْ كَانُوا۟ لَا يَرْجُونَ حِسَابًا ﴿٢٧﴾ وَكَذَّبُوا۟ بِـَٔايَٰتِنَا كِذَّابًا ﴿٢٨﴾
وَكُلَّ شَىْءٍ أَحْصَيْنَٰهُ كِتَٰبًا ﴿٢٩﴾ فَذُوقُوا۟ فَلَن نَّزِيدَكُمْ إِلَّا عَذَابًا ﴿٣٠﴾

For they did not fear a reckoning [27] and they rejected Our messages as lies [28] We have recorded every- thing in a Record [29] ‘Taste this: all you will get from Us is more torment’ [30] (The Quran, an-Naba’: 27-30)

As for the saying of Allah the Almighty: ‘For they did not fear a reckoning.’ (an-Naba’: 27), it means that the disbelievers did not believe in the Day of Judgment or the Reckoning. Another possible interpretation is that they believe in Allah the Almighty, but they deny the Resurrection and are heedless of the Reckoning.

In fact, all kinds of corruption in the worldly life stem from denying the Day of Judgment and not fearing the Reckoning. What do we expect of some people who do not believe in the Hereafter and the Reckoning, and do not expect any requital for their misdeeds? The one who does not fear the Day of Reckoning follows his/her whims and lusts; s/he transgresses against other people. Thus, belief in the Day of Reckoning does not only guarantee a sound religiosity and good life in the Hereafter but also a good worldly life. Mohamed Iqbal spoke the truth when he said,

Neither there is safety if faith is lost
Nor (is there) a good life in the absence of religion

Thus, the one who expects no requital for his/her actions violates any religious or moral standards. This leads to endless corruption, starting with the corruption of the Creed down to even the simplest deeds. On the other hand, if the members of the society believe in the Reckoning and the Recompense, their righteousness will lead to the reformation of the society and its members. This righteousness stems from believing that everyone will be held accountable before his/her Lord and Creator Who is Ever-Watchful over him/her. He the Almighty knows everything; not an atom's weight within the heavens or the earth is absent from Him.

We have previously said that Allah the Almighty prescribed deterring factors within the Islamic society in order to prevent the committing of crimes. One of these factors is embodied in the obligation of enjoining what is right and forbidding what is wrong. Another factor is the ruler whom Allah the Almighty established in this position to implement His Laws and Legally-Prescribed Punishments. In this way, the good people will be rewarded and the wrongdoers will be punished. Another deterring factor is the self-reproaching soul, which rebukes its owner for committing sins, and takes him/her back to the Straight Path.

Now, what would we do if the society is corrupt, having no sound creed and abdicating its responsibility for preventing the crimes? What would we do if the society stopped enjoining what is right and prohibiting what is wrong? How can we deal with the corrupt ruler who is heedless of implementing Allah’s Laws and punishing the criminals? Further, how can we reform someone who has lost his/her conscience and his/her soul incites him/her to commit evil?

Scholars opine that the Quran did not neglect the above-mentioned deterring factors. In fact, the religion of Islam paid a great attention to them. However, these factors may suffer corruption, to the extent that the criminal may circumvent the ruler’s punishment and the earthly laws. If this happened, there remains the last factor which encompasses all the previous ones; it is the belief that Allah the Almighty is Ever-Watchful over man and that He Glorified is He will hold him/her accountable for his/her actions; there will be a reward for the good actions and a punishment for the evil ones. Thus, if the earthly justice was blind to the sinful, the heavenly justice always extends to him/her.

The saying of Allah the Almighty: '…and they rejected Our Messages as lies' (an-Naba': 28) emphasizes the disbelievers' rejection of the Divine verses and messages. The word Kidhdhaba (rejection) according to the dialect of the people of Yemen is a verbal noun. For example, when a Yemeni asked about the pilgrimage rites, he said, 'Is it better to shave my hair or to shorten it (Al-Qisar)(1)?' In some standard Quranic recitations, the word Kidh-dhaba is recited as Kedhaba, which also means rejection, and Kudhdhaba, which is the plural of a liar.

The verse in question indicates the marvelousness of the Quranic style and its supreme eloquence. If we say, 'A person charged so and so with telling lies,' this means that the two people may be liars. That is because the one who calls the other person a liar may be truthful or not. As for the disbelievers, they rejected Allah's Messages as lies, so they, unquestionably, are liars. The style of this verse indicates that those who belied His Verses are the liars. Thus, He the Almighty states that their rejection of His Verses as lies is not based on the reality, given that His Verses cannot be belied. They belied the Quran despite the fact that falsehood does not come to it from before it nor from behind it. Further, they belied Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him, while he is absolutely truthful. Their rejection, however, is blameworthy as they have no right to do it.

The style employed in the verse in question is called Al-Ihtikak. It means that one element in each of two sentences is omitted because another element in the other sentence refers to it. In this verse, the second element of the first sentence and the first element of the second sentence were omitted. This is similar to the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'Indeed there was a sign for you in the two hosts (which) met together in encounter; one party fighting in the way of Allah and the other unbelieving…' (Al-'Imran: 13). This verse means that there are two parties: a believing party fighting in the Way of Allah and a disbelieving one fighting in the way of the Satan. The phrase 'in the way of Allah' indicates the omitted phrase, that is, ‘in the way of the Satan’, while the phrase ‘disbelieving party’ indicates the ‘believing party,’ which is also omitted. This is a concise style that depends on the intelligence of the listener. It provokes the mind to understand the meaning and attracts the attention of the reader.

(1) Instead of saying At-Taqsir, he said Al-Qisar

Another example is found in His saying: ‘Or do they say: He has forged it? Say: If I have forged it, on me is my guilt, and I am clear of that of which you are guilty.’ (Hud: 35) Here, Allah the Almighty commands Prophet Muhammad Allah’s peace and blessings be upon him to say to the disbelievers, ‘If I forged the Quran, then this guilt is on me alone and you are innocent. By contrast, if it is revealed from Allah, then you will bear the consequences of your guilt and I am innocent.’ Thus, the elements of both the two sentences indicate the omitted ones in both of them. Likewise, in the verse in question, the verb is mentioned and the verbal noun is omitted in the first sentence. Conversely, the verb is omitted in the second sentence, while the verbal noun is mentioned.

We have explained that ‘telling lies’ means that one’s statement is not consistent with the reality. In fact, one says something only after thinking about it. If his/her statement is about something that has already happened, then this is called a statement; but if it has not taken place yet, this is called a request. Let us give an example to illustrate this point; when someone says, ‘Zayd is hard-working,’ this is called a statement. If there is really someone called Zayd who is hard-working, then the statement is true. However, if there is no one called Zayd or he is not hard-working, then the statement is false.

In this connection, some people could not fully comprehend Allah’s saying: ‘When the hypocrites come to you, they say: We bear witness that you are most surely Allah's Messenger; and Allah knows that you are most surely His Messenger, and Allah bears witness that the hypocrites are surely liars.’ (al-Munafiqun: 1) Such people asked, ‘Why did Allah call the hypocrites liars, while they had said to Prophet Muhammad, ‘We bear witness that you are Allah’s Messenger.’?’ In other words, the hypocrites’ statement is consistent with the reality, so why does He the Almighty call them liars? In fact, describing them as liars is not because they said, ‘…We bear witness that you are most surely Allah's Messenger...’ (al-Munafiqun: 1); rather, it is because they said, ‘…We bear witness…’ (al-Munafiqun: 1). They bore witness with their tongues what their hearts did not believe in. Thus, they are liars with regard to the sincerity of their witness, as it is not consistent with reality and their belief in Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him.

Allah the Almighty then says: 'We have recorded everything in a Record.' (an-Naba': 29) As a matter of fact, everything happening in the universe is recorded including people's sayings, deeds and behaviours. The Arabic verb Ahsa means to know something and enumerate it, not only by committing it to memory but also to writing. Thus, He the Almighty emphasizes the fact that everything is recorded in a book.

The verse in question confirms that He the Almighty does not only know what would happen, but He Glorified is He also wrote it down. So, His Enumeration of everything, which leaves nothing at all, be it small or great, is recorded and written down. Why? This is because the record will serve as an argument against the people on the Day of Judgment. It is the Day on which everyone will take his/her record, and it will be said to him/her: 'Read your book; your own self is sufficient as a reckoner against you this Day.' (an-Nahl: 14)

Then Allah the Almighty says: 'Taste this: all you will get from Us is more torment.' (an-Naba': 30) It is noted here that He Glorified is He talks about the disbelievers who deny the Day of Reckoning. The one who ponders on the style of the previous verses will find out that they employ the third person style: 'Hell lies in wait, [21] a home for oppressors [22] to stay in for a long, long time, [23] where they will taste no coolness nor drink. [24]' (an-Naba': 21-24) This style was expected to continue in the verse under discussion, i.e. He the Almighty could have said, 'They will taste.' However, He Glorified is He changes the manner of address to the second person pronoun, saying: 'Taste this...' (an-Naba': 30). The second person style means that someone talks to attentive addressees. In the previous verses, unseen matters were discussed; that is why the third person style was employed. Here, He the Almighty wants the second person style to clearly illustrate the intended meaning. As some people deny the Hereafter because it is unseen, He Glorified is He wants to portray it as a factual reality confronting the deniers. It is as if He the Almighty says to them, 'You will be taken by surprise when I address you, saying: "Taste this…" (an-Naba': 30). The unseen matter has become a reality.'

The saying of Allah the Almighty: '…all you will get from Us is more torment' (an-Naba': 30) shatters the disbelievers' hope of Allah's Mercy after yearning for alleviating the punishment. When they listen to the Arabic word Illa (except) which is a particle of exception, they look forward to alleviating the punishment. The word '…torment' (an-Naba': 30), however, strikes their ears and dash their hopes. This strongly and severely humiliates them, as we have explained in the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'Where they will taste neither coolness nor drink [24] except one that is scalding and dark. [25]' (an-Naba': 24-25)

The Quranic context talks about the deniers of the Resurrection and Reckoning, and makes mention of the punishment they deserve. In the subsequent verses, He the Almighty adds a new kind of punishment for them by mentioning the endless pleasures of their antithetical party, i.e. the righteous people, saying:

إِنَّ لِلْمُتَّقِينَ مَفَازًا (٣١) حَدَآئِقَ وَأَعْنَٰبًا (٣٢) وَكَوَاعِبَ أَتْرَابًا (٣٣) وَكَأْسًا دِهَاقًا (٣٤)
لَّا يَسْمَعُونَ فِيهَا لَغْوًا وَلَا كِذَّٰبًا (٣٥) جَزَآءً مِّن رَّبِّكَ عَطَآءً حِسَابًا (٣٦)

For those who were aware of God there is supreme fulfilment:
[31] private gardens, vineyards [32] nubile, well-matched companions [33] and an overflowing cup [34] There they will hear no vain or lying talk [35] a reward from your Lord, a fitting gift [36] (The Quran, an-Naba': 31 - 36)

In fact, drawing comparisons are one of the features of the Quranic style. It clarifies a certain meaning by giving its opposite, as in the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'The good will live in bliss, [13] and the wicked will burn in the Fire. [14]' (al-Infitar: 13-14) This is also intended to spite the disbelievers; in addition to their punishment, their regret increases after seeing the people of the paradise enjoying its pleasures.

The righteous people are the ones who abide by Allah's Way of Guidance, obeying His Orders and refraining from His Prohibitions. The phrase 'supreme fulfilment' has many meanings, as follows: it could mean 'success,' that is, the believer's fulfilment of his/her good objective and achieving of what s/he hopes for; it could also mean to be saved from harm and dangers. In the Hereafter, ‘the supreme fulfilment’ refers to both success and salvation because the believer hopes to be saved from the hellfire and to be admitted into the paradise. In this regard, He the Almighty says: ‘And there is not one of you but shall come to it; this is an unavoidable decree of your Lord. [71] And We will deliver those who guarded (against evil), and We will leave the unjust therein on their knees. [72]’ (Maryam: 71-72); and ‘Then whoever is removed far away from the fire and is made to enter the garden he indeed has attained the object.’ (Al-‘Imran: 185) Thus, there are two stages of success: to be saved from the hellfire and to be admitted into the paradise. As a matter of fact, to be saved from the hellfire alone is a sufficient success. So, what would we think of entering the Paradise after being removed far away from the hellfire?! This is indeed the greatest success. It is the ultimate objective that every believer aspires to attain.

In this connection, the Arabs called the perilous desert a Mafaza (salvation); hoping, by this naming, to be saved from its dangers, including the beasts, lions and the deadly drought and famine. The desert was so called as a way of raising hope of salvation from the dangers facing those who walk through it.

Afterwards, Allah the Almighty gives us descriptions and examples of the paradise’s pleasures, saying: ‘Private gardens, vineyards.’ (an-Naba’: 32) He Glorified is He tells us about the paradise according to our familiarity with the gardens in the worldly life. Otherwise, the paradise is an unseen matter. He the Almighty says about it elsewhere: ‘So no soul knows what is hidden for them of that which will refresh the eyes; a reward for what they did.’ (as-Sajda: 17) In the same connection, Prophet Muhammad peace and blessings be upon him said, ‘There will be bounties which no eye has seen, no ear has heard and no human heart has ever perceived.’ If the paradise is described as such, then there is no doubt that the words of people’s languages in the worldly life cannot describe what is in it. This is due to the fact that using a word for describing something always follows the existence of such a thing. In other words, the meaning shall exist first, that is, before the people form the word that refers to it. So, if no one has ever seen, heard or perceived the pleasures of the paradise, how can there be words describing them?! It is thus clear that there is no word or vocabulary in the various languages of mankind that can describe what is in the paradise. In fact, Allah the Almighty addresses us according to our intellectual abilities and by the language we understand.

He the Almighty explains this fact in His saying: ‘A likeness of the Garden which the righteous are promised…’ (ar-Ra‘d: 35). He Glorified is He does not say, ‘The Garden which the righteous are promised,’ but rather, He the Almighty tells that He is just giving us a likeness of that Garden. So, when we read that the paradise contains rivers of water, milk and honey as well as private gardens and vineyards, we consider them as familiar descriptions, but yet we should take into account that we know nothing about its reality.

The word ‘gardens’ is the plural of a garden which is the orchard surrounded by a wall, which indicates its privacy. Thus, the pleasure of having privacy exists in the paradise. In more than one place, the Quran refers to such privacy. For example, Allah the Almighty says: ‘Private gardens…’ (an-Naba’: 32); ‘Pure ones confined to the pavilions.’ (ar-Rahman: 72); and ‘Man has not touched them before them nor jinni.’ (ar-Rahman: 74) Thus, Allah’s Bounties are so great because He Glorified is He protects the believer’s privacy in the paradise.

Allah the Almighty then mentions the most gratifying thing in the gardens, saying: ‘Private gardens, vineyards.’ (an-Naba’: 32) As we have just said, it is not right to compare the pleasures of the Hereafter with that of the worldly life because they only share names like grapes and wine, but they are completely different. That is why He the Almighty says: ‘…and they shall be given the like of it…’ (al-Baqara: 25). Whenever the people of the paradise are given something of the bounties in the paradise with which they were familiar in the worldly life, they will say: ‘…This is what was given to us before…’ (al-Baqara: 25). They would think that what they are given in the paradise is similar to what is in the worldly life, but this is not true. Here arises a question, which is, ‘What is the reason for making the pleasurable food of the Hereafter similar in the form to that of the worldly life?’ Some scholars opine that being familiar with something encourages the person to have it. For example, if you travelled to a place where you found a certain kind of fruit unknown to you and which does not exist in your surroundings, would you accept having it or not?! Thus, the pleasures of the Hereafter are given in the similar form to that of the worldly life, in order to be familiar to the people of the paradise. This actually encourages them to unhesitatingly have it as the soul desires it and does not find it repulsive.

Allah the Almighty then says: 'Nubile, well-matched companions.' (an-Naba': 33) The beautiful companions, who are the women of the paradise, are the most delighting pleasure in the paradise. He the Almighty describes them as 'nubile' which is the attribute of the woman when her breasts grow and become voluptuous, that is, they have not yet gone limp. The breasts take that shape only in the time of youth and it is the best period in the women's lifetime.

With regard to His saying: '…well-matched companions' (an-Naba': 33), the word Atrab (well-matched) is the plural of Tirb which refers to someone equal in age to someone else. So, the beautiful companions share the same qualities and age of their husbands, in order to prevent them from looking for a woman beyond them. Strangely enough, some people mistakenly believe that there is similarity between the sexual gratification in the paradise and that in the worldly life. They are consequently repulsed by it and find it dirty. We say to such people, 'Why do we try to escape from the reality or be ashamed of it, given that sexual gratification is the nature that Allah the Almighty instilled in us? Is this matter not one of the most delightful pleasures in life?' As a matter of fact, such people do not consider the gratification of the sexual process itself, but rather, its disturbing consequences. In actuality, sexual intercourse is unquestionably desired. As for what the person finds repulsive in it, Allah the Almighty will remove it in the paradise so that one would have pure enjoyment, free from the disturbances of the worldly life. Likewise, He the Almighty will remove from the wine of the paradise the disturbances of its counterpart of the worldly life. Thus, we must not compare the pleasure of the Hereafter to that of the worldly life because they are totally different. Surprisingly, such people who object to the existence of sexual gratification in the paradise are the most salacious people.

With regard to the saying of Allah the Almighty: 'And an overflowing cup.' (an-Naba': 34), it refers to the pure cups which are consecutively given to the people of the paradise and which will be filled with the wine of the paradise. Elsewhere, He the Almighty says: 'The righteous will have a drink mixed with Kafur.' (al-Insan: 5); and 'And they will be given a drink infused with ginger.' (al-Insan: 17) Thus, there are different kinds of drinks in the paradise.
